M-G-M presents INVASION QUARTET

Starring BILL TRAVERS · SPIKE MILLIGAN · GREGOIRE ASLAN

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

SANDS · FABIAN

Love and a Goldfish Bowl

TECHNICOLOR and PANAVISION

A PARAMOUNT RELEASE

Marlboro—

campus favorite in all 50 states!

...It's a top seller at colleges from U.S.C. to Yale
...and 1st in the Flip-Top box in every single state

If you think you're seeing more Marlboro men lately, you're right. More than 25,000 smokers all over the country are switching to Marlboro every month!

You'll know why when you try them.

Marlboro is the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste. The secret of the flavor is the famous Marlboro recipe from Richmond, Virginia... and the pure white Selectrate filter that goes with it.

Try Marlboro and judge for yourself. On or off campus, you get a lot to like.

Flip-Top box or King-size pack

FIVE PLAYERS ARE UNANIMOUS CHOICES

4 Tar Heels Named To All-ACC Team By DTH

Five unanimous choices were named yesterday on the Daily Tar Heel's 1961 All-Atlantic Coast Conference football team.

Seven of the eight ACC schools were represented on the first eleven. Every school but South Carolina had a man on the top team, and every school but Virginia placed as many as two men on the 22-man squad.

There were four North Carolina players named on the first unit by the six-member selection board. Two of these were unanimous choices.

The players receiving six first team votes each were Maryland end Gary Collins, N. C. State quarterback Roman Gabriel, Wake forest halfback Alan White, the two UNC players, guard Jim LeCompte and center Joe Craver

Each player received five points for a first place vote, and three points for a second place vote. A unanimous selection was worth 30 points.

Also included on the first team from UNC were halfback Gib Carson, who polled 26 points, and fullback Bob Elliott, who had 21.

★ ★ ★

First Team

End: Gary Collins, Maryland, Sr., Williamstown, Pa.

End: Bill Hull, Wake Forest, Sr., Tarboro, N. C.

Tackle: Ronnie Osborne, Clemson, Sr., Cleveland, Ga.

Tackle: Ron Gassert, Virginia, Sr., Mt. Holly, N. J.

Guard: Jim LeCompte, UNC, Sr., Gaithersburg, Md.

Guard: Jean Berry, Duke, Jr., Mooresville, N. C.

Center: Joe Craver, UNC, Jr., Shelby, N. C.

Quarterback: Roman Gabriel, NCS, Sr., Wilmington, N. C.

Halfback: Gib Carson, UNC, Sr., Freeport Pa.

Halfback: Alan White, Wake Forest, Sr., Elm City, N. C.

Fullback: Bob Elliott, UNC, Sr., Hendersonville N. C.

★ ★ ★

Second Team

End: John Morris, NCS, Sr., Galax, Va.

End: Jay Wilkinson, Duke, Soph., Norman, Okla.

Tackle: Jim Shumate, UNC, Sr., N. Wilkesboro, N. C.

Tackle: Dave Crossan, Maryland, Jr., Collingswood, N. J.

Guard: Lon Armstrong, Clemson, Sr., Eddystone, Pa.

Guard: Calvin West, Clemson, Sr., Kershaw, S. C.

Center: Tie—Ron Andree, Clemson, Sr. and Bob Hacker, Maryland, Sr., New Brighton Pa.

Quarterback: Jim Parker, Clemson, Soph., Haverford, Pa.

Halfback: Billy Gambrell, USC, Jr., Athens, Ga.

Halfback: Dean Wright, Duke, Sr., Coral Gables Fla.

Fullback: Dick Day USC, Jr., North Augusta, S. C.

Elliott defeated South Carolina's Dick Day by 3 points.

Wake Forest end Bill Hull received 22 points to nose out Duke sophomore Jay Wilkinson for the other end post. Wilkinson had 17, and N. C. State flanker Johnny Morris had 14.

Ron Osborne of Clemson, with 21, and Ron Gassert of Virginia, with 20, wrapped up the tackle spots. Jim Shumate of UNC was third with 13, and Dave Crossan of Maryland was fourth with 11.

Jean Berry of Duke earned 26 points at guard. Extra point kicker Lon Armstrong of Clemson was a close third with 22, and teammate Calvin West received 9 votes for a second team spot.

Ron Andreo of Clemson and Bob Hacker of Maryland tied for the second center post with 6 votes each.

Behind Gabriel, Clemson's Jim Parker was high with 16½ votes. Bill Gambrell of South Carolina was third in the balloting at halfback, and Duke's Dean Wright just nosed out teammate Mark Leggett for the fourth spot.

HARRY W. LLOYD

THE SPORTS

Tablloyd

Ohio State students think they have a reason to complain. Their school's football team went undefeated through its nine-game schedule, ending up with an 8-0-1 record, in the toughest conference in the country. For this record, they will probably be named the national champion. Will Ohio State go to a bowl?

No.

The faculty of this giant institution voted against the team's accepting a Rose Bowl bid. Twenty-eight members vetoed the possibility of taking the Pasadena vacation for New Year's Day.

Naturally, the football team was disappointed. As the champion of the Big Ten, they had looked forward to the trip. They would have been heavily favored over UCLA in the biggest of the bowls, and should have been able to end the domination of the West Coast Teams of late in the series. There's nothing the team, or Coach Woody Hayes, can do about the decision.

The students, however, didn't let this defeat by the faculty keep them down for long. Ten-thousand of them march three miles to stage a demonstration before the state capitol. Reports say that they called out to Governor DiSalle to overrule the decision of the faculty.

Of course, the Governor won't intervene, but he'd probably like to. In a football crazy state like Ohio, he could get a lot of votes on the pigskin platform.

* * *

The football season is now eleven weeks old. This week, it dies of old age as almost everybody who hasn't finished his schedule finally does so.

Because of the Thanksgiving vacation, we didn't make any predictions last week. The week before, we had a 23-3 record. Our mark for the year is 120-44, for a percentage of 73.

For this week, we predict . . .

Duke 17, Notre Dame 13. It's no secret that the Blue Devils are hard to beat in Duke Stadium. From the reports coming from Duke, the Murraymen aren't looking for a bowl bid, but a win over Notre Dame would look awfully nice on their season record. The Irish haven't looked up to par lately, so we think this will be the week for the Devils to come through.

Georgia Tech 26, Georgia 14. Despite some costly defeats, the Engineers are mighty tough. A win over the Bulldogs would be a perfect way for them to close a disappointing season.

Miami 20, Florida 7. The Hurricanes, always unpredictable, are as good as anybody else when George Mira is around. When the little sophomore starts to throw, the Gators just may have to go underwater.

Tennessee 27, Vanderbilt 6. This one is another traditional rivalry that both teams look forward to, as a closing game should be. The Volunteers aren't having their best year ever, but neither are the Commodores. Our vote goes to the Vols.

Mississippi 33, Mississippi State 7. Wade Walker would like to win in his last game at MSU, but his opposition is just too tough. The Rebels want to finish a little higher in the national rankings.

Texas Christian 21, SMU 0. Without a doubt, the Frogs pulled the biggest upset of the season with their win over Texas. It won't be any upset, but they will take the Mustangs in a breeze.

Rice 21, Baylor 14. A bowl bid could go to the winner of this game—if the right team wins. If you're a Rice fan, just whisper that possibility. It has a paralyzing effect.

Oklahoma 21, Oklahoma State 7. It is a one-sided season for the Sooners, who were a long time learning one end of the football from the other. They have finally caught on.

Holy Cross 19, Boston College 13. The Crusaders were shook up last week against Syracuse.

And in the one all the country will watch—

Navy 27, Army 20. Perhaps Wayne Hardin has finally learned to win over Dale Hall after two years of trying. That's how long it took Bill Murray . . .

UVa Coach Elias Is Having Fine Season

Bill Elias, head coach of the University of Virginia's surprising football team, could have lost nine straight games after his team's opening season 21-6 victory over William & Mary and still improved on UVA's 1960 0-10 record.

The 1948 graduate of the University of Maryland inherited a Cavalier team that had lost 28 consecutive football games, one shy of the national collegiate record.

Virginia was rated a slight favorite before game time and emerged with a relatively easy win over the Indians. The 28-game losing streak was no more, and UVA faithfuls were happy for the first time since their 15-12 upset over Duke in 1958.

But Elias wasn't a miracle man yet. Nine games remained on his schedule and nine losses were still highly probable.

George Washington fans were still applauding his 5-3-1 record of 1960 in his first season as GW's head coach when he was named Southern Conference "Coach of the year."

Duke was next on the '61 schedule for Vrginia's once-hapless Cavaliers. But the hapless role quickly returned as the Blue Devils pounded the Virginians, 42-0. N. C. State handed them their second loss the next week by a 21-14 margin.

Then, an October 14th, 14-7 victory over VMI brought the Cavalier fans to their feet again. They were now convinced that their ball club could win games.

The next week found the Cavs in the favorite role against VPI, but the gobblers shed the underdog cloak and rolled to a 20-0 victory to give UVA a 2-3 mid-season mark. Wake Forest pushed it to 2-4 a week later with a 21-15 win over the Virginians.

The Cavaliers rose once more on November 4 to drop a stunned South Carolina team, 28-20, for their first ACC victory since 1958. Virginia fans were satisfied. Elias had removed the 'de' from UVA's de-emphasizing program.

The 13-3 loss to Navy the following week was not a disappointment. The Midshipmen were 16-point favorites, but had to fight hard to gain their 10-point margin.

The nineth game of the season was to be against Maryland's strong Terrapins. Maryland coach Tom Nugent said that his team would accept the Gator Bowl invitation when it beat the Cavaliers.

That "when" was not in the books. Elias's eager beavers pulled the ACC's biggest upset and handed Nugent's "no bowlers" a 28-16 setback.

Current Frosh Cage Team May Be Best Here Since '54

By MARTIN KRUMING

Bolstered by some of the finest high school basketball players in North Carolina, coach Ken Rosemond's Tar Baby squad will open its 1961-1962 campaign against Virginia on Saturday night at 6:00 in Woollen Gym.

Spearheading the freshman attack will be Billy Cunningham, a 6-4 center from Brooklyn, New York, who was awarded the MVP award in Brooklyn during his senior year. Cunningham is rated as good as any pivot man at Carolina and is also an exceptional shooter and rebounder. While on the varsity at Erasmus Hall, he hit scoring marks of 59 and 60 points.

At the forward positions will be 6-4 Ray Respess from Pantege, North Carolina and 6-3 Pud Hassell, a Morehead scholar from Beaufort. Respess is an excellent shooter with a lot of spring and good defensive ability. According to coach Rosemond, this boy might be considered the best all around player in the state. His scoring peak was reached when he registered 46 points and hit on 19 for 24 from the court.

Hassell has just as illustrious a background as his teammate. While at Beaufort High School he never played in a losing game and his team ran up a winning streak of 76 consecutive games without a loss. During that time Beaufort High School marched to three straight championships. Hassell is classified as a real competitor with good defensive and offensive movements.

Stationed at the two guard slots are Bill Brown, a 6-3 high school standout from Durham, and 6-2 Jay Neary, from Rice High School in Cambria Heights, New York. Coach Rosemond expects great things from Brown, who has a deadly jump shot and plays an aggressive style of ball. Neary is a left handed shooter with lightning quickness and good ball control. Although Neary is the smallest of the starting five, he could turn out to be the sparkplug in the attack.

Not to be left with an inadequate bench, coach Rosemond will count heavily on Warren Price, Billy Taylor and Bill Vick when the time arises.

With sixteen games posted on the schedule, the Tar Babies will be in for a long and rugged season. According to Rosemond the three games with Duke, the two with Wake Forest, and the three with State should determine the quality of this year's ball club.

As far as coach Rosemond's basketball career is concerned, there are no doubts as to whether it is long and illustrious. He first tasted success as a member of the 1956-57 Tar Heel NCAA championship team. From 1957-1961 he gained valuable experience coaching varsity and freshman squads at South Carolina and North Carolina. Finally, this season he was promoted to assistant varsity coach under Dean Smith when Frank McGuire joined the Philadelphia Warriors.

Commenting on the 1961-1962 Tar Babies, coach Rosemond maintains that his squad has as good team balance as any one since 1954. Although there are no scouting reports on the Cavayearlings, Rosemond is very confident that his boys can not only win but also make an impressive season record.

Chicago Hopes Trading Will Help Climb Back

TAMPA, FLa. (UPI)—The Chicago White Sox have visions of dominating the American League again and although they have made two major trades already, general manager Ed Short promised today "we probably will make a few more."

Short, working closely with his field manager, Al Lopez, connated his second deal within 12 hours Tuesday when the White Sox acquired third baseman Charlie Smith and pitcher John Buzhardt from the Philadelphia Phillies for slugging first baseman Roy Sievers.

The deal followed close on the heels of the White Sox' first one of the baseball meetings in which they obtained Joe Cunningham from the St. Louis Cardinals for Minnie Minoso.

"We have a couple of other deals in mind," said Short. "There is a good chance we may be able to swing them before the meetings wind up at the end of the week."

Short would not identify the players the White Sox are offering, but it was learned that such veterans as Sherm Lollar, Billy Pierce and Turk Lown are among them.

The White Sox' sudden plunge into the trading market can be traced to their fourth place finish last season when they looked anything but like the exciting go-go aggregation which won the American League pennant n 1959.

"The two deals we've made already should go a long way toward making us a pennant contender again," said Lopez enthusiastically. "Charlie Smith will give us exactly what we need at third base and I think Buzhardt could be a big help to our pitching staff."

The Phillies went for the 35-year-old Sievers because, as general manager John Quinn put it, "we were sorely in need of a power hitter."

The New York Mets, one of the National League's two new clubs, felt exactly the same way. They obtained 32-year-old Frank Thomas from the Milwaukee Braves for an unspecified sum and a player to be named later. Thomas hit 27 homers and had 73 runs batted in while hitting .281 last season.

GANT

OXFORD BUTTON-DOWN

Careful tailoring adheres to the strict tradition you look for in this classic. Emphasis is placed on confident detail brought to the highest level of correctness. Fine cotton oxford has been crafted to provide excellent fit and complete comfort. The softly flared button-down collar maintains the authentic impression.

Julian's College Shop

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

The New Shipment Of Brush Stroke Prints is Here!

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St.

Open Till 10 P.M.

The man to watch wears a

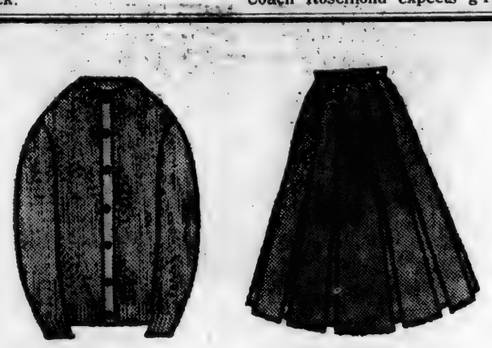
Madison Topcoat

...naturally

Our distinguished worsted cheviots are tailored for Julian's with true soft shoulder expression. Handsome town coats . . . authentic in every detail . . . lightweight yet comforting against chilly weather.

From $65

Julian's College Shop



For best results, mix well or match perfectly. Take one part VILLAGER full-fashioned wool cardigan with the front ribboned on the outside . . . mix well with stitched box-pleated wool skirt . . . and you'll have a sure recipe for fashion on or off any campus.

Exclusively at

TOWN & CAMPUS

Graham Memorial Presents

JOSH WHITE

". . . the greatest folk singer of our time"

MEMORIAL HALL

Tickets $1.00 at Kemp's and Graham Memorial

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1 8:00 P.M.

A sweater collection beyond compare. See this beautiful array of sweaters in blues, olive and brown heather tones and soft shades of grey in 6 button cardigan front, Crew-Neck, and V-Neck styles.

THE HUB of Chapel Hill

103 E. Franklin St.

There is a great selection of dress shirts at THE HUB, where the famous snap-tab was first introduced to U.N.C. whether it be snap-tab, button down or pop-over, we have them all. Whites, pastel shades and an assortment of stripes.

THE HUB of Chapel Hill

103 E. Franklin St.

FREE!

$25 CASH

PLUS

1 Case of B....r

If you can guess the EXACT SCORE of the UNC-VIRGINIA Game—you can can enter once for each check which includes PIZZA PIE—Don't miss this great contest!

UNC _____

Virginia _____

Name _____

Address _____

Phone _____

La Pizza

9671451

Open from 5 p.m.-1 a.m.

RULES:

1. Must be exact score!
2. In case of tie prize is split!
3. Entry must be in by Friday—midnight.

Kemp's

Merry Christmas Prices

ALL MONO AND STEREO RECORDS

Cat. List Price	Kemp's Price
3.98	2.67
4.98	3.34
5.98	4.03
6.98	4.85

Everyone Loves Music—All New Gift Stock

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

57

Stevenson And The UN

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather

Generally fair and slightly higher.

Offices in Graham Memorial | FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Interviews Slated Next Week For State Student Legislature

By CHARLES HEATHERLY

Interviews will be held next week to select UNC delegates for the State Student Legislature of North Carolina (SSL) which convenes March 8, 9, and 10, 1962 in the legislative chambers of the state capitol.

SSL is an annual function and one in which all North Carolina institutions of higher learning participate. The purpose of this legislative body is to voice student opinion on state, national and international levels. Each school presents one or more bills during the course of events. After presentation of a bill, the floor is opened to debate and then a vote is taken.

In the past many controversial topics have been discussed. For example, last year on the state level, consideration was given to grant veto power to the governor. Abolition of the House Un-American Activities Committee and a proposed method of birth control were issues pertaining to the national scene. And on the international picture, controversies surrounding the World Court and a proposal to repeal the Connelly Amendment were discussed among others.

14 From UNC

UNC will send approximately 14 official delegates to this legislature, twelve of whom will sit in the House of Representatives and two in the Senate. An undetermined number of alternates will attend.

The committee selecting delegates for SSL will consist of two members of Student Legislature and the two UNC members of the SSL Interim Committee. Lila Smith and Dwight Wheless represent UNC on the Interim Committee. This committee is composed of two representatives from each member school and is responsible for publicizing, planning and organizing the annual legislature.

Selection Committee

The Selection Committee will begin interviewing persons interested in going with the UNC delegation at 3 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 6. Each applicant will be given a short quiz on current events as well as one on parliamentary procedure.

Dwight Wheless, spokesman for the Interim Committee said, "I want to urge all persons who are at all interested in this function to make application for SSL because it offers an opportunity to meet students from all over the state and is an ideal outlet for student expression." He added, "Each applicant will be given the utmost consideration."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Gus Hall

Integration Violence Halted

McCOMB, Miss.—The mayor of McComb vowed Thursday the city's bus station would be desegregated without further violence. Five Negro "freedom riders" were mobbed at the terminal Wednesday when they sought service at the lunch counter.

Mayor C. H. Douglas told a news conference policemen have been put on overtime and the force was "now prepared to meet the emergencies." He also said four young white men had been arrested for Wednesday's violence.

★ ★ ★

Reds Charge Provocation

BERLIN—The Soviet Union charged Thursday that U .S. Troop movements along the super-highway to Berlin are "provocations . . . fraught with dangerous consequences." U. S. officials dismissed the charges and ordered another U. S. infantry company to roll through the Soviet Zone to Berlin Friday.

★ ★ ★

Communists Defy Arrest

NEW YORK—The leadership of the U. S. Communist party went underground Thursday to avoid the arrest of its American commissars for refusing to register as Russian agents.

The national party dismantled its leadership hierarchy in an apparent attempt to leave only three officers to face the promised federal prosecution for failing to register under the Internal Security Act.

★ ★ ★

Geneva Negotiations Stalled

GENEVA—The United States and Britain Thursday withdrew their chief negotiators from the Geneva nuclear talks.

Soviet demands for an uncontrolled, indefinite test ban created a stalemate and hopes for any East-West agreement in the near future vanished.

The talks will continue without the delegation chiefs.

U. S. chief delegate Arthur H. Dean and Britain's delegation leader Joseph Godber announced they were returning home Friday. Neither would say when he would return to Geneva.

★ ★ ★

Churchill Celebrates

LONDON—Sir Winston Churchill celebrated his 87th birthday Thursday with a breakfast of oysters and wine, a luncheon of roast suckling pig, and his first parliamentary speech in two years—and a seven-word thank you for a rousing ovation.

For the man who rallied the British nation in wartime with his "blood, toil, tears and sweat" oratory, it was not a stirring speech.

"I am very grateful to the House," Churchill said.

But it set off a renewed storm of applause and acclamation almost without precedent in Parliament.

Campus Briefs

All students who have not picked up their Yack proofs are asked to do so immediately.

The Baptist Student Union is sponsoring an old-fashioned stew supper Saturday night from 5-7 p.m. at the BSU Center, 151 E. Rosemary St. Tickets for the supper are $1 and can be bought from any member of the BSU executive council or at the Cetner.

"Circulo Hispanico" will meet tonight at 6:30 in Roland Parker GM. The joint Christmas meeting with the Woman's College club in Greensboro will be discussed. The program will be "Cancionis de Nanidad."

Resident Advisors: 3-4 p.m.—TV Room.

Student Audit Board: 3:30-6 p.m. —Grail.

Academic Affairs: 4:30-5:30 p.m. —WDHSE.

Spanish Club: 6:30-8 p.m.—R P 1, 2.

Flying Club: 7:45-11 p.m.—WDHSE.

UNC Orchestra Gives Program Tuesday At 8

The University Symphony Orchestra, Earl Slocum conducting, will give its first program of the season in Hill Hall next Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The program will feature Beethoven's Fifth Symphony. Other works to be performed are Der Freischutz Overture by Carl Maria von Weber, Adagio for String Orchestra by Samuel Barber, Accelerations Waltz by Johann Strauss (the younger), and Franz Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody.

69 Performers

The 69 instrumentalists are music majors, members of the music department faculty, students and teachers from other University departments, and musicians residing in the tri-city area.

Professor Slocum, has been conductor of the symphony for the past 16 years. In addition to his duties with the orchestra he teaches composition, orchestration, and conducting.

The public is invited. Admission is free.

Faculty News

Tom Patterson, associate professor of dramatic art has been elected to the Theodore Roosevelt National Memorial Park and Badlands Association Board of Advisors for 1962.

Patterson is the author of "Old Four Eyes," produced in Medora, North Dakota since 1958 by the Roosevelt Association, and described by "Time" Magazine as one of the five best outdoor dramas in the nation.

Other members of the Board of Advisors include two daughters of Theodore Roosevelt, Herman Hagedorn who is his official biographer, and other prominent people associated with Theodore Roosevelt and the Roosevelt Park.

Patterson's play recounts the story of Roosevelt's ranching days in the Dakota Badlands.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Erle Peacock Jr. of the School of Medicine is now enroute to the Christian Medical College at Velore, India where he will spend two months working in a leper colony located there.

Dr. Peacock is assistant professor of surgery (plastic surgery) and is a graduate of the Harvard School of Medicine. He has been on the UNC faculty since 1956.

Dr. Peacock was invited to India by Dr. Paul Brand, deputy director of the school. His trip is sponsored by the U.S. Public Health Service and by the personal support of Dr. Verne Blackwelder of Lenoir.

★ ★ ★

Joseph C. Sloane, chairman of the University's Department of Art and director of the Ackland Art Museum, was elected president of the North Carolina State Art Society yesterday.

Mr. Sloane, who was elected by acclamation by the Society's board of directors, takes over from Robert Lee Humber of Greenville, who announced some weeks ago he would not seek re-election after ten years as the Society's president.

Mr. Humber is now chairman of the board of trustees of the North Carolina Museum of Art.

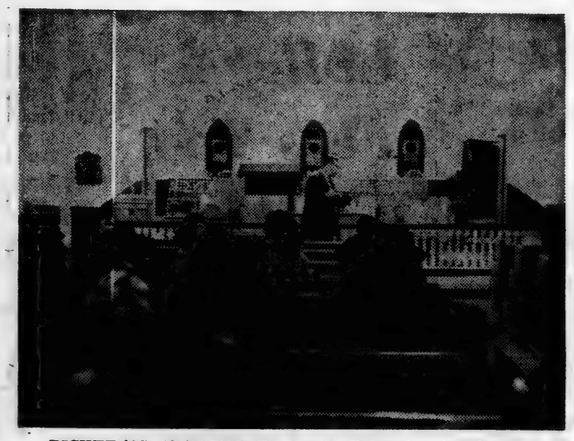
In accepting the presidency, Mr. Sloane said he stood in awe of Mr. Humber's achievement and in awe of following him as president.

He said that despite the fact that the Society had covered itself with glory and done a remarkable job, "it should spend no time whatever in lamenting the fact that it is no longer" actively participating in museum affairs.

Last June the Society membership approved the action of its board in turning over to the State its museum assets.

Dr. Clemmons Sommer of Chapel Hill was among four Society directors whose previous elections were confirmed by the Society.

Integration Meeting Calls Off Picketing At Varsity Theater



PICKETING SUSPENDED—Martie Primack, vice-chairman of the Citizens Committee for Open Movies, explains the recommendation of the Committee to indefinitely suspend picketing at both downtown Chapel Hill theaters The group of almost 100 townspeople and students, mostly whites, voted to support the recommendation last night at a meeting of the group in the St. Paul AME Church.

—Photo by Little

Committee To Wait For Further Action

By BILL HOBBS

The Citizens' Committee for Open Movies decided last night to indefinitely suspend picketing at the Varsity Theater.

The group, meeting in St. Paul's A.M.E. Church, decided to await further negotiations with both the Carolina and Varsity managers before making a final decision on resumption of picketing.

the integrationist group will meet next Tuesday with E. Carrington Smith, manager of the Carolina theater. Smith has said his theater would announce a step towards further integration at that time. The nature of this step has not been specified, but several members of the citizens' committee have speculated that it would be to admit the family and dates of the UNC Negro students.

Varsity Admits Students

The committee meeting followed an announcement by the Varsity last Monday that it would admit Negro UNC students who presented ID cards at the box office. The Carolina has been following this policy since August.

A heated debate on the proposition to stop picketing preceded the vote of the committee. Several persons argued that the group should continue to picket the Varsity since it had been "less cooperative" in its negotiations with them.

Policies Same

The majority of the group felt that it was unwise to picket one theater when both had essentially the same policies. Fifteen persons voted to resume picketing at th Varsity. About 100 persons attended the meeting.

After deciding to halt picketing, the group moved that its executive committee make "every effort" to speed negotiations with the Varsity manager, Andy Gutierrez. A meeting with Gutierrez had been scheduled for December 13, but th committ e felt that this was too close to the Christmas holidays to allow the group to make any effective decision.

Violence Rages In Dominican Republic

SANTO DOMINGO, D. R. (UPI) —A howling mob tried to storm the iron-grilled gates of the national palace Thursday but was repelled by tank-supported combat troops who fired over the heads of the demonstrators and hurled tear gas and noise bombs.

In another incident a demonstrator was shot to death.

The embattled palace guard had to call for reinforcements to hold back more than a thousand screaming demonstrators. Two truckloads of combat-equipped navy units roared through the crowd to take up positions inside the palace grounds at the bottom of a hill about 200 yards from the domed palace.

Troops ranged behind the fence encircling the palace hurled scores of tear gas grenades and noise bombs to scatter the surging mob which broke and ran but reformed and charged anew.

Fire Over Demonstrators

For the first time in 11 days of disorders, since the end of the so-called Trujillo era in the Dominican Republic palace tanks rumbled through the gates and took up positions in the street outside. They trained their machineguns on the crowd but did not fire. Troops inside the gates fired short tommygun bursts over the heads of the demonstrators.

The mob had marched on the palace from downtown Santo Domingo after false rumors of President Joaquin Balaguer's resignation touched off wild celebrations. The holiday mood turned to wrath as the official Dominican radio denied the rumors.

Wrath mounted as a demonstrator was shot to death in a public square by an unidentified gunman riding on a speeding bus. He was the first fatality since the start of the general strike three days ago, called by the opposition to force Balaguer's resignation.

It was reported but could not be immediately confirmed that the government and opposition had reached an agreement on a provisional government which would consist of Balaguer, four opposition leaders and armed forces Chief Gen. Pedro Rodriguez.

TV Showing For 'An Age Of Kings' Scheduled Today

Today WUNC-TV will begin a series of eight Shakespearean plays, entitled "An Age of Kings."

The plays, to be presented at 9 p.m. on Fridays and 8 p.m. on Sundays, are "Richard II"; "Henry IV, Parts I and II"; Henry V"; "Henry VI, Parts I, II and III" and "Richard III."

A preview broadcast for schools will be presented each Friday morning at 11 o'clock.

Each of the plays is divided into two programs, except the three parts of "Henry VI," which are edited and rearranged to yield five episodes.

The National Educational Television and Radio Center, headquarters and programming agency for a network of 51 non-commercial stations, last year obtained all U.S. rights to the series, a British Broadcasting Corporation production.

No ETV Outlets

The NET then waived those rights in New York City and Washington, D. C., where there are as yet no ETV outlets, so that a commercial station in each city could present the series.

The series has already had unusually large audiences in England, New York City and Washington, D. C.

A permanent company of about 20 players who occupied feature parts in one episode and minor ones in the next was used. The leading roles were contracted for separately with young actors of some reputation in the British theater.

The producer of "An Age of Kings," Peter Dews, received the top award for dramatic production from the British Guild of Television Producers for his work on the series.

Rev. Watson Talks To Beta Sigma Phi

The Rev. O. W. Watson spoke on "The Interpretation of Love" Tuesday evening at a meeting of the Chapel Hill chapter of the Sigma Phi sorority in the conference room of the Home Savings and Loan Association. The program also included a business session conducted by Miss Mary Dryden, chapter president.

Other members present were Virginia Hodson, Madge Oakley, Henrietta Shannon, Jackie Fields, Ione Williams, Trillis Sparrow, and Jean Sparrow.

STAFF MEMBERS

Any student interested in becoming a staff member of the Daily Tar Heel is invited to come by the DTH office, 2nd floor GM, any afternoon except Sunday.

There are presently openings in all departments, especially news. Students need not be journalism majors or necessarily experienced in newspaper work.

Law Scholarship Open For 1 Grad

A scholarship for the study of law at the University of Chicago Law School for the academic year 1962-63 will be awarded to a student graduating from UNC in 1962, announced Dean Charles Henderson yesterday.

The applicant must be recommended by the University and must meet the requirements for admission to the University of Chicago Law School.

Art Auction Slated At State

A State Art Student Prepar es Work For The Auction

Art work by faculty and students of N. C. State College will be auctioned at "reasonable" prices next Monday at the College Union in Raleigh.

The auction, scheduled at 8 p.m. is an annual affair designed to raise funds for the Student Publication of the State School of Design. About one hundred works, including paintings, drawings, prints, sketches, lithographs, woodcuts and sculpture, have been selected by the faculty for auction.

A spokesman for the Student Publication said, "We hope that through this auction we can bring the community and the artist in closer contact. We feel that awareness of the North Carolina artist is necessary for the continuation of art in North Carolina."

The works to be sold will be on display Sunday afternoon in the College Union at State.

Infirmary

Students in the Infirmary Friday were Gloria Alphin, Rosa Booth, Gaye Willard, Linda Simmons, Mary Coleman, John Fisher, George Venable, Thomas Henson, Dennis Barnes, James Fisher, Grimkey Spenser, John Jennings, Thomas Kelly, Catherine Johnson, Samuel Barfield, Richard Griffin, Dewey Sanders and Robert McConnell.

Sophomore Class Committees Listed

Sophomore Class President George Rosental Wednesday announced he chairmen and members of five committees at a meeting of the sophomore class in Gerrard Hall.

These standing committees will coordinate the class's work in the areas of social, financial, projects, publicity and communication.

The committees and members are:

SOCIAL: Lindsay Raiford, ex-officio; Brooks Emory, chairman; Bob Moore and Tracy Spencer, assistant chairmen; Charlie Brown, Betty Liverman, Sue Vandenborre, C. L. Chandler and Sam Robinson.

FINANCIAL: Hoady Harrison, ex-officio; Ben Newlin, chairman; Brick Oettinger and Mary Roberts, assistant chairman; Scott Trull, Dennis Barnes, Daley Berr, Beth Whitfield, Donna Fountain, Jim McDonald, Roy Kirk, Daor Henry, Lou Jay, Rick Powell, Clemet Lucas, Bill Bowerman and Bill Imes.

Summers Chairman

PROJECTS: Fuller Honeycutt, ex-officio; Scott Summers, chairman; Charlie Shaffer, Bill King, Charlotte Winstead, Sam Harris, Becky Hartman, Whitney Durand and Pug Waddell.

PUBLICITY: George Rosental, ex-officio: Bob Skees, chairman; Larry Ledford and Jaye Williard, assistant chairmen; Gary Grosball, Daine Jackson, Linda Willis, Jim Hobbs, Johnny Parker, Earl Moore, Eddie Coates, Rosemarie Riosenfeld, Diane Downing, Mal Lesaway, Richard Gens, Ann Regen, Tony Mason, Mark Gabelr and Low Rosenthal.

SECRETARIAT: Lin Sutton, ex-officio: Leslie Cloyes, chairman; Jane Forsyth and Dave Williams, assistant chairmen; Anne Lupton, Steve Real, Crickette Vaden, Barbara Matheson and Barbara Ligon.

After the meeting a combo party featuring the "Daiquiris Combo" was held in Y-Court.

AFTER BOND DEFEAT

UNC Moves To Fulfill Needs In Capital Improvement

Despite the failure of the entire $61.5 million bond issue November 7, and despite Governor Terry Sanford's announcement Monday that he would not request a special session of the Legislature to consider another bond election, the University will be able to go ahead with some of its capital improvement projects.

If the original bond issue had been passed by the voters the University here would have gotten $6,072,000 for a variety of capital improvements.

Most of these improvements have now been abandoned for the time being. Some, however, have not.

University business manager J. A. Branch said yesterday that the University's heating plant facilities would be expanded as planned.

"We would have had $1,380,200 for additions to the heating plant," he said. "Half of that would have been self-liquidating. Since there are buildings already under construction or in planning, we've got to heat those buildings — Craige & Ehringhaus Dormitories, and the new Botany building. So we're going to go ahead and borrow the full amount and pay it all off with earnings, self-liquidating.

"The renovation of Cobb Dormitory for women involves simple modifications in the bathrooms, providing hostess's quarters, and enlarging the social rooms."

Mr. Branch said that the cost of the renovation had been estimated at $50,000; that funds from HHFA loans could only be used for built-in equipment; that subsequent bids for the renovation had been lower than the $50,000 estimate; and that subsequently enough money would be available to do the renovation work.

He said an architect was working on plans for the renovation now, that bids would be taken by late spring, that a contractor would begin work as soon as the present residents of Cobb moved out at the end of the spring semester, and that the building would be ready for women students by next fall.

In the original bond issue, $730,000 would have been included for construction of a cafeteria and service building near the two new men's dormitories.

This money is now not available, but Mr. Branch said that the cafeteria would still be provided by taking over the ground floor of one wing of Ehringhaus Dormitory and installing a kitch-

(Continued on Page 3)

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 1, 1961 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 57

Stevenson And The UN

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson pointed out this week that this country's central objective is to build a "world community" based on progress, security and interdependence.

The Vice President also said that he felt that the U. S. and the West had a record of success that was impressive and which should not be obscured by its shortcomings.

Johnson made the comments when joining in a tribute to UN Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, lauding his efforts toward achieving world harmony.

That the UN had had failures is hardly deniable. But that it has a record of successes is equally evident.

The Soviet empire is vast and powerful. Its people are dedicated and its resources enviable. It is not an enemy which can be overcome in days or weeks, but for every victory gained in the UN, there is a corresponding defeat for the Soviets.

The election of U Thant to fill the unexpired term of Dag Hammarskjold as Secretary-General, for instance, ended the attempts of the Soviets to fill Hammarskjold's post with its three-headed monster, the troika. The block was largely the work of Ambassador Stevenson.

Had the Soviet Union been able to eliminate the possibility of independent action on the part of the Secretary, the result would have been complete stalemate, since the Soviet vote in the Security Council effectively deters action there. The battle will probably occur again a year from now when the Soviet Union will probably attempt to push over the troika plan by vetoing everyone who is proposed as a successor to Thant.

Again the U. S. will have to take hold against the plan and block it.

And again, we must succeed. But success in the UN, whether in the selection of a Secretary-General or on other matters, is impossible without some measure of confidence and support.

The UN has been under heavy fire in recent months by those individuals whose shortsightedness and irrational demands for immediate and total victory allow no place for the UN or for interdependence among nations.

The UN has been blasted as inefficient, ill-directed and useless. Nothing, as the Vice-President pointed out, could be further from the truth.

Johnson said of Stevenson:

"No one can fail to hear in the eloquence of Adlai Stevenson the sad, still voice of humanity. No one can doubt his compassion and his concern, not for the fate of his countrymen alone, but for the fate of all mankind."

Johnson's words are heartening. We hope they have the power to revive confidence in Stevenson and the UN. For, although the words have been attacked as empty and meaningless of late, the UN still remains the last, best hope of man.

But Also A Time For Courage

A Time For Fear . . .

Some, it appears, still have the ability to lift their eyes up from caverns in the ground to a higher hope: man's ability to turn his face from war.

Twenty-seven Chapel Hill families are betting on peace rather than war.

With the belief that man's best hope for survival is above the ground working for peace rather than preparing to cower below it, those families are giving to the UN.

Giving, each one of them, the appropriate cost of a fallout shelter. Twenty-seven families will give $1,600 each.

A $43,200 investment in peace and meaningful survival, given in faith, not in fear.

And there is cause for fear. Never, perhaps, has there been cause for greater fear. Nuclear weapons have the power not only to burn and mutilate men's bodies, but they have also a greater power: A power to destroy courage. Never before have men had the ability to destrop themselves in one great destructive holocaust.

This, undeniably, is cause for fear.

But it is greater cause for courage. And in Chapel Hill, 27 families have that courage.

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN RUTHER
Associate Editor

LLOYD LETTLE
Executive News Editor

BILL HOBBS
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

JIM CLOTFELTER
Assistant to the Editor

STEVE VAUGHN ..... News Editor
NANCY BAIRD, LINDA CRAVOTTA — Feature Editors
HARRY W. LLOYD ..... Sports Editor
DAVID WYSONG ..... Subscription Manager
JIM EISELSON ..... Circulation Manager
ED DUFFER ..... Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE ..... Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE HARDING ..... Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Capitalism? In The Kremlin?

The rosy picture painted by Premier Khrushchev at the 22nd Communist party congress last month doesn't seem to have much basis in reality, at least insofar as production figures are concerned.

For the third straight year, according to UPI reports, Khrushchev's tour of the Soviet republic of Kasakhsstan, an important area in grain products, revealed that the republic had not met its grain quotas.

The reason? Many peasants, it seems, were stealing a march from the capitalists and selling private produce for a personal profit, rather than devoting all their efforts to the state.

Shameful aren't they, those greedy peasants?

Don't Justify Freedom In Name Of God

Freedom which the free world defends against communism is often claimed to be right because of its nature as a divine gift of God to human beings. For the justification of divine nature of freedom, people often use a logical sequence that God being the Creator, freedom in the natural law must be divine, therefore one must defend the individual rights of divine freedom. But this assertion of divinity of freedom does not fit quite well into the idea of Chrstianity, because the idea of natural law itself is not easily found in the Bible except one place in a very subsidiary context.

"For when the Gentiles, which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these, having not the law, are a law unto themselves" (Rom. 2:14)

Secondly, the idea of political and social freedom is not at the center of Biblical revelation.

"Are thou called being a servant? care not for it: but if thou mayest be made free, use it rather" (I Cor. 7:21)

To Paul, social and political freedom canot be a divine nature but rather one of the tools to achieve the higher aim.

Indeed, the Bible says;

"When the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom" (IICor. 3:17) But this freedom is far removed from that which the free world is trying to defend against communism to-day.

"And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. They answered him, We be Abraham's seed, and were never in bondage to any man: how sayest thou, Ye shall be made free? Jesus answered them, Verily, Verily, I say unto you, Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin . . . . If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed." (St. John 8:32-36)

To Jesus, Abraham's physical freedom was not freedom. His freedom is in a mind which is not enslaved to sinful thoughts and deeds.

"Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage" (Gal. 5:1)

The yoke of bondage is the enslavement of mind to the sinful deeds and thoughts.

"For the law of the Spirits of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of Sin and death" (Rom. 8:2)

Therefore in Christianity even he who is not allowed to speak, to hear nor to see, and enchained in a windowless prison, can still be a great free man. In this sense Epictetus a stoic philosopher was able to affirm his freedom. Paul, having been imprisoned, wrote;

"For I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content, I know both how to be abased, and I know how to abound: everywhere and in all things I am instructed both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer need. I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." (Philip. 4:11-13)

This internal freedom of Christianity demands external endurance, patience and even physical enslavement.

"And ye shall be betrayed both by parents, and brethren, and kinsfolks, and friends; and some of you shall they cause to be put to death. And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake. But there shall not an hair of your head perish. In your patience possess ye your souls." (St. Luke 21:16-19)

External patience and obedience are the essential of Christian freedom.

"Ye have heard that it hath been been said, An eye for an eye, and, a tooth for a tooth: But I say unto you That ye resist no evil: but whosever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also. And if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloke also. And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain. Give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not away." (St. at. 5. 38-42)

Furthermore the Bible tells us that he who asserts his own righteousness to God will not have Christian freedom.

"The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust adulterers, or even as this publican. I fast twice in the week, I give tithes of all that I possess. And the publican, standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his breast, saying God be merciful to me a sinner. I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the other: for every one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." (St. Luke 18:11-14)

Thus Christian freedom totally loses its significance when people come to justify with God what they have done and what they want to have and to be.

"This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me. But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." (St. Mat. 15:8-9)

Freedom in Christianity is equivalent to the total dependence of man to God. God gives freedom to man in binding him to Himself. Freedom in Christianity is not the sort of thing that man can gain, defend or lose by his own physical power. It is entirely a matter of man's spirit which wholly depends on Him.

On the other hand, freedom that has a potentiality to be destroyed by communism demands the independentness of man. Therefore one must try to gain and defend it by his own physical power. Thus it is obvious that freedom which the free world tries to defend against communism has a nature quite apart from Christian freedom.

Therefore we should not use His name to justify righteousness of the political and social freedom that today's free world wants to retain from the grasp of communism.

HARUO KONISHI
107 Connor Dorm.

College Fees Too Costly

Increasing college costs are preventing some of the nation's most talented young women from attending college, says a report just issued by the Joint Office of Institutional Research in Washington, D. C. on behalf of the 94 state universities and land-grant colleges it represents.

Citing recent findings that, between 1952 and 1960, tuition and fees to state residents at major public universities rose more than 71%, the report concludes that the continued upward trend of college expense is stopping talented girls — including many among the upper 10% of high-school graduates—from entering college. Between one-third and half of those dropping out after high school asserted that finances are a major stumbling block to further study, in one recent survey of high school graduates.

* * *

FACTORS DISCOURAGING higher education of women include the inability of low-income parents to save adequately to meet college costs, coupled with reluctance to borrow against the future for a daughter's education; the lingering, although inaccurate, feeling of many parents that education of a son is more important than that of a daughter, if a choice must be made; and high tuition rates. In addition, boys more often than girls can earn enough funds from summer employment and part-time work during the academic year to defray significant portions of their college expenses. Or they may receive scholarshps not ordinarily available to girls.

The report points out that, at a time when the U. S. needs increasing numbers of adequately trained people ". . . . to perform the complicated duties of a highly complex and sophisticated society and economy", it cannot afford to waste talented womanpower. There are already too many unskilled workers. Furthermore, most young women today can look forward to about 25 years of work outside of home, principally after child-rearing days are over.

The social values in educating women, even those few who may never be gainfully employed—lie in the improved cultural and civic heritage they pass on to their children and the lower ratio of broken homes among the better educated. Yet in the fall of 1959, only 39% of recent girl high-school graduates attended college, compared with 54% of the boys.

* * *

AS A SOLUTION to the problem, the report advocates that tuition and other cost be kept low, in keeping with "the great American tradition of public education which runs—through college and graduate school." It is essential that "Americans . . . . make it possible for increasing numbers of low-income young people to continue their education as far as their capabilities permit. Reasonable tuition and fees in public institutions are vital in allowing such students, men and women, to get the necessary education to contribute importantly to themselves, their families, communities and the nation."

To maintain moderate cost higher education as an investment in the future, says the report, all colleges must have better financial support. State universities and land-grant institutions, in particular, must receive this from state legislatures, business and industry, alumni, and the general public.

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Ramblings By Robinson

America is constantly inundated with tons of reading material containing social criticism. Most of it is written in a sociological jargon that communicates only to a very small group. But Kelsie Harder, a Youngstown University professor, has come up with a lovely description of that sacred cow—John Q. Public of 1961. And surely Mr. Harder communicates.

"The man of the mass is probably a good man, Catholic, Methodist, Baptist, Democrat, Republican, Upper Class, Middle Class Lower Class, rich, poor or a believer in 'Facts.' He loves his wife a good woman no doubt, his mother, an old-fashioned mother no doubt, his kids and his neighbors. He does not covet his neighbor's wife—much. He wants to be loved by everybody. He believes in television, sports (especially if he leads a sendentary life), perhaps stereo ('listeneered' to suit his requirements), popular magazines (especially digests), the daily paper, and every gadget and screw in his car, and the shine on his car.

"And THE amazing thing about this 'good' citizen, and 'amazing' is the only word, is that he can retain all his good qualities, keep his conscience clear, and yet enjoy all the privileges of a lynching bee (as advocated by Fulton Lewis Jr. on Supreme Court Justice Earl Warren), a character assassination (as practiced by Joe McCarthy), a healthy prejudice against an outside group as practiced by Southerners against the world and New Yorkers against Puerto Ricans), or a business cut-throating of an associate. He usually lives in a split-level house and has a split-level personality. He is our practitioner of masslore and our modern barbarian. A citizen from sole to crown, he would be 100 per cent American under any government of the United States, whether it was socialistic, communistic, or Ubangi tribal."

You may not agree with what he says, but you can't help enjoying the way he says it.

* * *

Five members of the United Auto Workers who were charged by fellow workers with "working too hard" were fined and three of them suspended from their union for two years. If this continues, we can expect a trend to develop where slovenly workers will demand a 30 hour week at 40 hours pay, and everyone will compete to see who can move the slowest. We will surpass the Romans yet.

* * *

During New York City's two-week milk strike, we see in the papers, a lot of people including some with babies, went without milk. Of course, there were exceptions.

Such exceptions included people in hospitals and institutions and schoolchildren. We are impressed by the foresight and consideration of the Teamsters in arranging for these people to have the milk they needed.

Oh, by the way, there's one other exception. Before walking out and leaving millions with milk, the Teamsters arranged with strike-bound dairies to provide each Teamster with two quarts daily.

—MIKE ROBINSON

Conservatism Brings Sanity

By DR. GEORGE S. BENSON
President, National Education Program

THE NEW LEADERS

The current swing to conservative thinking among young people, in my opinion, is a mighty good sign that sanity is beginning to show up in our political thinking. Regardless of party, when youngsters begin to ask what they can do to preserve the priceless heritage of America against inroads on freedom and liberty, we can all view the future with optimism. I believe that America can be safe today only if its youth want it to remain the real fortress of freedom.

The School of American Students at Harding College this summer programmed two "Seminars In Americanism" designed specifically to inform and inspire high school students. Altogether, 339 honor students and sponsors from several states came together for a week of study under the direction of Dr. Clifton Ganus, director of the School of American Studies. These seminar scholars, top students in various high schools, wanted to develop a better understanding of what makes America the nation of greatest personal free-training program planned for them.

Read To Lead

I believe they are today better informed, more dedicated Americans, ready to spread the good word about the American way of life. Hearing lectures, viewing films, engaging in group discussions, these outstanding young people showed lively interest in getting to the issues that face the nation. They will make good citizens of their various communities, the state, and the nation. Their awakened interest in good government will make them intelligent voters.

If we can inform our young people, they will become straight thinkers who will keep this nation forging ahead to even more spectacular achievements.

It remains a great responsibility to teach and instruct the youth of the land. I say more power to every teacher who wants to make better citizens of his students. Let us provide students the informaton they need for developing into informed, responsible citizens. If we pass on the heritage to them, they will keep it and project it into the difficult future that lies ahead.

New Post Almost Cruelty Joke

President Kennedy's recent announcements which slid Chester Bowles out of Undersecretary of State and into a think-big-but-don't-act post, amount to a partial repudiation of his campaign platform.

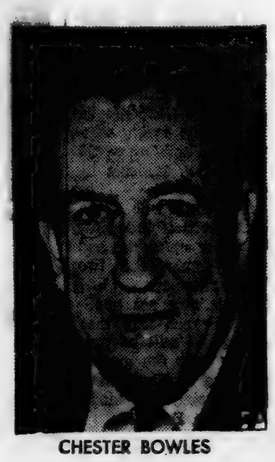
Bowles's new job as "special adviser" on African, Asian and Latin American affairs is almost a cruelty joke. The President has made a special point of not listening to the man who was his campaign advisor on foreign affairs. It is doubtful if he will listen any more attentively now that he has given Bowles a high-and-mighty sounding title.

* * *

THE FORMER ambassador to India is a leading advocate of increased economic aid for underdeveloped countries. The President apparently doesn't agree. Bowles, World War II Price Administrator, favors measures to generate a higher rate of economic growth at home and abroad—measures which again, the President doesn't like.

(As chairman of the Rules Committee at the 1960 Democratic Convention, Bowles incorporated many of his views into the platform on which Kennedy ran.)

The major Kennedy-Bowles split came over the disastrous Cuban invasion attempt. Bowles opposed the bungling tactics of the invasion—supporters who refused to commit themselves to a well-organized military invasion (which would have satisfied the Right) or no invasion at all (which would have satisfied the Left.)



CHESTER BOWLES

* * *

But the President has not made a clean break with his former undersecretary. Apparently he still values Bowles's advice, but not enough to give him a position of power.

Pressure from more conservative elements in Washington also seemed to have had an effect on Kennedy's decision. As Bowles himself said, in a pamphlet "Agenda 1961":

"For high State Department posts the President must choose . . . men whose views closely coincide with his own. But unless these views are generally shared by the men appointed to other . . . cabinet and policy-making posts, the State Department may soon find itself hamstrung."

Kennedy apparently felt that Bowles's opposition to such unwise actions as the Cuban invasion "hamstrung" the State Department. It might have been wiser to fire those responsible for the Cuban fiasco, rather than those who sanely argued against it.

—JIM CLOTFELTER

Sometimes It Pays, Sometimes

Sometimes it pays to know famous people, but at other times . . .

Well, take Dr. Norman Mattis, of the U.N.C. English Department. Dr. Mattis is a friend of Baynard H. Kendrick, the novelist ("Flames of Time", "Lights Out" and the Duncan Maclain blind detective series).

So when the professor took his family on a rugged mountain vacation, he wrote Kendrick about the privations, explaining that he was writing by flashlight beams and hoped the battery would hold out.

Kendrick, who lives in Leesburg, Fla., replied in the form of a mountain ballad:

BALLAD OF A MOUNTAINEER

Oh, I writes mah hymns as mah flashlight dims
Squattin' here in Franconia Notch,
'Cause I cain't set down on the frosty ground
'Count o' chilblains ahurtin' mah crotch.
Mah lips sucks in in a toothless grin—
Mah beard done went when hit froze
An' I sez: What the hell! The trip went well,
'Tho I frizzed off mah fingers an' toes.
So mah legs is numb from th' peaks I've clumb,
But I'm trainin' mah brood to be tough
And they'll l'arn up here, whar th' air is clear
That them soft beds at home hain't enuff.
As they sleeps on th' stones, whar their cracking bones
Is a-poppin' with those of mah wife,
Whar she twists and turns from her cookin' burns,
I'll show 'em, by God, this is Life!
L'envoi
Come we once gets down onto level groun'
From these heights o' Franconia Notch,
Let 'em eat their fill o' that home-cooked swill
While I sticks to mah hardtack and Scotch!

Legitimate

Editor's Note: The six names on the Avery dormitory's Varsity theater boycott petition, which a recent letter-writer said were "unidentified," were inadvertently misspelled from the signatures. All names were legitimate.

UNC Moves To Fulfill Needs In Capital Improvement

(Continued from page 1)

en and dining room.

"It would seat 176," said Mr. Branch. "Cafeteria experts tell us the turnover in a student dining room is two or three people per seat per hour. This means that if we keep the dining room open for three hours each meal we could take care of over a thousand people. There will be over fourteen hundred people in both Craige and Ehringhaus, but some of them will have classes or won't be eating there for one reason or another. This will take the pressure off Lenoir Hall, and if necessary the dining room can just stay open longer than three hours per meal.

"It won't be a complete kitchen. Bulk cooking like potatoes and stews and so forth will be done in Lenoir and transported to Ehringhaus and kept hot on the dining room's steam tables. Otherwise the cooking will be done there.

"The ground floor of the wing was originally designated as a recreation area, so no student quarters will be cut out by putting the dining room and kitchen in instead."

He said the dining room would be paid for out of surplus from the original $3,875,000 loan, which is being used for the dormitories and an addition to the School of Nursing dormitory. The Nursing addition is already completed.

The new student union and undergraduate library, long looked forward to on the campus, is out, Mr. Branch said. No further work will be done on the student union until a bond issue is passed.

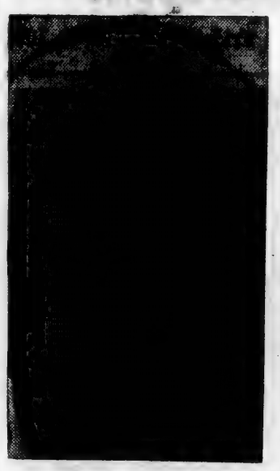
Other improvements that would have been made if the bond issue had passed are the renovation of the interior of Phillips Hall; enlargement of Memorial Hospital's outpatient clinic, laboratories, and science department; and the construction of driveways and parking lots.

From a political, rather than a practical point of view, Orange County Representative John Umstead said he agreed with the Governor's decision not to call a special session of the Legislature.

Mr. Umstead said Tuesday he had not talked to Governor Sanford since the no-special-session announcement Monday, and consequently was not exactly sure what the Governor meant when he said he was not asking for a special session because "it would not be conducive to the orderly processes of democratic government."

Mr. Umstead said it was hard to decide when another election should be called, even if it could be called.

Josh White To Sing In GM Show Here



Josh White

Josh White, acclaimed by many as one of the world's greatest folk singers of this generation, will appear in Memorial Hall tonight at 8 p.m. Admission to the performance is $1.

There are a limited amount of tickets available at GM information desk and Kemp's.

Tickets will be sold only to the capacity of the Hall, so a ticket will assure a seat. White is a Graham Memorial presentation.

Josh White reputedly is known throughout the western world as a perceptive artist and a versatile craftsman who can "electrify a sophosiitcated audience while retaining the power and simplicity of traditional singing," according to GM. His voice has a quality that is "as intimate as a caress."

"His accompanying guitar is sensuous and brilliant," said GM officials. "His feeling for phrasing is flawless."

White was born to a young Negro preacher and his wife in Greenville, South Carolina, and christened Joshua Daniel White in honor of the biblical warrior.

Josh is now on a concert tour across the United States. "The gracious man with one foot on a chair, facing the microphone with eyes closed and a frown of deep concentration on his face, is beloved by millions of Americans."

His songs are still "the people's songs, given life with deeply felt sincerity, biting cynicism, or bland impudence," said the GM statement.

White will appear at the upcoming World's Fair at Seattle, Washington.

KEMP'S Loose Diamond System

BUY YOUR DIAMOND THE WAY WE DO!

Pick Your LOOSE DIAMOND And Let Us Mount It In Mounting Of Your Choice.

T. L. KEMP Jewelry

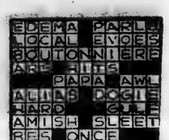
135 E. Franklin St. Ph. 942-1331

DAILY CROSSWORD

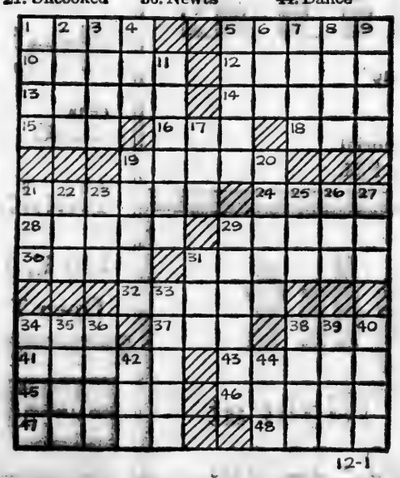
Release Fri., Dec. 1, 1961

ACROSS
1. Wool-suit nibbler
5. Land rail
10. Tapestry
12. Beat tablecloth
13. Rubbish
14. Facilitated
15. Speak
16. Royal Air Force (abbr.)
18. Island off South Jutland
19. Slopes
21. Remember
24. —— facto
28. Coral-reef island
29. Pry
30. Walk through water
31. Theatrical backers
32. Keeps
34. Perish
37. Sheltered spot
38. Man's nickname
41. Insufficiently adapted
43. German river
45. Scotch endeavor
46. Strong
47. Not the winner
48. Goddess of volcanoes

DOWN
1. Pails
2. Strange (Scot.)
3. Hostess' aide
4. Owns
5. Fissure
6. Inlet
7. Looplike structure (anat.)
8. Part of ship
9. Terminates
11. High-pitched
17. Entire amount
19. Tall ——
20. Warbles
21. Uncooked
22. Greek letter
23. Food fish
25. Edgar Allan ——
26. The sun
27. Goddess of harvests
29. Scoffs
31. Rosary bead
33. Change
34. Hamilton-Burr incident
35. Preposition
36. Newts
38. Eight furlongs
39. Indigo
40. To yield
42. —— de France
44. Dance



Yesterday's Answer



12-1

It's the Spirit that Counts

Give

Five Cent Christmas Cards

From

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

— CLASSIFIED ADS —

COLLEGE PROFESSOR WILL make a hurried trip to California for Christmas holidays. Seeks male riders to share driving & minimal expense. Be back Jan. 3. Call High Point 883-8287 or write Box 77D William & Mary Apts. High Point, N. C.

SIC FLICS

"Look! Fiedler's back from vacation!"

21 GREAT TOBACCOS MAKE 20 WONDERFUL SMOKES!
AGED MILD, BLENDED MILD - NOT FILTERED MILD - THEY SATISFY

Beat UVA!

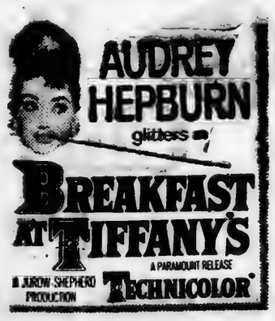
FORMAL WEAR RENTALS

Town & Campus

SPECIAL AT LA PIZZA NEXT WEEK

Carolina

NOW PLAYING



Katharine Gibbs Memorial Scholarships

Full tuition for one year plus $500 cash grant

Open to senior women interested in business careers as assistants to administrators and executives.

Outstanding training. Information now available at the College Placement Bureau.

BOSTON 16, MASS. . . 21 Marlborough St.
NEW YORK 17, N. Y. . . . 230 Park Ave.
MONTCLAIR, N. J. . . . 33 Plymouth St.
PROVIDENCE 6, R. I. . . . 155 Angell St.

KG KATHARINE GIBBS SECRETARIAL

Check The Books You'll Need For Christmas . . .

☐ Art Books

The Intimate has art books ranging in price from 39c to paperbacks to LEONARDO DA VINCI at $29.50, in subject from the RENAISSANCE to PICASSO'S PICASSOS

☐ Bargain Books

Our Bargain corner is full of books that will make people think you're a profligate—at tiny little price that will delight you.

☐ Children's Books

No other shop in the South has so many Children's Books as the Intimate. Prices? Surprisingly low.

☐ Cook Books

We have more cook books than you can shake a fork at. They are twice blessed. They blesseth him that cooketh, and him that eateth—and some are priced as low as $1.00!

☐ Engagement Calendars

Our display of engagement calendars runs the gamut from PEANUTS to VIRGINIA HOUSES. If you have dates, prepare to list them here.

☐ Fiction

The Intimate is loaded with fiction, from best sellers like FRANNY AND ZOOEY or LION ON THE HEARTH to new writers waiting for you to discover them.

☐ History Books

The Civil War, the Revolution, the founding of the West, and even the history that is taking place around us—they are all reflected on the copious shelves of The Intimate.

☐ Humor Books

There's no gift like the gift of laughter. We have the chuckles, from Uncle Shelby's A B Z Book right on out.

☐ Music Books

From Symphonies to Folk Songs, the books at the Intimate strike the right note for your Christmas giving.

☐ North Carolina Books

From the rarest to the most recent, you'll find all the books written in or about North Carolina waiting for you at the Intimate.

☐ Nature Books

Garden books, Bird books, books by Peterson and Chapel Hill's own John Terrace Ehle. The Intimate is plumb nature-happy!

☐ Poetry

Serious poetry by people like Eliot, and cummings, plus lush poetry for that biddy that races your motor.

☐ Rare Old Books

While we specialize in books on the South, the most surprising treasures show up in the old libraries we buy. If you have a collector on your Christmas list, the Intimate probably has a book he'll want.

☐ Religious Books

Bibles, Prayer Books, handsome illustrated books—and we'll gift-wrap them at no extra charge.

☐ Reference Books

All three top-notch dictionaries, plus a selection of scholar's friends that will knock your eye out.

☐ Travel Books

If you have a friend who is planning a trip, the capacious old Intimate has just the right Christmas present at a human price.

You'll find them all at that preposterous Browsery

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 E. Franklin St.—Open Till 10 P.M.

POGO

PEANUTS

Wrestlers And Swimmers Open Season Today

Earey's Tankmen Take On VMI Squad Here At 8; Varsity Opener For Mann

By JOHN KOURI

The initial splash of the UNC swimming team comes off tonight at 8 in Bowman Gray Pool. The powerful Dolphins play host to the swimmers from Virginia Military Institute.

Coach Pat Earey, the congenial, soft-spoken, ruddy-haired mentor, said that "VMI will offer stiff competition, but we should win. Our overall depth should make us stronger with Mann, Bilbro, and Bloom, but VMI will be very strong in the backstroke and freestyle with Prince and Collins. Last year we beat them convincingly."

"However," Earey continued, "the Thanksgiving vacation set us back. Mann, Bilbro, Bloom, Cone and the Mummaw twins were the only boys to stay at school during the holidays and practice. I feel that they will be better conditioned and stronger in this meet than the others.

"I am hoping that in this meet as many boys as possible will get the chance to swim. We want to win, but we are more concerned with the middle and latter part of the year, because of the ACC, Eastern and National Championships.

"This year's squad should do well. In the sprints we have Bilbro, Cone, Murray and Williams. In the distances we are also four strong with Bloom, Lea, Merrill and Weber. Huffman and Mann will be our backstrokers. This kid Mann has the best possibility on the team to gain All-American honors.

"The key to a good year depends greatly on King and Schiffman in the butterfly. If these two can improve, as I know they can, then some of our worries will be behind us. We are well-prepared in the breaststroke with Briggs, Cannon and Swift. Our divers, Patterson and Fambrough, are both valuable to the team."

The traditionally strong Carolina swimmers should be a stalwart in ACC play. The Blue Dolphins will begin their fifth year under Coach Earey. During this span, he has guided his teams to a magnificent record of 40 wins and 7 losses and three conference championships.

16 Seniors Close Careers Tomorrow

Sixteen seniors, many of whom have shown great lustre on the gridiron, will wind up their careers as UNC football players close the 1961 season against Virginia here.

Among this number are quarterback Ray Farris, halfbacks Gib Carson and Lenny Beck, fullbacks Bob Elliott and Joe Davies, ends George Knox and Conrad Sloop, tackles Jim Shumate and John Hegarty, guard Jim LeCompte and center Gary Truver. All these players have been on Carolina's first or second units this season.

Others who are finishing their eligibility are tackles Henry Taylor and Sam Loflin, halfback Breck Regan, tackle Joe Davenport and guard Benton McMillan.

The seniors, frustrated by losses in the closing seconds by the Tar Heels in their last two games with Duke and Wake Forest, are expected to be at their peak mentally in hopes of closing out their college football careers on a winning note.

"It has been four wonderful years," said Farris, who developed as a senior into a truly outstanding quarterback. "I am sorry we slipped up on those last two games, preventing us from turning in a better record this year. We don't intend to lose the last one."

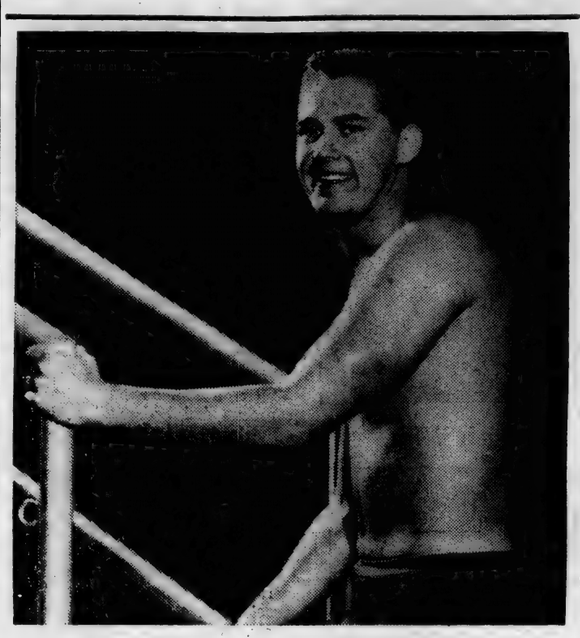
Co-Captains Elliott and LeCompte echoed the same sentiments. Elliott currently is runner-up in rushing honors on the team with 295 net yards (only four lost) for a 3.4 average. He also is the scoring leader with 33 points. LeCompte is an outstanding candidate for All-America and already has been named on one third-team selection.

Senior Gib Carson is the team's rushing leader with 388 net yards and a 3.6 yards-per-carry average. Carson is runner-up to Elliott in scoring with 20 points.

Saturday's game is expected to draw between 25,000 and 30,000, including upwards of 10,000 Boy Scouts who will be guests. A feature of the day will be a reunion of the great 1946-47-48 Carolina team coached by Carl Snavely and with Charlie Justice, Art Weiner and Ken Powell All-Americans. Justice, Weiner and Powell will be here, along with some sixty of their teammates of the period.

Virginia, fresh from a notable upset victory of Maryland last week, is expected to be a tough number, but the Tar Heels have worked hard in preparation. Each team has a 4-5 record for the season and both are hopeful of victory to escape losing season

This will be the 66th meeting in this old and honorable series. Carolina has won 35 games, Virginia 27, with three ties. The Tar Heels have dominated in the modern series, winning 11 of the past 15 games.



SPRINTING ACE—Bryan Williams, above, will be one of the leaders tonight for UNC when the Tar Heel swimmers take on VMI here at 8. Williams, a senior, was a member of the 400 yard relay team that won the ACC Championship last winter. He is a co-captain along with backstroker Bob Bilbro.

Grapplers Go To Washington & Lee; Barnes Has Lineup Set For Opener

The Tar Heels are an experienced crew, boasting nine lettermen, and good depth and weight-distribution give Coach Sam Barnes a well-balanced squad as they prepare for what could be one of the toughest schedules in Carolina wrestling history.

By ED DUPREE

Carolina's wrestling team travels to Lexington, Va. to open the 1961 season tonight against the grapplers of Washington & Lee.

The UNC matmen finished second in the ACC behind Maryland last year, but compiled only a 5-6 overall record. Missing from that team is Pope Shuford, captain for two years, and a top performer in every match. Shuford is a senior this year, but unexpectedly decided not to wrestle.

Presently the starting lineup appears to be Louis Arthur, 115 lbs.; Milton Nelson, 123; Tripp May, 130; Willis Johnson, 137; Richard Blackman, 147; Jack Jones, 157; Francis Lowerey, 167; Gene Record, 177; Bill Shipp, 191; and Gordon Appell, heavyweight. Bill Homes, Peter Gilchrist, Tom Grant and Neil Ruttenberg "could break into the lineup before our first meet," says Barnes.

The freshman wrestlers will also make the northern trip to tangle with W&L's frosh. Both the varsity and freshman squads will wrestle Virginia's grapplers at Charlottesville Saturday.

Varsity Booters Vs. Campus Team

The varsity soccer team will scrimmage an all-campus team today at 4 p.m. on Fetzer Field. The Tar Heel booters have finished the 1961 season with an 8-4 record and third place in the Atlantic Coast Conference behind Maryland and Duke.

charles hopkins of chapel hill
contemporary jewelry handwrought
designer/craftsman
over sutton's drug store
a new dimension in jewelry . . . gifts in good taste cost no more

The New Shipment Of Brush Stroke Prints is Here!
The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

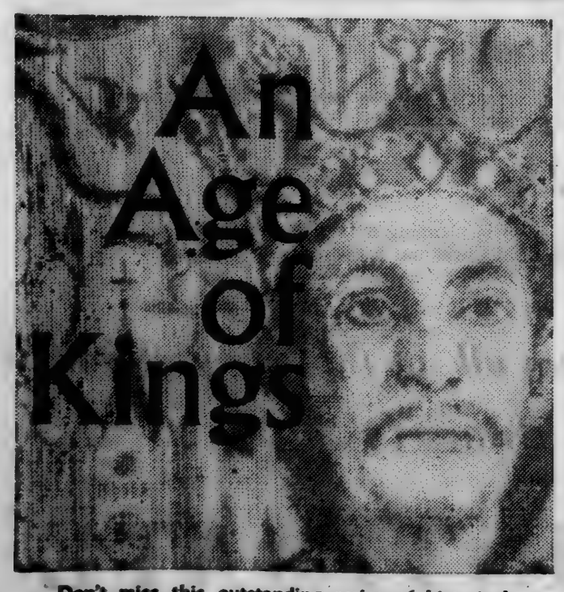
leading role sport jackets
Star of campus, town and country, and often in the business scene. Superb quality, easy price.

Town & Campus

Graham Memorial Presents
JOSH WHITE
". . . the greatest folk singer of our time"
MEMORIAL HALL
Tickets $1.00 at Kemp's and Graham Memorial
TONIGHT 8:00 P.M.

FREE!
$25 CASH
PLUS
1 Case of B....r
If you can guess the EXACT SCORE of the UNC-VIRGINIA Game—you can can enter once for each check which includes PIZZA PIE—Don't miss this great contest!
UNC _____
Virginia _____
Name _____
Address _____
Phone _____
La Pizza
9671451
Open from 5 p.m.-1 a.m.
RULES:
1. Must be exact score!
2. In case of tie prize is split!
3. Entry must be in by Friday—midnight.

Date Night
Every Friday and Saturday Night at the CAROLINA GRILL–8:00 - 12:00. And–if your Date Buys the Pitcher –IT COSTS ONLY 50c. So–Come on guys–bring those gals and join the fun . . . . Don't forget to try one of our delicious and unusual sandwiches, too . . .
Burger Bost
Big-Mo
Twilight Zone
Route No. 66
King of the Sea
CAROLINA GRILL
312 W. Franklin Tel. 942-2564



Don't miss this outstanding series of historical plays by William Shakespeare. It's a National Educational Television highlight—brought to you by HUMBLE OIL & REFINING COMPANY America's Leading Energy Company. Esso
FRIDAYS at 9:00 PM-CHANNEL 4

Kemp's Merry Christmas Prices
MONO AND STEREO RECORDS

Cat. List Price	Kemp's Price
3.98	2.67
4.98	3.34
5.98	4.03
6.98	4.85

—PLUS—
3000 Archive And Deutche Grammophon LP's
Reg. $6—Christmas Special $3.90
Stereo $4.90

Check your opinions against L&M's Campus Opinion Poll #13
1 Your best friend's beautiful date asks you to meet her for a late date. Would you...

☐ meet her in secret? ☐ meet her and tell your friend? ☐ tell and not meet her?
2 For your major course which would you choose...

☐ a good teacher
☐ or an outstanding man in his field but a poor teacher?
3 Has advertising ever influenced your choice of cigarette?

☐ Yes
☐ No
Expect more, get more, from L&M

There's actually more rich-flavor leaf in L&M than even in some unfiltered cigarettes. You get more body in the blend, more flavor in the smoke, more taste through the filter. So expect more, get Lots More from L&M. And remember—with L&M's modern filter, only pure white touches your lips.
HERE'S HOW 1029 STUDENTS AT 100 COLLEGES VOTED!
Have an L&M in pack or box
3 Yes 40% No 60%
2 good teacher 83% outstanding man 17%
1 meet her in secret 35% meet her and tell 49% tell and not meet her 16%
L&M's the filter cigarette for people who really like to smoke.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Passivity and Neutralism

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Offices in Graham Memorial | SATURDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Weather

Some cloudiness and warmer. High in the mid 60's.

State SG Interviews Next Week

Interviews to select UNC delegates for the State Student Legislature will be held from 3-5 p.m. Wednesday through Friday next week on second floor GM. Appointments are not necessary.

The SSL convenes March 8, 9 and 10, in the legislative chambers of the state capitol.

Each applicant will be given a short quiz on current events as well as one on parliamentary procedure. Then he will be interviewed by the selections committee: Lila Smith, John Randall, Scott Summers and Dwight Wheless.

UNC will send approximately 14 official delegates to this legislature twelve of whom will sit in the House of Representatives and two in the Senate. An undetermined number of alternates will attend.

SSL is an annual function and one in which all North Carolina institutions of higher learning participate. The purpose of this legislative body is to voice student opinion on state, national and international levels. Each school presents one or more bills during the course of events. After presentation of a bill, the floor is opened to debate and then a vote is taken.

Campus Briefs

All students who have not picked up their Yack proofs are asked to do so immediately. Also anyone desiring pictures taken by Yack photographers, leave name, address and pictures desired at the Yack office.

• • •

The YW-YMCA Orphanage Committee will leave from Y-Court at 2 p.m. Sunday. All those interested in making the trip to Raleigh are asked to be present by co-chairmen Betti Brown and Bruce Cooper. The committee will return by 5:30.

• • •

Dr. Hugh Anderson, Duke professor from Glasgow, Scotland will speak on "A Britisher's View of the American Church" at the First Presbyterian Church, Wednesday at 7:45 p.m. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. and reservations may be made by calling 942-3753.

• • •

George Adams of the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation Office will speak on "Sociological Aspects of Alcoholism", at the Binkley Baptist Church House, 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Supper will be served at 5:45 p.m. at the church house at 507 E. Franklin St.

• • •

The Baptist Student Union is sponsoring an old-fashioned stew supper Saturday night from 5-7 p.m. at the BSU Center, 151 E. Rosemary St. Tickets can be bought for $1 from any member of the BSU executive council or at the Center.

Proceeds from this dinner will go toward the BSU LISTEN fund, which helps support student foreign missionary work during the summer.

• • •

The newly-formed Sunday morning class for graduate students and young adults at the University Methodist church will meet weekly at 9:45 a.m. in the pastor's study. Jointly sponsored by the University Methodist church and the Wesley Foundation, the class is taught by the Rev. Bob Johnson, director of the Wesley Foundation.

STAFF MEMBERS

Any student interested in becoming a staff member of the Daily Tar Heel is invited to come by the DTH office, 2nd floor GM, any afternoon except Sunday.

There are presently openings in all departments, especially news. Students need not be journalism majors or necessarily experienced in newspaper work.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Gus Hrdlicka

By United Press International

DOMINICAN: A new "get tough" policy by the army was reported breaking a general strike called by the opposition in the Dominican Republic in an effort to topple President Balaguer. In one incident, a truckload of troops forced its way through a crowd of women demonstrators, injuring 11.

★ ★ ★

U.N.: The United Nations General Assembly opened debate Friday on the Communist drive to oust Nationalist China from the United Nations and seat Red China.

COMMUNISTS—Washington: Justice Department prepares moves against Communist party which defied edict it must register.

★ ★ ★

BERLIN—U. S. Army reasserts right to travel autobahn despite Russian "provocation" charges; convoy delayed by technical hitch.

★ ★ ★

RIDERS—McComb, Miss.: More "freedom riders" converge on McComb; violence erupts in advance of their arrival.

★ ★ ★

EMBEZZLEMENT—Whitting, Ind.: Two brothers acused by FBI of embezzling up to $1 million from bank where they were executives.

★ ★ ★

COMPLAINT—Fort Polk, La.: Hundred National Guardsmen sign letter asking for discharge; general says they won't be disciplined.

★ ★ ★

SPACE—Cape Canaveral: Space chimp returns to cape; tests he will undergo expected to give indication how man will fare in space. Pictures.

Mae West Comedy Shown On Monday

A rare opportunity to see the complete version of Mae West's controversial comedy that led to the establishment of the Hollywood Code is offered to UNC-Chapel Hill Film Society members Monday night at 8 in Carroll Hall.

Based on Miss West's book Diamond Lil, the Paramount comedy was directed by Lowell Sherman and had among its cast Cary Grant as a minister and Owen Moore, Gilbert Roland, Noah Berry, David Landau, and Rafaela Ottiano.

Also on the program are three shorts. Ray Dawson of the Political Science Department will introduce March of Time's "FDR—Story of the White House" by giving prognostications of Roosevelt's place in history.

The first of the other two shorts is "Test Shots for Hamlet," two tests for a planned but never realized production by MGM and all that remain of the most famous of John Barrymore's stage roles. The second is "Sausalito," produced, directed and photographed by the late Frank Stauffacher whose 1947 "Art in Cinema" exhibition at the San Francisco Museum of Art gave major impetus to the post-war avant-grade revival in the U. S.

Program notes, including information on famous screen vamps of silent and sound productions, will be prepared by Walter Spearman of the Society's sponsoring committee.

A few memberships in the Society for the remainder of the fall-winter series are still available at reduced rates. The present series ends in January. Remaining to be shown are several Keaton and Chaplin comedies, Greta Garbo's "The Kiss," Douglas Fairbanks, Sr.'s "Mark of Zorro," and Carl Th. Dreyer's masterpiece on witchcraft, "Day of Wrath."

Aycock Praises Southern Education Goals Committee

Graduate Field Lags In South

Low Percentage Attend College

By CHUCK NEELY

Chancellor William B. Aycock yesterday praised the Commission on Goals for Higher Education in the South for its stand that the South should consider itself "part of the nation with obligations to help Americas' growth."

He met with representatives from 16 Southern states in Louisville Thursday. Chancellor Aycock, a member of the Southern Regional Education Advisory Board, was one of 175 political, business and educational leaders present.

The Commission's report, entitled "Within our Reach", pointed out the methods and practices that the South must follow to achieve its goals.

Aycock said the report could be used as the blueprint on which the South can base its future progress. He said that the goals expressed in the report could, and must be reached if the South is to progress. Most of the goals could be obtained within 10 to 20 years, he said.

Excellent Report

When asked his opinion of the Commission and its work, Aycock replied that it was a group made up of outstanding Southerners and that the report was excellent. He said he felt the main value of meeting was that it brought out the fact that the South should think of itself not solely as a region, but as a part of the nation with obligations to help America's growth.

The commission's specific proposals to raise the quantity and quality of higher education included a de-emphasis of athletics, elimination of traditional long summer vacations and increased cooperation between colleges and universities for more efficient use of library and other educational resources.

The report said the South was not alone in needing improvement, but it pointed to several areas in which it is far behind the rest of the country:

1.—Only 29 per cent of Southern

(Continued on Page 3)

CHANCELLOR AYCOCK

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

UNC 'Ranks High In Nation'

Consolidated University President William Friday yesterday said Carolina is ranked "very high among American universities and colleges. He made this statement in connection with the meeting in Louisville, Ky. of the Commission on Goals for Higher Education in the South.

He noted that UNC is one of 41 colleges and universities in the Association of American Universities out of the 1800 institutions of higher learning in the country. Members of the AAU are considered to be among the leading schools in the U. S.

President Friday also said that about $.70 out of every general fund tax dollar went to public education in North Carolina, a figure thought by many to be rather high.

Football Saturdays Hectic For Policemen

By ED DUPREE

Football Saturdays are hectic days for the Chapel Hill Police Department and 38 police officers will be on duty this afternoon for the UNC-Virginia contest.

Their multiple duties range from directing traffic, before and after the game, to combing Kenan Stadium after the game in search of lost articles.

The working day will be especially long for the first shift, which comes on duty at 7 a.m. and works into the late afternoon, after the gridiron duel has ended.

Early-Bird Fans

At 11 a.m., when some of the early-bird fans begin to arrive in Chapel iHll, the second shift comes on duty and 45 minutes later, the third shift joins the first two.

The second and third shifts report to Kenan Stadium at noon for their specific duties. At the stadium, one officer is assigned to the North Gate and another to South Gate, while a large number work inside the stadium.

During the game itself, the police officers have the task of watching for disorderly conduct, concealed alcoholic beverages, and the like. "Occassionally," they find time to watch parts of the game.

End of Third

At the end of the third quarter, the ticket money is collected from the booths by two officers and carried to a designated stadium gate.

Finally, when the game is over, the policemen once more change their duties to cope with the fans, traffic, and large number of youngsters who try to out-comb the officers who check for lost articles.

The only humorous part of Capt. C. E. Durham's well-organized work schedule is the paragraph which relates to these youngsters. It reads: "Don't wait so long before you start checking. You have been waiting too long and the small kids are going through and getting stuff before you check it. Check all these kids for things they have picked up."

Nineteen officers are assigned the task of checking both the north and south sides of the stadium.

Two Policemen

Two other policemen are assigned to the field house where they restrain the excited fans who have hopes of getting into the dressing rooms to congratulate the favorite players. After the coaches have talked to their teams, the doors are opened and parents are allowed to enter the room.

Meanwhile, the remainder of the force directs traffic and patrols the town until the activity dies down.

Thirty-eight police officers, therefore, will have a busy day today as an expected 30,000 fans jam Kenan Stadium to watch the Tar Heel and Cavalier teams in the season's finale for both teams. This will be the last "long Saturday" until next fall for these blue-clad Chapel Hillians whose duties are innumerable.

SG Studies Bill On Elections Law

Student legislators began a new Assembly Thursday night introducing three bills and one resolution.

Two of the proposals would call for changes in the general elections law and in the body's Rules Committee. The other bill asks $70 to buy a page in the Yack for the UNC Dance Committee. The resolution would commend the work of the Campus Entertainment Committee.

All the measures are expected to receive hearings at committee meetings before Thursday night.

Three reports from campus groups receiving student funds allocated by Legislature were heard. Reports came from Cam Taber, of the Carolina Women's Council; Rebekah Royster of the International Students' Board; and Jey Deifell of the Honor System Commission.

Deifell announced a program through which the group hopes to visit and explain Carolina's honor system to state high schools in the spring.

The high school student bodies would view the film on the UNC honor system. However, in order to carry out this part of the program, Deifell said, two more reels of the film must be provided at a cost of $45 each.

Announcement of the following student government appointments were read:

Jack Fetner, assistant attorney general. Mary Marshal, who will be Fetner's assistant.

Elizabeth Reed and Carolyn Pinon, named to the Carolina Woman's Council from Women's Judicial District III.

Henrietta Brown, named to the President's Cabinet.

Pete Harkness, named in charge of campus civil defense.

Dwight Wheless, Lila Smith, Scott Summers and John Randall named to the interim committee of the State Student Legislature. These four will serve as a selections committee to name delegates to the SSL to be March 8-10.

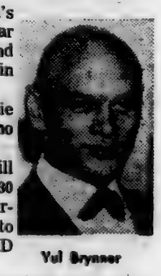
Finance Committee will meet Monday at 8:30 p.m. in GM. Ways and Means Committee will meet Tuesday at 5 p.m. in GM.

Free Flick 'Journey'

Saturday night's free flick will star Yul Brynner and Deborah Kerr in "The Journey."

Sunday's movie will be "Cyrano de Bergerac."

The movies will be shown at 7:30 and 9:30 at Carroll Hall only to students with ID cards.



Yul Brynner

AFROTC Unit On Its Toes For Visitor

Carolina's 590th AFROTC Unit, Area B, will be visited by the Area B Assistant Commandant, Col. Royal S. Thompson.

Col. Thompson will arrive on campus today and will meet with Consolidated University President William L. Friday.

Monday he will visit Chancellor William B. Aycock and Dean of the Faculty, Dr. James L. Godfrey. Also on Monday a briefing will be given by seven senior AFROTC cadets from the local detachment explaining how the AFROTC is operating at UNC. The Col. will depart for A&T College on Tuesday.

Col. Thompson's previous assignment was Professor of Air Science at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minnesota. He served in World War II, as well as the Korean War, and emerged with several decorations. Among them are the Air Medal with 3 Oak Leaf Clusters, Croix de Guerre with Red Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Bronze Star Medal.

TV's Available For WUNC's 'Age Of Kings'

The Department of Radio, Television, and Motion Pictures has announced that television sets will be made available Sunday night for students viewing of the first presentation of "An Age of Kings" on Channel four.

All interested students are invited to see this first of fifteen television broadcasts of Shakespearan Pageantry to be presented by WUNC-TV each Friday and Sunday nights. The television sets will be located in studio "A" of Swain Hall, at the back entrance of Swain Hall.

SENATOR GALE McGEE

Wyo. Senator To Speak At Symposium

Senator Gale McGee

Wyoming's Senator Gale McGee will be on of the principal speakers for the third night of the Carolina Symposium next April.

Senator McGee's topic will be the world political revolutions on the contemporary scene, particularly as they involve the emergence of the underdevcloped nations.

Though Mr. McGee is one of the youngest senators, his record is already long and impressive. Combining the roles of teacher and politician, he has already shown a high idealism mixed with an excellent practical sense.

After graduating from the University of Colorado in 1939 and acquiring a Ph.D. in American History from the University of Chicago in 1947, McGee was a college teacher and lecturer for 23 years. During this time he lectured in every state in the Union, traveled widely in foreign countries and served as Chairman of the Institute of International Affairs at the University of Wyoming.

Already greatly respected as a scholar and a speaker, McGee chose to leave his professorship at the University of Wyoming in 1958 and attempted to put ideas into action. With no previous political experience he was elected to the United States Senate.

Congo Mission

Since that time, he has compiled an amazing record. After a mere three years, he is already serving on the Appropriations and Commerce Committees, positions traditionally reserved for many-year veterans. He has travelled to Laos, Vietnam, Egypt and the Congo on Congressional missions.

In September of 1960, a trade magazine in an article on the Congress of the United States, conducted a poll of Congressmen to see how they rated each other. The Democrats in Congress picked, in that poll, as the two "young men with the greatest potential" Senator John F. Kennedy and Senator Gale McGee. Comments quoted from Senator McGee's colleagues in their selection of him were:

"Brains; guts. Deep interest in domestic and foreign problems; one of the best informed; outstanding capacity to speak eloquently on many subjects. Brilliant, scholarly."

Other Speeches

Senator McGee's appearance here for the Symposium will mean that in the same academic year the Carolina campus will have talks from the two "young men with the greatest potential" selected by the U. S. Senate. President Kennedy visited the campus to receive an honorary degree and to make a speech on University Day in October.

The general theme for next spring's symposium will be "Today's Revolutions." In addition to the address by Senator McGee other prominent speakers will discuss the contemporary revolutions in science, the arts, economical and social relations.

XMAS XPRESS

Beginning Tuesday, the Daily Tar Heel will publish a list of rides and riders for the Christmas holidays. Students desiring either should bring a type-written or printed note with their name, telephone number and destination by the DTH offices, second floor GM any afternoon except Sunday.

Library Schedule

The Christmas holiday schedule for the Wilson Library is as follows:

Sat., Dec. 16	7:45 a.m.-1 p.m.
Sun., Dec. 17	Closed
Mon. thru Fri., Dec. 18-22	9 a.m.- 5 p.m.
Sat., Dec. 23	Closed
Sun., Dec. 24	Closed
Tues., Dec. 26	Closed
Wed. thru Fri., Dec. 27-29	9 a.m.-5 p.m.
Sat., Dec. 30	9 a.m.-1 p.m.
Sun., Dec. 31	Closed
Mon., Jan. 1	Closed
Tues., Jan. 2	9 a.m.-5 p.m.
Wednesday, January 3 — Resume regular schedule.
Mon., Dec. 25	Closed

TOO MUCH TWIST

TRENTON, N. J. (UPI)—Dr. Lucian Ford of Hammonton, N. J., a chiropractor, said he treated three patients who complained of pains from bending down or rising from a chair as after-affects of dancing the twist.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 2, 1961 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 59

Passivity & Neutralism

In a further step away from the Ghandian principle of passive resistance, India's Prime Minister Nehru has announced that India will strengthen military might along the Chinese-Indian border.

According to the Prime Minister, the move is calculated not only to strengthen India's defense against further territorial encroachments by the Chinese, but may develop into a campaign to recoup territory already lost. In other words, India might well be ready to take offensive military action against China, a move which, if it develops, could well plunge the two nations into war. Relations between the two countries are already strained to the breaking point, and it has been only the exemplary patience of Nehru that has kept the border dispute more or less peaceful.

But apparently that patience is wearing thin. And it is time that it did. Patience, a commendable virtue in most disagreements, has little affect against the Chinese. China is a crowded country and territorial expansion, to the totalitarian mind, is the logical approach to alleviating some of the ills that are caused by overpopulation. India, if Nehru allows it, will be the victim of this expansion, as raleady demonstrated by Chinese seizures of Indian territory. Fortunately, Nehru has demonstrated by his declaration to strengthen the border that he will not allow it.

India has seen that China must be dealth with firmly, and if need be, with military force. We hope that the declaration will be sufficient to contain the Chinese and Indian territory can be kept intact by means short of actual conflict.

However, because of China's obvious national policy of aggression, this hope is probably ill-founded and the two Asian powers will eventually be hurled into a conflict that will have repercussions around the world.

Whether this ominous realization will have an effect on Nehru's professed neutralism is doubtful. His pronouncements on that question have been clear. But certainly Nehru is beginning to relize that fence-straddling and passivity, when one is dealing with an agressor nation such as China, is no guarantee of becoming a reality. This was graphically and frightfully illustrated by the voters of North Carolina in the November 7 Bond Issue election.

If the people of the state, by far the most progressive in the South, react with such piteous apathy to the needs of higher education, how can these excellent goals be expected to fare in the rest of the region?

Furthermore, if the governor of North Carolina—a leader in the fight for 'quality education'—did not have the political guts to press his program in a special session of the legislature, how can the lesser governors of the South be expected to provide the leadership necessary for improving higher education as the commission recommends?

Like many commissions, the Commission on Goals for Higher Education in the South has done a good job of examining the problems and presenting solutions. Unfortunately, the report may go unheeded as a nice collection of ideas to be praised but not acted upon.

Let us hope the people in the rest of the South show none of the callous short-sightedness North Carolinians have shown to education. And let us hope other Southern leaders show less political cowardice in the field than our beloved governor has demonstrated.

—Bill Hobbs

Southern Education?

The Commission on Goals for Higher Education in the South has presented an intelligent, well-conceived program for the colleges and universities of Dixie.

Meeting in Louisville this week, the commission proposed that the region double its higher education enrollment and nearly triple the expenditures for college education in the next eight years.

These steps are obviously needed. The report of the commission shows that only 29 per cent of Southern college-age youths are in college as compared to a national average of 39 per cent. It also points to discouraging figures in the fields of teacher salaries, graduate studies, library facilities and per-capita expenditures for students.

Furthermore, the steps advocated by the commission are not unrealistic. The group's aim is to raise college enrollment to 39 per cent of college-age youths by 1970. By then the national average is expected to be 45 per cent. The fund increase will, if achieved, represent only 1.9 per cent of the region's personal income.

What a nice rosy picture.

Unfortunately, it has little chance

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARIANNE ANN REYNOLDS
Associate Editor

LLOYD LITTLE
Executive News Editor

BILL HOBBS
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

JIM CLOTFELTER
Assistant to the Editor

STEVE VAUGHN ..... News Editor
NANCY BAIR, LINDA CRAFFORD — Feature Editors
HARRY W. ILOYD ..... Sports Editor
DAVID WYRONG ..... Subscription Manager
JIM EDELSON ..... Circulation Manager
ED DUPREE ..... Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE ..... Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MATHEWS ..... Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C. pursuant with the act of March 3, 1870. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and receives the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Finalized?

Mr. President, are you sure you gave the old place a thorough housecleaning after you moved in? It seems that your predecessor left a few loose words behind that you may have inadvertently picked up. When you said, yesterday, "We have not finalized any plans," it sounded for all the world like a previous occupant who once said, as quoted in Webster's Third (or Bolshevik) International: "Soon my conclusions will be finalized." In any case, please be careful where you walk, because there may be some loose syntax lying about. Meanwhile, let's invite the cleaners in. They'll have the know-how to get the job finished.

—New York Times

Hungary And The Western Betrayal

Beginning about 1948, the American press and radio, beaming the democratic message to the peoples of eastern Europe, drove home an ardent central theme: Rise in revolt! Shake off your Soviet oppressors! Rebel in the name of freedom!

Willingly or not, we persuaded the captive peoples that if they rose up we would help them; and five years ago, this cynical, doublefaced clarion call spawned its savage outcome. In October of 1956, all over Hungary, the bottled-up hatred of eleven years of brutal suppression exploded, in full confidence that America would help.

Two weeks later it was over. Russia stood before the world as the crusher of an entire country. America stood out as a moral coward, full of words, void of determination. We proved for all time, in a heart-rending manner, that words speak louder than actions. Last August we proved it again, when the Communists built a wall through divided Berlin, amazed that they got away with it so easily.

Let's review the Hungarian tragedy now, in retrospect: Let's realize that this was a far greater defeat for America than for Russia. Let's realize that, if Russia suffered a temporary setback, we suffered a permanent one. And finally, let's ask ourselves: For the sake of world freedom and our national independence, have we learned our lesson?

* * *

WHEN HUNGARY began to stir, a sharp debate ran through the policy-making circles in Moscow. The world revolution was hanging on a thread. What should they do—smash Hungary before the world, or pull back, try to keep a shaky hold on the Red Hungarian government, and gamble that other satellites wouldn't follow the lead?

Soon enough the decision was forced. Communist security police fired on demonstrators in Budapest. As unrest swept Hungary, the army deserted by regiments—the worst news yet for Moscow. A satellite army of 280,000 men, fully indoctrinated (but only lightly armed), was proving unreliable. After the first disorders, the Russians brought 80 tanks and 10,000 infantry into Budapest. Outside the city, they dug into a tight encirclement.

October 24, about noon, a crowd gathered at the Parliament building to petition Premier Nagy for the withdrawal of Russian troops. Soviet tank crews grew nervous and opened fire on the crowd, littering the area with dead and wounded civilians. At that, Budapest exploded in open revolt. For several days the fighting was sporadic, and the Russians, still hesitant to press their full advantage, broke off military action on October 29.

Premier Nagy tried earnestly to win concessions from Moscow. On October 31 the Russians withdrew to the outskirts of Budapest but kept it encircled. Moscow announced a willingness to negotiate the withdrawal of all Soviet forces from Hungary. Reports spread that the Americans were sending aid, that Russia would abandon all of Hungary, that a native government, independent of Moscow, would soon be established.

* * *

BUT HOPES gave way to reality. The Anglo-French military expedition against Nasser and the Suez Canal gave Moscow her chance. Enough world attention was diverted to justify the all-out gamble. On November 4 the vulture returned in full arms: a Russian expedition of 250,000 infantry, 4,500 tanks, and some MVD storm units swept into Hungary, grimly bent on salvation of the workers' paradise.

Russian tanks thundered once more into Budapest. The commander gave orders to kill anyone who came into view, and his troops obeyed with commendable enthusiasm: women, Red Cross units, nurses, ambulances, children — all were ruthlessly gunned. The Russians used phosphorus shells and piston-engined bombers, also a few jets. Hungarian Communists and non-Communists, fighting side by side in a desperate lost cause, took the lives of several thousand invaders. And it mustn't be forgotten that the Russian troops in many cases sympathized; defections from the Soviet army numbered at least 3,000, along with 60 tank crews.

* * *

TEEN-AGED boys and girls disabled Russian tanks with gasoline bottles and machine guns. Budapest news agencies and radio stations sent desperate messages to the Associated Press in Vienna. The communications were sporadic:

"We are requesting immediate help. We hope it doesn't come too late . . ."

"There is heavy fighting . . . We are under heavy machine-gun fire . . . The whole people ask for help . . . The Russians are using phosphorus bullets. Any news about help? Quickly, quickly, quickly . . ."

"Young people are making Molotov cocktails and hand grenades to fight the tanks . . . I don't know how long we can resist . . . We will hold out to the last drop of blood . . . It can't be allowed that people attack tanks with their bare hands . . . They've just brought a rumor that American troops will be here within one or two hours.'"

"Tanks and guns are roaring over Hungarian soil. Our women, mothers and daughters are sitting in dread. They still have terrible memories of the Army's entry in 1945 . . . People of the world, listen to our call. Help us—not with advice, not with words, but with action, with soldiers and arms . . . Civilized people of the world, in the name of liberty and solidarity, we are asking you to help. Our ship is sinking. . . . Listen to our cry. Extend to us brotherly hands. People of the world, save us . . . God be with you and with us."

* * *

IT WAS ALL over when the twilight of November 7 settled easily on the capital of a conquered nation.

Budapest was a shambles. Rebels dangled from the Danube bridges, their mouths stuffed with paper money, their bodies decorated with signs reading: "These men fought for capitalists." At the Austrian border, Russian soldiers fired at refugees fleeing the country, but 200,00 eventually won through to freedom.

In Moscow, Khrushchev unleashed a frantic tirade at a meeting of Western diplomats. In paroxysms of triumph he bellowed: "History is on our side. We will bury you! . . . We had Hungary thrust upon us . . . The counterrevolution must be shattered. They accuse us of interfering in Hungary's internal affairs. They find the most fearful words to accuse us! . . . But we, Mr. Capitalists, we are beginning to understand your methods."

He was right. The whole world fully understood our methods. The crushing of Hungary is an episode of the past, the Russian propaganda has recouped; but America's betrayal of Hungary has remained, and will always be a signal factor in the minds of Russia's captives.

—WADE WELLMAN

ATTITUDES By Clotfelter

Foreign Aid—Yea Or Nay?

"Foreign aid" is a term with many meanings and interpretations. Various segments of the American political picture defend aid for various reasons.

Members of the right-wing claim military aid is acceptable (but not NON-military aid), if it goes to solid allies of the United States, and only if these allies are completely unable to afford self-defense. And only if those nations are in danger of an imminent Communist take-over and then only sometimes.

That nebulous entity—the middle-of-the-roaders—favors little bit of everything although not too much or too soon or too anything. This group probably does more harm to the U.S. foreign policy than most of the "extremist" programs could possibly do.

Many persons who class themselves (or are classed by others) as "liberal" or left-wing have a rather strange theory upon which they base their defense of foreign aid.

According to this theory each Communists, in effect, is worth his weight in gold. Some of these liberals favor foreign aid for any nation threatened by Communsm, internally or externally. "Neutral" leaders thus are encouraged to ferret out Reds, as they cry out to the U.S., "Lookee, lookee, I'm threatened by Communists. Lookee, lookee, I've got some dirty Commies over here." These cries send the State Department into a frenzy and sure enough: it's not long before U.S. foreign aid comes to the rescue and saves the wailing nation from the threat of International Communism.

By this reasoning South Korea, South Viet Nam, Nationalist China, and Pakistan have been awarded a disproportionate percentage of American aid: they are the nations lucky enough to be threatened by Communism. India and the new African nations are out of luck—not enough Commies.

The above theory of rewarding nations for their supply of Reds is ludicrous, at best. On this basis, the Soviet Union would be first on the U.S. priority list, followed closely by Red China and East Germany.

* * *

THAT FOREIGN AID is necessary to some degree is accepted by the majority of Americans. But we consider none of the above defense of aid acceptable—none can be applied with any sort of consistency. We advocate aid to foreign nations which fulfill two admittarly vague requirements: (1) their existence as a free entity is necessary for America's own safety and self-interest; (2) their advancement is important to the cause of international and economic Democracy.

Aid should not be awarded on the basis of the aided nation's love for the Monroe Doctrine or its U.N. stand on colonialism and the Algerian war. A nation receiving aid should not necessarily have to favor the retaining of Portuguese interests in Africa or U.S. private companies' interests in Latin America.

No longer should the U.S. stumble blindly through foreign policy after foreign policy, awarding aid to nations of the Right and the Left for equally illogical reasons.

—Jim Clotfelter

Time Is On Whose Side?

Dear Sir:

I am in complete agreement with you on this score—Time is on the side of the Negro. I might add that one will find there also a majority in congress, the Supreme Court, the executive branch of the government in Washington, and assorted liberals throughout the country.

May I ask, along the same line, who is on the side of the Mexicans in New Mexico, Texas, and California; who is on the side of the Italians in New England; who is on the side of the Puerto Ricans in New York; and who is on the side of the Cubans in Florida. And, perhaps not too inaccurately, who is on the side of the South in the United States?

Let me remind you that time often plays tricks on those who place trust in him. Look at France! Poor creature, she has had to trust time to solve her problems!

I'm not advocating either integration or segregation, although my sentiments follow the latter; but I think you should keep in mind that there are those in the South and elsewhere with just as strong convictions opposed to integration as those who call themselves liberals and scream for total integration.

As an after-thought, why must one be in favor of integration to be termed a liberal? I certainly am not, and I object to being called a conservative because of it!

—Edsel M. Odom

Proved By Events

(An editorial from the Atlanta Constitution)

Former President Eisenhower, whose administration spent millions training and equiping Cuban refugee troops for something, says "There was absolutely no planning for an invasion in my administration."

White House sources say, "The general is in error."

We submit that the outcome of the invasion clearly bears out the contention that there was absolutely no planning.

Is It True America's Young People Are Becoming Increasingly Conservative And Conformist?

Editor's Note: Are Americans young people becoming increasingly conservative and conformist? Such is the opinion expressed recently by a former counsel for the Peace Corps. United Press International asked 40 educators—university and high school—across the nation if they agreed. The following dispatch reports their views.

By JACK V. FOX
(United Press International)

The young people of the United States today are in a serious mood. They are more sophisticated politically by far than their counterparts of a generation ago, and they are much more realistic.

The comparative economic security of recent years has resulted in less outward and emotional rebelliousness than during the New Deal days. There is acceptance of the "organization man" status.

But basically they are moving away from the passivity of the "silent 50s" and are showing signs of being an energetic new force in American society.

That is the consensus of a poll taken by UPI among 40 educators—university professors and deans, high school principals and teachers—reacting to the recent challenge of Morris B. Abram, former counsel for the Peace Corps.

Abram said college and high school youths were becoming conservative and conformist and had little or no objection to censorship, to wire-tapping or to third-degree police methods.

* * *

A few educators agree with Abram. But the overwhelming majority disagreed. Their view was summed up succinctly by James C. McLeod, dean of students at Northwestern University, Chicago.

"I don't think in any generation have I seen more enthusiasm for departure from the conservative and conformist outlook than in the present generation of college students," said McLeod.

"Today's students are more conscious of the world around them, more cognizant of the problems and more concerned about them."

Commented Dr. Frank Duddy, president of Westminster College, Salt Lake City:

"I think your young people of today have much more belief in themselves. I think they are less conformist than they were five years ago. There is no jazz hoopla about them today.

"It seems to me they are aware that changes need to be made. These kids are nobody's fools. They tend to work organizationally today more than they did in the 30s."

* * *

A NUMBER of educators questoned what Abrams meant by "conservative."

"There is no question of the increase of political conservatism," said Dr. Adolph Grugger, dean of men at UCLA. "We have thrice the number of Young Republicans on the campus as Young Democrats and there is a definite movement behind Goldwater.

"But to equate this to mean they are conformists and willing to submit to such as censorship is impossible. Today's students are absolutely not conformists. If anything, we have a revival of rugged individualism."

One of the few who agreed almost completely with Abram was Dr. Norman Zucker, professor of political science, Northwestern University, Boston. Said Zucker:

"This trend is explicable by view of the fact that the political forces facing the youth of today are overpowering. These forces are so overpowering that present-day students are unable to comprehend what is going on and, furthermore, do not want to comprehend or accept the world and its complexities."

HERE ARE some comments from high schools:

Gordon A. Bailey, principal, Austin, Texas:

"They have more interest in what's going on than we give them credit for. Maybe there aren't public demonstrations, but those aren't the mark of an inquiring mind."

Hymen Alpern, principal, New York City:

"Many of our students are willing to conform to the standards set by society, but this represents no change in their attitude over the years. Perhaps this characteristic is more noticeable today because the children now come from families that are more financially secure."

Harry Nicholson, principal, Denver, Colo.:

"If the world thinks the high school and college students are conservative and conformist, adults are looking at the youth through conforming and conservative eyes. Adults get a misconception that youth is apathetic because adults don't take time to sit down and find out what students are thinking."

Ralph Blackman, principal, Salt Lake City:

"I have noticed that the general behavior in school this year is one of sober conformity. They're greatly concerned about the world. I would say the times have had a sobering effect on teen-agers to a great extent."

* * *

A STRIKING difference was noted in responses from different parts of the country.

Said Dr. Walter Delaplane, dean of the School of Arts and Sciences at Southern Methodist University, Dallas:

"Students in this part of the country seem to be more interested in the football game or the dance than academic activities. Students here tend to be conservative. Their parents seem to give them everything so why should they want anything more? They seem to be less creative than they were."

On the other hand, Thaddeus Eymour, dean of Dartmouth College, says:

"In recent years I have been aware of an emerging conscience among our young people and a growing commitment to service. There are heartening signs in the 1960s that the silent generation of the 1950s is beginning to speak and act."

Robert Baram, assistant professor of journalism, Boston University, says Abram is more right than wrong.

"We are in sore danger of shaping our nation's political way of life into the same kind of infallible idol the Reds have long created of theirs. There is now a strong movement to make of our system a new or auxiliary religion. This means that sharp criticism and-or censure are looked upon by many indecent or even sinful."

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

BSU Aids Africa Program

The UNC Baptist Student Union will provide financial aid to students who participate in the 1962 Operations Crossroads-Africa Program, it was learned yesterday.

This program is composed of more than 200 young people from the United States who work with Africans in manual labor for approximately 10 weeks during the summer.

Anyone interested in seeking BSU aid for a position in the program should contact Bill Price or Jim Canster at the BSU center at 151 E. Rosemary St. Applications are due December 15.

It's the Spirit that Counts
Give
Five Cent Christmas Cards
From
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

Carolina
NOW PLAYING

AUDREY HEPBURN
glitters in
BREAKFAST AT TIFFANY'S
A PARAMOUNT RELEASE
A JURROW-SHEPHERD PRODUCTION
TECHNICOLOR

Aycock Praises

(Continued from Page 1)

college-age youths were in college last year, compared with a national average of 39 per cent. It proposed the South aim for 39 per cent in 1970, by which time the national average is expected to be about 45 per cent.

2.—The expenditure per student in Southern institutions in 1958 was $1,060 per year compared with a national average of $1,185. "Low salaries are the chief handicap of Southern higher education" with top professorial salaries $4,000 to $5,000 below those in other areas.

3.—"Alumni of Southern colleges contribute less than half the national per student average to their institutions."

Graduate Lack

4.—The Southern lag is "particularly acute" in the field of graduate studies. "There are few outstanding graduate schools in the region—some authorities say none. Many of our best students go elsewhere. Often this means a permanent loss to the South."

5.—Few Southern institutions approach the American Library Association's recommendation that 5 per cent of an institution's budget be devoted to library.

"Racial discrimination, which has affected college attendance in the past, is being eliminated as a barrier," the report said. "Students should be admitted to institutions of higher learning solely on the basis of ability and character."

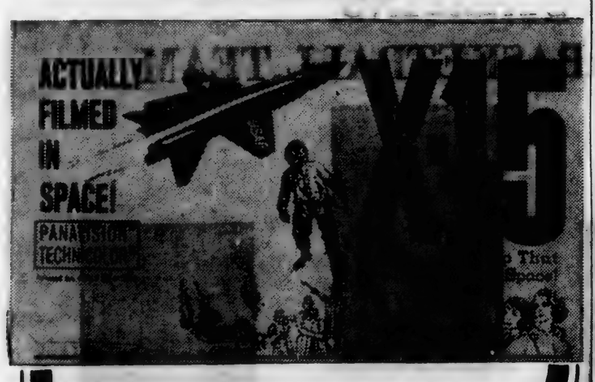
UNC Press On WPTF Sunday

The UNC Press will be featured on the radio program, Profile, over Station WPTF in Raleigh Sunday at 6:15 p.m.

Dr. Clarence Poe, Raleigh author and publisher, whose book, "True Tales of the South at War," will be released by the UNC Press this month, and Lambert Davis, UNC Press director, will be interviewed by E. L. Rankin, Jr., Raleigh public relations executive, on the 15-minute program.

Following the broadcast the UNC Press will receive a "Profile Award" from WPTF and the North Carolina Blue Cross Plan, Hospital Care Association of Durham, sponsor of the program, for its "outstanding contribution to the industrial growth and development of North Carolina."

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST.
— NOW SHOWING —



Lucky Virginia!
You can get in a Christmas Browse in the South's finest bookshop—
The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin St. — Open Till 10 P.M.

Norwegian Artist's Prints Displayed

'THE CRY'—Several University students ponder a print of "The Cry" by Norwegian artist Edvard Munch, presently on display at Ackland Art Museum. They are (standing l-r) Robert Williams, Pat Stallings, (seated l-r), Nancy Johnson, Tim Murray and Anna Bair. —Photo by Lowder

Violent Prints At Ackland Show

Violent and expressive prints by the Norwegian artist, Edvard Munch, are on view now at the Ackland Art Center, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The exhibition (which lasts until the end of December) contains forty prints lent by the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C. from it's distinguished Rosenwald Collection.

One of the great masters of modern graphic art, Edvard Munch (1863-1942) stands in the same relationship to German art as Cezanne to French. His work was one of the basic influences on German Expressionism which in turn has had a great influence on contemporary American art.

The prints of Edvard Munch are darkling mystical pictures with themes of illness, death, depravity, the demonic and evil. They reflect his own unhappy life but more important Munch's art bears the imprint of an unhappy age. He symbolizes the conflict of modern times and shifting social forces as the social dramas of Norway's Ibsen, the writing of Denmark's influential mystic Kierkegaard, and Sweden's August Strindberg, the literary counterpart of Munch, show other symptoms of the conflict.

3 Portraits Included

Included in the exhibition are a number of portraits of Munch's friends and associates, including Strindberg, several self-portraits, and such other subjects as "The Sick Child," "The Morning After," "The Cry," "Cafe Scene" and "Vampire."

Every element in Munch's prints of these years (1890's and 1900's) has an expressive function. He uses the wood's own surface quality as part of his design. Munch attained not only technical competence in the graphic medium but was able to use it with great effectiveness in communicating his deeply felt tragic view of life.

The exhibition which is circulated by the Smithsonian Institution, can be seen at the Ackland Art Center Tuesdays through Fridays, 2:30 to 5 p.m. and 8 to 10 p.m. Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Closed Mondays.

Patterson Named To National Body

Tom Patterson, associate professor of dramatic art at the University here, has been elected to the Theodore Roosevelt National Memorial Park and Badlands Association Board of Advisers for 1962.

Mr. Patterson is the author of "Old-Four Eyes," produced in Medora, North Dakota, since 1958 by the Roosevelt Association, and described by "Time" magazine as one of the five best outdoor dramas in the nation.

Other members of the Board of Advisers include two daughters of Theodore Roosevelt; Herman Hagedorn, who is his official biographer, and other prominent people associated with Theodore Roosevelt and the Roosevelt Park.

Mr. Patterson's play recounts the story of Roosevelt's ranching days in the Dakota badlands. Mr. Patterson wrote the play in two months.

GM Party

Sunday at 3 p.m., GMAB will sponsor its annual Christmas Decorating Party at GM.

At 4:30, well-known campus folksinger Al Wright will present a program of Christmas and folk music. A mixed quartet will also be on the program with Wright and will sing folk Christmas carols.

Everyone is invited to help with the decorating which begins at 3 p.m. in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

SPECIAL AT LA PIZZA NEXT WEEK

Infirmary

Students in the infirmary Friday were Gloria Alphin, Linda Simmons, Mary Coleman, Ormonde Deane, John Fisher, Thomas Henson, Dennis Barnes Larry McDevitt, John Jennings, Thomas Kelly, William Gravely, Aubrey Thomas, Thomas Baggett, Donald Myrick, Catherine Johnson, Samuel Barfield,, Richard Griffin, Dewey Sanders, Robert Deal and Christel Ludewig.

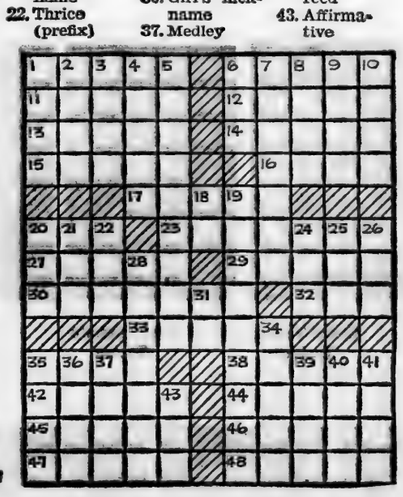
contemporary jewelry handwrought
christmas shopping???
the only—but only place for the individualistic, the imaginative, the incomparable—
charles hopkins of Chapel Hill
designer/craftsman
(over sutton's)

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Tropical fruit
6. Pillow ——
11. Winged
12. Ancient district (Asia Minor)
13. Lily
14. Tine
15. Entertain
16. Poor horses
17. To dim
20. Bosh!
23. Newspapers need them
27. Near (poetic)
29. Brazilian palm
30. True (slang)
32. Likely
33. Spanish farewell
35. Recognize
38. Encircles
42. Kind of race
44. Customary
45. Similar
46. Tidal bore
47. Luster
48. Like fine-grained rock

DOWN
1. Agreement
2. Wingless
3. Wan
4. Reference book
5. Seasoned, as wood
6. Slight taste
7. Stinging insects
8. Wild ox
9. Chinese dynasty
10. Droops
18. Public notice
19. In a play, the conversations
20. Royal Air Force (abbr.)
21. Biblical name
22. Thrice (prefix)
24. —— Johnson, African explorer
25. Knock
26. Perch
28. South American Indians
31. Sloth
34. Fiber from agave
35. German rifle (colloq.)
36. Girl's nickname
37. Medley
39. Wrinkle (bot.)
40. To move suddenly
41. Weaver's reed
43. Affirmative

Yesterday's Answer



Foriegn Service Requirement Is Changed

Dean J. C. Sitterson, College of Arts and Sciences, yesterday reminded all students planning to take Foreign Service exams that after July 1, 1963, a candidate will be required to a written and oral knowledge of one of the modern languages.

The University recently received a letter from the State Department, pointing up the change in requirements which makes the acquisition of language skills as a pre-entry requirement.

The Chancellor's Committee on International Studies has invited prospective candidates to consult with Prof. Robert Miller in the Office of the Dean of Arts and Sciences concerning these requirements.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

Student Poetry Chosen

Poems written by three UNC students have been chosen for publication in the Annual Anthology of College Poetry.

"Love Song" by Sam P. Savage, a Sophomore; "Here Is My Love" by Jo Ann Denton, a Senior; and "Growth" by Susan Davis are to appear in the anthropolgy this year.

The anthology is a compilation of the finest poetry written by college students in America, representing every section of the country.

— CLASSIFIED ADS —

COLLEGE PROFESSOR WILL make a hurried trip to California for Christmas holidays. Seeks male riders to share driving & minimal expense. Be back Jan. 3. Call High Point 883-3287 or write Box 77D William & Mary Apts. High Point, N. C.

"Beefeaters' Haven"
the ANGUS BARN ltd.

PRESENT TIME 5:30 PM - 11:30 PM / SUNDAY 5:30 PM - 10:00 PM
RALEIGH-DURHAM HWY. / TE 4-1870

On Campus with Max Shulman
(Author of "Barefoot Boy With Cheek", "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis", etc.)

IT'S LATER THAN YOU THINK!

All year long you've been promising yourself to go there. Now the semester is nearly over and you still haven't set foot in the place. Shame on you!

But it's not too late. Right now, this very minute, before you weaken, lift up your head and forward march to the place you have been avoiding ever since school began. I refer, of course, to the library.

Now here you are at the library. That wasn't so bad, was it? Of course not! Go inside. What do you see? A sign that says "NO SMOKING." Go outside. Light a Marlboro. Smoke. Go back inside.

Because now you are ready. Now your trembling resolution is rigid. Now your pulsing psyche is serene. You have been calmed by mild Marlboro. You have been soothed by that fine selectrate filter, by that fine full flavor that dotes and pampers and caresses, that lifts the fallen, repairs the shattered, straightens the bent, unravels the knotted, rights the askew, and fastens the unbuttoned.

In the center of the library you see the main circulation desk. Look in the card catalogue for the number of the book you want, write the number on a slip, and hand it to the efficient and obliging young lady at the desk. The efficient and obliging young lady then gives the slip to an efficient and obliging page boy who trots briskly back into the stacks, curls up on a limp leather encyclopedia, and sleeps for an hour or two. Then, puffy but refreshed, he returns your slip to the efficient and obliging young lady at the desk, who tells you one of three things: a) "Your book is out." b) "Your book is at the bindery." c) "Your book is on reserve."

Having learned that the circulation desk hasn't the least intention of ever parting with a book, let us now go into the periodical room. Here we spend hours sifting through an imposing array of magazines—magazines from all the far corners of the earth, magazines of every nature and description—but though we search diligently and well, we cannot find Mad or Playboy.

"You pinned or anything?"

Next let us venture into the reference room. Here in this hushed, vaulted chamber, we find the true scholars of the university—earnest, dedicated young men and women who care for only one thing in the world: the pursuit of knowledge.

Let us eavesdrop for a moment on this erudite couple poring over heavy tomes at the corner table. Hush! She speaks:

SHE: Whatcha readin', hey?
HE: The Origin of Species. You ever read it?
SHE: No, but I seen the movie.
HE: Oh.
SHE: You like readin'?
HE: Naah.
SHE: What do you like?
HE: Hockey, licorice, girls, stuff like that.
SHE: Me too, hey.
HE: You pinned or anything?
SHE: Well, sort of. I'm wearin a fellow's motorcycle emblem . . . But it's only platonic.
HE: Wanna go out for a smoke?
SHE: Marlboro?
HE: What else?

And as our learned friends take their leave, let us too wend our way homeward—a trifle weary, perhaps, but enlightened and renewed and better citizens for having spent these happy hours in the library, Aloha, library, aloha!

© 1961 Max Shulman

* * *

The makers of Marlboro, who sponsor this column, could write volumes about another one of their fine products—the unfiltered king-size Philip Morris Commander—but we'll only tell you this: Take a leaf from our book. Enjoy a Commander today.

POGO

PEANUTS

Dean Smith's New Cagers Meet First Test Tonight At 8

4 Lettermen Open Against Cavaliers

Daily Tar Heel Sports

Page 4 Saturday, December 2, 1961

By HARRY W. LLOYD

New head coach Dean Smith sends his "unknown" basketball team against Virginia here tonight in the season opener of what is usually referred to as a rebuilding season.

The game begins at 8, following a freshman preliminary at 6 p.m.

The Tar Heels, without the powerful individuals that have characterized their lineups for the past several years, are looking to this opener for a hint of what to expect in the coming year in what appears to be a rugged Atlantic Coast Conference schedule. Three starters, including a pair of All-Americans, are gone off the team that won 19 of 23 games last year under Frank McGuire.

Smith, who replaced McGuire when the latter joined the Philadelphia Warriors, will have four lettermen and a sophomore in the starting lineup.

Captain Jim Hudock, the top returnee of last year's quint, will be the Tar Heel center. As a 6-7, 215 pounder, he averaged 11.6 as a forward last year, but saw only minimal pivot duty. Hudock has been the team's high scorer in most of the early-season practice games.

Possibly the team's strongest position is guard, where a pair of veteran performers will be starting. These two are 6-0 Don Walsh, a senior, and 5-11 Larry Brown, a junior. Walsh started 11 games last year, and Brown started five.

Both have a lot of scoring potential, although it hasn't had a chance to be exhibited. Brown is best known for his long two-handed set shots, which he will be able to use a lot should Virginia go into its zone defense. Walsh, although not as effective from the outside, is the sparkplug of the fast break, which, by the way, Smith says he won't be afraid to use.

Junior Dieter Krause, 6-5, and 6-4 Bryan McSweeney, a sophomore, will probably open at forward. Krause, although he won a letter last year, saw only limited action. McSweeney, who was the high scorer on last year's freshman team, is one of the best jumpers on the team.

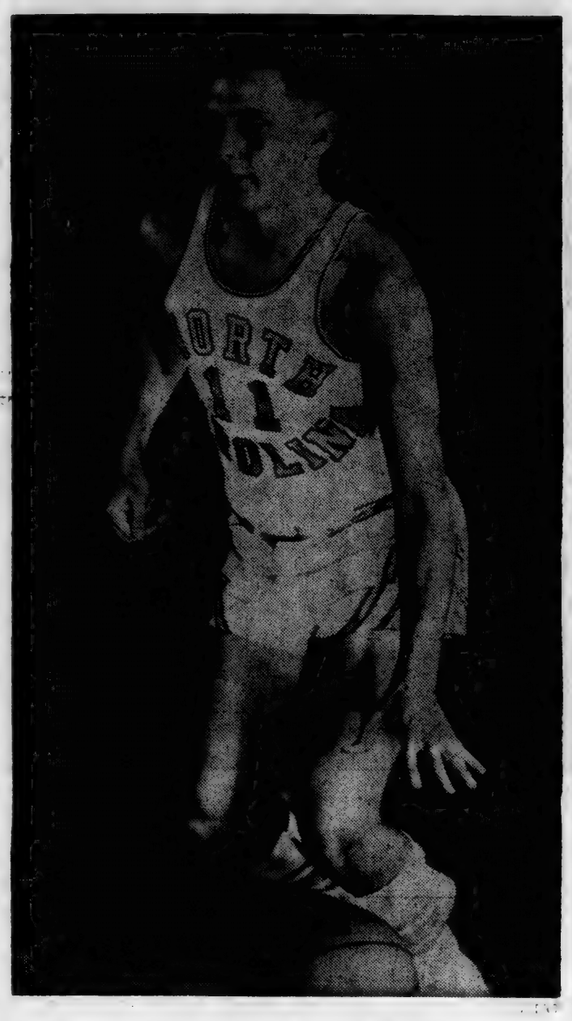
Mike Cooke will probably be the top reserve, and could even get the starting call at one of the forward posts. Cooke is best known for his long, arching jump shots. Art Katz, one of the three top sophomores along with McSweeney and Cooke, has been impressive in practice and could see a lot of action.

Others who could break into the lineup are 6-7 senior Harry Jones, a center; six-foot guard Peppy Callahan, a red haired junior who joined the team near the end of the season last year; and Charlie Burns, a junior who has been a pleasant surprise in his first year of varsity play. Also included on the team are a pair of newcomers, Richard Vinroot and Bruce Bowers, who play at the forwards.

Virginia, who is coached by Billy McCann, will be trying desperately to improve on its record of 3 wins and 23 losses set last year. The Cavaliers will probably be starting five members of last year's team against the Tar Heels tonight. The starters for the Cavaliers are center Gene Engel, 6-5, who averaged 11.1 a game as a sophomore; guard Tony Laquintano an excellent shooter who hit for a 19.8 average; guard John Hasbrouck, who averaged 11.7 a game; Ron Miller, a junior who hit 10.2 per contest, and Gene Flamm.

Carolina's Donnie Walsh will probably be assigned the task of guarding the tricky Laquintano, who made some ACC teams last year.

America's silent screen sweetheart, Mary Pickford, holds an honorary doctor of humanities degree from Middlebury College.



Carolina Guard Larry Brown

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Gridders Close Season Here Against Virginia

North Carolina's football team will try to close out its 1961 season in a winning mood here today as it takes on rejuvenated Virginia in a 2 o'clock contest in Kenan Stadium. Both teams will be trying for their fifth win of the year.

Virginia, which broke a 28-game losing streak with the first game of this season under new Coach Bill Elias, has been one of the biggest surprise of the season in the ACC. The Cavaliers have tripped two conference teams already—Maryland last week by 28-16 in a big upset, and South Carolina 28-20 four weeks ago. Two weeks ago, they lost to a strong Navy team by only 13-3.

While the Cavaliers have been enjoying success in recent games, the Tar Heels have been left with a bitter taste over their last three games. In the latest games, they lost twice in the final 30 seconds.

Today's game will mark the final varsity action for several highly regarded players on both teams. For Carolina, the starters who will be playing in their last game are Quarterback Ray Farris, Halfback Gib Carson, Fullback Bob Elliott, End George Knox, Tackle Jim Shumate and Guard Jim LeCompte.

Others who will take their final bows are backs Lennie Beck, Milt Saffelle, Breck Regan, and Joe Davies, and linemen Conrad Sloop, Sam Loflin, Henry Taylor, and Gary Truver.

Virginia's team is dominated by sophomores and juniors, but they too are losing some fine senior players. Among these are quarterback Stan Fischer, halfback Tony Ulehla, ends Terry Canale and Ed Menzer, tackles Ron Gassert, Richard Fogg, Jan Kamfjord and William Kanto, guards Jerry Gonyo and Louis Martig, and center Lee Fracker.

Among these, Gassert is probably the biggest loss. The 235-pound defensive whiz, a DTH All-ACC selection, has been their best lineman for three years.

* * *

The top offensive performer for the visitors is quarterback Gary Guozzo, who took the position away from Fischer soon after the season started. Guozzo has completed 40 of 84 passes this season for 365 yards and five touchdowns. The top halfbacks are 195-pound Ted Rzempoluch and Carl Ruhn, both juniors.

* * *

Today's game will be the 66th meeting between the two old rivals. Overall in the series, which dates back to 1892, the Tar Heels have taken 35 wins, have lost 27, with three ties.

In the last few years, Carolina has had little trouble winning. The scores for the last three years are 42-0, 41-0, and 35-8, all favoring the Tar Heels. Virginia pulled their last win with an upset in 1957, 20-13, which broke a four-game Carolina winning streak.

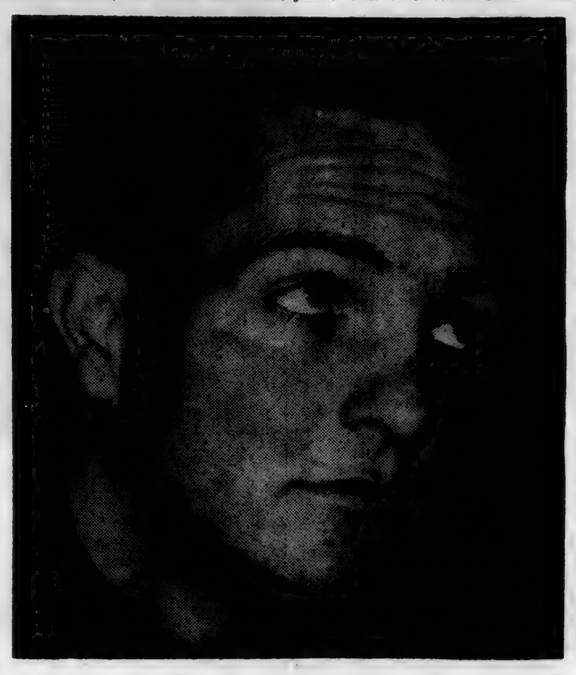
* * *

Carolina Coach Jim Hickey will probably go with the same lineup which started against Wake Forest last week. Ray Farris will open at quarterback. Farris, with 61 pass completions, needs only two completions to finish second in that category in the conference. Gib Carson, who will start at halfback, now has 388 yards rushing, and will be trying to go over the 400 yard mark in order to finish second in that category.

Also in the UNC backfield will be fullback Bob Elliott, who made the All-ACC team for the second straight year, and halfback Ward Marslender.

The line will probably include, in addition to the senior members, center Joe Craver, guard Jim Alderman, tackle Steve Serenko, and end Bob Lacey.

North Carolina tops all other states in the manufacture of wooden furniture.



UNC Senior End George Knox

BEAT VIRGINIA TWICE!!

Clobber the Cavaliers
The Fireside
COEDS CASUAL SHOP

Let's Have Cavalier Caviar
(ALL THE WAY HEELS)
RAMSHEAD RATHSKELLER
Chapel Hill Landmark

Ventilate Virginia
J. B. Robbins
The House of Fashion
In Chapel Hill for the Carolinas

Murder McCann's Misfits
Clothing Headquarters for the Carolina Gentleman
THE HUB of Chapel Hill
103 E. Franklin St.

Eliminate Elias' Elephants
DAIRY BAR
Across from Graham Memorial ICE CREAM
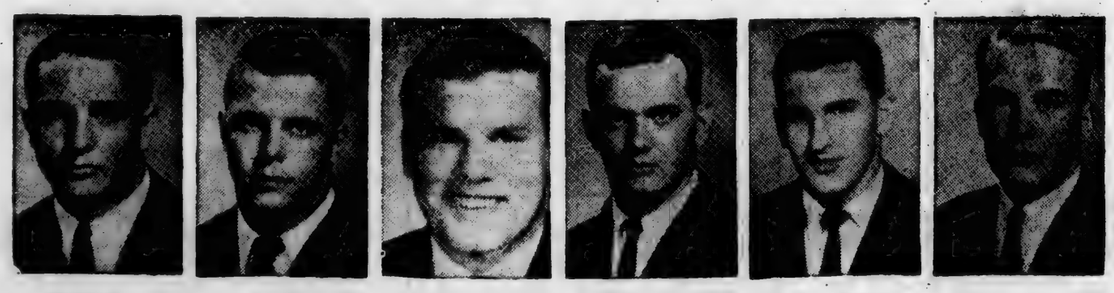
and
FINE FOODS

Give-'Em-Hell-Heels
Town & Campus
Men's Apparel
Ladies' Sportswear

SENIOR TAR HEEL FOOTBALL PLAYERS



George Knox, End · Joe Davies, Fullback · Henry Taylor, Tackle · Jim Shumate, Tackle · Conrad Sloop, Halfback · Bob Elliott, Fullback

Ray Farris, Quarterback · John Hegarty, Guard · Jim LeCompte, Guard · Gary Truver, Center · Lenny Beck, Halfback · Gib Carson, Halfback · Sam Loflin, Tackle

STARTING 1961-62 BASKETBALL TEAM

Dean Smith, Coach

Bryan McCweeney, Forward

Dieter Krause, Forward

Larry Brown, Guard

Jim Hudock, Center

Donnie Walsh, Guard

Shake Charlottesville
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE & TOY CELLAR
"On the Minute Service"
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Make 'Em Eat Grass
Ledbetter Pickard Stationery

Wallop the Wahoos
Read The
CHAPEL HILL WEEKLY
Every Monday and Thursday

Clobber the Cavaliers
PIZZA
Our Specialty: Carry Out
967-1451—Delivery
LA PIZZA
Open 5 P.M.-1 A.M.

Let's Erase Jefferson's Biggest Mistake
WENTWORTH & SLOAN
JEWELERS
167 E. Franklin St.

Cool Off the Cavaliers Quick
Finest in Men's Clothing and Accessories
Ladies' Sportswear
STEVENS-SHEPHERD

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Passivity and Neutralism
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Some cloudiness and warmer.
High in the mid 60's.

Offices in Graham Memorial | SUNDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Air-Angel Initiate On Monday

Honorary AFROTC Units Combining For 7 P.M. Ceremony

The Jesse J. Moorhead Squadron of Arnold Air Society and the Angel Flight, honorary AFROTC societies, will hold a joint initiation ceremony in Carroll Hall Monday at 7 p.m.

New Arnold Air Society members are: Cadet Staff Sgt. Edward N. Booker, Jr., Cadet Staff Sgt. Joseph R. McDonald, Cadet Staff Sgt. Mark C. Schnitzer, Cadet A/2C William H. Holderness, Cadet A/2C George D. Lynn, Jr., Cadet A/2C Henry E. Poole, Cadet A/2C James R. Poole III, and Cadet Staff Sgt. Perino M. Dearing Jr.

New Angel Flight members are: Judy Tyson, Kathie Law, Sandy Frye, Nancy Tillman, Judy Foster, Lynn Logan, Elaine Morrison, Marsha Barrow, Gail Robinson, Gail Crockett, Becky Proffitt, Dolly Isom, Linda Pearce, Muff Greason, Linda Laughter, Julie Worth, Margot Hall, Mary Ann Noble, Betsy Whitaker.

Arnold Air Society is an honorary AFROTC society which offers membership to those cadets who have "exhibited an outstanding interest" in the AFROTC program and in becoming Air Force officers. The Angel Flight is an honorary composed of coeds who act as hostesses for receptions and other social functions held by the AFROTC Cadet Corps.

XMAS XPRESS

Beginning Tuesday, the Daily Tar Heel will publish a list of rides and riders for the Christmas holidays. Students desiring either should bring a type-written or printed note with their name, telephone number and destination by the DTH offices, second floor GM any afternoon except Sunday.

Wives Planning Bazaar

Stuffed toys, bouffant aprons, fancy Christmas trees, holiday goodies, gift boxes . . . . you name it, it'll be at the UNC Student Wives Christmas Bazaar!

The group will hold its second annual bazaar Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the Main Assembly Room of the University Library. All student wives are urged to participate, especially those who have attended Student Wives meeting this year.

Each girl is asked to bring some item—preferably the result of her own imagination and handiwork—to donate for sale. The money will be used for a club project during next semester. Prices of the items will be low, with an eye on the budget of an average student wife.

There will also be a display table for those things the wives have made but do not want to sell. Some gift made for Christmas giving may inspire another wife.

Interested wives who have never attended Student Wives Club are asked to contact an officer, so that arrangements can be made for plenty of refreshments. Numbers to call are 942-2712, 967-228, 967-3203.

Oscar-Winning Michelangelo Film Wednesday

"The Titan," an award-winning film on Michelangelo, will be presented at Carroll Hal Wednesday night, December 6, at 8 p.m. The pubic is invited and there will be no charge for admission.

Directed and photographed by Curt Oertel and narrated by Frederic March, the film was awarded an "Oscar" by the Academy of Arts and Sciences for "best feature documentary film."

Owned by the North Carolina Museum of Art, its presentation in Chapel Hill is sponsored by the University Art Department.

Ward Marslender Tackled After Pass

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

McSweeney And Katz Battle For Rebound

Over 500 Students In Ready Reserve

Twelve UNC Reservists Are Deferred Until February

Twelve active reservists who are students were ordered to report to active military duty but got deferments until February, reports Gen. F. C. Shepard, UNC adviser to veterans.

"If the semester's work can be completed within 90 days," deferment is granted," Gen. Shepard explained.

Over 500 University students are members of the ready reserve," he estimated. Ready reservists are ex-servicemen who have been out of the service less than three years.

Maintain Rank

Draft or selective service rarely affects university students, Gen. Shepard noted. A man is not drafted unless he is the oldest man in his country who hasn't been called. To qualify for draft exemption a student must carry five courses and maintain a rank in a certain upper percentage of his class.

Freshmen must rank in the upper half of their class; sophomores in the upper two-thirds; juniors in the upper three-fourths; seniors desiring to go to graduate school in the upper one-fourth; graduate students in the upper one-fourth; medical and dental students in the upper one-half; and law students in the upper three-fourths.

Central Records Office acknowledges four withdrawals from the University attributed to armed service calls. Shepard says these students did not ask for deferments.

STAFF MEMBERS

Any student interested in becoming a staff member of the Daily Tar Heel is invited to come by the DTH office, 2nd floor GM, any afternoon except Sunday.

There are presently openings in all departments, especially news. Students need not be journalism majors or necessarily experienced in newspaper work.

Parisian Speaks On Middle Ages At Ackland Mon.

Mademoiselle Marie T. D'Alverny of Paris will speak on "The Representation of Wisdom in the Middle Ages" Monday night at 8 at the Ackland Art Center.

Her talk will be illustrated with selections from medieval manuscripts, especially of medieval conceptions of "Saplenta."

Described as "an eminent medievalist mademoiselle from Paris," she is a conservateur of the collection of the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris and secretary of the International Union of the History and Philosophy of Science.

Presently she is a visiting scholar at Princeton University. The public is invited.

LONDON (UPI)—Nicholas Monsarratt, 51, author of "The Cruel Sea," will marry Ann Griffiths, 24, of London, the Daily Express reported Saturday. Monsarrat was quoted as saying he an his bride will make their home on his St. Lawrence River island.

MOSCOW (UPI)—Moscow radio said Saturday Japanese Premier Hayato Ikeda's recent Southeast Asian tour "failed to justify the expense." It said India, Burma and other Asian countries would not make their independence the object of political haggling "either with U.S. imperialists or their agents in the form of Japanese tourists."

HOLLANDIA, New Guinea (UPI)—The government said Saturday the murder of a Dutch official and two Papuan policemen last month in the remote village of Djadam was committed by villagers protesting an order to demolish slum dwellings.

CAFE OWNER'S SON SHOT

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Delegates Urge UNC Host Congress

Regional NSA Delegates Meet In Greensboro

By BILL HOBBS
Special to the DTH

GREENSBORO — Student delegates from 23 colleges and universities from North Carolina and Virginia yesterday urged that the 15th National Student Congress be held at UNC.

Meeting at the Woman's College of the Consolidated University, the delegates of the Fall Regional Conference of the Carolinas-Virginia region of the National Student Association resolved that this would "provide a much needed stimulus to student thought and action in this region."

The conference also ratified a new constitution drafted by the UNC campus NSA committee. Both measures passed by unanimous vote of the delegates.

Emergent Areas

The conference, whose theme was "the importance of the university in emergency areas," heard a telegramed message from Gov. Terry Sanford, praising NSA's role in "alerting the entire American student body to the challenges which await their attention in the areas of educational, political, social, and cultural affairs and international as well as national scene."

Attending the conference as official delegates from UNC were Dwight Wheless, Robin Britt, Scott Summers, Bill Hobbs, Bill Straughn and Tim Tetlow.

Also attending from UNC as unofficial delegates, NSA regional officers or panel members were Bill Harriss, Hank Patterson, Yoshio Teshima, John Brent, John Randall and Norman Smith.

The NSA congress, which the conference urged be held at UNC, is the annual national meeting of delegates from all NSA member schools which can send representatives.

The 1961 congress was held at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, Wisc.

Inexpensive Facilities

The resolution urging that the 1962 congress be held at Carolina cited the inexpensive facilities at the University and the support of state and University officials.

Friday night, the conference heard John Thompson of the World Confederation of Teaching Profession, with an address on the role of higher education in the emerging countries.

Castro Admits He's Communist

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro settled once and for all Saturday the question of his politics: He is dedicated to the principles of communism and has been since his college days.

"I'm a Marxist-Leninist and I'll remain one till I die," he shouted during a five-hour television address early Saturday in which he announced the merging of his 26th of July movement with the Communist Party.

Castro explained he had hidden his belief in communism from the Cuban people and his American friends for years "because otherwise we might have alienated the bourgeoise and other forces which we knew we would eventually have to fight."

His speech stripping away the last veneer of democratic trappings were in sharp contrast to his statement he made six months after he overthrew dictator Fulgencio Batista on Jan. 1, 1959: "Ours is not a Communist revolution."

Television Marathon

Saturday in his post-midnight television marathon he said that when his tiny band of rebels made its first abortive attack on the Moncardo barracks at Santiago on July 26, 1953, "the revolutionary thinking was completely formed." Castro followed Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in rejecting the idea of the cult of the personality and said he had discarded the probability of himself becoming a "caudillo" boss . . . "for which renunciation I congratulate myself."

The premier said he was "politically illiterate" when he attended high school "but today I'm a convinced revolutionary."

"In college I had my first contacts with bourgeois economic policies and right then I began to dissent," he said. "Thereafter I read the Communist Manifesto and other Marixist books."

Castro said his 26th of July movement and the Popular Socialist Communist Party would be fused into the "integrated revolutionary organization" to be known as "the united party of Cuba's socialist revolution."

One Party

He said the one party would have a Marxist-Leninist platform adjusted to the conditions of the Cuban revolution and those of the Cuban nation.

"Every honest Cuban will have a place in its rank and file," he said. He emphasized that the most important thing were the schools for Marxist training now operating in Cuba.

Castro traced the process of the Cuban revolution and encouraged other Latin American nations to follow his example.

Man Is Held On 1st Degree Murder Rap

Bobby Lee (Lucky) Moore was charged with first degree murder Saturday in the death of William Ellis, son of the owners of the Village Cafeteria. Bill Ellis was fataly shot at 12:30 a.m. during a card game in the cafeteria.

According to Ruffin Harvile and Graham Cotton, who claim to have seen the shooting, Ellis was confronted by Bobby Lee (Lucky) Moore of Carrboro. Moore alleged. ly asked Ellis what he intended to do about a $1000 debt he owed Moore.

Ellis threw up his hands and said, "Do what you are going to do."

Moore shot him near the base of the neck with a .32 calfber pistol, said the reputed witnesses. Ellis, according to Harville and Cotton, jumped to his feet and staggered out the back door of the restaurant.

Left By Doors

Moore and his wife left the cafeteria by one door, and Harville went out by another to look for Ellis.

Harville says he found Ellis lying on the brick terrace in back of the Ackland Art Museum. Ellis still had a weak pulse, but he made no other response.

Harville called the police and sent for an ambulance. Ellis was reportedly already dead by the time the ambulance arrived.

Minutes later, Moore was arrested at his home in Carrboro. He was taken to the Chapel Hill jail.

Looked By Ellis

According to a statement Moore's wife gave to Chapel Hill police she and her husband looked for Ellis in his car to see if they could help him.

They then got into Moore's pick-up and drove home. She said that she did not see her husband get rid of the pistol.

Harville said that he was looking for Ellis at 10 o'clock. He and Ellis had been classmates in high school. Harville saw Ellis' car parked by the restaurant. He found Elis inside playing cards with Graham Cotton, a Negro whom Ellis had met through his furniture business in Carrboro.

Moore was sitting at the table with them. Moore had his head in his hands and was not playing cards. Reportedly he had been drinking heavily. Shortly before midnight Moore called his wife to come and get him. According to witnesses Moore shot Ellis shortly after her arrival at 12:15.

Ellis was not married. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Ellis, and his sister, Mrs. Stanley Peele.

College Roundup

(Note: Following are news items from leading college newspapers from across the country, as received at the DTH office.)

PHYS ED

MADISON, Wisc.—The Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin has proposed a reduced compulosry physical education program. Under the new system students will be required to take only six weeks of physical education if they can pass skill tests. The University faculty recommended an enlarged compulsory program, but was overruled.

* * *

RED FLAG

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — The campus Young Americans for Freedom organization held a rally this week protesting the Russian flag flying over the University of Minnesota student union.

The flag is display in connection with a Soviet medical exhibit currently being displayed in the union. According to the Minnesota DAILY, a U.S. flag flies over an American transportation exhibit in Moscow.

* * *

GUS HALL

ITHACA, N. Y.—Gus Hall, general secretary of the American Communist Party, will speak at Cornell University Thursday. The speech is "part of a series of addresses by leading proponents of the dominant ideologies in America." Barry Goldwater will be the next speaker on the program.

* * *

DRAFT POLICY

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — If a University of West Virginia student is called to military duty before a semester is three-fourths over, he will be granted full refund of fees but no credit, according to a recent Board of Governors ruling.

If a student is drafted after that, full credit will be given to those who have passing grades at the time of their departure.

* * *

DEMONSTRATIONS

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The NATIONAL GUARDIAN reported last week that demonstrations against speaker bans were continuing at New York municipal colleges.

In the past year college trustees have banned the following speakers: Benjamin Davis, national secretary of the Communist Party; William F. Buckley, editor of the right-wing NATIONAL REVIEW; Malcolm X, a leader of the Black Muslins; and New York State Assemblyman and "freedom rider" Mark Lane.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Gus Hall

SANTO DOMINGO—Armed forces chief denies possibility military will seize control in strike-torn nation.

★ ★ ★

BERLIN—East Germans reject Kennedy plan to internationalize control routes, order U. S. army to stop convoys.

★ ★ ★

BALTIMORE—Negro pickets from New York, Connecticut, Washington demonstrate against segregated restaurants in Baltimore.

★ ★ ★

LEOPOLDVILLE—Central Congolese government resumes diplomatic ties with Russia, Czechoslovakia and Poland after 15 months break.

★ ★ ★

WASHINGTON—Stevenson reports he has been asked to run for Senate by Illinois political leader.

★ ★ ★

KINGS MOUNTAIN, N. C.—Bullet-pierced bodies of two men with their hands stuffed in their pockets found near state line.

GMAB Schedule

1:30-5:00 P.M.: A K PSI—RP L, 2, 3
3:00 P.M.: Christmas Party, G.M.—M L
3:30-5:30: C. C. F.—Grail

RODING, England (UPI)—Part-time fireman Michael Cater, 18, admitted in court Friday he set three small fires because he was short of money and needed the extra fireman's pay.

PARIS (UPI)—The body of slain Dominican Republic dictator Rafael Trujillo was taken from Orly Airport Friday night to Paris Pere Lachaise Cemetery to await burial. Dominican sources said Rafael, Jr., would erect a monument to mark the grave.

Campus Briefs

"Cyrano de Bergerac" is tonight's Free Flick. Showings are at 7:30 and 9:30 in Carroll Hall.

* * *

The Department of Radio, Television, and Motion Pictures has announced that television sets will be made available Sunday night for students viewing of the first presentation of "An Age of Kings" on Channel four.

All interested students are invited to see this first of fifteen television broadcasts of Shakespearean Pageantry to be presented by WUNC-TV each Friday and Sunday nights. The television sets will be located in studio "A" of Swain Hall, at the back entrance of Swain Hall.

* * *

The YW-YMCA Orphanage Committee will leave from Y-Court at 2 p.m. Sunday. All those interested in making the trip to Raleigh are asked to be present by co-chairmen Betti Brown and Bruce Cooper. The committee will return by 5:30.

* * *

All students who have not picked up their Yack proofs, do so immediately. Anyone desiring pictures taken by Yack photographers, leave name, address, and pictures desired at the Yack office.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 3, 1961 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 60

Soviet Mousetrap

The latest Soviet proposal for a ban on atomic bomb tests is a polite invitation to Britain and the United States to let themselves be mousetrapped. Come right in and see how neatly the spring snaps.

What the Soviets propose is (a) an immediate moratorium on nuclear tests in the atmosphere, in outer space and under water—this moratorium to be policed by "national systems" of detecting explosions—and (b) a similar moratorium on underground tests, "pending agreement on a system to control such tests as a composite part of an international control system over the realization of an agreement on general and complete disarmament."

So far as Point (a) is concerned, the Soviets argue that no international system of control is needed, since existing "national systems" are sufficient to detect explosions when they occur. This is true with regard to explosions in the atmosphere. It is not true, in the judgment of the American delegation at Geneva, with regard to explosions in outer space and under water. But even in the case of explosions in the atmosphere, the Soviet proposal is thoroughly unsatisfactry for this reason: it contains no safeguard to prevent any nation from using a moratorium for the purpose of secretly preparing for new tests, which can then be undertaken when-ever that nation chooses on its own accord to break the moratorium.

This is precisely what happened —with the Soviets neatly double-crossing Britain and the United States—under the last "informal" moratorium. As we have repeatedly stated, it must not be permitted to happen again. Any moratorium should be accompanied, from the very start, by the immediate installation of adequate international machinery to prevent either new tests or the secret preparation for new tests.

Meantime, so far as Point (b) is concerned—that is, the question of underground tests — it is obvious that the Soviet has hedged its proposal for international controls with so many conditions that years might elapse before such controls could be established.

The Soviet proposal is thus fraudulent on its face. Our answer to it can only be: No moratorium without an adequate, immediate and genuinely international system of controls.

—New York Times

Un-Americanism

The Mayor and Chief of Police of McComb, Miss., had assured the Federal Department of Justice that they would comply with a desegregation order recently issued by a Federal court. Before the police chief arrived on the scene a small but vicious white mob had beaten up three young Negro men and two Negro girls who had taken the desegregation order seriously.

Such incidents may arise out of the need felt by some white persons to prove their superiority to somebody, if not to persons of other races —especially those with dark skins. The House Committee on Un-American Activities—not to mention the Internal Security subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, of which James O. Eastland of Mississippi is chairman—ought to be interested in this reaction. We don't think that more than a tiny minority of the people in McComb sympathized with the riot. We hope they will now take the trouble to express their disapproval of these blatantly un-American rioters who do not hesitate to disturb the internal security of their country.

—New York Times

Girlville, USA

Washington, D. C., is known as a city where there are multitudes more attractive young women than there are available squires.

This ranges from the level of the honest woiking goils in thousands of government offices to the haute monde swirl of la societie where often the most aggravating problem is the "extra man." Even the hostess with the mostes' could be sure of a spare male to put at Lady So-and-So's elbow.

To the national capital there annually swarm young girls bright of spirit and full of serious ambition mixed in with proper proportion with dreams of romance. Alas, for most, D. C. is a drab thing once excitement of seeing a president occasionally, senators and representatives, etc., frequently, wears off.

Life for many is job and back to the apartment usually shared with one or more other similarly-stationed females. Making a real "catch" is rare. True, a photographer named Bouvier once made the same—and today is the First Lady. So optismism springs eternal.

Now there's more hope to fan the female fires. Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson, just about the capital's most eligible bachelor, has been pleged to wed. And the story fits a pleasant pattern—he'll marry a young clerk in a fellow senator's office.

The only hitch, as thousands of Washington gals would promptly point out, no doubt, is that Scoop Jackson thus is removed from the hunting veldt. The ounces of new hope thus afforded may be offset by the plain pound of any individual male "catch" being roped and reined.

Surprise is in order that Jackson lasted this long. He is said to be a man of steel nerves.

—Birmingham News

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN REYNOLDS
Associate Editor

LLOYD LITTLE
Executive News Editor

BILL HOBBS
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

JIM CLOTFELTER
Assistant to the Editor

BERRY VAUGHN ..... News Editor
NANCY BASS, LINDA CHAVOTTA ..... Feature Editors
ERNEST W. LIGON ..... Sports Editor
DAVID WYSONG ..... Subscription Manager
JIM EDELSON ..... Circulation Manager
ED DUPREE ..... Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE ..... Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE HAUSSER ..... Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examinations periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 6, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.00 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau at the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Please, Somebody Say Where We Stand

We are hearing much these days from high officials and personages about "extremism" and the unhealthy effect that it is supposed to be having upon our country. Not only is the effect unhealthy, we are told, but it is a sign of a sickness of frustrated citizens who would plunge us into anarchy or nuclear destruction.

In the last few days, such pronouncements have come from the highest sources—President Kennedy and former President Eisenhower. President Kennedy recently toured the West Coast and spent the major portion of his time condemning what he termed "extreme opposites."

The President did not present a true picture of the situation, nor did he attempt to account for or conciliate between the so-called "radical right" and the liberal extremism of certain persons whose judgment he obviously values very highly—Senator Fulbright, for instance, or any of the others of the liberal clique that he has surrounding him.

But is it too much for an American citizen to ask that his government be resolute, that it stand on principle, and that it not give the impression that it will dance whenever the tune is played by the Kremlin masters—whatever that tune may be? Just what policy of "moderation" or "middle-of-the-roadism" is demonstrated by immediately rushing to the disarmament talks after the Reds have just conclusively shown that they have no intention of discontinuing the testing of nuclear weapons? What twist of logic convinces our policy-makers—of whom the President is chief—that the Reds will abide by any "agreement" reached?

We are not sure just what policy, be it "moderate," middle-of-the-road," or even "left-wing radicalism" that the Kennedy administration adheres to. But when we see such weak-kneed fiascos as that mentioned above, or that which we humiliatingly witnessed at Pig Bay, Cuba in the earlier part of the year, then we know that we need an alternative—whether it be of "extreme opposites" or what.

President Eisenhower was much in the same condition. He fostered "Modern Republicanism" and exhorted Republicans to follow the "middle-of-the-road" in their policies. He has yet to explicitly define just what he means by these terms, but perhaps we can get some insight by examining a few of his actions. This self-styled "moderate" committed one of the most immoderate acts in modern U.S. history by ordering Federal troops to invade Little Rock, Arkansas. He thus committed an act which it takes no degree in constitutional law to diagnose as completely illegal.

Had Mr. Eisenhower been willing to use that same force a year erlier in Budapest, Hungary would now be free. He thus showed—as the Kennedy administration has also done—that he had greater contempt for Southerners and the Constitution than he held for the actions of Khrushchev.

Simultaneous with his judgments upon "extremists," Mr. Eisenhower last week looked into CBS television cameras and again boldly asserted to the nation that he had been in the right — legally and otherwise — in "Operation Little Rock."

Mr. Eisenhower is also to be given credit for the appointment of Earl Warren to the Supreme Court, as well as most of that political and soft-headed aggregate now known as the Warren Court. This court has steadfastly adhered to circumvention of Constitutional provisions and has granted repeated aid and comfort to U.S. Communists. Mr. Eisenhower's reaction was simply to bow before the Court and beat his head in submission on the floor at its feet.

So now these two eminent leaders condemn as "extremists" those persons who see their policies as leading down the road to the destruction of their laws and even their civilization. We are uncertain what the governmental philosophies of these two men are, or even that they have one. Whatever name their policies go by, it takes no Harvard education to deduct that these same policies have done enough damage.

"Extremism" (whatever it may be) may or may not be the answer to this drifting upon the sea of indecision and American destruction. But if the "extremist" term is applied to those men such as Thurmond, Goldwater and others of like mind who wish to fight this America-destroying policy, then we are inclined to believe that it is the answer. We will at least know where we stand, something our leaders have long neglected to truthfully tell us.

—Martin L. Wilson

ATTITUDES By Clotfelter

Decision For Kennedy: Foreign Aid In Ghana

President Kennedy's current dilemma concerning U.S. financing of the Volta River project in Ghana (West Africa provides an outstanding example of American foreign aid at the proverbial crossroads.

Whichever road the U.S. takes will be unpopular. If Kennedy fulfills American aid agreements with Ghana, he will be condemned by the opposition at home for "appeasing the Communists." If he refuses to send aid, the United States stands to lose much of Africa, not to mention Ghana itself.

In this situation, as in others in recent years, there is an almost desperate need for a re-evaluation of the American aid program.

We proposed our general stipulations which nations should filfill to receive U.S. aid: (1) If aid to the nation in question is necessary for America's continued safety and self-interest; and (2) If the nation's advancement is important to the cause of international political and social Democracy—a term which should only be specifically defined in specific instances at specific times.

Segments of the United States political structure do not want to aid a partially socialist nation . . . which accepts aid from Communist nations . . . and which opposed U.S. support of Kasavubu in the Congo as "outside intervention."

(This last point overlooks Ghana's legitimate reason for opposition to U.S. action. Patrice Lumumba was the elected head of government, not Kasavubu. And while Ghana might object to U.S. action, it did not neglect its duties to the United Nations—Ghana's military force was one of the best-trained and most loyal segments of the U.N. army.)

* * *

WE FEEL the reasons favoring aid for the Volta River project far over-balance the deficit factors.

From the practical viewpoint, U.S. self-interest would be advanced by giving aid to Ghana. What would be the reaction from other West African nations, including such moderates as Nigeria and Liberia to an American aid refusal? "Is the aid we get from America worth the strings attached?" Radio Ghana would blast across the continent the news that the U.S. had refused to fulfill its commitments, had left an African nation in the lurch. . . . And then, inevitably, that pudgy red villain from Moscow would come onto the stage with aid and a smile for all. The result would be a repetition of the 1956 Suez fiasco: United States pulls out at the last minute, and Russia pulls in with badly-needed cash.

* * *

MORE IMPORTANT than the "blackmail" justification, however, is that the Nkrumah government, for all its faults, is an expansion of freedom. Two elections have been held in Ghana since independence was gained in 1957 (one more than has been held in the United States in that period). There is a Parliament with some powers of check and balance. Opposition parties (on a continent where the principle of "loyal" opposition is often only superficially accepted) are allowed, although restricted.

In the Congo muddle of the last year-and-a-half, it has been Nkrumah who has been the constant mediator between factions, the defender of the rightful Central government, and the moderate influence on Lumumba and the extreme leftist African nations.

Ghana has sent technical, financial and personnel aid to other newly-independent African nations, thus increasing the chances for successful democratic maturation. Despite major cracks in the picture, Ghana is still a symbol of independence in the "Dark Continent."

For whatever reason, the United States must decide soon. Ghana may prove to be the beginning of a wiser, more mature foreign policy, or it may be another cog in the shapeless, slipshod program which the U.S. has practiced in recent years.

Reflections

UNC	24
Virginia	0
UNC	80
Virginia	46

B.O.P.S. Attacks Newspaper Viciously

To the Editeor:

Sir, we are two students of the University who have sat mildly by and observed your paper and its policies without comment. But in our own small opinion, you have overstepped at last all limits of decency and common values.

You have coolly display a complete and utter ignorance in the field of nature lore. We are referring to your recent articles on the subject of spiders. We quote from these articles: "Spiders are nearsighted." We of The Benevolent Order for the Protection of Spiders wish to lead you from the depths of ineptitude and inform you of several facts.

B.O.P.S., is a recent study of the refractions of 1,378 spiders drawn from a typical southeastern community, found that spiders are not at all nearsighted, the most extreme diagnosis of visual defect being only a slight astigmatism in only 8.9% of the cases. These figures bear out other findings in this field (see B.O.P.S. Study No. 23, 1953).

* * *

WE OF B.O.P.S. deplore your policies in printing material which is obviously libelous and uninformed. It seems that a more careful selection of material and a closer check of source materials would be in order.

You have attempted an attack on one of Nature's most nearly perfect works, those charming, hairy little creatures—our friends, the webspinning arachnids. Please be informed that we cannot see these atrocities go unanswered and that our present opinion of your paper can only be raised by a public retraction of these articles.

William R. Davis, Pres.
David H. Bamberger, Sec.

* * *

Editor's Note:

We have checked your findings, and, to our chagrin, find that they are in part, at least, undeniable. However, our error was in overgeneralization. Our studies were confined to only a limited number of specimens, all of which definitely were nearsighted.

This visual defect is traceable, we now find, to the fact that our specimen were of a species particularly prone to this kind of thing. We will continue our studies after the burial of three of our editors who found that some spiders are not only not near-sighted, they are particularly sensitive to public misrepresentation.

Thank you for your passionate defense of these valuable members of the animal kingdom.

* * *

YAF Formed On Campus

Sir:

In a recent issue of the Tar Heel, a correspondent called for a UNC chapter of the Young Americans for Freedom, a collegiate Conservative group. I would like to inform him, and others who may be interested tha there is already a YAF chapter on campus. Although not a student myself, most of the group is made up of students who sincerely believe in the articles of the Sharon Statement, which affirms our belief in the basic dignity of the human beiong. We have held two meetings so far this year. For notice of further meetings, we advise anyone interested to watch the Daily Taar Heel for announcements.

George T. Kilgore, Secetary

★ ★ ★

Student Given Aid

As a newly arrived Indian student in this country, I wish to put on record an experience which has given me some insight about the concern of the professors to the foreign students.

The other day a Professor of this University asked me about the cold weather here. I told him that it was very cold and that I was thinking of purchasing an overcoat. Yesterday he took me to Durham and purchased a very good overcoat for me. His only explanation for this act of kindness was that he had got some money from India by valuing a dissertation.

Acts of kindness like this will never be forgotten by those who received such help.

—O. M. Mathen

Ramblings By Robinson

Chapel Hill's mausoleum-like Ackland Museum has a somber forbidding exterior, but inside the main gallery throbs the vigorous and vital graphic art of the Norwegian Edvard Munch.

The Munch exhibition, which opened this week, contains forty of his existing 714 works of graphic art. Although these lithographs, etchings and woodcuts come only from the early and middle periods of his life, the works shown display many of his characteristic themes—death, love, fear and suffering as embodied in the rythmic regularity of life.

Munch was a prodigious oil painter, turning out more than 1,000 canvases, yet he repeated most of the subjects of his paintings in the graphic arts, giving the fullest expression to his artistic personality.

* * *

HIS YOUTH was scarred by the deaths of his mother and two sisters, as well as the diatribes of a domineering, fanatically religious father. There influence profoundly affected his art subjects all through his 81 years. (He died in 1944.) However, Munch was not constantly obsessed with death, nor with any one subject even though he favored particular themes. This becomes obvious when viewing a wider range of his work than is offered at Ackland. But this relatively small exhibit shows Munch to be a tense, sensitive and strong man, a man who perceptively responded to the life around him as well as to his inner being.

His two self-portraits reveal a deep intensity which pervades every picture in the gallery. Neither his technique nor his subjects are soft. Munch interpreted life in as factual a manner as possible. Herein lies his brilliance.

"The Morning After" and "The Young Model," an ink sketch and a lithograph, illustrate his intensity when channeled into the European social reform movement of the late 19th century. The former tells a story with details—the dishevelled young woman with unbuttoned blouse; her posture of restless, intoxicated sleep, the empty bottles and used glasses on the table beside the bed.

* * *

"THE YOUNG MODEL" has little detail, but also concerns itself with a sexual problem. It is seen subjectively, as it exists in the mind of the girl. The atmosphere of the lonely bedroom, with the emphasis on the light and shadow from a single source—probably a candle—beyond the picture frame to the left, and realistic details in the anatomy of the nude adolescent figure describe the conditions that produce the girl's thoughts. The nature of these thoughts is revealed by the expression of the eyes, large and unfocused, the arms crossed in front of her body, and the hand pressed between her knees. The picture is a mingling of awareness, anticipation and fear.

The above works were done early in his career as was "The Sick Child," another of his more outstanding works. In "The Sick Child" Munch eliminated detail to concentrate on the two figures. The sick child's head is in an upright profile while the mother's bowed head is in direct opposition and the forms dissolve into blackness.

Munch sees the individual as being powerless before such forces of nature as love and death. The people in his pictures are under a spell that can not be lifted; some invisible power is at work. There is the desire for love hanging heavy in "Summer Night," the attraction of the sexes in "The Kiss" and "Attraction," and the lack of love and fear of death fill man with fear and anxiety as in "The Cry."

* * *

MUNCH WAS a complex individual and though it is may be possible to type him, it is not possible to classify his work. He started as a realist as in "Bathing Woman," drypoint and aquatint, dabbled in impressions and then went on to new concepts of art. Even though he worked among impressionists in Paris, he drew nothing from them once he had perfected his technique. He was influenced by Van Gogh, Seurat and Gauguin, but he evolved a kind of art all his own; it was not post-impressionism or pre-expressionism, it was Munch. He had a great impact on expressionism and art in general, but he remained above the popular art movements.

Although Munch's graphic art is most praiseworthy, the manner in which this Ackland exhibit is conducted leaves something to be desired. Firstly, many of the pictures are not dated, so it is impossible to evaluate the progress of his work. Secondly, some of the pictures are not labeled as to the kind graphic art they are. Thirdly and most important, there is not one scrap of biographical information posted in the gallery. But these faults can hardly be said to detract from the power of Munch's art.

His art with its unchanging intensity proclaims a view of life in constant growth, carrying its message as directly through its spirit as through its form. All civilized adults can read the message of Edvard Munch and feel its universality.

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Editorials

Due to the editor's illness, editorials will be written by members of the staff until further notice.

McSweeney, Hudock Lead Tar Heels In First Victory

By HARRY W. LLOYD

North Carolina's brand new 1961-62 basketball team lay in ambush, concealed behind the hood of inexperience, but pounced viciously on unsuspecting Virginia here last night and clobbered the Cavaliers by 80-46.

By comparison, the Tar Heel team of last season, which won the ACC championship, opened their conference year by whipping a somewhat weaker Virginia team by 81-47.

It was a quite successful opener for Coach Dean Smith, making his initial appearance as the Carolina mentor, and his new "controlled offense." The Tar Heel sharpshooters not only controlled their own offense, but fairly well held in control all the other phases of the game, including Virginia.

The team just about made the point that a lack of experience isn't going to hold them down this campaign. Sophomore Bryan McSweeney, making his first start, dropped in 20 points for the winners to share the scoring honors with senior Captain Jim Hudock.

The lithe, 6-5 forward from Hewlett, N. Y., who led his freshman team in scoring, canned 7 of 13 shots from the floor and hit on six straight free tosses for his 20 points. He also pulled down 9 rebounds.

Hudock, the team's bread-and-butter man, remained the workhorse. He pulled off 15 rebounds and hit on 7 of 11 from the floor to continue his fine shooting, which last year gave him the all-time UNC accuracy mark.

Carolina's sparkling guard combo of Larry Brown and Donnie Walsh also took care of their part of the scoring. Walsh had 16 points and Brown contributed 12. The fifth starter, forward Dieter Krause, scored eight points.

The Tar Heels didn't take long to warm up the capacity crowd in Woollen Gym to the new look in Carolina basketball. Brown scored the first point of the game on a free shot, and then Virginia center Richard Katstra dropped in a field goal to put the visitors ahead. Brown then countered with a field goal to put the Tar Heels back ahead before UVa guard Tony Laquintano tied the game with a free shot. But then Hudock sank a free shot and Brown put in a jumper to push the Blue and White ahead by 6-3. They never trailed again.

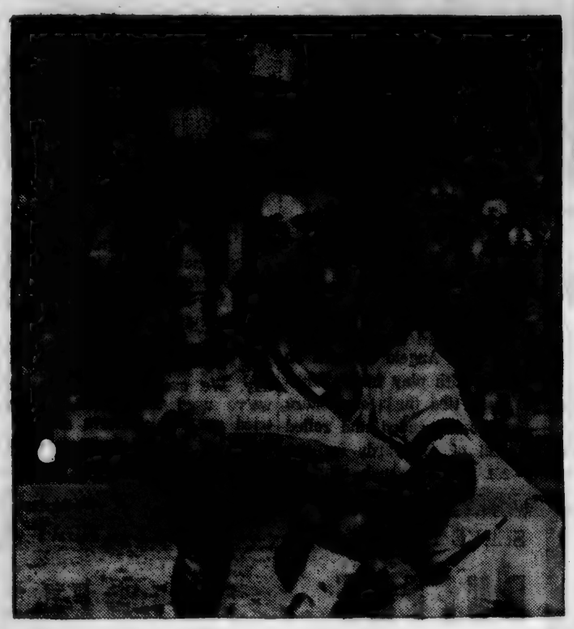
By halftime, the Smithmen had a 37-19 lead. At this point, McSweeny had scored 16 points and Hudock had 10.

Despite some freque nt substitutions—Mike Cooke and Peppy Callahan played as much as some of the regulars—the Carolina attack didn't slow down. They hit their biggest lead of the night, 36 points, at 74-38 in the final two minutes.

Coach Smith wasn't afraid to experiment in his opener. The team seemed to run whenever it had the chance, and the chance was presented often. The team led in rebounds, 50 to 35, and pulled off a number of bad passes and turned them into fast-break situations.

Daily Tar Heel Sports

Krause of UNC Battles Engel for Rebound



CAROLINA'S JUNIOR EDGE is stopped after his first quarter interception.

Cunningham And Neary Score 24 Each As Tar Babies Wallop Cavayearlings, 91-74

By ED DUPREE

UNC's freshman basketball team scored the first 14 points of the game last night and coasted to an easy 91-74 victory over the Virginia Cavayearlings.

Billy Cunningham and Jay Neary shared scoring honors for the Tar Babies with 24 points each. Neary, a 6-2 guard from Cambria Heights, N. Y., hit on 10 of 16 shots from the floor and added a perfect 4 for 4 on the foul line. Cunningham, a tricky 6-4 center from Brooklyn, connected on 10 of 18 field goals and chipped in with 4 for 6 on the line. Cunningham played an outstanding defensive game, blocking Virginia shots with ease, and led the Tar Babies in rebounding with 11.

Bill Brown, a 6-3 guard from Durham, had a perfect day from the floor with 5 for 5 and threw in 6 foul shots in 9 attempts for 16 points. Ray Respess, a 6-4 forward from Pantego, also cracked double figures, tallying 15 points on 7 for 15 from the floor and 1 for 1 on the line.

Virginia's Mickey Haynes broke the Carolina scoring monopoly with 14:57 to go in the first half to make the score UNC 14-Virginia 2. Neary and Cunningham then added field goals to push the lead to 18-2. A field goal by sub Bill Taylor gave the Tar Babies a 26-6 margin with 11:12 to go in the half. The visitors fought the UNC frosh on even terms during the last 11 minutes of the half and the Tar Babies left the court at halftime with a 43-27 lead.

Neary, hitting accurately on layups and jump shots, accounted for 17 points to lead the UNC frosh in the first half. Brown and Cunningham had 8 and 7 points respectively at halftime.

The little Cavaliers narrowed the Tar Heel lead to 43-34 in the early minutes of the second half, but the score quickly moved to 56-34 on a lay-up by Neary, a dunk shot by Cunningham, a jump shot by Respess, and a tap-in by Cunningham.

The closest the Virginians were able to come after this was the 17-point margin at which the game ended. The Tar Babies took the biggest lead of the night when Respess hit a set shot to make the score 77-52 with eight minutes to go in the game.

Coach Kenny Rosemond removed his five starters with about 4 minutes remaining as the Tar Babies had a commanding 87-67 lead.

Bill Taylor, 7 points, Warren Price, 3, and Pud Hassell, 2, rounded out the Tar Baby scoring.

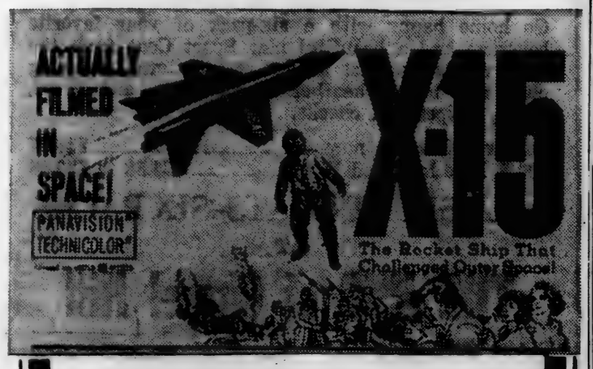
Virginia's Mac Caldwell hit on 12 of 22 shots from the floor and added a foul shot to lead both teams in scoring with 25. Craig and Hiram Tiptom each tallied 10.

Connely added 13 and Ken Goble

Both clubs shot well from the floor—UNC hitting on 37 for 77 for a 48.1 percentage and Virginia connecting on 31 of 65 for 47.7. The difference was in the rebounding department where the Cavalier lost out 48-7. Besides Cunningham's 11, Neary snared 8 rebounds, Brown 6 and Respess 5.

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST

— NOW SHOWING —



Lucky Virginia!

You can get in a Christmas Browse in the South's finest bookshop—

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St. — Open Till 10 P.M.

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

Today As Always the best place to Buy & Sell your Textbooks

The Book Exchange

Five Points DURHAM

"The South's Largest Bookstore"

STUDY IN SOUTHERN FRANCE

FRENCH LANGUAGE and LITERATURE
EUROPEAN STUDIES

...An academic year in Aix-en-Provence for undergraduates.

...Institute students enrolled at the University of Aix-Marseille; founded in 1409.

Classes in English or French satisfying American curriculum requirements.

Students may live in French homes.

Tuition, trans-Atlantic fares, room and board, about $1,850.

For further information, write airmail to:

INSTITUTE FOR AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES
aff. University of Aix-Marseille
21 rue Gaston-de-Sporta
AIX-EN-PROVENCE France

Don't Spend Money on Expensive Cards Until You've Seen the FIVE CENTS CARDS at the Intimate

SEE IT NOW! Graham Memorial Travel Adventure Series

FACE of the SOVIET

In Color—A feature-Length Film Report that takes you 5000 Miles Through the U.S.S.R.

Narrated In Person by RAY DINSMORE Renowned World Traveler

Adm. $1.00 MEMORIAL HALL Tuesday, Dec. 5, 8:00 P.M. Season Ticket $2.00 3 Trips Abroad

christmas shopping???

contemporary jewelry handwrought

the only—but only place for the individualistic, the imaginative, the incomparable—

charles hopkins of Chapel Hill

designer/craftsman (over sutton's)

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Baby grand, for one
6. Bicycle lever
11. Come in
12. French river
13. Community
14. Space-ship Able's dinner
16. Tumors prefix
19. Ill-humor
17. A boy
18. Greek letter
19. Surgeon's lancet
21. Deadline: abbr.
22. Insects
27. African gazelles
28. Capital! (slang)
29. Spirit
30. House to actor
31. Woven fabric
33. Chinese measure
34. TV's Mr. Carney
37. Cyclades island
38. —— Khan
39. Candy
41. College social club (short.)
42. —— pierre
43. Harangue
44. Actress Maude ——
45. Diminished

DOWN
1. Blonde's "aid"
2. Unfriendly
3. Wheaten flour
4. Born
5. Conjunction
6. Rio de la —— (Ury.)
7. An age
8. Call
9. Indian buffalo
10. Guide
14. Work gatherings
15. Added quantity
20. French coin
20. Morass
22. Candle-nut tree
24. A snare
25. Tail-board of wagon
26. Marked with grooves
28. Obtains
30. Italy's nickname
32. Fibbers
34. Handle
35. A cross (eccl.)
36. Russian city
38. Island near Ireland
40. School of whales
41. Friar's title
43. Cry of pain

PAPAW SHANS
ALATE IONIA
CALLA PRONG
TREAT NAGS
SHADE
ROT EDITORS
ANEAR ASSAIL
FORREAL APT
ADDS
KNOW CLERDS
RELAY USUAL
ALIKE EAGRE
GLOSS SLANT

Saturday's Answer

SUTTON'S TOY CELLAR is brimming with the largest, most comprehensive selection of toys in Chapel Hill—bar none. Shop NOW . . . LAY-AWAY to insure your choice . . . avoid dissappointment later.

TOY CELLAR OPEN NIGHTLY Lay-Away Now!

Showing here just a few of our toys to give you the flavor of Sutton's selection. Over 300 dolls, ranging in price from 98c to $20, including Chatty Cathy, Betsy Wetsy, Bride. Boys' Hobbycraft, flying planes, electric trains and cars, pistol and holster sets, BB guns, cowboy suits. A complete selection of football suits and equipment, footballs, basketballs, balls of all kinds. There are dolls as we said, and carriages and doll houses and clothes. Bicycles, tricyles, wagons, scooters, cars. Mustn't forget transistor radios, wristwatches and games, yes, galore! And doctor sets, nurses sets, chemistry sets, microscopes . . . we could go on, but you come on in, see and select. Lay-Aways invited, just 10% holds for Christmas!

In our pre-school age room you'll find Holgate, Fisher-Price, Sifo, Mattel, Rempel, Baby World, Tonka, Structo, Buddy L, Ny-Lint, Dinky, Tootsie, Hubley, Playskool, & many many others. Bring the kids.

SUTTON'S

Drug Store and Toy Cellar

159 E. Franklin Street Phone 942-5161

POGO

PEANUTS

Farris, Elliott Lead UNC To 24-0 Grid Win

Heels Finish Season 2nd In Conference

By HARRY W. LLOYD
DTH Sports Editor

North Carolina closed the door on its 1961 football season here yesterday with a one-sided 24-0 win over Virginia which gave the Tar Heels a second place finish in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Quarterback Ray Farris and fullback Bob Elliott were the offensive leaders as the team evened its season record at 5-5 and took its fourth ACC win against three losses.

Carolina had surprisingly little trouble against the upset-minded Cavaliers, who were also looking for their fifth win of this year after going winless for two years in a row. Coach Bill Elias' visitors, who had whipped Maryland 28-16 only the week before, were almost punchless against the fired up Carolina team, which snapped back after three straight losses.

The Tar Heels wasted little time in showing that they meant business. They were stopped the first time they had the ball on an intercepted pass, but they quickly regained possession and drove 81 yards for a score.

The big play of this drive was a third down pass on the first series. Farris passed over the middle to halfback Ward Marslender for 15 yards to really get this march on its feet. The running of Elliott and Farris then made up most of the remainder of the distance. Elliott blasted up the middle for 12, and then hit twice for three yards a go. Gib Carson kept the drive moving by catching a six-yard pass for a first down at the Virginia 39.

After Elliott got three more, Farris took off on one of his famous keeper plays and went for 17 yards. Two plays later, he picked up nine more to set up the touchdown on the nine. Carson carried three times in a row before hitting over for two yards on the final try and getting the touchdown with 3:21 remaining in the first quarter. Bob Elliott kicked the first of three extra points to put the Heels ahead by 7-0.

Virginia didn't have much of a chance for a comeback. On the kickoff, Willis Williams fumbled and Jack Tillery recovered at the 22 yard line of the Cavaliers. Carolina picked up a first down at the nine, but failed to gain on three plays. On fourth down, Bob Elliott kicked his second field goal of the season, a perfect boot from the 15-yard line. There were 31 seconds remaining in the first quarter when the Tar Heels took the 10-0 lead.

After this, Virginia never came any closer to scoring than the Carolina 32 yard line, and that was on the final play of the game. The closest they ever came to the goal line was when Carl Kuhn intercepted in the first quarter and returned to the 29. They never got any closer then, as three 5-yard penalties pushed them out of striking distance.

There was less than a minute to go in the first half—51 seconds to be exact — before the Cavaliers could get their first first down of the game.

But the Tar Heels kept moving, and at the end of the first half led in total yardage by 187-28.

It was another fumble that led to Carolina's second touchdown. Bob Zaback roared into Virginia's Doug Thomson at the nine yard line, and tackle Vic Esposito recovered on the 13. After a loss on a penalty, Farris hit John Hammett with a 4 yard pass that gave the Tar Heels a fourth down on the five. Farris slashed to the two to pick up the important first down.

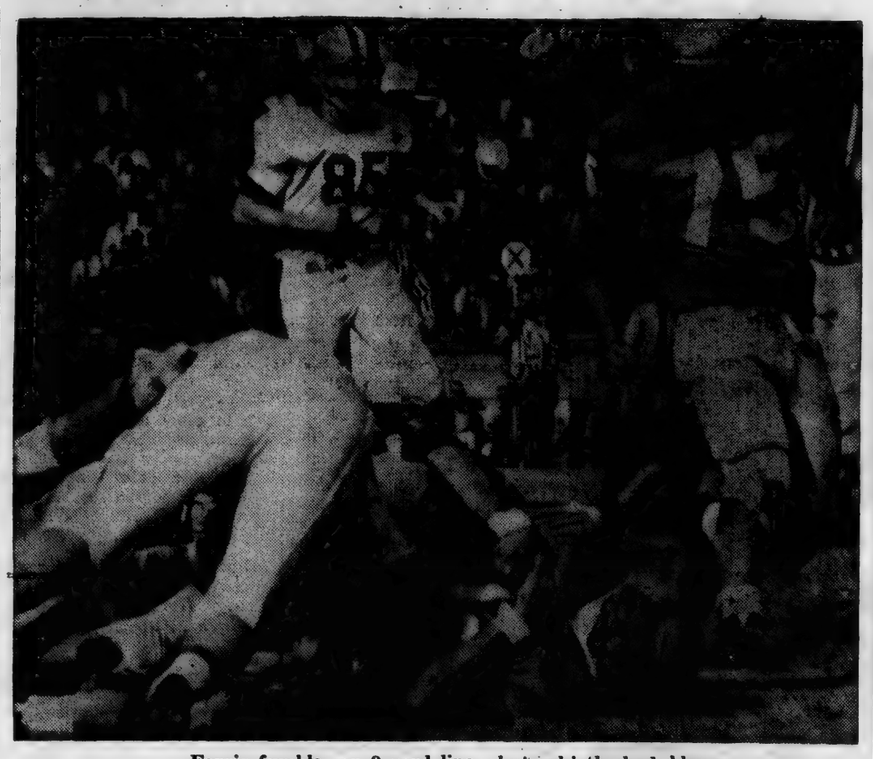
On the first play from this point, Addison skipped into the end zone. There was 5:0 left in the second quarter when this score went on the clock.

It wasn't until the fourth quarter that the Tar Heels got moving on a sustained drive again. This march went 78 yards for the final score, and contained the real offensive fireworks of the entire afternoon. Elliott broke up the middle for 26 yards to start the drive, and two plays later Farris scampered for 25 on his third long run of the day. The real crowd pleaser, however, was a 17 yard pass from Farris to Marslender which gave the Tar Heels a first down on the two. It was fourth down, and Farris appeared to be trapped for a loss when he got the pass away.

STATISTICS

	UNC	Va.
First downs	15	10
Yards rushing	183	45
Passes	13-24-1	8-16
Passing yardage	136	74
Intercepted by	2	1
Total offense	319	119
Punts	5-39.6	7-32.4
Yards penalized	64	40
Fumbles lost	1	3
N. Carolina	10 7 0 7—24
Virginia	0 0 0 0—0

Scoring—UNC:
Carson 2 (Elliott kick).
Field goal Elliott,25.
Addison 2 (Elliott kick).
Farris 1 (Elliott kick).



Farris fumbles on 9-yard line—but whistle had blown

Duke Blasts Notre Dame, 37-13

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

DURHAM, N. C. (UPI) — Duke dazzled Notre Dame with a brilliant passing attack and dizzying catches that all blasted the Irish 37-13 before 35,000 fans Saturday.

Quarterbacks Walt Rappold and Gil Garner threw four touchdown passes—to swing ends who made basketball catches, plucked the balls from defenders' hands and even caught one sitting down.

Garner and Rappold passes sparked two other Duke marches that led to a fifth touchdown and set up a 31-yard field goal by halfback Bill Reynolds.

The Atlantic Coast champions snapped back smartly from the sting of a 54-yard scoring run by Irish halfback Angelo Dabiero on the game's fifth play from scrimmage. They tied the score before the first period ended and rolled up a total of 440 yards for the game—261 yards through the air.

UNC Swimmers Defeat VMI By 51-43 In First Match

North Carolina came away with a victory in the final event of the meet, the 400-yard freestyle relay, to pull out a close 51-43 win over V.M.I.'s strong swimmers here Friday night.

The Tar Heel splashers, coached by Pat Earey, actually had only five first places, as compared to six wins for the visitors. However, two factors—more depth and relay strength — spelled the difference between the two clubs. It was the first meet of the year for either team.

Carolina never trailed in the meet, but saw its lead cut to the smallest margin of the night, 44-43, just before the decisive 400-yard relay. Co-Captain Bob Bilbro pulled out ahead in the first leg, and sophomore Don Murray widened the margin. Bryan Williams left Thompson Mann with an easy swim for the win.

Mann, a promising sophomore in his first varsity test, figured in three first places for the Tar Heels. In the first event of the night, he swam the backstroke of the 400-yard medley relay, which won in a time of 3:59. Other members of this team were butterfly man Barry King, breaststroker Bob Briggs, and sprinter Bilbro.

The Keydets then piled up wins in three consecutive events—the 220 free, the 50 free, and the 200-yard individual medley, to cut the Carolina lead to 18-16, before Doug Fambrough got another UNC win with a brilliant display from the low diving board.

Carolina's King then won the 200 butterfly in 2:27.7 and Joe Mummaw finished third to put the Blue Dolphins ahead by seven points.

McMillan of the visitors won his second sprint of the night in the 100 free, but Bilbro and Murray finished second and third to keep the Tar Heels ahead.

Mann then finished with a strong first place in the 200 backstroke, and Jim Huffman was third, to push the lead to 39-30. But then the Keydets began their final kick.

Collins won the 440 free, and Kane took the 300 backstroke to cut the lead to one point, leaving the decision to the 400 relay, which the Tar Heels won with little difficulty.

George Collins was the big star for the losers. He swam the 220 free in 2:12.5 and the 440 free in 4:52.9, both good enough to break V.M.I. records.

★ ★ ★

Wild And Wooly, Hickey Says Of His Past Year

By ED DUPREE

An anticlimatic atmosphere prevailed Saturday in the little room above the UNC dressing room, as Tar Heel Coach Jim Hickey recapped his team's frustrating season and the 24-0 victory over Virginia's Cavaliers.

"We've had a wild and wooly season," the soft-spoken Carolina mentor began. "The last two weeks were pretty tough on us. Up to the Duke game we were pretty pleased, but then we lost the next two. Maybe it was my fault for not settling for a tie, but I'd do the same thing again."

When asked if he thought his boys seemed relaxed during the Virginia game, Hickey agreed. But, referring to the five fumbles against Wake Forest last week added that "we were too relaxed last week."

"Our plans for this game were to run and throw at the corners. But, when they started stunting a lot, we moved back to the inside. Their defense was a lot tougher than in the past—their blocking was real good on offense.

"It's a good way to end the season. We were ready to play today. We used the same defense we've used all season, and we tried no new offensive stuff."

Hickey was pleased with the performance of his players in the 1961 finale. He commended Jim LeCompte, Joe Craver, Bob Elliott, and Ward Marslender for their fine play.

SPORT COATS
AT
The HUB of Chapel Hill

All of our Fall Sport Coats are reduced for this special pre-Christmas Sale.

FREE – SIX-PACK WITH EVERY SPORT COAT SOLD

Go home happy with a six-pack of your favorite beverage and a beautiful new Sport Coat from the Hub. All the newest shades and patterns including olive and brown heather tones, blues, and greys, plaids, stripes and checks.

Corduroy Blazers, now $18.77
100% Fine Imported Wools ..... $24.88 to $26.88

SALE SPORT COATS–SIX PACKS
AT
THE HUB of Chapel Hill

103 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-1252

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY
BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M.
at the RANCH HOUSE
Recommended By Duncan Hines and Gourmet
NC 86 AIRPORT RD. the Ranch House OPEN CHARCOAL HICKORY PIT BROILING PRIME WESTERN STEAKS FLAMING SHISHKEBAB & BEEFKEBAB
Can Eat— It's A All You Treat Cowboy

Lady Milton
Pre-Xmas Fiasco

Limited time only—fabulous savings on the best looking "giftables" found anywhere!

Give-a-way on 524 Lady Milton Shirts, mostly sizes 10-16. long sleeve pullover button-downs, non-pullover button-downs, some choir boys — dark toned solids; paisleys; small geometric prints; conversational prints regularly to $10.95, buy now at one for $2.99 or 3 for $8.50.

Belts formerly to $5.00 at mere $.99.

Group imported shetland pullover sweaters formerly to $14.95, have fun at $5.99 Beige heather full fashioned imported cardigan classic shetlands slashed from $14.95 to $8.99

178 wool skirts, mostly straight model, regularly to $25.00, have fun at $8.99.

Entire remaining stock of wool skirts in straight, box pleat and kilt models cut from $14.95 to $10.99; $16.95 to $12.99; $18.95 to $14.99; $19.95 to $15.99; $21.95 to $17.99; $22.95 to $18.99; $24.95 to $19.99; $26.95 to $29.95 now $21.99
Group shirtdresses formerly to $15.00 now $6.99; formerly to $20.00 now $10.99; formerly to $29.95 slashed to $14.99.

Remaining stock of shirtdresses reduced from $12.95 to $10.99; $14.85 to $12.99; $16.95 to $13.99; $18.95 to $15.99; $19.95 to $16.99; $21.95 to $17.99; $22.95 to $18.99 and $24.95 to $19.99.

Perfect gift item—Carolina glove and scarf sets cut from $6.95 to $4.99.

EXTRA SPECIAL—Braemar cashmere and Braemar lambswool sweaters reduced in time for Christmas — $14.95 lambswool now $10.99; $26.95 long-sleeve cashmere classic pullovers cut from $26.95 to $19.99; long sleeve classic cashmere cardigans cut from $29.95 to $22.99.

Women's Bass Weejun loafers in black pointed toe; brown or black round toe, reduced from $11.95 to $8.99.

All Sales Cash and Final
LADY MILTON SHOP

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

It's the Spirit that Counts
Give
Five Cent Christmas Cards
From
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

Milton's Shirt Fiasco

Give-a-way on 862 dress shirts—sizes 13½/32 to 17/36—button-downs and English tabs — formerly priced to $7.95, at Fiasco Price of 1 for $2.49 or 3 for $7.00.

Give-a-way on 142 sport shirts, pullover button-down model — solids, foulard prints, miniature plaids, paisley's, sizes 13½/32 to 17/36, formerly to $9.95, at unbelievable 1 for $2.99 or 3 for $8.50.
The Price Is Right; The Time Is Right

All Sales Cash And Final
No Exchanges Or Refunds

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

Just in Time for Christmas
A SPECIAL FACTORY PURCHASE of FAMOUS SPALDING
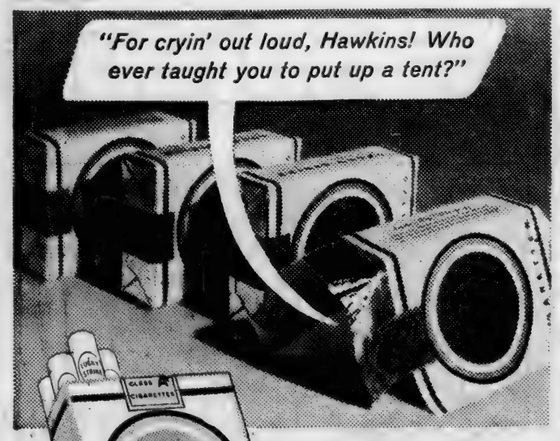
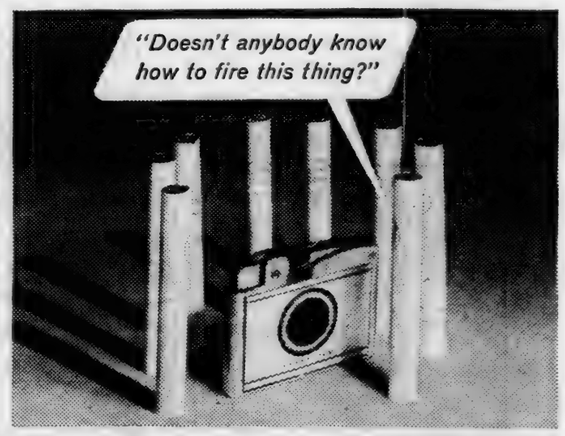
Golf Clubs

Set of 8 matched irons, $90 value, NOW $59.95
Set of 3 woods to match, $60 value, NOW $39.95

The Sport Shop, Inc.
"It Pays to Play" CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
151 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-44064
—Convenient Lay Away Terms—

LUCKY STRIKE presents: LUCKY PUFFERS "STUDENT SOLDIERS"





"THE SMOKING LAMP IS LIT!" For Sailors and Marines, that means happy time. They can slow down and light up a Lucky. In the Army and Air Force, the cry is "Take ten!"—Lucky lighting time again. But Lucky you; you can enjoy Luckies any time. Why, you can even have one right now. And won't it taste great! Full, rich tobacco flavor—that's why college students smoke more Luckies than any other regular. March out and buy a pack.

CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change!

©A. T. Co. Product of The American Tobacco Company — "Tobacco is our middle name"

S. C., Enemy Within
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Some cloudiness and warmer.
High in the mid 60's.

Offices in Graham Memorial | TUESDAY,, DECEMBER 5, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Servic

Police Say Murder Gun Found Here

Lucky Moore's Trial Set For Next Monday

The murder weapon allegedly used in the Village Cafeteria shooting of Bill Ellis was recovered at the home of Ike Mincey Sunday night, police said.

Mincey said the gun was one of several weapons he brought to suspect Bobby Lee "Lucky" Moore. None of the other weapons have been recoveretd.

Police said Mincey did not inform them of his possession of the murder weapon.

Trial Monday

Moore will be tried for first-degree murder in Superior Court in Hillsboro next Monday.

According to witnesses, Moore fatally shot Ellis, son of the owners of the Village Cafeteria, while Ellis was playing cards in the cafeteria early Sunday morning.

The shooting allegedly occurred after Moore asked Ellis what he intended to do about a $1,000 debt he owed Moore.

Threw Up Hands

Ellis threw up his hands and said, "Do what you are going to do."

Reputedly Moore then shot him and left the cafeteria with his wife who had arrived there moments earlier.

Moore's wife said they looked for Ellis, who had staggered out of the building, and then drove home. Moore was arrested there shortly afterwards.

Drama Dept. Given Grant For Seminar

An anonymous donor who was once a student in the Department of Dramatic Art and a former Carolina Playmaker is giving $1,500 a year to the department to bring nationally-prominent theater figures to the UNC campus.

The theater person will address dramatics students in the University and conduct seminars in playwriting and production.

According to Prof. Harry Davis, chairman of the department, the visitor will remain in Chapel Hill about a week, consulting with students and perhaps addressing a public gathering.

Ivey Corrects Error In Story On Interviews

A statement was issued by the director of the UNC News Bureau yesterday apologizing for a recent story which contained misinformation.

The statement by Director Pete Ivey reads:

"In the Daily Tar Heel and other papers, there appeared an article released by the University News Bureau as a r e s u l t of interviews with a number of foreign students in the University.

"In one place in the article, there were quotations attributed to an Indian and a Japanese, both in the Department of Statistics. It stated in the article that these two persons are part-time instructors. The persons actually interviewed are however students and not part-time instructors.

"Further, the only Indian in the Statistics Department who might be termed a part-time instructor is Dr. J. N. Srivastava, who teaches graduate courses in statistics.

"Dr. Srivastava was not interviewed. The statements attributed to the three who were interviewed do not apply to the opinions of Dr. Srivastava. The incident is regretted, and apologies are extended to Dr. Srivastava."

—Pete Ivey
Director
News Bureau, UNC

BIKINIES BOW-WOWS

ST. TROPEZ, France (UPI) — Something new has come o this Riviera resort of the Bikini bathing suit. French poodlles are wearing bikinis now.

THIS MANGER SCENE, in front of the University Methodist Church, captures the spirit of the holiday season. It also captures the eyes of many passers by, including these young Chapel Hill girls.—Photo by Ralph Mangum.

Phi Beta Kappa Holds Initiation Here At 5

22 Will Be Inducted Into Honor Society

Twenty-two Carolina students, including several graduates, will be initiated into Phi Beta Kappa, the highest college scholastic fraternity, today at 5 p.m. at the Di Phi Hall in New West.

The fall initiation is being held on the 185th anniversary of the founding of Phi Beta Kappa—December 5, 1776, at William and Mary College. Carolina's chapter was established on Nov. 7, 1904.

Those to be initiated are John William Bradshaw, Jr., Relief, N. C.; James Patterson Browder, III, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Floyd Talmadge Bryan Chapel Hill; Walter Ansell Derrick, Orlando, Fla.; Clarence Neblett Dillard, Jr., Cary, N. C.; Patricia Edwards, Dowden, Louisville, Ky.

Joel Harris Dugan, Elmhurst, N. Y.; Katherine Ann Gardner, Washington, D. C.; William David Hoover, Greensboro; Myron Kent Jennings, Washington, D. C.; Mary Hunter Kennedy, Charlotte; Anne Bowden McCrary, Wilmington; Stewart Beauregard Priddy, Lumberton;

To Be Initiated

Frank Richard Rosiny, Monsey, N. Y.; Richard Lenoir Sanders, Florence, S. C.; Claudio Valerie Scaetta, Rome, Italy; Patricia Annette Stallings, Selma, N. C.; Douglas Wayne Steeples, Burbank, Calif.; John Russell Talley Jr., Gastonia; John Bason Wagoner, Jacksonville, Fla.; Katherine Elizabeth Wilson, Charlotte; and Sarah Richardson Womack, Chapel Hill.

This initiation is one of the largest fall initiations in recent years. There were 20 inducted last year, 16 in 1959 and 15 in 1958. However, the spring initiation is usually the largest of the year, according to E. L. Mackie, corresponding secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Requirements

There are four levels of scholastic requirements for Phi Beta Kappa:

(1) A 3.3 average for seniors;

(2) A 3.6 average for juniors at the middle of their junior year;

(3) Transfer students from two years at another school must have a 3.5 average at the middle of their senior year here; and,

(4) Students who have been at UNC only three years, including their senior year, must have a 3.4 average.

Solicitor To Review Poisonings

SBI Terms Evidence In Case Inconclusive

District Solicitor Frank Andrews, state prosecutor for the Chapel Hill area, yesterday said he will review all evidence in the mysterious deaths of two UNC students Oct. 7.

The State Bureau of Investigation reported Saturday its investigation of the Barham-Johnson cyanide deaths was "inconclusive."

Chapel Hill Police Chief William D. Blake yesterday also completed his investigation and said that, after a further check, it will be turned over to Andrews.

Andrews, of Siler City, said that he intends to review all evidence with Blake and the two detectives who worked on the case. This review will take place in Hillsboro next week, the week of Superior Court.

The responsibility of the district solicitor is to bring forth an indictment, if judged necessary, for cases in his district. Andrews said that in this case there may not be an indictment, "but that remains to be seen."

If a review of the evidence reveals nothing new, a statement will be released by Andrews as to his final conclusion. If, however, he decides the evidence justifies further investigation, the proper authorities will be notified.

Chief Blake added that the SBI investigation "found that there was no link between the two deaths and an earlier death of a N.C. Memorial Hospital technician."

DR. GEORGE HAM

Psychiatrist Appointed To Health Body

Dr. George C. Ham, professor and chairman of the Department of Psychiatry, has been appointed to the National Advisory Mental Health Council.

The council membership has a tenure of four years.

As a member of the council Dr. Ham will advise and make recommendations regarding research and training programs sponsored by the National Institute of Mental Health to Surgeon General Luther M. Terry of the U.S. Public Health Department.

The council's twelve members are leaders in medicine, science, education, and public affairs. Ex-officio members include the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service as chairman, and two members representing the Veterans Administration and the Department of Defense.

UNC Since 1951

Dr. Ham joined the University staff in 1951. Prior to 1951, he taught at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School for several years. He was also a research associate, Division of Neuropsychiatry at the Michael Reese Hospital and at the Institute for Psychoanalysis, both located in Chicago. He is a Diplomate of the American Board of Internal Medicine and the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology.

Dr. Ham holds the following committee memberships and offices: Executive Council of American Psychosomatic Society; Training Committee, National Institute of Mental Health; Committee on Psychiatry of the Division of Medical Science, National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences; Editorial Board, "Psychometric Medicine" a n d others. His published works number more than forty.

Friday To Head Air Force ROTC Advisory Board

Pesident William Friday of the Consolidated University has been named chairman of the nine-member Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps Advisory Panel to the Department of the Air Force. He is attending a four-day Washington meeting, which began yesterday.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss AFROTC problems which are of "urgent need" to the Air Force and to institutions which have ROTC units.

Met With Zuckert

Friday met with Eugene M. Zuckert, secretary of the Air Force, at the Pentagon yesterday.

Members of the advisory group of which Friday is chairman include Dr. Norman P. Auburn, President of the University of Akron; Brigadier General Lloyd J. Davidson, Dean of Faculty of VMI; Dr. C. Clement French, President of Washington State University; Dr. John W. Masland, Provost of Dartmouth College; Dr. Joseph E. McCabe, President of Coe College in Iowa; Dr. G. Homer Durham, President of Arizona State University; Right Reverend James P. Shannon, President of the College of St. Thomas in Minnesota; and Dr. John T. Wahlquist, President of San Jose State College.

Five Areas Providing Relief From Crowding—Aycock

By JIM COLTFELTER

The University is "doing the best it can" to make campus capital improvements for which the defeated bond issue would have provided funds, said Chancellor William Aycock yesterday.

"Temporary relief" for overcrowded facilities is being provided in five areas, said the Chancellor in an interview.

(1) Cobb dormitory will be converted into a girls' dorm as originally planned. It will be ready by next September.

"We may not be able to do all we hoped to do, but renovation will definitely go ahead," said Aycock. The Nov. 7 bond issue would have provided $50,000 for renovation.

Ehringhaus Cafeteria

(2) A cafeteria which can feed 176 people at a time will be built in the basement of Ehringhaus dorm if the Federal Government—which provided the construction funds—approves. Ehringhaus is now under construction and will be ready for occupancy next fall.

UNC has asked the Government for approval to use contingency funds for construction of the cafeteria, said Aycock.

The defeated bond issue included $730,000 for a second UNC cafeteria, which would have been built near the new dormitories.

Plant Expansion

(3) The University will go ahead with plans to borrow funds to expand the heating plant, said Aycock. Plant expansion money was included in the bond issue.

(4) Another freshman reading room may be provided in the library. The bond issue included $1.6 million toward the required $2.6 million needed to build a student center-undergraduate library.

(5) The University is appointing architects for several proposed buildings which are to be built with Federal matching funds, said the chancellor.

Some requests which were voted down in the Nov. 7 issue will be put in the 1963-65 biennium budget. University officials will meet with the Advisory Budget Commission next spring concerning the next budget.

Aycock said that any plan to pay for a new UNC student union with self-liquidating funds and increased student fees would mean "a tremendous raise in fees."

Long Confirms Report Of Zeta Psi Probation

A report that the Zeta Psi social fraternity had been sentenced by the Interfraternity Council for acting "ungentlemanly" at a Halloween party this year was confirmed yesterday by William G. Long, assistant Dean of Student Affairs.

According to Dean Long, the party was held on October 31 with the Tri-Delt sorority present. The party was supposed to be a costume affair.

While there was nothing indecent about the costumes worn by the girls, several of the Zetas behaved "grossly," according to the dean.

Long declined to give any further details about the Zetas' behavior.

IFC Trial

The administration asked the IFC to try the Zetas and to make a recommendation as to what punishment the Zetas should receive. The trial took place on Nov. 17. The fraternity pleaded guilty to violating the IFC constitution.

The IFC recommended that the fraternity be placed on strict social probation, that no women be allowed to visit the house under any circumstances and that there be no social functions conducted by the fraternity until the end of the school year.

It was also recommended that the Zetas be banned from all intramural sports for the rest of the academic year and that all forms of pledging and rushing be forbidden until June 1, 1962.

The fraternity was to be placed under indefinite General Probation until January 29, 1963. The University approved t h e IFC measures, which went into effect November 19 this year.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Elvis J. Stahr

WASHINGTON—Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr Jr. Monday dismissed reservists' complaints as isolated instances and said the "overwhelming majority" of men recalled to Army service had high morale.

He told a news conference that the callup of 119,000 Army National Guard and Army Reserve men had gone "exceedingly well . . . far superior to any previous mobilization in the country." At the same time, Stahr disclosed he had ordered a reversal of punishment meted out to a reservist at Ft. Devens, Mass., for writing a protest letter to the Boston Herald.

The Chicago soldier, Spec. 5C Willard M. Miller Jr., 21, protested his recall after serving 45 months on active duty and was confined to barracks for two weeks on grounds he violated a regulation requiring superiors approval of published information.

★ ★ ★

BOSTON—The blonde secretary of imprisoned Bernard Goldfine was the victim of a hoax which led to her surprise arrest on probation charges, it was disclosed Monday.

An unidentified person booked passage to Switzerland for the secretary, Mildred Paperman, last Friday without her knowledge and then tipped federal probation officers who arrested her at her home Saturday night as the plane was about to take off from New York.

★ ★ ★

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—Ceylon accused the United States Monday of "waging war against the Chinese people" and forging a Western Iron Curtain against China in opposing a U. N. seat for the Communist regime.

Ceylon and Sweden, the first two neutrals to be heard in the general assembly's debate on the China representation issue, opposed a U. S. resolution to have it declared a two-thirds majority for decision. Such a move would assure Nationalist China's U. N. representation for another year, observers believed.

Ceylonese Ambassador Gunapala Piyasena Malalasekera told the General Assembly U. S. arguments against giving China's U. N. seat to the Peiping regime could be used as well to support seating the Chinese Communists.

★ ★ ★

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy will meet in Bermuda Dec. 21-22 with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to discuss the Berlin situation and other international problems.

The meetng was announced on Monday by the White House. It described the conference as a continuation of the informal consultations which Kennedy and Macmillan held in Washington and Key West-Fla., last spring and in London last summer.

The President conceivably could swing over to Bermuda on the way back from a proposed trip to South America. He has under consideration a quick visit to Colombia and Venezuela, beginning about Dec. 14. A definite announcement on this trip probably will be made Tuesday.

Ugly Man Voting Begins Wednesday

UNC students will get their chance Wednesday to vote for the Ugliest Man on Campus.

Votes are cast by placing money in ballot boxes beneath the picture of each candidate. Each cent counts as one vote.

The proceeds of the contest will go to HOPE, the medical ship which will soon sail on another mercy voyage around the world.

The contest is sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity.

Polling booths will be in Lenoir Hall, Y-Court and the Scuttlebutt, Honorary President Roland Stonaker said yesterday.

Sealed votes will be accepted.

'Face Of Soviet' Lecture Tonight

Ray Dinsmore, producer of "Pacific Odyssey," "Destination Soviet," and "Nautilus—Your Atomic Submarine," will deliver his latest film-lecture, "Face of the Soviet," tonight at 8 in Memorial Hall.

Dinsmore's talk is sponsored by the Graham Memorial Travel-Adventure Series. Season tickets for the series are on sale at the GM Information Desk for $2 for the three remaining presentations. Tickets will also be on sale at the door for $1 each.

The film-lecture will cover Dinsmore's 1960 tour through five Soviet areas, the two Berlins, Afghanistan, Kandahar, and Kabul.

Campus Briefs

Two party officers and two legislators from Town Men's District III will be selected at the Student Party meeting tonight. The meeting will be held in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial at 8:30. Everyone is invited.

The University Symphony Orchestra will present its fall concert tonight in Hill Hall. The concert will feature works by von Weber, Beethoven, Barber, Strauss, and Liszt.

Interviews for the State Student Legislature will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons in Roland Parker III in Graham Memorial from 2-5.

All students who have not picked up their Yack proofs, do so immediately.

A briefing on the Tactical Air Command will be given at 1 p.m. today in Howell Hall Auditorium. The public is invited.

The Philological Club will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Faculty Lounge, Memorial Planetarium. Raymond Adams of the English department will speak.

The exhibition, "The Graphic Art of Edvard Munch," begins today in Ackland Art Museum.

The "UNIVAC Programming Lectures for Social Scientists" will be held today from 2-4 p.m. in 310 Phillips Hall.

The Tuesday evening series concert of the University Symphony Orchestra will be given tonight at 8 in Hill Music Hall. Earl Slocum will conduct.

The debate team coached by Professor Donald Springen ranked among the top schools at the Hall of Fame Debate tournament in New York. The affirmative team won three of its five debates tieing one, while the negative team won two.

Most Plans For Campus Chest Are Completed, Chairmen Say

Most of the basic administrative groundwork has been laid for the coming Campus Chest Drive, reports Co-Chairmen Jeannie MacDougall and Charlie Shelton. They said that "a fine group of committee chairmen" were selected to head the Campus Chest's functions.

Heading the Publicity Committee are Page Bradham and Dave Raney. This committee is responsible for the newspaper, radio, television, moving picture and poster publicity for this, Carolina's only charity drive.

The Solicitations Committee is chaired by Van Oates and Grant Wheeler. This committee does the actual collecting of the funds for the Campus Chest.

At the height of the Campus Chest Drive—the date will soon be decided—an auction is held. Heading the Auction Committee are Kitty Motsinger and Tommy Cummings.

On the final day of the Chest Drive and in conjunction with the Greek Week program, a campus-wide carnival is held. Chairmen of the Carnival Committee are Jane Tarlton and Walter Ratchford.

Working closely with these chairmen are the secretary, Penny Jackson, and assistant secretary, Joyce Sharp, and the treasurers, Scott Brown, Sara Harris, Jerry Javobs, Danny Bell and Dick Henderson.

Working under these chairmen are a large number of committeemen who will be contacted soon about work on the Campus Chest Drive.

Med School To Give Course

The second postgraduate medical course of the academic year will be given by the School of Medicine in Edenton and Wilson, beginning Jan. 17-18.

Two lectures will be given in Edenton each Wednesday over a six-week period. The same two lectures, and the same lecturers, will be given in Wilson during this same period on Thursdays.

The courses are sponsored by the UNC School of Medicine, the UNC Extension Division and the local medical societies. The Edenton course is co-sponsored by the First District Medical Society. The First District Society is composed of the following counties: Beaufort, Bertie, Perquimans, Chowan, Gates, Hertford, Martin, Washington, Tyrrell, Northampton, Pasquotank, Dare, Camden and Currituck Counties.

The Wilson course is co-sponsored by the Wilson County Medical Society.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 5, 1961 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLIX, No. 61

S.C., The Enemy Within

In these trying times, when a bitter cold war rages between east and west, we as good Americans must always be on the alert for the most dangerous of all enemies: the enemy within. One man, a kind, gentle person seemingly above reproach has had the entire free world fooled for years. This white-haired gentleman visits us once a year under the pretense of spreading joy and cheer to everyone. Now the true story can be told. This man operating under the names of Father Christmas, Pere de Noel, or Santa Claus is actually the number one Communist youth organizer working in the western countries today.

Let's look at the facts: first he wears a red uniform of the type once worn in the districts of northern Russia. He has a beard, the international symbol of the beat generation. He specializes in molding the minds of our young people and his success can be seen in the fact that the mere mention of his name is enough to bring excitement and respect to large crowds of children.

His method of operation can be seen in the fact that his followers sit on his knee and whisper information in his ear. This information can range from plant production, to the names f those unbelievers who would seek to destroy him. His followers are rewarded well and payoffs in the disguise of Christmas presents are given once a year.

This communist organizer is also an accomplished spy. He travels over our countryside in an airship having the code name "Santa's Sleigh." This vehicle is manned by Russian Technicians in the garb of reindeer (an animal living predominantly in Russia). The contents of this "Sleigh" are unknown with the exception of a large bag. This bag undoubtedly contains photographic equipment for use in photographing our strategic missile bases.

He is using our airways illegally for he has never gained permission from the CAA for the use of our air space. From his airborne vantage point he is capable, on Christmas Eve when the world feels safe and at ease, of dropping 50 megaton bombs and spreading terror and destruction across our nation.

We must act at once to put a stop to this menace to our internal security. In this upcoming Christmas season, mob and attack this communist agent wherever he is seen. This is the only way that our long loved free and democratic system can survive.

Capitalists of the world unite! You have nothing to lose but your enemy.

Next week: The Easter Bunny Expsed.

—Jim Wallace

$$ Equal Quality?

Is there too much of a tendency on the part of all of us to measure too many things by the dollar?

The dollar must be one of the things at the center of our lives. Let there be no mistake about that. But it is dismaying how easily every story on education gets around to the dollar, how the ratings of educational institutions so easily are expressed in terms of how much another part of the country spends and how little the South spends on its education.

News stories this week from Louisville, Ky., discussed the meeting of the Southern Regional Education Board. One report said that the South must double its college and university enrollment and nearly triple ist expenditure for higher education in the next eight years to begin closing the "substantial gap" between the educational standards of this region and those of the rest of the nation.

Once again, the dollar seems to be the controlling factor there, in the recommendation that the South must nearly triple its spending for higher education to close a "substantial" gap between the South's colleges and the colleges elsewhere. Maybe the South should triple its spending, but before it does, someone should explain very carefully the nature of the gap, and why it is substantial. Is the gap in the amounts of pay for professors? Or is the gap in the actual quality of education given the college students? Is the gap in the quality of dormitory rooms, or in the quality of the lecture given in the classroom?

What is the actual difference between the quality of the education given a history major at Chapel Hill and that given a history major at NYU, or Southern California, or the University of Wisconsin? That is the type gap with w h i c h the South must concern itself. If the actual schooling given at Carolina is vastly inferior to that given at NYU or Southern Cal or Wisconsin, then that gap must be closed, regardless of the cost. But if the gap is in some arbitrary standard set up by some board, let the seriousness of that gap be studied before expenditures are tripled to fill it.

We must have bigness now because there is no way to avoid it. There is no way in the wide world that our University or our State College can ever get back to the days when their presidents knew by name every student on the campus, and when the professors knew all t h e students, whether they taught them or not. Never again can a university be simply an eager student on one end of a log and a wise professor on the other.

But we cannot afford to let our necessary bigness get in the way of telling to the people the story of what its needs really are. We've got to stop measuring our educational greatness or our educational shortages solely against what is being spent in Wisconsin or New York or California.

—Raleigh Times

Due to the editor's illness, editorials will be written by members of the staff until further notice.

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN REYNER
Associate Editor

LLOYD LITTLE
Executive News Editor

BILL HOUSE
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

JIM CLOTFELTER
Assistant to the Editor

STEVE VANCE.....News Editor
NANCY BASS, LINDA CRAVOTTA—
Feature Editors
HARRY W. LLOYD.....Sports Editor
DAVID WYSONG.....Subscription Manager
JIM EDMISTEN.....Circulation Manager
BOB DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE.....Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MATHIS.....Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Discrimination Barriers Being Lifted

By Howard Rusk, M. D.

er entering or returning to the nation's colleges and universities this month, the number with physical disabilities was the highest in history.

Although some institutions of higher learning have traditionally welcomed disabled students, the great majority until recent years have not. One of the most notable exceptions has been the University of Illinois at Champaign.

The Illinois program had its inception in the Galesburg division of the university in 1948 and was started for disabled veterans. The facilities were ideal for the program, since the Galesburg division was formerly the Mayo Army General Hospital.

The program was moved the following year to the university campus at Champaign. Since then, 181 severely handicapped students have graduated from the university, twenty-two with master's degrees and six at doctors of philosophy. One is now a physician, another a minister and others are in the sciences, teaching and many fields of business.

Last year there were 166 handicapped students on the campus, 115 of whom were in wheel chairs.

Specialized Facilities

Among the specialized facilities and programs for them are seventy-five ramps leading into university buildings, four buses with hydraulic lifts which go around the campus on a regular schedule, special parking facilities, specially designed dormitory facilities and modified apartments for married wheel chair students.

In athletics, the "Rollin' Illini," better known as the "Glad Kids," live up to the best traditions of the "Fighting Illini." Last year eight of them represented the United States in the International Paralympic Games held in Rome the week following the Olympic Games.

A second major center for handicapped students in the Midwest is being created at the University of Missouri at Columbia, which will become a specialized regional university facility to serve the severely disabled.

The project, being aided by a grant from the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation over a five-year period, will modify all of the facilities of the university and organize all university services in such ways that severely handicapped students can attend.

Testing Modified

During the first year of the project attention has been devoted toward modification of testing and counseling services, men's dormitories, the student union and student health services. The next step will be modification of classrooms in the College of Arts and Science and the School of Business and Public Administration and provision of special housing for married handicapped students.

Although specialized facilities, of Illinois and the University of Missouri, are necessary for the extremely disabled person, some colleges find they can admit most handicapped applicants with minimal adjustments.

Kansas State Teachers College at Emporia, for example, such as those at the University began to admit handicapped students systematically seven years ago and last year had more than sixty handicapped students enrolled. In the college's experience, the primary factor is understanding and ingenuity, rather special facilities.

ministrators on basic facilities and services needed by handicapped students.

The Kansas approach is now being used by the State University of

When a wheelchair student has a class on the second floor of a building without elevators, he merely rolls himself up to the stairs and waits. The first two husky male students who come along, pick up the wheelchair and carry him up the steps. This has become a tradition at this college and handicapped students accept this kind of help without embarrassment.

First Wheelchair Teacher

A year ago a paraplegic graduate of the school began teaching in the public schools of Olpe, ten miles south of Emporia. He is believed to be the first teacher in a wheel chair in the public schools in Kansas.

Currently Kansas State Teachers College with the aid of a grant from the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation is studying its own and other programs and will prepare a handbook for college and university administrators on basic facilities and services needed by handicapped students.

At the College of Education in Buffalo, for example, all new buildings, including its Campus School, will have ramps and other facilities for the handicapped. Such features in the Campus School will make it accessible not only for children in the elementary grades, but for practice or student teachers in training who have disabilities.

Values of Education

A recently completed study at the University of Florida at Gainesville has shown the values of college education for disabled young people to be identifical with those of the non-disabled. The only differences are that severely disabled college graduates tend to marry and achieve their highest income status two or three years later than non-disabled graduates.

In a nation that is committed as a public policy to the principles of providing higher education to all young people who can benefit, it is encouraging that the barriers of discrimination against handicapped students are being eliminated and these handicapped students are being admitted to colleges and universities more and more on the basis of their abilities and not excluded because of their disabilities.

—New York Times

Comparing Ike And Kennedy

By James Marlow
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy has been in the White House long enough, a little over nine months, to provide some insight into the way he operates.

If he could be said to have patterned himself after a model it would be President Eisenhower and not cocky, relaxed, extremely self-confident President Roosevelt or highly combative President Truman.

But what looked like the development of an unusually friendly personal relationship of Kennedy and Eisenhower may be coming to a quick end.

Throughout his eight White House years Eisenhower deliberately avoided quarrels—particularly with Congress—by refraining from attacks and feuds. Not so with Roosevelt or Truman.

Kennedy has done the same as Eisenhower. There were times in the latter's presidency when he went less than all-out for some of the legislation he asked Congress to pass. The same goes for Kennedy.

The avoidance of quarrels by both men may not create in the public mind the image of an aggressive or even very positive President. But it gives few people an excuse for building up antagonisms against them.

It may explain to some extent why Eisenhower in his time, and Kennedy now, have stood so high in public opinion polls. There has never been much reason for the general public to get steamed up against them.

In one big detail there is a difference between Kennedy and Eisenhower in dealing with Congress. Kennedy, with 14 years' service there, has a sharper understanding of the in-fighting, the dickering and maneuvering.

In one big detail there is a difference between Kennedy and Eisenhower administrations each committed one obvious beaut of a boner.

With Eisenhower it was letting the U2 spy-plane fly over Russia, where it could be shot down, and was, just before the 1960 summit conference with Premier Khrushchev. With Kennedy it was letting the Cuban invasion occur.

The main characteristic of both men in foreign affairs seems to be mildness—certainly in comparison with their main opponent, Premier Khrushchev — but trouble piled up for both of them just the same.

They'll probably pile up worse for Kennedy for a simple reason: The United States had a head start on the Russians in nuclear development. They needed time to catch-up or outdo.

With every passing day they get stronger. The result: They're in a better position to make trouble for Kennedy. This is so obvious that Kennedy, not satisfied with Eisenhower's defense program, has stepped it up.

In his time Eisenhower was accused of lack of leadership. Now Kennedy is being blamed by Republicans for not being firm enough. But there is one apparent difference between the two in the foreign field.

Eisenhower relied to an amazing degree on his secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, who did the tough talking for the administration and often gave the impression he was the one making foreign policy.

Kennedy is the dominent figure in foreign policy now. His secretary of state, Dean Rusk, who looks grey compared with the flamboyant Dulles, avoids belligerent noises while Kennedy does the main talking.

Even so, all their talking is mild. In nine months the harshest statements to the Russians were made last week by a man further down the administration ladder, Roswell L. Gilpatric, deputy secretary of defense, although he did so with full approval of Kennedy and Rusk.

There was no relationship at all for eight years between Eisenhower and his predecessor, Truman. But Kennedy went out of his way several times—by personal visit or phone—to get Eisenhower's opinion on foreign problems.

The foundation for a good relationship thus seemed well laid. But it may be over. Eisenhower, anxious to pep up his Republican party, recently has talked not only critically but derisively of some Kennedy administration performances. Kennedy has not replied.

Although during the campaign Kennedy indicated he would hold far more news conferences than Eisenhower, he has done nothing of the kind. He has held only 17 since taking office. By this time in his administration Eisenhower held 17.

Advantages Of Fraternity Life Then The Disadvantages Too

In the Spring of 1961 the University of North Carolina YMCA called together a group of responsible men to make a study of the basic issues involved in fraternity membership. This Fraternity Study Commission was composed of nine fraternity men and six non-fraternity men. The group met four times. The following is the result of the study of this Commission and it is given to you now in the hope that it will help you to make a responsible decision about your membership in a fraternity.

A college fraternity is a fellowship of men which is formed to satisfy important human and social needs, in particular the need for companionship and belonging. In a University of over eight thousand students and in a dormitory of a hundred or more one has difficulty finding a close fellowship. In belonging to a fraternity a man has the opportunity to make close and often life-long friendships, both in his pledge period and in the future classes he may select. A man naturally gravitates toward those of similar perspectives and values; a fraternity provides an opportunity for men to associate with other men of the same interests.

Once he joins a fraternity the freshman can be helped during the early weeks of the academic year to adjust to the radically new and challenging life of the University. The fraternity serves as a kind of family to the new man. He is surrounded by men who may help him through most of the difficulties of college life.

Group responsibility is introduced to the new man in learning how to get along with others. Poise and personality are developed in different situations and their acquisition becomes somewhat easier within the group. Participation in extra-curricular activities is encouraged in many Houses, though not all, through association with active campus leaders in the House.

• • •

Two concrete social advantages are offered a fraternity man at the University. First is the opportunity —through exchange dinners with campus sororities—to meet the Carolina co-ed. Secondly, the fraternity offers an attractive place to take a date as well as many parties and social events. The entering freshman should have no illusions about social life in the dormitories: barring a few significant exceptions the residence halls at Carolina offer little social life.

The fraternity dining room is another advantage of fraternity life. At the House the food is, as a rule, better than at Lenoir Hall. Also the fraternity man will eat with persons he knows rather than in a crowd of strangers. Both of these conditions are quite important for a man's spirit during the early months of college.

As in many other areas of life, the rule of admission to a fraternity is a competitive rule. Since a fraternity relationship is a two-way affair men are chosen for admission to the brotherhood on what they can contribute to the House: that is, what the brothers believe that you can contribute. The "black-ball" is not intended to be a democratic device. It is designed to insure a congenial group of men of similar interests.

In conclusion, it should be said that frequently the most important friendships that a man makes in college are made in the fraternity situation. These close ties often produce bonds which transcend the tests of time and separation. Consider carefully all of these advantages as you make your decision about fraternity membership.

The Disadvantages Of Fraternity Life

The basic problem of fraternity life lies not in the good companionship and brotherhood of the House but in the fact that so many are denied this companionship and brotherhood. The basic problem of fraternities is thus a problem of exclusion.

One form of discrimination is based upon the race and/or religious belief of the rushee. Any man joining a fraternity should mind out which Houses practice this form of discrimination — either overtly or covertly—an dthen make his decision whether or not to join that House. If a man believes that a House has the right to choose its members on these grounds, then there is no bar to his becoming a member of that fraternity. But if he believes that it is unfair to exclude a man from consideration simply because he is a JeJw or a Negro, then he cannot honestly join a House which has such standards of admission.

Another form of exclusion is based upon the personality of the rushee and the imrpession which he makes upon the members of the fraternity. The type of person rejected on such grounds is, many times, the very one who most needs the fraternity experience and the fraternity friendships. Yet he is the first to be turned down. This rejection can be a harsh blow to a man's self-respect and the experience is one that is not easily forgotten. All those who rush must accept the risk of such rejection.

The problem of conformity is one of the central issues in considering fraternity life. At a time when a man could be on his own for the first time and learn to make his own decisions and form his own friendships, the fraternity man has his circle of associates generally defined for him. While some Houses represent as wide a cross section of dress, attitude and opinion as one could find anywhere on campus, it is more often the case that his fraternity brothers are people very like himself, people who have the same briefs, and ideals. He is expected to 'fit in' and thus the development of his own unique personality is stifled. He also misses one of the most important parts of education—acquaintance with a wide variety of people.

• • •

As a pledge one can expect a fair amount of one's time to be spent doing pledge projects, running errands, and various other menial tasks. Three hours a week is usually the MINIMUM of time devoted to things of this sort. During "Greek Week" and final week before initiation almost all of the pledge's time is spent in connection with the fraternity. Finally, it should be noted that despite the prohibition of hazing there are still several Houses at Carolina which engage in hazing of pledges.

The cost of membership when living at the House ranges from $80 to $100 a month, with added assessments (varying from fraternity to fraternity) collected from time to time.

On a more 'philosophic' level each man engaged in rush must ask himself if, by joining a fraternity, he is encouraging cliques, conformity, and snobbery. This consideration should be carefully weighed against the many values and benefits accruing from fraternity membership.

Husband Catching Good

By Glenn Keever
Times Staff Writer

Go to college and catch a husband.

It's the motto of many a pretty young thing the minute she tucks her high school diploma away.

And judging from enrollment figures, her chances of success in North Carolina colleges and universities are first rate.

There are 24,706 males enrolled in public colleges in the State, but only 15,330 females.

The private colleges don't make for quite as good a hunting ground. Here the male enrollment is 19,301 and the female enrollment is 14,901.

Another 877 students—almost all men—are enrolled in the Bible colleges in the State.

For the women, the chances are better at some colleges than at others.

Davidson College reports a female enrollment this year of one. This lone woman has 976 men for classmates.

The ratio is in her favor at the University of North Carolina where 1,903 women go to school with 7,179 men. It figures out to more than three men each for the coeds.

State College has 6,444 men and only 178 women. The ratio is more evenly divided at East Carolina College where 2,710 men matriculate with 2,553 women.

Duke reports 1,880 women and 4,432 men. Wake Forest has 2,208 men and 661 women. Western Carolina College has 691 women and 1,133 men.

Appalachian is a bad risk for the girls looking for a husband. The women at this college number 1,714 as compared to only 1,183 men.

And three fellows over at Woman's College in Greensboro never had it so good. They are the only three male students with a female enrollment of 3,136.

There's one other trend apparent in the figures.

It shows out-of-state men coming into the State's colleges in droves in search of education and, perhaps a Southern Belle.

Almost 10,000 male out-of-state students are enrolled in the State—but only 4,682 female out-of-staters are reported.

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Legends Around Flowers Bloom Again This Dec.

Of all the legends and stories that surround the Christmas festival, among the most beautiful are those concerning the flowers of Christmas.

The most popular floral decoration for the holiday season is the spectacular poinsettia. It is said to have originated when a poor little girl wished to offer a gift to the Mother of Jesus, and was heartbroken because she had nothing. So, she sadly plucked a few scrawny flowers to present to Mary, as the Mother of Jesus approached her. Suddenly those plain little flowers were transformed into the brilliant red bloom that we know was the poinsettia.

* * *

The Christmas rose is also surrounded with a similar leggend. In this instance, it was a shepherd maid who wept because she had had no suitable gift to lay before the Babe in the manger. An angel appeared to her, and upon hearing why the maid wept, touched the ground where her tears had fallen. Immediately, beautiful white Christmas roses sprang up in their place, and the joyful maid gathered them up to offer to the Babe.

The chrysanthemum is said to have appeared for the first time on Christmas Eve to the Three Wise Men, as they approached the manger. It was a sign that they had reached that which they had been seeking.

The snowdrop is associated with the Virgin Mary, because it is considered an emblem of the candles she lighted on that first Christmas.

Sainfoin, or "holy hay", as it is called, is said to have cradled the infant Jesus, as He lay in the manger.

Romance In Myths, Legends

There are many charming traditions about love and lovers connected with the Christmsa holidays.

In northern England, young maidens place holly under their pillows with the verse, "Good St. Thomas, serve me right, and send me my true love tonight."

In the Swiss Alps, when a young woman accepts a gift of edelweiss, it is traditionally understood that also accepts the young gentleman who offers it.

And of course the custom of kissing under the mistletoe, as an expression of everlasting love, is one which dates back centuries.

Although still a part of our Christmas tradition, it is now more of a "fun" custom rather than a sentimental one.

Add Own Sparkle

Add your own sparkle to candles this year. It's easy and fun too. Just soften the outside of the candles where you want to attach "glitter" . . . . then stick on odd buttons, old tree ornaments, sequins, or tinsel objects you can buy where ornaments or wrapping paper are sold.

Enhance Christmas Packages With Extra-Personal Touch

This Christmas, take a little extra time with your gift wrapping to come up with charming, unusual designs that will add greatly to the pleasure of all concerned.

There are so many ways to use wrapping paper, tape and ribbon that you're sure to run out of gifts—before you run out of ideas.

Here are some suggestions for achieving that personally gift wrapped look.

* * *

The children on your list will be delighted to find Santa Claus's smiling face on their presents. For this jolly portrait, cut out Santa's features from heavy paper in appropriate colors and paste them onto a rectangular box. If you prefer, you can use self-adhesive paper. It comes in all colors and can be cut to resemble any form you like and attached to the top of your paper. Popular motifs for such cut-outs are little angels or animals. If you're not talented in the drawing department, simply trace your cut-outs from magazine or books.

Everyone knows that wrapping a bottle is just about one of the most difficult cover-up chores at Christmastime.

A clever way to handle this problem is by turning your gift into a clown with bright, gummed-back paper. Draw the clown's face on the neck of the bottle and tie it with a big bow. Make paper into a cone shape for the clown's hat, finishing it off with ball fringe. The fringe can also serve as his nose and for the buttons on his "suit."

* * *

In every group of presents, there's always at least one item of such an irregular shape that it's impossible to wrap it neatly. For these problem gifts, try making a paper sack from bright red paper, using a plain grocery bag as your pattern. Apply a design cut out from left-over gift wrapping paper for colorful decoration.

A clever way to put left-over scraps of wrapping paper to good use is by cutting out words or designs and pasting them on shiny black wrapping paper. The result makes a striking package that is particularly appropriate for masculine gifts.

These are just afew ideas to get you started on your personalized gift wrapping—you'll find that as you go along, other ideas will occur to you for making your gifts unusually colorful and interesting.

Wrap Packages For Mailing With Care

Sending gifts through the mail this Christmas? Here are some suggestions for making sure your package arrives safely at its destination.

First of all, be sure to protect the items you are sending by wrapping them in heavy corrugated cardboard or in a strong cardboard box. Pack the contents of the package tightly; the post office can refuse to accept any package if its contents shift around.

When mailing Christmas cards, be sure to use the correct postage. A Christmas card deserves first class postage, in a sealed envelope with a four-cent stamp. Be sure to put your return address on the envelope, in case the person concerned has moved, or in case you have addressed the card incorrectly.

* * *

Protect any fancy wrappings, bow and frills with corrugated cardboard or a swash of tissue paper.

Use strong, plain wrapping paper that is new, tying large or heavy packages with enough twine to encircle the package both ways at least twice. Be sure to use strong twine.

Packages going to foreign countries must be sealed. Domestic mail packages may be sealed, provided they carry the label, "May be opened for postal inspection."

Use two printed mailing labels—one on each side of the package. Print the name and complete address of the person your package is going to, plus your own name and address.

Print carefully and clearly so that those busy people in the post office can read it easily . . . and send it speedily on its way to that friend or loved one.

In Sweden and Norway both, birds are given special remembrance. A choice sheaf of grain is placed on a pole or on fence posts . . . . bits of suet are hung on the trees—for a gala Christmas treat for the birds.

America gave the world its most beloved Christmas plant—the poinsettia. The plant is a native of tropical America.

First Community Tree In City Of Cleveland

The Community Christmas tree idea was born in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1912. The community raised funds to defray the cost of the tree and celebrations through the sale of preferred stock in "Cleveland, the city of good will (unlimited), incorporated under the laws of the commonwealth of good cheer." This was specified by holly-bordered certificates.

Holders of preferred stock were entitle to "dividends payable daily in the form of happy voices of robust children, the contented faces of friendly fellow citizens and the advancement of the city of good will."

Sale of stock was pushed everywhere, the most unique place being the Cleveland stock exchange where the stock was listed at the head of other securities. The sale brought in $12,000, which purchased Christmas cheer for 13,000 citizens, as well as the first community Christmas for the city.

Pajamas For Him

Classic coat and pullover styles in pajamas top either long or short pants in the Christmas line-up of comfortable, handsome pajamas for the man in your life.

A new range of exciting fabrics help a guy keep comfortable in any weather. And, there's a terrific selection in easy-care, light-weight fabrics in all sorts of distinctve patterns and colors.

Here's Tale How Santa Took Shape

Santa Claus has become such an important part of our merry-making at Christmastime, that one can hardly imagine the holiday season without that jolly old fellow, his sleigh and reindeer.

Yet a little over a century ago, Santa Claus as we know him today, did not exist! To be sure, children all over the country eagerly awaited visits from St. Nicholas at Christmastime . . . but they had no idea as to what he looked like. It remained for a university professor to establish Santa's identity as we now know it.

On Christmas Eve, in 1822, Dr. Clement Clarke Moore, a professor at Columbia University, wrote a poem for his children. It was called "A Visit from St. Nicholas" and began, " 'Twas the night before Christmas . . ."

* * *

Dr. Moore wrote it solely for his children's enjoyment and had no plans to publish it. But fortunately for other children, and adults as well, his poem was heard by the daughter of the rector of St. Paul's Church in Troy, New York. She asked to be allowed to read it to the children of her father's parish; she also sent a copy of the poem to the Troy, N. Y. Sentinel, where it was published for the first time on Dec. 23, 1823. It appeared there annually thereafter and in 1830 was accompanied by a wood engraving . . . the first picture of Santa Claus.

Since that time, people all over the world have come to know and love that kindly gentleman with the flowing white beard, twinkling eyes, and cherry red nose.

Cuff Links Rate

An exciting, greater-than-ever collection of cuff links is waiting to bring an extra touch of elegance to the discriminating man's wardrobe.

Then, of course, there are tie clasps to match. A visit to a men's store will show you a never-ending variety of jewelry for the man on your list. Look for matching belt buckles, key chains, too.

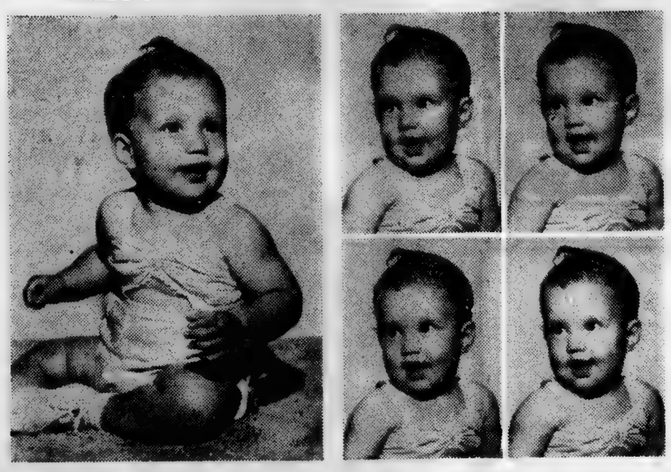
PIN-UPS LIL' DARLIN' PIN-UPS

BIG CHRISTMAS SPECIAL

LIMITED ENGAGEMENT
TODAY THROUGH SAT.

GET A BEAUTIFUL 5 x 7 PICTURE OF YOUR BABY FOR ONLY 48¢

AGES 3 WKS. THRU 6 YRS.



Your choice from beautifully finished 5" x 7" pictures (not proofs). 1—48¢. Extra 5 x 7's if you like. 1st—$1.50. Each extra $1.25 if bought in the store, but you will not be urged to buy.

EXTRA SPECIAL!! Finished wallet size less than 50¢ each in a group of 4. Same pose.

One or two children in each family will be photographed singly for only 48¢ each. Groups $1.00 per person. Extra child—5x7, $1.50.

LIL' DARLIN' PIN-UPS REG. U. S. PATENT OFF. "FAMOUS PHOTOGRAPHERS"

BRING YOUR FRIENDS

HERE'S ALL YOU DO:

JUST BRING YOUR CHILDREN TO OUR STORE ON DATES SHOWN
OUR EXPERT PHOTOGRAPHER WILL TAKE SEVERAL CUTE POSES
YOU'LL GET TO SEE YOUR LOVELY PICTURES IN JUST A FEW DAYS

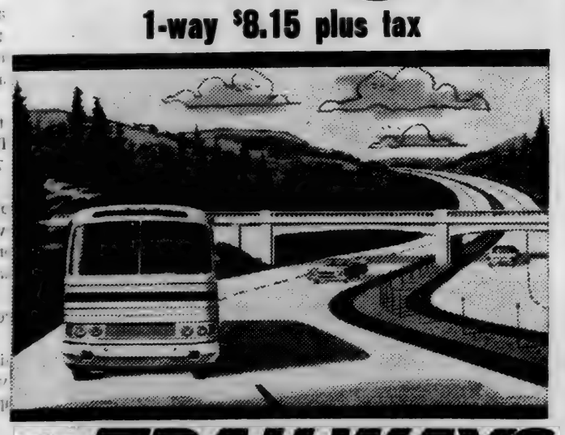
Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.

LIL' DARLIN' PIN-UPS LIL' DARLIN'

Thru Express Service

Washington

1-way $8.15 plus tax



take TRAILWAYS.

easiest travel on earth

New expressways shorten your travel time. Conveniently spaced, on-time arrivals in the heart of town. Rest rooms, vista-view windows, reclining contour seats.

From Chapel Hill to:	1-way	From Chapel Hill to:	1-way
NEW YORK	$15.50	RALEIGH	$ .95
Thru Express-reserved seats		8 Convenient trips daily
NORFOLK	5.65	MEMPHIS	20.75
Thru Express service	(Plus tax)	Thru (no change) via Asheville	(Plus tax)

Union Bus Terminal

For information please call

311 W. Franklin St. Phone 942-3356

Check The Books You'll Need For Christmas . . .

☐ Art Books

The Intimate has art books ranging in price from 39c to paperbacks to LEONARDO DA VINCI at $29.50, in subject from the RENAISSANCE to PICASSO'S PICASSOS

☐ Bargain Books

Our Bargain corner is full of books that will make people think you're a profligate—at tiny little price that will delight you.

☐ Children's Books

No other shop in the South has so many Children's Books as the Intimate. Prices? Surprisingly low.

☐ Cook Books

We have more cook books than you can shake a fork at. They are twice blessed. They blesseth him that cooketh, and him that eateth—and some are priced as low as $1.00!

☐ Engagement Calendars

Our display of engagement calendars runs the gamut from PEANUTS to VIRGINIA HOUSES. If you have dates, prepare to list them here.

☐ Fiction

The Intimate is loaded with fiction, from best sellers like FRANNY AND ZOOEY or LION ON THE HEARTH to new writers waiting for you to discover them.

☐ History Books

The Civil War, the Revolution, the founding of the West, and even the history that is taking place around us—they are all reflected on the copious shelves of The Intimate.

☐ Humor Books

There's no gift like the gift of laughter. We have the chuckles, from Uncle Shelby's A B Z Book right on out.

☐ Music Books

From Symphonies to Folk Songs, the books at the Intimate strike the right note for your Christmas giving.

☐ North Carolina Books

From the rarest to the most recent, you'll find all the books written in or about North Carolina waiting for you at the Intimate.

☐ Nature Books

Garden books, Bird books, books by Peterson and Chapel Hill's own John Terres. The Intimate is plumb nature-happy!

☐ Poetry

Serious poetry by people like Eliot, and cummings, plus lush poetry for that biddy that races your motor.

☐ Rare Old Books

While we specialize in books on the South, the most surprising treasures show up in the old libraries we buy. If you have a collector on your Christmas list, the Intimate probably has a book he'll want.

☐ Religious Books

Bibles, Prayer Books, handsome illustrated books—and we'll gift-wrap them at no extra charge.

☐ Reference Books

All three top-notch dictionaries, plus a selection of scholar's friends that will knock your eye out.

☐ Travel Books

If you have a friend who is planning a trip, the capacious old Intimate has just the right Christmas present at a human price.

You'll find them all at that preposterous Browsery

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 E. Franklin St.—Open Till 10 P.M.

Match Up Bag-Belt For Gift Harmony

A sure-to-please gift for any woman is a matched leather handbag and belt combination. It's practical too, because every woman can use another bag and belt, and the matching design, leather texture and color shows that the giver put some thought into it.

Here are some tips from Leather Industries of America on "what's in the bag" for fashion this Christmas:

Popular shapes include satchel bags, totes and pouches — some spread a bit at the bottom to make a bag self-standing.

Tailored, rather than fluffly feminine, these leather bags are ideal accessories to tweed and gabardine suits and skirts, and dressy or dressy-casual leather coats and jackets.

Smart daytime bags come in beautiful soft suede, smooth or grained leather, and a large number of hard-constructed bags. Many are wafer thin and neat in appearance yet expand at the bottom and sides to hold all essentials.

* * *

Decorative details include fake belts and buckles appliqued horizontally or vertically on the front, heavy antiqued brass doorknocker tabs in place of snap closings, and a wide variety of fancy gold, silver and brass ornamental closings.

The right leather belt to go with tailored bags will be marked by simplicity of design, with decorations of geometrical patterns embossed or appliqued on the leather . . . square or oblong buckles of brass or leather . . . neat heraldic emblems and other motifs in antiqued gold or silver.

Charm and cheer her with flame red, tangerine, brilliant and indigo blues and woodland greens. These are seen in both bags and belts in smooth and matted American calf, soft fine-napped suede—or, for a breezy outdoor look—smooth or grained cowhide.

For gala nights, "little" clutch bags are "bigger" this season. There's more room for key case, cigarette-lighter set, change purse and other mysteries that women carry even to elegant soirees.

If you want to make an impression, select a matching purse and belt in gleaming uster leather or suede to dress up basic black cocktail sheaths.

Perfume Gifts Are Welcome

A gift of perfume or cologne is a gift that bespeaks your thoughtfulness and consideration of a woman's femininity!

This year's fragrance collections are chock-ful of wonderful excitement! There are gay and lovely containers . . . beautifully fashioned boxes in novelty designs . . . assorted perfume and cologne duos, trios with perfume, cologne and dusting powder or sachet. Yes, from all the famous toiletry houses and perfumeries in the world, come a bright assortment of dainty and sultry fragrances (and tweedy, really masculine scents for the guys!)

* * *

Gifts of flowers, plants and decorative greens are always expressive of the Christmas spirit and no matter what other gifts may be given and received, a floral gift adds a warm and most personal extra touch.

Christmas would not be Christmas without the traditional wreath, fir, holly, evergreen, cedar leaves, ivy and mistletoe in and around the home.

Holiday Cards Now In Many Languages

Foreign-language greeting cards, once available only on a limited basis, now are available for a number of foreign countries.

For example, if you wish, you can send holiday greeting cards in respective languages to such countries as Norway, France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Lithuania, Sweden, Hungary Poland and Czechoslovakia.

The cards are available in many colorful designs ranging from religious motifs to the traditional symbols of Christmas such as holly leaves and candles, Church scenes, angels, bells and Christmas decorations—all familiar scenes on American cards—are prominently featured on these foreign counterparts.

Whether the message on the card says "Smagui Kaledu," "En God Jul," or "Buon Natale," it is a universal wish, "Merry Christmas to You."

Pretty Pendants Will Thrill Eve Of Christmas Day

The pendant drop necklace highlights this season's jewelry fashions and makes one of the most popular Christmas gifts.

There are enormous pear-shaped pearl drops, dramatic jeweled drops or fine gold-tassel drops on the new necklaces.

Give a finished, well-planned look to her costume with a pair of matching drop earrings. The longer, more visible drop earring is right for the ear-covering hair styles and helps to balance the fuller bouffant cuts.

Looking for a very feminine, gay and sentimental Christmas gift? The Fashion Coordination Institute suggests the new, rigid bangle bracelet that carries a single big charm.

The newest bracelet fashion fills in the shortened sleeves on suits and dresses, and is the latest version of the traditional charm bracelet. There's an almost invisible clasp to make the charms detachable and interchangeable in an endless assortment.

Candle Legend

If you burn a bayberry candle during the Christmas holidays, and the candle burns bright and clear, legend says that you will have good luck throughout the year and a long and happy life.

CHRISTMAS IS IN THE BAG for any woman with gifts such as these! From Leather Industries of America comes this line-up of handsome handbag fashions—lower left: a three-tiered black suede handbag for evening wear; upper left: cream-colored leather satchel bag for daytime wear; upper right: soft-sided leather pouch bag to wear with suits, and lower left: a suede shoulder bag with flap closing and adjustable straps.

Bonanza In Gold Rush Of Jewelry

This Christmas, thousands of women will thank Santa for fabulous fashion finds in beautiful gold jewelry.

Never before has fine gold jewelry displayed such beauty, fashion importance and wide variety as in this year's showings at fine jewelers, everywhere.

Precious gold has new finishes, shapes and ornamentation. It is braided, linked and shaped in beautiful designs. It is often dusted with precious jewels—a most dazzling array of pins, necklaces, earrings and bracelets.

Whether in 14-or18 karat, or simply and elegantly gold-filled, the glow of gold jewelry "goes with everything" and every gift budget.

In combination with pearls or beads, whether necklace, bracelet, pin or earrings, gold jewelry takes on added drama and even broader fashion importance.

* * *

Pins set in colorful stones and designed in dimensional shapes are placed to dramatize a fashion point . . . on cape-like lapels, waistlines, far out on the shoulder or . . . in the hair.

Massed bracelets in gold, pearl and colorful combinations fill in for shortened sleeves. Earrings are equally dramatic in long glittering drops, showers of gold and pearl or crystal and stone. Hoop earrings look gay and glamorous in gold and stone-set styles.

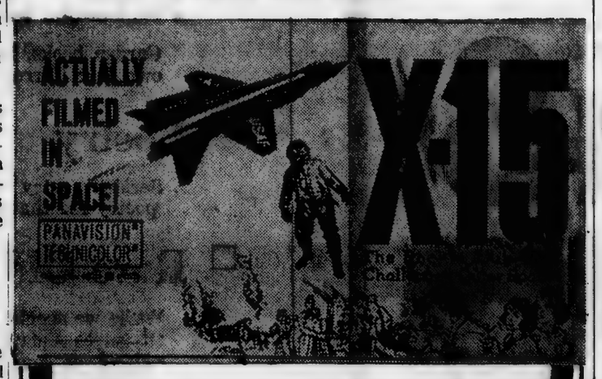
Necklaces are unusual combinations of bold beads strung in longer lengths with a dropping tassel, or jeweled collars and fine gold chain collars, worn without any fear of over dressing.

The season is right for exciting new jewelry fashions that give every woman a chance to give in to her enjoyment of color, drama and fun.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST

— NOW SHOWING —



Luggage Must Suit Personality

If you plan to give luggage this Christmas, remember that your choice should not only suit the recipient's needs but also his or her personality.

Luggage should be as personal as the clothes the carrier wears, remind Leather Industries of America counselors.

There are countless styles and types of leather bags on the market today simplifying gift selections.

The man or woman who travels by air frequently, often on one and two day trips—will appreciate a compact leather bag that can be carried on to the plane and then tucked underneath the seat.

These come in airline weight, scuff-resistant leathers, with a minimum of metal framework, in styles for men or women.

These bags feature soft-leather sides to reduce weight and to look more luxurious.

Perennially popular suntan shades, silver grey and browns are being shown as well as a wide variety of pastel tones color-cued for the ladies.

For veteran travelers who own luggage items in good condition look for special size.

MAKE OWN CARDS

If you'd like your Christmas cards to have a more personal touch this year, why not try making your own! It's easy and lots of fun, besides.

One material that has proved very popular for personally-made cards is rough-textured ceiling wallpaper. Block prints or bright yarn embroidery will make beautiful designs. Or paste a holiday snapshot of your family or family pet to your card, for a truly personal greeting.

PEARLS FOR THE GIRLS—especially lovely when enhanced by a bold jeweled clasp worn to one side and matched with smart earrings. Pearls are always an important jewelry fashion note for well-groomed women.

Christmas And Gloves Seem Hand In Hand

For some reason or other gifts of gloves and Christmas seem to go hand in hand. This year, there's no problem at all in making your selections—thanks to the fit-them-all virtues of new stretch gloves.

You'll find smart styles in string or yarn and leather combinations that are ideal for driving and winter sports, smart leather or suede stretch styles with fur cuffs and lining or soft, supple leathers with knit linings.

For wear with everything this side of formal wear, there are lovely stretchies in crochet-look styles.

For day time as well as date time, there are a host of shorty, 4, 6 and 8-button lengths in everything from stretch knits to stretch satins.

Cleverly-Packaged Beauty Aids Smart

Don't forget those gifts of beauty for your Christmas belles. Everything from single lipsticks to complete cosmetic sets come gaily packaged and ready to meet her requirements for only the prettiest and most practical this Yule season.

Lipsticks are hidden in gala Christmas bells or ride on diminutive sleighs accompanied by a bottle of nail polish in a matching shade.

Cosmetic kits take form within distinctive colored leather kits or as part of elegant overnight cases that also can accommodate a nighties, robe and slippers.

Manicure sets, with or without shining efficient cutlery, are packaged in regal leather kits or gay plaid containers. While dusting powder pairs with cologne and even delicately scented soap joins the Yuletide spirit in packages adorned with happy symbols of the season.

Important are the scents — colognes and perfumes—that win a favored place beneath every girl's Christmas tree. A brief description of the lady, her likes and dislikes is sufficient for any willing sales person to take over from there and insure a most successful gift.

* * *

Unusual Gift Wrap

Here's a different way to wrap your Christmas gifts this year! Instead of covering each package with one sheet of paper, try wrapping the lid and bottom of each box separately.

It's easy to do—just secure the paper to the inside of the lid and bottom, on all four sides, with transparent tape.

In this way, your package can be opened without its decorative paper being torn, and afterwards the empty box can be kept under the Christmas tree for the remainder of the holiday season.

Cards Feature Nativity

Still the most popular theme for modern Christmas cards is the Nativity scene Hundreds of interpretations have appeared, many of which are reproductions of the old masters.

Today As Always the best place to Buy & Sell your Textbooks

The Book Exchange

Five Points DURHAM

"The South's Largest Bookstore"

KEMP'S Loose Diamond System

BUY YOUR DIAMOND THE WAY WE DO!

Pick Your LOOSE DIAMOND And Let Us Mount It In Mounting Of Your Choice.

T. L. KEMP Jewelry

135 E. Franklin St. Ph. 942-1331

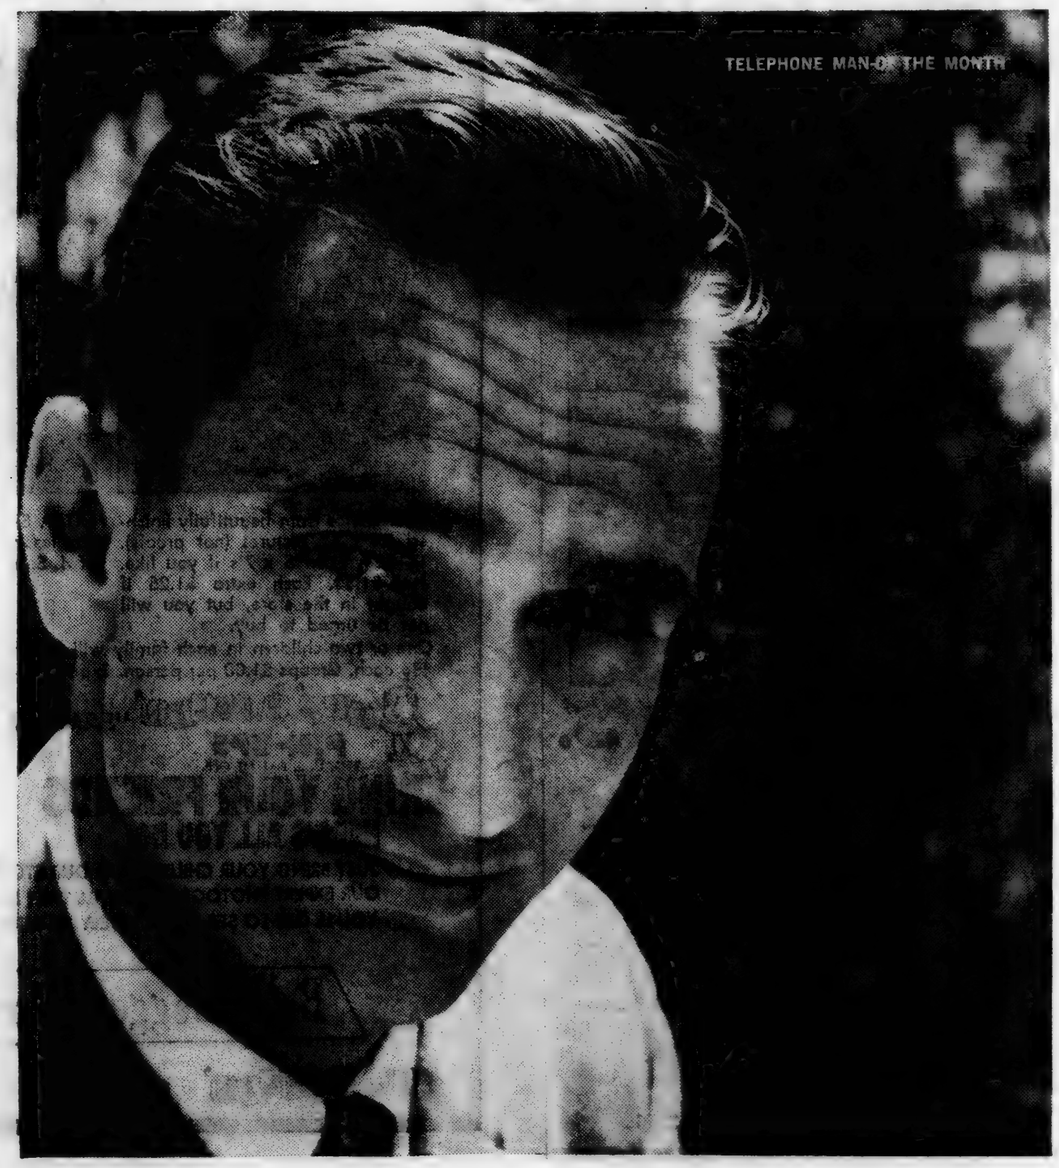
J. B. Robbins OF CHAPEL HILL

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: DON DRENNAN

Just one year ago Don Drennan graduated from college with a business degree. Today, as a Telephone Company traffic man, he is responsible for introducing new telephone methods and advanced communications services to San Francisco's civic and business leaders.

Don Drennan of Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company, and the other young men like him in Bell Telephone Companies throughout the country, help bring the finest communications service in the world to the homes and businesses of a growing America.

BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES



Don't Spend Money on Expensive Cards Until You've Seen the FIVE CENTS CARDS at the Intimate

Pre-Christmas Sale

Dresses
sizes 5 to 18—Values to $24.98, $7 to $12

Wool Skirts
straight and pleated, sizes 5 to 20 — Values to $14.98, as low as $5.99

Sweaters, Slipovers and Cardigans sizes 34 to 40—Values to $12.98, as low as $3.99

Dacron-Cotton Skirts straight and pleated, zsies 5 to 18—Values to $10.98, as low as $5.99

Car Coats
Values to $22.98, as low as $7.99

Special Group of Crew-Neck Cardigans
Red, Black, Beige, and White, sizes 34-40

Also for those Christmas gifts, we suggest that you see our collection of slips, pajamas, gowns, cumberbunds, blouses, skirts, sweaters, dresses, blazers, raccoon collars, and all-weather coats (Dacron/cotton wash and wear, and reversibles.)

Sharyn Lynn Shoppe

135 East Franklin

Leather Wraps For The Belles

A woman's favorite "Christmas wrapping" this year may very well be a colorful, comfortable leather jacket or coat.

Lined in wool shearling, pile or colorful silk, the new suede, cabretta and soft cowhide leather fashions are as many-hued — inside and out—as the gifts underneath the Christmas tree.

Sleek cabretta or kid leathers show up in form-fitting dressmaker jackets, leather and tweed walking suits, and in full length coats—classically tailored, or with jewels and fur trim for evening.

For the cold-weather casual and sports wear, career girl and homemaker alike will go for shearling suede jackets in waist or hip lengths. These are shown with a warm stand-up collar, and deep pockets, often with matching slacks.

For a more grown-up look, the teen age girl will love her over-the-hip coat in smooth leather or suede.

There are also part middy styles with deep convertible necklines.

Whether sweet sixteen or a sophisticated woman, whether for casual wear or sports, daytime or date — button-soft kids, cabrettas, smooth leather or yummy suede, she'll love her gift all the better in such colors as carnation red, deep blue, forest green, earth brown, or simply—Arctic white . . . just so—it's leather.

* * *

Bayberry candles, which are said to foretell good luck for the coming year if they burn bright at Christmas, were first made by early settlers in America. They dipped bayberry branches in wax and burned them during the holidays.

This Christmas, you can't go wrong if you gift those very special boys and men on your list with a warm, handsome jacket.

A SHIMMERING SHOWER of crystal pearls and rhinestones—all are merged together in this dramatic necklace—the perfect gift for any woman.

Written Message Makes Greeting More Personal

Christmas cards are one of the happy expressions of America's Yuletide spirit, as more than 2,000,000 senders demonstrated last year with beautifully decorated cards that many recipients used in their homes' holiday decorations.

However, no matter how decorative the card, it does not fulfill its real meaning of friendship unless it also carries a personal message from you, says Jerlyn' Madison, consumer consultant for the Sheaffer Pen Company.

Such a message should be in your own handwriting, says Miss Madison, and should make recipients feel that you were thinking just of them when you sent the card.

The card's message need not be long, but it should have a feefing of warmth, such as "To remind you that my thoughts are with you this Christmas."

If you are sending many cards, order them early so as to have plenty of time to write your messages, she suggests. Don't try to write them all at once.

Do them leisurely when you have time to think. Make sure that your address book is handy, have a good fountain pen and colored inks—if you like them—to emphasize the Christmas spirit.

If time permits, write a short newsy note on the back of the card; if you have any new snapshots of you or the family enclose one with the card. These are the little extras that give your Christmas greetings and card the meaning it should have.

You Don't Have To Know Size To Choose Gift

Betty, Mary, Sally or Sue . . . . Joan, Jean, Jane or Lou—whatever—no matter what their age or size—there's a wonderland of exciting gifts for each of your leading ladies this Christmas.

Don't let sizes bewilder you. You can always make inquiries from friends and relatives to secure the proper information. Try to find out favorite colors, too. If you can't get the facts, man, choose from a host of gifts where size and color are not important.

GIFTS SHE'LL WEAR

No gal—sixteen or sixty— has too many pairs of hosiery. Here size problem is by-passed by the wonderful new sheer and semi-sheer collections of stretch-to-fit hosiery —in new and flattering shades.

FOR HER BOUDOIR

Every woman loves the elegance of boudoir essentials—such as lovely tissue holders with matching hand mirrors, lotion dispensers and waste baskets.

There are lovely partitioned boxes for dresser top or vanity, to hold jewelry—or sewing essentials—manicure needs and other personal notions.

Or, she may welcome see-through shoe and hat boxes that stack neatly and smartly on closet shelf or floor. These handy storage items come in a variety of sizes and shapes to hold lingerie, sweaters, blouses or jewelry. You'll find them in clear plastics as well as in lovely colors.

SOME FINE NOTIONS

To help organize her wardrobe and give her closet a look of elegance, choose handsomely made garment bags, with matching shoe bags and hat boxes.

"Personal size" boudoir chests and shoe chests—chests for closet shelf or 'neath the bed—are also grand gifts for the apartment dweller or the woman who gives up her space for the youngsters in the family.

Some of the many other gifts where personal size is not paramount are jewel boxes and jewelry to put in them; compacts and powder cases; jeweler-designed lipstick holders; perfume bottles in fine crystal, or measured-spray atomizers . . . . to name but a few.

Still stumped? Then, how about an elegant pair of gloves in smart stretch fabrics—or, a gaily-colored scarf in square or oblong shape—or, an exotic muu-muu that's all the better if it's a little bigger—?

If the lady in your life is a sportswoman— then a piece of equipment or accessory for her favorite sport. There are many exciting addenda for the skier . . . from novelty headband or cap to a pair of the latest snow goggles. And, so on down the line for the golfer, fisherwoman, tennis enthusiast, bowler, etcetera, etcetera.

TIPS FOR TRAVELERS

For gals who travel—whether on business or pleasure—the gift list is endless: from a new fitted train case to handy packages of cold-water soaps, complexion care packets, dainty clothespins and lines and inflatable hangers.

And so the list grows and grows . . . . it takes a bit of thinking and pre-planning to choose "fitting and proper" gifts for the gals you know —but it always helps where size is concerned—that the gift is "properly fitting" without a care or worry as to how tall or how thin or plump she may be.

INTO HER CHRISTMAS STOCKING put this bright-hued stocking cap with its gay pom-pom trim. She'll love the warm comfort and smart looks of this cozy Verel pile cuddle cap for all winter activities.

Holiday Yule Log Long-Time Rite

The old custom of burning the Yule log is a charming Christmas tradition that has largely passed from contemporary life, although it is still observed in many places. Even though it is always thought of in connection with Christmas celebrations of years gone by, it actually dates far back into pagan times.

During what was then called the Mid-Winter Fire Festival, the log, generally one from an oak tree, would be ceremoniously lighted from a fragment saved from the year before.

Pearls For Girls Are Precious

Pearls have always been a very special gift not only for their simple, elegant beauty but because a pearl necklace is always in good taste.

This season the traditional pearl necklaces assume high fashion importanee because of their new designs and the important place pearl hold in the current fashion picture.

There are new multi-strand necklaces that feature a beautiful clasp in all the "true jewel" tones of jade, sapphire, emerald, ruby or topaz. The clasps, lovely enough to be pins in themselves, are worn to the side and matched to earrings to provide one of the most pleasant gifts of the season.

Seed pearl necklaces have become increasingly popular strung in multiple strands to twist and drape to the mood of fashion's eased bodices and dropped waistlines.

For the smartest look of all, a single strand of pearls combines with two strands of jade or lapis. The jade or lapis adds a lovely note of contrast to the pearls and provides dramatic color accent to fashions.

The Puritan Government banned the celebration of Christmas in England in 1643 in an attempt to do away with all forms of frivolity.

here now . . . just in time for Christmas

NEW KODAK CAMERA OUTFITS

Matchless gifts for just about everyone on your Christmas list

BROWNIE Super 27 OUTFIT

Ultra-modern flash camera in a complete outfit

Everything you need to take snapshots, indoors or out! "New look" Brownie Super 27 Camera has sure-grip shape for blur-free pictures. Open the flash compartment, and the "auto-shift" shutter is automatically set for flash—close it, and you're ready for outdoor shots. Built-in flash . . . fast f/8 lens . . . takes color and black-and-white snaps, plus color slides.

POLAROID CAMERA

SALE

Model J-66 Camera

Only $79.92

J-66 Camera Kit including 12 flashbulbs, 2 rolls of film and deluxe fitted case

Only $92.62

See Our Selection of Automatic 35mm Cameras

FOISTER' CAMERA STORE

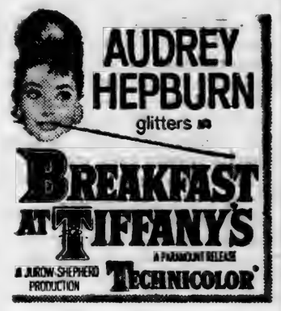
"Everything Photographic"

Use Our Lay-Away or Credit Terms

161 E. Franklin St. Phone 3176

Carolina

NOW PLAYING



christmas shopping???

contemporary jewelry handwrought

the only—but only place for the individualistic, the imaginative, the incomparable—

charles hopkins of Chapel Hill

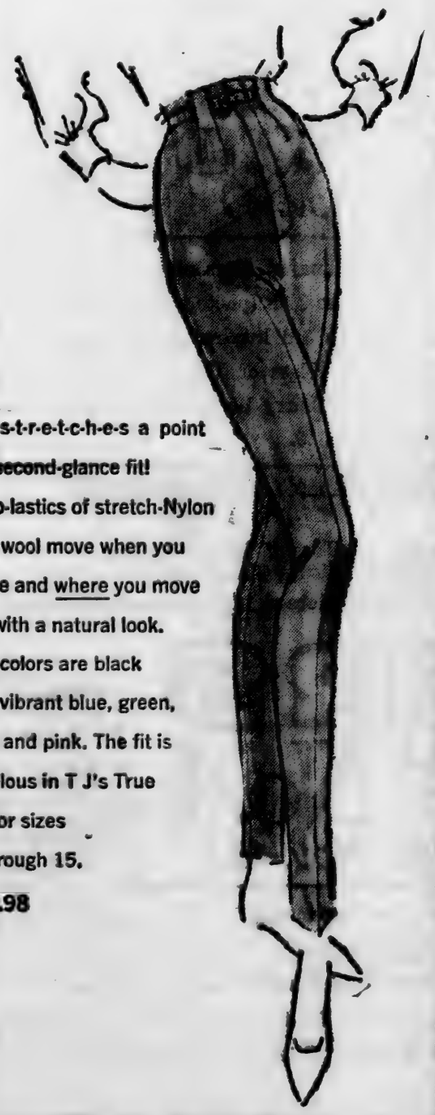
designer/craftsman (over sutton's)

An Age of Kings

Don't miss this outstanding series of historical plays by William Shakespeare. It's a National Educational Television highlight—brought to you by HUMBLE OIL & REFINING COMPANY America's Leading Energy Company. Esso

FRIDAYS at 9:00 PM-CHANNEL 4

Scoo-lastics — by THERMO JAC



T J s-t-r-e-t-c-h-e-s a point for second-glance fit! Scoo-lastics of stretch-Nylon and wool move when you move and where you move . . . with a natural look. The colors are black and vibrant blue, green, gold and pink. The fit is fabulous in T J's True Junior sizes 5 through 15.

$13.98

De Ann's

109 Main Street — Durham

Available Parking Facilities

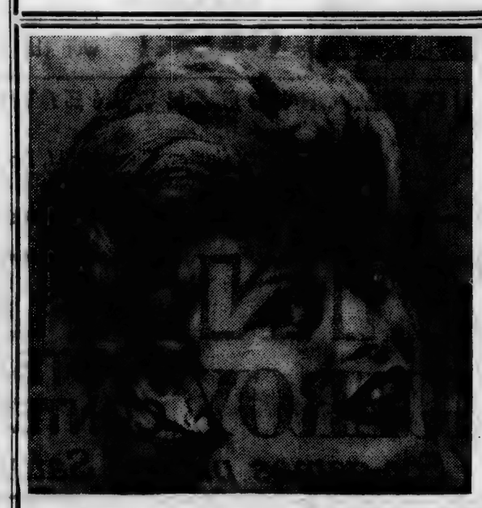
SEE IT NOW! Graham Memorial Travel Adventure Series

FACE of the SOVIET

In Color—A feature-Length Film Report that takes you 5000 Miles Through the U.S.S.R.

Narrated In Person by RAY DINSMORE Renowned World Traveler

Adm. $1.00 MEMORIAL HALL Tuesday, Dec. 5, 8:00 P.M. Season Ticket $2.00 3 Trips Abroad



Look Your Loveliest This Christmas

Be confident and look your loveliest during the holidays with a flattering new hair style that is exactly for you.

Aesthetic Stylists to Serve You

Mr. Joseph of Naples, Italy
Mr. David of Greensboro
Miss Loretta of Edenton
Miss Jean of Bollingreen, Kentucky
Miss Carolyn of Asheboro
Miss Joyce C. of Chapel Hill
Miss Sarah of Chapel Hill
Miss Joyce W. of McKinly
Miss Ester, assistant to stylist, of Apex
Miss Kay of Rowlesburg, West Virginia

Co-owners and Stylists
Alice Stone and Evelyn Hinnant

Aesthetic Hair Styling Salon

189 East Franklin For Appointment Dial 942-4355

The Winter Gril . . .

adores nothing better than the loveable, strokeable, keep-me-toastsy-warm carcoat ever.

with such a selection— she may even shiver with indecision . . .

Many shades of Co-Ordinated Skirt and Sweater Sets . . . PLUS Crew-Neck, Cardigans, Domestic and Imported.

The FIRESIDE

Rings Are Always Right For Gifts

Rings are the oldest forms of jewelry. For many centuries rings were used to denote the station and rank of the wearer. This year, you can show your favorite guy just how he rates with you—just give him a ring this Christmas.

Rings have returned to fashion favor, reports the Jewelry Industry Council, and points out that there's a wide, wide variety from which to choose.

Your choice may be an insignia ring of his favorite business, fraternal or scholastic organization; a signet ring or ring bearing his initials in open letters or engraving; a birthstone, carved hematie, onyx, tar sapphire or ruby—or a diamond—all in rugged stylized settings.

Whichever you choose, your gift of a ring will surely be worn with pride this Christmas and in the many years to come.

As in every Christmas custom, there is a story behind the tradition of hanging stockings over the fireplace for Santa. The legend is that one night, Santa dropped some gold coins down a chimney and the coins fell into a stocking that had been left by the fireside to dry.

Ever since then, little children have been hanging up their stockings so that Santa can fill them with all sorts of delightful goodies. However, in certain parts of Europe wooden shoes instead of stockings are put out to be filled.

Men Are Flattered By Jewelry Gifts

Jewelry accessories for men make very special gifts, the Jewelry Industry Council reminds Christmas shoppers. Many men hesitate to buy for themselves those tie clips, cuff links, chains and watches that add so much to their appearance.

As vests return to fashion, the pocket watch with all its handsome trappings of pocket chains and knives suggests the ideal fashion gift.

The stylish Continental trend, calling attention to the new ties and shirts, is beautifully accessorized with gold tie clips or tie tacks in unusual designs, often sporting real or facsimile stones and matched to elegant stone-set cuff links.

* * *

The handsome traditional look of natural-shoulder fashions suggests some special jewelry accessories in the same fashion mood.

Neat, tny gold tie tacks or tacks set with a single cultured pearl are traditional companions to knit and foulard ties.

Fine slim jeweled-lever watches, often paired to alligator or other leather bands, are also favorites.

Every man treasures handsome pocket accessories: gold pens and pencils, lighters, cigarette or cigar cases, fine wallets, pen knives, extra watch bands are all "ideal" gifts for him.

The custom of giving gifts at Christmas is traced to the Roman feast of Saturn which was celebrated during the 17th, 18th, and 19th of December.

Outerwear 'Really In' For Giving

Outerwear for a man's Christmas 1961 takes on a rugged, practical and thoroughly masculine look, according to the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear. The new coats and jackets are sure to be gift-hits with the men on your list.

Ski jackets are made for action—in shorter lengths, and in real-shearling and shearling-like man-made fabrics in the longer versions.

High among the short jackets are quilted nylons, some in colors as reserved as navy blue or black, others as bright as the nautical signal flags from which they derive both their color and pattern.

Sueded fabrics, both woven and knitted—many backed-up with pile fabrics—look warm, are warm, and are a hot fashion to boot.

* * *

Laminated fabrics with woven or knitted surfaces bonded to polyurethane foam are a sensational development. The laminates are light in weight, as warm as the warmest, and available in a tremendous scope of models, lengths and colors. Water-resistant as well as warm, the laminates offer protection plus.

Many of the quilted jackets are reversible, too. For example, some reverse from slick nylon to Scandanavian sweater knits, others from a light to dark shade, still others from one fabric to another.

Many jackets come in double-breasted styles—the lapover offering added warmth. There's also a revival of an old favorite—the toggel-fastened duffle coat.

Brand-new and high style in outerwear is the denim "pea coat"; lined with either real or simulated shearling. Fine shearling, and genuine suede, lined with shearling, are also popular.

GIFTS FOR YOUR SPECIAL GUY in jewelry and accessories. For example, he'll go for a fine gold combination pen and pencil; a good lighter is always welcome as is a combination key chain and knife; an attractive gold-filled mesh watch band if his watch is good; or give him a new automatic-wind watch. Other ideas are two-tone gold tie bar and cuff links set, travel alarm, a fine ring or a religious medal with pin back.

It's Women Who Buy Pipes For Their Males

There's a spirit of peace and contentment in pipe smoking. And at Christmas, the new pipe is usually one of the first gifts a man uses, once he's opened his packages.

According to the Pipe and Tobacco Council, tastes and buying habits of the nation's 18,000,000 pipe smokers are undergoing small changes.

Now, men seem to prefer a set of two pipes, enabling a change of pipes after each smoke. Many new two pipe sets are now available: each pipe different in shape and style.

There are some changes in tobacco tastes also. Often the woman of the house prefers the male to smoke an aromatic blend. Young smokers also prefer aromatic smoking tobaccos. Dad or granddad may enjoy the heavier blends.

* * *

Ideal gifts for the young pipe smoker or new pipe smoker, are combination packages of smoking tobacco. New smokers like to experiment. The blending kits or combination packages of smoking tobacco thus enable them to mix or blend to suit their taste for adventure.

According to the Council the 18,000,000 pipe smokers in the United States own an average of three pipes each, many of which are purchased by women at Christmas. Pipe smokers always welcome another pipe for their collections.

The Council offers this advice for Christmas pipe shoppers:

—Buy name brands or combination packages of pipes and smoking tobacco from a reliable tobacconist, drug chain, supermarket, or department store tobacco department.

When purchasing a pipe, consider the man's taste in clothing and his interests. If he is a sportsman — purchase a sand-blasted bowl. If he reads a lot, buy him a calabash, which is comfortable for the reader and student. For a taller, thin-faced individual, buy a Canadian shape. A stout pipe smoker would use a pear or apple shaped pipe. Let the clerk show you the proper shape and style to fit your pipe smoker.

Once you purchase a pipe, there are many other gifts you can choose from for other special occasions. These include humidors, pipe racks, reamers and pipe knives, as well as new tobacco blends and many other accessories which are useful and most welcomed by the pipe smoker.

Leather Suits Most Men

To many a woman with a long male gift list, Christmas is coming fast, but the ideas aren't. All the guys seem to have all the ties, socks, sweaters and mufflers they need.

Here, however, is a run down of personal leather articles, desk and pen accessories and other small leather goods that most men like. They're easy to shop for, since there's no size involved, and they have a traditional masculine appeal of leather.

In the cash-carrying category, most men can use a new billfold or wallet. Handsome new variations on the slim breast-pocket wallet or the compact billfold are available in pigskin, grained or smooth cowhide, alligator and lizard. They are often lined with brightly colored patterned silks.

For his credit cards and other identification cards, select a separate card case with transparent acetate "windows." Idea match it in the same leather as his wallet, and complete the set with a slim leather key case, complete with pocket for driver's license and registration.

* * *

For home or office desk, a complete matched leather accessories set is a gift that will add warmth and an important look to his work area.

Practical, prestige-giving accessories include a large blotter-holder, cigarette box, cigar and calendar stand, tobacco humidor and pipe rack, lighter and ash tray, pen and calendar stand, pencil mug, date book or waste basket. A leather cigarette box with a compartment to hold a transistor radio is new. The radio can be taken out and carried in a leather over-the-shoulder case.

All these come in rich smooth leathers in deep antiqued green, maroon, red, indigo, brown, tan or black.

For the lady executive on your list, the same articles come in white and a wide range of feminine pastel colors.

Both fantasy and realism are significant trends in the stuffed animal section of Toyland. Youngsters may fondle replicas of their favored pedigreed pooches or felines, or cuddle up to fantastic animals inspired by cartoon characters or sheer imagination on the part of designers.

Kris Kringle is not a German term for Santa Claus. The name is a modification of "Kristkind", who according to German legend, is a whiterobed angel—a messenger of the Infant Jesus, bringing gifts to children.

A churchman, John Pierpont, composed the gay Christmas song "Jingle Bells," which has been popular for over a century.

For the traveling salesman or other motorist, a car rest covered in smooth or ostrich-grained leather is handier and handsomer than a glove compartment. It rests on the seat and acts as an arm rest and seat divider. The top opens up on a roomy compartment that holds most small driving necessities.

* * *

For play and pastimes—the number of leather gifts ideas reflect the increasing amount of leisure tme in today's life.

For the young music-lover: an LP record case, bound in hard-wearing luggage leather, holds up to 50 records in their jackets . . . the chess devotee will treasure any of a dozen different leather cases—resembling attache cases—with beautifully carved ivory or wood chessmen resting in individual felt compartments . . . . For card-players: a gold embossed leather case holds two decks, a scoring pad and gold pencil.

For the recreation room, a gift everyone can enjoy is a console game case in luggage leather that includes chess, checkers, roulette, backgammon, cards, chips and other game requirements.

For the thirsty—there are leather-bound ice buckets, flasks, coasters and portable luggage-constructed leather beverage cases, complete with unbreakable glasses.

STEVENS-SHEPHERD

HOLIDAY HOUSE

A Store Full of Fabulous Gift Suggestions for Her, for Him — for Everyone:

Gifts for Her!

6-ft. U.N.C. Wool Mufflers	$5.95
Hip-Stitch Worsted Skirts	11.95
Jayson Classic Oxford Blouses	4.00
Alan Paine Shetland Cardigans	11.95
Adler Wool Athletic Socks	1.00

Gifts for Him!

"V"-Neck Lambswool Sweater	13.95
Imported Velour Tyrolean Hats	10.95
Black Umbrellas–Imp. Handles	5.00 up
Button-Down Oxford Dress Shirts	5.00
English Leather Cosmetics for Men	1.00 up
Prince Gardner Billfolds and Key Cases	2.95 and up
3-Piece, Antique Harness Leather Belts	3.95

Gifts for Everyone!

Kiwi Shoe Shine Kits	3.95
Convertible Travel Bar Set	23.95
Comical Party Napkins & Signs	1.00
Suede & Plaid Bottle Guards	6.00
"Hot-Rod" Immersion Heaters	2.50
Plastic, Thermo-Insulated Ice Buckets	6.95
Map Measure & Compass Guide	2.50

. . . These and hundreds of other different & distinctive gifts

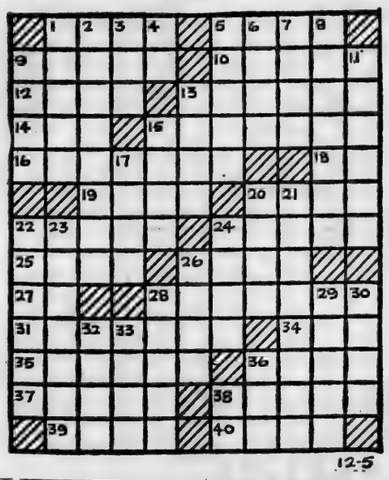
STEVENS~SHEPHERD

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Hebrew lyre
5. Annul
9. —— and Omega
10. Mistake
12. Froth
13. Desert mage
14. Girl's name
15. European country (poss.)
16. Rose
18. Sloth
19. Train fare (lt.)
20. Seven in a week
22. Treaty of ——
24. Pie case
25. Secretary of State
26. Extinct wild ox
27. Part of "to be"
28. Clustered
31. Arousing pity
34. Chinese river
35. Roman magistrates
36. Stagnant pool covering
37. Firm
38. Pays attention
39. American caricaturist (poss.)
40. Scottish-Gaelic

DOWN
1. By oneself
2. Sparkling bits
3. Unit of electrical resistance
4. Sun god
5. Trimming for hats
6. Odd (Scot.)
7. Persia
8. Sultry part of summer
9. At a distance
11. Oppose
13. Dust speck
15. Saucy
17. Skating area
20. Musical instrument
21. Patronage
22. "—— of Wrath"
23. Case for cigars
24. The shank
25. Eskimo knives
28. Girl students (colloq.)
29. To escape
30. Loses lustre
32. Fired clay
33. Lamb's pen-name
36. Indian weight
38. Fifth letter (Heb.)

Yesterday's Answer



12-5

POGO

PEANUTS

SALE

SPORT COATS

AT

The HUB of Chapel Hill

All of our Fall Sport Coats are reduced for this special pre-Christmas Sale.

FREE – SIX-PACK WITH EVERY SPORT COAT SOLD

Go home happy with a six-pack of your favorite beverage and a beautiful new Sport Coat from the Hub. All the newest shades and patterns including olive and brown heather tones, blues, and greys, plaids, stripes and checks.

Corduroy Blazers, now $18.77
100% Fine Imported Wools ..... $24.88 to $26.88

SALE—SPORT COATS—SIX PACKS

AT

THE HUB of Chapel Hill

103 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-1252

WINNERS

VICEROY FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 3

(For games played Saturday, Nov. 4)

1st Prize $100.00 CASH!

Ron Petree, Education major, Class of '63, and a member of the Mens Glee Club (photo at left, walked away with Viceroy's 3rd hundred bucks prize money! Stanley Rosen, Class of '63, took second prize money ($50), and Larry Ward, Class of '62, won the third prize of $25.

5 PRIZES OF $10 EACH WON BY THESE STUDENTS ON CAMPUS!

Charles Wesley Carter, Class of '64, Bo Dunlap, Jr., Class of '64, Jim Pipken, Class of '64, Tom Rodgers, Class of '62, and Wayne Vickery, Class of '65.

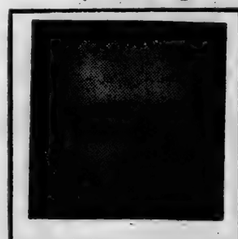
Plus —A carton of Viceroys to all students who got all the winners right, regardless of scores!

WINNERS

VICEROY FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 4

(For games played Saturday, Nov. 18)



1st Prize $100.00 CASH!

David Dennis, working toward his MBA (Masters in Business Administration), (photo at left), walk-away with Viceroy's one hundred bucks prize money! Stan Rosen, Class of '63, took second prize money ($50), and Jeff Cartier, Class of '64, won third prize of $25.

5 PRIZES OF $10 EACH WON BY THESE STUDENTS ON CAMPUS!

Carl Cole, Class of '62, Richard Wade Cosby, Class of '64, John Everson, Class of '63, Ron Petree, Class of '63, and Frank Sanders, Class of '64.

Plus —A carton of Viceroys to all students who got all the winners right, regardless of scores!

Adams Talks On 'Ripleys' Here At 7:30

Raymond Adams, professor of English, will address the meeting of the Philological Club tonight at 7:30 in the Faculty Lounge of the Morehead Planetarium.

Professor Adams' address is entitled "The Ripleys Move to Brook Farm: Some Unpublished Letters of Sophia Ripley."

The Ripleys were a Boston family which founded the cooperative community named Brook Farm. The community lasted from 1841-1847, and one of the nation's well-known literary figures who lived there was Nathaniel Hawthorne.

XMAS XPRESS

RIDES

MERIDEN, Conn. — Via NEW YORK CITY, four riders, leaving Monday, December 18, call Peter Ford, 968-2441, 6-7 p.m., will divide expenses.

NEW YORK CITY—Two riders, leaving 8 p.m., Wednesday, December 20, call Louise or Glenn Colby, 942-4717, after 5:30.

ATLANTA — Leaving December 16, call J. M. Womack, 325 Teague, 968-9157.

RIDERS

ARLINGTON, VA., WASHINGTON, D. C. or hereabouts — December 16, John Quintus, 105 Winston, 968-9125.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. or 100-mile radius—Jimmy Burke, 304 Connor Hall, 968-9154.

NEW YORK—December 13 or 14, Michael Albright, 410 Winston, 968-9154.

PITTSBURGH — December 16, Charles Doty, Mangum, 968-9110.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—December 16, Thurman Smith, 320 Joyner, 968-9185.

Carrier Current

Tuesday

6:00—Dinner Hour
6:55—Campus News
7:00—Dutch Light Music
7:15—Perspective 61
7:30—World of the Mind
8:00—Artist in Performance
10:00—Ten O'clock Report
10:10—Consolidated University News
10:15—Labor Answers Your Questions
10:40—Quiet Hours
10:00—News
11:00—Campus News
11:05—Quiet Hours
11:55—Preview
12:00—Sign-off

A Wide Assortment of Christmas Gifts

Leather goods
Jiggers
Jewelry
Chinaware

WHITEHALL GIFT & ANTIQUE SHOP

— CLASSIFIED ADS —

COLLEGE PROFESSOR WILL make a hurried trip to California for Christmas holidays. Seeks male riders to share driving & minimal expense. Be back Jan. 3. Call High Point 883-8287 or write Box 77D William & Mary Apts. High Point, N. C.

JUST ONE LOOK AT LIFE INsurance is not enough. Let a Northwestern Mutual agent show you the difference in costs & contracts. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. Telephone 942-6966.

FOR SALE: 1954 OLDS SUPER 88. 2 dr. Hardtop. All power. Radio and heater. Must sell fast $225. Call Howard Schweitzer or James Druker at 968-9025.

It's Christmas Time at

PACE—Glen Lennox

Fine Prints
Decorations
Cards
Gifts

PACE
Glen Lennox

Washington Picks Ernie Davis In Draft; LA Rams Choose Gabriel

By ED SAINSBURY
(United Press International)

CHICAGO—The Washington Redskins Monday picked Syracuse halfback Ernie Davis as the top draft choice of the National Football League. The choice may touch off a bidding war with Buffalo of the American Football League.

Buffalo chose Davis, winner of the Heisman Trophy, awarded annually to the outstanding college football player of the nation, in the AFL draft Saturday.

But George Preston Marshall, owner of the Redskins, had talked to the Syracuse star earlier and elected to try to make him the first Negro ever to play on his team.

The Davis draft might ease pressure on Marshall from Stewart Udall, secretary of the interior, to "integrate" the Redskins, Udall has challenged Marshall's right to use Washington's new Municipal Stadium if he does not play Negroes.

The stadium is under control of the Interior Department.

Seeks High Bid

Davis, who set Syracuse records in rushing, scoring and touchdowns this season, has intimated he would listen to the highest bidder for their services. Most Canadian football teams also were seeking Davis.

It was likely Davis could pick up a contract for two or three years with a no-cut clause calling for a six-figure paycheck.

The NFL draft bogged down in the second round after owners breezed through a fast first round.

Second choice in the picks was North Carolina State's quarterback, Roman Gabriel, chosen by the Los Angeles Rams. The Rams obtained the pick, originally scheduled for Minnesota, in a trade with New York, who got it from the Vikings in a trade.

The Rams also had third choice and picked tackle Merlin Olson of Utah State. Then Cleveland, obtaining the Dallas choice through a trade, selected end Gary Collins of Maryland and Pittsburgh picked fullback Bob Ferguson of Ohio State.

Other first round picks were St. Louis, tackle Fate Echols of Northwestern; Chicago, halfback Ronnie Bull of Baylor; San Francisco, halfback Lance Alworth of Arkansas; Baltimore, halfback Wendell Harris of Louisiana State; Detroit, halfback John Hadl, of Kansas; Cleveland, halfback Leroy Jackson of Western Illinois University; St. Louis, taking Philadelphia's first pick, acquired Irvin Goode, a Kentucky center; New York, Jerry Hillebrand of Colorado; Green Bay took fullback Earl Gros of Louisiana State.

The order of draft was determined by the won-loss percentage of the teams after Sunday's games. Three ties occurred—between Minnesota and Los Angeles, St. Louis and Pittsburgh, and New York and Philadelphia.

GIFT IDEAS

Transistor
Radios
Electric
Shavers
Electric
Clocks
Electric
Blankets
Wall
Clocks
GE Travel
Irons
Clock and Table
Radios
Portable and Regular Mixers
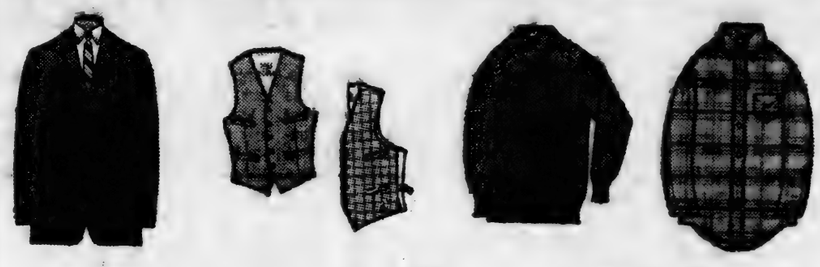
Study
Lamps
Hair
Dryers

ELECTRIC CONSTRUCTION CO.
165 East Franklin



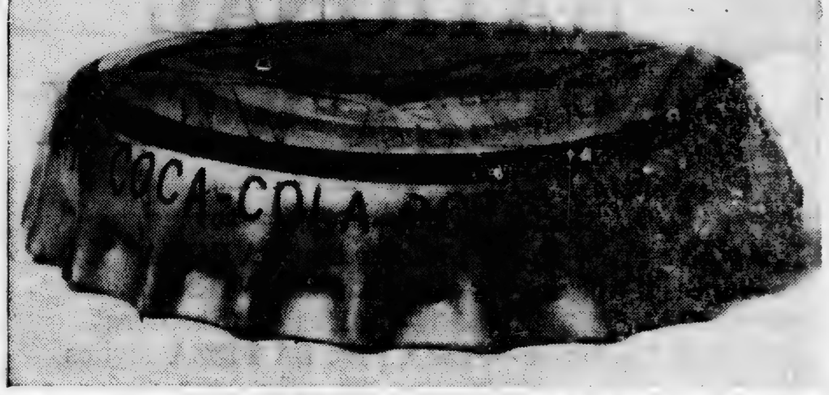
A toast to taste...Choose not in haste

The proprietor of this Christmas emporium has been lavish with his time and efforts to select the gifts shown upon this page. They give the man a slice of the good life!

TOWN & CAMPUS

COPYRIGHT © 1961, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY. COCA-COLA AND COKE ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS

$6 \cdot 10^7 \cdot 365\frac{1}{4}$*



* 60 million times a day people get that refreshing new feeling with ice-cold Coca-Cola!

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by Durham Coca-Cola Bottling Company

Come on in for that...

Merry Christmas Spirit!

CARDS

One of the finest selections of Christmas Greeting Cards in North Carolina now on display at Ledbetter-Pickard.

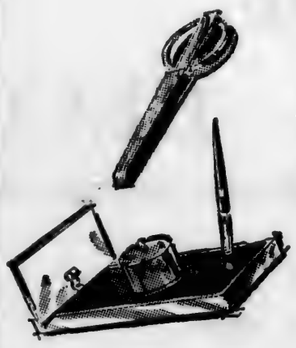
We have cards that are large and small; religious, traditional or humorous, boxed or individually packaged, mixed or all one kind and they come in many different prices. You are welcome to take your time, browse and make your selections.

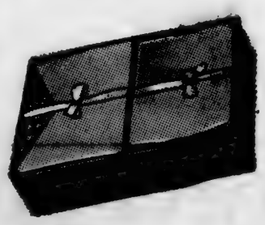
GIFTWRAP

Lovely Gift Wrapping Supplies . . .

of ribbons, paper, tape, stickers, bows, cards, in a Christmas rainbow of colors. We'll be happy to advise you in wrapping packages for mailing, so stop in and shop with us soon.

GIFTS

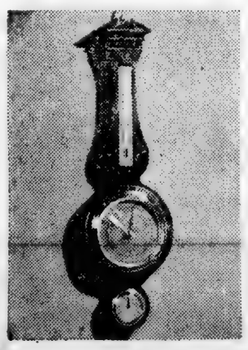




What wonderful gifts we have in store for you . . . come browse around and shop at your leisure.

Scrapbooks—
Pepper Mills—
Vases—
Brass Plaques—
Book Ends—
Congress Cards—
Brass Candlestick Holders—
Barometers—
Desk Pens—
Stationery—
Letter Baskets—
Desk Lamps—

And this is just the beginning . . .



And Don't Forget—

PARTY SUPPLIES

Everything You'll Need For Holiday Parties

Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

OPEN 'TIL 8:30 P.M. Monday through Friday

Shop Sutton's For A SLEIGH-FULL OF VALUES

OPEN 'TIL 9:00 P.M. Monday through Friday

NOW 'TIL CHRISTMAS

Come one—come all! Sutton's is completely stocked with gifts and accessories. There's gay Christmas Giftwrap, Christmas Cards, boxed and singles (priced to please), Cosmetic Gifts by Elizabeth Arden, Chanel, Dorothy Gray, Lanvin, Yardley, Old Spice and many others.

Find a complete stock of Electric Razors, Billfolds, Smoking accessories — pipes, lighters, fine cigars. And on to Shoe Shine Kits, Travel Kits, Hair Brushes. Sutton's abounds too, in Christmas Decorations for the home and tree.

Have a gala time!

CHRISTMAS

SUTTON'S

Drug Store

159 E. Franklin Street Phone 942-5161

Milton's Shirt Fiasco

Give-a-way on 862 dress shirts—sizes 13½/32 to 17/36—button-downs and English tabs — formerly priced to $7.95, at Fiasco Price of 1 for $2.49 or 3 for $7.00.

Give-a-way on 142 sport shirts, pullover button-down model — solids, foulard prints, miniature plaids, paisley's, sizes 13½/32 to 17/36, formerly to $9.95, at unbelievable 1 for $2.99 or 3 for $8.50.

The Price Is Right; The Time Is Right

All Sales Cash And Final No Exchanges Or Refunds

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

Tar Heels In Cage Contest At Clemson

Have Won 22 In Row Over Tigs; Clemson Has 4 Sophs In Lineup

Coach Dean Smith's North Carolina basketballers will be out to preserve their slim hold on first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference tonight as they travel to Clemson to play the once-victorious Tigers.

The Tar Heels registered the only victory of the new cage season here Saturday night by crushing Virginia, 80-46, in an unexpected display of power.

The Tigers, coached by Press Maravic, also got off to a good start by beating VMI in their opener.

Smith is expected to go with the same lineup that dazzled a capacity crowd in Woollen Gym—a crowd that had not expected such a powerful showing. That lineup would include Jim Hudock, who scored 22 (not 20, as the early, unofficial report stated) points in the opener, and Bryan McSweeney, who broke in in a big way with 18 points, 16 of which came in the first half.

Also getting the nod for Carolina will be guards Don Walsh and Larry Brown, who scored 16 and 12 respectively, and forward Dieter Krause, who had eight. The first line reserves for the Tar Heels are Peppy Callahan, Art Katz, and Mike Cooke.

The Tigers, who have lost 22 straight games to the Tar Heels in the past nine years, are expected to go with four sophomores in their starting lineup. Their only veteran starter is 6-7 senior forward Tom Mahaffey.

Included among the sophs is Donnie Mahaffey, a center, who is Tom's brother. Donnie carried out the family tradition and grew to 6-8.

Other Clemson starters are 6-2 Jim Brennan, 6-2 Nick Milasnovich, 6-3 Mike Bohonak, and 6-5 Gary Burnisky.

Last year, the Tar Heels won twice over the Tigers. In the first game, at Chapel Hill, they had an easy time, winning by 77-46. In the second contest, at Charlotte.

JAZZ TONIGHT

YE OLDE TAVERNE

LES SUTORIUS

and

JIM CRISP

INTER-NATIONAL PIZZA WEEK

Tuesday - Friday

(Closed on Wednesday)

It is with a great deal of pleasure that LA PIZZA announces the beginning of the Annual INTER-NATIONAL PIZZA WEEK—In Honor of the Great American institution—PIZZA PIE. LA PIZZA invites you to join them in celebrating this gala event—To commemorate this occasion, these SPECIAL PRICES are offered!

	Small	Large
Plain	.75	1.25
Ground Beef	1.00	1.65
Pepperoni	1.00	1.65
Sausage	1.00	1.65
Mushroom	1.00	1.65
Green Pepper	1.00	1.65
Anchovy	1.00	1.65
Olive	1.00	1.65
Onion	1.00	1.65
Added ingredients	.10	.20

Delicious Salad, Ravioli, Spaghetti, Garlic Bread, Best of Sandwiches, Beverages to your liking, special prices for Carry-Out and Delivery too!

967-1451 L A PIZZA 967-1451

Open from 5 p.m. - 1 a.m.

Christmas Fun for the Whole Family

Whether you shop for the whole family or an individual, The Sport Shop has the fun gift sure to please. Choose from the many games, records, phonographs, radios, and other sporting articles.

the Sport Shop, inc. "It Pays to Play" CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

151 E. Franklin Street Phone 942-4464

Lady Milton Pre-Xmas Fiasco

Limited time only—fabulous savings on the best looking "giftables" found

Violent and expressive prints by the Nowegian artist, Edvand Munch, are on view now at the Ackland Art Center. The exhibition (which lasts until the end of anywhere!

Give-a-way on 524 Lady Milton Shirts, mostly sizes 10-16. long sleeve pullover button-downs, non-pullover button-downs, some choir boys — dark toned solids; paisleys; small geometric prints; conversational prints regularly to $10.95, buy now at one for $2.99 or 3 for $8.50.

Group imported shetland pullover sweaters formerly to $14.95, have fun at $5.99

Beige heather full fashioned imported cardigan classic shetlands slashed from $14.95 to $8.99

178 wool skirts, mostly straight model, regularly to $25.00, have fun at $8.99.

Entire remaining stock of wool skirts in straight, box pleat and kilt models cut from $14.95 to $10.99; $16.95 to $12.99; $18.95 to $14.99; $19.95 to $15.99; $21.95 to $17.99; $22.95 to $18.99; $24.95 to $19.99; $26.95 to $29.95 now $21.99

Group shirtdresses formerly to $15.00 now $6.99; formerly to $20.00 now $10.99; formerly to $29.95 slashed to $14.99.

Remaining stock of shirtdresses reduced from $12.95 to $10.99; $14.85 to $12.99; $16.95 to $13.99; $18.95 to $15.99; $19.95 to $16.99; $21.95 to $17.99; $22.95 to $18.99 and $24.95 to $19.99.

Perfect gift item—Carolina glove and scarf sets cut from $6.95 to $4.99.

EXTRA SPECIAL—Braemar cashmere and Braemar lambswool sweaters reduced in time for Christmas — $14.95 lambswool now $10.99; $26.95 long-sleeve cashmere classic pullovers cut from $26.95 to $19.99; long sleeve classic cashmere cardigans cut from $29.95 to $22.99.

Women's Bass Weejun loafers in black pointed toe; brown or black round toe, reduced from $11.95 to $8.99.

All Sales Cash and Final

LADY MILTON SHOP

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Wake Hosts State

WINSTON-SALEM — Wake Forest, away to a successful basketball start with a 96-62 win over Davidson Saturday night, launches its ACC schedule here tonight in Memorial Coliseum against the N.C. State Wolfpack.

The league battle will be the first of two big games for the highly-ranked Deacons in the first week of the campaign. Saturday night Coach Bones McKinney's crew plays host to top-ranked Ohio State in one of the major games of the early season.

"We were ragged in spots," McKinney said, "but I guess that's to be expected in the first game. We made a lot of foolish mistakes, but we also looked pretty good at times."

McKinney warned his club that it is in for a real tough scrap Tuesday. The Wolfpack also got off to a successful start by defeating Tennessee, 71-64, at Raleigh Saturday night.

"You can never sell a N.C. State team short," McKinney said. Coach Everett Case ha ssome good boys in John Punger, Russ Marvel, Jon Speaks and several others. They'll be tough."

Final UPI Football Ratings

Alabama 18 (10-0)	318	Minnesota (7-2)	163
Ohio State 15 (8-0-1)	311	Colorado 1 (9-1)	124
Louisiana State (9-1)	239	Arkansas (8-2)	91
Texas (9-1)	237	Michigan State (6-2)	76
Mississippi 1 (9-1)	219	Utah State (9-0-1)	28

Second 10: 11 tie, Purdue and Missouri 11 each; 13, Georgia Tech 16; 14. Duke 11; 15, Kansas 10; 16, Syracuse 8; 17, Wyoming 7; 18, Wisconsin 6; 19, tie, Miach (Fla.) and Penn State 4 each.

CHRISTMAS CLASSICS FOR HER

Her heart will melt quickly as her eye fastens on a fine madras blouse or full fashioned Villager sweater .The Proprietor features a selection beyond the imagination. You will find much to her liking here.

Town & Campus

FIRST TIME ANYWHERE

ALL NEW GENUINE CORDOVAN WEEJUNS by Bass

Good Looking BASS WEEJUNS With all the QUALITIES OF CORDOVAN

- EASIER TO SHINE
- BETTER LOOKING
- LONGER LASTING
- MORE DURABLE

THIS NEW SHOE IS AVAILABLE ONLY AT

Julian's Village Shop

Give Music – Last Chance Before Christmas

A BULLION OF RECORDS

Mono, Stereo, Classic, Popular, Christmas, Chatter

You dash here and yon
madly
Sort of like simps
sadly
But come to Kemp's
madly
And you'll have won
Gladly.

33% DISCOUNT

3000 Archive and Deutche Grammophon LP's

Reg. $6 – Christmas Special $3.90 Stereo $4.90

Chez Kemp Ltd.

BEER MUGS 30% OFF

East Franklin & Eastgate Shopping Center

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

61

Administration Role
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Some cloudiness and warmer.
High in the mid 60's.

Offices in Graham Memorial | WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Servict

Chapel Hill People Continue Battle With Duke Power Co.

By BILL WAUMETT

Citizens of the Morgan Creek and Laurel Hill areas of Chapel Hill are continuing their fight gainst a new Duke Power Co. line that threatens to destroy the scenic beauty of the area.

The group, headed by Dr. Clarence Heer, is using publicity and petitions as their only weapons, against the right of eminent domain possessed by the power company.

Petitions signed by 491 residents of the area have been sent to Gov. Sanford and to the Board of Aldermen and the Planning Board of Chapel Hill. An article by Dr. Heer explaining the issue was printed in the Raleigh News and Observer and has caused wide editorial comment in various state papers.

The issues involved are more important, however, than simply scenic beauty versus power company costs.

The Laurel Hill-Morgan Creek region lies within the Chapel Hill zoning district. The town Planning Board in cooperation with the Research Triangle Planning Staff has studied the matter in order to find the route least damaging to the town.

The boards recommended that the line be run about a mile south of the route proposed by Duke Power. This alternate route would follow an Outer-Loop Highway now planned by the State Highway Dept. The Highway Dept. offered to survey the route for Duke Power but the company refused to alter its original plan.

The legal issue thus boils down to this: "Does a private power company, by virtue of its privilege of eminent domain, have exclusive control over the routing of its transmission lines, or is its right to condemn property for this purpose limited by the zoning ordinances of the municipality through whose zoning district the lines are to pass."

Residential Area

The area through which the proposed line will pass is mainly a residential district that has been planned so as to preserve its beauty. Residents argue that the line would greatly lower property values there.

As the line would also discourage further building near it, there would be greater costs to the town in building streets, sewers and water mains to serve residents who would be forced to build further out in the suburbs.

The residents therefore argue that the advantages of the power line would be offset by the resulting damage to attractiveness of the area which would discourage new residents from building in Chapel Hill.

Statement Issued On Civil Defense

(The following is an official statement from the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Office of Civil Defense. It is printed by the Tar Heel as a public service and does not reflect any editorial opinion by the staff or the editor on the question of fallout shelters.)

In the event of a nuclear attack upon the United States a basic knowledge of the fundamental facts concerning fallout and how to protect yourself from it may prevent you from becoming incapacitated with radiation sickness or perhaps save your life. Below is a list of general information which might serve to help you take intelligent action during an emergency of this kind. Additional copies are available at no cost from Radio Station WCHL or the Chapel Hill Police Department.

General Information

(1) Fallout is radioactive, ash-like material resulting from the detonation of nuclear weapons. You CANNOT feel, hear, taste or smell it. You may not be able to see it. It falls to earth very much like snow but the particles are much smaller.

(2) Radiation from these particles is most intense immediately after the fallout reaches your area. The itensity decreases of its own accord very rapidly. For example, the radiation has de-

(Continued on Page 3)

Infirmary

Students in the infirmary yesterday were Gloria Alphin, Lelia Major, Helen Palmatier, Suzanne Luter, John Fisher, Litchfield Huie, Wayne King, Bonn G. Gilbert, Frederick Symmes, Kennth Freeman, Stephen Lowder, Julian Bradley, Phillip Adams, Phillis Hofheimer, Catherine Johnson, Sam Barfield, Roger Bisson, William Garrard and Robert Deal.

Computer Shows Human Qualities Communicating

A computer machine, via a taped recording, recited a soliloquy from "Hamlet," sang "Daisy, Daisy, Give Me Your Answer True," and played musical compositions at a special demonstration on "Simulation in Studies of Human Communications," here his week.

Dr. Edward E. David of the Bell Telephone Laboratories in Murray Hill, N. J., gave an illustrated lecture on digital simulation, accompanied with tape recordings of human-like performances of a computer.

The tape recording of the computer's speech was complete with the various degrees of intonation, pitch, and duration of sound which are found in human speech. The tune of the singing computer was intact, and the musical compositions which it played were rendered in conformity with the musical score which had been written by practicing or amateur musicians.

Computer Communication

Dr. David, who is currently the director of a group working in areas of visual and acoustics research, discussed the possibilities of the use of computers in areas of communication. He demonstrated, through slides and formulas, how a computer is able to transmit pictures.

The values of the use of computers in areas of communication are: it can readily store information; it transmits with speed and efficiency; it is economically advantageous.

One of the by-products of these studies with the computer is that it is possible for the computer to draw pictures, according to Dr. David.

Dr. David emphasized that the musical compositions played by the computer had not been composed by the computer. He said that they had not been able to have the computer compose its own songs. Computers can play any score which has already been written, and they can play any musical instrument required in the musical score, according to Dr. David.

Dr. David recommended that compueters are a valuable laboratory tool especially for engineers and psychologists.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Stevenson Won't Run

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—Adlai E. Stevenson cast his political lot with President Kennedy's administration Tuesday and rejected Illinois Democrats urgings that he run for the United States Senate.

Stevenson indicated that Kennedy had persuaded him to remain as chairman of the U. S. delegation to the United Nations in preference to the uncertainties of seeking elective office again.

★ ★ ★

UN, Katangese Clash

ELISABETHVILLE—All out fighting exploded Tuesday between United Nations and Katanga troops. Indian, Swedish and Irish soldiers fought Katangese with rifles, bayonets, mortars and machineguns and the U.N. ordered its jet air force into action.

Heavy castualties were reported in a series of battles on the outskirts of Elisabethville for control of the airport and its highway link with Elisabethvile and at U.N. hearquarters where Europeans were accused of masterminding an ambush.

★ ★ ★

Americans Stop Soviets

BERLIN—American military police detained two Soviet vehicles in the U. S. sector of Berlin Tuesday in apparent retaliation for Communist police harassment of U. S. Army sedans in East Berlin. One of the Soviet cars was held for an hour and the second for 15 minutes.

The MP's acted as a 200-man U. S. infantry convoy rolled across Communist territory on the auto-bahn from West Germany. The last elements reached West Berlin Tuesdaay night without interference from East German Communists or the Soviets.

★ ★ ★

Nehru Threatens "War"

NEW DEHI—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru said Tuesday India "will resist and repel" Chinese Communist troops if they carry out Peiping's threat to cross the Machon border line into India.

"I do not rule out war," he said.

Nehru disclosed that Peiping had warned India it would cross the border if Indian military activities continue along the frontier and that Peiping had accused India of seeking to occupy the vast area between the crest of the Himalayas and their southern foot.

★ ★ ★

NAACP Wants Secret Lists

WASHINGTON—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People asked the Supreme Court Tuesday to guarantee the secrecy of the organization's membership rolls in Dade County, Fla.

NAACP attorney Robert L. Carter told the justices they should give the 1,000-member Dade County list the same protection it gave the organization's rolls in Alabama and Arkansas.

Tree Decorating

DECORATING—Linda Albright, a junior, is one of the Carolina students decorating her own Christmas tree. Miss Albright's tree is in her room in Carr. —Photo by Ralph Mangum

Freshman Cabinet Members Selected

Bob Spearman, president of the Freshman Class, announced yesterday that the Freshman Class cabinet had been selected:

SOCIAL: Dolly Isom, ex-officio; Ed Adams and Dick Broder, co-chairmen; Ann Lyons, assistant chairman; Marshall Bellovin, Bill Maynard, Jerry Wearb, Glen Braswell, Jim Ryan, Paul Chusedm. Larry Edwards, David Honeycutt, Ann Moody, Alan Solter, Juan Kanajal, Jerry Whitfield, Robin Gentry and Judy Barb.

NATIONAL AND STATE AFFAIRS: John Dunne, chairman; John Shelburne, assistant chairman; Alan Danderson, Linda Pearce, Dick Gelberman, Bill Aycock and Ginger McDavid.

SCHOLARSHIP: Park McGinty, chairman; Bob Whitley, Bill Graham, Pat Stebbins, Dan Hartman and Frieda Collins.

PUBLICITY: Ellen Solomon, chairman; Becky Harris, Ginny Wills, Bonnie Horner, Nancy Tillman, Pat Brady, Roger Davis, Stuart Ball and Perry McGarty.

FINANCE: Harrison Merril, ex-officio; Al Sneed, cahirman; Jerry Wearb, Harold Levinson, Dianne Faulkner, Michele LaBorwitt and Joe Hahn.

DORM PROBLEMS: Gordon Coley, chairman; Jim Cobb, David Robbins, Jimmy Harris, Bob Sampsite and Vance Barron.

Dental Seminar Draws Many N.C. Dentists To UNC Today

One-half of all dentists of North Carolina will be here today attending the 7th annual postgraduate Dental Seminar offered by the School of Dentistry.

Over 500 dentists are expected to attend the sessions at Carroll Hall and the Carolina Inn. Dr. John C. Brauer of the Dentistry School, will preside.

"How to Gain and Lose Patients" is the subject of the main address to be delivered at 10 a.m. by Dr. Robert K. Stinaff of Akron, Ohio.

"Practice Administration" is the central theme of the seminar.

Dr. Henry T. Clark Jr., Director of the Division of Health Affairs, will make the luncheon address at the Carolina Inn balroom at 12:15 p.m. Dr. H. Royster Chamblee of Raleigh will preside at the lunch.

Dr. Stinaff will lecture again on "Appointment Control" at the afternoon session.

In Dr. Stinaff's presentations, the view of dentistry and the dentists' offices will be pictured—from the point of view of the patient. His talk will "reveal the reasoning of the patient, his likes and dislikes, and the psychological factors which make a successful and unsuccessful practice."

Di-Phi Shelves Move For Disbanding Itself

President Resigns; Evaluation Slated

The Dialectic and Philanthropic Literary Society Monday shelved a proposal to disband in a typically controversial debate and instead passed a resolution which initiated efforts to promote the society's membership.

The resignation of President Joe Ferrell was another highlight of the evening. Ferrell explained that his resignation was due to a heavy academic load. He is presently enrolled in the law school.

The approved bill included a proposal to ask the aid of Dean Charles Henderson of Student Affairs in establishing a student-faculty committee to evaluate the Di-Phi in its present circumstances and advise a program of reconstruction and promotion.

None Favorable

Not a single speaker favored the original proposal to disband per se, however, several did indicate that if the interest in the society does not increase, disbanding would be an inevitable although undesirable alternative.

Sentiments expressed during the debate indicated a desire to preserve the Di-Phi because of: (1) its utility as an organ of campus expression, (2) its potential as a means of stimulating students into active participation in campus affairs, and (3) its 166 years of tradition.

The Di-Phi is now the oldest campus debating society in the United States and is a result of a recent merge of the original two debating societies: The Dialectic Senate and the Philanthropic Literary Society which date back o 1795.

Former President

Among the alumni who belonged o one of the two original societies are: a former U.S. President, several Tar Heel Governors, and many other outstanding politicians.

The incumbent president, Arthur Hayes, said that he did not intend to have the dubious honor of being the last president of the Di-Phi. He also said that as long as students have opinions the Di-Phi would serve as a purposeful forum of expression.

XMAS XPRESS

RIDES

MERIDEN, Conn. — Via NEW YORK CITY, four riders, leaving Monday, December 18, call Peter Ford, 968-2441, 6-7 p.m., will divide expenses.

NEW YORK CITY—Two riders, leaving 8 p.m., Wednesday, December 20, call Louise or Glenn Colby, 942-4717, after 5:30.

ATLANTA — Leaving December 16, call J. M. Womack, 325 Teague, 968-9157.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (and en route)—Leaving December 15 or 16, contact Fran Stallings, 310 Connor or 23 New East Annex.

NEW YORK CITY AND BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Four riders, leaving Friday, December 15, 12-1 p.m., share expenses call Ron Orovan, 03 Ruffin, 968-9182.

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. or NEW YORK CITY—Leaving Dec. 5th. Call Ciaran Mercier, 207 Aycock, 968-9158.

RIDERS

ARLINGTON, VA., WASHINGTON, D. C. or hereabouts — December 16, John Quintus, 105 Winston, 968-9125.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. or 100-mile radius—Jimmy Burke, 304 Connor Hall, 968-9154.

NEW YORK—December 13 or 14, Michael Albright, 410 Winston, 68-9080.

PITTSBURGH — December 16, Charles Doty, Mangum, 968-9110.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—December 16, Thurman Smith, 320 Joyner, 968-9185.

COCOA, FLA.—Roger Rice, 113 Aycock, 168-9216, will share expenses.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX. or general vicinity—Charles H. Lincoln, 01 Avery, 968-9046, can leave December 16. Will share driving and xpenses.

NEW ROCHELLE OR NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Rosalyn Post, December 16, 12 noon, 968-3886.

WESTPORT, CONN. or vicinity—Call Evan Harrar, 327 Avery, 968-9116. Would like to leave Friday, Dec. 15.

Debate Team

Carolina's debate team, coached by Donald Springen, last week ranked among the top schools at the Hall of Fame debate tournament in New York City.

The affirmative team of Jeffrey Lawrence and Mack Armstrong defeated Columbia, Howard and St. Peters and lost to MIT.

The negative team of Haywood Clayton and Bill Imes defeated Fordham and NYU and were defeated by Vermont, Manhattan and St. Josephs.

Poetry Rider To Read Work Here In New Program

George Garret, distinguished young poet and novelist, will give a public reading tonight at 7:30 in the assembly room of the Wilson Memorial Library.

It will be the poet's final reading in a current series. Since November 28 the 32-year-old poet has read at seven Tarheel colleges and universities under the auspices of the newly-formed North Carolina Poetry Circuit sponsored by the UNC Press. Garrett is the first poet to travel the school circuit.

Students have been invited to come and meet him in the Bull's Head Bookshop on the ground floor of the library where he will be from 4-5 o'clock to autograph copies of his books.

Four Books

Garrett is the author of four books of prose and two volumes of poetry. His latest, "Abraham's Knife," was published recently by the UNC Press.

Babette Deutsch, noted critic and poet, has written that "Garrett is one of those poets, rare in our time, who can communicate his own delight in this outrageous world. His interest is not limited to the lovely or the noble. He has met head-on the furies that assail the flesh and those that harry the soul . .. a savage honesty, a finely ironic wit are among his weapons."

PHI BETA KAPPA

The name of Arch Kerper Schoch was inadvertantly omitted from yesterday's article on the Phi Beta Kappa initiates. Schoch, a student from High Point, was also initiated into the honorary scholastic fraternity in yesterday's ceremonies.

STAFF MEMBERS

Any student interested in becoming a staff member of the Daily Tar Heel is invited to come by the DTH office, 2nd floor GM, any afternoon except Sunday.

There are presently openings in all departments, especially news. Students need not be journalism majors or necessarily experienced in newspaper work.

Jumping Students Design Individual Quarterly Covers

By MIKE ROBINSON

"Certainly this issue of the Carolina Quarterly must be a unique venture in the history of magazine publishing," said art professor Robert Barnard in his urbane British accent.

Barnard and 48 girls in his Art 45 class designed linoleum blocks and then hand-printed the 800 Quarterly covers with them. Using different combinations of colors and blocks, they printed abstract designs, each of which is distinctly different.

As one pretty miss was jumping up and down on a block to print a cover, she was asked how many blocks had been carved. "Thirty-six," she gasped. "Oh, come off it," said Barnard with a grin. "There were 48 blocks and 48 girls." The pretty miss tried to smile.

5 Drying Hours

"After learning the technique," said Barnard, "they were confronted with many problems. The covers took five hours to dry, so the classroom, my office and every inch of available space was covered with covers. We couldn't pound the blocks with heavy hammers because we disturbed lecture classes downstairs. We even tried driving my car over the blocks, but that didn't work. Our only recourse was jumping."

Barnard said the heavy paper used did not produce a good dense print, so he made use of the textural quality of the paper. "Some of the covers are very good prints," said Barnard, "and I've enjoyed the project thoroughly."

The Quarterly comes out Saturday.

'REFLECTIONS' To Publish Third Issue— Magazine's Size And Circulation Increased

★ ★ ★

REFLECTIONS' COVER. The cover of the third issue of 'Reflections From Chapel Hill' is shown above. The magazine, which will go on sale this week, is published by University students—both graduate and undergraduate. It is designed to serve as a "vehicle for cultural expression" from the Chapel Hill community. Editor and publisher Bob Brown says the magazine should solve some of its financial problems with the current issue. —Photo by Ralph Mangum

By BILL HOBBS

Issue three of "REFLECTIONS from Chapel Hill" will go on sale here and throughout the country this week.

The magazine, started here last June, has grown to 104 pages in size and 2,100 copies in circulation. The current issue contains articles from several writers of national prominence, including poet Lawrence Ferlinghetti, economist Paul Sweezy and reporter Marvin Caplan.

Editor and publisher Bob Brown, a UNC graduate student in history, said he hoped to "cross the financial barrier" with this issue. The magazine has been operating on a "shoe-string" budget for almost six months.

Voluntary Staff

"If everything goes as planned, we will make a little more than $100 this issue. This way we may be able to pay some of the staff members. Until now, everyone has been working on a purely voluntary basis," said Brown.

According to Brown, the magazine was founded "in an attempt to offer a means of expression to the Chapel Hill cultural community. But it has grown in scope. We now have distributors in colleges and large cities throughout the country. We are trying to act as a voice of liberal thought in the South.

"But the magazine is not just a political forum by any means. We carry poetry, fiction and art work of high quality."

The third issue of the magazine has two large photographic sections. One is a series of photos by the late William Rezek, an artist from California. The other presents photographs of several pieces of sculpture by Robert Howard. Howard is an associate professor of art at the University and has won several state and national awards.

Ferlinghetti Poem

Poetry in the issue includes "One Thousand Fearful Words for Fidel Castro," by Lawrence Ferlinghetti. Ferlinghetti, a UNC graduate, has achieved national prominence through such works as "A Coney Island of the Mind." Brown visited Ferlinghetti in San Francisco this summer and obtained permission to use the poem on Castro's Cuba.

Elizabeth Paris is the author of this issue's only fiction piece, "No Chance." Mrs. Paris' work has appeared in the Georgia Review, he Carolina Quarterly, the Kenyon Review, and other magazines.

Brown said the magazine had increased its price to 65c per copy. He attributed the price increase to the large size of the issue and the use of numerous photographs.

Subscription Drive

He also announced the beginning of a subscription drive for the magazine. From now on the publication will appear monthly; it is being offered for subscriptions at $5 per year.

"We have come a long way," said Brown. "But we still have more to do. I hope the magazine can continue to offer a means of expression for young authors and established authors alike. I hope to make 'quality' the key word of the magazine. Quality can come just as well from previously unpublished writers as from already established authors.

"We now have good distributing points, and I think we will come out of this issue in good financial shape. I want to maintain the magazine's image as a free agent, open to all kinds of current thought from all sources," said Brown.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 6, 1961 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLIX, No. 61

Role Of Administration

The dormitory advisory system at the University is one of the most unfortunate, and most noticeable, "wedges," used by the adminisration to "supervise" student behavior. Dorm advisors, paid by, and under the direction of the administration, have in general adequately fulfilled their purposes, especially to "report" various students actions and reactions.

We feel that this is fairly indicative of the attitude and action of the administration concerning those issues in which the members of the student body and/or the University at large would appear in a less than favorable light. The administration, through the office of student affairs, has made little effort to explain certain actions that it has taken in the past, or actions recommended to student judiciary groups. Only after a mass student protest (one of the few at Carolina) last spring, did the administration attempt to explain action taken against Doug Moe. This fall, following the twin-cyanide death in Cobb dormitory, members of the administration who were working with the case appeared to be reluctant to release official, or unofficial, opinions. We realize that the University must take some precautions to insure the "favorable publicity" of the school to alumni and other institutions; and, we also understand the problems involved in an administrative opinion in a case such as the Cobb deaths. At the same time we feel that an above board approach and an honest admission of the facts available would, in the long run, serve to increase understanding and cooperation with the student body.

A second point is the popular misunderstanding (and we are not able to correct it) of the exact administrative role in such things as the dormitory advisory system. We are not arguing that the administration should or should not have the right to intervene in student activities—we are merely asking for an explanation, a clear reason for its actions in order to PREVENT misunderstanding among the students. It was only too clear last spring that the students protested the action of top University officials who had presented no explanation (whether good or bad is not the question) of their decisions.

Closer harmony and cooperation between the student body and the administration is necessary for fulfilling the proper roles of each—We cannot question an dcriticize or approve and support the actions of our officials until the reasons for their decisons are made unquestionably clear.

—Lloyd Little

Myth Of Race

Despite the mountainous and conclusive scientific evidence against it, the notion still persists among those who like to entertain it that Negroes as a race are congenitally inferior to white people in mental endowment. There was even a silly book published recently purporting to prove the point. So it is useful to have from the American Anthropological Association a new and unequivocal refutation of the notion. Meeting the other day at Philadelphia in national convention, the assembled anthropologists approved the following resolution by a vote of 192-0.

The American Anthropological Association repudiates statements now appearing in the United States that Negroes are biologically and in innate mental ability inferior to whites, and re-affirms the fact that there is no scientifically established evidence to justify the exclusion of any race from the rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States . . . All races possess the abilities needed to participate fully in the democratic way of life, and in modern technological civilization.

Obviously, there are wide differences of native endowment among indivduals in all thnic groups. And just as obviously, environmental factors, especially cultural and educational opportunities, limit and condition the development of individuals and of segregated groups of indivduals. But the only discernible differences by which anthropologists can classify men as to race are physical and are unaffected by these differences. The same elementary point was made in a statement issued July 18, 1950, by a committee of experts on race problems under the auspices of UNESCO:

According to present knowledge there is no proof that the groups of mankind differ in respect of intelligence or temperament. The scientific evidence indicates that the range of mental capacties in all ethnic groups is much the same.

No doubt the myth of racial inferiority will continue to be believed by those who are able to find in it a fortification against their personal insecurity and lack of status. But for the good of mankind in general the myth ought to be recognized for what it is—a pretext for bigotry and discrimination.

—Washington Post

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN REYNERS
Associate Editor

LLOYD LITTLE
Executive News Editor

BILL HOSEA
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

JIM CLOTFELTER
Assistant to the Editor

DAVID VAUGHN ..... News Editor
NANCY BASS, LINDA CRAVOTTA— Feature Editors
HARRY W. LLOYD ..... Sports Editor
DAVID WYRONG ..... Subscription Manager
JIM EISENBERG ..... Circulation Manager
ED DUPREE ..... Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE ..... Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MATHENY ..... Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C. pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

EDITORIALS

Due to the editor's illness, editorials will be written by members of the staff until further notice.

YAF Comes Under Fire In Kansas

Conservatives are discontent wth present world conditions, a discontent shared by others, but for different reasons. The conservative looks at the world and is appalled because he sees changes made or attempted which violate what he considers to be sacred and eternal truths. These "truths" form the basis of the conservative principles currently being advocated by the Young Americans for Freedom.

* * *

CONSERVATIVES USUALLY SEEK a political, economic, and social order based on these principles:

- A central government with limited authority, with primacy given to state and local governments.
- A maximum of individual freedom with an absolute minimum of hindrance from government or social institutions.
- A completely unregulated economy, relying not on government regulations, but on free play of economic forces (supply and demand).
- Individual self-interest and antipathy to any collective whole the subordinates individual prerogative to a common good.

* * *

THESE PRINCIPLES are used by conservatives as a measuring stick to determine how far away the world is from their idealized state of being. Any movement away from conservatism is viewed with mistrust because the conservative equates his philosophy with freedom; therefore, anything anti-conservative is anti-freedom.

YAF believes that economic rights should be placed above human rights, that the federal government's role is to help individuals achieve greater economic power and that Americans are supposed to be concerned only with their own well-being, not with the welfare of people in other countries.

* * *

ONE FACT YAF NEVER ADMITS is its undemocratic structure that lifts the mask from its pretended belief in freedom. Its by-laws give almost total power to the board of directors. Nowhere do the rules or organization make the board accountable to the entire membership. The closest thing to this is the procedure of electing board members (Article 5) which provides for one delegate and two alternates from each chapter to attend YAF's annual meeting in New York when half the board members are elected.

* * *

ONLY THE DELEGATES, not the alternates, cast a vote for board members. This means that a delegate from a chapter of five (the minimum number per chapter) has the same voting power as a delefrom a chapter of 75. This practice, however, is small compared to what happens once the board members are elected.

Section one of Article VI states, "All powers of the corporation shall be exercised by the board of directors who may delegate to officers and to committees of their own number such powers as they may see fit in addition to such powers as are specified in these by-laws."

* * *

SECTION 7 of the same article states that at all meetings of the board of directors, ONE-THIRD of the members shall constitute a quorum. Any action of the board of diretcors at a duly constituted meeting shall be binding on the membership.

What all this means is that a handful of people can run the organization as they see fit without ever being bothered by such a nuisance as having to account to the membership. Seven people, the prescribed one-third quorum of the board, can make any decision that is binding on the entire membership.

* * *

IT MEANS THAT an even smaller number, three (a policy committee quorum), can make decisions, "that are subject to change only by the board of directors." This is hardly likely since the policy commitee is composed of the highest officers in the organization who are members of the board.

Finally, it means the power of the organization can be delegated to a few trusted souls since one member can held an unlimited number of offices. The national chairman appoints members of temporary committees and the two standing committees, advisory and publications. He also appoints all chairmen and his decisions are subject only to the approval of the board.

* * *

IT IS EASY to see how a small clique can run an organization governed by such rules. This is the same organization that proclaims in the "Sharon Statement" (YAF's constitution) what a wonderful document the Constitution of the United States is because it prevents "the concentration and abuse of power" by government.

— University Daily Kansan

"On The Other Hand, If What He Says Is True, Why Is It Printed In Izvestia?"

Against Education For Masses

The good, old American ideal of education for the masses is becoming dangerously confused with the effectiveness of this country's higher education system. The controversy over increased tuitions has taken on an emotional aspect which exaggerates the plight of the poor, and ignores the needs of all.

Most advocates of lower tuitions contend that mass-education and opportunity for all is a great necessity which is being insufficiently considered. They fail to account for the compromises which this necessitates in the academic quality of institutions and their graduates. With present financial subsidies, this is inevitable whenever there is a lowering of entrance requirements or tuition.

* * *

A BROAD COMBINATION of self-help jobs, grants-in-aid, and student loans are available to the financially dependent who are college material, not to mention numerous scholarships open to gifted students of all backgrounds. It is doubtful that the students in this university who are taking advantage of these programs would prefer to pay less and attend a school of lower standards.

The notion that increased numbers should be herded through the channels of higher learning is an even greater perversion of the creditable meaning of an education. Already the prestige of an A.B. degree has been reduced to the level of an admittance slip to upper middle-class society. This is certainly not the time for colleges to start sending out more back-slapping alumni when the need is for legitimate scholars.

Progressive academic quality in most non-private colleges is initiated by tuition increases. The proportional and dilatory raises in state support act only to maintain these improvements. Until federal and state lawmakers pass adequate subsidies for institutions of higher learning, the standards of scholarship must not be commuted for cheaper education.

—Harry DeLung

Reservists Discover Game: Hurry, Wait

Wisconsin's Rep. Alvin O'Konski is obviously a man who believes in taking care of his constituents, even when they are at Fort Lewis, Wash.

O'Konski spent five days with recently called-up reservists and then issued a statement describing the reserve unit as a lost division, equipped with weapons that are obsolete and 50 per cent non-operational."

It should be fairly clear to O'Konski what has happened. The induction of thousands of reservists in face of the Berlin emergency caught the Army with its conventional pants down.

The services operate on a budget. Most of our defense expenditures in recent years have been going into our nuclear deterrent. It has been only since President Kennedy took office that there has been a return to emphasis on conventional warfare.

The problem, in a nutshell, is that the troops were put into the pipeline ahead of needed equipment. And the problem will be compounded if the reservists go out the other end before their equipment arrives.

O'Konski should have been in these parts during the Carolinas Maneuvers of 1940-41 when the first draftees were being trained. They were using wooden guns, make-believe vehicles and, depending upon the field they'd slept in the night before, either turnips or potatoes for hand grenades.

The important thing was that we eventually got these men equipped and their initial training came in right handy in defeating the Germans and Japanese.

President Kennedy has sought to assure the reservists that they are making a valuable contribution to their country by going into uniform during the Berlin crisis.

There may be legitimate argument about their need in view of our nuclear power, but the President made the decision on the advice of the military.

Every effort should be made to supply the troops fully and train them usefully. But they accepted the possibility of induction when they signed on the dotted line.

Now they'll just have to make the best of it.

—Charlotte Observer

Where Does Martin Wilson Stand Now?

To the Editor:

In answer to Mr. Martin L. Wilson's recent diatribe, "Please, Somebody Say Where We Stand," it appears that Mr. Wilson stands somewhere between the Salem witch trials and the "robber barons." When Mr. Kennedy criticized extremists, he was not criticizing those with extremely conservative beliefs, but those who frantically lash out at anybody who doesn't cater to their particular brand of patriotism. Mr. Wilson's statements seem to place him in that latter category. Has it occurred to Mr. Wilson that participation in disarmament talks might have at least a propaganda value? Has it occurred to him that the very existence of a Cuban invasion is indicative of something other than "left-wing radicalism?" Is Mr. Wilson familiar with the president's constitutional authority to enforce our country's laws with federal troops, as in Little Rock? Is Mr. Wilson aware that constructive criticism is of more value to his country than slandering Eisenhower and Kennedy by unfairly stating that he is uncertain as to whether they possess any governmental philosophy? Finally, does Mr. Wilson realize that the best way to preserve a civilization is to work for its betterment within the constitutional framework, rather than to stand off and throw bricks? Such type of irresponsible raving against the government is at least as dangerous as radical solutions on the left, and the boasted patriotism of such unreasonable critics is open to question. Were such a person to be elected president, one can only foresee an intolerance reminiscent of the Inquisition.

—B. Kimball Baker

Good Luck To You, M. Wilson

To the Editor:

Mr. Martin L. Wilson, in a rather pathetic manifestation of intemperate and unfounded criticism, has issued a general appeal for enlightenment concerning the nature of the "moderate" attitude recently defended by both President Kennedy and Mr. Eisenhower. I would suggest, however, that Mr. Wilson tend to three very edificatory tasks before attempting to gain further information on such an important question.

First, Mr. Wilson, you should apply yourself assiduously and learn not to split infinitives—at least not in public. Second, you must acquire an elementary acquaintance with the institutions of government which obtain in the United States. Until this is done, intelligent discussion is precluded. Third, read Pogo and Peanuts more often. They will slow you down so that you may perceive things in more accurate perspective without smothering your enthusiasm. Good luck.

—James C. Thomas

Today And Tomorrow

Here lies Berlin, where the stark wall of shame
Towers in concrete display,
And over the prison, the sun glimmers low,
And shines on the city's decay.

Vopos stand guard, while the workers below
Strengthen the gates of despair,
And bind cup the haven, serene and secure,
Under the reign of the Bear.

But free men will stand where the wall glowers now,
And cheer when the wall crashe down;
And out of the rubble, the Vopos will climb,
And tremble in liberty's frown.

—Wade Wellman

Reflections

Before our economy-minded friend Mr. Goldwater sounds off again on "big government" and its cost, he had better take a look at his home state of Arizona.

For the last full fiscal year Arizona paid $266,366,000 in federal taxes. The state receved $88,526,219 in federal grant-in-aid programs, and $376,796,058 in Federal expenditures of Federal departments and agencies in Arizona. (Figures do not include Post Office Department expenditures in the state, or government contracts to private industry.)

Let he who is without "sin" cast the first stone.

QUOTABLE QUOTE. From Lord Bertrand Russell, eminent British philosopher and a leader in the present pacifist demonstrations in that country: "So long as national states exist and fight each other, only inefficiency can preserve the human race." That appeared in his "History of Western Philosophy" in 1945, long before the recent Russian atomic test series, the first explosion of a really large nuclear device, and the present disarmament talks at Geneva. Every now and then, one gets a little glimpse into the insight of one of the world's great thinkers. Frightening, isn't it?—W. N. H.

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Shelter Measures Listed

(Continued from Page 1)

creased by one-half after one hour; 90% of the radiation is gone after 7 hours and 99% is gone in 2 days.

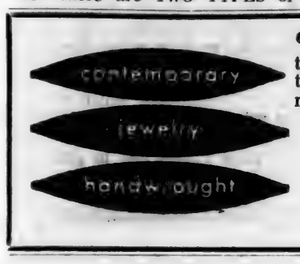
(3) Fallout particles can be distributed over thousands of square miles downwind from an explosion. Under normal weather conditions they travel about 25-30 miles per hour from where the weapon explodes. Unless ordered to evacuate, it is best to seek shelter in the immediate vicinity since you may go from an area of less intense radiation to one of more intense radiation.

(4) There are TWO TYPES of radiation from fallout. One causes severe burns of the deep layers of the skin. These burns don't develop until 3-5 days after exposure. This type can be stopped by ordinary clothing, raincoats, paper, or any building. The second type is very penetrating (similar to X-rays) and destroys cells in the deeper tissues of the body. Only well constructed buildings or below ground areas give protection from this type radiation. Concrete, brick and earth give best protection, while wood, glass pane or thin metal (such as an automobile body) give very little protection. However, remember, any building o matter of what type construction will afford some degree of protection to the X-ray type and bsolute protection against the type which causes skin burns.

(5) Radiation dosages you receive will accumulate over short periods of time. Each time you go utside your building or into less rotected areas such as outside ooms of your building, you increase your chances of becoming exposed to harmful amounts of adiation.

(6) Radiation does not harm oods or liquids that are packaged, bottled or canned. Even foods in containers which have been exposed to fallout particles can be eaten by brushing or washing off the container. Fruits exposed in a similar manner can be aten by washing and then peeling.

(7) If it is necessary to leave your sheltered area for an emergency: (a) wait as long as possible for the radiation decreases with time, (b) Stay out the shortest time possible, (c) cover all exposed skin and hair before leaving, and (d) before re-entering a sheltered area, brush off clothing, shoes and skin so you won't bring in radioactive particles with you. Wash all exposed skin and hair if soap and water are available.



christmas shopping???

the only—but only place for the individualistic, the imaginative, the incomparable—

charles hopkins of Chapel Hill

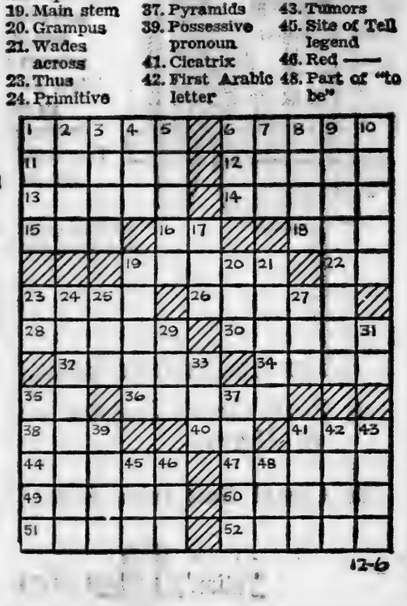
designer/craftsman
(over sutton's)

DAILY CROSSWORD

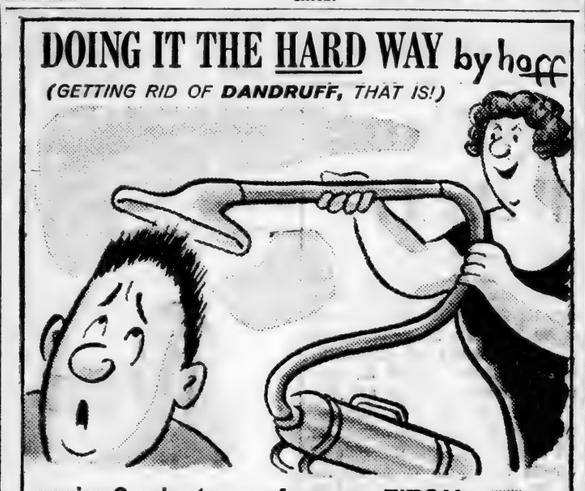
ACROSS
1. Bewails audibly
6. Flies alone
11. Medieval helmet
12. Around
13. Scoff
14. The aforesaid thing
15. Chinese dynasty
16. Pronoun
18. A wing
19. To deceive
22. Digraph
23. Small barracuda
26. Supports
28. Church musical instrument
30. Greek island
32. Eskimo shelter
34. Short race
35. Roman coin
36. Unites
38. Pig pen
40. Behold!
41. Cutting tool
44. Devout
47. Twin crystal
49. Harden
50. Skull content
51. A white compound
52. Esnes

DOWN
1. Crushed malt
2. Trieste measure
3. Egyptian god
4. Born
5. Divest
6. Unhappy
7. Japanese sash
8. Indian pot
9. Outlives
10. Greek porticos
17. Cap
19. Main stem
20. Grampus
21. Wades across
23. Thus
24. Primitive
25. To urge
27. Coal size
29. Negative prefix
31. Exclamation
33. Lubricate
35. Jellied meat
37. Pyramids
39. Possessive pronoun
41. Cicatrix
42. First Arabic letter
43. Tumors
45. Site of Tell legend
46. Red ——
48. Part of "to be"

Yesterday's Answer



12-6



easier 3-minute way for men: FITCH

Men, get rid of embarrassing dandruff easy as 1-2-3 with FITCH! In just 3 minutes (one rubbing, one lathering, one rinsing), every trace of dandruff, grime, gummy old hair tonic goes right down the drain! Your hair looks handsomer, healthier. Your scalp tingles, feels so refreshed. Use FITCH Dandruff Remover SHAMPOO every week for positive dandruff control. Keep your hair and scalp really clean, dandruff-free!

FITCH LEADING MAN'S SHAMPOO

Campus Briefs

All students who have not picked up their Yack proofs should do so immediately.

—

Interviews for the State Student egislature will be given from 3-5 Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in the Roland Parker Lounge III, GM.

—

Anyone desiring pictures taken y Yack photographers should eave his name, address, and a decription of the pictures wanted at he Yack office.

—

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will meet at 265 Phillips Hall, Tuesday, Dec. 12. Professor Eugene R. Long will talk on chedule control of operant beavior in children, and Professor lalbert B. Robinson will talk on oncept formation.

—

A joint UNC-Duke Physics Colloquium will be held at 4:30 p.m. oday in Room 265 in Phillips Hall. The subject will be "The Current Status of the Lamb Shift as a verification of Quantum Electrodynamics."

Tea and cofee will be served in the lounge at 4:00 p.m., Room 277.

—

A mathematics colloquium will be held today in Phillips Hall, Room 383, on "Convergence of Quantifiers, and Martingales" at :00 p.m. There will be a coffee our in Room 277 at 3:30 p.m. preceding the colloquium.

A collection of the graphic art of Edvard Munch is now being shown in the Ackland Art Museum.

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
AUDREY HEPBURN glitters in
BREAKFAST AT TIFFANY'S
A JURON SHEPHERD PRODUCTION
TECHNICOLOR

The New York Life Agent on your campus is a good man to know.

GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
(Over The Hub) Ph. 942-4358

New York Life Insurance Company

— CLASSIFIED ADS —

COLLEGE PROFESSOR WILL make a hurried trip to California for Christmas holidays. Seeks male riders to share driving & minimal expense. Be back Jan. 3. Call High Point 883-8287 or write Box 77D William & Mary Apts. High Point, N. C.

FOR SALE: 1954 OLDS SUPER 88. 2 dr. Hardtop. All power. Radio and heater. Must sell fast $225. Call Howard Schweitzer or James Druker at 968-9025.

ONE ORDINARY FATHER CAN support four children, but it takes four extraordinary children to support one father. Let a Northwestern Mutual agent show you an Insured Savings Plan. Arthur DeBerry, Jr. Telephone 942-6966.

LA PIZZA

Will Be Closed Today In Order To Prepare For The Two Remaining Days–Thursday & Friday–of

INTERNATIONAL PIZZA WEEK

967-1451 LA PIZZA 967-1451

Open from 5 p.m. - 1 a.m.

Coming To Durham from Las Vegas

Sarah Vaughan

AND HER QUINTET

Plus—Stu and Oscar

"LOOK WHO'S TALKING"

WEDNESDAY NIGHT –DEC. 13

8:15 at the North Carolina College Gym

DURHAM

Tickets Are Available At Kemp's

Sharyn Lynn Pre-Christmas SALE

DRESSES as low as $7 to $12
Sizes 5 to 18—Values to $24.98.

WOOL SKIRTS as low as $5.99
Straight and pleated, sizes 5 to 20—Values to $14.98

SWEATERS, SLIPOVERS and CARDIGANS as low as $5.99
Sizes 34 to 40—Values to $12.98

DACRON-COTTON SKIRTS as low as $5.99
Straight and pleated, sizes 5 to 18—Values to $10.98

CAR COATS as low as $7.99
Values to $22.98

CREW-NECK CARDIGAN as low as $5.99
Red, black, beige and white, sizes 34-40

Also for those Christmas gifts, we suggest that you see our collection of slips, pajamas, gowns, cumberbunds, blouses, skirts, sweaters, dresses, blazers, raccoon collars, and all-weather coats (Dacron/cotton wash and wear, and reversibles.)

SHARYN LYNN SHOPPE
135 East Franklin

Don't Spend Money on Expensive Cards Until You've Seen the FIVE CENTS CARDS at the Intimate

POGO

PEANUTS

Salem refreshes your taste —"air-softens" every puff

Take a puff... it's Springtime! A refreshing discovery is yours every time you smoke a Salem cigarette...for Salem refreshes your taste just as Springtime refreshes you. Most refreshing, most flavorful, too... that's Salem!

• menthol fresh • rich tobacco taste • modern filter, too

Created by R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company

UNC Wins 54-52 On Krause's Late Basket

Clemson Loses On Layup With 2 Seconds To Play

Junior forward Dieter Krause scored his only two points of the second half with two seconds left to play last night as the North Carolina basketball team defeated Clemson, 54-52.

The Tigers had pulled from a 32-26 halftime deficit to tie the score with 27 seconds left on a pair of free shots by Nick Milasnovich. The game was played at Clemson.

The Tar Heels led with 2:15 to go, 52-48, but then Milasnovich hit four times from the free throw line to tie the game.

There were only 9 points scored in the final 4 minutes of this tense struggle.

Mike Cooke was the top scorer for the Tar Heels with 13 points. Bryan McSweeney had 12, and Jim Hudock added 11. Krause scored 8, Donnie Walsh 6, and Larry Brown had 4.

Milasnovich, the clutch man, was the Tiger scoring leader with 15. Others were Privette with 7, Benson with 5, Bohanick with 5, Burnisky with 4, Don Mahaffey with 4, Morgan with 4, and Hall with 2.

North Carolina's biggest lead in the game came before the end of the first half with the score at 31-19. Clemson never led throughout the contest.

WESLEY LECTURES

Dr. Markus Barth, professor of the New Testament at the University of Chicago, will deliver the fourth annual Wesley Lectures at 8 p.m. this Friday and 8 p.m. this Sunday in Howell Hall. The public is invited. Dr. Barth's topics will be "The Special Authority of Scripture," Friday evening, and "Interpreting Scripture," Sunday evening.

Deacons Top State, 77-65

All-America center Lennie Chappell poured through 28 points last night as Wake Forest defeated N.C. State, 77-65, in the Atlantic Coast Conference opener for both teams.

The game, played on the Wake Forest home court in Winston-Salem, was the Deacons' all the way—but the Wolfpack offered a strong challenge at the end.

Behind by 55-43 with 12:35 left n the game, the Wolfpack pulled o within six points at 63-56 with :25 to go.

The Deacs, coached by Bones McKinney, then were given a big lift by sophomore Frank Christie, who quickly scored five points in three minutes to keep the game safe.

In addition to Chappell's 28 points, the Deacons were aided by Billy Packer's 16. Dave Wiedemann scared 7 and Christie and Tommy McCoy had five each.

Russ Marvel, a 6-6 center, was the mainstay for Coach Everett Case. He scored 17 points.

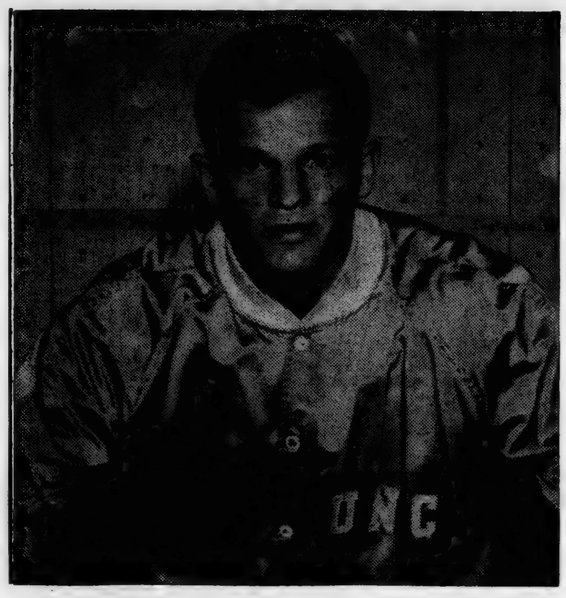
John Punger and Jon Speaks added 11 each for the Wolfpack, and sophomore Bob Morgan had 8.

Ohio State Holds First In Ratings

The United Press International major college basketball ratings with first-place votes and won-lost records in parentheses.

1. Ohio State 26 (1-0) 341
2. Cincinnati 8 (1-0) 320
3. Wake Fore st (1-0) 178
4. (Tie Providence (1-0) 176
4. (Tie) Kansas State (1-0) 176
6. Duke (1-0) 97
7. Purdue (1-0) 80
8. Southern California (1-1) 78
9. (Tie) Arizona State (2-0) 60
9. (Tie) West Virginia (1-0) 60

Second 10—11, Utah 55; 12, Kentucky 45; 13 St. Louis 35; 14, Wichita 34; 15, St. John's N. Y. 31; 16, Dayton 26; 17, Texas Tech 19; 18, Seattle 12; 19, Drake 10; 20, tie Brigham Young and Bowling Green 9 each.



RICHARD BLACKMAN, who wrestles as a 147-pounder, registers two wins as Coach Sam Barnes' matmen opened their season last weekend.

35 Games Open Tourney Card; Penland High Scorer With 17

By JOHN MONTAGUE

A slate of 35 first-round games in the Grail-Mural Holiday Basketball Festival tipped off the 1961-62 intramural cage season Monday.

With 110 teams entered in this ear's tournament, 64 first-round ames were scheduled, 18 of these being byes. This left 46 games to be played—35 on Monday and 11 n Tuesday.

All 32 of the second-round games were played yesterday, making it necessary for 11 teams to play wo games in one day.

In a high-scoring and closely-fought first-round battle, the Phi Delt Owls squeezed by the Aycock Sots, 36-35. 16 points by Jerry Evans paced the Owl offense. John Angell, Tommy Koontz and Gene Barrier each hit for a dozen points as the Chi Psi Hustlers swamped the Winston Curs, 51-24.

Roger Penland was the day's biggest point-producer, netting 17 to lead the ATO Blue to a 47-17 rout of the Aycock Twisters. Alfred Hamilton scored 15 points as Zeta Psi Blue whipped the Winston Tangs, 33-14, and Gene Sigmon poured in 15 to help the Phi Kappa Sig Fearful Five to a 34-11 win over the Joyner Straps.

Other scores include:

Stacy Studs 29, Mangum Metreals 4; Town Touts 38, DU Musangs 10; Sigma Chi Zunta 28, Sigma Nu Puns 14; Everette Rogahs 28, DU Magicians 16; Sigma Nu Blue 27, Winston Wykes 11; Kappa Sig Warriors 22, Theta Chi Apes 9; Beta Smegas 23, Business Grads 17; Mangum Mavericks 21, SPE Brothers 14; NROTC Blue 34, Everette Schmocks 7; Avery Addicts 21, Pi Lamb Peons 7; KA 21, TEP Bandits 10;

DU Warriors 36, Beta Hawkins 3; Ruffin Rutes 16, Winston Poons 11; AK Psi 23, Phi Delt Squirrels 19; Kap Psi Pills 12, Sig Chi Snakes 9; Pi Lamb Polecats 14, Pi Kap Phi Tarts 11; Phi Kap Sig Phantoms 12, Kap Psi Scrubs 9; TEP Go 24, Chi Phi 22; Chemistry 27, Theta Chi Bloomers 21; Avery Ovaries 22, Lewis Lovers 19; AFROTC 12, DKE White 9.

Blackman Wins Twice, But

Wrestlers Pinned In Opening Pair

By TOM LEONHARDT

Despite a 20-6 loss to Washington and Lee on Friday and a 20-8 loss to Virginia on Saturday, Carolina wrestling coach Sam Barnes is still optimistic about his 1961-62 squad.

"We got a good effort both nights but we obviously were not in shape. We hope to be in good enough shape in March to take second place in the Atlantic Coast Conference Championships," he said. Barnes picks Maryland to repeat as the ACC wrestling champions.

Bright spot in the Tar Heel lineup over the weekend was 147-pound Richard Blackman, who won both of his matches, the first by a decision, the second by a fall. Heavyweight Gordon Appell and 137-pound Willis Johnson also turned in Carolina victories. Glenn Glaser, Tripp May, Gene Record, Bill Sharp, Milton Nelson and Pete Gilchrist are other Tar Heel grapplers who should see a great deal of duty this year.

The freshman grapplers, coached by Grover Wilhoit, beat W&L 21-10 on Friday but lost to Virginia the next day 27-5. Buck Brinton was a standout for the freshmen as he won both of his matches.

Saturday, the Varsity travels to South Carolina to take on The Citadel while Tuesday will see them against Davidson at Davidson. Barnes expects to be aided by the addition of footballer Jerry Cabe o the heavyweight class.

Indiana Tilt Tickets Here At ½-Price

Tickets for the game next Monday at the Greensboro Coliseum, featuring North Carolina and Indiana, are on sale through Friday of this week at the ticket office in Woollen Gym. They are priced at $1.25, or half price, for UNC students.

Date tickets and other tickets are priced at $2.50. ID cards must be presented both to purchase the half price tickets and to gain admittance to the game.

Milton's Shirt Fiasco

Give-a-way on 362 dress shirts—sizes 13½/32 to 17/36—button-downs and English tabs — formerly priced to $7.95, at Fiasco Price of 1 for $2.49 or 3 for $7.00.

Give-a-way on 478 sport shirts, pullover button-down model — solids, foulard prints, miniature plaids, paisley's, sizes 13½/32 to 17/36, formerly to $9.95, at unbelievable 1 for $2.99 or 3 for $8.50.

The Price Is Right; The Time Is Right

All Sales Cash And Final No Exchanges Or Refunds

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

SPECIAL COMPLIMENTARY OFFER FOR COLLEGE MEN

Learn the Pleasures of Fine Tobacco...

Enjoy the Original Extra-Mild Cavendish in the Handy "Poly" Pocket Pouch

AMPHORA

Blended in Holland by Douwe Egberts Royal Factories

AMPHORA, is cool, even-burning, long-lasting. Its pleasurable smoking qualities have won loyal friends—it outsells all other tobaccos in its class! If you haven't tried AMPHORA, be our guest. Simply fill in the coupon below and mail it. You will receive a complimentary full 2-ounce pouch.

ROMICK'S INTERNATIONAL TOBACCO CO.
11918 Vose Street, North Hollywood, California
Gentlemen: Please send me a complimentary full 2-ounce pouch of AMPHORA. I enclose 10¢ coin to cover cost of handling and mailing.
(PLEASE TYPE OR PRINT)
NAME_____
STREET_____
CITY, ZONE, STATE_____
UNIVERSITY_____

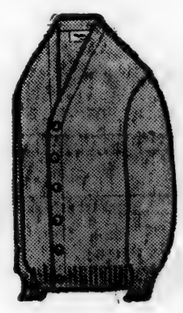
VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST.

She lived on the edge of violence!

JEFFREY HUNTER DAVID JANSSEN STELLA STEVENS IN Man-Trap

PANAVISION® A PARAMOUNT RELEASE

ELAINE DEWY Produced by EDMOND O'BRIEN and STANLEY FRAZEN · Directed by EDMOND O'BRIEN · Screenplay by ED WATERS

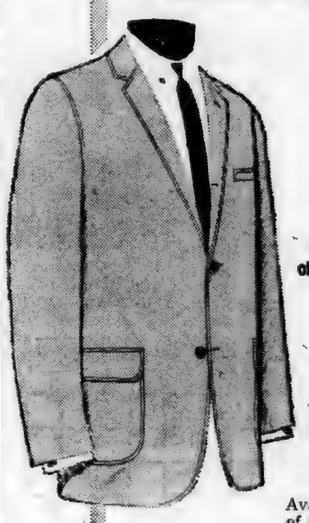


Soften him up with a Sweater on Christmas

His heart will melt quickly as his eye fastens on a fine sweater. The proprietor features all fine yarns in classic styling.

Town & Campus

The man to watch wears a



Camel Hair Sportjacket

...naturally

Luxuriously soft, this jacket of rich imported camel's hair lends a distinguished yet informal tone to most gatherings. Authentically tailored for Julian's in the natural shoulder tradition with patch and flap pockets, hooked center vent, lined in matching

Available in traditional shades of Camel, Navy & Olive.

$69.50

★ Pure Camel Sweater and Sox to Match

★ Camel Suit with Vest $95

Julian's College Shop

JUST ARRIVED—FRESH CHRISTMAS CANDY

which DO YOU PREFER?

We are now featuring all THREE at our BETTER CANDY Department!...

FRESH SHIPMENT JUST ARRIVED

By the Makers of RAGTIME Chocolates — America's Finest Packaged Chocolates

SUTTON'S

DRUG STORE OF CHAPEL HILL

159 East Franklin St. —:— Dial 942-5161

PRE-CHRISTMAS

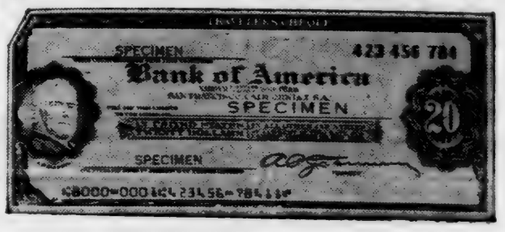
SALE!

- SPORT COATS $14.95
- PANTS were $18.95, now ..$9.92
- Yellow SHIRTS were $6.95, now $4.95
- TIES.....$1.43
- KNIT SKIRTS.....50¢

University Shop

In Back of Sharyn Lynn on Franklin St.

Whenever you leave town, carry money only you can spend: Bank of America Travelers Cheques. Loss-proof, theft-proof, cashed only by your signature. Sold at banks everywhere.



UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

62

Christmas Spirit

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather

Occasional rain, partly cloudy and continued cool.

Offices in Graham Memorial | THURSDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Service

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Elvis J. Stahr

By United Press International

No Man In Orbit This Year

WASHINGTON—The United States will make no attempt to match Russia in putting a man into orbit in 1961. The federal space agency announced Wednesday that America's first attempt to rocket an astronaut in orbit around the earth would be made early next year, rather than late this month as some U. S. officials had hoped. The flight may be attempted January 9.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) also said that no further animal or unmanned flights would be ordered before the manned flight. The Nov. 29 orbital ride by the chimpanzee "Enos" cleared the way for a human voyage into space, NASA said.

★ ★ ★

Support Develops For Two Chinas

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—Support developed in the General Assembly Wednesday for the "two Chinas" concept—a U. N. seat for the Communist Peiping regime and one for the Nationalist government of Formosa.

Both the Chinese Communists and the Chinese Nationalists have refused to acknowledge the possibility of both regimes as legitimate governments, and the Soviet Union and the United States, their principal backers, have never discussed it formally.

★ ★ ★

JFK Suggests Economic NATO

NEW YORK—President Kennedy told some of the nation's top businessmen Wednesday the United States needs a program of broad tariff reductions to pit an economic NATO against communism's effort to outstrip the free world.

Kennedy told a conference of the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM)—many of whose members have a direct interest in maintaining tariff protection—that the Reciprocal Trade Act should be scrapped when it runs out next year.

In its place he called for a "new and bold" policy authorizing broad mutual tariff reductions between the United States and the fast-growing European Common Market.

★ ★ ★

More Effective Guerrilla Fight Ahead

WASHINGTON—American officials said today the way appeared to have been cleared for a more effective fight against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

They said they hoped for early introduction of the military reorganization and political reforms which President Ngo Dinh Diem has assured the United States will be put into effect to increase pressure on the Red rebels.

In return, the United States has told the Vietnamese president of the increased military equipment and training it is willing to provide to aid him against the Reds.

Duke Hikes Tuition Rate $200 Per Yr.

Duke University in Durham announced Tuesday that its tuition rates will be increased $200 per year beginning with the 1963-64 academic year.

Dr. Deryl Hart, university president, said "impelling reasons" necessitated the increase, which was recommended by the University's long-range planning committee.

Hart said the first and basic reason for the increase "is that the matching of the generous Duke Endowment grant of $1 million for salary improvements during the biennium, 1961-63, will exhaust available University resources for such purposes."

With the increase, Duke undergraduates will be paying an annual tuition of $1,050 plus $150 in fees, or $1,200 per year. The increase does not include room rent which, in the case of a double room, is $200 per year per occupant.

"Even with the increase," Hart said, "The student tuition at Duke will continue to provide less than 40 per cent of the operating income of the University and a smaller percentage than is the case in almost all of the other leading universities."

He added the increase "follows the pattern established during the past few years by all private institutions in the United States. Indeed, Duke University has followed a cautious policy in the matter of tuition increases.

Infirmary

Students in the infirmary Wednesday were Gloria Alphin, Leila Major, Julia Humphreys, Helen Palmatier, Suzanne Luter, John Fisher, Litchfield Huie, Richard Edwards, Stephen Lowder, Julian Bradley, Phillip Adams, John Jennings, Robert Hinnant Robert Singletary, Oscar Harriss, Wayne King, Mrs. Agnes Little, Mrs. Phyllis Hofheimer, Helen Martin, Catherine Johnson, Sam Barfield, Bonn Gilbert, Roger Bisson, William Garrard, Robert Deal, Theodore Bobbitt.

Campus Briefs

TODAY

The folksingers, to perform under the auspices of Graham Memorial, will hold a caroling rehearsal tonight at 9 in Roland Parker lounges GM. There will be another rehearsal Sunday night at 7 in Roland Parker.

All UNC premedical students are invited to attend a program given by members of the Duke University Medical School faculty and student body. Problems encountered by today's medical student will be discussed, and there will be an opportunity to ask questions. The meeting is sponsored by the Alpha Epsilon Delta Premedical Fraternity, and will be held at 7:30 in room 324 of the UNC Medical School.

There will be a short but important meeting of the YMCA Orphanage Committee on this Thursday at 5:00 in the first floor of the Y Building. All members of this committee are asked to attend.

The Seminars Abroad Committee will meet at 5 p.m. today in the 2nd Floor Conference Room at the YMCA. All members and interested persons are invited to attend.

OTHER

There will be a special 15-minute film on the J. Spencer Love Fellowship on WTVD-TV, Durham, at 1:30 p.m. next Sunday. The fellowship is available to male students from the southeastern U.S. who wish to attend the Harvard University graduate schools of business administration. The film will also show scenes of Harvard life and describe the program of the graduate business school.

There will be an open meeting of the University Party next Monday night at 7 in Gerrard Hall to discuss spring policies.

Interviews for the State Student Legislature will be given from 3-5 today and Friday in Roland Parker Lounge III, GM.

(Continued on Page 5)

Bill Harriss Raps SG Participation

"Five people know what is going on in student government," said Bill Harriss, president of the student body, at a Student Party meeting Tuesday night in Graham Memorial.

"Do you realize what we could do if we had 20 people?" he asked the 40 students at the meeting.

Harriss also said he felt that Inman Allen, GMAB president, would be the University Party candidate for Student Body President in the spring.

"I am a little disappointed at the performance of the Student Party this year," said Harriss. "I was shocked at the apathy during the fall elections."

"Speak Out"

He called for the Student Legislature, his party and individual students to speak out on important national and international issues.

The party elected Bill Mittendorf to an open Legislature seat (Town Men's III) and elected a slate of party officers, all without opposition.

Jimmy Weeks and Dave Williams were re-elected chairman and vice-chairman.

Other officers are: Freida Collins, secretary; Bill Phillips, treasurer; and Larry Ledford, sgt.-at-arms. One legislative seat was not filled.

Advisory Board

Party members elected to the Advisory Board were Bill Straughn, Ann Lupton, Dick Akers and Pete Harkness.

Harriss warned the party that it would face rough opposition in next spring's election.

"For those of you that don't know, the University Party candidate for President next spring will be Inman Allen," he said. Allen is UP floor leader in Legislature and president of Graham Memorial Activities Board.

XMAS XPRESS

RIDES

MERIDEN, Conn. — Via NEW YORK CITY, four riders, leaving Monday, December 18, call Peter Ford, 968-2441, 6-7 p.m., will divide expenses.

NEW YORK CITY—Two riders, leaving 8 p.m., Wednesday, December 20, call Louise or Glenn Colby, 942-4717, after 5:30.

ATLANTA — Leaving December 16, call J. M. Womack, 325 Teague, 968-9157.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (and en route)—Leaving December 15 or 6, contact Fran Stallings, 310 Connor or 23 New East Annex.

NEW YORK CITY AND BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Four riders, leaving Friday, December 15, 12-1 p.m., share expenses call Ron Orovan, 303 Ruffin, 968-9182.

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. or NEW YORK CITY — Leaving Dec. 15th. Call Ciaran Mercier, 207 Aycock, 968-9158.

AUGUSTA OR COLUMBUS, GA. —One rider, leaving Thursday, December 14, Beverly Bernier, 968-9168, share expenses.

NEWARK, NEW JERSEY or vicinity — Mark Greenberg, leaving noon Friday, December 15, 122 Cobb.

RIDERS

ARLINGTON, VA., WASHINGTON, D. C. or hereabouts — December 16, John Quintus, 105 Winston, 968-9125.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. or 100-mile radius—Jimmy Burke, 304 Connor Hall, 968-9154.

NEW YORK—December 13 or 14, Michael Albright, 410 Winston, 968-9080.

PITTSBURGH — December 16, Charles Doty, Mangum, 968-9110.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—December 16, Thurman Smith, 320 Joyner, 968-9185.

COCOA, FLA.—Roger Rice, 113 Aycock, 168-9216, will share expenses.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX. or general vicinity—Charles H. Lincoln, 201 Avery, 968-9046, can leave December 16. Will share driving and expenses.

NEW ROCHELLE OR NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Rosalyn Post, December 16, 12 noon, 968-3886.

WESTPORT, CONN. or vicinity—Call Evan Harrar, 327 Avery, 968-9116. Would like to leave Friday, Dec. 15.

CHICAGO — or vicinity — Sandy Marks Jr., 942-2914 after 5 p.m., can leave Dec. 15 or 16, will share expenses.

RIDES BACK

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—Wanted for two people after Christmas vacation, Harry Batchelor, 942-1725.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Need three riders. Call Howard Holsenbeck, 306 Stacey, 968-9112. Leaving Saturday, Dec. 16.

ARLINGTON, Va. — Leonard Rogers wants ride to Arlington, Washington, D. C. or near vicinity, leaving Dec. 16. Call 968-9093 or go by 218 Cobb.

CHICAGO or Vicinity — Contact Buddy Broome, 140 Cobb, 968-9092.

UNCOVERS SKELETON

CAPETOWN (UPI) — A British and South African scientific expedition reported Wednesday it has uncovered a dinosaur skeleton estimated to be 151,000,000 years old. The find was made in the Herschel district near Basutoland.

PREPARING PLEA

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI)—Dr. Robert Servatius is now preparing his plea on the assumption that his client, Adolf Eichmann, will be condemned to death, reliable sources said Wednesday.

The German lawyer returned here Wednesday after meeting with Eichmann for 10 hours Tuesday and Monday in his cell at Jelemy prison near Haifa.

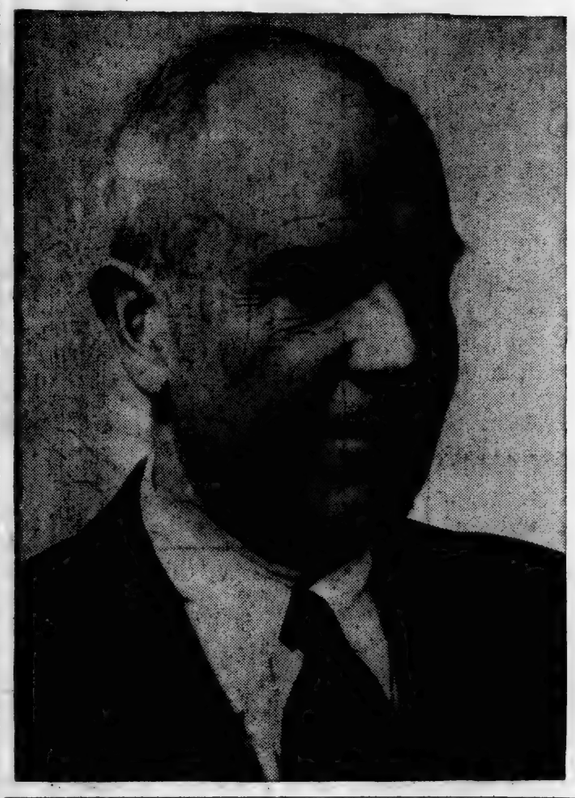
The reading of Eichmann's judgment—expected to be a lengthy affair—begins next Monday. Two of his three judges Wednesday were unwilling to commet on any aspect of the case.

ISSUES VOLCANO WARNING

KUMAMOTO, Japan (UPI) — Japanese volcanologists warned Wednesday that Mt. Aso, one of Japan's largest active volcanoes, may be building up to an eruption. The volcano has been active since Nov. 22.

On 'Today's Revolutions'

Crane Brinton To Lead Off Symposium



Harvard historian Crane Brinton will lead off the 1961 Carolina Symposium next April on "Today's Revolutions." He will lay a philosophical and historical background for the revolutions which are "rapidly transforming the twentieth century world."

Professor Brinton graduated summa cum laude from Harvard in 1919, before holding a Rhodes Scholarship at Oxford University in England.

He has been a professor at Harvard since 1942. For the "easy manner and informal atmosphere" in which he considered philosophy at 8 a.m., his early morning classes came to be known as "Breakfast with Brinton." Brinton is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and a Chevalier in the French Legion of Honor.

He is perhaps best known for his book, "The Anatomy of Revolution." Here he compares the French, Puritan American and Russian Revolutions and attempts to ascertain a general pattern behind them. He is also the author of "Ideas and Men," a survey of Western thought from the ancient Greeks to the present day.

Brinton describes himself as an 18th century rationalist who does not feel too uncomfortable in the 20th century.

He has been pictured as a "child of the Enlightenment," and most of his books center on France, England and Germany in this period. Above all else, he expresses the belief that Man can use his reason to reform his environment and orient his life.

Personally, Brinton describes himself as a quiet man who spends his summers in Vermont enjoying such non-intellectual pursuits as gardening and reading detective novels.

De Gaulle May Veto Early Meet

PARIS (UPI)—The disagreement between France and its Allies over Berlin peace talks with Russia widened sharply Wednesday. There were signs President Charles de Gaulle would veto any early meeting with the Soviets.

Responsible diplomatic sources said there is no chance that West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer can persuade De Gaulle to reconsider his position. Prime Minister Harold Macmillan also failed to win De Gaulle over during their recent meeting.

Unconfirmed reports circulated here Wednesday that President Kennedy suggested that De Gaulle join him and Macmillan in their pre-Christmas talks in Bermuda but that the French leader ignored the invitation.

Asked about this report at a French Diplomatic Press Association lunch, U.S. Ambassador James M. Gavin would say only he recently handed De Gaulle a personal letter from Kennedy.

UN Troops Deal Blow To Katanga Forces

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—United Nations jet fighters and bombers dealt a devastating blow to the tiny Katanga Air Force and won air superiority Wednesday as the U. N. war with the secessionist province engulfed three more Katanga cities.

A U.N. spokesman said Wednesday Swedish U. N. troops supplied by a reinforced U. S. plane lifeline scored another major victory in the heart of Elisabethville when they captured a vital road tunnel which controls the main communications in and out of the city.

Heavy Fighting

Heavy fighting was reported in the European sector of Elisabethville, at the two airports on the outskirts of the city, and in the cities of Manono 275 miles to the northwest, Kolwezi 150 miles to the northwest and Jadotville, 65 miles to the nortwest.

The troubles of this tortured nation grew when informed sources disclosed that Antonie Gizenga, the leftist leader of Orientale Province and a vice premier in the Central government had launched a new secessionist move at his Stanleyville stronghold.

The sources said U. N. Acting Secretary General Thant had been informed on Gizenga's efforts to follow Katanga in breaking away from the Central government on grounds central Congo army chief Gen. Joseph Mobutu had tried to murder him.

Destroyed Four Planes

A U. N. spokesman said U. N. jet fighters destroyed four Katangese planes at the Kolwezi airfield in a 20-minute bombing attack that destroyed the third and last Fouga jet fighter used by white mercenaries along with three transports. Two other fighters were disabled last September.

The French-built Fouga jet trainer armed with rockets and machine-guns was the one used by the Katangese against the United Nations in the fighting ended by a cease-fire two and a half months ago. Since then Swedish J29 "flying barrel" fighters and Indian Canberra medium bombers have arrived.

The United States Air Force meanwhile flew Swedish and Irish U. N. reinforcements to Katanga along with armored cars and anti-aircraft equipment in giant Globemaster planes while smaller U. N. planes rushed troops and lighter equipment into battle.

Reds Up Military Budget By 45 Pct.

MOSCOW (UPI—The Soviet government Wednesday announced an increase of about 45 per cent for military spending next year. It charged NATO's "aggressive" actions made it necessary to spend $14,740,000,000, largest peacetime military appropriation in Soviet history.

The 1961 budget allocated $10,-995,000 for military expenditures. Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev called last July for a 30 per cent increase. The figure given to the Supreme Soviet Wednesday was about $1.1 billion above Khrushchev's request.

The nation's overall budget also was a record for peacetime. Military spending amounted to 16.7 per cent of the total budget. But the military figure did not include the undisclosed amount spent for missile production and research.

NATO "Forces Increase"

Soviet Finance Minister Vasily Garbuzov told the Soviet parliament that the increase in military spending had been forced by "the aggressive NATO bloc." He said NATO is increasing its armaments and perfecting new weapons.

U. S. Increases

Garbuzov said the United States had increased its defense appropriations by about $6 billion and this compelled the Russians to abandon their plans to cut armed forces strength and military spending.

Garbuzov told the 1,378 Supreme Soviet deputies that Khrushchev had called for an increase of $3,-458,400,000 in military outlays, but the figure announced today amounted to an increase of $3,559,005,000. He did not explain the further increase.

Applaud New Figure

The deputies applauded the announcement of the new figure. In the past, the Supreme Soviet has approved government budgets with only slight changes.

Garbuzov said the overall budget for 1962 would amount to $88,330,-000,000 compared to 1961's figure of $85,348,811,900. As is usual in Soviet budgets, it provided for a slight surplus of income over expenditures—$1,760,000,000.

Greek Pianist Will Play Here Tuesday

Gina Bachauer, Greek pianist, will perform at Memorial Hall next Tuesday at 8 p.m. She is presented by Graham Memorial in conjunction with the Chapel Hill Concert Series.

UNC students will be admitted free in the balcony with ID cards.

Mme. Bachauer made her first American appearance before a Town Hall audience in 1950. Before that time, she was little known on this side of the Atlantic.

Born in Athens and educated there and in Paris, the pianist had just launched her career when World War II broke out. She began playing before the Allied armed forces in the Middle East, giving some 630 concerts before V.E. Day.

After the end of the war, she went to London and made her first professional concert. She played in North America during the summer, and comes to Carolina after a series of performances in England, Greece, and Belgium.

Newsmen Barred At Movie Meeting

Newsmen will be barred from Friday night's "mass meeting" of the Chapel Hill Committee for "Open" Movies, executive committee chairman Mrs. Evangeline Darity said yesterday.

The executive committee met yesterday afternoon following a meeting Monday between Mrs. Darity and Vice-Chairman Martin Primack and the manager of the Carolina Theater.

Mrs. Darity said her group had no statement to make concerning either meeting. She said a report on both meetings will be made to the full committee when it meets Friday at 8 p.m. at the St. Paul's AME Church on N. Merritt Mill St.

Carolina Theater Manager E. C. Smith said discussion at Monday's meeting centered on "how things have been working." He said he did not propose any new theater desegregation steps at the meeting, nor did he say he had any plans to do so.

Play To Be Given Tonight In Greensboro

The Theatre of Woman's College is presenting Richard Brinsley Sheridan's "The Rivals" again tonight at 8 in Aycock Auditorium in Greensboro. This is a joint project of the drama department in cooperation with the student honorary society, Masqueraders.

Admission prices are: adults $1.50, college students $1, and high school students 50 cents.

LEFLER'S BOOK CRITICIZED

'Bundling'—Bad Taste In Text Book?

By BILL WAUMETT

The Puritans of colonial America thought "bundling" was perfectly proper but a section concerning the old custom has been torn from a history book by UNC's Dr. Hugh T. Lefler and said to be "in bad taste."

"I saw nothing offensive," Lefler said. "The same things have been published before in other history books."

Apparently many Puritan ministers would have agreed with Dr. Lefler.

"Why should it be thought incredible," said a minister of the period, "for a young man and young woman innocently and virtuously to lie down together in bed with a great part of their clothes on, I cannot conceive."

Levittown School

The book was being used in a twelfth-grade history course at Gen. Douglas MacArthur High School in Levittown, N. Y.

The controversial pages were removed from the books by Ernest J. Orlandini, chairman of the Social Studies Department, who said the pages were "in bad taste and might even be immoral."

The censorship was protested by students and their parents. Principal Donald Grant has settled the dispute temporarily by returning the pages to the book owners and deciding that the book would not be used in the class.

Recommended by Teacher

Lefler's book, "A History of the United States from the Age of Exploration to 1865," was recommended by the class's teacher Irvin Rosen and a member of the Social Studies staff ordered about thirty copies.

The books were distributed to the students, who each paid $1.55. Then the books were recalled by Orlandini, who tore the bundling section out of each book, and then returned them.

There was one section in the censored part that the Puritan ministers might have considered suggestive. This sentence dealt with the couple which had "bundled" and then decided not to marry.

"An Accident"

In this case, said the colonial minister Andrew Burnaby, "they part, and possibly never see each other again; unless there is an accident that seldom happens, the forsaken one may prove pregnant, and then the man is obliged to marry her, under pain of excommunication."

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 7, 1961 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLIX, No. 62

Christmas Spirit: A Public Menace

The 'Christmas Spirit' in Chapel Hill has become a public menace, largely because it is not actually the Christmas Spirit, but a trumped-up, warmed-over version of the Christmas Spirit.

The Chapel Hill community, like most American communities, started preparing for Christmas while the Thanksgiving turkey was still settling to the bottom of its citizens' stomachs.

The whole town participated in this synthetic outpouring of Christmas happiness. The town erected decorations on Franklin Street, although not on any of the streets which have no stores. The stores themselves began the annual drive for Christmas money with Santas, lights and all the other paraphenalia of an American Christmas. Even the newspapers helped. Tuesday's issue of the Daily Tar Heel, carrying an unusual amount of local advertising and happy features on Christmas gifts, will undoubtedly be one of the most profitable in the Tar Heel's history. The Chapel Hill Weekly ran a similar issue last week.

The blunt, obvious fact of all these preparations is money. The town wants money; the merchants want money; the Tar Heel wants money. This should be evident to anyone who stops to think for a few minutes. Furthermore, we doubt that anyone in any of these groups will deny this with a straight face.

And we do not object. (Here the reader may insert the quote of his choice on the glories of the American free enterprise system and money in general.) No one objects to merchants making money, and Christmas is a good time to do it. If Americans condone this as an excuse for Christmas Spirit, we will not complain.

BUT IT HAS GONE TOO FAR IN CHAPEL HILL. In Carrboro, the Christmas decorations consist of strings of colored lights around the intersections along the main street. The lights are green, orange and red. When turned on at night, they make it almost impossible for one to distinguish the traffic lights which they surround.

We wonder how the Christmas-spirited citizens of Chapel Hill and Carrboro would feel if a student or townsperson were killed because he could not see a stop light for all the Christmas decorations.

These lights are a physical illustration of the mental atmosphere surrounding Christmas in America today. They do no one any good. They are, in fact, a menace to the public safety. The blame for this ironic distortion of the meaning of Christmas falls on the town as a whole.

The merchants, of course, are the most important element in the tragedy: the decorations exist primarily for their commercial benefit. But the merchants did not put up most of the lights. The town did, with the townspeople's money.

We think the money poured out each year for these decorations could be used in a much more meaningful demonstration of the 'Christmas Spirit.'

If this money were given to the Community Chest, used to buy gifts for local orphans, or donated to some other worthwhile enterprise, Chapel Hill could congratulate itself on being truly Christmas-spirited.

—Bill Hobbs

Christmas decorations obscure Carrboro traffic light.

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN REYNOLDS
Associate Editor

LLOYD LITTLE
Executive News Editor

BILL HOBBS
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

JIM CLOTFELTER
Assistant to the Editor

STEVE VAUGHN ..... News Editor
NANCY BASS, LINDA CRAVOTTA — Feature Editors
HARRY W. LLOYD ..... Sports Editor
DAVID WYSONG ..... Subscription Manager
JIM ESKRIDGE ..... Circulation Manager
ED DUPREE ..... Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE ..... Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MATHEWS ..... Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 8, 1870. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Press

After a year-and-a-half in The Congo American newsmen have apparently learned how to handle themselves. Recent wire stories from the Katanga fighting arena have sounded less like Central Government press releases and more like real news—the kind of news the reporter has to go out and see for himself.

Congo dateline stories use to begin something like "The great sage Joseph Kassavubu — after having accepted the title of Messiah Come-Lately from his loving fellow countrymen—has now declared the pro-Communist Arch-Fiend Patrice Lumumba non-existent. Lumumba, urged on by Nikita and Mao, has claimed defiantly that he is not non-existent." Hopefully reason has now returned in small part to American journalism abroad.

—Jim Clotfelter

"How Come I Always Have To Be The Neighbor!"

This Week In Student Legislature

The legislator who drafted the resolution favoring "continued financial support" of the University Entertainment Committee—a bill which possibly will be considered tonight at Legislature—was undoubtably moved by good and kindly thoughts. But his good and kindly thoughts appear to have run away with him, and it's not clear where they've taken him.

"The fall program of the Committee was excellently planned, organized, and promoted," the resolution reads. No one denies that Committee members worked hard, but the efforts did not produce "excellent" results: the group lost $3,500 of Student Legislature's money—the students' money.

To commend the group for such a financially disastrous action is to set a ludicrous precedent: considerable loss of money being greeted by unmitigated praise.

"The Student Legislature will amiably receive requests by the University Entertainment Committee for further appropriations," the resolution concludes. The phrase "amiably receive"—again—borders on the ludicrous.

Legislature certainly should listen to future Entertainment Committee requests and if the campus really wants such programs, should appropriate money for the committee. But no blanket "amiably receive" statement should be made.

* * *

The bill to provide $70 for Dance Committee space in the Yack appears harmless enough.

* * *

John Randall's revisions of the by-laws to eliminate "confusion" over legislative attendance requirements represent another capable job of clarification from that legislator.

* * *

At last week's session a letter from President of the Student Body Bill Harriss was read. The letter—appraising Legislature's work this fall—contains a paragraph which possibly should be etched onto the brow of every legislator:

"I have been somewhat disappointed by the reluctance of the Legislature at times to speak on questions concerning students and their responsibility to voice their opinions on issues which are of vital importance to all students. . . . I sincerely hope that this session will have more time for consideration of such items."

Legislators will soon have an opportunity to act on this recommendation. A bill condemning nuclear testing in the atmosphere might be introduced tonght. Some parts of the bill are weak, but as a whole it is a worthy piece of legislation.

Legislature must make clear by passing this bill that it understands the dynamic potentialities of American student opinion, even on so tremendous an issue as nuclear testing.

It should be made clear that the bill's sponsors have no illusions about its practical effect on the American or Russian governments—an absurd illusion, of course. The purpose of the resolution should be to inform the next National Student Congress and the UNC delegates to that congress of UNC student opinion on nuclear testing.

—JIM CLOTFELTER

'When The Ballot Is Not Enough . . .'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Just 19 years ago, in the waning months of 1942, one of the bloodiest and most terrible battles in all the wars of men was being fought around and over the ruins of Stalingrad.

Early in 1943, the remnants of the German army were surrendered to the encircling Russians, who had cut them off two months before. At the end, the Axis forces had lost some 330,000 men.

In January, the last month, the last German plane left Stalingrad. From it, the Nazis seized seven bags of mail. Some of those who were about to die had put down on paper how it was—and posted their thoughts homeward to Germany.

The letters were opened, classified by content and tone, bundled neatly, and sent to the high command. They were to have formed part of a documenting of the battle by which the German supreme command hoped to exculpate itself. After looking at the language of the documents, Goebels suppressed the book.

Following are excerpts from a reprinting of parts of those letters in the autumn issue of a quarterly magazine, the Hudson Review, under the title "Last Letters from Stalingrad."

* * *

A German Army Weatherman To His Girl

Monica, what is our life compared to the many million years of the starry sky! On this beautiful night, Andromeda and Pegasus are right above my head. I have looked at them for a long time; I shall be very close to them soon . . .

Around me everything is collapsing, a whole army is dying, day and night are on fire, and four men busy themselves with daily reports on temperature and cloud ceilings. I don't know much about war. No human being has died by my hand . . . but I know this much: The other side would never show such a lack of understanding for its men . . .

* * *

A Soldier Husband To His Wife

What disturbs me is the unspoken desire I read between your lines to have not only the husband and lover with you again but also the pianist. . . . So it is well that this letter should reach you, and that you know . . . that my hands are ruined and have been since the beginning of December. I lost the little finger on my left hand, but worse still is the loss of the three middle fingers of my right hand through frostbite. I am quite helpless . . . The thing I can still do best with my little finger is shoot. . . .

Kurt Hahnke, I think you remember him from the conservatory in '37, played the Appassionata a week ago on a grand piano in a little side street close to Red Square. Such things don't happen every day. The grand piano was standing right in the middle of the street. The house had been blown up . . . A hundred soldiers squatted around in their greatcoats with blankets over their heads. Everywhere there was the sound of explosions, but no one let himself be disturbed. They were listening to Beethoven in Stalingrad.

* * *

A Man Arguing Back to An Advice-giver

It is so easy to say: Put down your weapons. Do you think the Russians will spare us? You are an intelligent man, so why don't you also demand that your friends refuse to produce ammunition and war materiel?

It is easy to give good advice; but it just won't work the way you think it will. Liberation of nations, nonsense. Nations remain the same.

Worry, Confusion Hits Newspaper

This being a very simple type of paper (we don't try to be, somehow it just works out that way) this will be a very simple type of column, posing one lone question: What does a paper do when its editor gets sick, or more (or maybe less) appropriately, when he becomes ill?

If this were a large metropolitan paper, there would be no trouble. Most of the editors who have worked themselves to boss position have run themselves into general ill health in the process, and when the editor doesn't show, the only comments that are heard in the office are inquiries as to whether he'll be too ill to sign that week's pay check.

Not so on the Daily Tar Heel. To begin with, most of the regular staff or a half dozen or so are personal friends of the editor. They have to be to stand his tirades. Those who aren't friends are probably in heavy debt to him and he's taking it out in sweat. Occaionally, it's both. Nonetheless, all are solicitous of his health: What's wrong with him? Is he in the hospital? How much did he drink?

After discovering that it's only the editor's third annual Christmas trip to the Infirmary, the curiosity slackens, and the staff gets down to the squabbling necessary to putting out the next day's issue.

Jobs are shifted. The front page makeup man is assigned to write an edit. The sports editor is assigned to take over the front page. He is forced to swear three times that yes, he can get both pages to the shop within three hours of final deadline.

About this time, an irate reader calls. He wants to let everybody know that he's a student, he's paid for his paper, and why isn't it delivered each morning to his door, before he drives to Chapel Hill from Durham.

The news editor, who long ago gave up hope that South Building would burn down just in time to make the paper, is courting the wire machine, and wondering if maybe now he won't get to use the WAR! headline.

The advertising manager strolls through, finished for the day, casually tossing the page three layout on the makeup man's desk. The layout is void of ads, the desk is void of news, and the makeup man is just quietly going void.

The shop foreman calls. He wants the edit page that was supposed to be at the shop yesterday. When he hears that the editor is sick, he emphatically agrees, hopes that nobody will mind looking at a page of blank space tomorrow morning, and slams down the phone.

The editor calls. Yes, he's doing fine. Yes, he hopes they can get the paper to press. And, please, he pleads, take out the edit he wrote for tomorrow knocking the Infirmary. He'll wait till he's out and write a new one.

The shop calls again. Is the news editor PRAYING over the copy?

The regular makeup man has finished his edit. It attacks Christmas. It has to be junked because it contains three four-letter words, and because this is the Christmas issue, and there's no need to make everybody mad. Especially when it's known that the edit writer spent the day before decorating a Christmas tree and making merry.

A substitute edit is needed. Hey, how about an edit on when the editor is sick?

—Harv Harris

Defeated Jr. Veep Candidate Thanks Voters

Dear Fellow Juniors:

I wish to thank those of you who supported me in my campaign for your Junior Class Vice-President. I also wish to congratulate Mr. Brown on his election to that office as well as all other elected officers. I hope that each Junior will join me in supporting "our officers" for their term of office. Let us unite behind them and work toward the most active Junior Class in years, supporting, in every way possible, the "8 Point Platform" which Mr. Vinroot has pledged to carry forth. I ran on this platform and feel that it is a very good one, and I will aid Mr. Vinroot and our class in any manner to see that it is carried out.

Again, I wish to thank my supporters and congratulate the elected

Howard Holsenbeck
SP Candidate for the
Jr. Class Vice-Pres.

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

"And Now A Report From A New Member, Recently Back From McComb, Mississippi"

Satisfaction With Education, Problems Of Discrimination Are Reactions Of African Students Studying In The US

The African student in the United States, in spite of economic and emotional problems, is happy with his American education.

In a survey just completed of more than 1000 African students now in this country, 79 per cent reported they were "completely" or "mostly" satisfied with their training. Only 4 per cent registered dissatisfaction.

Another significant finding is that the majority of African students feel they do not get along well with American Negroes. Almost two-thirds (63 per cent) indicated friction between the two groups.

Other major results of the survey are that 64 per cent of the African students meet discrimination, their biggest problem is lack of funds, their general academic performance is above average, and their image of America and Africa is influenced by their U. S experience.

AFRICAN SURVEY

These are some of the highligths of the "IIE African Student Survey" sponsored by the Institute of International Education. The research was carried out by the University of Michigan International Center.

Last March, the University of Michigan Center sent questionnaires to 1,533 African students on 366 American college and university campuses. Two-thirds of the students (1,010) filled out the form. Later the researchers held personal interviews with 208 Africans at 43 institutions.

THE AFRICAN PROFILE

Statistically, the composite African student is a 26-year-old single male from either Nigeria or Kenya, studying social science at the sophomore level. He would like to earn his doctorate but expects, realistically, to return home after receiving his master's degree.

Nearly half of the African students come from two countries—Nigeria (24 per cent) and Kenya (24 per cent). Three out of four were single and 88 per cent were male. Although the largest number was at the advanced sophomore level, 27 per cent were freshmen and 22 per cent were doing graduate work.

Over a third (35 per cent) were studying social sciences, 16 per cent were in the physical or natural sciences, and only 9 per cent were in engineering. Nearly half (47 per cent) were in their first year here and over a third (35 per cent) expected to remain four years or longer.

Eight-hundred and one Africans were enrolled in Northern institutions while 209 were studying at colleges and universities in the South. Despite the fact that almost half of them had arrived within the year, 19 per cent of the African students had already changed schools. Of this group, one-third (32 per cent) transferred because they had completed their course while 24 per cent said their subject or field of study was not available.

PROBLEMS LISTED

In general, the problems encountered by Africans were similar to those of all foreign students.

In the first few weeks, understanding and using English was the number one problem listed by 21 per cent of the Africans. Adjusting to American foods ranked second (19 per cent), adapting to American life was third (17 per cent), and discrimination was reported fourth (11 per cent).

As they stayed longer, their problems changed, Whereas only 4 per cent had serious money troubles immediately, later 27 per cent of the African students faced financial pressures. The difficulties with English, food and adjustment almost disappeared with time. Discrimination was still listed as a major problem by 12 per cent of the Africans, making it the second-most difficult area as their stay increased. However once adjustment set in, the number of students with no real problems jumped from 4 per cent to 17 per cent.

AFRICANS MEET DISCRIMINATION

Though only 12 per cent of the African students listed discrimination as a major problem, 77 per cent of the 1,010 polled reported incidents of discrimination. Twenty-two per cent said they were discriminated against "many times" while 42 per cent said they met discrimination "sometimes."

The survey revealed that African students met racial prejudices in all sections of the United States but the rate of occurrences was higher in the South. Whereas 18 per cent of the Africans in northern schools said they experienced discrimination "many times," 38 per cent of those in the South reported this degree of discrimination. In the North however, 43 per cent said they met discrimination "sometimes" as contrasted with 39 per cent in southern states.

The most frequent source of discrimination proved to be restaurants, listed by 49 per cent. Particularly disturbing to many Africans was the attitude of Americans who discriminate against American Negroes but not against Africans. A student at a large Eastern university reported he was not served by a restaurant the day he wore an American suit but was served the next day when he wore his native costume.

Housing, with 32 per cent reporting difficulties, was another troublesome discrimination area. The survey reveals that Americans who are otherwise friendly to Africans often decline to rent rooms to them. One African said, "They are more friendly when they know I am from Africa, but when you ask to rent a room, they refuse. Then I know they did not have any genuine friendship."

HOUSING DISCRIMINATION

More students in the North (23 per cent) reported discrimination in housing than students in the South (10 per cent)—largely due to the fact that more Africans in Southern schools live in dormitories. However, white landlords are not responsible for all the doors which are closed to Africans. One African in the South stated, "The college arranges for off-campus rooms in Negro areas. When we get there and the landlord realizes we are Africans, he usually won't rent the rooms to us."

Forty-four per cent of the Africans said they encountered discrimination in their social lives. Another 16 per cent reported having been discriminated against in churches. One African student said that a white family in a northern church moved away when he sat next to them. Later, on learning he was from Africa, this same family invited him to dinner.

However, a number of foreign student advisers and Africans themselves believe that what is often labelled discrimination is really personal preference in action. This was expressed by an African girl in a large Midwest university: "I haven't run into any discrimination because I haven't gone out looking for it. Many Africans deliberately look for trouble, and of course they find it."

IMAGE OF AMERICA

The image of America held by the African student is really the image of the individual American. Asked what they like best about Americans, 38% of the Africans cited "friendliness" and 16% mentioned our "industriousness." The spiritual and political values of which the average American is so proud did not mpress the African students. In fact, it was specifically American political and ideological values—or lack of them—that the Africans saw as American shortcomings. More than half noted American racial intolerance (27%), political apathy (10%), and intolerance of foreigners (16%) as least-liked characteristics.

Regarding any change in their previous image of America, 29% of the students reported they found racial discrimination worse than they expected. A young man in an Eastern university said, "I have found that the USIA propaganda is not true, such as their description of how conditions in the South really are." Five percent reported, however, that discrimination was not as bad as they expected.

Many of the Africans reported learning more about Africa in America than in their own countries. But the incidence of this change was greatly influenced by their country of origin. Whereas 50% of the students from Tanganyika, 40% from Uganda and 38% from Ethiopia reported a broadened African outlook, 100% from Guinea and 47% from Kenya indicated no change.

AFRICAN STUDENT

The intensity to learn makes the African a good student. With only 6% reporting academic difficulties, the average grade was a strong B-. Seven percent reported an A average, 43% were B students and 23% earned a C rating. In the personal interviews, the African students revealed their keen desire to succeed. Asked to rate their progress, 34% of the Africans interviewed felt they were doing average work. Actually, 60% reported grades above average.

In spite of money problems, incidents of discrimination and some shattered illusions, most of the African students were pleased with their schooling here. Seventy-nine percent reported they were "completely" or "mostly" satisfied with their education, while only 4% registered dissatisfaction. Complaints listed by African students included inappropriate courses for Africans, no practical experience, more and better orientation.

Nearly half of the students (42%) believed their U. S. education would prepare them for their professional careers. An additional 19% thought their training "adequate," but 28% indicated they would need practical experience or further graduate study. Significantly, 43% of the Africans at small institutions felt this need for more training as compared to only 16% of those enrolled in large schools.

Only the Intimate has the books to delight youngsters on your Christmas List!

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 E. Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

KHRUSHCHEV'S SECRET PROMISE TO IKE

We can't discuss Berlin, says Eisenhower, unless we know its background. In this week's Post, he tells why he opposed the Allied plan for Germany. Why the Nazi surrender was hushed up for 24 hours. And what Khrushchev promised him privately at Camp David.

The Saturday Evening POST

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST.

She lived on the edge of violence!

JEFFREY HUNTER DAVID JANSSEN STELLA STEVENS in Man-Trap

PANAVISION A PARAMOUNT RELEASE

ELAINE DEVRY Produced by EDMOND O'BRIEN and STANLEY FRAZEN Directed by EDMOND O'BRIEN Screenplay by ED WATERS

GIFT SHOP A&P—YOU'LL SAVE!

LARGE SIZE HUCKLEBERRY HOUND DOG OR

Yogi Bear EACH 3.75

42" Pony Tail DANCING DOLL $2.89

Large 30-inch—Colorful WALKING DOLL Ea. $7.88

29-INCH—ALL STEEL HAULER AND VAN TYPE

A&P Truck ONLY 4.49

Captain Kangaroo Activity BOXES Each 69c

Disney 101 Dalmation PUZZLES Each 25c

Pink, Chrome Plated Poly TEA SETS 49-Piece Set 2.69

NO LIMIT AT YOUR FRIENDLY A&P ALLGOOD BRAND

SLICED BACON FULL POUND PACKAGE 39¢

Prices in this ad effective through midnight Saturday, December 9th

Worthmore Choc-Coated CREAM DROPS 11-Oz. Pkg. 29c

Warwick Thin MINTS 12-oz. Pkg. 35c

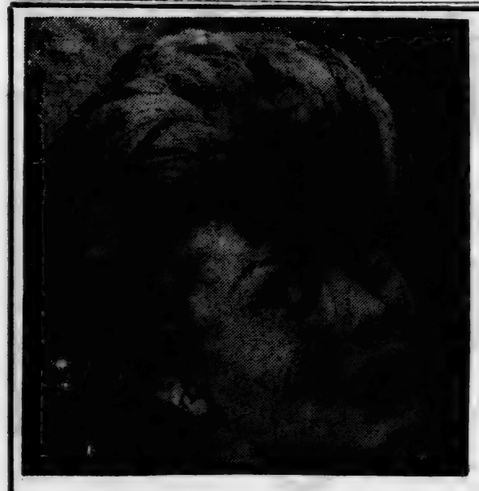
Jesse Jewel Frozen POT PIES 4 8-Oz. Pkgs. 59c

BEEF—CHICKEN—TURKEY

ORANGES JUICY FLORIDA 8 POUND BAG 49c

JANE PARKER GIFT PERFECT FRUIT CAKE 3-lb. Cake $2.98 5-lb. Cake $3.99

JANE PARKER LARGE ANGEL FOOD CAKE OR APPLE PIES Your Choice Each 39c



Look Your Loveliest This Christmas

Be confident and look your loveliest during the holidays with a flattering new hair style that is exactly for you.

Aesthetic Stylists to Serve You

Mr. Joseph of Naples, Italy
Mr. David of Greensboro
Miss Loretta of Edenton
Miss Jean of Bollingreen, Kentucky
Miss Carolyn of Asheboro
Miss Joyce C. of Chapel Hill
Miss Sarah of Chapel Hill
Miss Joyce W. of McKinly
Miss Ester, assistant to stylist, of Apex
Miss Kay of Rowlesburg, West Virginia

Co-owners and Stylists
Alice Stone and Evelyn Hinnant

Aesthetic Hair Styling Salon

123 East Franklin For Appointment Dial 942-4355

Don't Spend Money on Expensive Cards Until You've Seen the FIVE CENTS CARDS at the Intimate

EVERY COLLEGE STUDENT needs this book

to increase his ability to learn

An understanding of the truth contained in Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy can remove the pressure which concerns today's college student upon whom increasing demands are being made for academic excellence.

Christian Science calms fear and gives to the student the full assurance he needs in order to learn easily and to evaluate what he has learned. It teaches that God is man's Mind—his only Mind—from which emanates all the intelligence he needs, when and as he needs it.

Science and Health, the textbook of Christian Science, may be read or examined, together with the Bible, in an atmosphere of quiet and peace, at any Christian Science Reading Room. Information about Science and Health may also be obtained on campus through the

Christian Science Organization at

University of North Carolina
Box 246
Meeting Time:
7:15 P.M. Tuesdays
Meeting Place:
Christian Science Reading Room
Above the Intimate Bookshop

POGO

PEANUTS

Wives, Mothers May Continue Education Under New Grant

Wives and mothers who hold bachelor or master's degrees but whose family responsibilities have halted their education may qualify for continued study as a result of a $225,000 grant from the Rockefeller Brothers fund to the American Association of University Women Educational Foundation, it was announced here today.

Dr. Eleanor F. Dolan, a representative of the AAUW Educational Foundation, was a recent visitor to the UNC campus where she talked with Graduate School officials and discussed plans for the new program.

UNC is one of the participating schools in a three-year program to be initiated in eleven Southern states. Approximately fifty candidates, 35 years of age or older, will be selected each year for further education at UNC and other cooperating graduate schools.

Designed to add fully-qualified women to the nation's resources of college faculty, the program is expected to help relieve the acute shortage of trained college personnel. It will also provide unusual opportunity for the mature woman to embark on a professional career in higher education.

In addition to wives and mothers other women whose plans for a professional career have had to be deferred for financial reasons may also qualify.

The first group under the program will enroll in September 1962. Applications should be made not later than April 15, 1962, and addressed to Miss Dolan at the AAUW Educational Foundation, 2401 Virginia Avenue, N.W., Washington 7, D. C.

Education Man Will Address Faculty Club

W. Dallas Herring, chairman of the North Carolina State Board of Education, will address the Faculty Club at its fourth Luncheon Program Tuesday, December 12 at 1:00 p.m. at the Faculty Club Building.

Herring will speak on "The Forest and the Trees."

Herring was a member of the board of directors of the N.C. State School Boards Association before his appointment to the State Education Board and his subsequent rise to the chairmanship.

He has made an outstanding record in all phases of civic life. At the age of 23 he was elected mayor of Rose Hill and was proclaimed the youngest mayor in the United States. He served as mayor of Rose Hill for 11 years.

An honor graduate of Davidson College, he is a former chairman of the Duplin County Board of Education. While in that capacity he led a local citizens movement to significant participation in educational progress of that area.

In 1954 he was elected by Phi Delta Kappa society of UNC as education's "Man of the Year" in North Carolina."

IDC Suspends Students For Fireworks Prank

The IDC Court handed down its first decision this week under a new Court regulation.

A student, charged with discharging fireworks in front of Parker Dormitory, was sentenced to suspension from all University housing for one semester beginning this week.

Under the new regulation, which was enacted last week, this is the minimum sentence for discharging fireworks in or near any dormitory. According to the regulation, the sentence is automatic and can be supplemented at the discretion of the Court.

Wesley Lectures Cancelled Until Spring Semester

Dr. Markus Barth, European-educated theologian will not give lectures as scheduled December lectnures as scheduled December 8 and 10.

A family illness interfered with the speaking engagement of Dr. Barth, associate professor of New Testament at the University of Chicago.

Wesley Foundation Director Bob Johnson says the lectures on the Scriptures will be cancelled until spring semester.

CAROLINA SWEETHEARTS — These co-eds are the first students to greet visiting football and basketball players upon their arrival at Chapel Hill. They are (front row l. to r.) Dershie Bridgford, Janet Dawson, Kathy Livas, Becky Hayes, Connie Burroughs, (back row l. to r.) Judy Blythe, Joanne Eagles, Sue Woodward, Kit Turnbull, and Judy Clark. (Photo by Jim Wallace).

Carrier Current

Thursday

6:00—Dinner Hour
6:55—Campus News
7:00—Carolina Roundtable
8:00—Masterwork
10:00—Ten O'clock Report
10:10—Consolidated University News
10:15—Spectrum
10:55—News
11:00—Campus News
11:05—Quiet Hours
11:55—Preview
12:00—Sign-off

Friday

6:00—Dinner Hour
6:55—Campus News
7:00—Project 60
8:00—Let's Listen to Opera
10:00—Ten O'Clock Report
10:15—Concerto for Human Voice and Radio Transmitter
10:45—Hillside Jazz
11:15—News
11:20—Campus News
11:25—Quiet Hours
11:55—Preview
12:00—Sign off

Saturday

6:00—Dinner Hour
6:55—Campus News
7:00—Canadian Drama
7:30—Vistas of Israel
7:45—One More Step
8:00—Masterwork
10:00—Ten O'Clock Report
10:15—Pete Ivey News
10:30—Quiet Hours
10:55—News
11:00—Campus News

B.U. Professor To Address Tagore Society On Friday

A noted Indian interpreter of East-West Relations, Dr. Amiya Chakravarty, will be the main speaker at a meeting of the Tagore Society, at the Louis R. Wilson Library Assembly room, Friday, December 8 at 8 p.m.

He will speak in commemoration of the birth of Rabindra Nath Tagore in 1861. The Centennial of Tagore's birth is a matter of world-wide celebration this year.

Tagore was a winner of the Nobel Peace Prize and was a philosopher whose ideas helped shape modern thought.

Dr. Chakravarty's subject is "International Significance of Tagore's Works and Ideas." He is a member of the faculty of Boston University.

Dr. Chakravarty, who is at present teaching Comparative Oriental religions and literature, has numbered among his closest friends and confidents many of the world's greatest leaders of thought and life. He was an intimate of Mahatma Gandi, a secretary of Dr. Rabindranath Tagore during 1926-33, and visited Dr. Albert Schweitzer in Africa in 1955, and also Boris Pasternak in 1959.

JAZZ TONIGHT
YE OLDE TAVERNE

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

STUDY IN SOUTHERN FRANCE
FRENCH LANGUAGE and LITERATURE
EUROPEAN STUDIES

An academic year in Aix-en-Provence for undergraduates.

Institute students enrolled at the University of Aix-Marseille; founded in 1409.

Classes in English or French satisfying American curriculum requirements.

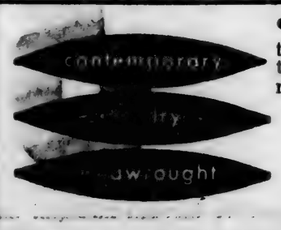
Students may live in French homes.

Tuition, trans-Atlantic fares, room and board, about $1,850.

For further information, write airmail to:

INSTITUTE FOR AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES
aff. University of Aix-Marseille
21 rue Gaston-de-Sporta
AIX-EN-PROVENCE France

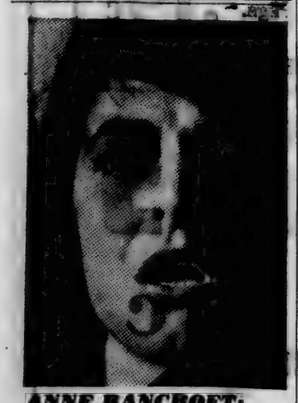
FRESH CHRISMAS CANDY
Pangburn's Chocolates
Pecans or Almonds
SUTTON'S
Phone 942-5161
Gift Wrapping
Gift Wrapping For Mail



christmas shopping???
the only—but only place for the individualistic, the imaginative, the incomparable—
charles hopkins
of Chapel Hill
designer/craftsman
(over sutton's)

JUST RECEIVED

Large shipment of Bass Weejuns—Both Men's and Ladies, All sizes and colors
LACOCK'S
Shoe Store
E. Franklin St.



ANNE BANCROFT: BEATNIK OR BOMBSHELL?
Anne Bancroft earns over $150,000 a year—yet eats in Times Square cafeterias. And she's probably the only gal in Hollywood to turn down a starring role opposite Frank Sinatra. Meet the star of "Miracle Worker" in this week's Post.
POST

Marlboro—
campus favorite in all 50 states!

...It's a top seller at colleges from U.S.C. to Yale
...and 1st in the Flip-Top box in every single state

If you think you're seeing more Marlboro men lately, you're right. More than 25,000 smokers all over the country are switching to Marlboro every month!

You'll know why when you try them.

Marlboro is the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste. The secret of the flavor is the famous Marlboro recipe from Richmond, Virginia... and the pure white Selectrate filter that goes with it.

Try Marlboro and judge for yourself. On or off campus, you get a lot to like.

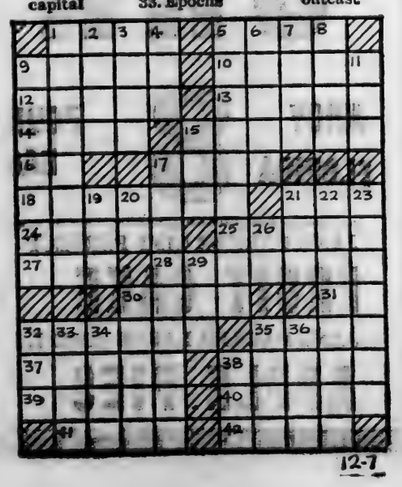
Flip-Top box or King-size pack

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Political contest
5. In a line
9. In Buenos Aires, "Mr."
10. Egg-shaped fruit
12. Speak
13. Similar
14. Raised
15. Subsided
16. Jumbled type
17. Heehaw
18. Caesar's
21. Marry
24. Baking chambers
25. Actor Spencer
27. Golf term
28. Breach of faith
30. Dullard
31. Symbol for sodium
32. Cause to remember
35. Biblical country
37. Species of African antelope
38. Fragrant oleoresin
39. Lily
40. Blouselike garment
41. Observed
42. —— Templeton

DOWN
1. Poker stake
3. Girl student (colloq.)
4. Blunder
6. White gypsum
7. Pass on
8. Leave out
9. Aroused from sleep
11. Story within a story
11. Actor —— Sparks
15. Scotch alder
17. Native of Massachusetts' capital
19. Exclamation
20. At home
21. Verb form
22. Utilitarian
23. Pertaining to physical forces
26. Sun god
29. Gun (slang)
30. Sacred book
32. Fabulous bird
33. Epochs
34. Distance measure
35. Jewish month
36. Sand dune (Eng.)
38. Japanese outcast

Yesterday's Answer



12-7

Campus Briefs

(Continued from Page 1)

All students who have not picked up their Yack proofs should do so immediately. Anyone desiring pictures taken by Yack photographers should leave his name, address, and a description of the pictures wanted at the Yack office.

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will meet at 265 Phillips Hall, Tuesday, Dec. 12. Professor Eugene R. Long will talk on schedule control of operant behavior in children, and Professor Halbert B. Robinson will talk on concept formation.

A collection of the graphic art of Edvard Munch is now being shown in the Ackland Art Museum.

The Carolina Forum committee meets Friday at 3 p.m. in Roland Parker I, GM.

James Holmes, graduate scholar in the Department of Music, will present an organ recital Sunday at 4 p.m. in Hill Hall.

The Alliance Francaise of Chapel Hill will meet Sunday night at 7:30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Daniel on Gooseneck Road.

The junior class cabinet will meet Sunday at 3 p.m. in the TV room of GM.

The Hillel Foundation will hold a dance in conjunction with the girls from Woman's College, Saturday at 7 p.m. There will be an admittance charge of 50 cents at the door.

Computers And Astronomy Speech Topic

Jon Annis Stewart of the Auburn University Computation Center will speak on computers and astronomy on Thursday, December 7, at 4:30 p.m. in room 310 Phillips Hall.

The title of Stewart's address is "The Use of the Computer as a Logical Tool in Astronomy."

Stewart received the M.S. degree at Indiana University in 1958. He has been pursuing research in astronomy and on computers and in linguistics research on the computer.

It Pays To Advertise!

BASEBALL IS NOT OUR NO. 1 SPORT!

So says the owner of the Washington Redskins. He lashes out at baseball ("it's cooked"). Basketball ("the public doesn't care"). Boxing ("doesn't even deserve to be called a sport"). And, in this week's Post, he tells why football is tops.

The Saturday Evening POST

If career planning has you in a fix, maybe you should investigate the many advantages of life insurance selling. It may be right in your line.

Provident Mutual is looking for the college man with ability and imagination—we don't need experience. And if you're interested in actual sales training, you can get started now—while you're still in college.

RALPH S. BENDER
Campus Superviser
157 E. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill
Phone 942-2869

PROVIDENT MUTUAL
Life Insurance Company
of Philadelphia

TV Schedule

WTVD, Channel 11
6:00—Leave It to Beaver
6:30—Your Esso Reporter
6:40—Weather
6:45—Douglas Edward & the News
7:00—Ozzie and Harriet
7:30—Frontier Circus
8:30—Bob Cummings Show
9:00—The Investigators
10:00—Dick Van Dyke
10:30—Window on Main St.
11:00—Phillips 66 News
11:15—Star Theater
"Saturday's Hero"

WRAL, Channel 5
6:00—Cap'n 5
6:05—Stateline
6:20—Viewpoint
6:25—Weather
6:30—Reeve with Sports
6:45—Huntley-Brinkley Report
7:00—Sea Hunt
7:30—Bachelor Father
8:00—Donna Reed
8:30—Dr. Kildare
9:30—Hazel
10:00—Sing Along with Mitch
11:00—Dateline
11:10—Sportsline
11:15—Jack Paar

WUNC, Channel 4
6:00—Chronicle
6:45—Chronicle
7:15—Phys. Science
8:00—Stones' Story
8:15—Darkroom
8:30—Research
9:00—Amer Memoirs
9:30—Free China
10:00—Sign Off

OVER FIFTY YEARS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Average earnings of production workers have risen from $10 to $90 a week during the last 50 years, the Labor Department reported Tuesday. It noted that the average work week in factories dropped from 51 to less than 40 hours.

ATTLEE IN HOSPITAL

AMERSHAM, England (UPI) — Former Prime Minister Earl Clement Attlee, 78, was under treatment in Amersham General Hospital today for a reported stomach ailment. He was admitted to the hospital Tuesday and was placed in a general ward where national health service patients are treated.

— CLASSIFIED ADS —

THE TIME TO BUY INSURANCE is before you think you can afford it. For a sound review of your security plans call a Northwestern Mutual agent. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. Telephone 942-6966.

FOR SALE: 1954 OLDS SUPER 88. 2 dr. Hardtop. All power. Radio and heater. Must sell fast $225. Call Howard Schweitzer or James Druker at 968-9025.

20TH ANNIVERSARY THIS WEEK

CAP On Missions Search For Orphans, Jet Bombers

The Chapel Hill Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol is celebrating the twentieth anniversary of the national group this week.

Although not yet two years old he Chapel Hill Squadron has participated in over twelve search and rescue and Civil Defense missions. These missions have run the gamut from looking for five lost orphans to searching for downed B-52 jet bombers carrying nuclear weapons.

Since the beginning of this semester the Chapel Hill Squadron L-16 liaison aircraft has been flown approximately twenty-five hours on authorized Air Force missions, while pilot and observer personnel flew between fifty and seventy-five man hours on these same missions. These figures do not take into account the time spent in practice and the thousands of hours put in by other North Carolina Wing personnel and aircraft during the same period.

Search Area

The first air search this fall found the C.A.P. members assigned a search area forty miles wide and stretching from Fayetteville in the south to Danville, Va. in the north, part of the proposed flight path of a B-52 bomber returning to Seymour Johnson following Operation Sky Shield. The second mission led Chapel Hill personnel to Asheville where they flew in mountainous terrain while searching for an aircraft flown by Professor Johnson from N.C. State College.

While the Chapel Hill Squadron has an L-16 aircraft on loan from Group VII Headquarters in Henderson, N. C., the pilots in the squadron may be called upon to fly any one of five or six different types of aircraft currently used by the C.A.P.

To maintain pilot proficiency in these different aircraft the Chapel Hill Squadron has an aircraft exchange program with other squadrons in the state which enables the pilots to fly and remain familiar with many aircraft.

Exchange Agreement

At present the Chapel Hill and Durham Squadrons have an exchange arrangement allowing the Durham pilots to retain proficiency in the L-16 while Chapel Hill pilots are becoming familiarized with the L-5 aircraft which, as well as being a liaison aircraft, can be used to carry a litter patient for rescue and evacuation operations.

AAUP President Speaks Friday

Ralph F. Fuchs, national president of the American Association of University Professors is the principal speaker for the Fall meeting of the UNC chapter of the AAUP, Friday at 8 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of the Morehead Planetarium, it was announced today by Professor C. P. Manire (bacteriology), president of the UNC chapter.

A professor of law at Indiana University, Prof. Fuchs will speak on "Some Current Problems of the Academic Profession." Professor Fuchs has long been concerned with problems of academic freedom.

The meeting is open to all faculty members.

PRESENT CHRISTMAS TREES

SEIBU, Japan (UPI)—For the eighth year in a row this town of 6,000 has cut down its finest white spruce trees as a Christmas gift to Johnson U.S. Air Force Station 40 miles northwest of Tokyo.

MIT Professor Will Address Planners' Forum

Kevin Lynch, Professor of Planning at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will address the Planners' Forum today at 4 p.m. in Ackland Art Center 115.

The public is invited to attend the lecture which is the first in the Forum's Winter Series.

Lynch attended Yale and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and studied under Frank Lloyd Wright at Taliesin. In 1947 he received a graduate degree in planning from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Since 1948 he has been on the teaching staff at MIT and a consultant to numerous institutions and communities. He has also been the co-director of a five-year Rockefeller research project on the perceptual form of the city.

Lynch has written extensively on urban form. His latest book, "Image of the City," is an analysis of the elements of urban design.

LEAVES AFTER DELAY

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — Nobel Peace prize winner Albert Lutuli left Wednesday for Oslo to accept his 1960 Nobel Peace prize award after a delay of 17 hours. Lutuli and his wife spent the night at Jan Smuts Airport after the plane which was to have flown them out to London Tuesday turned back shortly after takeoff because of a pressurization fault.

WORK FOR IDLED

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (UPI) — The American Car & Foundry Co. said today that 400 to 500 furloughed workers at its plant here would be recalled temporarily after Jan. 1 to complete a new hopper car order from the Seaboard Air Line Railroad. Seaboard, with headquarters at Richmond, Va., has ordered 150 steel-covered, 70-ton hopper cars.

REVIVES "E" FLAG

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy Tuesday revived the "E" flag that flew over factories which make production records in World War II. The symbol will now be awarded to plants contributing to increased American exports.

AWARD FOR GOLDBERG

NEW YORK (UPI) — The annual John Dewey award of the United Federation of Teachers will be presented here March 3 to Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg, it was announced Tuesday. The federation executive council said Goldberg has been "an eloquent spokesman in behalf of collective bargaining for teachers."

TOOTH

HORSHAM, England (UPI) — Six-year-old David Roberts lost a tooth so he stuck it under his pillow hoping the "fairies" would take it and leave a sixpence coin. When he woke up the tooth was gone but there was no coin. The tooth had wriggled into his ear. He was operated on Tuesday to have it removed.

Spiders are near-sighted.

Semi-Annual
FALL and WINTER
Shoe Sale

Our fine selection of famous name dress shoes reduced

16.88 to 9.88

MADEMOISLLE (formerly to 21.95) Now 12.88 to 16.88
PARADISE (formerly to 17.95) Now 12.88 to 14.88
CAPEZIO (formerly to 17.95) Now 12.88
TOWN & COUNTRY (formerly to 13.95) Now 10.88
DOLMODES (formerly to 12.95) Now 9.88
DOLMODE LIZARDS (formerly to 16.95) Now 13.88

Castuals and Flats
5.88 to 9.88
Formerly to $12.95

J. B. Robbins
SHOE SALON

Grandma Moses · Dr. Seuss · Shirley Temple · Alfred Hitchcock · Dennis the Menace

The Intimate Bookshop Presents . . .

Our CHRISTMAS Selection of CHILDREN'S GIFT BOOKS
FOR ALL AGES $1 and up

FOR ALL AGES

ALFRED HITCHCOCK'S HAUNTED HOUSEFUL
224 Spooky stories about haunted houses and ghosts for young spine-chiller fans, by such well-known writers as A. Conan Doyle, Elizabeth Coatsworth & Mark Twain. Hard bound; 256 pages. Illustrated. $3.95

LIFE IN THE ANCIENT WORLD
733 An exciting, large, de luxe volume — illustrated with color drawings and photos — describing the daily lives of people living in the fabulous kingdoms of Mesopotamia, Crete, Greece, Egypt, Palestine and others. Ages 11 and up. Size: 8½ x 11; over 200 pages. $4.95

GRANDMA MOSES STORYBOOK
720 A huge (10 x 13) gift book for 6- to 12-year-olds. Thirty full-color reproductions of the works of this beloved American painter, with stories and poems from the pens of America's great writers. Over 200 pages. Hard bound. $5.95

QUESTION & ANSWER BOOK OF EVERYDAY SCIENCE
781 Simple explanations and full-color illustrations answer questions like "Why is the sky blue?" and "What makes it rain?" Ages 5-9. Size: 8¼ x 11¼. Hard covers. Only $1.95

BIG BOOK OF THINGS TO DO AND MAKE
702 Amusing projects for 4- to 8-year-olds. How to make bead necklaces, paperbag puppets, mobiles, many other things. Large size: 8¼ x 11¼. Hard covers. Illustrated in color. Only $1.95

AGES 5 to 8

BEGINNER BOOKS $1.95
The books, started by Dr. Seuss' Cat in the Hat, that help teach a child to read by himself, and like it! Beginning readers love the color pictures, large size (6¾ x 9¼), funny stories. Hard covers. $1.95 each
B24 MORE RIDDLES BY BENNETT CERF
B20 GO, DOG, GO!
B22 LOOK OUT FOR PIRATES!
B16 GREEN EGGS AND HAM (Dr. Seuss)
B18 ARE YOU MY MOTHER?
B11 BENNETT CERF'S BOOK OF LAUGHS
B2 THE CAT IN THE HAT COMES BACK (Dr. Seuss)
B15 BENNETT CERF'S BOOK OF RIDDLES
B10 STOP THAT BALL!
B3 A FLY WENT BY
B13 ONE FISH TWO FISH RED FISH BLUE FISH (Dr. Seuss)
B7 YOU WILL GO TO THE MOON
B17 PUT ME IN THE ZOO
B6 SAM AND THE FIREFLY
B1 THE CAT IN THE HAT (Dr. Seuss)
B19 TEN APPLES UP ON TOP
B23 A FISH OUT OF WATER
B21 LITTLE BLACK, A PONY

EASY-TO-READ SCIENCE BOOKS $1.95
Introductory science books, with simple explanations and many diagrams and pictures for ages 6 to 9. Size: 6¾ x 9¼; hard bound. Only $1.95 each
R22 THE STORY OF ELECTRICITY
R20 THE STORY OF NUMBERS
R16 SATELLITES IN OUTER SPACE
R14 THE STORY OF THE ATOM
R11 IN THE DAYS OF THE DINOSAURS
R12 SIMPLE MACHINES & HOW THEY WORK
R10 THE SUN, THE MOON & THE STARS
R4 YOUR WONDERFUL WORLD OF SCIENCE
R13 ROCKETS INTO SPACE
R21 DANGER! ICEBERGS AHEAD!

DR. SEUSS BOOKS $2.95
New Dr. Seuss Laugh Hit!
THE SNEETCHES AND OTHER STORIES
89 Just Published! A new collection of Dr. Seuss stories, full of the fun and colorful pictures that have made Dr. Seuss the #1 children's author. Large size: 8¼ x 11; hard covers; ages 4 to 9. $2.95
OTHER DR. SEUSS FAVORITES: $2.95 each
76 HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO YOU
81 IF I RAN THE ZOO
87 YERTLE THE TURTLE
80 IF I RAN THE CIRCUS
78 HORTON HEARS A WHO
84 ON BEYOND ZEBRA
77 HORTON HATCHES THE EGG
79 HOW THE GRINCH STOLE CHRISTMAS
83 McELLIGOT'S POOL
85 SCRAMBLED EGGS SUPER

FAVORITE PICTURE BOOKS $1
Great children's classics adapted for beginning readers in huge, colorful picture books. 8½ x 11¼. Hard covers. $1 each
X 637 BLACK BEAUTY
X 679 ROBINSON CRUSOE
X 646 DANNY KAYE'S STORIES FROM MANY LANDS
X 689 WIZARD OF OZ
X 631 BAMBI'S CHILDREN
X 645 DANNY KAYE'S STORIES FROM FARAWAY PLACES
X 638 HEIDI
X 677 ADVENTURES OF ROBIN HOOD

AGES 8 to 12

ALLABOUT BOOKS $1.95
Simple explanations — fully illustrated with drawings, diagrams, photos — of the wonders of science and nature. Large size: 7 x 9¼; 160 pages each; hard bound. Come in to see our complete selection. Only $1.95 each
A37 ALL ABOUT SOUND & ULTRASONICS
A33 ALL ABOUT THE PLANETS
A35 ALL ABOUT UNDERSEA EXPLORATION
A28 ALL ABOUT SATELLITES & SPACE SHIPS
A1 ALL ABOUT DINOSAURS
A10 ALL ABOUT THE ATOM
A23 ALL ABOUT ELECTRICITY
A2 ALL ABOUT RADIO & TV
A32 ALL ABOUT ARCHAEOLOGY
A39 ALL ABOUT THE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
A27 ALL ABOUT THE HUMAN BODY
A7 ALL ABOUT THE STARS
A24 ALL ABOUT SCIENTIFIC EXPEDITIONS
A9 ALL ABOUT CHEMISTRY
A13 ALL ABOUT ROCKETS & JETS
A36 ALL ABOUT GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERIES
A38 ALL ABOUT THE U. S. NAVY

LANDMARK BOOKS $1.95
Famous people and moments of history re-created for young people (9 to 14) by world-famous authors. 192 pages each; illustrated in two colors; hard bound. Choose from many more in our store! Only $1.95 each
L96 GREAT AMERICAN FIGHTER PILOTS
L95 THE COPPER KINGS OF MONTANA
L94 PEARL HARBOR TO OKINAWA
L89 STORY OF THE U. S. AIR FORCE
L70 THE WEST POINT STORY
L46 THE F. B. I.
L91 HEROINES OF THE EARLY WEST
L62 D-DAY: JUNE 6, 1944
L55 GUADALCANAL DIARY
L72 THE TEXAS RANGERS
L90 SWAMP FOX OF THE REVOLUTION
L75 STORY OF THE SECRET SERVICE
L84 STORY OF U. S. NAVAL ACADEMY
L98 WILLIAM PENN
L97 STORY OF U.S. COAST GUARD
L79 REMEMBER THE ALAMO!
L82 STORY OF THE PARATROOPS
L35 THIRTY SECONDS OVER TOKYO
L67 WYATT EARP: U. S. MARSHAL
L24 THE STORY OF THE U. S. MARINES
W47 RISE & FALL OF ADOLF HITLER
W42 JESUS OF NAZARETH
W8 ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE
W22 THE FRENCH FOREIGN LEGION
W48 STORY OF ATOMIC ENERGY
W5 KING ARTHUR & HIS KNIGHTS
W50 CLEOPATRA OF EGYPT
W40 GREAT MEN OF MEDICINE

THE AMAZING ADVENTURES OF DENNIS THE MENACE $1.95
710 Brand-new stories about the TV menace's adventures (lion-hunting, helping Mr. Wilson re-seed a lawn, and other lively escapades). Hard covers; size: 8½ x 11¼. $1.95
Don't overlook . . . 712 — THE DENNIS THE MENACE STORYBOOK . . . $1.95

SHIRLEY TEMPLE EDITIONS
Stories from the films that made her famous, with photographs of Shirley in her leading roles. Now in hardbound editions.
720 SHIRLEY TEMPLE'S STORYBOOK $3.95
730 THE SHIRLEY TEMPLE TREASURY 3.95
X1 HEIDI 1.25
X3 REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM 1.25
X5 CAPTAIN JANUARY & THE LITTLE COLONEL 1.25
X2 THE LITTLEST REBEL 1.25
X4 SERGEANT OF THE MOUNTIES 1.25
And don't forget . . . 707 — DANNY KAYE'S AROUND THE WORLD STORYBOOK . . . $4.95

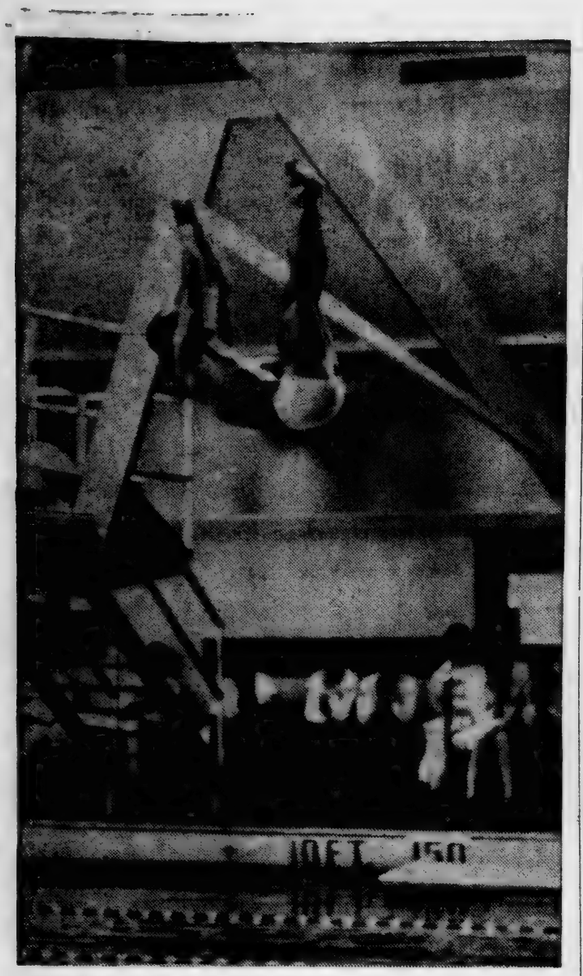
WALTER FARLEY BOOKS $2
Classic horse-and-adventure stories for 9- to 14-year-olds, each a thrilling and heart-warming tale of nature for young people. Hard bound; each 256 or more pages; illustrated. $2 each
F15 THE BLACK STALLION & FLAME
F1 THE BLACK STALLION
F14 THE HORSE TAMER
F8 THE ISLAND STALLION
F12 BLACK STALLION'S COURAGE
F13 THE BLACK STALLION MYSTERY

PRE-SCHOOL

THE LONELY DOLL LEARNS A LESSON $1.95
356 Charming photographs of the doll and her cuddly animal friends acting out an instructional story in this delightful picture book. Large size: 9¼ x 12½; hard covers. Only $1.95

GIANT PICTURE BOOKS Only $1
Large, full-color pictures entice pre-schoolers to these favorite stories they love to hear over and over again. Marvelous books for bedtime, rainy day reading. Large size: 8¼ x 11¼; hard covers. Only $1 each
X672 POEMS TO READ TO THE VERY YOUNG
X688 THE WILD & WOOLLY ANIMAL BOOK
X660 HERE COMES PETER COTTONTAIL
X681 SHIRLEY TEMPLE'S FAIRYLAND
X629 ANDERSEN'S FAIRY TALES
X665 MOTHER GOOSE
X627 ALICE IN WONDERLAND
X639 THE BLUE FAIRY BOOK
X685 SHIRLEY TEMPLE'S STORIES THAT NEVER GROW OLD
X657 GRIMM'S FAIRY TALES
X683 SHIRLEY TEMPLE'S FAVORITE TALES
X673 READ-ALOUD NURSERY TALES
X667 ONCE-UPON-A-TIME STORY BOOK
X644 SHIRLEY TEMPLE'S NURSERY TALES

The Intimate Bookshop 119 E. Franklin, Chapel Hill—9424658
Please send immediately the children's books whose numbers I have written in the boxes below.
NAME
ADDRESS
CITY STATE
Charge my account C.O.D.
Check or money order



HIGH IN THE AIR—No, Doug Fambrough isn't swinging from one of the supports in Bowman Gray Pool. He's doing one of the dives that helped him to a first place here Friday against VMI. Fambrough, a junior from Chapel Hill, is expected to be one of the top ACC divers this season.—Photos by Harry W. Lloyd.

Earey Sizes Up Swimming Team After First Meet

'A Close Meet Like That One Will Help Us'

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

The Carolina swimming team, fresh from an opening victory over a surprisingly tough VMI squad, goes after their second win of the season tomorrow night against Clemson College at Clemson.

Coach Pat Earey's tankmen, who were given a big scare in that first meet and looked sluggish at times, nevertheless, came in for nothing but praise from Earey.

"VMI was much stronger than we expected, and we weren't really ready for that tough a meet. We had not had too much time for conditioning and it showed up—especially in the distance events. But there are four boys who will either make or break us this year. They are Barry King in the butterfly, Jim Huffman in the backstroke and freestylers Bryan Williams and Don Murray. If these fellows perform up to expectation on other "keys" to the team this year. "We of course expect big things from co-captains Bob Bilbro in the freestyle sprints and Bob Briggs in the breaststroke. They definitely were the better-conditioned team and were really up for us. However, I thought we did very well and I know that this experience of having a close meet and having to come from behind to take it, will help us in the future," he said.

Carolina, with sophomore speedster Thompson Mann winning his backstroke specialty and anchoring both relay teams, defeated tions, we will be very tough to beat."

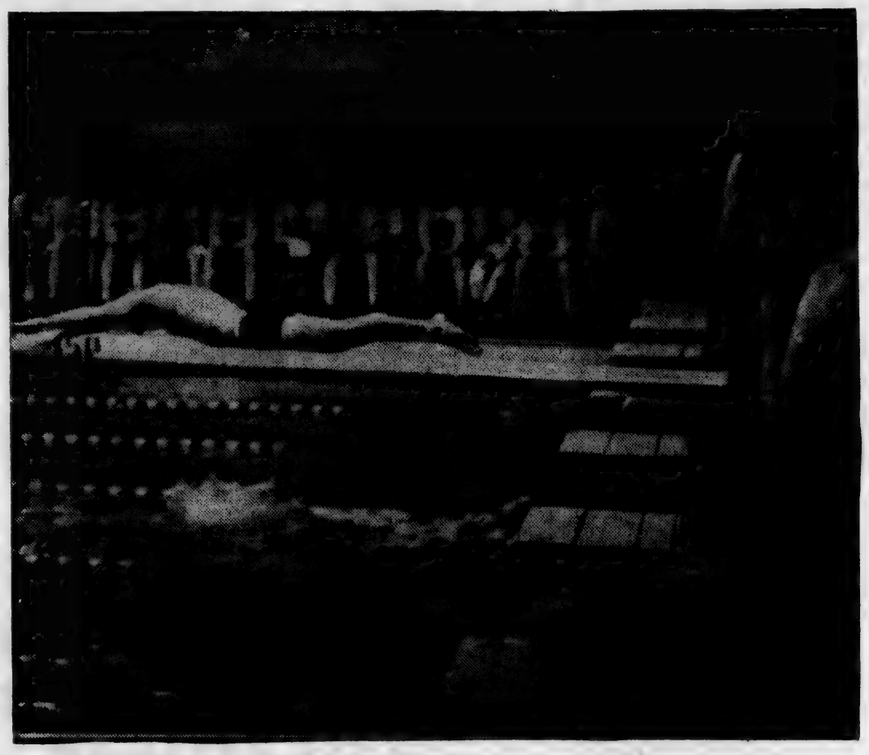
King, Williams, Bilbro and Willie Bloom—a junior sprinter—made up the Tar Heel 400-yard freestyle relay team which set an ACC record last year of 3:26.5. With Murray and Mann ready to go in this event also, Carolina's mermen display considerable depth—something Earey has lacked in past seasons.

"Our relay teams are our strongest point," the red-haired New York City native says. "We also have two fine divers in Doug Fambrough and Sandy Patterson and they will get us a lot of points this year."

Earey sees no challenge to his charges until late in the season.

"We should have an easy time up until the first two weeks in February. We are pointing to that period when, within ten days, we face Florida, Maryland, North Carolina State, and finish it off with the ACC championships. Of course, last Friday night surprised me and there could be others, but I hope not."

Carolina returns home next Wednesday to face Duke at 4:00 in Bowman Gray Pool.



BIG LEAD FOR UNC—His opponents watch enviously as Bob Briggs, Carolina breastroker, dives in for the second leg of the 400 yard medlay against VMI. Tagging for Carolina is backstroker Thompson Mann, who had just finished his leg and had given Briggs a good lead to work on. Carolina won this event in 3:59

Field Is Narrowed In Grail Tourney

By JOHN MONTAGUE

Thirty-two teams swept successfully through the second-round of play in the Grail-Mural Holiday Basketball Festival Tuesday, and the field was narrowed to half that number yesterday.

In Tuesday's action, Thomas of the Dental School No. 1 team set the scoring high for the tourney so far, pumping in 21 points as his team routed the Grimes Greasies, 41-14. Junior Edge hit for 19 and Bob Lacey for 17 to pace Parker Pound to a 46-14 romp over the Joyner Slobs.

D. Johnson scored 18 points for the Stacy Studs, but his team went down to a 33-32 defeat at the hands of Alexander. Other top point productions of the day came from Doug Pearson (15 points as the Ruffin Rutes downed the Phi Kap Sig Phantoms, 27-18), Jerry Evans (16 points as the Phi Delt Owls downed the Avery Ovaries, 39-28), and Phil Thomas (16 points as the PiKA Pouts downed the Pi Kap Phi Losers, 32-12).

Wednesday's results will be published in tomorrow's DTH. Here are the complete results of Tuesday's games:

First-Round Games

Cobb Squirrel Shooters 39, Grimes Grimies 14; Kap Psi Celtics 21, Tau Mu 13; Parker Pack 21, ATO Hardwoods 19; Lamb Chi Kangaroos 18, Aycock Hounds 17; DU Tigers 23, Zeta Psi Nudes 7; AK Psi Runts 24, Sig Chi Trolls 5; SPE Pledges 32, DKE Traf Monsters 18; ATO Babies 19, ZBT Zebras 5; Dental School No. 2 31, ZBT Zygotes 8; Winston Quacks No. 5 16, Joyner Jocks 15; Phi Gam 2, DKE Dogs 0 (forfeit).

Second-Round Games

BRACKET I: Sig Nu Blue 31, Mangum Mau Maus 8; History 24, ATO Blue 20; Everett Rogahs 15, Beta Smegas 12; Med School 23, AK Psi Spooks 11; Cobb Squirrel Shooters 30, Chi Psi Pouts 16; Delta Sig Rogues 25, ATO Babies 14; Winston Quacks No. 5 19, Phi Gam 13; Old West Bandits 18, Kap Psi Celtics 16.

BRACKET II: Winston Whirlies 13, Kap Psi Pills 11; Delta Sig Bombers 36, Pi Lamb Polecats 12; Phi Kap Sig Fearsome Five 28, Navy Whites 17; Dental School No. 1 41, Grimes Greasies 14; Mangum Mavericks 23, Sigma Nu Hounds 21; Town Touts 36, Avery Aardvarks 22; Chi Psi Hustlers 39, KA 11; SAE 27, AFROTC 16.

BRACKET III: Alexander 33, Stacy Studs 32; Old West Gars 21, ATO Rinky Dinks 13; Kap Sig Warriors 24, TEP Go 21; Parker Pound 46, Joyner Slobs 14; PiKA Pouts 32, Phi Kap Phi Losers 12; Phi Delt Owls 39, Avery Ovaries 28; DU Warriors 32, Zeta Psi Blue 19; Sig Chi Zunts 35, Peacocks 23.

BRACKET IV: Sigma Nu Snorts 12, Phi Delt Nudes 8; NROTC Blue 21, Chemistry 17; Ruffin Rutes 27, Phi Kap Sig Phantoms 18; Avery Addicts 18, Manly Riverrats 17; Dental School No. 2 28, SPE Pledges 11; Phi Delt Joints 21, Lamb Chi Kangaroos 12; AK Psi Runts 14, DU Tigers 12; Parker Pack 23, Library 13.

Monogram Club Meeting At 7:30

The UNC Monogram Club will meet tonight at 7:30 for a short business meeting, President Joe Davies announced yesterday. Plans for the meeting include discussion of ways to decorate the club room.

RETAINS NUCLEAR FORCE

LONDON (UPI) — Earl Mountbatten, chief of Britain's defense staff, said Wednesday Britain is determined to keep an independent nuclear striking force for at least 20 years more.

Smith Predicted 1-Point Win—

Clemson Crowd Tough, Too

By MARTIN KRUMING

As head coach Dean Smith has maintained all along, the teams outside the "Big Four" this year will be rougher than ever.

Smith's Tar Heel basketball team found out Tuesday night how tough one of them, Clemson, can be. The Tigers clawed all the way before losing in the final two seconds, 54-52, before a screaming sellout crowd. The game was the 23rd straight that the Tigers have lost to Carolina, but was the closest in a long time.

Commenting on Tuesday night's thriller, Smith firmly believed that it was the wild, pro-Clemson fans that put a clamp on the Tar Heels' defensive and offensive maneuvers. Even when the 1957 championship unit, headed by Lenny Rosenbluth, played in the Clemson Field House, a great handicap was the deafening noise. As for such an inexperienced team as the 1961-62 varsity, this "tough" crowd was almost too much to cope with.

UNC struck early in the first quarter and was leading by six points, 32-26, at halftime. At one time during the second quarter the Tigers were trailing by thirteen points. It was then, according to Coach Smith, that his players lost their poise and began playing a defensive game rather than an offensive one. They became so anxious to protect their large lead that they played a too overly cautious brand of ball.

When the second half opened the Clemson fans saw an entirely new Tiger squad come on the court. Gone was the loose zone defense and in its place was a tight man-to-man press which completely harrassed the Tar Heels.

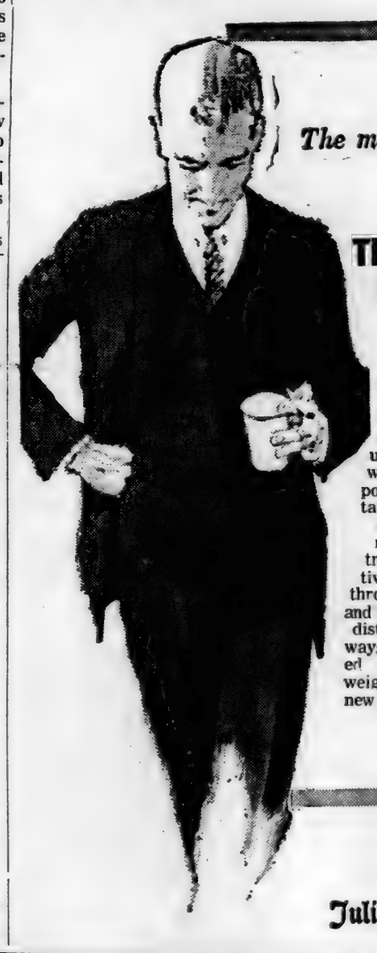
Finally, with 27 seconds remaining in the contest, Clemson's 6'2" sophomore, Nick Milasnovich, evened the score at 52-52 on two free throws. But moments later Dieter Krause, a 6-5 junior from Norfolk, Virginia, took a pass from Donnie Walsh and hit for two points. The ball game was won.

Although Dean Smith claims that he always expects victory, he forecasted that the Clemson game would be decided by only one point. The team has been practicing for seven weeks prior to the Clemson tilt and had worked on every known offensive pattern and defensive strategy. But as Dean Smith says, "there is always the element of surprise."

Looking ahead to the Indiana game next Monday night at 8:00 in Greensboro, Smith predicts a real tough encounter. The Fightin' Hoosiers were ranked in the top ten last season and are described as one of the real powerhouses in the nation this year. With the exception of 6-10½ center Walt Bellamy, who joined the Chicago Packers of the American Basketball League this season, Indiana has every other starter returning. Dean Smith promises this game to be a good battle and urges all Carolina fans to try and make it.

After the contest with the Hoosiers, the Tar Heels do not resume action until January sixth when they engage the Fighting Irish from Notre Dame at Charlotte. Their next ACC game is with Wake Forest at home on February 10th.

"MY VIEWS ON BERLIN"
Dwight D. Eisenhower
This week Eisenhower speaks his mind on the Berlin crisis. He tells why the Russians have stepped up the pressure. Whether, in his opinion, they will risk nuclear war. And how each of us can help stave off nuclear war. Read this week's Saturday Evening Post.
The Saturday Evening POST



The man to watch wears a
TRADITIONAL BLUE
Naturally
Perhaps the most useful suit in your wardrobe. Fine imported blue worsted tailored for Julian's in their authentic natural shouldered tradition. A distinctive suit to see you through most business and social tradition. A distinctive . . . Always correct, in muted plaids, fine midweight worsteds & the new Grey Flannel.
$79.50
Julian's College Shop

Sale
SPORTSCOATS
GALORE
AT
THE HUB
FREE SIX-PACK
With every jacket a six-pack of your favorite brew.
Our complete stock of 225 sportcoats are marked down for this tremendous pre-Christmas sale.
Everything the heart desires. Including harris tweeds and imported 100% wools. All shades and patterns, olives, greys, browns, and blues.
Large Selection at $24.88
Others
$26.88
Shop Today While The Selections Lasts
THE HUB
of Chapel Hill
103 E. Franklin

Open Every Nite 'til 9:00
(except Sat. nites)
until Christmas
L P ALBUMS
25 % off
★ Best Variety
★ Complete Stocks Latest Releases
The Record Bar
Cor. Church & Parrish Sts., Downtown Durham

Carolina
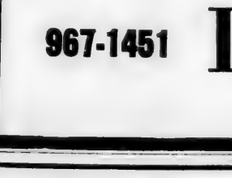
NOW PLAYING
"The Virgin Spring"



INTER-NATIONAL PIZZA WEEK
Tuesday - Friday
It is with a great deal of pleasure that LA PIZZA announces the Annual INTERNATIONAL PIZZA WEEK—In Honor of the Great American institution—PIZZA PIE. LA PIZZA invites you to join them in celebrating this gala event—To commemorate this occasion, these SPECIAL PRICES are offered!

	Small	Large
Plain	.75	1.25
Ground Beef	1.00	1.65
Pepperoni	1.00	1.65
Sausage	1.00	1.65
Mushroom	1.00	1.65
Green Pepper	1.00	1.65
Anchovy	1.00	1.65
Olive	1.00	1.65
Onion	1.00	1.65
Added ingredients	.10	.20

Delicious Salad, Ravioli, Spaghetti, Garlic Bread, Best of Sandwiches, Beverages to your liking, special prices for Carry-Out and Delivery too!
967-1451 LA PIZZA 967-1451
Open from 5 p.m. - 1 a.m.

Stevens—Shepherd's Gift Suggestions

6' Mufflers	$5.95	Ladies' Shetland Sweaters	$13.50
Billfolds	$5.00 & up	Worsted Flannel Skirts	$11.95
Leather Gloes	$5.95	Oxford B.D. Blouses	$4.00
Oxford B.D. Shirts	$5.00	Ladies' Weejun Loafers	$11.95
Lambswool Sweaters	$13.95	Batik Squares	$3.95
London Fog Raincoats	$25.95 & $32.50	Immersion Heaters	$2.50
Imported Shetland Sport Coats	$39.95 & up	Hosiery	$1.00 & up
Vinyl & Leather Men's Luggage	$26.95 & up	Neckwear	$2.50
Chesterfield-Styled Men's Topcoats	$65.00 & up	Belts	2.00 & up

STEVENS-SHEPHERD

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

63

Pure, Simple Boredom
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Fair and continued cool with high temperatures in the 50s.

Offices in Graham Memorial | FRIDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Servic

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Reds Call Nehru "Liar"

NEW DELHI—Communist China Thursday accused Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of lying, lacking moral courage and "pursuing an unfriendly policy" in the Sino-Indian border dispute. The attack, one of the most bitter ever made by Peiping against any foreign leader, also accused India of preparing to "invade and occupy Chinese territory" along the border.

In the past two days, Nehru twice has threatened to go to war as last resort to protect India's northern frontier from Chinese incursions.

The attack was broadcast abroad by Peiping's New China news agency. It quoted a Foreign Ministry statement, a "strong" protest note sent last month to India and the official newspaper People's Daily.

★ ★ ★

300,000 Commie "Spies"

NEW YORK—Assistant FBI Director William C. Sullivan said Thursday that the worldwide Communist spy network is manned by some 300,000 intelligence and undercover agents working through more than 37 secret organizations.

One of the chief targets of this sprawling apparatus, Sullivan said, is American industries with classified government defense contracts.

The FBI official told the National Association of Manufacturers' 66th annual congress of American industry that Communist espionage agents obtained valuable intelligence data through attendance at scientific and industrial meetings, by the exploitation of published technical material and even from the government printing office.

★ ★ ★

Unemployed Drop Sharply

WASHINGTON—The nation's nagging unemployment problem improved for the first time in a year last month when the seasonally adjusted jobless arte dropped sharply, the Labor Department anThursday.

Expressing administration elation, President Kennedy reported the figures to the AF-CIO convention in Miami a few hours before the department announced the unemployment rate drop here. "And we're going to get it down lower," he told the cheering meeting.

The department's manpower expert, Raymond D. Larson, predicted that the rate would go down "moderately in the future."

The number of Americans holding jobs stood at 67.3 million last month, a record for November but 500,000 less than in October.

★ ★ ★

Katangese Fire On U.S. Plane

ELISABETHVILLE—Heavy Katangese rifle and machinegune fire hit a U. S. Globemaster transport and set it on fire Thursday, and the U. S. Air Force abandoned its airlift of troops and supplies to the Elisabethville combat zone.

The gigantic plane landed safely with flames streaming from an engine when it received several hits in a gasoline tank and one engine as it circled low over the embattle city on a flight from Leopoldville with U. N. supplies. The 12 crewmen were uninjured.

Professor Calls Many Students 'Unteachables'

Ten per cen of all the students at Carolina are unteachables, a University professor said here Tuesday. "At the age of eighteen hey are rigid and inflexible and already have a closed mind."

Assistant Professor of English Donald K. Springen made the remark while addressing 100 men and women on the problem of oral communications, at the third annual Hospital-Executive Development Institute meeting here.

"Argument thrives on advocacy," Mr. Springen said. "A person has already made up his mind and is now ready to persuade others that his system is the right system.

"If you really want to understand another person's point, you must be humble-minded, have a respect for human personality, overcome the conviction that you know best, and rid yourself of all irritations at another's manner or approach.

This works, he said, whether the argument is between two people or over the Berlin wall.

Dr. William J. Daniel, UNC professor of psychology, addressing an afternoon session of the Hospital Institute, defined the advent of "machine education" as the most revolutionary change in education since the rotary press.

Some teachers are opposed to the program, he said, because they are afraid they will be replaced. "Any teacher who can be replaced ought to be," he said. "Actually, a system of programmed instruction (machine instruction) would leave them free to do what they rarely do now—teach!"

Prof. Daniel said that most teachers now, especially in grammar schools, were simply "drill-sergeants."

"Education is the only commodity that a student pays for that he wants as little of as possible," the psychologist said. "What we do to stifle and kill and misdirect the resources we all have in our publis schools is phenomenal. No good business would stand for the kinds of things that our schools insist on."

Ford, Taylor Stars In Two Weekend Flicks

Tonight's free flick will be "It Started with a Kiss," starring Debbie Reynolds, Glenn Ford and Eva Gabor.

The comedy portrays an Air Force sergeant who finds that his bride is endangering his career and his sanity. It is a "zany romp through the foibles of military and newly-wedded life off-post in Spain."

Saturday night academy award winner Elizabeth Taylor will star in "The Last Time I Saw Paris," one of her earliest movies.

Flicks will be shown at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall and ID cards are required.

HONOR LECTURES—Jey Deifell, left, and George Campbell, chairman of the Honor Council, discuss plans for the current series of talks on the honor system. Deifell heads the committee which is explaining the honor system to fraternity, sorority and dormitory groups on campus.—Photo by Mangum.

YM-YWCA Host To N.C. Orphans

By MARTIN KRUMING

On Sunday afternoon at approximately 2:00 a busload of twenty boys and twenty girls, ranging in age from eleven to thirteen, from the State Catholic Orphanage in Raleigh will arrive on the Carolina campus as guests of the YMCA and the YWCA.

Betti Brown and Bruce Cooper, co-chairmen of the YWCA and the YMCA Orphanage Committee, will serve as hosts for the two groups.

After their arrival at the Tin Can, the girls will be shown the Ackland Art Center, the Morehead Planetarium, the Arboretum, and other points of interest on campus.

For the boys, Cooper has a special treat in store. They will be escorted to one of the athletic fields where quarterback Ray Farris and other members of the varsity football team will conduct a special football clinic. Although the lads are a little young, they will be given tutoring in the art of passing, blocking, punting, and pass catching.

Towards the end of the afternoon, the youngsters will be taken to Graham Memorial where they will have a delicious dinner of fried chicken, sandwiches, and cokes and a Christmas party featuring the popular Mexican game in which all the children dance around a large bag filled with treasures and try to break it. At five-thirty all this will come to an end when the children board their bus in the Planetarium parking lot and return home.

Commenting on this special event, Cooper emphasized that "the committee members should get to know the kids and make them feel at home." Also, he mentioned that "the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity pledge class devised the idea, but it is strictly a YMCA-YWCA affair."

PLEAD GUILTY

LONDON (UPI)—Two teen-age brothers who claim membership in Britain's ban-the-bomb nuclear movement, pleaded guilty Wednesday to manslaughter charges for exploding a home-made bomb which killed a man. They will be sentenced later. Their ames were not disclosed.

Infirmary

Students in the Infirmary Thursday were Mary Jo Bender, Jacqueline Beza, Sharon Weeldreyer, James Roark, James Eller, John Kimblle, Walter Honour, Frank Dunn, William Dover, William Spencer, Gloria Alphin, Leila Major, Julia Humphreys, Helen Palmatier, Suzanne Luter, John Fisher, Litchfield Huie, Richard Edwards, Julian Bradley, Phillip Adams, John Jennings, Robert Hinnant, Robert Singletary, Oscar Harriss, Mrs. Agnes Little, Helen Martin, Catherine Johnson, Sam Barfield, Bonn Gilbert, Roger Bisson, William Garrard, Robert Deal, Theodore Bobbitt.

PLANNING VISIT

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. and Mexican officials are discussing arrangements for a visit by President Kennedy to Mexico in the latter part of January, White House officials said Wednesday.

Planning for the visit, first disclosed earlier this week in connection with the President's December trip to Colombia and Venezuela, has not reached the stage of setting a firm date, the officials said.

High Court Action Won't Apply Here

W.B. Aycock Says University Is OK

By TOM LEONHARDT

Chancellor William B. Aycock said yesterday that the Supreme Court ruling that the Constitution requires a hearing before students may be expelled from a tax-supported college for misconduct will effect the University, "Not at all."

Monday, the Supreme Court upheld the decision handed down by the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit on August 4 concerning the expulsion of six students from Alabama State College, a Negro institution in Montgomery.

The siv, St. John Dexon, Bernard Lee, Marzette Watts, Edward English Jones, Joseph Peterson and Elroy Embry, were expelled on March 4, 1960 for their alleged participation and leadership in a sit-in and other mass demonstrations at Montgomery and Tuskegee, Alabama.

Letter From President

A letter to the students from the college president, H. Councill Trenholm, cited the college's right to expel students "for conduct prejudicial to the school" and "unbecoming a student or future teacher in schools of Alabama, for insubordination and insurrection, or for inciting other pupils to like conduct."

Federal Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. of Montgomery upheld the expulsion but the Appeals Court reversed him on a divided vote.

Witnesses' Names

According to the Appeals Court, each student of a tax-supported college or university should be given the names of witnetsses against him, a report on the facts to which each witness testified, and a chance to present his defense.

Chancellor Aycock said that UNC will not be affected at all because no Carolina student is ever denied the due processes of law.

Confronted with the Doug Moe "question" the Chancellor made it quite clear that after the Men's Honor Council ruled Moe's case out of their bounds Moe was given further opportunity for review and appeal but respectfully declined.

FREEMAN TO SPEAK

CHICAGO (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman will be the featured speaker next Tuesday at the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation here.

The farm organization meeting will start next Sunday and will run through Thursday. Some 5,000 delegates and guests are expected to attend.

XMAS XPRESS

RIDES

MERIDEN, Conn. — Via NEW YORK CITY, four riders, leaving Monday, December 18, call Peter Ford, 968-2441, 6-7 p.m., will divide expenses.

NEW YORK CITY—Two riders, leaving 8 p.m., Wednesday, December 20, call Louise or Glenn Colby, 942-4717, after 5:30.

ATLANTA — Leaving December 16, call J. M. Womack, 325 Teague, 968-9157.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (and en oute)—Leaving December 15 or 6, contact Fran Stallings, 310 Connor or 23 New East Annex.

NEW YORK CITY AND BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Four riders, leaving Friday, December 15, 12-1 p.m., share expenses. Call Ron Orovan, 303 Ruffin, 968-9182.

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. or NEW YORK CITY — Leaving Dec. 15th. Call Ciaran Mercier, 207 Aycock, 968-9158.

AUGUSTA OR COLUMBUS, GA. —One rider, leaving Thursday, December 14, Beverly Bernier, 968-9168, share expenses.

NEWARK, NEW JERSEY or vicinity — Mark Greenberg, leaving noon Friday, December 15, 122 Cobb.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Need three riders. Call Howard Holsenbeck, 306 Stacey, 968-9112. Leaving Saturday, Dec. 16.

(Continued on Page 3)

Action Needed On National Defense Education Loans

Harold Weaver, manager of student loan funds, yesterday announced that all students indebted to the National Defense Loan funds or the University Loan Funds must complete necessary forms before they leave the University.

"The responsibility for this requirement," said Weaver, "is that of the borrowing student only and is a basic requirement in the terms and conditions of the National Defense Loan agreement."

Failure on the part of a student to check with the manager of the Loan Funds office in person before his separation, places him "in neglect of the requirements and may seriously jeopardize any benefits, rights, or privileges he may be entitled to under the terms of the Act for repayment."

Weaver said that all students, indebted to the Loan Funds, and who plan to leave the University this semester, should call him at 301 Bynum Hall.

Noted Speaker To Keynote Meet Of Tagore Group

Dr. Amiya Chakrabarty, noted interpreter of East-West relations, will be the main speaker at a meeting of the Tagore Society in the Assembly Room of Louis R. Wilson Library tonight at 8 p.m.

His speech, "The International Significance of Tagore's works and Ideas," will be in commemoration of the birth of Rabindra Nath Tagore in 1861.

Tagore was an Indian philosopher whose ideas helped shape modern thought. He was a winner of the Nobel Peace Prize for Literature, and the Centennial of his birth is being celebrated worldwide this year.

B. U. Professor

Dr. Chakrabarty is presently teaching Comparative Oriental religions anr literature at Boston University. He is the author of numerous literary books, the most recent one being the "Tagore Reader."

He has been Adviser to the Indian Delegation at the U.N.O., and a Delegate to many UNESCO conferences. In 1958 he was one of two participants from the United States at the South-East Asian Round Table Conference held in Bangkok.

Dr. Chakrabarty has traveled extensively throughout the world, with Dr. Tagore, meeting the top national leaders everywhere. In lecturing and teaching in America, Dr. Chakrabarty is making a contribution to our efforts at world peace. The tack of interpreting Indian and Asian democracy to the West, he feels, is an urgent one.

Students, Faculty To Read Papers At Chem. Meet

Eighteen faculty members and students from the Department of Chemistry at the University here presented eleven papers at the annual Southeast and Southwest regional meeting of the American Chemical Society, held jointly at the Jung Hotel in New Orleans December 7-9.

Eleven UNC teachers and one graduate student attended the three-day meeting.

University faculty members attending include Prof. Horace D. Crockford, chairman of the UNC Chemistry Department; Sheppard Tyree Jr., Professor of Chemistry; Edwin C. Markham, Smith Professor of Chemistry; William F. Little, assistant professor and Assistant to the Dean of the Graduate School for Research Administration; Royce W. Murray, assistant professor; Richard G. Hiskey, assistant professor; James L. Coke, instructor; and Kenan Professor Oscar K. Rice.

Research Associates attending include Drs. Harry B. Mark Jr.; D. A. Aikens and Sammy M. Harner. James Long, a graduate student, will also attend.

Highlight of the ACS meeting was the presentation of the Southern Chemist Award. The award, granted yearly to an individual for outstanding work in chemistry teaching or industrial chemical work, is one of the most significant of its kind.

Dr. Crockford served as chairman of the Nominating Committee for the meeting.

UNC Chemistry professors submitting papers include Drs. Mark, Murray, Aikens, Tyree, Little, Hiskey, Jung, Charles N. Rilly, D. W. Rogers J. P. Collman, and J. A. Montgomery

Faculty News

Lucie Jessner, M.D., psychiatry professor, will chair a panel discussion section at the annual meeting of the American Psychoanalytic Association, today through Sunday at the Biltmore Hotel in New York City.

Dr. Jessner will head a discussion entitled "Classical Forms of Neuroses in Infancy and Early Childhood."

Other members of the Department of Psychiatry attending the meeting are Professors Milton L. Miller, M.D., and D. Wilfred Abse, M.D.; Associate Professors John A. Ewing, M.D., and James T. Proctor, M.D.; Assistant Professor David F. Freeman, M.D.; Clinical Instructor James Earl Somers, M.D.; Instructors Francis J. Kane Jr., M.D.; and Marianne S. Buslin, M.D., and Clinical Professor David A. Young, M.D.

• • •

Prof. Richard Jamerson of the Physical Education Department in the School of Liberal Arts will preside at the meeting of the State Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation being held today in Charlotte.

Jamerson is the 1961 president of the association.

Other UNC participants in the program will be Dr. Marvin Allen, Miss Frances Kellam and Dr. Ruth Fink. Topics include therapeutics, intramural and outdoor recreation, and the requirements of physical education in school curricular.

• • •

The Book-of-the-Month Club of the McGraw-Hill Book Co. in New York has selected "Route Surveys and Design" by Kenan Professor Emeritus Thomas F. Hickerson as their book of the month.

Dr. Hickerson's professional work in highway location and construction has earned for him an international reputation.

"Route Surveys and Design" relates to highway construction, and is particularly valued by engineers.

Noted Jazz Artist Sarah Vaughan Billed In Durham

Sarah Vaughan, jazz artict, will make her first appearance in Durham in concert at the North Carolina College gym next Wednesday at :15 p.m.

Miss Vaughan, coming direct from a brilliant six-week engagement at the Flamingo in Las Vegas, will be backed by her own troupe of nine jazz instrumentalists.

Tickets for the concert are priced at $1.50 for college students. They can be obtained at Kemp's, or in Durham at the Covenant Book Room, the Record Bar. Eckerd's, Biltmore Drug Store, Parker Drug Store, and College Inn.

Musical Excitement

The singer has attracted the excitement of the musical world from the time of her first appearance as an amateur in a talent show in Harlem's Apollo Theater, at the age of sixteen. She was hired immediately by bandleader Earl Hines as his vocalist and pianist, and served a brief apprenticeship in the next three years with the bands of Billy Eckstine and John Kirby.

Training in timing, technique, and showmanship made Sarah Vaughan "top star material," and sales of her first record, "It's Magic," shot over the two million mark.

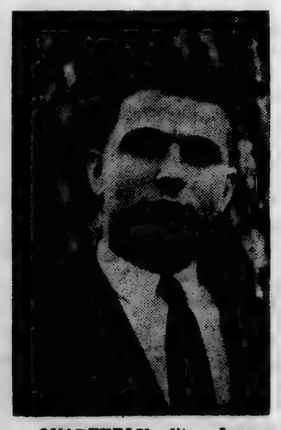
She was an established recording artist and turned out such hits as "Poor Butterfly," "Don't Blame Me," "Body and Soul," "I've Got a Crush on You," and "I Cover the Waterfront."

Her albums have been stamped as classics by critics and collectors from their first appearance.

"Sarah Vaughan at Mister Kelley's," "No Count Sarah," and others capture the genius of phrasing and sense of rapport with the consistent winner" of popularity polls as the nation's top feminine vocalist.

Recently married to former professional football player Clyde Atkins, Miss Vaughan will be accompanied to Durham by her husband.

Carolina Quarterly Out Tomorrow; Each Issue Has Individual Cover



QUARTERLY editor, Jerome Stern yesterday announced that the Carolina Quarterly will go on sale tomorrow. The literary magazine boasts a "broad range of fiction and poetry," and will be on sale at many campus locations.

The Carolina Quarterly's winter issue comes out tomorrow boasting 64 pages of stimulating short stories and poetry by well-known writers, plus an editorial on the impact of politics on public universities.

The Quarterly covers, each of which has a separate design, have had an enthusiastic response from two art professors, who called them "strikingly original with wonderful color," and "very good prints." Art instructor Robert Barnard and his art 45 class printed the 700 covers by hand from linoleum blocks.

The editorial, "Politics and Public Campuses," attacks the "ivory-tower-nose-in-the-air attitude" of both students and faculties, while revealing the relationship of politicians and pedagogues.

Fiction includes "The Photograph," by Guy Owen, a UNC graduate, whose novel "Season of Fear" was well received last year. Although Owen has national prominence, his story is regional in flavor and considered by some universal in significance.

"The God Stone" explores the conscious through the subconscious with lucidness. Its author, Hugh MacEachern, is taking Jesse Rehder's honors course in writing.

Fleece Soul

"This challenging experimental story," said Jerome Stern, Quarterly editor, "explores the different ways man attempts to flee his own soul."

"The Roses Are Dying" is a calculating story of personal involvements in an academic community. A. Farrell Borenstein of Baton Rouge, La., depicts the academic world.

Gary Elder's "Lady Fogelsang's Passage," story of two boys and a horse, is described by Stern as "richly and sensitively told in an immediate style."

John Gutknecht, studying for a Ph.D. in zoology, the author of many articles on radioactivity's effect on salt water and an experienced trackman, has written an autobiographical account of his feelings and thoughts during a long distance race. "The Invisible Thread" is a different type of sports story.

Surprising Maturity

Dudley Carroll and Kenneth Karcher's poems show surprising maturity for undergraduates, Stern said.

"Lee Jacobus, Fred Moeckel and George Cuonio have been widely published in other magazines," he added. Fo rrange of subjects and maturity, "the dozen or so poems are the finest collection in the Quarterly for years," he said.

"I think that with such a broad range of fiction and fine poetry, we'll surely sell out the entire issue," said Stern. Our subscription drive has been very successful-totaling more than 300—and campus response to the Quarterly is on the upswing. I'm astounded at the show of interest by so many people. Our efforts have really paid off."

Campus Briefs

All students who have not picked up their Yack proofs should do so immediately. Anyone desiring pictures taken by Yack photographers should leave his name, address, and a description of the pictures wanted at the Yack office.

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will meet at 265 Phillips Hall, Tuesday, Dec. 12. Professor Eugene R. Long will talk on schedule control of operant behavior in children, and Professor Halbert B. Robinson will talk on concept formation.

A collection of the graphic art of Edvard Munch is now being shown in the Ackland Art Museum.

The Carolina Forum committee meets Friday at 3 p.m. in Roland Parker I, GM.

James Holmes, graduate scholar in the Department of Music, will present an organ recital Sunday at 4 p.m. in Hill Hall.

The Alliance Francaise of Chapel

(Continued on Page 3)

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 8, 1961 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLIX, No. 63

Pure, Simple Boredom

The Interdormitory Council Court a few days ago handed down a one-semester suspension from University housing to a student found guilty of exploding a firecracker in front of a dormitory.

The sentence is now the minimum possible for such infractions under a new IDC ruling intended to make it easier to crack down junior demolition experts.

Although the sentence could be interpreted as a boon to its recipient — living in some of UNC's dorm rooms is about the closest thing to real punishment we can think of — it is indicative of the growing problem the IDC has in trying to keep some faint semblance of order. The penalties meted by the IDC court have been getting necessarily stiffer. And chances are they will get worse before any real results are evident.

The problem in the dormitories is beyond question the greatest one faced by student government. For every infraction, major or minor, met and dealt with by IDC, probable twenty more cannot be traced or acted upon.

And it would make little difference if they were. The real problem in dormitories lies outside the power of judicial action to combat. Living in most of UNC's dormitories is a boring, noisy, frustrating experience. The rooms are crowded and sterile. Most of the buildings are designed so that an ordinary whistle in the hall becomes as distracting as a trumpet blast.

Small wonder that some occupants feel moved to set off a minor explosion or two every now and then. It's surprising that someone hasn't undertaken a more adventurous project in the art of applying explosives.

Many of the problems purely physical in nature and impossible to alleviate by means other than construction of more liveable, less crowded facilities. These improvements can come only so fast as money can be acquired.

Others could be made more readily. The conversion of basement storage into recreational areas, for instance, could be carried out with a minimum of imagination and energy. Some progress has already been made along these lines.

The administration could do a great service by loosening the tired old restrictions concerning women in men's dormitories. The present ruling which prohibits women from entering men's rooms is based on Victorian morality and the belief that every sister and daughter at UNC is dying to be seduced and needs only to be admitted to a male's dormitory for the outrage to be consummated.

A loosening of restrictions would do a thousand-fold more toward eliminating explosions that an endless list of restrictions and penalties.

Most of the dorm infractions stem from pure and simple boredom. Eliminate that first, then worry about firecrackers.

Maybe then there will no longer be a cause for worry.

Textile Tariff Cuts

President Kennedy's proposal for tariff reductions when the reciprocal trade agreements act expires next June was, understandably enough, not welcomed with open arms in the textile regions of North Carolina.

Already suffering from the influence of Japanese textile imports, the ailing textile industry in the state could well be expected to look with disfavor on plans to kick the props further out from under it.

Although the probable overall long-range effects of an across-the-board tariff cut would be beneficial, the havoc it could wreak in the textile belt can be imagined. Already operating on a dangerously thin and unsteady profit margin, textiles would be unable to survive any serious adjustments in the tariff structure. Even paring down tariffs slowly would be bound to cause some creaks and shudders.

Sen. Prescott (R.-Conn.) in condemning the propose deuts this week pointed out that serious internal disorders are the inevitable outcome when major industries in a given area are suddenly stifled, even if only partially.

This could happen if in North Carolina textile areas a program of tariff lowering is not approached slowly and judiciously.

Lucky Tar Heel

The luckiest man in North Carolina today is Hugh Lefler, University of North Carolina historian.

He edited a paperback book titled "A History of the United States from the Age of Exploration to 1865." It is a collection of historical documents and had attracted virtually no attention until a teacher in Levittown, N. Y., decided to censor four of its pages which dealt with the New England custom of bundling.

Now the book has gotten a whale of a lot of publicity. That means a lot of people will buy it who otherwise would never have heard of it. It even means that all the high school students in Levittown, who until now wouldn't have read the book except under extreme academic duress, will read it.

All this means that Dr. Lefler will have additional royalties from the book to help pay his Christmas bills. And as anyone who has Christmas bills coming in, that is really good news.

Censors always end up adding greatly to the popularity of anything they try to censor.

—Raleigh Times

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARJORIE ANN REYNOLDS
Associate Editor

LLOYD LEWIS
Executive News Editor

BILL HOGE
Managing Editor

GARRY FRANCHARD
Assistant Editor

JIM CLOSMANN
Assistant to the Editor

STEVE VAUGHN ..... News Editor
NANCY BAER, LINDA CRAVOTTA — Feature Editors
HARRY W. LAUGHTER ..... Sports Editor
DAVID WYSONG ..... Subscription Manager
JIM EDMISTON ..... Circulation Manager
ED DUPREE ..... Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE ..... Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MAYHEW ..... Advertising Manager

The Daily Tar Heel is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $9 per year.

The Daily Tar Heel is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the Associated Press of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

..Can We Hear The Warning..

"December 7, 1941—What is that? Oh? When the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor? Gee! I wonder who is going to be in the Rose Bowl this year? I believe it'll be . . ."

Yes, these are the sounds of the "Soaring 60's". These are the sounds of today. There are other sounds, though. Sounds almost as silent as a whisper, and as deadly as a malignant disease. "What is this sound?" one might ask. It is the sound of our planet Earth slowly, but surely and completely going over to the Godless Mongrels—the Godless Communists.

"But we'll stop them!!", a proud American says. Yes, we'll stop them—like we did in Hungary; like we did in Cuba; and like we are doing in Berlin!! When our proud American hears these statements he has no comeback, so he manufactures one: "Our Government is doing all it can do—after all, we can't chance war; we can't just rush in; our best policy is to be nice; not to threaten power."

* * *

YES, OUR best policy is not to let these threatened countries, that Communism has on the menu for supper, believe that there is a country that would dare face up to the might of the "great and good Communists"—not to give free or near-free people on this half-free Earth any hope of achieving human beings' natural desire: to live in a free world void of fear!!

This proud American is right—we should give in to the Communists on all fronts and in all ways possible.

If this policy is followed, I guarantee this will end all wars, or threats of wars; because the Communists would need no war to make their plans of world domination complete!! Right now, they are causing Americans to hide in shelters to escape the damages that this "Great and Mighty Power" threatens us with if we dare raise a finger to stem their advances—much like ostriches hide their heads in sand whenever danger threatens. But this hiding helps not the ostrich when a hungry lion is hunting for food, because the lion devours the hiding ostrich. The hungry lion is not devoured; he is not even harmed by the scared ostrich. Instead, he is heralded and respected by all other animals, and given the title "KING OF BEASTS," mainly because he knows what is right and doesn't let anything come before his following-through with his plans. But the ostrich, who hides; who doesn't stand up for his rights attains no respect, only pity; and achieves no title, except coward.

* * *

THE UNITED STATES, the great harborer and protector of freedom, has its head in the sand. We have failed to come to the aid of the peoples in Hungary; we have failed to come to the aid in Cuba; we have failed to come to the aid in Berlin—we have failed to come to the aid of HUMANITY!! And just as sure as the ostrich was eaten by the lion, we are destined to lose this Earth to a Godless clan of people.

The President will then not have to worry about getting re-elected (thus not have to worry about holding back on the needed "Get-Touch Policies," which might make his electors mad); religions will no longer have to fear each other more than they do Communism (because there no longer will be religions to fear); and fall-out shelters will be a thing of the past (which would save us money, if indeed we were allowed to keep any).

* * *

THE PROUD AMERICAN then speaks up: "You are making this a lot more serious than it is; the Communists will never try to take us over!!"

Yes, and on a Sunday afternoon in 1941, an American at Pearl Harbor heard planes above him in the clear sky, and uttered the words: "They can't be the enemy, because they would be foolish to try anything." Those were his last words.

If all us Americans will be silent for a minute we can hear a small plane above us; barely audible, but coming our way. The date: December 7, 19——.

M. Wilson Article Epitome Of The Narrow-Minded?

To the Editor:

My general impression of Martin Wilson's last article, "Please Somebody Say Where We Stand" is that it is the epitome of his usual conservative narrow-mindedness. An analytical study of this article reveals two things. First, while quick to criticize the way the leaders of this country handle various problems, Mr. Wilson either doesn't care to or neglects to propose his own ideas. Secondly, those ideas which he does whole-heartedly or half-wittedly venture to propose are usually so prejudiced as to be completely irrational. For instance:

* * *

1. He says that American government should be resolute, etc. But what principle? This Mr. Wilson conveniently neglects to tell us. Even he should realize that in this fast-moving day and age there is no one principle, not even conservatism, that could be efficiently employed in solving the tremendously diverse problems faced by this nation today. Each is unique in its own way, and must be solved accordingly. No one principle will do for a guide; what is sometimes good sauce for the goose may make the gander sick.

2. I gather from this article that Mr. Wilson strongly disapproves of this country's agreement to negotiate the disarmament question. This brings to mind two questions of my own. What would you have us to do, Mr. Wilson? Refuse to talk over the situation and give the Russians the best propaganda material since the U-2 incident? Another thing—why does the mere agreement to talk with the Soviets constitute, as you imply, a concession to them? Why this country did not even agree to a test moratorium during the talks.

3. In regard to his attack on former President Eisenhower's use of Federal troops in Little Rock—Mr. Wilson fails, as usual, to look at the problem objectively. Suppose Arkansas and Orval Faubus had gotten away with their clear defiance of the Federal law involved. How would it have looked to other countries? One thing is certain—it would not have bolstered our prestige any. On the local level, it would not have had any more deleterious effect than to make a complete farce of the Constitution and our Federal system of government.

* * *

4. Mr. Wilson not only disagrees with Eisenhower's action in Little Rock, but he even goes so far as to say that it was absolutely illegal!

This seems completely absurd. Are National laws not supreme over state laws as the Constitution says? Does the Chief Executive not have the power to enforce these laws, as delegated to him by the Constitution? If Eisenhower's act was illegal, then why was he not prosecuted?

5. Mr. Wilson stated that the use of U. S. troops in Budapest would have insured the freedom of the Hungarians, and that Mr. Eisenhower was absolutely wrong in not sending them. Does the President have an obligation to risk a war with the Soviet Union by directly supporting insurrections against it, especially when no formal treaty obligation on our part is involved? If he does, then Mr. Khrushchev was wrong in not sending Russian troops to the aid of Governor Faubus in Arkansas.

6. Mr. Wilson's remark about Eisenhower holding both Southerners and the Constitution in contempt, as a result of his actions in Little Rock and Budapest is completely without basis. Why does Mr. Wilson think that Eisenhower would have hesitated to use troops in northern cities if the situation had required it? The use of the troops in Little Rock was at the worst an error in judgment on the part of the President. This kind of criticism from Mr. Wilson's pen serves only to publicly reveal his somewhat paranoiac nature and reflects nothing on its intended target.

In summary, I should like to say a few words about Mr. Wilson's devout belief that Conservatism, Goldwater, Thurmond, and Byrd are the answer to the nation's prayers and a ready solution to all its problems. As I see it, this is definitely not the road to follow, nor is Liberal extremism, nor is any other belief that has no regard for any one else's points of view. Any attempt to resolve the problems of the country by using a set table of answers, whether conservative, moderate, or liberal, is to invite discontent, disorder, and disaster.

LEE GARDNER, JR.

"I help to support the establishments I have mentioned; they cost enough, and those who are badly off must go there."
—A Christmas Carol

U.S. Xmas: Commercial Carol

This is the time of year when cities throughout the United States adorn themselves with the exterior ornaments of Christmas. Multi-colored lights are strung between telephone poles along sides of streets. Nativity scenes sprout up on the lawns of various churches. Christmas trees, holly, and mistletoe appear before grocery stores and on vacant lots.

Store windows become plastered with Christmas sales' advertisements and Christmas music is piped into the stores. Crowds fill the stores to overflowing capacity in quest for the commercial bounty of Christmas.

The spirit that prevails through this time of the year is neither one of giving nor one of receiving. It is instead one of buying, buying, and more buying. And what is there to buy? In the United States the answer to this question is—practically everything.

So this "obsession to buy" goes on its frantic, fever pitched pace until the last moments of Christmas Eve. Of course by the time all the stores close, the traditional office party is hitting its full stride, and there is plenty of booze to fortify everyones' Christmas spirit.

* * *

WHILE THIS activity is occuring the children throughout the United States nestle down in their beds with a thousand and one ideas jumbled in their minds concerning the meaning of Christmas which they picked up from their parents, radio, T.V., movies, advertisements, and finally the Bible.

Is Santa Claus (sic) the same as Jesus? Is there really a Santa Claus? Is there really a Jesus? Did Mary and Joseph know about Rudolph or Frosty, the snowman? Why didn't the Wise Men give Jesus a cap pistol or a scale model rocket ship instead of that other stuff? Did Jesus ever dream of a white Christmas?

These are some of the questions that might possibly puzzle the children for a brief moment before magical dreams overtake their minds.

* * *

THE ADULT, once over his hang over, the exhauston of Christmas shopping, and the pressure that comes from what some call an "over commercialized holiday," has no questions concerning the meaning of Christmas.

He knows that Christmas has something vaguely to do with the celebration of Christ's birthday, and it is suppose to be a day when the angels proclaimed, "Peace on earth, good will toward men." He knows that it is a day that has already been "given to us by God." But because we have no angels today and no mortals strong enough to proclaim, "Peace on earth, good will toward men," we seem to feel that we must "buy" Christmas from God.

* * *

RECENTLY IN reaction to this commercialism and buying of Christmas, the Rev. Dr. Edgar S. Brown, Jr., director of worship of the United Lutheran Church in America said, "Let the churches simply ignore the twenty-fifth of December the way most of them pass by Ascension Day." In other words he proposes to de-emphasize Christmas or sell it back to God.

The commercialism surrounding Christmas has indeed given many of our spiritual leaders headaches. But if they come to the conclusion that the best method of curing commercialism in Christmas is by de-emphasizing Christmas, then it follows that they will also come to the conclusion that the best method of curing their headaches is by simply cutting off their heads.

ALAN GOLDSMITH

Holding-Liquor Ability 2nd Only To Holding Books

The ability of the Carolina Gentleman to hold his liquor is second in importance only to his ability to hold his books.

I don't mean by that the number of books he can haul at one time from Wilson Library to, say, the Lower Quad. I mean his ability to work out a fool proof system for assuring that the reserve books he has been assigned will be available the night before a quiz.

Imagine the following situation: Prof. Boring has finally gotten around to giving his mid-term exam. Prof. Boring is one of those exasperating instructors who sometimes give mid-terms and sometimes don't, and you naturally assumed he wouldn't this semester.

You find out that you were wrong, that it's three days before the quiz and there's seven hundred pages of reading to do. That is, outside reading. (You bought the eight dollar text, but, of course, nothing in it was assigned).

The seven hundred pages is included in three books in the Reserve Reading Room. This room is sometimes known as the Place of the Three R's, or the Retching Reader's Rack.

There are two copies of each book, and all are on two hour reserve. There are fifty students in the class.

The solution? Holds.

You will need a partner, preferably one quick of feet and strong on stamina. To him you outline your plan.

The quiz is on Thursday. On Tuesday night, you check out the books. Five minutes later, your partner breezes up to the desk. If possible, he should feign surprise at being told that the books are checked out.

He places a hold on the books, assuring himself (and you) of access to them when you get through commiting to memory both of those pages of class notes you made during the year.

The next morning you return the books; he's there to receive them. Quickly the positions are reversed, and you place a hold on the texts.

Later, when he returns them—well, you get the picture.

If worked smoothly, this process will enable you to have the books until quiz time.

The only thing you have to worry about is that forty-nine other students will be trying to do the same thing.

HARVE HARRIS

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Companies Recruit

The Placement Service yesterday announced the following companies will recruit on campus next week:

Monday: United Aircraft Corp.; Aetna Surety & Casualty Co.

Tuesday: Colgate-Palmolive Co.; Union Carbide Consumer Products; Fiber Industries; American Bakeries Co.

Wednesday: E. I. du Pont de Nemours; Blue Bell, Inc.; Union Bag-Camp Paper Corp.

Thursday: Carolina Power & Light Co.; Research Analysis Corp.; Bell Telephone Laboratories.

N.C. Bishop Coadjutor Visits Chapel Of The Cross Sunday

Rt. Rev. Thomas A. Fraser, Bishop Coadjutor of the Diocese of North Carolina will visit the Chapel of the Cross, Sunday to preach and to confirm.

This is the first official visitation Bishop Fraser has made to the Chapel of the Cross, since his consecration as Bishop last year.

Before being made bishop, he served as Rector of St. Paul's Church, Winston-Salem, St. Paul's Church, Alexandria, Virginia, and was for some time curate on the staff of St. George's Church, New York City.

Bishop Fraser will preach at the 9 a.m. service of Holy Communion, and will preach and confirm at the 11 a.m. service. He will be assisted at both services by Rev. Jacob A. Viverette, chaplain, and Rev. Thomas R. Thrasher, Rector of the Chapel of the Cross.

Xmas Xpress

(Continued from Page 1)

CHICAGO or Vicinity — Contact Buddy Broome, 140 Cobb, 968-9002.

RIDERS

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. or 100-mile radius—Jimmy Burke, 304 Connor Hall, 968-9154.

NEW YORK—December 13 or 14, Michael Albright, 410 Winston, 968-9080.

PITTSBURGH — December 16, Charles Doty, Mangum, 968-9110.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—December 16, Thurman Smith, 320 Joyner, 968-9185.

COCOA, FLA.—Roger Rice, 113 Aycock, 968-9216, will share expenses.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX. or general vicinity—Charles H. Lincoln, 201 Avery, 968-9046, can leave December 16. Will share driving and expenses.

NEW ROCHELLE OR NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Rosalyn Post, December 16, 12 noon, 968-9886.

WESTPORT, CONN. or vicinity—Call Evan Harrar, 327 Avery, 968-9116. Would like to leave Friday, Dec. 15.

CHICAGO — or vicinity — Sandy Marks Jr., 942-2914 after 5 p.m., can leave Dec. 15 or 16, will share expenses.

ARLINGTON, Va. — Leonard Rogers wants ride to Arlington, Washington, D. C. or near vicinity, leaving Dec. 16. Call 968-9088 or go by 228 Cobb.

MIAMI, Fla.—Ruth Lebar and Vicki Lebar, share expenses, 942-6241.

MIDWEST (Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha, Neb.)—Sandy Hoffmann, share expenses, Smith Dorm, third floor, 968-9133.

DALLAS, TEX.—L. W. Lau, 176 Phillips Hall or call Physics Dept., share expenses.

NEW YORK CITY OR BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Ronnie Gabriel, Noon Friday or later, 408 Cobb, 968-9067, share expenses and driving.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — John Morene, December 16, share expenses, 215 Parker, 968-9140.

CINCINNATI, or Vicinity—Want to leave Dec. 15 or 16. Will share expenses, driving. Harve Harris, 968-5266.

ARLINGTON, VA. OR WASHINGTON, D. C. or Vicinity—Leonard Rogers, December 16, 218 Cobb, 968-9093.

FT. MYERS, FLA.—Tom Leonhardt, share expenses, 339 Cobb, 968-9145.

RIDES BACK

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—Wanted for two people after Christmas vacation, Harry Batchelor, 942-1725.

Campus Briefs

(Continued from page 1)

Hill will meet Sunday night at 7:30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Daniel on Gooseneck Road.

The junior class cabinet will meet Sunday at 3 p.m. in the TV room of GM.

The Hillel Foundation will hold a dance in conjunction with the girls from Woman's College, Saturday at 7 p.m. There will be an admittance charge of 50 cents at the door.

There will be a special 15-minute film on the J. Spencer Love Fellowship on WTVD-TV, Durham, at 1:30 p.m. next Sunday. The fellowship is available to male students from the southeastern U.S. who wish to attend the Harvard University graduate schools of business administration. The film will also show scenes of Harvard life and describe the program of the graduate business school.

There will be an open meeting of the University Party next Monday night at 7 in Gerrard Hall to discuss spring politics.

Interviews for the State Student Legislature will be given from 3-5 today and Friday in Roland Parker Lounge III, GM.

"Haunted House," a two-reel comedy starring Buster Keaton, and a feature film, "Mark of Zorro," the original version with Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., will be shown to members of the UNC-Chapel Hill Film Society Monday night in Carroll Hall, 8 o'clock.

OF CHAPEL HILL

christmas shopping???
the only—but only place for the individualistic, the imaginative, the incomparable—
charles hopkins
of Chapel Hill
designer/craftsman
(over sutton's)

VARSITY — EAST FRANKLIN ST.
FRIDAY

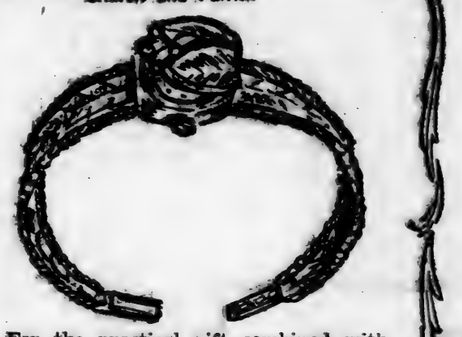
Hilarious, heart-tugging! You'll laugh... you'll cry... you'll cheer William Holden in his great Academy Award role!
Stalag 17
starring
WILLIAM HOLDEN · DON TAYLOR · OTTO PREMINGER

Coming to Durham from Las Vegas
America's Top Female Jazz Artist
SARAH VAUGHAN
and her Quintet
WEDNESDAY NIGHT
DEC. 13 — 8:15
NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE GYM
Durham
Tickets Available at Kemps
Adults $2 College Students $1.50

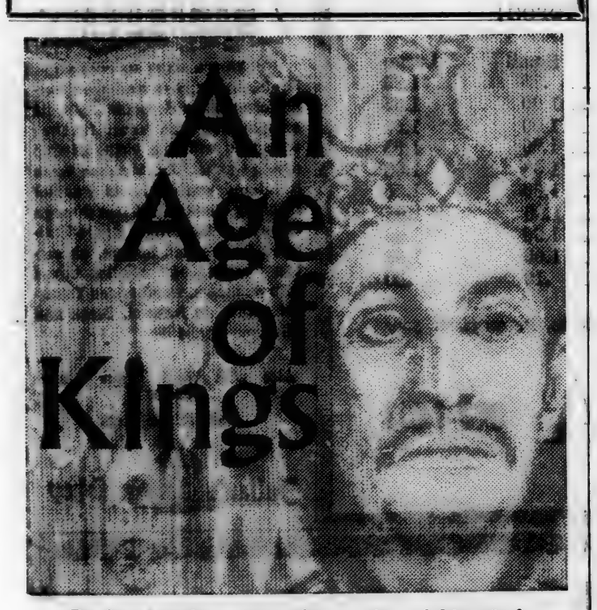
Authentic College Fashions at our Downtown Store and Northgate Shopping Center in Durham.
The Young Men's Shop
DURHAM, N.C.
STUDENTS CHARGE ACCOUNTS INVITED

JOIN THE BANDWAGON
SUBSCRIBE NOW to
The Carolina Quarterly
☐ 1 Year — $1.25 ☐ 2 Years — $2.25
Name _____
Mailing Address _____
Return this form with check or cash to the Quarterly Mail Box at the Graham Memorial Office by 5 p.m. today—(Or Mail It)
Subscribe and Save

Dr. William E. Beel
OPTOMETRIST
Above Ledbetter-Pickard
Phone 942-5260
VISION ANALYSIS
CONTACT LENSES
GLASSES FITTED

MONTALDO'S
Church and Parrish


For the practical gift combined with beauty . . . GOLD FILLED WATCH Leaf Cover handsomely studded with sapphires or emeralds—$41.50 plus tax. Come see our varied selection of gifts in all departments.
MONTALDOS—Durham

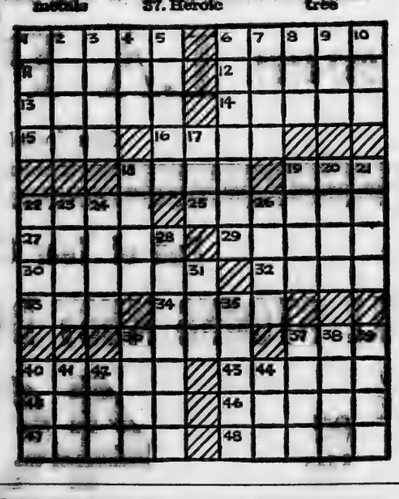


Don't miss this outstanding series of historical plays by William Shakespeare. It's a National Educational Television highlight—brought to you by HUMBLE OIL & REFINING COMPANY America's Leading Energy Company. Esso
FRIDAYS at 9:00 PM-CHANNEL 4

DAILY CROSSWORD

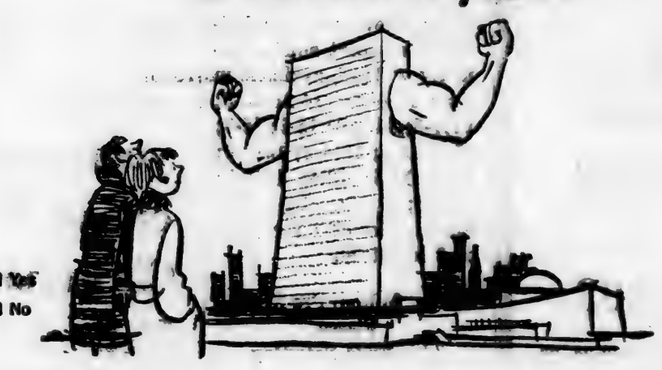
ACROSS
1. Ceases
6. A Chippewa's boat
11. Famous fabulist
12. Sheeplike
13. Blaze
14. Bishop's headdress
15. Organ of hearing
16. Warp-yarns
18. Real
19. To be in debt
22. Cat's nail
25. Road topping
27. Bank records' examination
29. Quiet
30. Blackboards
32. Inequalities
33. Drone
34. Circular form
36. Napoleon's exile Isle
37. Goddess of dawn
40. Species of African antelope
41. Greek letter
43. Thin metal disk
46. Eskimo boat
47. Directly (colloq.)
48. Twin crystal

DOWN
1. Secure
2. Brain tissue
3. Eskers
4. Lap dog (short.)
5. Fisherman's weapon
6. Long, curling waves
7. Girl's name
8. Louse egg
9. Single unit
10. Ever (poet.)
17. Polish river
18. To squeak
19. Roman poet
20. Join, as metals
21. Old measures of length
22. Ready money
23. Barn owl (Samoa)
24. First man
26. On the top
28. Effective
31. Weep
35. Calking material
38. Man's name
39. Heroic
38. Gem stone
39. Purpose
40. Goddess of harvests
41. Knock
42. Eskimo
44. Candlenut tree



NATURAL SHOULDER TOPCOATS
The smartly fitted line is a pleasant change of pace—See our choice of fabrics.
Town & Campus

Don't Spend Money on Expensive Cards Until You've Seen the FIVE CENTS CARDS at the Intimate

Check your opinions against L&M's Campus Opinion Poll 14
1 Will the U.N. grow stronger in the next 10 years?


☐ Yes ☐ No
2 Which is most important to you in picking a date...

☐ Looks ☐ Personality ☐ Intelligence
3 Do you buy cigarettes in soft pack or box?

☐ Soft pack ☐ Box
Expect more from L&M
There's actually more rich-flavor leaf in L&M than even in some unfiltered cigarettes. You get more body in the blend, more flavor in the smoke, more taste through the filter. So expect more, get Lots More from L&M. And remember—with L&M's modern filter, only pure white touches your lips.

HERE'S HOW 1029 STUDENTS AT 100 COLLEGES VOTED!
Have an L&M in pack or box
1 Yes 81% No 69%
2 Looks 19% Personality 65% Intelligence 16%
3 Soft pack 69% Box 31%
Expect more people who really like to smoke...

POGO

PEANUTS

Team Should Be Strengthened In Dash Events

Ranson Expects Talented Squad For Indoor Track Season

By ED DUPREE

"Some of our boy haven't founds their way into the Tin Can yet. They don't even know the indoor track is assembled."

Indoor track practice has been under way for well over a week and Coach Dale Ranson was quick to express his opinion on the lack of enthusiasm among his athletes. Ranson and Coach Joe Hilton have 54 freshman and 44 varsity track men signed up, or as Ranson puts it, 98 "have been equipped." Ranson hopes to pass the word along to his stragglers that work is under way.

The veteran Tar Heel coach feels that track and field affords a better opportunity for boys of all sizes, shapes, and abilities than any other sport. Perhaps the large number of football players participating in track is a good example of this. No less than six varsity gridders are members of the UNC track team.

The Carolina tracksters finished second to Maryland in last winter's indoor season. The top Tar Heels in the ACC Indoor Games then were John O'Bannon, who captured the broad jump title with a leap of 22'⅛" and Gerry Stuver, a first place winner in the 880-yard run with a time of 1:54.7.

Ranson anticipates a better track team than last year, but points out that the indoor season is basically a preparation and prelude to the more important outdoor season in the spring.

The strength of the team lies in the distance events—the 880, mile and two-mile runs. The ACC cross-country championship team will fill all the positions in these events.

Gerry Stuver, Scott Brent, Dave Brunson, and Bob Bennett are the 880 men, with Dave Peltz's return to the boards still a question mark. Stuver, Brent, and Bennett are the most experienced. Peltz was a top distance man during his sophomore year, but missed last season because of an injury. Brunson is a sophomore who turned in a good performance in his frosh season.

Rhett Everett, Charles Little, Stuver, Brunson, and Brent will probably handle the chores in the mile event while Carmine Lunetta, Mike Folk, and Charlie Tromba join Everett in the two-mile race. Coach Ranson points out that the participants in the three long races can be juggled around according to their performances.

The sprints—the 60- and 100-yard dashes—were the big problems for Hilton and Ranson last season. Tommy Brooks and Joe McLamb, a pair of football halfbacks, and Earl Evans and John McNinch will be counted on to strengthen the team in these events. McLamb is the only one of this group that isn't a sophomore.

Bob Hart is the top man in the 440- and 660-yard events, but may get some help from Evans. Hart is a junior and has experience in almost every event from the dashes on up to the mile.

Jim Brown is Carolina's top man in both the high and low hurdles. Other hurdlers are Bob Lacey, a football end; sophomore John Lindley, Wilfred Turner; and Pete Blake, a varsity soccerman.

In addition to O'Brannon,, Bill Croom, Richard Lewisohn, Ken Running, and Tom Pleasants are the Tar Heel broad jumpers. Reinard Harkema and Tom Clark, who set the freshman high jumping record last year, team up with Croom to give the Carolina squad strength in the vertical leap.

Barry Tiedemann and Heath Whittle—top performers in the pole vault—and footballer Jim Alderman, Harvey Henry, and Bill O'Neal in the shot put, round out the indoor events.

Ranson feels that he has a practice schedule lined up which will get his boys in pretty good shape. He expects his men to practice about 45 minutes a day and has practices at 2:15, 3:15, and 4:15 each afternoon.

The boys take their warm-ups outside and then follow the schedule set-up for each day, which is posted in the Tin Can. The main part of the outdoor workout, which Ranson considers the feature of the UNC track program is a set of ten 100-yard dashes before starting on the indoor track.

UNC Booters Play All-Campus Team

An All-Campus soccer team featuring ex-Carolina and Davidson booters will play Carolina's soccer squad for the third time this afternoon at 4. The Tar Heels captured the first contest, 3-1, but dropped the second, 2-1. Ville Skulason a pharmacy student from Iceland, scored both goals in the All-Campus team's victory.

Other members of the All-Campus crew are med students Charlie Whitfield, John Keither, Tom Rand, and Ben Zambrana; zoology grad students John Faucette and Koogi Kwan, who played first team at Davidson; Art Lumery, fresh-Fredamski, rdlll hrdl hrdhrdl lbgkq man soccer coach; Alex Luhoczski, Fred Parker, Henry Pharr, Robin Fawsett, Bill Grover, Coleman Barks and Frank Fish. Dick Bordogna and Kingman Brown, varisity booters who will graduate this year, will play for the All-Campus crew.

Kappa Sig Wins Overtime Game From Parker, 25-23

By JOHN MONTAGUE

A 25-23 overtime victory by the Kappa Sig Warriors over a strong Parker Pound team highlighted the third round of play in the Grail Mural Holiday Basketball Festival Wednesday. Ed Waite's 10 points was high for the Warriors, but it was Jim Speight's two foul shots in the overtime period which pulled the contest out of the fire.

Bill Hubbard hit for 17 points, the day's high, as the Phi Delt Owls ran over the PiKA Pouts, 36-21. The DU Warriors spent the greater part of their game on the foul line, but it was worth it, as the DU boys made good on 16 tosses to down the Sigma Chi Zunts, 26-15. Warren Jobe took top scoring honors here with 10 points.

Bob Deaton fired in 14 points to pace the Town Touts to a 24-17 triumph over the Mangum Mavericks and Clayton Burns racked up the same total in leading the Cobb Squirrel Shooters to a 41-18 romp over the Delta Sig Rogues. Alexander, sparked by Buddy Baldwin's 13-point output, rolled over the Old West Gars, 33-15.

The Fearsome Five from Phi Kappa Sig continued along the victory path, dropping the Dental School No. 1. team, 27-20. John Alexander and Gene Sigmon each scored 11 points to lead the winninf attack. Al Welling scored 12 points for the Old West Bandits, but his team lost to the Winston Quacks, 28-16. John Caldwell was the big scorer for the Quacks, hitting the nets for 10.

Bob Wacker netted 11 points as the Sigma Nu Blue upended the History boys, 28-19. The Ruffin Rutes, led by George Lockhart with 10 points, took an easy win over the Avery Addicts.

The Chi Psi Hustlers kept up their strong attack, downing a strong SAE team, 29-16. Navy Blue defeated the Sigma Nu Snorts 20-10, and the Delta Bombers found the Winston Whirlies an easy target, winning 25-11.

The AK Psi Runts handed the Parker Pack a 23-12 loss, while the Everett Rogahs and Phi Delt Joints took forfeit wins over the Med School and Dental School No. 2 team, respectively.

Carson Made Year's Longest Run For UNC

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Although North Carolina's football team experienced a disappointing and sometimes frustrating season this year, final statistics show that the Tar Heels, in individual long-gaining plays, compared favorably with their opponents.

In rushing, Carolina's all-ACC halfback Gib Carson had the longest run from scrimmage for coach Jim Hickey's warriors—a jaunt of 40 yards against Tennessee. Only two opposing players boast a longer-rushing scamper. Glen Glass, Tennessee's pre-season All-American choice (before he was relegated to the bench by the outstanding play of sophomore Mallon Faircloth), holds the longest run against the Tar Heels this year. The play covered 60 yards and was a big factor in bringing the Volunteers from behind, only to be beaten in the last 15 seconds. Bo Campbell, LSU's fine "Go Team" halfback is the only other opponent to better Carson's mark. Campbell went 54 yards for a touchdown in the Gengals' 30-0 romp. Jimmy Addison had Carolina's second longest scrimmage run of the season—a 34-yard jaunt against Duke.

In pass receiving, LSU's Wendell Harris had the longest catch of the year against Carolina. He caught a 56 yard touchdown heave from Jimmy Field to open the scoring in the game Tar Heels fans would like to forget.

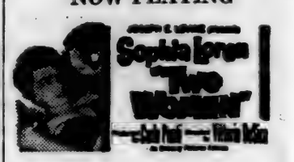
His opposing-player receiving mark is followed by North Carolina State end Johnny Morris' 44 yard catch of a throw from the master of the forward pass—Roman Gabriel.

Sandwiched between Harris and Morris are grabs by two UNC players—Steve Yates and Bob Lacey. Yates caught a 47 yarder in the State game and Lacey was right behind him with a 46 yard grab against Miami.

Junior Edge, a mainstay on defense for Carolina, was one of the most prolific pass pass-interceptors in Tar Heel history this season, as he totaled 6 steals. His longest run after an interception was 46 yards against South Carolina.

Carolina

NOW PLAYING



KEMP'S Loose Diamond System

BUY YOUR DIAMOND THE WAY WE DO!

Pick Your LOOSE DIAMOND And Let Us Mount It In Mounting Of Your Choice.

T. L. KEMP Jewelry

135 E. Franklin St. Ph. 942-1331

now, WASHABILITY is added to the fortitude and traditional British Tailoring of

BARACUTA

BRITAIN'S BEST RAINWEAR

Feels, looks, fits and weather-performs like a Baracuta...yet, its supremacy has been further enhanced with the virtue of drip drying washability. Machine wash it... hand wash it... its weather resisting qualities will last through countless tubbings. British tailored from silken texture, all cotton "breathing" poplin. Lined with washable, weatherized Tattersal poplin. In Natural, Black and Olive. $34.95

Also with Wool Zipper Liner $55.00

Both His & Hers

Julian's Village Shop

Sale

SPORTSCOATS GALORE AT THE HUB

FREE SIX-PACK

With every jacket a six-pack of your favorite brew.

Our complete stock of 225 sportcoats are marked down for this tremendous pre-Christmas sale.

Everything the heart desires, including harris tweeds and imported 100% wools. All shades and patterns, olives, greys, browns, and blues.

Large Selection at

$24.88

Others

$26.88

Shop Today While The Selections Lasts

THE HUB of Chapel Hill

103 E. Franklin

Milton's Shirt Fiasco Ends Saturday

Give-a-way on 277 dress shirts — button-downs and English tabs, formerly to $7.95, now available in follwoing sizes only—13½-32; 15-4; 15-5; 15-6; 15½-4; 15½-5; 15½-6; 16-4; 16-5; 16½-6; 16-4; 16½5; 16½6; 17-6—Fiasco price, 1 for $2.49 or 3 for $7.00.

Long sleeve pullover button-down sport shirts, formerly to $9.95, available in sizes 13½-32; 14-2; 14-3; 14½-3; 14½-4; 15-2; 15-3; 15-4; 15-5; 15½-5; 15½-6; 16-4; 16-5; 16-6; 16½-5; 16½-6; 17-6; 17½-6—at Fiasco Price of 1 for $2.99 or 3 for $8.50.

Lady Milton Pre-Xmas Fiasco Also Ends Saturday

All Sales Cash and Final

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

Only the Intimate has the books to delight youngsters on your Christmas List!

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 E. Franklin St. Open Till 10 P.M.

Patch Pockets

Very dashing... the great spirit and self-possession of our pan collared sheath, boldly patched with pockets. Its slim imperishable lines are interpreted in corduroy, washable, soft, at home in all seasons. An important addition to the Villager collection.

Exclusively at...

Town & Campus

INTER-NATIONAL PIZZA WEEK

Tuesday - Friday

It is with a great deal of pleasure that LA PIZZA announces the Annual INTERNATIONAL PIZZA WEEK—In Honor of the Great American institution—PIZZA PIE. LA PIZZA invites you to join them in celebrating this gala event—To commemorate this occasion, these SPECIAL PRICES are offered!

	Small	Large
Plain	.75	1.25
Ground Beef	1.00	1.65
Pepperoni	1.00	1.65
Sausage	1.00	1.65
Mushroom	1.00	1.65
Green Pepper	1.00	1.65
Anchovy	1.00	1.65
Olive	1.00	1.65
Onion	1.00	1.65
Added ingredients	.10	.20

Delicious Salad, Ravioli, Spaghetti, Garlic Bread, Best of Sandwiches, Beverages to your liking, special prices for Carry-Out and Delivery too!

967-1451 LA PIZZA 967-1451

Open from 5 p.m. - 1 a.m.

"BEETLE BOMB"

Transistor Fish Caller

IT WORKS

the Sport Shop, inc.

"It Pays to Play" CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

151 E. Franklin Street Phone 942-4464

ANNUAL

End of Year Clearance Sale

ALL STOCKS MUST BE MOVED DURING THIS SALE

ALL MUST GO

50% Off List

ALL STEREO RECORDS
ALL SOMMERSET LP's

40% Off List

ALL POPULAR
JAZZ & FOLK
OPERA & SETS
ARCHIVE & DEUTSCHE GRAMMOPHONE
CHRISTMAS RECORDS

33⅓% Off List

ALL MONO
SINGLE CLASSICAL

CLEARANCE
UNC CHEER MUGS

ALL MUST GO

ALL PHONOGRAPHS ARE PRICED AT THE LOWEST

They Must Be Moved From Inventory

9 til 9

Saturday 12 til 12

Close-Out On High Fidelity Components
Big Speaker – Priced To Move Out

DIAMOND STYLE—MONO $3.95 STEREO $7.95

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

64

Our Pearl Harbor
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Increasing cloudiness and continued cool.

Offices in Graham Memorial | SATURDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Servic

SG Selling Honor System

By JERRY HAYWOOD

Student government personnel have been speaking recently at fraternities, sororities and dormitories in an attempt to increase interest in the honor system.

Jey Deifell, chairman of the committee to improve student attitudes toward the system and the Honor Council, said recently:

"The Honor Council has possibly been misunderstood a great deal and as a result students have misunderstandings about some of its actions."

Deifell continued, "During the Doug Moe case last spring a lot of apathy on the part of some students toward the honor system was observed.

"Sell the System"

"So this fall (Student Body President) Bill Harriss appointed me chairman of a committee to attempt to sell the honor system to the students and also possibly clear up any misunderstandings about the Honor Council."

Members of the committee plus Harriss, George Campbell, chairman of the Men's Council, and Prissy Wyrick, chairman of the Women's Council, are touring the living units to hold discusson groups with students.

"We try to discuss the different situations in which the honor system may be violated and, in general, help the students understand it better," Deifell said. The committee also encourages students to ask any questions about decisions of the Honor Council.

"Raw Deal"

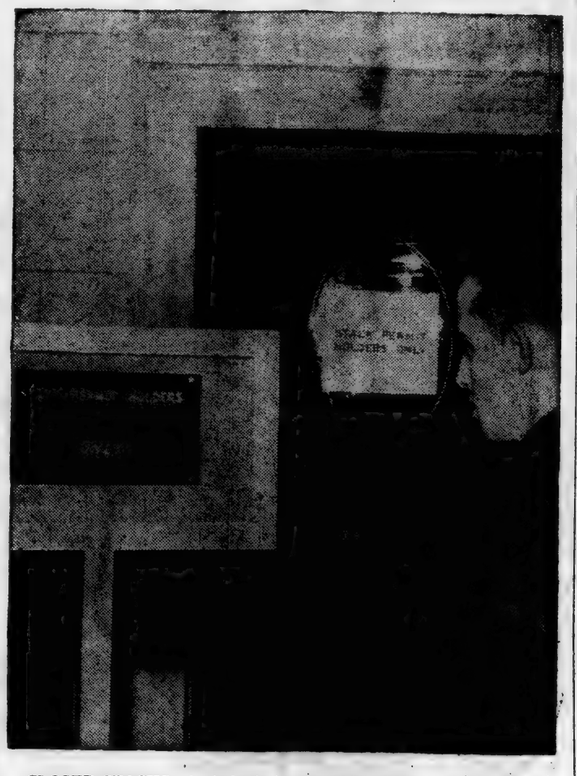
Deifell said that so far the meetings have been very rewarding. "Many times questions are asked about cases in which the defendent seemed to have gotten a raw deal. Actually, he usually tells only one half of the story."

In addition to the discussion groups, the committee is sponsoring other programs to explain the honor system and Honor Council.

The Council is showing the new honor system movie to various high schools in order that future students of Carolina will know what to expect before they get here.

Deifell added that the committee was also working on getting the pledge which now reads "I have neither given nor received aid on this quiz to read "On my honor I know of no cheating on this quiz."

The hope to finish the discussion tour by the end of February.



CLOSED STACKS—A student stands outside the door in the general circulation room of the library which warns, "Stack permit holders only." The closed stack system was instituted at the library this fall. — Photo by Jim Wallace.

CH Federal Grant Approved

A Federal allotment for assistance in city planning has been approved for Chapel Hill, according to a telegrammed message from Rep. Horace R. Kornegay to Chapel Hill town officials.

C. Whid Powell, chairman of Chapel Hill's ten-member planning board said the request was made last September. It asked that a sum of $10-12,000 be granted by the Federal Home and Housing Finance Administration in Washington to supplement a local appropriation of about $5,000.

Kornegay's telegram says that the North Carolina Dept. of Conservation and Development "will receive a $97,790 urban planning grant to aid fourteen municipalities and three counties in preparation of comprehensive plans for their growth and development. Chapel Hill is included in the municipalities listed."

Known Monday

Chairman Powell said the exact amount of money Chapel Hill will receive won't be known until Monday, but he assumes it will be close to what the board requested.

The money will be used to help pay the salary of an already hired Land Use Planner, who is working "on the projection of streets, zoning, and planning for Chapel Hill and it's environs," Powell said.

He added that the grant also will make it possible to have an aerial topographical map made of the "rapidly developing sections of Chapel Hill."

This area is bounded on the west by the Carrboro town line north of Franklin St., through downtown Chapel Hill, east to the Durham County line, Powell said.

Infirmary

Students in the Infirmary Friday were Joh Shnuford, J. B. Murphy, William Lyons, David Prescott, Mary Jo Bender, Jacqueline Beza, Sharon Weeldreyer, James Roark, Walter Honour, Frank Dunn, William Dover, William Spencer, Julia Humphreys, Helen Palmatier, John Fisher, Litchfield Huie, Richard Edwards, Julian Bradley, Phillip Adams, John Jennings, Robert Hinnant, Robert Singletary, Oscar Harriss, Mrs. Agnes Little, Helen Martin, Catherine Johnson, Sam Barfield, Bonn Gilbert, Roger Bisson, William Garrard, Robert Deal, Theodore Bobbitt.

Moore Murder Trial Likely In February

The murder trial of Bobby Lee Moore set for next week in Hillsboro Superior Court may not begin until Tuesday and very possibly will be continued until next February, according to Chapel Hill police chief William Blake.

Moore is presently being held without bond in the county jail, charged with first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of William Ellis last weekend.

Chief Blake said the case will first have to be presented to the grand jury to secure an indictment against Moore.

Blake said the case then will go before Superior Court which, because "of a pretty heavy docket," may not get to it until Tuesday.

Blake said that if Moore's attorney asked for a continuance as he has said he will, and is granted it, the case may not go to trial until next February.

In that Blake said, the judge may set bond so Moore can be released until the day of the trial.

Harvard Business School In Movie On Television

A special 15 minute film will be presented by WTVD-TV Durham, at 1:30 p.m. Sunday. The film concerns the J, Spencer Love Fellowships which are awarded to men from the South-eastern United States who wish to attend the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration.

MEMORIAL FUND

Carmichael Fund to Benefit Professors

By BILL WAUMETT

A Consolidated University Professorship will be established honoring the memory of the late William D. Carmichael, vice-president of the University.

The professorship will be financed, President William Friday said yesterday, by income from a fund that is being established by private contributions.

The award will be made to supplement the salaries of professors of the three CU institutions and will be rotated among them.

Sanford Committee

The professorship is the result of action by a committee appointed by Gov. Sanford to establish a memorial to the late vice-president.

The amount of the award and plans for selection of its recipients are not yet final, President Friday said. He expects the first professorship to be awarded for the academic year, 1962-63.

The William D. Carmichael Jr. Professorship is the third memorial to be established in Carmichael's honor in the last week.

Athletic Cup

A silver cup was given to the faculty chairman of the eight Atlantic Coast Conference schools to be presented to the conference school which has the best record in all sports.

The Ackland Art Museum Saturday unveiled a Madonna and Child in a ceremony attended by Mrs. Carmichael. The work came from Tournui, Belgium, and dates from the early fifteenth century. It was purchased by the Ackland Fund specifically in memory of Carmichael.

Closed Stack System Working Well—G. Orne

Head Librarian Jerrold Orne said yesterday that the closed stack system employed by the Library is working "just fine."

But: "It is not actually a closed stack."

Students who "definitely need" access to the stacks may pick up a form at the circulation desk, fill it out, have it signed by a faculty member verifying the need, and turn it in to the desk.

Orne says that students having such a need can get a permit. He says he has had no complaints from students. He is "very satisfied" with the new system.

Patrolmen Check Cars' Condition

Local patrolmen say teams of State Highway Patrolmen have begun spot checking the mechanical condition of vehicles traveling Orange County roads in a new attempt to cut down on accidents.

The report says the highway patrolmen will set up check points on highways throughout the county for four days each month with no advance notice of location being given.

According to the report such things as brakes, lights, windshield wipers and tires will be checked, with motorists whose vehicles fail to measure up to prescribed safety standards being required to fix the part or face having charges filed against them.

Nuclear Test Bill In SG Committee

A resolution urging that the United States not test nuclear weapons in the atmosphere as long as the national security is not endagered was held in Legislative committee yesterday.

The Ways and Means Committee of Student Legislature recommended that an educational campaign on the bill be conducted.

The bill had been introduced at legislature Thursday night by Robin Britt on behalf of the National Student Association campus committee.

Testing Condemned

The bill condemns Soviet testing in the atmosphere because:

"Fallout in large amounts will result in sickness or death; in smaller amounts it can cause an increased incidence of blood cancers adn mutatios,

"Fallout from Soviet tests has greatly increased the level of radioactivity in many parts of the world,

"The Soviet tests in the atmosphere have brought great pressures to bear on the United States governmet to resume nuclear tests in the atmosphere."

Student Responsibility

The resolution was introduced into the Student Legislature because, "The student government of the University of North Carolina has a responsibility to create within the idividual student an awareness of the nuclear testing question . . ."

A bill was introduced Thursday night to provide funds to send a student government representative to a disarmament conference in Pennsylvania in February.

An appropriation of $475 was asked in another bill to establish a Communication Committee in student government.

A third bill was introduced into legislative committee Monday night for the establishmet of a $500 exchange fellowship to Tours University in France.

2 STUDENTS, 2 GRADS

Four Nominated For Rhodes Grants

Two UNC graduates and two UNC students have been nominated as 1962 Rhodes Scholars.

Lewis Wardlaw Hamilton, Brevard, N. C. will graduate in August, 1962.

Robert Hodges Bilbro, Greenville, N. C., is captain of the swimming team and will graduate in June, '62.

Donald A. Furtado, Garner, N. C., a 1959 graduate, was President of the Student Body his senior year. He has since served in the Navy on the underwater demolition team.

Norton F. Tennille Jr., Winston-Salem, graduated in August 1961 with a straight-A average. He is at Harvard Graduate School in Classics.

A total of 14 North Carolina students have been nominated for the scholarships. The state selection committee will meet in Greensboro December 12-13 to choose two nominees to compete in the regional competition in Atlanta, December 14.

Four students in the region will be chosen to receive the scholarships. This region is composed of Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Tennessee.

Combo To Play Sat. At GM

The Sigmas Combo will play for a Christmas party Saturday night at 8 in the Rendevous room of Graham Memorial. The new Christmas decorations will be up in the contemporary style for the party, which will last until midnight. There is no charge.

Flick Features Fitzgerald Story With E. Taylor

Elizabeth Taylor, Van Johnson, Walter Pidgeon, Donna Reed, and Eva Gabor star in tonight's Flick presentation, "The Last Time I Saw Paris."

The story is based upon a short story by F. Scott Fitzgerald and concerns a war correspondent who marries during the World War I victory celebration in Paris.

Unable to sell his first novels, he joins his wife in an abandoned life. Bitter quarrels develop, and she dies. The rest of his life is spent trying to regain the love is companionship of their daughter.

The 7:30 and 9:30 showings will be held in Carroll Hall and only students with ID cards will be admitted due to the seating facilities.

Agricultural Fair Possibility

The possibility of having an Orange County agricultural fair at Thursday night's meeting of the Chapel Hill Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The motion was amended four times before finally being tabled for future consideration.

Campus Briefs

There will be a Y.W.C.A. meeting Sunday from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. in the Grail Room.

The Statistics Department meets from 6 to 12 on Sunday evening in Roland Parker 1, 2, and 3.

Important meeting of the Student Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will be Monday at 8:30 p.m. in Gerrard Hall.

There will be an open meeting of the University Party on Monday at 7 p.m. in Gerrard Hall. Spring policies will be discussed.

Canterbury will meet at 6:30 instead of 5:30 for the annual tree decorating and Christmas party. Please bring a 50-cent novelty gift and label it "boy" or "girl."

James Holmes, graduate scholar in the Music Department, will present an organ recital Sunday at 4 p.m. in Hill Music Hall. He will play "La Nativite du Seigneur," a series of nine Christmas meditations for organ, written by the French organist, Olivier Messiaen. Holmes is a first-year graduate alumni scholar in the music department. A 1961 UNC graduate, he studied organ with Dr. Glenn Watkins and presented organ recitals during his undergraduate years.

On Sunday at 6 p.m. the Wesley Foundation is meeting with the Westminister Group for supper at the Presbyterian Church. The talk by Dr. Markus Barth has been cancelled.

All students who have not picked up their Yack proofs should do so immediately. Anyone desiring pictures taken by Yack photographers should leave his name, address, and a description of the pictures wanted at the Yack office.

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will meet at 265 Phillips Hall, Tuesday, Dec. 12. Professor Eugene R. Long will talk on schedule control of operant behavior in children, and Professor Halbert B. Robinson will talk on concept formation.

A collection of the graphic art of Edvard Munch is now being shown in the Ackland Art Museum.

The junior class cabinet will meet Sunday at 3 p.m. in the TV room of GM.

The Hillel Foundation will hold a dance in conjunction with the girls from Woman's College, Saturday at 7 p.m. There will be an admittance charge of 50 cents at the door.

The Community Church Christmas Service of Worship in music

(Continued on Page 3)

New Anthropology Course On China Open In Spring

A new course in anthropology will be offered during the spring semester.

Entitled "Anthropology 138, Peoples of the Far East: China and Japan," the course will be taught by Professor Richard W. Lieban, a visiting professor of anthropology from Woman's College.

The course will be offered at 4 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays. Professor Lieban has had professional experience in China and the Ryukyu Islands, as well as the Philippines. He has a strong interest in Japan where he travelled in 1952 and 1958. Traditional patterns of culture and recent extensive changes in the societies of China and Japan will be discussed.

Pianist To Appear

Greek pianist Gina Bachauer will give a concert at Memorial Hall on Tuesday, Dec. 12, at 8 p.m. The entire balcony will be reserved for UNC students upon the presentation of their I.D. cards. Students' spouses will be admitted for $1. Mme. Bachauer's appearance here will be one of 35 she will make during her annual North American tour. Since the close of her last American tour, Miss Bachauer has played before Norway's King Olaf, Britain's Princess Margaret, and King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece.

Man Is Sought For Robbery Of ABC Store

By GARRY BLANCHARD

Hillsboro County Authorities say they are still searching for a man whom they say used a foot long butcher knife to rob an ABC store of $140 in cash and a pint of whiskey Thursday night. The store is located on the Durham-Hillsboro road, ten miles northeast of Chapel Hill.

Store manager Norman Hill, 45, of Glen Heights, Chapel Hill, said he was alone in the store, about 8:30 p.m., when the man walked in and ordered a pint of whiskey.

Hill said he was ringing up the sale when the man pulled the knife out of his overcoat pocket and ordered him to hand over the money in the cash register.

Bandit's Escape

After giving the bandit seven twenty dollar bills, Hill said he was told to walk to the rear of the store and stay there. He said the bandit then pocketed the whiskey and backed out of the store, knife in hand.

Witnesses later told Hillsboro County deputies they saw a dark colored 1940-50 ford speed away from the store about the time of the robbery. A pick-up order was issued for the car and the bandit. He is described as 25-50 years old, tall well-dressed, and weighing about 175 pounds.

Hill is the former manager of the ABC store in the Eastgate Shopping Center in Chapel Hill.

A SOBER PUB

LONDON (UPI)—Customers at the Why Not pub Tuesday night could not get beer. Why not. The owner failed to pay his brewer and delivery was stopped.

Xmas Xpress

WANT RIDES

MERIDEN, Conn. — Via NEW YORK CITY, four riders, leaving Monday, December 18, call Peter Ford, 968-2441, 6-7 p.m., will divide expenses.

ATLANTA — Leaving December 16, call J. M. Womack, 325 Teague, 968-9157.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (and en Route)—Leaving December 15 or 16, contact Fran Stallings, 310 Connor or 23 New East Annex.

NEW YORK CITY AND BROOKYN, N. Y.—Four riders, leaving riday, December 15, 12-1 p.m., share expenses. Call Ron Orovan, 303 Ruffin, 968-9182.

AUGUSTA OR COLUMBUS, GA.—One rider, leaving Thursday, December 14, Beverly Bernier, 968-9168, share expenses.

NEWARK, NEW JERSEY or vicinity — Mark Greenberg, leaving noon Friday, December 15, 122 Cobb.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Need three riders. Call Howard Holsenbeck, 306 Stacey, 968-9112. Leaving Saturday, Dec. 16.

CHICAGO or Vicinity — Contact Buddy Broome, 140 Cobb, 968-9092.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. or 100-mile radius—Jimmy Burke, 304 Connor Hall, 968-9154.

NEW YORK—December 13 or 14, Michael Albright, 410 Winston, 968-9080.

PITTSBURGH — December 16, Charles Doty, Mangum, 968-9110.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—December 16, Thurman Smith, 320 Joyner, 968-9185.

COCOA, FLA.—Roger Rice, 113 Aycock, 968-9216, will share expenses.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX. or general vicinity—Charles H. Lincoln, 201 Avery, 968-9046, can leave December 16. Will share driving and expenses.

NEW ROCHELLE OR NEW 'ORK CITY, N. Y.—Rosalyn Post, December 16, 12 noon, 968-3886.

WESTPORT, CONN. or vicinity—Call Evan Harrar, 327 Avery, 968-9116. Would like to leave Friday, Dec. 15.

CHICAGO — or vicinity — Sandy Marks Jr., 942-2914 after 5 p.m., can leave Dec. 15 or 16, will share expenses.

ARLINGTON, Va. — Leonard Rogers wants ride to Arlington, Washington, D. C. or near vicinity, leaving Dec. 16. Call 968-9093 or go by 218 Cobb.

MIAMI, Fla.—Ruth Lebar and Vicki Lebar, share expenses, 942-6241.

MIDWEST (Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha, Neb.)—Sandy Hoffmann, share expenses, Smith Dorm, third floor, 968-9133.

DALLAS, TEX.—L. W. Lau, 176 Phillips Hall or call Physics Dept., share expenses.

NEW YORK CITY OR BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Ronnie Gabriel, Noon Friday or later, 408 Cobb, 968-9097, share expenses and driving.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — John Morene, December 16, share expenses, 215 Parker, 968-9140.

CINCINNATI, or Vicinity—Want to leave Dec. 15 or 16. Will share expenses, driving. Harve Harris, 968-5266.

ARLINGTON, VA. OR WASHINGTON, D. C. or Vicinity—Leonard Rogers, December 16, 218 Cobb, 968-9093.

FT. MYERS, FLA.—Tom Leanhardt, share expenses, 339 Cobb, 968-9145.

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. or NEW YORK CITY—Leaving Dec. 15. Call Ciaran Mercier, 207 Aycock, 968-9158.

ST. LOUIS, MO. or Vicinity — Dec. 15, 16, 17. Bill Weems, 310 Avery, 968-9029, share driving and expenses.

PITTSBURGH, PA. — Barbara Borger, 160 Nurses Dorm, Dec. 15 or 16, share expenses.

NEW YORK CITY — Dec. 16, Amnon Rapoport, III, Conor, 968-9155, share expenses.

NORFOLK, Va. — Judy Gray wants ride, leaving either Friday or Saturday. Call 968-9010, Nurses Dorm.

WANTS RIDE BACK

FROM CHATTANOOGA, TENN. —For two people after Christmas, Harry Batchelor, 942-1725.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 9, 1961 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLIX, No. 64

Our Pearl Harbor

December 7, 1961—twenty years after Pearl Harbor. The day that "will live in infamy" does not seem so infamous to us.

Most undergraduates at this University remember nothing of the horror which followed Pearl Harbor. We are, on the average, about twenty years old. We have vague memories, perhaps, of knowing our fathers were not here, were off fighting. We have only a loose, hazy feeling about the war—a nebulous collection of impressions rather than a concrete picture.

We did not share the frantic joy which swept the country at the war's end, any more than we shared the long hours of waiting. Most of us have never wondered if someone we cared for would be dead tomorrow. We have never known an America whose total being was directed to war. We have not seen the factories flying flags to show they were especially productive in the war effort.

We see a top headline in yesterday's Greensboro Daily News which says "Yanks Roll Into Berlin" and what can this mean to us that it once meant to our parents?

We have known a different kind of horror and hope. We have learned that Russia exploded a bomb with the force of over 50 million tons of TNT — a figure which we cannot comprehend. The explosion worries us, but it is a confused sort of worry. We are horrified, and yet we have no relatives or friends in the battle. The explosion killed no Americans.

Our hope is different too. We want peace, but what does peace mean to us? It does not mean we will see friends alive again. It does not mean food will be easier to come by. It does not mean we will work shorter hours. The peace we hope for is like the only war we have known—a confused, nebulous struggle for something we cannot precisely comprehend.

We are at war with Russia, but no troops are on the field. There is nothing upon which we can focus our rage. We say "Dirty Red," but our words have none of the vehemence that "Dirty Jap" once had. We hate the Russians, but the Russians have not killed our husband, our boyfriend, or our high school friend. Our feelings are not clear-cut. Our words carry none of the emotional release our parents' words carried when they said Enemy. There is a reserve inside us. We are not sure. Our war is carried on at the conference tables at Geneva, not on the shell-ridden terrain of Europe and the beautiful, dangerous islands of the Pacific.

* * *

The nature of this war presses upon our minds in a dull, daily tension. And yet we cannot focus this tension, cannot conveniently vent our feelings against some concrete Enemy.

This feeling of tension, a feeling which we cannot escape and cannot express, has become too much for some of us. We look for a way to vent our anger, a way to concentrate our feelings and express them. We strive to release this tension, and in this striving we turn in extremes.

Some of us long to take a bold, fresh action. They agree with Barry Goldwater when he demands a drive for total victory, when he asks to invade Cuba, to move on the Communists, to fight.

Others of us are afraid. They cannot accept the vague horror of the bomb. They picket and demonstrate at nuclear installatins. They ask for a Big Brother state, a state in which the government provides for all he wants.

And this is not a passing fancy. The pressures will increase. The war will grow more confused. We may never have some direct, overt action on which to vent our feelings. The restraint of this tension must continue. For the extremes cannot provide the answer. Their actions and inactions are a petty form of release. They accomplish nothing.

Both ends of the extreme movement among American students are reactionary in a certain sense. Both REACT to the pressures of the Cold War.

Neither solution is a comprehensive one; each looks at only one aspect of the problem. This is because both are born out of the vague fear and tension of our present war.

The extremes are childish. The child looks at a lighted match and holds his hand near it. Soon he cannot stand the heat. He screams, but he does not think to put out the match. The students who call for immediate action and the students who call for a great world peace and a super-government are like the child. Putting out the flame is too much effort. It requires a thorough understanding of the situation, a certain reserve. We must refrain from these petty screams.

* * *

Our Pearl Harbor is a continuing one, and our war is a continuing one. Our reaction to this cannot be a petty spurt of indignation at our situation. When we emerge from college, our war will continue. Our reaction to it must continue.

The students of the right and the left are afraid to face the constant pressure of a war they can never quite understand. We cannot blame them, but we must not follow them.

Our course is a difficult one, perhaps more difficult than that of our parents, although we will not be so brash as to state this definitely. We have no concrete war upon which to concentrate, and yet our war is just as frightful as the war which followed Pearl Harbor. We will probably never know the release that older Americans knew when their war ended, for our war may not end for decades.

We may never have a Pearl Harbor. Let us hope not, but let us hope more that our frustration at having nothing like Pearl Harbor to focus upon does not lead us to a petty, meaningless extremism such as many among us suggest.

—Bill Hobbs

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARIANNE ANN REYNER
Associate Editor

LLOYD LEWIS
Executive News Editor

BILL HOBBS
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

NANCY BASS, LINDA CLAYPOOL—Feature Editors
HARRY W. LEWIS—Sports Editor
DAVID WYSONG—Subscription Manager
JIM EISELDER—Circulation Manager
BOB DUPREE—Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MATHESON—Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

"He Pulled A Knife On Me"

Battle Of Senator Fulbright

Senator Fulbright has now begun to run for re-election, and all the signs indicate that over and above the local issues in Arkansas, the campaign will be of great interest to the nation as a whole. For an important part of the opposition to the senator comes from outside of Arkansas. It comes from radical right extremists like Senator Goldwater among the Republicans and Senator Thurmond among the Democrats. It is highly significant and very interesting indeed that they have chosen to do battle not with a man of the left, but with as genuine a conservative in the great tradition of conservatism as exists in our public life today.

Thus the Arkansas senatorial campaign will bring a confrontation between tradition American conservatism and wholly new phenomenon, a reaction sailing under the flag of conservatism. This reactionary radicalism has as little relation to conservatism as the so-called people's democracies beyond the Iron Curtain have to democracy.

* * *

The true conservative, of whom the greatest in this century is Churchill, are indissolubly at one with the constitutional sources of the nation's life. For them the nation is a living thing which grows and changes, and they think of themselves as participating in this growth and change. Because they themselves are so secure and certain about what is essential and fundamental, the most intelligent conservatives are liberal in temper and progressive in policy.

Senator Fulbright is that kind of conservative, and so he is standing challenge to the reactionary radicals who are in revolt against all the main developments of the 20th century.

* * *

They are against the consequences of modern science and technology which have brought into being a concentration of masses of people in cities, masses of people uprooted from their ancestral ways of life. These radical reactionaries are against the welfare state which provides these urban masses with some of that personal security which their ancestors in the country made in their communities. And they are against the regfulation of this enormously complex economy, though without regulation it would churn itself up into crisis and chaos.

The reactionary radicals, who would like to repeal the 20th century, are, so they tell us, violently opposed to Communism. But Communism also belongs to the 20th century and these reactionary radicals do not understand it and do not know how to resist it. Thus they do not want the alliances with which we have contained Communism in Europe at the armistice lines of World War II. They are against foreign aid which is used to help new countries and weak countries without succumbing to Communism. They despise the United Nations which has so much to do in opening up for the new and inexperienced countries the roads to freedom. They do believe loyally in American military power. But they do not understand it. They do not understand that the United States, though very strong, is not omnipotent, and that we cannot set the world in order and achieve total victory over Communism by itsuing ultimata. Their responsibility in foreign affairs is such that if the President did for the country what they say he ought to be doing, there would be going on at one and the same time another Korean War in Southeast Asia, a somewhat smaller Algerian war in Cuba, and a thermonuclear war about Berlin.

* * *

Senator Fulbright, with the authority and with the intimate knowledge that come to him as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, has stood firmly against such irresponsible nonsense. The nation is greatly in his debt. The role he plays in Washington is an indispensible role. There is no one else, who is so powerful and also so wise, and if there were any question of removing him from public life, it would be a national calamity.

Not only has he been the bravest and wisest of advisers. He is also the most far-seeing and constructive. It has been said of him all too often that he has been right too soon. That is a great compliment. In our democracy somebody who is listened to must be right before it is popular to be right. Here Senator Fulbright has and distinguished record which goes back to the Second World War when, still an unknown and unnoticed congressman from Arkansas, he brought out the Fulbright resolution which led the change of Aremican opinion against isolation.

He was, I think, the first American public man who realized that if Western Europe was to co-exist with the Soviet Union, it would have to unite. And he is the first responsible American statesman to be saying that the necessary counterweight to the develop of the Communist power is a much closer political and economic integration of the Western World.

* * *

The decision must be made by the voters of Arkansas. But what is at stake is important to the whole nation.

—Walter Lippman

UN Presence In Berlin

Just before the passing of United Nations Secretary-General Hammaskjold, there was beginning to be increased interest among American officials in proposals for a "United Nations presence" in Berlin as a guarantor of the city's integrity.

On government ofifcial had said a good, solid UN presence in Berlin could help preserve Berlin the way the West desires.

The UN presence idea for Berlin has had considerable appeal in some quarters here for a long time. Premier Khrushchev, too, has talked of making Berlin a "free" city, but he means only "West Berlin," and his definitions are usually different from the West's.

The UN presence proposal has been kept under wraps for several reasons.

There has always been considerable doubt about the UN's ability to exercise dominion in situations involving a test of strength between powerful nations.

Added to this is the danger presented by Soviet Union demands for a three-headed UN Secretariat. The Soviet veto in the Security Council has always been an obstacle to UN action. To give the Communists what amounts to veto power in the executive wing of the UN would dangerously compound the situation.

* * *

NOW, the loss of Secretary-General Hammarskjold raises the question of whether a successor with equal ability to carry out the wishes of the entire UN can be found quickly, or agreed upon at all.

Another reason for the United States to go slow on the UN presence in Berlin idea is the United States does not want to tip its hand in advance of negotiations with the Communists.

Lastly, there has been doubt Mr. Khrushchev would ever agree to a UN presence which permitted West Berliners to freely associate with whomever they wished.

Obviously, to turn over West Berlin to an international authority and remove it forever as a symbol of Western freedom, while leaving East Berlin under control of the Communists, would have been a severe prestige setback.

Nevertheless, events were tending —before the Hammarskjold plane crash—to give United States officials reasons to modify their views.

* * *

It began, for example, to make more stategic sense to talk about a UN presence in all of Berlin to point up Khrushchev's unwillingness to release East Berlin from captivity.

Also, West Berlin, now cut off from East Berlin's population by concrete barriers, is no longer quite as much the show window of the West in the midst of East German tyranny. This is a regretable fact, but one which does not appear to be susceptible to change now short of using armed force.

In the sense that a UN control would embrace all of Berlin it would be a setback to the Communists to have to give up the East Berlin they so recently sealed off from the world.

There is some hope in Washington the UN would at least recognize the rights of the Western nations in Berlin n the same manner Prime Minister Nehru, speaking for nonaligned India, has.

American officials are frank to admit the atitude of West Berliners and West Germans is the key to any long-range solution, UN based or otherwise.

* * *

WHETHER they will stick steadfastly with the West or trend toward neutralism in the hope of unification of all Germany is the key question.

Thus far the presence of Western military forces in West Berlin has been a visible assurance to Germans of Western determination to block a Communist takeover.

It could be a gain, as far as the United States is concerned, for the UN to side formally with the West on the right of access and to establish a UN presence alongside that of the Western powers to insure the status quo, at least.

An American official points out that there are many international organizations which do not have permanent homes. Berlin could be a very appropriate site for them to gather, he said.

It is significant this same official links this proposal with others which he feels would make West Berlin, even if not united with East Berlin, a purposeful, economically viable city.

It is not beyond the imagination that West Berlin could someday be a western city, internationally protected, a center for international bodies, and a crossroads of communication and trade between East and West.

—Christian Science Monitor

Listener Is Grateful For Symphony Concert

Dear Editor,

he University Symphony Orchestra may not be the New York Philharmonic, but Tuesday night their presentations sounded just as good. The excellent choice of the program set off perfectly the versatility of the orchestra, and made for a very enjoyable evening's listening.

The University Symphony has been sort of "forgotten" by some in the rush of classes and exams, and that is sad, for classical music plays an integral part in the lives of all of us, whether we like it or not. A lot of people DO like it, however, as evidenced by the fact that Hill Music Hall was filled to capacity for the concert. Maybe next time, with greater publicity and press releases, the Orchestra can present its concert in Memorial . . ..

To Mr. Earl Slocum, conductor, and to Mr. Edgar Alden, outstanding concertmeisters, I say "thanks" for what I, and many others I have spoken with, think was an excellent concert. Keep 'em coming!

—Peter B. Maupin

* * *

UMOC Proceeds Go For Charity Ship

Dear Sirs,

I was pleased to note that the proceeds of this year's "U.M.O.C." contest will go to "Operation Hope," a charity run hospital ship. I'm glad that there are some students on this campus who are community minded enough to give of their time and money in the name of charity. Perhaps the American college student isn't as self-centered and juvenile as some would like to think. I just wish that those who wish to degrade the college student would first take notice of this and other college student-run functions.

—Jim Hobbs

Academic Freedom Being Subordinated To Security Acts?

Dangers inherent in disclosures made by college teachers when questioned about students by government security agents or private employers are stressed in a policy statement released today by the American Civil Liberties Union. The statement appears as an article in the current issue of "School and Society."

Prepared by the Union's Academic Freedom Committee, headed by Professor Louis M. Hacker, and endorsed by the ACLU national Board of Directors, the statement represents more than a year's study.

"Habituation to this profilerating process of interrogation and response," the Union stated, "has tended to obscure possible dangers to education . . . Those who think of education primarily as the delivery of information by teachers to students will find no danger here. But if probing, sharing and hypothesizing are regarded as essential: if education requires uninhibited expression and thnking out loud; and if tentative or spontaneous ideas are to be encouraged as conducive to learning, then disclosure of expressed opinion . . . can become a threat to the educational process . . ."

Holding that the teacher-student relationship is "a privileged one," the statement points out: "The student does not normally expect that his utterances in the classroom; or his discussons with teachers, or his written views will be reported outside the college or school community . . . if he knew that anything he said or wrote might be revealed indiscriminately, the kind of relation in which he originally felt free to make hs pronouncement would to all intents and purposes cease to exist . . ."

* * *

RECOGNIZING THAT every teacher, when queried about a student by an investigator, will wish to act on his own best judgment, the Union's statement sets down the following guide-lines for the academic community's consideration:

"Questions and answers in written form make it easier to avoid pitfalls, but the teacher's alertness is always essential. Ordinarily, questions relating to what the student has demonstrated as a student—for example the ability to write in a certain way, to solve problems . . . to reason consistently, to direct personnel or projects—pose no threat to educational privacy. But, questions relating to the student's loyalty and patriotism, his political or religious or moral or social beliefs and attitudes, his general outlook, his private life, may well jeopardze the teacher-student relaton."

So that unanswered questions will not put the student in an unfavorable light, the statement suggests that teachers preface each questionnaire "with a brief pro forma statement to the effect that the academic policy to which they subscribe makes it inadvisable to answer certain types of questions, no matter who the individual student may be. Once this academic policy becomes widespread, presumptive inferences about individual students would no longer be made by employers."

The policy of no disclosures as to students' personal views is recommended even in the cases of those who would like to have all questions about themselves fully answered. "Personal expediency of this kind," the statement continues, ". . . does not seem justifable as an exception to warranted policy . . ."

* * *

THE UNION points out that "public and private employers (actual and prospective) are always free to avail themselves of varied screening procedures and sources of information which can be utilized without injury to the student-teacher relation. There is no reason to believe that the preservatton of government security is at variance with the integrity of the academic process. A climate of free enquiry and learning may be expected to make loyalty firmer and more meaningful, and to discourage clandestine tactics. The society which subordinates academic freedom to security precautions faces many more problems than it solves."

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

OF PHONE COMPANY

Weather Won't Hurt Wires

By NANCY VON LAZAR

Snowstorms, hurricanes, and lightning storms will have less effect on the telephone wires now being plowed underground in the northwestern part of Orange County and in Chatham County.

The Chapel Hill Telephone Company has laid underground wires in Chapel Hill areas previously, but this is the first time the wires have been plowed underground by a unique method of construction, according to Grey Culbreth, Superintendent of Utilities for the University.

A total of nine miles of wire are being plowed in rural areas. The locations now being readied for service include the Mount Carmel Church area off the Farrington Road and the Wise Community area. This is a continuation of the Chapel Hill Telephone Company's program to provide vice.

The primary tools used in laying the telephone cable are a big Army tank and a specially designed plow which automatically lays the cable in the earth as it furrows a trough. The tank moves along the right of way of the rural dirt road pulling the plow. The plow cuts a trough 24 inches under the road.

In this way, the cable is safe from being weighted down by heavy winter icicles; it is grounded and relatively safe from lightning storms—there is about 80 per cent less of a chance of lightning hitting the buried cable as there is an exposed cable, according to S. E. Baker, telephone plant manager.

The method of laying the cables is swift and saves working time and adds to the economy of the procedure. "Underground construction is about thirty-five per cent cheaper," said Mr. Baker. He said that the underground method of plowing in cables can accomplish as much work in two days as it would take in two weeks of aerial construction.

The method of construction is impractical for urban areas because of pavement and sidewalks.

The plow can furrow about 5,000 feet of cable without a stop unless there is a point where a terminal connection has to be set up to service an individual subscriber's home. Whereas in aerial telephone construction, telephone poles must be placed about every 200 feet.

With aerial construction, it is necessary for the phone company to go off the state right-of-way, obtain legal endorsements from the landowners, and once the telephone poles have been istauteed, the phone company is responsible for clearing out any underbrush which may grow up around the wires.

Alumni Dinner In N. Y. Honors Dr. F. P. Graham

UNC alumni of New York will have a dinner December 14 honoring Dr. Frank P. Graham, former President, at the Empire State Club in the Empire State Building.

Governor Terry Sanford and Chancellor William B. Aycock are listed as speakers on invitations mailed to more than a thousand alumni in the New York Area.

Hugh M. Tillett, an official of the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., is Dinner Chairman for the affair.

Alumni Officers

Phillip Hettleman, Goldsboro native, is president of the New York alumni, other officers being Dr. McLeod Riggins, Vice President; Rodman T. Spruill, Secretary; and David M. Holshouser, Treasurer.

On the Dinner Committee sponsoring the tribute to Dr. Graham are several alumni well known in Chapel Hill, including Don Bishop, William A. Blount, J. Dewey Dorsett, Charles T. Lipscomb, Nathan Mobley, Henry N. Patterson, Dr. Howard A. Patterson, Kenneth C. Royall, Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, and Ralph D. Williams.

7 Professors Win Positions At Language Meet

Seven University professors were elected to high positions by 1,500 Southern scholars from eight states at the recent South Atlantic Modern Language Association Convention in Atlanta.

Dr. Myron A. Peyton, professor of Spanish, was elected chairman of the SAMLA Spanish 1 section.

Dr. Nicholson B. Adams, professor of Spanish, was elected chairman of the Spanish 2 section.

Dr. Jacque Hardre, professor of French, was named chairman of the French 2 section.

Teaching Problems

Dr. George B. Daniel, assistant professor of French, was elected chairman of the "Committee on Problems of Teaching in French."

Dr. Ransom Taylor, associate professor of German, was re-elected Treasurer, and Dr. Frank M. Duffey, professor of Spanish and Associate Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, was re-elected Editor of the "South Atlantic Bulletin," the official publication of the organization.

Dr. Sterling A. Stoudemire, chairman of the Romance Languages Department here, was elected president of the eight-state organization.

TV Schedule

WRAL-TV—Channel 5

5:30—Championship Wrestling
6:30—Porter Wagoner Show
7:00—The Hathaways
7:30—Tales of Wells Fargo
8:30—Tall Man
9:00—Yves Montaud on Broadway
10:00—Fight of the Week: Middleweight Champion (NBA) Gene Fullmer defends against Benny "Kid" Paret
11:00—Dateline News
11:10—Movie of the Week: "The Big Knife," Jack Palance, Ida Lupino, Rod Steiger

WUNC-TV—Channel 4

6:00—Big Picture
6:30—Aspect
7:00—Goals
7:30—Food for Life
8:00—Memoirs
8:30—Empire
9:30—Sign-off

WTVD—Channel 11

4:30—Pro Football
7:15—Industry on Parade
7:30—Perry Mason
8:30—The Defenders
9:30—Have Gun, Will Travel
10:00—Gunsmoke
11:00—Saturday Night Country Style

CHRISTMAS TREE

Charles Follen, a German professor at Harvard, is believed to have set up the first Christmas tree in America n 1832.

Carrier Current

Saturday

6:00—Dinner Hour
6:55—Campus News
7:00—Canadian Drama
7:30—Vistas of Israel
7:45—One More Step
8:00—Masterwork
10:00—Ten O'Clock Report
10:15—Pete Ivey News
10:30—Quiet Hours
10:55—News
11:00—Campus News

CLASSIFIED ADS

WANTED: USED SET OF GOLF clubs, irons and woods with or without bag. Phone 942-6577.

Campus Briefs

(Continued from Page 1)

will be held at 11 Sunday morning, December 10th. There will be no service at 9:30. Church School will be held during the 11 o'clock service. Everyone is invited to attend.

Interviews for the State Student Legislature will be given from 3-5 today and Friday in Roland Parker Lounge III, GM.

"Haunted House," a two-reel comedy starring Buster Keaton, and a feature film, "Mark of Zorro," the original version with Douglas Fairbanks Sr., will be shown to members of the UNC-Chapel Hill Film Society Monday night in Carroll Hall, 8 o'clock.

America Slogan-Conscious

Whether you are seeking a store where the fashion-wise economize, a cigarette which has it at both ends, a beverage for those who think young, or simply the security of being sure, you can find it in slogan-conscious America.

But people have been coining slogans and sayings for thousands of years, probably since a philosophical caveman shrugged off a bad hunting day with "that's the way the arrow falls."

History's first recorded slogan was fathered more than 2,000 years ago by the Roman senator, Cato, a hard-sell man who ended each of 6,000 Senate speeches with the words "Carthage must be destroyed." (Finally, it was.)

History's most famous trick—the wooden horse, filled with soldiers, left by the Greeks outside the walls of Troy—inspired the still-quoted saying, "I fear the Greeks even when bearing gifts." It was coined by the Roman poet Virgil. But no one knows the name of the cynical Roman who first said, "Let the buyer beware" (caveat emptor).

* * *

MANY OF THE other sayings in common use are surprisingly old. People have been "building castles in Spain" since the 13th century, "forgiving and forgetting" since the 14th. Have you ever remarked that "when poverty comes in the door, love flies out the window?" Your ancestors did, too, at least 300 years ago. "It's all in the day's work" has been current since the 18th century.

Know why wise old sayings are called "saws"? The word comes from the Anglo-Saxon "sagu," meaning "sage." The word "motto" comes from a Latin word meaning "mutter" or "grunt"!

But the most interesting history of all belongs to the word "slogan." The shouted names of highland clans as their members rode into battle were actually the first expressions to be called "slogans," for the word derives from the Gaelic slaugh (army) and ghairm (outcry).

True to this martial background, most early slogans were calls to battle. There was Cato, of course, and in 1095 there were the Crusaders who launched a holy war against the Palestinian Moslems with the cry "God wills it."

American sloganeering was nobly launched by the revolutionary watchwords "No taxation without representation" and "Give me liberty or give me death."

* * *

THE NATIONAL talent for slogans soon found expressiin in party politics. The first to popularize the cry "Turn the rascals out" was Presidential candidate Horace ("Go West, young man") Greeley in 1872. (He lost.) The precursor of the "chicken in every pot" (Republicans, 1928) was William McKinley's "full dinner pail" in 1900. The "I like Ike" slogan of 1952 recalls the 1868 Republican chant for Grant—"Match him."

You may remember the New Deal and the Fair Deal, but can you recall the Square Deal? Its originator: Woodrow Wilson, whose 1916 re-election on the slogan "He kept us out of war" caused much bitterness when America entered World War I less than a year later.

* * *

BUT IT'S IN the area of advertising slogans that American ingenuity really shines.

Advertising slogans of the past have frequently become classics—part of American folkways. Who can forget the "tattle-tale gray" banished by Fels-Naptha — the "five o'clock shadow" removed by Gem blades—the "skin you love to touch" promised by Woodbury? And how many times have you said or heard "Eventually, why not now?" without realizing that it was originated many years ago by Gold Medal flour?

Maybe if Cato had said "eventually, why not now?" he would have gotten his point across faster.

NO FAVORITISM

MARSHALL, Tex. (UPI)—Marshall traffic policemen are bound to their duty, city judge George G. Huffman believes. After Huffman completed a recent traffic trial, he rturned to his parked auto and found a ticket for overparking.

RELAX
IN A MAN'S WORLD
WITH
SIR WALTER RALEIGH

Pipe smokers appreciate Sir Walter Raleigh's choice Kentucky Burley—extra aged for flavor and mildness. Now kept 44% fresher in the pouch pack. So relax and get away from your cares with Sir Walter Raleigh—the quality pipe tobacco!

POUCH PACK KEEPS TOBACCO 44% FRESHER!

SMELLS GRAND-PACKS RIGHT! SMOKES SWEET-CAN'T BITE!

christmas shopping???
the only—but only place for the individualistic, the imaginative, the incomparable—
charles hopkins
of Chapel Hill
designer/craftsman
(over sutton's) contemporary jewelry
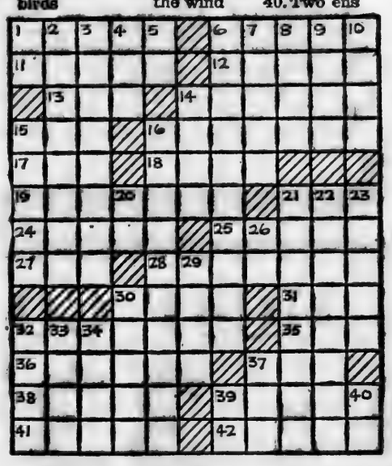
handwrought

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. To move sideways
6. Deep-pile fabric
11. Salad ingredient
12. Belgian marble
13. Cigarette (slang)
14. "Chinese" ——, British soldier
15. Confederate General Stuart's nickname
16. Memento cases
17. Tahitian national god
18. Person (poss.)
19. Support timbers
21. Girl's name
24. Carriage
25. Air-raid signal
27. Bowlike curved line
28. Intentional relinquishments
30. A lone flight
31. Extinct bird
32. Made of wool (var.)
35. —— and outs
36. Come to a place
37. New Zealand tribe
38. Beauty of form
39. Fragment
41. Venditions
42. Indian state

DOWN
1. Very
2. Second-rate
3. Devilish
4. Hunting record
5. Hair ox
6. Parade
7. Song birds
8. Wavy (Her.)
9. —— free
10. Barnyard birds
14. Saucer-shaped bell
15. Israel seaport (var.)
16. Social shunners
20. Part of "to be"
21. Hermits
22. Actress —— Lake
23. Handle (poss.)
26. Roman 4
29. Away from the wind
30. Cut
32. Wits
33. Odd (Scot.)
34. Spoken
37. Sloths
39. Father (colloq.)
40. Two ens

Yesterday's Answer



Fraternity and Sorority
LEATHERETTE CRESTS
In Multa Colors
Sticks on scrapbooks, trash cans, pencil holders, and letter baskets to make an ideal personal gift.
35¢ each
Ledbetter Pickard

Don't Spend Money on Expensive Cards Until You've Seen the FIVE CENTS CARDS at the Intimate

THE GROUP. Next time you're with your crowd... notice how many of them are enjoying a Bud. Just between friends, where there's life... there's Budweiser.

KING OF BEERS • ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS • NEWARK • LOS ANGELES • TAMPA

POGO

PEANUTS

Mermen, Matmen In Road Contests

North Carolina swimming and wrestling teams will be active tonight in road contests. The swimmers take on Clemson for their first ACC test, and the wrestlers tangle with a tough Citadel squad.

Coach at Earey's splashers are expected to have a fairly easy session against the waterlogged Tigers. The Cats, coached by Carl McHugh, won two of six meets last year. There isn't a single experienced man back from that team.

Carolina, on the other hand, will be trying this year to make first place in the ACC an exclusive position. Last year the NC tankmen finished in a three-way first place tie, and there are 15 lettermen back from that squad.

CO-CAPTAIN BOB BRIGGS
UNC Breaststroker

Leaders for the UNC team are sprinters Bob Bilbro, Howard Cone, Don Murray, and Bryan Williams; distance men Willie Bloom, Frank Lea, Arthur Merrill and Jon Weber; backstrokers Thompson Mann and Jim Huffman; butterflyers Mike Bissell, Jim Bromwell, Barry King, Harry Schiffman and Joe Mummaw; breaststrokers Bill Boardman, Bob Briggs, and Tom Cannon, and divers Doug Fambrough and Sandy Patterson.

The swimmers have one win already this season, a 51-43 decision over scrappy VMI.

The UNC wrestlers will be trying for their first win of the year after two losses against Washington & Lee and Virginia last weekend. Both the varsity and the freshmen will take to the mats against the Cadets of The Citadel.

Last year, Carolina lost its first match of the year—after wins over W&L and Virginia—to The Citadel. 20-15.

Carolina coach Sam Barnes will probably choose 123 pounder Mickey Nelson; 130 pounder Emmanuel May; 137 pounder Willis Johnson; 147 pounder Dick Blackman; 157 pounder Dan Brock or Whitney Durand; 167 pounder Glenn Glaser; 177 pounder Nick Street or Gene Record, and heavyweight Cole Kortner or Gordon Appell.

Barclay Says '61 Freshmen Will Be Boost To Gridders

By ED DUPREE

The 1961 football season is history now and Coach Jim Hickey and his staff are already looking to next season, which lists a schedule including Ohio State, Michigan State and Notre Dame, in addition to the seven Atlantic Coast Conference foes.

One of the major problems confronting the UNC coaches will be the replacement of the sixteen seniors—six of whom played first team in most of the games. Four of these, Jim LeCompte, Ray Farris, Gib Carson, and Bob Elliott were All-Conference selections.

The key to 1962 could be UNC's freshman team, which rolled up a 3-0 record, losing only to N. C. State, 7-6, and Clemson, 30-27.

Six Tar Baby gridders, guard Clint Eudy, tackle Bob Starczewski, end Frank Gallagher, and backs Ken Willard and Ronnie Jackson, were named to the Big Four All-Star team of 22 men by the Greensboro Daily News. Only Duke, with 7, placed more men on the squad.

Freshman Coach George Barclay doesn't call his Tar Babies the best frosh club he's ever seen, but points to the fact that they had a lot of hustle and desire. "I think that's going to be the great thing about helping Carolina in the future," Barclay said. "All the boys like to play."

Barclay calls quarterback Gary Black, Ron Tuthill, and Jim Gallagher "all three good prospects." Black is the best passer and a fine defensive man, Tuthill is a good runner, and Gallagher is good at all three, according to Barclay. In addition, he thinks that all three could be "real good kickers."

At fullback, Ken Willard, a 6-2, 192-pounder, is the big man. Willard rushed for 157 yards in 34 carries for a 4.6 average and could easily fill the vacant shoes left by Elliott and Joe Davies. "He has "good speed, and is a real fine offensive fullback," Barclay says. "But, he has to improve a little more on defense—he needs experience."

Other fullbacks, who he feels will see varsity action if they continue to improve, are Pete Kirvan, the top defensive fullback, Richard Zarro, who averaged 4.4 yards in 21 carries, and Ernie Pickard.

"Tommy Ward and Ray Jones, at halfback, are real fine defensive men. They've got a good chance to play next year defensively. On offense, they need a little more improvement in their running.

"Ronnie Jackson, Dave Braine, Jim Whitmire, and Hank Barden all have good speed. They're fine runners and should be able to help the varsity at halfback next year.

"At ends, Frank Gallagher and Christian Hanburger are both big strong boys who catch the ball well. They're also good defensive men and should help the varsity a lot next year. Billy Axselle, Neal Clay, and Don Loveday need a lot of experience. All three need to gain a little more weight, then they'll be able to give a good account of themselves.

"Fred Smith at tackle is a real fine blocker, but will probably be switched to guard because of his size. Bob Starczewski is also a good blocker and he could be ready to play some next year. John Hill, Richie Gonzalez, and Tom Haba are fine tackle prospects, but they'll have to gain a lot of experience to help out next year."

Moving to the guard spot, Barclay thinks that Clint Eudy, a Morehead scholar, will see a lot of action on the varsity next year. Eudy, a 6-2, 195-pounder, is "a good blocker, good defensive man, and an excellent football player.'

Also at guard, Paul Fedor, Art Jacoby, Lanny Teague, and Paul Setzer are promising. "All four came along real well," Barclay said. "They will add depth to the guard spot next year."

"Malobicky (Jay), at center, is a real fine blocker and defensive man. He played an outstanding game against Duke. He'll add strength to that spot. Bill Trimble and Joe White are good defensive men, but both are probably a year or so away."

Barclay returned from Charlotte last Friday. He had spent five days there, looking over the North and South Carolina Shrine Bowl teams.

He was impressed mostly with two tackles, Morrison of Grainger and Yates of Hamlet. They're a lot of good football players in this state. If we get our share, we'll be all right ennxtstx f-e be all right next season."

Milton's Shirt Fiasco Ends Today

Give-a-way on 238 dress shirts — button-downs and English tabs, formerly to $7.95, now available in folwoing sizes only—13½-32; 15-4; 15-5; 15-6; 15½-4; 15½-5; 15½-6; 16-4; 16-5; 16½-6; 16-4; 16½5; 16½6; 17-6—Fiasco price, 1 for $2.49 or 3 for $7.00.

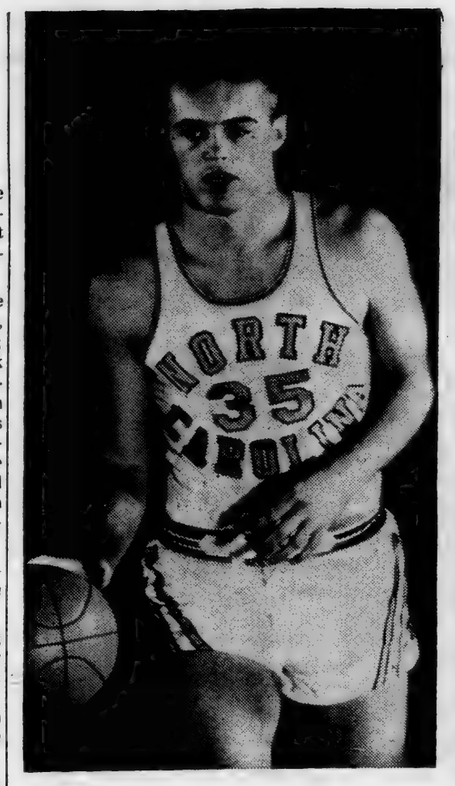
Long sleeve pullover button-down sport shirts, formerly to $9.95, available in sizes 13½-32; 14-2; 14-3; 14½-3; 14½-4; 15-2; 15-3; 15-4; 15-5; 15½-5; 15½-6; 16-4; 16-5; 16-6; 16½-5; 16½-6; 17-6; 17½-6—at Fiasco Price of 1 for $2.99 or 3 for $8.50.

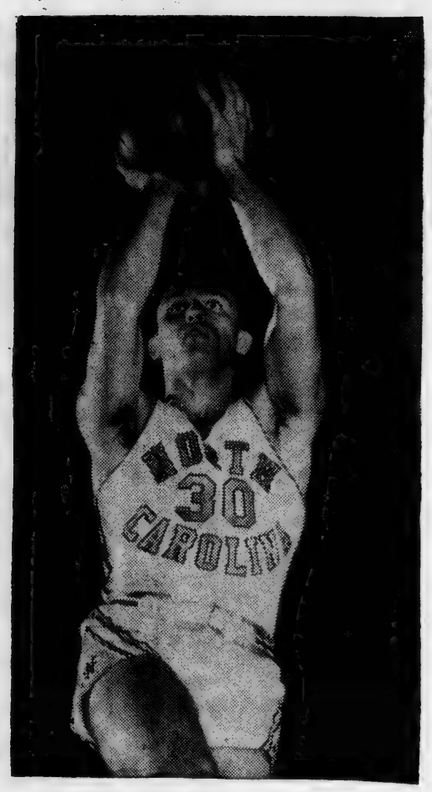
Lady Milton Pre-Xmas Fiasco Also Ends Today

All Sales Cash and Final

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill





'Carolina Champions' players Doug Moe and Ray Stanley

Junior Basketball Classic Sends Rosie Vs. Duke Stars

The Junior Class will present its second annual "Junior Basketball Classic' 'this Tuesday evening, December 12, at Woollen Gymnasium.

The feature contest will be a game between Lennie Rosenbluth's "Carolina Champions" and Howard Hurt's "Duke All-Stars." The night should prove to be an exciting replay of some of the great Carolina-Duke rivalries of the past. According to Don Curtis, general manager for the Champions, Hurt's team is one of the best in the state and will offer some very stiff competition for the high-flying Champions. All-ACC selection Hurt will be supported by Johnny Frye and Jay Beal, as well as some other former Blue Devil stars.

Rosenbluth's squad will include five members of the famous 1957 NCAA Championship team. Among them are Danny Lotz, Tony Radovich, Joe Quigg, and All-Americans Pete Bren an and Rosenbluth. This season the team will be bolstered with the addition of Doug Moe, a standout for the Tar Heels the past three years. Moe will use his All-Ameria talents in the backcourt, a big switch for the 6'6" giant who broke all of Rosenbluth's UNC rebounding records last year.

A preliminary contest will begin at 7:30 p.m. John Hegarty's senior class footballers will battle against a collection of juniors led by Tony Hennessey. One of the teams promises to don wig, padding, and skirt to give a example of how the "better half" plays the game. there will be concessions and a combo to entertain at various intervals during the evening.

Tickets may be purchased at Y-Court from 9-12 a.m. tomorrow through Tuesday, at Town and Campus, and at the door Tuesday evening. The price is 50c for Carolina students and $.50 for Carolina students and ceeds go to the Junior Class to support their projects for the coming year.

Lennie Meets Lucas Tonight

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Area basketball fans are in for a big treat tonight when the long-awaited contest between Ohio State University's Buckeyes—the number one collegiate team in the nation—and the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest, takes place in Winston-Salem's Memorial Coliseum.

The game will be televised over a four-station regional network and by a Columbus, Ohio station. Seven radio stations, including three from Ohio, will originate the contest.

Coach Bones McKinney's third-ranked Deacons, who went to the NCAA quarter-finals last March, before bowing to St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, and have looked very impressive in their first two outings this year, have been pointing to this game for two years.

This scalper's dream not only matches two highly-regarded clubs, but also brings together two of the best big men in the college ranks today. Leading the fabulous Buckeyes is the 6-8 marvel from Middletown, Ohio—two time All-America Jerry Lucas. Wake will counter with its massive All-America candidate Len Chappell. It will be the second meeting between Chappell and Lucas, but neither looked particularly impressive in the first game. That contest at Columbus on December 1, 1959, was the first varsity start for both boys. Ohio State won it 77-69 with Lucas scoring 16 points to Chappell's 9.

Big Len, the 6-8, 240-pound behemoth from Portage, Pa., has scored a total of 51 points in his first two games, while Lucas, who was held to 11 in his opener against Florida State, has netted 34 in a like number of contests. Jerry, who is nursing swollen, inflamed knees, scored 23 in the Bucks' 99-97 squeaker over Pittsburgh Wednesday night.

Coach Fred Taylor's Ohio State club, the nation's top-ranked team the past two years, has lost only four games in two seasons. The Buckeyes were 25-3 in 1960 as they swept all NCAA honors. Last season, they romped to 27 straight victories, before losing to Cincinnati in the NCAA finals, 76-65 in overtime. Taylor, in addition to Lucas, retains two other members of those clubs. They are: 6-5 John Havlicek, possibly the nation's finest defensive forward, and 6-2 Mel Nowell, who averaged better than 13 points a game last year.

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

Time Passes—Even In Mural Basketball

By JOHN MONTAGUE

Time ran out on John Jones and the DU Warriors Thursday night in their fourth-round game of the Grail Mural Holiday Basketball Festival. With the Warriors trailing the Phi Delt Owls by 24-26 and only seconds left in the game, Jones stole the ball and raced down the court to convert an easy lay-up. This tied the game at 26 all—at least this is what nearly everyone crowded into the Tin Can to view the game thought. However, the referees ruled that time had run out before Jones took his shot, and the Owls were 26-24 victors.

Billy Hubbard netted 10 points to lead the Phi Delta offense. Larry Jenkins hit for the same total to pace the Warriors and it was Jenkins' activities on the foul line with nine seconds left in the game which set off the chain of events which brought the contest to its thrilling close.

Jenkins had two free tosess at this time, and the Warriors were down by three at 23-26. Jenkins made the first and, after DU had set up the play during a time out, tried to hit the rim on his second free throw. This attempt by the Warriors to grab a rebound and make a field goal proved futile, however, as the shot missed everything and the Owls took possession. The Phi Delts brought the ball up the court where Jones made his big play, only to have it nullified by the clock.

Although this was by far the most exciting, it wasn't the only tournament game played Thursday. There were seven others, all of them important, since the winners advanced to the quarter-finals in this single-elimination affair.

Bob Wacker burned the meshes for 17 points in leading the Sigma Nu Blue to an easy 37-10 romp over the Everett Rogahs. The Blue will meet the Cobb Squirrel Shooters, 41-19 winners over the Winston Quacks Thursday, in the quarter-finals Monday afternoon. Charlie Price was the big gun for the Shooters, bagging a total of 13 points.

The Phi Kappa Sig Fearsome Five displayed a balanced attack while grounding the Delta Sig Bombers, 24-21. The Bombers' Bob Burgess copped scoring honors for the game with 13 points. The Town Touts, next in line for the Fearsome ones, topped a power-packed Chi Psi Hustlers team, 29-24. Gene Barrier of Chi Psi led all scorers with 10 points, while the Touts' Dave Murr hit for 9.

Buddy Baldwin scored 12 points as Alexander ripped the Kappa Sig Warriors, 33-15. Alexander, boasting one of the stronger teams in the intramural cage festival.

Fencing Tourney Matches 5 Teams Here At 1 Today

The UNC Fencing Club will play host to four visiting clubs today in a tournament in Woollen Gym. Play begins at 1 p.m. and will last until 6:30.

The outside teams are VMI, Clemson, Pfeiffer, and the Winston-Salem YMCA. There will be no admission charge.

At 7:30, the Carolina team will take on VMI. Each year in the contest between these two schools, the winner of two out of three matches receives the Hagner Memorial Trophy, which is now in the possession of UNC.

The Carolina team, which is sponsoring the tournament in an effort to push fencing up to a varsity status, is coached by Pebley Barrow, who once studied under fencing expert Julio Castello.

The team captain for the year will be chosen in elections today. Don Hubbard is presently serving as an acting captain.

Last year, the Carolina swordsmen put together a 7-1 record. One man from the team placed fifteenth in the national finals at Princeton.

Snyder, Kepner Named Captains

Juniors Bob Kepner and Bill Snyder were named to co-captain the 1962 edition of the Tar Heel soccer team Thursday night at the post-season banquet. Kepner, a native of Natick, Mass., and Snyder, from Sewickley, Penn., were both starters for coach Marvin Allen's booters this past season.

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST.

FRIDAY

THE MADNESS OF LOVE AND WAR!

Shamed in the streets... fighting for survival ...AND VENGEANCE!

FIVE BRANDED WOMEN

A DINO DE LAURENTIIS PRODUCTION

starring SILVANA MANGANO · VERA MILES · BARBARA BEL GEDDES · JEANNE MOREAU · RICHARD BASEHART · HARRY GUARDINO · STEVE FORREST · ALEX NICOL · CARLA GRAVINA

SILVAN HEFLIN Produced by DINO DE LAURENTIIS Directed by MARTIN RITT Screenplay by IVO PERILLI Based on a novel by UGO PIRRO · A PARAMOUNT RELEASE

Rare Books Make Sophisticated Gifts for Men of The World

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St.

Open Till 10 P.M.

"HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY"

I have asked the makers of Marlboro—an enterprising and aggressive group of men; yet at the same time warm and lovable; though not without acumen, perspicacity, and drive; which does not, however, mask their essential great-heartedness; a quality evident to all who have ever enjoyed the beneficence of their wares; I refer, of course, to Marlboro Cigarettes, a smoke fashioned with such loving care and tipped with such an easy-drawing filter that these old eyes grow misty when I think upon it—I have asked, I say, the makers of Marlboro—that aggregate of shrewd but kindly tobacconists, that cluster of hearty souls bound together by the profit motive and an unflagging determination to provide a cigarette forever flavorful and eternally pleasing—I have asked, I say, the makers of Marlboro whether I might use today's column to take up the controversial question: Should a coed share expenses on a date?

"Yes," said the makers simply. We all shook hands then and squeezed each other's shoulders and exchanged brave smiles, and if our eyes were a trifle moist, who can blame us?

To the topic then: Should a coed share expenses on a date? I think I can best answer the question by citing the following typical case:

Poseidon Nebenzal, a student at Oklahoma A and M, majoring in hides and tallow, fell wildly in love with Mary Ellen Flange, a flax weevil major at the same school. His love, he had

"Oh, foolish reaper! Why have you not told me before?"

reason to believe from Mary Ellen's sidelong glances and maidenly blushes, was not entirely unrequited, and by and by he mustered up enough courage to ask her the all-important question: "Will you wear my 4-H pin?"

"Yes," she said simply. They shook hands then and squeezed each other's shoulders and exchanged brave smiles, and if their eyes were a trifle moist, who can blame them?

For a time things went swimmingly. Then a cloud appeared. Mary Ellen, it seems, was a rich girl and accustomed to costly pleasures. Poseidon was bone-poor and he quickly ran out of money. Unable to take Mary Ellen to the posh places she fancied and too proud to tell her the reason, he turned surly and full of melancholy. Soon their romance, so promising at the beginning, was headed for a breakup. But at the last moment, Poseidon managed to blurt out the truth.

"Oh, beloved agrarian!" cried Mary Ellen, grappling him close. "Oh, proud husbandman! Oh, foolish reaper! Why have you not told me before? I have plenty of money, and I will contribute according to my ability."

Poseidon, of course, protested, but she finally persuaded him of the wisdom of her course. From then on they split all expenses according to their incomes. Rather than embarrass Poseidon by handing him money in public, a joint bank account was set up to allow him to write checks. Into this account each week they faithfully deposited their respective allowances—35 cents from Poseidon; $2300 from Mary Ellen.

And it worked fine! They were happy—truly happy! And what's more, when they graduated they had a nice little nest egg—eight million dollars—with which to furnish a lovely apartment in Lubbock, Texas, where today they operate the local laundromat.

So you see? You too can salvage your failing romance if you will only adopt a healthy, sensible attitude toward money.

© 1961 Max Shulman

* * *

Lucre is no obstacle when it comes to popular-priced Marlboro, or to Marlboro's popularly priced partner in pleasure—the unfiltered, king-size Philip Morris Commander. Get aboard. You'll find long enjoyment for short money.

ALL STOCKS MUST GO

50% Off List

40 Off List

33⅓ % Off List

ALL STEREO RECORDS
ALL SOMMERSET LP's

ALL POPULAR
JAZZ & FOLK
OPERA & SETS
ARCHIVE & DEUTSCHE GRAMMOPHONE
CHRISTMAS RECORDS

ALL MONO
SINGLE CLASSICAL

CLEARANCE
UNC CHEER MUGS

ALL PHONOGRAPHS ARE PRICED AT THE LOWEST

They Must Be Moved From Inventory

Close-Out On High Fidelity Components
Big Speaker – Priced To Move Out

Saturday 12 til 12

DIAMOND STYLE—MONO $3.95 STEREO $7.95

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Constructive Relief

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Increasing cloudiness and continued cool.

Offices in Graham Memorial | SUNDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Service

College Roundup

(Note: Following are news items from leading college newspapers across the nation as received at the DTH office.)

RED OR DEAD?

DURHAM, N. C.—George V. Allen, a Duke University alumnus and former career diplomat, will deliver the principal address at Founder's Day tomorrow at Duke.

Allen's talk will be tited "Must We Be Red or Dead?" It wil be given in Page Auditorium at 10:00 a.m.

* * *

TALKING CARDS

NORMAN, Okla.—Students who will be unable to go home for the holidays at the University of Oklahoma will be able to send "talking Christmas cards" of personal greetings to their families.

The Interfraternity Council has offered to furnish tape recorders and tape for this purpose for out-of-state and foreign students.

* * *

KERR DIRECTIVES

BERKELEY, Calif.—The University of California controversy over the Kerr directives is continuing. SLATE, a political party and the Students for Civil Liberties, in response to a recent letter from University President Clark Kerr, reiterated their opinion that the directives are too rigid.

The views of speakers on the University campus "must not be incompatible with the educational aims of the university," according to the administration directives.

* * *

SHAKEUP UNPOPULAR

CHICAGO. Ill. — A Chicago MAROON faculty poll reported that University of Chicago professors disapproved of President Kennedy's recent State Department shakeup.

Faculty members polled were particularly critical of Chester Bowles's replacement as Undersecretary of State.

SC LEGISLATURE

COLUMBIA, S. C. — The South Carolina State Student Legislature was held here on the University of South Carolina campus last week. The legislature was termed "a training ground for future politicians."

* * *

'COLLEGE COMMUNISTS'

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — Robert Welch, founder of the John Birch Society, told a student audience recently that "college presidents are some of the biggest Communists. Professors are training intelligent young students to be the high echelon Communists."

The audience was composed of students from the University of Pennsylvania, Haverford College and Temple University. "I can find more Harvard accents in the Communist Party than overalls," said Welch.

"He who is not with me is against me."

* * *

SNCC CALL

Campus committees of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), a group which has been active in the sit-ins and voter registration attempts, are presently working on a nationwide fund-raising campaign. Eight thousand dollars reputedly had to be raised within a week for appeal bonds for 13 Negro students in McComb, Miss.

* * *

RIGHT—LEFT

ITHACA, N. Y.—Frank S. Meyer, an editor of the conservative NATIONAL REVIEW, debated at Cornell University Friday with a Cornell professor on the legal status of the Communist Party of the United States.

Gus Hall, CPUSA general secretary, spoke at Cornell Thursday night. Both talks were sponsored by a campus forum group.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Winston Churchill

'Victory Or Die' In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo—Katangese troops launched a massive "victory or die" attack on United Nations positions in Elisabethville Saturday night, reports received in U.N. headquarters said.

A U.N. spokesman said the United Nations headquarters at Elisabethville was "under heavy fire" by Katangese troops stirred up by a harangue from their commanding general, M. Moke, in front of the post office there.

★ ★ ★

Dominican Agreement Drafted

SANTO DOMINGO, D. R.—A formula for freedom for the three million residents of this island country, touching off a news year's type celebration that filled the streets with happy, singing people.

An agreement was drafted in the early morning hours charting a democratic course in which the remnants of the Trujillo dictatorship still in power and the combined opposition will share the responsibility and decisions.

★ ★ ★

Reds Shoot W. Berliner

BERLIN—Communist border guards Saturday night shot and apparently killed a West Berliner as he waited at the border with five friends for the mother of one to flee to the West ,police sources reported.

The Communists dragged his body through the barbed wire barricade and it lay on the street apparently lifeless for at least an hour and 45 minutes. The five men with him escaped and told West Berlin police.

Police said the mother was arrested by the Communist police Vopos before she could try to cross the British Staaken sector where the shooting occurred.

★ ★ ★

Kennedy To 'Prepare Aggression'

HAVANA—Premier Fidel Castro said Saturday President Kennedy was going to Columbia and Venezuela next week to prepare further aggression against Cuba.

Castro also invited the governments of Colombia and Panama to break diplomatic relations with Cuba, accusing them of "blackmail" and a stab in the back with the "dagger of treason."

The Cuban premier, in another of his post-midnight television marathon speeches, said Kennedy would go to Venezuela to try to "shore up the treasonable and submissive policy of President Romulo Betancourt."

★ ★ ★

Bertrand Bomb Banners Don't Show

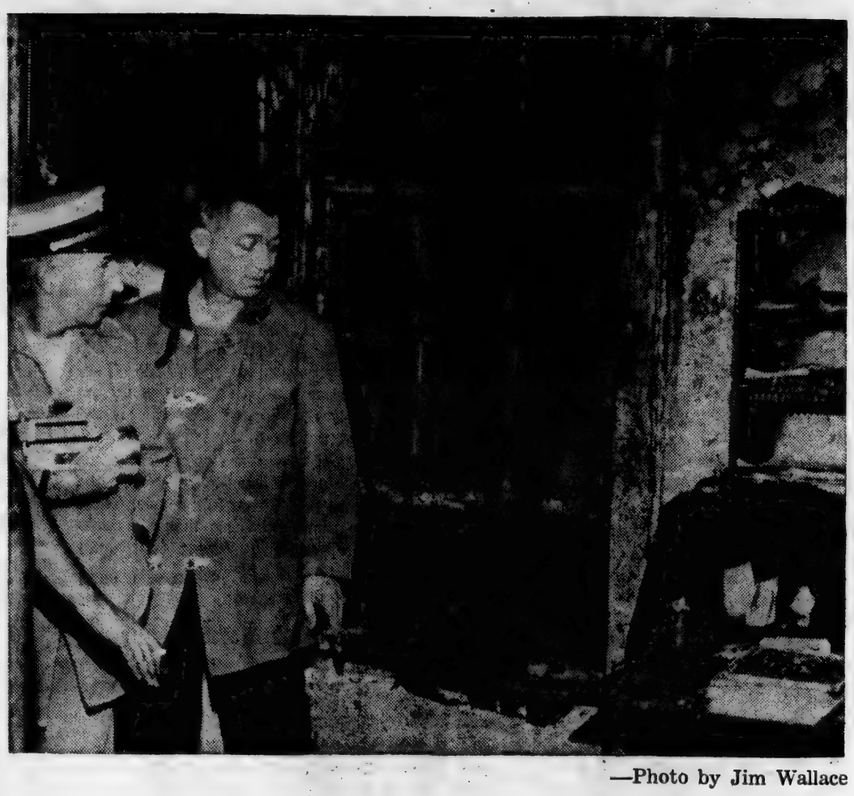
WEATHERSFIELD, England—A planned invasion of U. S. Air Force bases by 50,000 followers of Lord Bertrand Russell's ban-the-bomb followers fizzled Saturday in the face of bad weather and massive security precautions.

★ ★ ★

Adenauer Talks With DeGaulle

PARIS—West Berlin Chancellor Konrad Adenauer met with French President Charles de Gaulle Saturday to carry out a pledge to President Kennedy to do all in his power to convince De Gaulle to drop his oppostion to talks. Adenauer flew from Bonn Saturday morning. He is scheduled to fly home Saturday night.

Small Fire Burns ZBT House



—Photo by Jim Wallace

Fire Officials Try To Find Cause Of Blaze

By JIM CLOTFELTER

A fire broke out Friday night in a second floor room of the Zeta Beta Tau house, 121 W. Rosemary St.

One room was charred, some personal belongings destroyed, and the walls and ceiling blackened.

"This will speed up our new house plans considerably," said fraternity President Stephen Grafman.

Fire Chief G. S. Baldwin said the fire was "of undetermined origin." Firemen are still checking for the cause.

Damage Not Known

Extent of the damage was not known. An insurance appraiser is due soon.

Grafman was downstairs with four or five other fraternity brothers, he said, when the fire was discovered about 9 p.m.

Paul Klukas, about 30, was the man who "saved the day," according to Grafman. Klukas saw smoke coming out of the second floor window, and after warning the occupants, helped put out the fire with the house's fire extinguisher.

Merritt Mill Fire

Two fire engines from Chapel Hill's volunteer station had been called to a fire at 406 S. Merritt Mill Rd. According to a fireman a chimney flue at a store had malfunctioned and sent smoke out into the street.

One of the trucks stopped at the ZBT house, which is several lots down the street from the fire station.

The ZBT fire was out by 9:15. Serious damage was confined to the room of Al Walters and Mark Schnitzer.

Same Night

Firemen said they hadn't had a "real" fire since last summer. "Then we got two the same night," one said.

Fourteen men live in the ZBT house. A new house—slated to be finished by next September—is being built at the new fraternity court on Finley Golf Course Road.

Feuding Continues At AFL-CIO Meet

MIAMI BEACH (UPI — Leaders of feuding AFL-CIO factions met behind the scenes Saturday to hammer out a truce on several burning issues that threatened to develop into an open convention-floor battle.

The meetings were reported to be progressing satisfactorily and key members of the AFL-CIO Executive Council predicted that differences between industrial and craft union leaders would be resolved with a floor fight.

One source said only the absence of several union presidents on fishing trips, sightseeing excursions and other Florida diversions delayed a final decision on a plan to reduce inter-union friction. The convention is in recess until Monday.

Here's how the AFL-CIO leaders appeared to be lining up on major questions:

Teamsters—The AFL-CIO will closely examine any bid for readmission of unions expelled on corruption charges to see if they have cleaned house. This would act to bar re-entry now of James R. Hoffa's truck union.

Racial Bias—Federation leaders will refuse to withdraw a censure of A. Philip Randolph, only Negro vice-president of the AFL-CIO, for public charges that the AFL-CIO has moved too slowly on civil rights. But a policy statement will partly endorse Randolph's call for more effective steps to ban discrimination by unions.

The power Resolutions Committee under AFL-CIO Vice-President George M. Harrison, head of the railway clerks, was reported to have worked out compromise policy statements concerning the Teamsters and racial discrimination within unions.

A disputes committee headed by machinists' President Al J. Hayes reached unanimous agreement on a proposal for advisory arbitration to resolve some of the internal clashes.

Walter P. Reuther, auto workers president and a member of the Hayes group, said the main problem now was to win approval of it from the contesting wings of the federation.

Informed sources said the plan fell short of Reuther's demand for compulsory arbitration but improved on the machinery now available to the AFL-CIO.

UP MEETING

The University Party will hold an open meeting at 1 p.m. in Gerrard Hall Monday. Party policies for the spring will be discussed at the meeting.

University Party officials invite any students who want to see certain parts of campus activities strengthened or changed to come to the meeting and make suggestions. The meeting will not be long.

New Fraternity Site

FIVE ZBT's examine the sign marking the site of their new fraternity house. The house, scheduled for completion next September, will be the first constructed on the new off-campus fraternity court. The new fraternity court site is near Finley Golf Course. The University has plans to lease the land to individual fraternities on a long-term basis. Plans for the Zeta Beta Tau house to be moved to the new site were hastened Friday night when a small fir echarred one room in their present home on Rosemary St.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Chorus Presents Christmas Works For Fall Concert

The University Chorus under the direction of Dr. Wilton Mason of the music department will present its fall concert Thursday night at 8 in Hill Hall.

The first half of the program will consist of Christmas melodies of many countries written or arranged by contemporary composers such as Charles Gordon Rex, Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco, Llius Romeu, Geoffrey Shaw, and Teresa del Riego.

The second half of the program will feature Ottorino Respighi's Laud to the Nativity." This will be the first North Carolina performance of this work which Dr. Mason said is "one of the finest of twentieth century choral compositions."

Respighi Soloists

Soloists in the Respighi work are Rebecca Carnes and Helena Brigman, sopranos, and James Gibbs, tenor.

Mr. K. Threatens West With New Superbomb

Warns Against Use Of Force In Berlin

MOSCOW (UPI)—Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev said Saturday the Soviet Union had nuclear bombs bigger than 100 megatons and that space ships which carried cosmonauts Yuri Gagarin and Gherman Titov into orbit could deliver them anywhere on earth.

He said Soviet 50- and 100-megaton bombs hang over the West "like the sword of Damocles" because the West does not have any nuclear bombs of such size. This means the West cannot win a Berlin settlement by force, he said.

Khrushchev made his most forceful demand for genuine Berlin negotiations in a highly emotional address to the Communist-backed World Federation of Trade Unions. Significantly, it came on the eve of the Paris meetings of the NATO Council and the Western foreign ministers.

Khrushchev denied he was "threatening" anyone but his impatient tone and sharp language indicated that if there is a war it will be nuclear and that the West would be annihilated with the 100-megaton bombs equal to 100 million tons of TNT. He childed the West for building fallout shelters when whole cities would be destroyed in any nuclear war.

Relying On Strength

"We are not relying on prayer to prevent war, but on our own strength," he said. "If they start a war, the first blow will be met with a crushing counterblow. Our enemies might say that Khrushchev is threatening.

"I say I am not threatening. But I am warning you that if you want to test the Socialist countries by war you will never see the end of Socialism as you will never see your own ears."

He warned "gentlemen imperialists" against the idea they could negotiate from strength—"if you want to threaten us from a position of strength we will show you our strnegth."

"You do not have 50- and 100-megaton bombs. We have bombs stronger than that and can replace them with other loads that can be directed to any place on earth."

XMAS XPRESS

WANT RIDES

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. or 100-mile radius—Jimmy Burke, 304 Connor Hall, 968-9154.

NEW YORK—December 13 or 14, Michael Albright, 410 Winston, 968-9080.

PITTSBURGH — December 16, Charles Doty, Mangum, 968-9110.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—December 16, Thurman Smith, 320 Joyner, 968-9185.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX. or general vicinity—Charles H. Lincoln, 201 Avery, 968-9046, can leave December 16. Will share driving and expenses.

NEW ROCHELLE OR NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Rosalyn Post, December 16, 12 noon, 968-3886.

WESTPORT, CONN. or vicinity—Call Evan Harrar, 327 Avery, 968-9116. Would like to leave Friday, Dec. 15.

CHICAGO — or vicinity — Sandy Marks Jr., 942-2914 after 5 p.m., can leave Dec. 15 or 16, will share expenses.

ARLINGTON, Va. — Leonard Rogers wants ride to Arlington, Washington, D. C. or near vicinity, leaving Dec. 16. Call 968-9093 or go by 218 Cobb.

MIAMI, Fla.—Ruth Lebar and Vicki Lebar, share expenses, 942-6241.

MIDWEST (Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha, Neb.)—Sandy Hoffmann, share expenses, Smith Dorm, third floor, 968-9133.

DALLAS, TEX.—L. W. Lau, 176 Phillips Hall or call Physics Dept., share expenses.

NEW YORK CITY OR BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Ronnie Gabriel, Noon Friday or later, 408 Cobb, 968-9097, share expenses and driving.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — John Morene, December 16, share expenses, 215 Parker, 968-9140.

CINCINNATI, or Vicinity—Want to leave Dec. 15 or 16. Will share expenses, driving. Harve Harris, 968-5266.

ARLINGTON, VA. OR WASHINGTON, D. C. or Vicinity—Leonard Rogers, December 16, 218 Cobb, 968-9093.

FT. MYERS, FLA.—Tom Leanhardt, share expenses, 339 Cobb, 968-9145.

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. or NEW YORK CITY—Leaving Dec. 15. Call Ciaran Mercier, 207 Aycock, 968-9158.

ST. LOUIS, MO. or Vicinity — Dec. 15, 16, 17. Bill Weems, 310 Avery, 968-9029, share driving and expenses.

PITTSBURGH, PA. — Barbara Borger, 160 Nurses Dorm, Dec. 15 or 16, share expenses.

NEW YORK CITY — Dec. 16, Amnon Rapoport, III, Conor, 968-9155, share expenses.

NORFOLK, Va. — Judy Gray wants ride, leaving either Friday or Saturday. Call 968-9010, Nurses Dorm.

MEXICO CITY, Mex. or Vicinity—Jim Carpenter, Box 4725, Duke Station, phone Durham 286-9230, wants a ride, leaving Dec. 20.

WANTS RIDERS BACK

FROM CHATTANOOGA, TENN. —For two people after Christmas, Harry Batchelor, 942-1725.

WANT RIDERS

MERIDEN, Conn. — Via NEW YORK CITY, four riders, leaving Monday, December 18, call Peter Ford, 968-2441, 6-7 p.m., will divide expenses.

ATLANTA — Leaving December 16, call J. M. Womack, 325 Teague, 968-9157.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (and en Route)—Leaving December 15 or 16, contact Fran Stallings, 310 Connor or 23 New East Annex.

AUGUSTA OR COLUMBUS, GA. —One rider, leaving Thursday, December 14, Beverly Bernier, 968-9168, share expenses.

NEWARK, NEW JERSEY or vicinity — Mark Greenberg, leaving noon Friday, December 15, 122 Cobb.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Need three riders. Call Howard Holsenbeck, 306 Stacey, 968-9112. Leaving Saturday, Dec. 16.

CHICAGO or Vicinity — Contact Buddy Broome, 140 Cobb, 968-9082.

New Hampshire Governor Finds Gripes Minor

FT. BRAGG (UPI)—Gov. Wesley Powell of New Hampshire before leaving Ft. Bragg Saturday repeated his feelings that gripes about the Army were "minor and undisturbing."

His trip here had been prompted partly by published complaints from members of the New Hampshire National Guard on duty at Ft. Bragg. The gripes ranged from charges of poor food to inadequate equipment.

Now Powell goes to New Orleans for an executive committee meeting of the National Governors Conference. He is president of the conference and said Friday he would ask other governors to visit reservists and National Guard troops called to active duty because of the Berlin crisis.

Powell flew from New Hampshire Friday for a personal inspection.

Meanwhile Army Intelligence was investigating form-type carbon copies of letters outlining steps for complaining to congressmen and urging soldiers to do just that.

One of the letters was found tacked to a bulletin board here. Military officials were keeping quiet about the exact contents of the letter. Officials would not say how many had been found or any other details about them pending completion of the investigation.

US Investigates Handy Gripe Kit

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (UPI)—The Army disclosed Saturday it was investigating a do-it-yourself gripe kit found tacked to the bulletin board in a barracks housing Army reserves.

An Army public information officer said the kit was made up of carbon copies of a form letter, urging reservists to complain to their congressmen and explaining how to go about it.

The letter suggested that the men get 10 of their buddies to cosign their complaints, and to make things easier, the form letter spelled out some common gripes.

Infirmary

Students in the Infirmary yesterday included John Shuford, J. B. Murphy, William Lyons, David Prescott, Clark McAfeemas, Mary Jo Bender, Jacqueline Beza, Sharon Weeldreyer, James Roark, Walter Honour, Frank Dunn, William Dover, William Spencer, Julia Humphreys, Helen Palmatier, John Fisher, Litchfield Huie, Richard Edwards, Julian Bradley, Phillip Adams, John Jennings, Robert Hinnant, Robert Singletary, Oscar Harriss, Mrs. Agnes Little, Helen Martin, Catherine Johnson, Sam Barfield, Bonn Gilbert, Roger Bisson, William Garrard, Robert Deal, Theodore Bobbitt.

Campus Briefs

The folksingers who will do Christmas carols under the auspices of Graham Memorial will have a rehearsal tonight at 7 in Roland Parker lounges GM.

The first documentary TV presentation on the Peace Corps in the field will be shown Dec. 15 on all NBC stations at 9:30 EST.

"Music For Children, Inc.," now has available copies of its first annual listing of musicians, teachers, entertainers, etc. in the area. Copies of this musical Directory are being placed at the following places: Graham Memorial and the "Y" Book Exchange on campus, Danziger's, The Intimate Bookshop, and the Merchants' Association office downtown Chapel Hill. Anyone wishing a copy may write to P. O. Box 408 or call 968-3837.

Louis Suto of the Instrumentation Laboratory at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will give a lecture at the Computation Center Monday at 1 p.m. The topic of Suto's talk is "The Use of Cryotrons for Parallel Arthmetic, Associative Memory and List Processing."

There will be a Y.W.C.A. meeting Sunday from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. in the Grail Room.

The Statistics Department meets from 6 to 12 on Sunday evening in Roland Parker 1, 2, and 3.

Important meeting of the Student Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will be Monday at 8:30 p.m. in Gerrard Hall.

There will be an open meeting of the University Party on Monday at 7 p.m. in Gerrard Hall. Spring policies will be discussed.

Canterbury will meet at 6:30 instead of 5:30 for the annual tree decorating and Christmas party. Please bring a 50-cent novelty gift and label it "boy" 'or "girl."

James Holmes, graduate scholar in the Music Department, will present an organ recital Sunday at 4 p.m. in Hill Music Hall. He will play "La Nativite du Seigneur," a series of nine Christmas meditations for organ, written by the French organist, Olivier Messiaen. Holmes is a first-year graduate alumni scholar in the music department. A 1961 UNC graduate, he studied organ with Dr. Glenn

(Continued on Page 3)

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 10, 1961 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLIX, No. 64

Constructive Relief

The public welfare report submitted to Secretary Ribicoff by a committee of distinguished social workers is infused with realistic humanity. It combines compassion for the unfortunate with a practical program of rehabilitation. In short, it aims at economy in the true sense—economy of human resources. "Public welfare" says the committee a sa postulate, "should be a positive, wealth-producing force in society. It must be more than a salvage operation, confined to picking up the debris from the wreckage of human lives."

In the quarter century of responsibility for the salvaging of human resources through a public welfare program, major social changes have taken place. Industries have shifted, with a profound impact on the communities they left and the communities they moved to; populatin has shifted from rural to urban and from urban to suburban locations; the economy has shifted from a predominantly agriculture to a predominantly industrial base. Unhappily, the patterns of public welfare have not kept pace with these changes.

—Washington Post

The World Should Know Those The Berlin Wall Couldn't Hold

When East German Harry Deterling, a young railroad engineer, stole a train and drove it at high speed into West Berlin with 25 refugees aboard, the world got another taste of the courage that must exemplify the resistance to international communism.

There have been few periods in the history of man that a people has linked together the examples of bravery furnished by the East Germans.

It is a stirring chapter in the written record of man. It not only underscores his need to be free, but his willingness to risk death rather than wear Communist chains.

* * *

Since erection of the Wall of Shame began last August 13 on the border between West and East Berlin, there have been scores of spectacular escapes.

A large number of East Germans have been killed or imprisoned in their efforts to escape confinement. But the many who have succeeded are living testimony to the fact that life under communism is like confinement in a concentration camp.

The United States Information Agency has made every effort to tell the shameful story of The Wall to the people of the world who do not understand the difference between freedom and communism. It is a story that should be told again and again.

This, we must tell the dupes and the neutrals and the uncommitted is a wall that was built not to repel an invader but to keep a people imprisioned.

"It . . . stretches, twists and turns—an ugly thing of stone, broken glass, cement and barbed wire—for 27 miles," says Reporter Magazine.

It is a heartbreaking monstrosity that slices a city in two, separating families and loved ones who strain their eyes from every possible vantage point trying to catch sight of a familiar face.

Here and there in the no man's land fashioned by Communist bulldozers are simple wooden crosses, often marked by fresh flowers, where East Germans have been shot down in their break for freedom. At night, West Germans able to get close to The Wall without being molested by the hated Vopos turn the hideous barrier into a candlelit mourning bier.

* * *

But still the desperate East Germans like Harry Deterling dream up ways of escape. Those succeeding have diminished in number since The Wall was strengthened and its gaps narrowed. But we will always be inspired by those who took the gamble and lived.

We will remember the 22-year-old East German who smashed a delivery truck at high speed through barbed wire barriers at the heavily guarded Brandenburg Gate.

There was the family of 12 which slid down a rope to freedom from an East German apartment house before the Communists moved all families from the border streets.

We recall the young couple who swam the Teltow Canal towing their 18-month-old baby in a bathtub. And the three youths who crashed their six-wheel dump truck right through The Wall before it was strengthened.

They have fled across rooftops in a hail of bullets. They have jumped from apartment buildings into safety nets on the West Berlin side, and some have jumped to their deaths. They have crawled through sewage lines.

The Communists continue to heighten and thicken the Wall of Shame to thwart their prisoners. After Deterling and his friends escaped by train, they tore up the tracks. But they have found no way to build a prison for the spirit of man—a spirit that leads him to a decision to die rather than submit.

If we could band some of these escapees together and take them from country to country to tell the story, it would be one of the most damaging blows ever struck against communism.

Let the world not only gaze upon the Wall of Shame but upon those it could not contain.

—The Charlotte Observer

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN REYNER
Associate Editor

LLOYD LITTLE
Executive News Editor

BILL HOBBS
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

NANCY BAIR, LINDA CRAWFORD—Feature Editors
HARRY W. LEWIS—Sports Editor
DAVID WYSONG—Subscription Manager
JIM EISELDER—Circulation Manager
BO DUTTON—Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MATHEWS—Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau at the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Bethlehem LPs Have High Approach To Music Today

Four recently issued LP's from the Bethlehem Company have made a very good impression with their representation of the company's very broad and qualitatively high approach to contemporary music.

It will come as no surprise to anyone who can remember the two excellent Duke Ellington LP's on Bethlehem label from the early fifties that two of these typical four are jazz, and of a good, solid variety.

Just as those two LP's documented for jazz lovers what seemed to have been an avid period for the Master, and conclusively proved otherwise, so these two LP's are a refreshing blast of fresh air for those who feel the early sixties are proving either sterile or futile for enjoyable jazz musicians.

The first, called "Down Home: The Great Zoot Sims" is a collection of three Swing standards and five contemporary or recent ballads, performed by the tight and mutually productive quartet led by Zoot Sims, the tenor sax player who made his name as one of Woody Herman's 'Four Brothers.'

* * *

HIS FELLOWS are Danny Richmond, the Greensboro-born, self-taught drummer who went from R&R tenorman to the percussive anchor of Charles Mingus' Jazz Workshop, plus Dave McKenna on piano and George Tucker on bass, who are unusually well aware of their instruments' function in a group of this genre.

The numbers are handled in exciting and enthusiastic style (another rarity), and the communication is direct for the calibre of the musicians. While keeping its shoes clean, this quartet manages to work in the funky school as much as could be profitable for the music itself, the primary end. Two of Count Basie's old tracks are adapted here in the Basie tradition and the Sims style:

* * *

DOGGIN' AROUND and JIVE AT FIVE are hardly a culture lag, though. The traditional reviewer's escape is to say that the enjoyment can only be had from the record itself, but this is quite true here. Sims is rapidly reestablishing himself, with the help of these Bethlehem sides, to a long-overdue position among modern jazz artists.

The other jazz record of the four mentioned is a tremendously colorful and entertaining big-band breakout by a relatively unknown leader-cum---arranger. Tommy Watt's "Watt's Cooking" is a close follow-up to his LP "It Might As Well Be Swing," and both are well named. There is a very healthy union of bright, moving orchestration and full-bodied drive which has lately been represented only by Ted Heath, the Count ,and Dizzy Gillespie.

In the backwash of slickness and gimmickry purveyed by Lester Lanin, "Persuasive Percussion," and others of this ilk whose leader is the lovely Lawrence Welk, Tommy Watt's control of the ideal of band music is little les than evangelical. Listen especially for "Black Coffee" and "Crumpets for the Count."

* * *

THE SURPRISE of the package is that a label with as high a reputation in the jazz world as Bethlehem can also put out a full LP of sea chanties called "A Treasury of Spicy Sea Songs." The title is not designed to mislead for sales.

These songs are spicy, gutty and thoroughly down-to-earth in the sense of all true folk music. There are more unknowns than standards here, and the listener is strongly tempted to memorize the songs in relation to the ship functions, as supplied by the liner notes.

The fourth of this sampling is a set of twelve standard ballads by a newcomer, Betty Blake, whose style is strong in the good points of Chris Connor and some of Julie London. On "Betty Blake Sings in a Tender Mood," she is backed by a fine combo of West Coast jazzmen, supplying an idea of mutual accomplishment with the soloist, which hasn't been done well recently except in the cases of Billie Holiday, Chris herself, and Peggy Lee.

As the singer's often overlooked duty is to convey the words and their sense, Betty Blake fulfills her job well. Bethlehem is broadening several horizons at the same time: the listener's, their own, and those of the musicians involved. This should be a good label to watch for future developments.

—Joe Williman

"If You Had Any Initiative, You'd Go Out And Inherit A Department Store"

ATTITUDES By Clotfelter

Foreign Policy Prospects Dark

"Already one finds it difficult to see much difference between Eisenhower policies and those of President Kennedy towards the 'cold war,' the Berlin question and the problem in Southeast Aisa. If anything, one discerns greater rigidity in President Kennedy's line."

This was the reaction of the INDIAN EXPRESS—the New York TIMES called it a "typical Indian reaction—to the announcement that former Ambassador to India Chester Bowles had been replaced as U. S. Undersecertary of State.

The shakeup, according to the Bombay FREE PRESS JOURNAL, "is symptomatic of the Kennedy Administration's inability to live up to the challenge of its own ideals of New Frontier liberalism . . .

"The Kennedy brand of liberalism has been powerless to counteract the righest upsurge and has therefore had to compromise with it," the editorial said.

* * *

Recent reports—although denied—that Ambassador to the U.N. Adlai Stevenson was considering resigning his post in 1962 to run for the Senate undoubtably pleased segments of the political left and center at home. But it did nothing to allay world fears that on the foreign policy level the New Frontier is just a warmed-over version of the Eisenhower Administration.

Most stories in the American press on the Stevenson matter said—as with the stories after the Bowles replacement—that if Stevenson quit his Administration position, it would not be an indication of serious policy differences between the President and the ambassador.

Now Stevenson has announced he will not run for the Senate in 1962 (just like he didn't run for President in 1952 and 1956.) But that he even considered entering the election shows a Stevenson-Kennedy policy and personality clash.

It is very unlikely that a U. S. ambassador to the United Nations who was pleased with Administration policy and policy-making processes would consider quitting—quitting to campaign against a successful opposition leader (Dirksen, GOP Minority Leader in order to be junior Senator from Illinois.

(And, of course, it's quite possible that Stevenson will change his mind and run for the Senate.)

Therefore, the probability that the ambassador—who reportedly was not informed of the Cuban invasion fiasco until it was all over—is not satisfied with the New Frontier.

* * *

If Stevenson should change his mind and run, the President will be in the position of having neither of the nation's three most respected international spokesmen in positions of policy-making importance. Bowles has been shoved into a think-and-advise post, Stevenson may vacate soon, and Sen. Fulbright has been alowed to remain in the Senate while lesser statesmen are brought into the State Department.

In its first year the Kennedy Administration has made several admirable international moves — concerning Angola, and the Latin American "Alliance for Progress" plan—and several major errors—the Cuban invasion, support of tribalist elements in The Congo, indecision in Laos.

Future foreign policy prospects have not been brightened by the recent shakeups.

—Jim Clotfelter

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Student Disappointed At Lecture Turnout

Dr. Nicholson B. Adams, distinguished Professor of Spanish at the University since 1924, a man who has published numerous books in the field of Spanish literature, gave a lecture entitled "Iberica" to the general public at Carroll Hall on Thursday, December 7, 8:00 p.m. I went to the lecture a few minutes early in order to get a seat. I could have had any one of hundreds. The auditorium was virtually empty. By 8:00 the first few rows were filled with Spanish professors and friends of Dr. Adams. The lecture that ensued was a beautifully delivered talk, an interpretation of the Spanish people in light of their history and literature. It was apparent from the general nature of the talk, however, that it was geared to undergraduates and the general public, of which painfully few showed up.

The DAILY TAR HEEL had an article on Dr. Adams a week before his lecture in which his forthcoming talk was mentioned. However, on the day the lecture was to be delivered, there was no follow-up announcement. This kind of oversight is unpardonable, especially for a newspaper that often fills its pages with opinionated smalltalk and pretentious bigotry. But the oversight of the student body is even more inexcusable.

Why is it that Dr. Adams must be put to the embarrasment of lecturing to a few rows largely made up of his own acquaintances? Why is it that a lecture by a professor and scholar who has meant so much to so many in his field should go unnoticed and unappreciated by the student body? I don't know the reason, but I have a feeling that it is because the general caliber of student at this University either has shortsighted interests or is just damned indolent.

—Louis Bourne

Can Administration Accept The Challenge?

Last month ,the University was shown by the people of North Carolina that they do not too seriously want quality education. The issues in the referendum pertaining to institutions of higher education were chiefly for capital improvements.

While many of the items were not, a large part of these issues were prompted by a need for new, larger, or expanded facilities to meet the problem of crowding that is troubling nearly all American public universities. So far this is the only solution to this problem that has been attempted here at Carolina, it is all too obvious that something less expensive and more effective is going to be a must in the next few years.

Two of the most objectionable means seem to be raising entrance standards and raising tuition. I would like to venture a suggestion that would not be totally objectionable to so liberal an institution as UNC.

My suggestion is unlimited class absences. It is well-known now that there are many ways to get around the administration's ruling regarding absences from classes. The policy is in no way uniform now, and in some departments, the student may as well have unlimited cuts.

* * *

IT IS A GENERALLY accepted fact that students who are interested in getting an education attend classes and pay attention in an effort to gain knowledge from class lectures. While class lectures are not necessarily the only means of passing a course, they are a large portion o fthe course.

If the university adopted a plan of unlimited cuts, those students truly interested in getting an education would undoubtedly attend class and reap the benefits that acompany attendance. While those dedicated to frolic and dalliance would most likely fall behind. This policy would undoubtedly raise the drop-out percentage. And those students interested in education would remain in school while a number of the lackadaisical ones would either fail out or be dropped because of their average.

* * *

PERHAPS THIS WOULD in some way ease the problem of overcrowding at UNC. While this is not the panacea for our troubles, it coupled with other programs could be effective in curbing the difficulties that will beset UNC in the next five years. Although not a unique idea, it, along with higher academic requirements and higher entrance requirements will not only alleviate overcrowding but would greatly raise the standards and presteige of UNC.

Will the administration be able to accept the challenge of the times and make moves toward better education or will it remain "in loco parentis?"

—Charles Cooper

Reflections

It's a crying shame that nauseating and untalented Chubby Checker —a bad singer and worse dancer— should be given credit for starting such a wonderfully un-American craze as "The Twist."

Credit should be given to the author and original performers of the "Twist" music: Hank Ballard and the Midnighters, a group of truly colossal un-Americanity. In addition, Mr. Ballard and his group are the world's crudest dancers. By all rights they deserve full (1) credit, (2) blame, (check one) for "The Twist."

Dead Heroes

After many miles of marching through the woods so cold
The fearless sons of freedom find a friendly fold
They are ordinary heroes who are brave and bold
And they're marching with their banners as to war

"The mission of the Minutemen"
one said to me.
Is to round up Russian agents in the A&P
And beat the crummy commies
under rock and tree
And they're marching with their banners as before

A cry went up amongst them—off to battle now
They led a brilliant raid against a
Guernsey Cow
But the farmers dog repulsed them
with a bow-wow-wow
And they're fleeing with their banners and a roar
If a minuteman comes down your chimney Christmas night
With a Thompson Sub-Machine Gun strapped around him tight
Make sure that RED clothed Santa's hidden out of sight
For the minuteman will beat him to the floor

—Allen Matlins

Omission

The name of Paul Planer was inadvertently ommitted from the article "Can We Hear The Warning" in Friday's paper.

FACULTY NEWS

Rice Gets Chemistry Award; Patton Returns To Lecture

Frances Gray Patton, author of the best-selling novel, "Good Morning, Miss Dove," will return to the faculty of UNC for the spring semester as lecturer in creative writing.

Mrs. Patton will teach in the Department of English. Her subject will be "Creative Writing: Introduction to the Short Story." She has taught previously at UNC, first for the fall term of 1956, again in 1958 and 1960.

Mrs. Patton's novel "Good Morning, Miss Dove," was a national best-seller a Book-of-the-Month selection, and was made into a successful motion picture. The Durham author has published two short-story collections, "The Finer Things of Life" and "A Piece of String."

Dr. O. K. Rice

Kenan Professor of Chemistry O. K. Rice was awarded the 1961 Southern Chemist Award at the Southwest-Southeast regional meeting of the American Chemical Society in New Orleans December 7-9.

Dr. Rice received the award for his research in chemical kinetics and the nature of liquids. The award is given annually by the Memphis Section of the Society. Candidates are selected from all the southern states.

Dr. Rice, a UNC faculty member since 1936, has published more than 120 technical papers. He has lectured in numerous states and in England, Canada, Paris, Holland, and other countries.

NSF Grant

In 1960 he was the recipient of a $36,000 National Science Foundation grant, and in 1958 the Foundation granted him $15,000 for chemical studies.

A native of Chicago, he attended San Diego Junior College and received his B.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of California. During 1927-29, he was a National Research Fellow at California Institute of Technology and at the Harvard University of Leipzig, Germany. He later taught at California and Harvard.

He is a member of the Society of Sigma Xi, American Chemical Society, American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Faraday Society and the N.C. Academy of Science, and numerous other national organizations.

UNC Student In Germany

By PETER RANGE

GOETTINGHEN, Germany—In 1943 the Norwegian pastor Olav Brennhovd was arrested by the German secret police in the main railway station in Oslo. Pastor Brennhovd was correctly accused of promoting Jewish escapes from Norway to Sweden as well as illegal currency and courier work for the Norwegian underground. Although he was sentenced to death by the German tribunal court he was finally committed to one to eight years imprisonment.

Following stops in a number of penal and concentration camps in Norway and Germany, Brennhovd finally found himself at the prison of Brandenburg on the Havel (River), where he spent the last years of the war. During those sad and dark days he saw many of his friends murdered by the Nazis. But he tells us that none of those friends had died with a hate-filled heart, that together they had all agreed that the only way to overcome the menace of totalitarianism and war was through love. By the time he was discharged in April, 1945, Pastor Brennhovd was convinced of his mission and his duty to his friends, which he embodied in these words. "We cannot build a new world on revenge and hate, but only on forgiveness and love."

In the service of this ideal Olav Brennhovd went directly into work with German prisoners of war and interned National Socialists in Norway. In 1946 he returned to Germany, working first with the Swedish Red Cross and then with the World Y.M.C.A. and P.O.W. relief. Through this work in the British zone of occupied Germany Pastor Brennhovd came to know a number of townspeople and professors in Goettingen, this appealing university town located in what would be the middle of an undivided Germany.

Through his connection with Goettingen, Brennhovd realized the possibilities which would be inherent in an international student house. By bringing foreign students into contact with Germans, the Germans could reharmonize their thinking and lives (long isolated by the tight reins of National Socialism) with those of peoples from other cultures. By the same token, those about the world who were identifying every German with Hitler could get to know the lives of the average Germans; they could share the toils and joys of student life with the German students and thus realize the German people are far from a group of war-mongers, on the contrary a group of people fundamentally like all other people in the world.

So in June, 1948, with assets worth about twenty dollars, the Company of International Student Friends was founded. This small group of professors and townspeople, with Brennhovd at its head, sought and found, through the graces of the town of Goettingen, a house in which to found its international student home. Built in 1901, the so-called Levin-'sche Villa, the former mansion of a rich textile manufacturer, was given to the Student Friends by the town of Goettingen. July and August of 1948 saw the first international project take place as a group of German and foreign students, including a number of Americans, began the long and laborious task of clearing mountains of sand, tons of rubbish, and much demolished furniture out of the war-damaged house. Heating, lighting, and water installations had to be completely replaced. Finally, before November, the first pieces of furniture were acquired for the house.

The Villa, meanwhile, had been named the Fridtjof-Nansen-Haus, after the famous Norwegian explorer and exponent for peace, Fridtjof Nansen. The goals and life of Nansen still serve as a guiding light in the life of the house, and are related each fall to the new students in the Haus.

Brennhovd was forced to go on the trail in search of financial support for the project. Among his travels were two trips to the United States. Though he knew almost no Americans before his first trip, Pastor Brennhovd was able to bring considerable sums into the Nansen-Haus treasury after both trips, with especial thanks to the students of Ohio State and Cornell Universities.

The Nansen-Haus was first opened for the winter semester beginning in November, 1948, with 28 German and 8 foreign students living in the Haus. This semester we have 60 foreign students, coming from 24 different foreign countries, living with 60 German students in the Nansen-Haus.

From those shaky and small beginnings in 1948, the Nansen-Haus has grown into one of the most famous and important parts of a University community which boasts of 565 foreign students this semester. For we Nanseatens, as the students living in the Haus are called, it means a home—for living, eating, studying—in an exciting and stimulating atmosphere created by the diversity of our membership, the ideals of the Haus, and the pleasures of life with other students in this beautiful and picturesque old villa.

Because practically every room is shared by a German and a foreigner, each room is considered the cell-unit in our attempt to build a body of international understanding. There we work, study, live with our roommates. There spring up the innumerable discussions about all possible political, social, and human topics. There come the guys from the next room, or some of the girls (we have 40 girls, 80 boys in the Haus) from upstairs, or guests from outside the house, for discussion and fun over a cup of coffee or a glass of wine. There—as we get to know each other really well—come out the deeply-rooted beliefs, prejudices, ideals which most men carry in their hearts but give out only with intimate friends.

We take all three meals per day in the Haus. On Saturday evening and Sunday noon we all eat punctually together, whereas our classes prevent this during the week. Our old mansion has a number of handsome day-rooms and social rooms surrounding the great hall and the balcony-gallery. Here we read the newspapers and listen to the radios provided by the Haus. Sometimes we entertain our guests from the outside in one of these cosy rooms, or have parties among ourselves on weekends. One Saturday each month we hold a "Haus Evening," a dance to which all Nanseatens are expected to come. The whole gallery and all the old sitting-rooms are opened up for these almost semi-formal affairs, creating an air of gaiety which takes one back a century to the days when European formality and high society reached a peak in the balls and concerts of classical Vienna.

Hardly a week-night passes in which our political circle, literature circle, philosophy circle, or theater group is not holding some discussion or practice. Such subjects as "Racial Discrimination in the U.S.A." and "Anti-Semitism & National Socialism" have been discussed in recent days.

Among the other variegated activities are a current ping-pong tournament in the basement, the organization of trips to plays, the organization of a basketball team, and a small orchestral group. Some of our well-traveled members bring out their color slides occasionally and invite all interested to a slide-showing one evening in one of the large rooms.

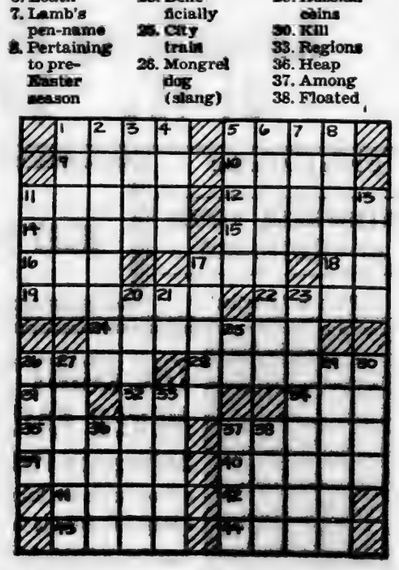
DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Actress Lillian
5. Eve's child
9. Familiar with (slang)
10. Valley (poet.)
11. Deathly pale
12. Frosting
13. To sound, as bells
15. Old decrepit horse (slang)
16. Confederate soldier (colloq.)
17. In what manner
18. Hesitation sound
19. A riddle
22. Relative
24. Workers
26. Catholic Church service
28. Senior citizens
31. Chaldean city
32. A boy
34. Sudan native (var.)
35. Horse ally
37. Island off Venezuela
39. Threefold
40. —— Pitcher, of Revolutionary War fame
41. A seaweed
42. Not working
43. Girl's nickname
44. Tunisian rulers

DOWN
1. Land of plenty
2. Restrains
3. Branch
4. Sharpen
5. Dispatch boat
6. Loath
7. Lamb's pen-name
8. Pertaining to pre-Easter season
11. Land measure
12. Girl's nickname
17. Hauled, as into prison
20. Baby geese
21. Note in
23. Beneficially
25. City train
26. Mongrel dog (slang)
27. Biblical mount
29. Russian cabins
30. Kill
33. Regions
36. Heap
37. Among
38. Floated

ADAM CRAB
OVINE HOMER
RIVAL AGATE
ODE DRESSY
REPAIR
NIGRANT MAR
AREAS IMAGE
YES SPEARED
TWISTY
PARROT LAD
ANEAR AGAVE
STAID SINEW
ALES ADDER

Yesterday's Answer



Campus Briefs

(Continued from Page 1)

Watkins and presented organ recitals during his undergraduate years.

On Sunday at 6 p.m. the Wesley Foundation is meeting with the Westminister Group for supper at the Presbyterian Church. The talk by Dr. Markus Barth has been cancelled.

All students who have not picked up their Yack proofs should do so immediately. Anyone desiring pictures taken by Yack photographers should leave his name, address, and a description of the pictures wanted at the Yack office.

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will meet at 265 Phillips Hall, Tuesday, Dec. 12. Professor Eugene R. Long wil talk on schedule control of operant behavior in children, and Professor Halbert B. Robinson will talk on concept formation.

A collection of the graphic art of Edvard Munch is now being shown in the Ackland Art Museum.

The junior class cabinet will meet today at 3 p.m. in the TV room of GM.

The Hillel Foundation will hold a dance in conjunction with the girls from Woman's College, Saturday at 7 p.m. There will be an admittance charge of 50 cents at the door.

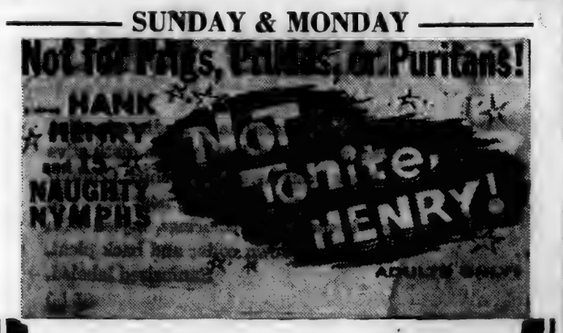
The Community Church Christmas Service of Worship in music will be held today at 11 a.m. There will be no service at 9:30. Church School will be held during the 11 o'clock service. Everyone is invited to attend.

"Haunted House," a two-reel comedy starring Buster Keaton, and a feature film, "Mark of Zorro," the original version with Douglas Fairbanks Sr., will be shown to members of the UNC-Chapel Hill Film Society Monday night in Carroll Hall, 8 o'clock.

Christmas customs from Germany, China, Mexico, U. S. A., and Europe will be incorporated into the Cosmopolitan Christmas Party, this afternoon from 4:00 to 6:00 p.m. in the Main Lounge of GM. Everyone is invited, and there will be many foreign visitors present.

christmas shopping???
the only—but only place for the individualistic, the imaginative, the incomparable—
charles hopkins of Chapel Hill
designer/craftsman (over sutton's)

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST.
SUNDAY & MONDAY



Carolina
NOW PLAYING

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY
BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M.
at the RANCH HOUSE
Recommended By Duncan Hines and Gourmet
NO 86 AIRPORT RD.
the Ranch House
OPEN CHARCOAL HICKORY PIT BROILING
PRIME WESTERN STEAKS
FLAMING SHISHKEBAB & BEEFKEBAB
Can Eat— It's A All You Treat Cowboy

Coming to Durham from Las Vegas
America's Top Female Jazz Artist
SARAH VAUGHAN
and her Quintet
WEDNESDAY NIGHT
DEC. 13 — 8:15
NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE GYM
Durham
Tickets Available at Komps
Adults $2 College Students $1.50

SIC FLICS

"Every fraternity needs some kind of mascot..."

21 GREAT TOBACCOS MAKE 20 WONDERFUL SMOKES!
AGED MILD, BLENDED MILD - NOT FILTERED MILD - THEY SATISFY

Don't Spend Money on Expensive Cards Until You've Seen the FIVE CENTS CARDS at the Intimate

men recommend it to other men

Cool, clean Old Spice After Shave Lotion always gets you off to a fast, smooth start. Feels just as good between shaves as it does after shaving. Rates A-OK with dates. 1.00 and 1.75 plus tax.
SHULTON
Old Spice AFTER SHAVE LOTION

POGO

PEANUTS

Tar Heels Meet Hoosiers On Court Tomorrow

HARRY W. LLOYD

THE SPORTS Tabloyd

If summer is the season for the baseball player, then winter is the season for the general manager. Most of the off-the-field business in the baseball world is done between October, when the season ends, and March, when the bats and spikes are pulled out again. Except for the signing of rookies, which is done almost always during the playing season, and an occasional purchase during the summer, most of the trading is done whiel the diamond is frozen over.

There was one trade made late this week tnat may have made baseball fans think back just a few years. Three years ago, Richie Ashburn won the National League batting championship at the tail-end of the season with a .350 mark. The next year, he was a nobody on a team that didn't have a chance of peeking above the second division.

Ashburn, who at 31 had relied on speed and quickness to make him a great ball player, no longer had the speed at 32. When he lost the speed, he lost the timing that made him a sharp hitter, and also the ability to beat the ball to first base.

When Ashburn couldn't hit, even the lowly Philadelphia Phillies, for whom he had played for so long, couldn't use him. They put him on the trading block and the Chicago Cubs picked him up.

Here's the story. Last summer, North Carolina track coach Dale Ranson was employed by the Cubs to work with their players—both major leaguers and minor leaguers—to try to improve their speed. Ranson hopped all over the country working for Cub players and prospects and he made them run.

While Ranson was working with these baseball men, he became friendly with most of them. One o fthe Cubs with whom he was the closest was "washed-up" outfielder Richie Ashburn.

"Richie told me that he had improved his speed by several steps," Ranson said this fall. "He didn't think he could do it, but he actually learned how to run again.

"I think I earned 30 or 40 thousand dollars for the Cubs by getting Ashburn's speed back. They should be able to get that much more for him in a trade this winter."

Friday, the New York Mets shelled out some $75,000 for a lefthand hitting centerfielder from Nebraska. He isn't a bonus baby, but a 34-year-old named Richie Ashburn.

* * *

Now that foeball has ended and before basketball settles itself any further, it's time to take stock of our records during the last season. We made a set of predictions every week ,to interest both ourselves and our readers. When we totalled our results after last week's games we found that our record was 129 right, 44 wrong, and three ties. That gives us a percentage of 74.5.

Nobody goes to a bowl game on their predictions, not even if he can hit 75 per cent. But next week, we will finish off our year of prognostications with a peek at the New Year's Day parade of football games.

* * *

There aren't many people who have watched coach Ken Rosemond's freshman team who have failed to be impressed. The Tar Babies are blessed with so much talent that even their lack of a really tall man seems of little consequence.

Bill Cunningham, who had a jump on the other freshman by virtue of his enrolling at the beginning of the spring semester in '61, is probably the most eye-catching of the yearlings. The New Yorker, who once scored 61 points in one high school game and then came back for 59 in the next start, impresses us as a player who could probably start for most any varsity in the ACC at any position on the floor. He stands only 6-4½, but his jumping ability and timing put him on equal standing with most 6-9 men.

There are some excellent shooters on the Tar Baby team, and they aren't all on the first team, either. Some of the freshmen teams of recent years have been weakly stocked, but this one should be able of taking care of itself.

Cunningham loses his freshman eligiblity at the end of this semester, and his loss will make some difference in the team. However, Rosemond will then have another center ready to take his place. This one is a wilmington boy, Terry Ronner, who was an All-State player two years ago and attended prep school last year. Ronner will enter UNC as a freshman in January.

Baylor Tops Utah State In NY, 24-9

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ballhawking Baylor converted four of its five fumble recoveries into three touchdowns and a field goal Saturday and whipped previously unmeaten Utah State, 24-9, in the first Gotham Bowl football game before a box office flop crowd of 15,123.

Only a fat fee from nationwide television made the game worthwhile financially for the two teams, who split 75 per cent of the total proceeds. TV rights were estimated at $100,000.

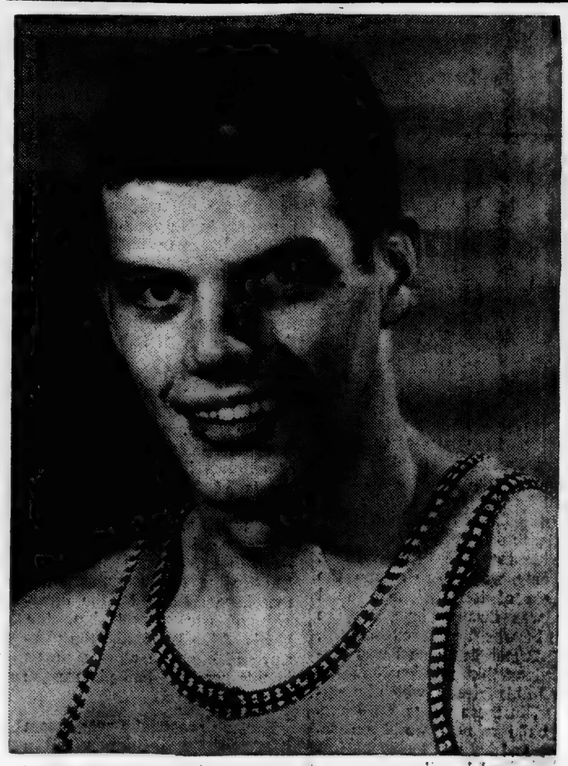
Baylor Ace Ronnie Bull smashed through Utah State's three-quarter ton line on a 15-yard touchdown run in the first period and quarterback Don Trull contributed a two-yard scoring plunge, then a 39-yard touchdown pass to end Tom Plumb. In between, end Carl Choate, who kicked all three conversions, added a 22-yard field goal.

Bull also fumbled away an almost-certain touchdown on Utah State's 15 as the first half ended and another apparent Baylor score in the third period, a Trull pass to Jim Ingram, was nullified by an offside penalty.

High Scoring Team

Utah State, the nation's highest scoring major college team with a 38.7 average, failed to get out of its territory in the first half.

Utah State	0	0	3	6—	9
Baylor	7	3	7	7—	24



MIKE COOKE, a sophomore switched to forward from guard, is the top reserve on coach Dean Smith's Carolina basketball squad. Cooke, who hails from Mt. Airy, rolled in 13 points last week to lead the Tar Heel scoring in a 54-52 win over Clemson.

Giant-Eagle Game Stars Ex-ACC Men

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Four former ACC football greats will be on display today when Durham's Channel 11 televises the Philadelphia Eagles-New York Giants football game from Philadelphia.

What was once Washington Redskins' volatile owner George Marshall's private domain in CBS areas of the South has now been opened up out of consideration for the public. Starting with last week's Green Bay-New York contest and continuing for the remaining two weeks of the season. CBS will televise the NFL feature game of the week all over the South.

As a result of this unprecedented action, QB Sonny Jurgenson, formerly of Duke, and HB Bill Barnes, who matriculated at Wake Forest—two members of the Eagles' quick-striking backfield, and ex-North Carolina State stars Alex Webster and Darrell Dess—outstanding performers for coach Allie Sherman's Giants, get a chance to exhibit their talents for all the home folks.

Aside from the local interest, the big game will go a long way toward determining the Eastern Division champion in the NFL.

1st Non-Conference Test For Carolina

By HARRY W. LLOYD

League-leading North Carolina, winners of two straight over ACC teams, takes a step out of the league Monday for one of the two non-conference games that it has been allowed to play this season.

The Tar Heels will meet Indiana in Greensboro's War Memorial Coliseum at 8 o'clock following a game between the Carolina freshmen and Elon College Jayvees.

The Indiana team, coached by Branch McCracken, finished fourth in the Big Ten last season with an 8-6 record. They won 16 and lost 10 overall. However, the Hurryin' Hoosiers are without the services of their big star of a year ago, Walt Bellamy. Bellamy, a 6-10 North Carolina native is now playing with the Chicago Packers of the National Basketball Association.

Gordon Mickey, a 6-7 boy, has the job of replacing Bellamy in the pivot. Behind him are a pair of boys who are just as big—6-9 Winston Fairfield and 6-7 Dave Granger.

At the forwards for Coach McCracken are 6-4 Tom Bolyard and 6-5 Charlie Hall. Bolyard, who averaged 15.5 a game last year, is the top scorer among the returnees.

At the guards for the Hoosiers are a pair of speedsters, 6-2 Jimmy Rayl and 5-9 Jerry Bass. Rayl scored 34 points against New Mexico State Thursday night while hitting on 13 of 28 shots from the floor.

The Indiana team played two games before last night's contest with Kansas State. They lost their opener 90-81 to a strong Drake team, but popped New Mexico State by 74-68.

North Carolina, which worked out yesterday with the reserves running an Indiana style of offense, is expected to go with the same starting lineup that went against Virginia and Clemson in the two UNC wins. This fivesome includes forward Bryan McSweeney, a 6-5 sophomore, who is currently the top scorer on the team with a 16-point average. McSweeney has hit 10 of 17 shots from the floor for a .588 percentage mark—and has hit 12 of 12 from the free throw line.

Senior Jim Hudock, with a 15.5 average, will be at center. Hudock has hit 11 of 20 field goals for a 54 per cent mark. Guard Don Walsh is the other starter in double figures, with an 11-point mark.

Also in the starting lineup will be guard Larry Brown and forward Dieter Krause, who are averaging eight points each. The sixth man is Mike Cooke, with a 7.5 mark.

Buckeyes' Bob Ferguson Named UPI Back Of Year

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bob Ferguson, Ohio State's bone-crushing fullback, edged halfback Ernie Davis of Syracuse in a nationwide United Press International poll of sports writers and broadcasters Saturday to win honors as college football's "Back of the Year" for 1961.

The 217-pound lineslammer from Troy, Ohio, previously had proved the top vote-getter on the UPI All-America team announced during the past week when he was mentioned on 90.1 per cent of all ballots cast.

Ferguson followed that up Saturday by gaining 94 votes as "Back of the Year" out of 324 cast for a solid plurality.

Davis, the free-wheeling halfback who erased all Jimmy Brown's school rushing records at Syracuse, finished second in the poll with 70 votes while halfback James Saxton, the Texas jackrabbit, was third with 58. All three had been named in the UPI All-America backfield.

Trammell Edges Stevens

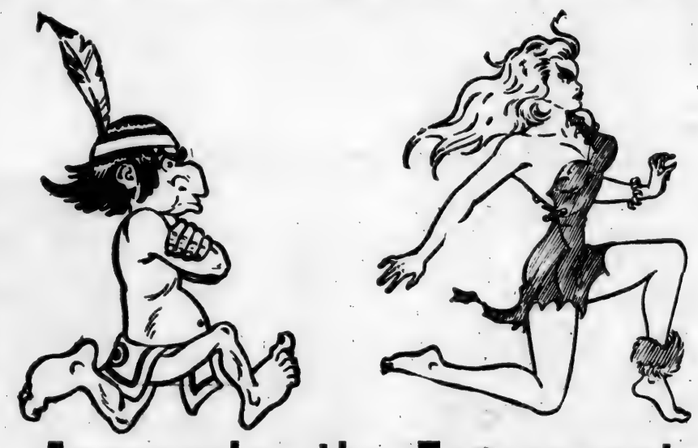
However, the fourth member of the All-America backfield, quarterback Sandy Stephens of Minnesota, was nosed out for fourth place in this pall by quarterback Pat Trammell of Alabama, 32 votes to 25.

Signs With Steelers

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Steelers announced on Friday the signing of Ohio State fullback Bob Ferguson, a barrel-chested All-American who in his college career has been thrown for a loss only three times for a total of six yards.

The Steelers did not announce on what terms they had signed Ferguson, twice the Big Ten's scoring and rushing leader who scored four touchdowns in games against Illinois and Michigan during the past season.

Ferguson, a 220-pound, 21-year-old solidlegged runner, had also been sought by the San Diego Chargers of the American Football League. The Steelers said their assistant coach Mike Nixon had signed Ferguson in Columbus, Ohio.



Announcing the Engagement Of the "BUNS" Twins

It Pays to Advertise!

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

It Pays to Advertise!

BEAT INDIANA

THE LIGHT THAT NEVER FAILS! SCOPE

Rechargeable Pocket Flashlight

- Never needs new batteries!
- Plugs into outlet to recharge itself!

Imagine, a flashlight that will recharge itself, and never need new batteries! Simply snap off cap, plug into any 110-120 volt AC outlet to recharge. New, non-corrosive storage battery, hermetically sealed.

You will want to buy several at this low, low price.

Price $5.95

THE SPORT SHOP

151 E. Franklin

ARROW TAPERED TORSO

If your waistline is medium to slim, you are a candidate for this distinctive block print Arrow sport shirt. Contour tapered for a trim, neat fit . . . in handsome muted colorings, styled with button-down collar and back pleat. Sanforized labeled.

$5.00

ARROW

From the "Cum Laude Collection"

Rare Books Make Sophisticated Gifts for Men of The World

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St.

Open Till 10 P.M.

Contemporary & Traditional

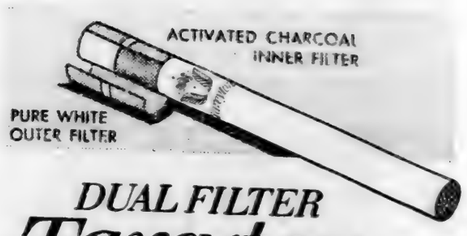
Christmas Cards

One of the Finest Selections In North Carolina—Come in Today, Browse — Choose.

Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

"Tareyton's Dual Filter in duas partes divisa est!"

says Sextus (Crazy Legs) Cato, Bacchus Cup winner. "There are lots of filter cigarettes around," says Crazy Legs, "but e pluribus unum stands out—Dual Filter Tareyton. For the best taste of the best tobaccos, try Tareyton—one filter cigarette that really delivers de gustibus!"



DUAL FILTER Tareyton

Product of The American Tobacco Company — "Tobacco is our middle name" ©A.T.Co.

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

65
65

To Encourage Safety?
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Increasing cloudiness and continued cool.

Offices in Graham Memorial | TUESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Varsity Theater Is Now Admitting Negro Townsmen

The Varsity Theater has apparently been operating under an unofficial policy of complete integration since Friday.

A source at the Varsity said Saturday that four non-student Negroes—three women and a small child—were admitted Friday and additional townspeople admitted Sunday.

If the theater is integrated, the policy is as yet unofficial. The Varsity's stated policy is to admit Negro UNC students who show identification cards. This policy was adopted by the theater's board of directors Nov. 24.

No Negroes asked admittance Saturday, but if any had, they would have been let in, according to the source.

At least ten Negroes were admitted to the Varsity Sunday, said the source. Reputedly, none had to show I.D. cards. A local radio station has reported that all ten were townspeople.

No Comment

The statement he gave to reporters Friday said, "I don't see that any purpose can be served to either the Varsity Theater or to Chapel Hill in my commenting further on this matter."

The Varsity's decision to admit Negro UNC students beginning Nov. 28 was reached after a meeting of the directors of the H. B. Meiselman Theaters, Inc.

Varsity Picketing

Picketing by the Citizens Committee for Open Movies had no effect on the directors' decision said Gutierrez. The theater had been picketed for two weeks before the partial desegregation took place.

The Citizens Committee met with Gutierrez last Monday. No statement was made on the proceedings of the meeting.

A general meeting of the committee was held Friday night. Newsmen were barred.

Committee Statement

Mrs. Evangeline Darity, committee chairman, read a statement to the press after the meeting:

"We have met with the two theater managers and in view of the progress made and further progress expected, there will be no picketing at either theater.

"It is not in the interest of progress to make public the nature of the negotiations at the present time."

The Carolina Theater's stated policy is to admit Negro UNC students who show I.D. cards.

Gains Seen For NC Public Schools

RALEIGH (UPI)—Increased appropriations for public education by the 1961 General Assembly have given North Carolina public schools a shot in the arm, the State Board of Education said today.

A survey by the board's Department of Curriculum Study and Research reported that local school superintendents were enthusiastic about new programs being offered.

In the field of library services, one school superintendent was quoted as saying "these improvements have come because more librarians have been employed and because of the increased appropriation for library books and supplies."

The report added that instruction and learning have been improved because of "increased efforts by teachers, students and parents."

The most frequently mentioned improvement, however, was the attitude of teachers, the survey report said.

"There is a better spirit among our teachers since they feel they are being paid a fair salary and they appreciate it," one administrator said.

The pay increases also have brought in more and better teachers, according to the report.

Some units reported that some trained personnel returned to teaching or came back to North Carolina because of increased teacher salaries.

Other improvements attributed to the increased appropriation were in the number of courses offered, public interest and support and interest and attitude of the students.

FOLKLORE SPEAKER

Dr. I. G. Greer, noted North Carolina folklore and ballad collector, will speak to the local Student National Education Association at 8:00 o'clock Tuesday night, December 12. The meeting will be held in 08 Peabody Hall and is open to the public. Dr Greer will sing several ballads in the course of the program and tell the stories which reveal their origins.

Orphans' Christmas

Santa Claus greets Raleigh orphans at a special YM-YWCA Christmas party for them. Several campus groups contributed gifts. —Photo by Zalk

Little boys puffing for breath after a "real" football workout, little girls with upturned, angelic faces gathered around a Christmas tree and listening to "The Littlest Angel," toys spilling from gaily colored paper bags—all were part of the YM-YWCA Christmas party for the Catholic Orphanage.

The "Y" Orphanage Committee, headed by Betti Brown and Bruce Cooper, brought 50 children to UNC from Raleigh last Sunday for the occasion and entertained them royally all day long.

Dressed in navy blue and gold jerseys, the boys, who ranged in age from 4 to 10 years old met with UNC varsity team members, Ray Farris, Vic Esposito and Jimmy Addison in the Tin Can. After a brisk warmup and a few practice plays, the boys divided into two teams and played a spirited and enthusiastic game of touch football.

The little 3-year-olds, undaunted by their inability to play with the "big boys," decided to run races on the indoor track. The winner of the first race was an enterprising little fellow who ran the wrong way when the race started and then reversed halfway down the track to come in first across the finish line.

The decided victor of the races, though, was a sandy-haired, freckled-faced little 4-year-old in a bright yellow sweatshirt who consistently streaked past his fellow racers with tongue hanging out and panting. Even when the other little boys stopped, he ran around the track alone.

The girls took in the sights of the campus, stopping at Ackland to see the newest art display. Several of the littler girls gathered around the GM Christmas tree to hear the old Christmas stories again and to ohh and ahh over the adventures of the famous little

(Continued on Page 3)

Campus Briefs

Freshman class publicity committee will meet Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. in Woodhouse Room, GM.

An open freshman meeting is being planned for January 9. Time and place will be announced later.

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will meet at 265 Phillips Hall today. Professor Eugene R. Long will talk on schedule control of operant behavior in children, and Professor Halbert B. Robinson will talk on concept formation.

A collection of the graphic art of Edvard Munch is now being shown in the Ackland Art Museum.

(Continued on Page 3)

UGLY MAN RESULTS

Latest results in the Ugly Man voting are as follows: Jungle Jim 1242; "Big Daddy" DeBlasio, 1105; Eye of Newt, 687; M. T. Graves, 453; Rat, 114; Transformed Coed, 65.

The contest closes at 11 p.m. this Friday.

World-Acclaimed Greek Pianist To Perform In Memorial Hall Tonite

Gina Bachauer, a world-famous Greek pianist, will give a concert tonight in Memorial Hall at 8. Her performance is sponsored by Graham Memorial.

UNC students will be admitted free to the balcony upon presentation of I.D. cards. Spouses of students will be admitted for $1.

"Performances on a grand scale," said the New York Times music reviewer of Miss Bachauer. "There is a spark to her playing, a kind of vitality and sheer verve that is peculiarly her own.

"Superior Artist"

"The listener is kept on his toes, and that, after all, is invariably the imprint of the superior artist. She carries the listener along with her."

The New Yorker reviewer said Miss Bachauer "played with great brilliance, thundering tone, and a masterly command of the Brahms style."

Other reviews said:

"Stunning. . . . Her playing is graced by instinctive artistry and sound musicianship." — Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Grand Manner"

"Miss Bachauer plays in the grand manner with a communicative sense of authority. A top-rank pianist." — N.Y. Journal-American.

"An artist of exalted quality."—Los Angeles Examiner.

(Continued on Page 3)

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Winston Churchill

Court Overrules Sit-In Decision

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court decided its first "sit-in"case Monday by overruling the 1960 Louisiana state conviction of 16 Negro lunch counter demonstrators on charges of disturbing the peace at Baton Rouge.

The majority opinion, delivered by Chief Justice Earl Warren, carefully limited grounds for the reversal to denial of the process of law because of lack of evidence. It did not go into broader constitutional issues which may be presented by other "sit-in" convictions in Southern communities.

CORE The Congress on Racial Equality praised Monday's ruling as having "historic importance" which may have impact on the conviction of "freedom riders" as well as "sit-in" participants who sought to end racial barriers in restaurants.

★ ★ ★

Red Says West 'Blocking' Agreement

WASHINGTON—Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov said today Russia wants to negotiate a Berlin settlement but that "certain statesmen" of the West are blocking this wih unreasonable conditions

The Russian envoy said there can be no negotiations as long as the West insists on such things as close ties between West Germany and West Berlin, occupation rights or a privileged position for West Germany.

★ ★ ★

Teamsters Barred, Again

MIAMI BEACH—The AFL-CIO moved Monday to bar re-entry of the outcast Teamsters union so long as James R. Hoffa is leading the 1.5 million-member truck union.

"It boils down to Teamsters, yes; Hoffa, no," a spokesman for AFL-CIO President George Meany said.

★ ★ ★

Court Claims Trial 'Cure'

JERUSALEM, Israel—The Israeli court which convicted Adolf Eichmann of crimes that may send him to the gallows declared Monday that his trial may have provided a cure for "this ancient disease, the group hatred which is known as anti-Semitism."

Opening Eichmann's day of judgment, the court quickly announced it had found him guilty of crimes against the Jewish people, crimes against humanity, war crimes, and membership in an illegal organization.

★ ★ ★

'UN Faces Immediate Bankruptcy'

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—Acting Secretary General Thant urged the General Assembly Monday to take immediate action to save the United Nations from "imminent bankruptcy."

Thant said the organization's deficit will reach $170 million by next June unless drastic changes are made in the present financial system.

He told the assembly's budgetary committee that the financial difficulties which have confronted the United Nations during the past several years "have become so serious as to now threaten the ability of the organization to carry out its primary responsibilities and approved programs."

Big Three Ministers Discuss Berlin, Congo

Congo Seen More Immediate Concern

PARIS (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk met Monday with the foreign ministers of Britain, France and West Germany to work out a "no surrender" allied stand on Berlin and possible strategy if Russia signs a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany.

But there appeared to be more immediate concern over the Congo crisis and how to solve it. The United States, Britain and France agreed on a long-term policy that the Congo be "united and peaceful" but differed on the Katanga problem and how to end the fighting there.

The ministers met for almost five hours in the opening of their two days of discussions on the international scene—including Berlin, the Congo, South Viet Nam and Laos.

Rusk, British Foreign Secretary Lord Home and French Foreign Minister Maurice Vouce de Murville discussed the Congo and southeast Asia problems for 2½ hours Monday morning.

They were joined after lunch by West Germany's new foreign minister, Gerhard Schroeder, for a 2¼ hour session devoted entirely to the Berlin issue. Two more meetings on Berlin were scheduled for Tuesday.

As the Big Four foreign ministers began their conferences, NATO Secretary General Dirk U. Stikker warned that the West could weather the potentially-explosive Berlin problem only by remaining militarily strong.

There appeared to be a tacit understanding to put the question of Berlin peace talks with the Soviet Union aside for the time being.

XMAS XPRESS

WANT RIDES

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. or 100-mile radius—Jimmy Burke, 304 Connor Hall, 968-9154.

PITTSBURGH — December 16, Charles Doty, Mangum, 968-9110.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—December 16, Thurman Smith, 320 Joyner, 968-9185.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX. or general vicinity—Charles H. Lincoln, 201 Avery, 968-9046, can leave December 16. Will share driving and expenses.

NEW ROCHELLE OR NEW 'ORK CITY, N. Y.—Rosalyn Post,)ecember 16, 12 noon, 968-3886.

WESTPORT, CONN. or vicinity—Call Evan Harrar, 327 Avery, 968-9116. Would like to leave Friday,)ec. 15.

CHICAGO — or vicinity — Sandy Marks Jr., 942-2914 after 5 p.m., can leave Dec. 15 or 16, will share expenses.

ARLINGTON, Va. — Leonard Rogers wants ride to Arlington, Washington, D. C. or near vicinity, leaving Dec. 16. Call 968-9093 or go by 218 Cobb.

MIAMI, Fla.—Ruth Lebar and Vicki Lebar, share expenses, 942-6241.

MIDWEST (Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha, Neb.)—Sandy Hoffmann, share expenses, Smith Dorm, third floor, 968-9133.

DALLAS, TEX.—L. W. Lau, 176 Phillips Hall or call Physics Dept., share expenses.

NEW YORK CITY OR BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Ronnie Gabriel, Noon Friday or later, 408 Cobb, 968-9097, share expenses and driving.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — John Morene, December 16, share expenses, 215 Parker, 968-9140.

CINCINNATI, or Vicinity—Want to leave Dec. 15 or 16. Will share expenses, driving. Harve Harris, 968-5266.

ARLINGTON, VA. OR WASHINGTON, D. C. or Vicinity—Leonard Rogers, December 16, 218 Cobb, 968-9093.

FT. MYERS, FLA.—Tom Leanhardt, share expenses, 339 Cobb, 968-9145.

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. or NEW YORK CITY—Leaving Dec. 15. Call Ciaran Mercier, 207 Aycock, 968-9158.

ST. LOUIS, MO. or Vicinity — Dec. 15, 16, 17. Bill Weems, 310 Avery, 968-9029, share driving and expenses.

PITTSBURGH, PA. — Barbara Borger, 160 Nurses Dorm, Dec. 15 or 16, share expenses.

NEW YORK CITY — Dec. 16, Amnon Rapoport, III, Conor, 968-9155, share expenses.

NORFOLK, Va. — Judy Gray wants ride, leaving either Friday or Saturday. Call 968-9010, Nurses Dorm.

MEXICO CITY, Mex. or Vicinity—Jim Carpenter, Box 4725,

(Continued on Page 3)

Communications Committee Asks SG Appropriation

Student government's Communications Committee will seek a $475 appropriation from Student Legislature Thursday night.

The committee, presently operating under the executive branch of student government, also will seek legislative recognition. Robin Britt is committee chairman.

Its goals include subsidation of dorm and fraternity newspapers, the creation of a publicity agency for student government and the publication agency for student government and the publication of a student government handbook.

Extensive Program

The committee, begun in November, functions as a press agency for student government and according to Chairman Britt "anticipates an extensive program for publicizing its activities and purposes."

Gungus Ho

Gungus Ho, a satiric cartoon figure, has been adopted by the committee as its associative symbol to "add interest" to its publicity efforts. Gungus represents a Carolinized Roman, complete with "weejuns," a Roman toga, a flat top and a Carolina umbrella.

Britt emphasized the fact that "the communications program is not an attempt to 'sell' student government but rather an effort to inform interested students of its activities and to create an awareness of the many opportunities for valuable experience that it offers.

Foremost Concern

"Actually publicity for student government on the campus, state, and even national level is the foremost concern of this committee," he said.

In order to "establish a more adequate communication with students," the committee is helping establish newspapers in as many dorms and fraternities as possible. In the past week newspapers have been begun in three dorms and Britt reported that progress is being made in other living units.

The committee will assist exisiting newspapers by furnishing them with source materials and information concerning Student Government.

Editor's Roundtable

An Editor's Roundtable in which the editors of the papers can discuss problems and exchange ideas and articles is planned for the spring semester.

Displays in the library, visits to living quarters, articles in the Daily Tar Heel, posters, cartoons will be used to "project student government to the campus in as interesting a manner as possible," said Britt.

Communications with other schools will be undertaken with the intent of keeping other schools abreast of student government activities at Carolina.

DTH Staff Meet Scheduled Today

All members of the Daily Tar Heel staff and all persons interested in becoming members of the staff must attend the staff meeting today at 3 p.m.

The meeting will be held in the Tar Heel offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Editor Wayne King said yesterday that any and all interested students could attend the meeting. Regular staff must attend.

Student Admits Many Robberies To NC Police

A student Marine at the University admitted a long string of robberies to Raleigh police Sunday.

Richard Mattes, a freshman residing at 116 Lewis Dorm, told Raleigh police he had committed 14 laundromat robberies in Raleigh since the first of October and had also robbed numerous other laundromats across the state.

Mattes was brought back to Chapel Hill yesterday to pick up some of his belongings.

He is to be tried today at 10 a.m. in Cary and at 2 p.m. in Raleigh City Court. Major L. C. Shepard of the USMC and the University will go with Mattes to court. He will represent the Marine Corps.

Mattes said he didn't need the money he got from the machines he broke into. Each robbery netted him at the most $1 to $15 dollars.

Mattes bought a new car — a Rambler—and drove it all over the state in his search for laundromats. He remembered the cities in which he robbed. They included Charlotte, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Burlington, Raleigh, and Danville, Va. He said he couldn't remember all the little towns which he visited. "I'd rather hit the open road until I come to a laundromat in a small town or village," he said.

After Mattes is tried in Raleigh, he will face a retainer filled by Greensboro, whose laundromats also suffered.

Local Novelist Betty Smith Discusses Forthcoming Work On Student Wives

BETTY SMITH, well known novelist, discusses her next novel. Scheduled to appear next year, it will deal with student wives. Mrs. Smith has been a resident of Chapel Hill since 1936.—Photo by Inman.

By GARRY SUTHERLAND

"You can educate a man right out of your life," says novelist Betty Smith of her forthcoming novel, which will be published next year by Harper Brothers.

Mrs. Smith, a Chapel Hillian since 1936, is the author of the best-selling "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," as well as "Tomorrow Will Be Better," "Maggie Now," over 70 one-act plays, and numerous magazine articles.

The new novel, set in Chapel Hill, concerns student wives. Once married to a law student at the University of Michigan, Mrs. Smith says she has a wealth of material from which to draw.

Often, in student marriages, she says, the wife works to help put her husband through school. She works as a waitress, and he goes on to marry the governor's daughter. In her new book, Mrs. Smith has turned the tables and pulled a complete switch.

"Never Know"

"I never know what my novels will be. I start with a character and put him in all kinds of situations—only when I've finished do I know how the book will turn out," she says.

Mrs. Smith feels that journalism is excellent training for the novelist. In that field, she says, you must deal with facts, and you must appeal to everyone, speak to them in their own language.

Playwriting, too, is invaluable experience, she feels. "One learns not to waste words." Whereas a novel may be spun out over 500 or more pages, a play must be wrapped up, told entirely through dialogue and within 90 pages, she continued.

"Never Forgive"

"An author may write a bad novel. He can write a good novel a few years later and redeem himself, but audiences never forgive a bad play," she said.

The novel has a better chance of publication, feels Mrs. Smith, than the short story or play.

"Publishers figure if you've got it in you to sit down and write 500 pages, you must have something—even if it's so much eyewash."

Her advice to potential playwrights: "Take advantage of every contest that comes along." In a contest she judged recently, there were 11 entries. The "least-bad" won. "There are better plays than that hidden in everyone's trunk," she said.

"Forget It"

"You are born a writer—or you are not!" It isn't something you'll do "someday." A friend wrote to her, saying her son couldn't decide whether to be a jazz musician or a writer. She wrote back, "If you have to decide—forget it!"

"When you write, you may have to sneak it," she said. "Your wife may say to you, 'Don't sit down at that typewriter.' 'I wouldn't think of it,' you say, and send her packing off to visit her mother, and you write like mad while she's gone."

She agrees that the "only way to write is—to write."

"Start Immediately"

"I get up in the morning and have cofee, then go into my room and sit down at my typewriter. If I get dressed, I might go downown—so I must start to work mmediately."

(Continued on Page 3)

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 12, 1961 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLIX, No. 65

To Encourage Safety?

Yesterday we received a letter from James F. Norwood of Norwood Brothers Esso Station. The station is currently marketing a device designed to warn speeders when they are entering a radar speed zone. Recently we criticized the sale of this device in an editorial in this column. Mr. Norwood's letter is in reply to that editorial:

* * *

To the Editor of the Daily Tar Heel:

Norwood Bros. Esso is currently advertising an Electronic "Radar Sentry" to detect Radar Speed Traps and Radar controlled traffic signals, such as school zones, intersections and other locations where traffic should travel at a slower speed and under extreme caution. Anyone will admit:

1. That a device that will warn the driver he is about to approach a zone of this nature is an absolute and needed necessity.

2. That a device that will cause a speeding driver to slow down way ahead of a speed detector has served an effective purpose more so than a Patrol car hiding behind something and then dashing out at neckbreaking speed to catch the speeder. Instead of slowing the first speeder down, now we have two cars traveling at a high rate of speed.

While serving in the Army, I had the privilege or attending three Military Police schools totalling 16 weeks of training and approximately 18 months of actual M. P. duty. These duties consisted of Foot Patrol, Post Patrol, Town Patrol and Desk Sargeant. All the training and experience indicate that the more conspicuous the police make themselves, the lesser the violations. This is the purpose of the Police. This is why they wear attractive uniforms.

The Patrol, using the hide and seek method of enforcement, with or without speed traps, is only a means of catching the violator AFTER he has done the damage, which is a very good way of collecting revenue. We sometimes wonder if the production of revenue isn't the purpose of the speed traps instead of promoting safety. This is why Radar Detectors should be and are available to the public.

James F. Norwood

* * *

Pardon us.

It appears we were in error. Somehow we got the impression that drivers were aware that speed zones exisit and that these zones were clearly marked by signs. We also have been laboring under the misapprehension that laws were made to be observed all the time, not just when there's a cop on the corner.

* * *

Any driver with normal vision and a knowledge of speeding laws knows when he is breaking the law by speeding. He doesn't need an electronic intelligencer to make him aware that he is in a speed zone.

To suggest that the "Radar Sentry" is marketed with the purpose encouraging highway safety is just so much bunk. The device is marketed for the sole purpose of aiding evasion of speeding laws by allowing him to slow down before he is caught.

* * *

Speeding laws and their enforcement by the Highway Patrol are not designed to "catch" anyone. The implication that they are is a product of rationalization, disregard for highway safety and a banal, tiresome observation that patrolmen are villainous monsters and speeders their innocent victims.

The villain of the highway drama that unfolds year after year on our highways is not the patrolman; it is the driver who defaults on his responsibility to make the highways safe. It is the driver who slaughters thousands annually. It is the driver who scoffs at speeding laws and their enforcement.

And it is the driver who makes laws, patrolmen, fines and jail sentences necessary.

* * *

Mr. Norwood wonders if "the production of revenue isn't the purpose of the speed traps instead of promoting safety."

We're a little curious to know just what purpose is served by the promotion and sale of electronic gimmicks designed to encourage defiance of the law.

To encourage safety?

Hardly.

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN RAVENEL
Associate Editor

LLOYD LEWIS
Associated News Editor

BILL HOUSE
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

NANCY BASS, LINDA CRAVEN—
Feature Editors

HARRY W. LEWIS, Sports Editor
DAVID WYSONG, Subscription Manager
JIM ENGLISH, Circulation Manager
ED DUNCAN, Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE, Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MANNING, Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.00 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International, and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Ah, Nature!

One of those "ain't nature grand" editorials in one of the state papers recently observed that "frost, like a silvery blanket, comforts the earth as rosy-cheeked passers-by dart about in the chill air, eager to evade winter's icy blast by roasting in front of an open fire."

What the writer meant was that he got up in the morning, it was too damn cold to get his car started, he got frostbite waiting for the bus, which was late, and swore he would never, under pain of death, go out again on a frosty morning without his gloves.

Or that it would be better to stay at home in front of the radiator, since he doesn't have a fire-place and wouldn't have ne of the smokey, smelly things.

'It's OK, I Don't Eat Negroes Anyway'

(Editor's Note: The following article written by a student at Kent School, Kent, Connecticut is reprinted from The Kent News by request.)

Many of my friends have said that they believe segregation and racial prejudices is the most serious impediment to social harmony that exists in America today. I, especially, cannot deny the seriousness of this impediment. Coming from Alabama in which prejudice has caused nation-wide, even world-wide concern, I have seen how serious racial prejudice really is. Despite the fact that intellectuals all over the country are discussing the problem of racial prejudice with strained, serious faces, relatively little progress is being made in solving this problem.

NEW APPROACH

Let me suggest, then, that the intellectuals, along with everyone else, change their approach to this situation. Since serious discussion has not completely changed the attitudes of our people, it is quite possible that the approach to the problem of racial conflict should be such that when the subject of race comes up, a person need not hesitate to make a joke about it. If people can make jokes about Khrushchev's belt size, about Batista's getaway car, or about President Kennedy's hair, I see no reason why they can't also make jokes about Martin Luther King, City Transit Authority, or indeed even about "sit-ins" at meetings of the White Citizens' Council.

PLENTY OF ROOM

High noon in New York, August: The crowded bus jogged to a stop at Fourteenth Street. All the passengers got off, except two women who had been sharing a seat—one Negro, the other white. Both were stout.

"If I move to another seat," the white woman thought, "this Negro will think I don't want to sit by her."

Two stops later the Negro looked at her bus-mate and said:

"Honey, there's plenty room on this bus; why for then are you crowding me?"

This story and some that follow came from an article that appeared in HARPER'S MAGAZINE in the June 1961 issue. The article was "The American Negro's New Comedy Act," by Louis E. Lomax, a Negro free-lance writer. According to Mr. Lomax, the story, though its origin is uncertain, has a certain and specfic meaning. The story shows that Negroes and white people are beginning to laugh together about the most serious affliction of American society. For many years Negroes and white people have been laughing AT each other. The comic response of the Negroes was born of hurt; that of the white people, unfortunately, was born of malice. Only recently have Negroes and whites begun to laugh WITH each other.

INTELLIGENCE OFFICER (?)

An example of the Negro's attempt to laugh off the burdens of his social position is that of a Negro sergeant who was in France during World War II. The young sergeant explained to his French girlfriend that he wasn't really a Negro; that he was actually an intelligence officer that the army had painted brown for special night fighting.

Even recently, jokes have been made about the position of the Negro in today's society. For instance, a young Negro comic named Dick Gregory remarked:

"I 'sat-in' at a restaurant for three years. Then they finally integrated the place and I found out they didn't have what I wanted!"

In the South-East section of Washington, D. C., an elderly Negro lady was walking along a busy street when she noticed some cheesecake (the edible kind) on display in the window of a customarily all white restaurant. Now, it just happened that the old lady had an obsession for cheese-cake and would do almost anything to get a piece of it. So, she went into the restaurant, and immediately the people in the restaurant stopped eating and looked at her. A bit shaken, the old lady remarked:

"I don' wanta go to school witcha, I jes' want a piece o' cheesecake!"

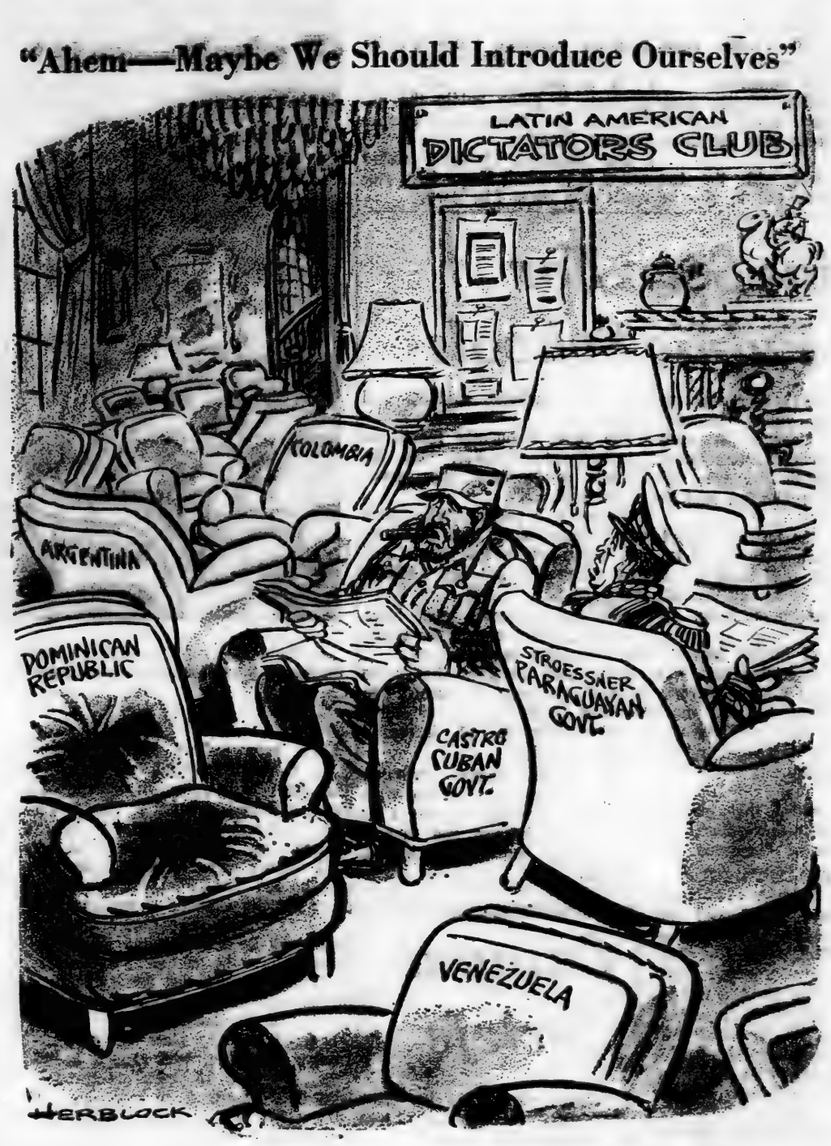
Negro's Major Role

This example shows the Negro's awareness of his guarded social position and his ability to take it in stride. The Negro has been a main protagonist in nearly every major social disorder in the country, and he is aware that the eyes of the world are watching him. First there was the Emancipation, then the suffrage, followed now by the integration of southern buses and schools, and the Freedom-riders and "sit-ins." (I personally feel the Freedom-riders did their job about as well as the hangman who was testing a gallows and forgot he had the noose around his neck when he opened the trap.) Of course, the last was a serious thing, but just try and explain the rationality of passive protestation. Why, a bull has more reason for being in an arena than a person has for riding a Greyhound bus from Memphis to New Orleans.

Our country has recently undergone a change because of the "sit-ins." As a final anecdote, I would like to relate the story of a young Negro college student who went into a restaurant and sat down at the counter. When the young man was seated, a polite but firm waitress said to him, "I'm sorry, but we don't serve Negroes."

"That's okay," replied the collegian casually. "I don't eat them anyway."

"Ahem—Maybe We Should Introduce Ourselves"



Phone Use Impolite In Lenoir

One of the most widely-abused privileges of UNC students is the use of the free telephone in Lenoir Hall. This phone was installed for free local use for students, faculty members, guests and dining hall employees, but not to the extent that others waiting to use it must be inconvenienced or made late for class.

Approximately 4000 people could be in Lenoir at one time and any, or even all, of them might wish to make important, emergency phone calls while they are there. This telephone should therefore be used considerately by all. It should not be used for long, involved discussions with a boyfriend at a fraternity house or with a girlfriend about the big weekend plans. This type of call should be made on a private, not public, telephone.

We should all remember that courtesy merits courtesy and we can only expect to be treated as we treat others. Someone behind you might very easily be waiting to make an emergency telephone call, and your consideration of him will be greatly appreciated. If you act courteously, maybe the action will be remembered and practiced by the next person. Try it and let's hope it works with everyone.

—CAROLYN CHAPMAN

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Thoughts On The Wider Perspective

I should like to follow the example set by David Lobdell's article some weeks ago. Mr. Lobdell addressed himself to issues which confront the world of today, but his article's interest lay in its presentation of the problems in their historical perspective and its proposal of a solution in the context of a broader theory. I trust that this present article will further a trend which (hopefully) may make this page a battleground of ideas insead of biases.

The theories of history advanced by scholars from Marx to Toynbee have proved only one thing: that it's almost as easy to make history say what you want as to proclaim that our particular segment of it is the period of mankind's direst crisis. If we can keep our generalizations small enough, however, history might shed some helpful light on our current dilemmas.

The most pressing problem facing our culture today is the cold war, and our most urgent question is what will be its outcome. In a recent article by Alan Barth a congressman was quoted to the effect that the only alternative to communist domination of the globe is "total victory" for us. Mr. Barth points out that, if the statement is true, we are caught between an unbearable situation on the one hand and an unattainable one on the other. Before we despair altogether then, it would be well to examine a similar historical situation and see whether or not we can agree with the congressman.

* * *

THE OUTLOOK for Europe in the year 732 A.D. was very, very bleak. In the century since its birth, Mohammedism had swept as far east as India and as far west as Spain. The worst words in modern American usage could not have described all the horrors this ideology held for Europe. Besides being a departure form Truth, Beauty, Human Nature, and the one true God, it was insidious, revolutionary, fanatical militaristic, authoritarian, and imperialistic. The new religion preached death to the infidel and its adherents were sworn not to rest content until all the world was under their control. It looked as though they were going to succeed. Charles Martel, faced with so uncompromising an ideology, would have scoffed at Kennedy's diplomatic troubles. Under the circumstances he could only remind his men of mother and country and THEIR duty to stamp out unbelievers and then negotiate like hell at sword-point near Poitiers, France.

The Moslems were driven back into Spain, but they still swore that they would bury the Christians, that their children would live under Mohammedism, etc., etc., etc. There followed a cold war, complete with sporadic heat waves. Caliph Harun al Rashid sent Emperor Charlemagne an elephant as a token of esteem, but the Christians lost a good number of officers and men, including one Roland, in various police actions on the Spanish frontier.

After a while, however, both sides accepted a sort of peaceful co-existence. Of course there were still occasional conflicts—the crusades, expulsion of the Moors from Spain, and the conquest of Constantinople to name a few. But the important thing to note is that these were not attempts on the part of either side to annihilate or convert the other in toto—total victory was no longer the question. Europe even profited immensely from its contacts with Islam.

Learning, commerce, and ways of life received new impetus and direction from the Moslem influence. Charles Martel would be amazed to learn that his world-conquering, militaristic, fanatical, opponents ended up making important contributions to Western culture instead of destroying it.

* * *

I REALIZE THAT it's hard to see the forest for tres the size of Berlin, Viet Nam, and all the other current crisis, but I believe that our cold war will essentially follow the course of its 8th century predecessor—if we manage to avert a nuclear holocaust. Total victory and/or defeat are impressive words but history has had few occasions to use them.

—NORWOOD PRATT

Twist Is On The List

The Associated Press recently described the Twist as ". . . a cross between a Tahitian Fertility rite and a size 44 matron trying to squeeze into a size 36 girdle."

"The Twist," according to an editorial in the Charlotte News, "makes the dirty shag look like a Sunday school picnic dance."

But newspaper editors are not the only one who have lamblasted this new dance craze. Parents, preachers, teachers, and principals have raised indignant protests. But youth never listens. And while the oldsters are raising indignant protests, their sons and daughters are twisting right on.

However the younger generation does not have a monopoly on the Twist. Edie Adams, well-known actress-singer, recently broke up a sophisticated Hollywood party with—you guessed it—the Twist. "After dinner," Miss Adams explained, "I could see what was going to happen—the women's groups gossiping and the men playing gin rummy.

"I thought it would be a good time to do the Twist. And when those Hollywood Gin Rummy players began to look up, I knew we had a social revolution."

The fact that Edie lost 5 pounds in her first two days of twisting might be of interest to anyone with weight problems. And rock 'n roll singer Chubby Checkers has lost 35 pounds since launching the fad over a year ago.

* * *

HOWEVER, MRS. Marjorie B. May, home safety director of the Greater New York Council, warns people to think twice before substituting the Twist for calorie counting: "Only the strongest backs can withstand the 'gauntlet of convulsions' that go with the Twist," she said. According to a United Press story, the new dance sensation has already resulted in a new spinal ailment—"twister back."

And, in this neck of the woods too, there has been a lot of controversy created by the new dance. However, one indignant dance instructor from Durham won't even concede that the Twist is a dance.

"It's not an authentic dance and I certainly don't teach the Twist," Mrs. Olive Godwin of the Godwin Dance School said when queried as to whether or not she taught the Twist in her classes.

After a recent dance, the Durham High School principal ruled that there would be no more 'twisting.' He said the Twist ". . . borders on being vlugar and has no place in Durham High."

The reaction set in immediately. Students began wearing signs on their clothes stating, "I Do the Twist," "I'm a Twister," etc.

PREDICTION: South Building will ban the Twist from the campus.

Students will picket South Building.

And this brings up the inevitable question of "Where are we going to draw the line?"

Pray-ins, kneel-ins, and sit-ins we can take. But a Twist-in would be too much.

—IRVING LONG

Campus Briefs

(Continued from Page 1)

The first documentary TV presentation on the Peace Corps in the field will be shown Dec. 15 on all NBC stations at 9:30 EST.

"Music For Children, Inc." now has available copies of its first annual listing of musicians, teachers, entertainers, etc. in the area. Copies of this musical Directory are being placed at the following places: Graham Memorial and the "Y" Book Exchange on campus, Danziger's, The Intimate Bookshop, and the Merchants' Association office downtown Chapel Hill. Anyone wishing a copy may write to P. O. Box 408 or call 968-3837.

All students who have not picked up their Yack proofs should do so immediately. Anyone desiring pictures taken by Yack photographers should leave his name, address, and a description of the pictures wanted at the Yack office.

Xmas Xpress

(Continued from page 1)

Duke Station, phone Durham 286-9230, wants a ride, leaving Dec. 20.

AUBURN, Ala., ATLANTA, Ga. or COLUMBUS, Ga. — Rick Edwards, 308 Stacy Dorm, 968-9112, wants ride leaving after 12 noon Saturday. Will share driving, expenses.

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Rudy Albert wants ride. 232 Teague, 968-9181, leaving after Saturday 1 p.m.

WANTS RIDERS BACK

FROM CHATTANOOGA, TENN. —For two people after Christmas, Harry Batchelor, 942-1725.

WANT RIDERS

MERIDEN, Conn. — Via NEW YORK CITY, four riders, leaving Monday, December 18, call Peter Ford, 968-2441, 6-7 p.m., will divide expenses.

ATLANTA — Leaving December 16, call J. M. Womack, 325 Teague, 968-9157.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (and en Route)—Leaving December 15 or 16, contact Fran Stallings, 310 Connor or 23 New East Annex.

AUGUSTA OR COLUMBUS, GA. —One rider, leaving Thursday, December 14. Beverly Bernier, 968-9168, share expenses.

NEWARK, NEW JERSEY or vicinity — Mark Greenberg, leaving noon Friday, December 15, 122 Cobb.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Need three riders. Call Howard Holsenbeck, 306 Stacey, 968-9112. Leaving Saturday, Dec. 16.

CHICAGO or Vicinity — Contact Buddy Broome, 140 Cobb, 968-9092.

ARLINGTON, Va. — John Jennrich wants riders. He will leave Dec. 16; will charge $4 per trip. Call Theta Chi house, 968-9123.

STAMFORD, Conn. — Mike Bell wants two riders, leaving Monday, Dec. 18. Call 968-9178, 220 Connor.

NEW YORK—Tim Tetlow wants one rider, to pay $5 each way. Leaving noon Friday. Call 968-2338.

Novelist Smith Discusses Own Work, Method

(Continued from Page 1)

When her daughter began writing short stories, Mrs. Smith told her to "get three out. Don't send just one."

The daughter sent all three to magazines simultaneously, and the third one was accepted. The important thing, Mrs. Smith says, is to keep sending them out.

Brooklyn's Tourists

Twelve publishers rejected "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn." "They said no one outside of Brooklyn would read it. They said it would keep the tourists away from Brooklyn.

("Why should tourists go to Brooklyn in the first place?" Mrs. Smith asked.)

"I kept sending it out as long as the manuscript held up," she said. "I wouldn't have typed it again."

She always types her own manuscripts, she said, working with the story right up to the last moment, making it more cohesive, changing a name that doesn't quite fit the character.

Evan, Cabot

Names seem to fascinate her. Speaking of her granddaughter's beaux, "They're always named Evan or Cabot—never Bill or Frank or Bob."

To the controversial question of whether or not writing is autobiographical, Mrs. Smith says definitely, "Yes, you have to write about what you know.

"You complete your life by writing," she said. "Some of the greatest writers of children's stories were women who had no children. Did Lewis Carroll have children? Does Walt Disney?

"And frequently writers of murder mysteries are timid men with small moustaches."

Sex

Commenting on the trend towards increasing sex in modern novels, Mrs. Smith was reminded of her job as playreader during the depression. Nearly every play went into great detail in describing food, she said.

"This puzzled me until I realized that during that time so many people were hungry," she said. "If a person is well-fed, he doesn't harp on food. If a person is well-adjusted physically, he doesn't find it necessary to harp on sex . . . sometimes I think these writers who go into greatly detailed description of violence and rape are just whistling in the dark!"

A novel, Mrs. Smith feels, is a lasting thing. A play has a life of a few seasons at best.

Recent Letters

"I'm still getting three or four letters a day from people who've just read "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," she said. "And some of them weren't even born when it first came out!"

Originally published in 1941, the book has been translated into several languages and recently reissued in paperback.

On education: "I was never a candidate for a degree at any university," she said. "In fact, let's be blunt about it—I never finished high school."

Orphans' Christmas

(Continued from Page 1)

angel in Heaven. The rest of the girls helped decorate the Kappa Delta Christmas tree and disposed of a plate of brownies in the kitchen.

Santa Visit

Later all the children gathered together again in Rowland Parker Lounge for the high spot of the day, Santa's visit. True to form, Santa arrived with curly beard and a fur trimmed red suit to greet the children and start the party.

Gifts donated by the "Y" were tied in a gaily colored pinatas, an old Spanish way of dispersing presents.

OLD WELL CHARMS

Sterling Silver $4.50
Gold Plate $6.00
Solid Gold $20.00

T. L. KEMP JEWELRY

Charm Headquarters
135 East Franklin St.

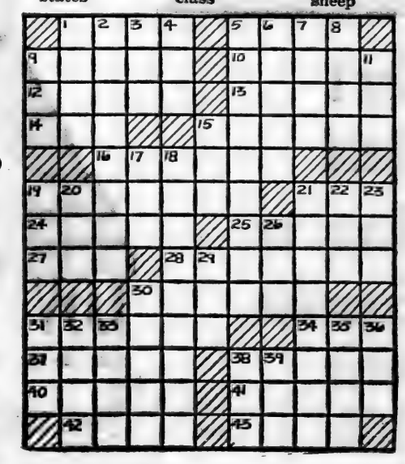
DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Esau's wife
5. Sign between Gemini and Leo
9. Sheeplike
10. In baseball, a home run
12. Competitor
13. Type size
14. Poem
15. Stylish
16. Mend
19. Traveling worker
21. Disfigure
24. Regions
25. A representation
27. Affirmative
28. Pierced, as fish
30. Coiling
31. Talking bird
34. Youth
37. Near (poet.)
38. Century plant
40. Grave
41. A tendon
42. "Nine o'clock and —— well"
43. Affixes

DOWN
1. Greedy
2. Swerves
3. Mother of Irish gods
4. Goddess of the dead
5. Objects of almsgiving
6. Man's name
7. Candlenut trees
8. Wagers
9. Tahitian national god
11. King
15. —— Cupid
17. Epoch
18. Signals to sentries
19. Spring month
20. Anger
21. One of the 13 original states
22. To mature
23. —— China
26. Footwiper
29. Abyss
30. Woodland way
31. Dance step
32. Theater group (abbr.)
33. Genuine
35. Birds as a class
36. Moisture
38. King of Judah
39. Disease of sheep

SIDLE PLUSH
ONION RANCE
FAG GORDON
JEB LOCKETS
ORO ONES
PILINGS EVA
POISE SIREN
ARC WAIVERS
SOLO MOA
WOOLLEN INS
ARRIVE ATI
GRACE PIECE
SALES ASSAM

12-11
Saturday's Answer



Softly tailored

trim, well-cut NYLON TRICOT PAJAMAS

For back-to-school wardrobes, travel, or boudoir relaxing, you couldn't be more comfortable! Embroidered fake monogram on pocket, elastic waist. White, pink, blue, red, aqua. 32-42

$5.98

Sans Souci

De Anne's

109 Main Street—Durham
Available Parking Facilities

EVERY COLLEGE STUDENT needs this book

to increase his ability to learn

An understanding of the truth contained in Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy can remove the pressure which concerns today's college student upon whom increasing demands are being made for academic excellence.

Christian Science calms fear and gives to the student the full assurance he needs in order to learn easily and to evaluate what he has learned. It teaches that God is man's Mind—His only Mind—from which emanates all the intelligence he needs, when and as he needs it.

Science and Health, the textbook of Christian Science, may be read or examined, together with the Bible, in an atmosphere of quiet and peace, at any Christian Science Reading Room. Information about Science and Health may also be obtained on campus through the

Christian Science Organization at

University of North Carolina
Box 246
Meeting Time:
7:15 P.M. Tuesdays
Meeting Place:
Woodhouse Room
Graham Memorial

Franny and Zooey

Uncle Shelby's ABZ Book

Lion on the Hearth

Plus

Brush Stroke Prints

And Bull Fight Posters!

Oh Me Oh My! What a Christmas!

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St.—Open Till 10 P.M.

CLASSIFIED ADS

WHAT IS WAITING FOR YOU AT 65—golf, travel, books, leisure, or . . .? Call on a Northwestern Mutual agent for a sound plan now. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U., Telephone 942- 6966.

TEN DOLLARS REWARD. LOST in Ram's Head parking lot red booklet entitled "Brasilia" and spiral notebook. Ten dollars and no questions asked of returnee. Phillip Guin, 228 Parker.

FOR RENT: QUIET PLACE TO study—ample grounds for recreation on 13-acre estate, Highway 86, four miles beyond Ranch House. Mobile Home, 1960 Buddy, 55 ft. by 10 ft. wide. 3 bedrooms, bathroom, kitchen, dining and living rooms—beautifully furnished and fully equipped for modern living. Bottled gas range, automatic washer, etc. Electricity, telephone, sewer. Excellent water. $100 mo. (includes site rental). Tel. 942-4715 or 942-3477.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: LOREN GERGENS

Three years ago he was an economics major in college. Today he is a salesman introducing Bell System products and services to business executives. Loren Gergens and his sales staff have improved the communications efficiency of many firms by analyzing their operations and recommending advanced Bell System products and services.

Loren Gergens of Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph Company, and the other young men like him in Bell Telephone Companies throughout the country, help make your communications service the finest in the world.

BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES

POGO

PEANUTS

Hoosiers Hand Carolina 1st Cage Loss, 76-70

The tall, sharpshooting Indiana Hoosiers pulled away from North Carolina with two minutes to go and registered a tight 76-70 win last night at Greensboro. The loss was the first of the season for the Tar Heels.

The Tar Heels trailed most of the game, finding themselves in the lead only once after the opening minutes of the game.

Carolina led 62-61 in the second half with 6:53 left but couldn't compete with Indiana's apparent control of the backboards. The Hoosiers led in rebounding, grabbing off 41 to the Tar Heels 26.

High scorer for Carolina was guard Larry Brown who managed to score 22 points against Indiana.

Taking second place scoring honors for Carolina was center Jim Hudock with 14.

The Tar Heels trailed 38-31 at the half and forged within two points of Indiana several times during the final period.

Carolina meets Notre Dame on January 6 for a resumption of action after the holidays.

Daily Tar Heel Sports

Page Four — Tuesday, December 12, 1961

Champs Play Duke Tonight In Benefit

It will be Carolina and Duke all over again tonight in Woollen Gym. The Carolina Champions, a team from the Golden Era of basketball at UNC, will take on the Duke All-Stars, featuring Howard Hurt. In a preliminary feature, the junior class football players will take on the seniors in a comedy game.

The events are a part of the Junior Basketball Classic, a venture that was initiated last year as a fund raising project of the junior class. Tickets are 50c for students and $1 for others. The opening game starts at 7:30, and the feature will be underway at 9.

Wrestlers At Citadel For A Pair

Coach Sam Barnes' wrestlers will still be trying for their first win of the season tonight when they take on Davidson in a double-header at Davidson. Both the varsity and freshman teams of the two schools will be in action.

The Tar Heels lost their third match of the season Saturday night at The Citadel, 20-6. After 123-pounder Mickey Nelson won with a decision and 130-pounder Pete Gilchrist won on a pin, the Carolina team didn't capture another match. Losers for Carolina were Willis Johnson, Jack Jones, Richard Blackman, Glenn Glaser, Gene Record, and Bill Shipp.

The freshmen, coached by Grover Wilhoit, are also looking ing for their first win, after losses to Virginia and Washington & Lee. They did not wrestle last week.

Following today's match, the UNC grapplers have one more match on their schedule before the Christmas holidays. They meet Virginia Military in Chapel Hill on December 14 for their first home contest.

UNC Freshmen Romp Past Elon Jayvees 90-48

By ED DUPREE

UNC's Tar Babies rolled to an easy 90-48 win over he Elon junior varity Monday night in a preliminary to the Carolina-Indiana clash.

Jay Neary scored 23 points to lead the Tar Heel frosh in scoring. Neary connected on 11 of 17 field goals and added a foul shot for his total.

Ray Respass followed Neary with 22 markers, 16 of them coming in the second half. Respass' jump attempts.

In less than three minutes, the Tar Babies jumped off to an 11-2 lead and the outcome was never in doubt. Layups by Brown and Neary, successive field goals by Respass, Neary and Hassell and a foul shot by Brown, gave them their quick lead.

At the ten-minute mark, Neary dropped in another field goal to give the Tar Babies a 29-17 lead. The Elon team stuck close to the Tar Babies for the last 10 minshot was hitting consistently and he poured in 10 of 16 field goal utes of the half and Carolina left the court at halftime with a 47-32 lead.

Neary tossed in 15 points in the first half and Billy Cunningham added 13.

The Carolina frosh started off fast in the second half and two baskets by Hassell pushed their lead to 59-35. Respass had connected with 3 straight field goals to start the frosh on their way. By the ten-minute mark, another basket by Neary gave the Tar Babies a 69-39 lead.

christmas shopping???

contemporary jewelry handwrought

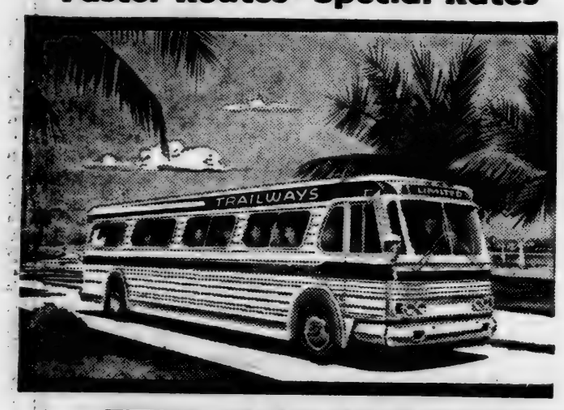
the only—but only place for the individualistic, the imaginative, the incomparable—

charles hopkins of Chapel Hill

designer/craftsman (over sutton's)

Now Serving All of FLORIDA

Faster Routes - Special Rates



take TRAILWAYS.

easiest travel on earth

Save 50% of your return fare from Florida when you buy special low round trip tickets. New routes, faster service.

From Chapel Hill to:	1-way	From Chapel Hill to:	1-way
MIAMI	$44.65	TAMPA	$37.20
Express serv. via short route		Add'l service via Jacksonville
ST. PETERSBURG	38.25	ORLANDO	35.10
Add'l serv' via choice of routes		Express serv' via short route
(Plus tax)		(Plus tax)

Union Bus Terminal

For information please call

311 W. Franklin St. Phone 942-3356

Don't Spend Money on Expensive Cards Until You've Seen the FIVE CENTS CARDS at the Intimate

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST.

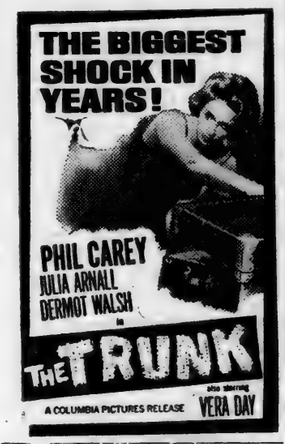
'SPICY, RACY, HILARIOUS & HIGHLY SOPHISTICATED' N.Y. World Tel. & Sun

LOVE AND THE Frenchwoman

Childhood • Adolescence • Virginity • Marriage • Adultery • Divorce • Women Alone

Carolina

NOW PLAYING



It's Raining Weejuns At Milton's

Just Received Nice Large Shipment of men's and women's Bass Weejuns

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

FIRST TIME ANYWHERE

ALL NEW GENUINE CORDOVAN WEEJUNS by Bass

Good Looking BASS WEEJUNS With all the QUALITIES OF CORDOVAN

- EASIER TO SHINE
- BETTER LOOKING
- LONGER LASTING
- MORE DURABLE

THIS NEW SHOE IS AVAILABLE ONLY AT

Julian's Village Shop

A Merry Christmas

From THE HUB of Chapel Hill

YOUR CHRISTMAS GIFT HEADQUARTERS

WHERE FAMOUS NAME BRANDS MEAN THE BEST.

VAN HEUSEN – JANTZEN

BRENTWOOD – WINGS –

BOTANY "500" – ALLIGATOR

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

PAJAMAS

ROBES

GLOVES

SCARVES

ACCESSORIES

A sweater collection beyond compare. See this beautiful array of sweaters in blues, olive and brown heather tones and soft shades of grey in 6 button cardigan front, Crew-Neck, and V-Neck styles.

DRESS SHIRTS by Van Heusen, Wings. A terrific selection to choose from.

THE HUB of Chapel Hill

103 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-1252

STEVENS-SHEPHERD

HOLIDAY HOUSE

A Store Full of Fabulous Gift Suggestions for Her, for Him — for Everyone:

Gifts for Her!

6-ft. U.N.C. Wool Mufflers	$5.95
Hip-Stitch Worsted Skirts	11.95
Jayson Classic Oxford Blouses	4.00
Alan Paine Shetland Cardigans	11.95
Adler Wool Athletic Socks	1.00

Gifts for Him!

"V"-Neck Lambswool Sweater	13.95
Imported Velour Tyrolean Hats	10.95
Black Umbrellas–Imp. Handles	5.00 up
Button-Down Oxford Dress Shirts	5.00
English Leather Cosmetics for Men	1.00 up
Prince Gardner Billfolds and Key Cases	2.95 and up
3-Piece, Antique Harness Leather Belts	3.95

Gifts for Everyone!

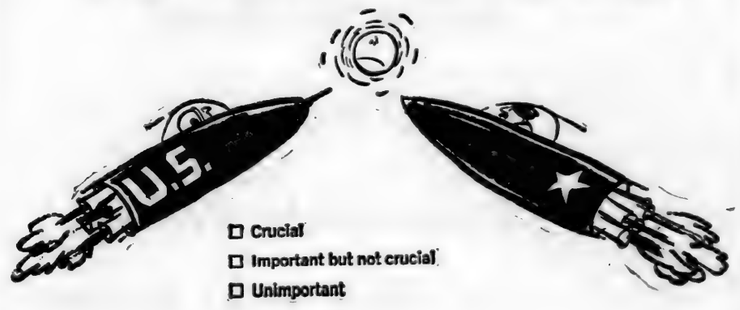
Kiwi Shoe Shine Kits	3.95
Convertible Travel Bar Set	23.95
Comical Party Napkins & Signs	1.00
Suede & Plaid Bottle Guards	6.00
"Hot-Rod" Immersion Heaters	2.50
Plastic, Thermo-Insulated Ice Buckets	6.95
Map Measure & Compass Guide	2.50

... These and hundreds of other different & distinctive gifts

STEVENS~SHEPHERD

Check your opinions against L&M's Campus Opinion Poll 15

❶ How important is it for the U.S. to be the first to reach the moon?



☐ Crucial
☐ Important but not crucial
☐ Unimportant

❷ Would you mind dating a girl who's taller than you?

☐ Yes ☐ No

❸ Do girls think it's wrong to always smoke their dates' cigarettes?

☐ Yes ☐ No

Expect more, get more, from L&M

There's actually more rich-flavor leaf in L&M than even in some unfiltered cigarettes. You get more body in the blend, more flavor in the smoke, more taste through the filter. So expect more, get Lots More from L&M. And remember—with L&M's modern filter, only pure white touches your lips.

HERE'S HOW 1029 STUDENTS AT 100 COLLEGES VOTED!

Have an L&M in pack or box

❸	Yes	53%
	No	47%
❷	Yes	43%
	No	57%
❶	Crucial	46%
	Important	44%
	Unimportant	10%

L&M's the filter cigarette for people who really like to smoke.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Merchants Association

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Clearing, windy and cold.

Offices in Graham Memorial | WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Servic

NORTH CAROLINA NATIVE:

Evangelist Billy Graham Speaks Here On March 15

Evangelist Billy Graham will speak to the students of UNC on March 15 at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

A native of North Carolina, Graham is being sponsored by the Billy Graham Committee, a special committee working closely with the Religious Emphasis Committee of the YWCA. It is chaired by Mary Sue Simpson.

Graham will only be able to make the one appearance. The commitee hopes that other arrangements can be made so that more students will have a chance to hear him. The type of speech that he will give is not known but is not expected to be of the crusade variety.

"Mr. Graham can speak on many different levels," said Miss Simpson. "The level he is mostly known for is that of about the eighth grade, but he is also very capable of talking on the college level as well. He has visited many campuses and has been very successful. He is a very intelligent and dynamic person and I'm sure that Carolina students will enjoy hearing him talk." When Graham leaves he will then go to Wake Forest College for a speaking engagement.

Graham's last visit to Chapel Hill was ten years ago.

Xmas Xpress

WANT RIDES

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. or 100-mile radius—Jimmy Burke, 304 Connor Hall, 968-9154.

PITTSBURGH — December 16, Charles Doty, Mangum, 968-9110.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—December 16, Thurman Smith, 320 Joyner, 968-9185.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX. or general vicinity—Charles H. Lincoln, 201 Avery, 968-9046, can leave December 16. Will share driving and expenses.

NEW ROCHELLE OR NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Rosalyn Post, December 16, 12 noon, 968-3866.

WESTPORT, CONN. or vicinity—Call Evan Harrar, 327 Avery, 968-9116. Would like to leave Friday, Dec. 15.

ARLINGTON, Va. — Leonard Rogers wants ride to Arlington, Washington, D. C. or near vicinity, leaving Dec. 16. Call 968-9093 or go by 218 Cobb.

MIAMI, Fla.—Ruth Lebar and Vicki Lebar, share expenses, 942-6241.

MIDWEST (Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha, Neb.)—Sandy Hoffmann, share expenses, Smith Dorm, third floor, 968-9133.

DALLAS, TEX.—L. W. Lau, 176 Phillips Hall or call Physics Dept., share expenses.

NEW YORK CITY OR BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Ronnie Gabriel, Noon Friday or later, 408 Cobb, 968-9097, share expenses and driving.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — John Morene, December 16, share expenses, 215 Parker, 968-9140.

CINCINNATI, or Vicinity—Want to leave Dec. 15 or 16. Will share expenses, driving. Harve Harris, 968-5266.

ARLINGTON, VA. OR WASHINGTON, D. C. or Vicinity—Leonard Rogers, December 16, 218 Cobb, 968-9093.

FT. MYERS, FLA.—Tom Leanhardt, share expenses, 339 Cobb, 968-9145.

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. or NEW YORK CITY—Leaving Dec. 15. Call Ciaran Mercier, 207 Aycock, 968-9158.

ST. LOUIS, MO. or Vicinity — Dec. 15, 16, 17. Bill Weems, 310 Avery, 968-9029, share driving and expenses.

NEW YORK CITY — Dec. 16, Amnon Rapoport, III, Conor, 968-9155, share expenses.

NORFOLK, Va. — Judy Gray wants ride, leaving either Friday or Saturday. Call 968-9010, Nurses Dorm.

NEW MEXICO or Vicinity—Jim Carpenter, Box 4725, Duke Station, phone Durham 286-9230, wants a ride, leaving Dec. 20.

AUBURN, Ala., ATLANTA, Ga. or COLUMBUS, Ga. — Rick Edwards, 308 Stacy Dorm, 968-9112, wants ride leaving after 12 noon Saturday. Will share driving, expenses.

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Rudy Albert wants ride. 232 Teague, 968-9181, leaving after Saturday 1 p.m.

WANTS RIDERS BACK

FROM CHATTANOOGA, TENN. —For two people after Christmas, Harry Batchelor, 942-1725.

WANT RIDERS

MERIDEN, Conn. — Via NEW YORK CITY, four riders, leaving Monday, December 18, call Peter Ford, 968-2441, 6-7 p.m., will divide expenses.

ATLANTA — Leaving December 16, call J. M. Womack, 325 Teague, 968-9157.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (and en Route)—Leaving December 15 or 16, contact Fran Stallings, 310 Connor or 23 New East Annex.

AUGUSTA OR COLUMBUS, GA. —One rider, leaving Thursday, December 14, Beverly Bernier, 968-9168, share expenses.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Need three riders. Call Howard Holsenbeck, 306 Stacey, 968-9112. Leaving Saturday, Dec. 16.

CHICAGO or Vicinity — Contact Buddy Broome, 140 Cobb, 968-9092.

ARLINGTON, Va. — John Jennich wants riders. He will leave ec. 16; will charge $4 per trip. all Theta Chi house, 968-9123.

STAMFORD, Conn. — Mike Bell wants two riders, leaving Monday, Dec. 18. Call 968-9178, 220 Connor.

NEW YORK—Tim Tetlow wants ne rider, to pay $5 each way. Leaving noon Friday. Call 968-2338.

ATLANTA — Leaving Dec. 16, contact Jeff Weadkins, 328 Phillips Hall.

ASHEVILLE—One, two, or three riders on Dec. 16. Contact Betsy Parker, 110 McIver, 968-9148.

NEW YORK or BROOKLYN — Leaving Dec. 15. Contact Gene Rice, 301 Aycock.

DALLAS, TUCSON, or LOS ANGELES—Want two riders, leaving Saturday, Dec. 16, after 3 p.m. Elliott Schneider, TEP House, 968-9007.

UGLY MAN RESULTS

Latest results in the Ugly Man voting are as follows:

Big Daddy DeBlasio, 1953; Jungle Jim, 1433; Eye of Newt, 826; M. T. Graves, 612; Rat, 119; Transformed Coed, 90.

The contest closes Friday at 11 p.m.

GM Coffee Hour After Songfest

The Order of the Grail and Graham Memorial will offer free coffee and cider at a gathering of the UNC folksingers Thursday night at 9:30 in GM.

The Carolers have invited the student body to join them earlier at 7:30 at GM to serenade along Franklin Street and at several sororities and women's dorms.

Religious Service In Gerrard Hall Tonight At 7

A special service emphasizing the true meaning of Christmas will be held tonight from 7-7:30 in Gerrard Hall.

The service is the second in a series sponsored by the Religious Activities Committee of the YWCA to commemorate religious holidays during the school year.

Dr. Sam Hill, head of the UNC department of religion, will give a short talk on the meaning of Christmas. Special music will be provided for the service as well as student caroling.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Winston Churchill

Soviet Charge 'Ludicrous'

WASHINGTON—The State Department accused the Soviet Union Tuesday of trying to create disunity in the NATO alliance with its "crude and ludicrous' 'charge against West German Gen. Adolf Heusinger.

★ ★ ★

Eichmann Goes 'Beyond Orders'

JERUSALEM, Israel—An Israeli court found Tuesday that Adolf Eichmann sent 93 orphaned children to the martyred Czech town of Lidice to their deaths by handing them over to the Nazi Gestapo.

The court, spelling out point-by-point its verdict of Eichmann's guilt, said he pressed his task of wiping out 6 million Jews so intently that he went beyond the orders of Adolph Hitler.

★ ★ ★

France Vetoes East-West Talks

PARIS—France Tuesday vetoed Western Allied demands for preliminary East-West talks with Russia on the Berlin crisis. The split forced the Big Four Western foreign ministers into an overtime night session and threatened the conference with failure.

★ ★ ★

JFK's Mail Favors Extremist Rap

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy's mail is running "well in favor" of his recent attack on so-called right wing extremists. White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said Tuesday.

And he said the amount of mail on this subject has been reasonably heavy.

★ ★ ★

Reds Tell Japs 'Hands Off'

TOKYO—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev bluntly told Japanese Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda Tuesday that Japan has no claim to the Kurile Islands.

Khrushchev said Japan had accepted the Potsdam declaration which limited this nation's sovereignty to the islands of Honshu, Hokkaido, Kyushu, Shikoku and a few small islands.

★ ★ ★

UN Members Behind In Payments

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—The United Nations announced Tuesday that members are $103,852.015 behind in their payment of assessments.

A report of collections as of Nov. 30 showed that the Congo operation is by far the biggest deficit item—$55,497,890 since the operation began in July, 1960.

Reds Charge General With Crimes In War Demand Ouster From US

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Tuesday accused West German Gen. Adolf Heusinger of "war crimes and crimes against peace and humanity" and demanded the United States extradite him to face an Adolf Eichmann-like trial.

Heusinger, chairman of the NATO's Permanent Military Committee in Washington, was presiding over a meeting of the Permanent Military Committee at NATO headquarters in Paris when he heard the news. He refused comment.

In Washington the State Department accused Russia of trying to stir up dissension in NATO by making "crude and ludicrous propaganda" charges. U.S. officials said previously if Russia wanted to find war criminals it should look in its own files for the Russian-Nazi pact which led to World War II. It appeared the extradition request would be ignored.

In Bonn, West Germany accused the Soviet Union of renewing an anti-Bonn slander campaign as a militaristic and revenge-seeking nation. A Foreign Ministry statement said one proof of this was that Heusinger never occupied a troop command position during the war.

Heusinger, 64, was until July 20, 1944—the date of the ill-fated bomb plot against Adolf Hitler — the operations chief in the Wehrmacht's command. He was placed on inactive duty for the duration of the war for publicly defying Hitler at the time.

The Soviet charges were contained in a note delivered by the foreign minister to U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson and publicly announced at a news conference later. The charges against him were strikingly similar to the counts against Eichmann.

Mikhail Kharlamov, Foreign Ministry press chief, told newsmen the Soviet note demanded the United States arrest Heusinger and extradite him to the Soviet Union for trial. He said the charges were established by a Soviet commission investigating "crimes of the German Fascist invaders."

Carolina Chorus Sings Thursday

The University Chorus under the direction of Dr. Wilton Mason of the Music Department will present its fall concert Thursday evening at 8 p.m. in Hill Music Hall.

The first half of the program will consist of Christmas melodies of many lands written or arranged by contemporary composers such as Charles Gordon Rex, Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco, Lluis Romeu, Geoffrey Shaw, and Teresa del Riego.

The second half of the program will feature Ottorino Respighi's "Laud to the Nativity." This will be the first North Carolina performance of this work which is characterized by Dr. Mason as being one of the finest of twentieth century choral compositions.

The same program will be given by the group Wednesday, December 13 on the concert series of the State Art Museum in Raleigh.

Soloists in the Respighi work are Rebecca Carnes and Helena Brigman, sopranos, and James Gibbs, tenor.

The University Chorus is a group of mixed voices drawing its membership from students, employees, and other members of the large University family. In recent years the chorus has served as the basic choral unit in the first presentations on the UNC campus of the operas "Carmen" and "La Traviata" given by the Department of Music.

The public has been invited and admission is free.

400 Negroes Are Arrested In Ga. On Hymnal Trek

ALBANY, Ga. (UPI)—About 400 young hymn-singing Negro students were herded off to jail on Tuesday when they staged a protest march in this south Georgia city that hasn't budged an inch from its strict segregation stand.

The march was timed to coincide with the opening of the court trial for 11 "freedom riders," arrested here Dec. 10 when they attempted to use the "white" waiting room at the train terminal. Most of the Negro youths taken into custody are students at Albany State College, but some were of high school age, or younger.

Witnesses said the first of the marchers started showing shortly before the hearing opened at 10 a.m. They strolled slowly past the courthouse in pairs, singing hymns as they walked.

The numbers soon swelled into the hundreds—variously estimated between 250 and 500.

Police cars with loudspeakers rushed to the scene and told the Negroes to disperse.

Sarah Vaughn Cancelled

The concert featuring Sarah Vaughn scheduled for tonight in Durham has been cancelled. For ticket refunds contact S. B. McKissick at 213½ Main Street, Durham.

IDC, CWC Entertain Children

IDC and CWC entertained over 30 Negro children yesterday with their annual Christmas party for the Carrboro Community Center.

The party, planned by Susan Thorpe of Carolina Women's Council and John Mitchener of Interdormitory Council, was held in the recreation room of the Nurses' Dorm.

The children sang Christmas carols and played games. Several of the girls read Christmas stories before the highlight of the evening, Santa's visit.

Reed Nelson, dressed as Santa Claus, distributed toy cars, footballs, dolls, coloring books and, appropriately enough, nurses' kits to the children. The visit was topped off with rerfreshments of Christmas cookies, doughnut holes and cokes.

The annual Christmas party is the main community service project of the IDC and CWC, who originated the idea last year.

FEATURES THREE EXPERTS

Africa Affairs Panel On Symposium

An afternoon panel on African Affairs will be held next April as part of the 1962 Carolina Symposium. It will follow Senator Gale McGee's evening address on world political revolutions.

Participating in the discussions will be George M. Houser, Executive Director of the American Committee on Africa, Tartt Bell, Executive Secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, and Udo Oton, Information Officer of the Consulate General of Nigeria. All three men are experts in the field of African affairs who have spent much of their lives attempting to interpret the rise of African nationalism to the world at large.

George M. Houser has worked in race relations on both a national and an international level. In 1947 he was the organizer of the Journey of Reconciliation, a forerunner of today's Freedom Riders. This trip tested segregation on interstate buses and trains in the Upper South. He has travelled extensively on fact-finding trips in the Congo, Angola and the Union of South Africa. Mr. Houser is an author as well as an organizer, having written "Erasing the Color Line" and "We Challenged Jim Crow."

UN Staffer

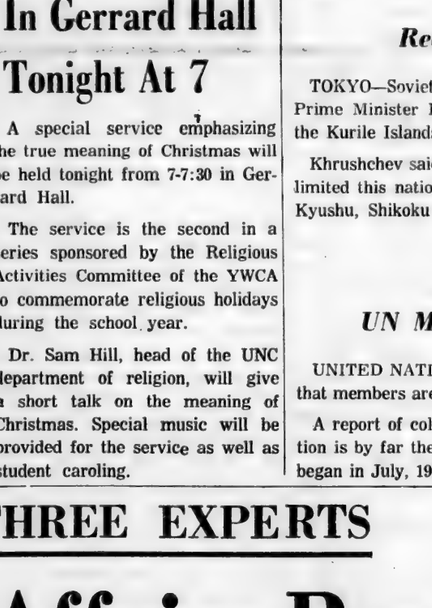
Udo Oton, serving on Nigeria's permanent United Nations staff, is a figure already known to some Carolina students. On the YMCA's United Nations trip last year he spoke at length to the Chapel Hill delegation and was very well received. Considered by his colleagues to be an extremely intelligent and competent man, he will present first-hand information on the dramatic changes which the new African nations have caused in the U.N.

African Student

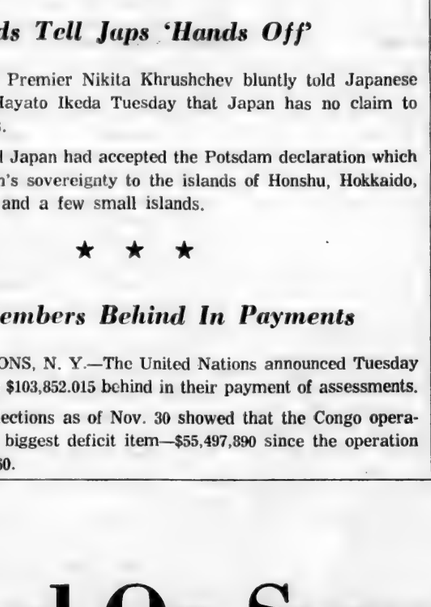
Tartt Bell of High Point holds college degrees from Chicago and Columbia and is Associate Director of the Quakers' United Nations program. He too has first-hand knowledge of Africa, having travelled in Ghana, Nigeria and Kenya. In addition to his concern with Africa, Mr. Bell has studied and written on race relations in the United States. He is the author of "Race and Conscience in America."

The panel will discuss both the peaceful and violent revolutions which are rapidly changing Africa from a state of colonial dependency to a collection of free nations. Although it has previously been negligible politically, Africa's resources and manpower indicate that her influence will be increasingly important in years to come. The current crisis in the Congo has given a small example of the vast repercussions which African internal affairs can have in the world political situation.

As Africa is now perhaps the most rapidly changing area on earth, it is particularly appropriate that it be considered in the 1962 Symposium on "Today's Revolutions."



George Houser



B. Tartt Bell

Art Lecture Thurs.

"Edvard Munch as a Painter" is the title of a discussion that will be given in the Lecture Hall at Ackland Thursday at 8 p.m. The public has been invited.

Dr. Harry Bergholz, Chief Bibliographer, University Library, and Dr. Joseph Sloane, Chairman, Department of Art and Director of the Ackland Art Center, will present the discussion and show colored slides of Edvard Munch's work.

An exhibition of the graphic art of Edvard Munch is now on view at the Center. The gallery will be open Thursday night so that those who attend the lecture may see the exhibition.

Campus Briefs

There will be a regular meeting of the National Student Association tonight at 6:30 in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial. All members must be present.

Prof. Ernest Mackie of the Math Dept. requests that all those who have not picked up their Phi Beta Kappa keys do so as soon as possible in Room 76, Phillips Hall.

Sophomore class projects committee will meet at 9 p.m. tonight at the Pika House.

Infirmary

Studens in the Infirmary yesterday included: Diana Dial, Phyllis Hale, John Boyce Fisher, Henry Wilson Fisher, Philip Ray Adams, Walter Whitaker Honour, Frank Harlowe Dunn, William Yates Dover, William Edward Lyons, Robert Lawrence Cowles, Stephen Keith Yates, Thomas Atmar Hammond, John Colvin Small, John Morgan Freas, Allen Benners Morgan, Catherine Lynn Johnson, Peter Irwin Goldberg, Samuel Campen Barfield, Bonn Arthur Gilbert and Robert Lee Deal.

Recreation Kit Items Suggested For Bomb Shelter

By LINDA BISER

Active ingredients of a recreation kit for use in bomb shelters are suggested in an interview with Prof. Harold D. Meyer, chairman of the recreation curriculum.

The kit should include table games such as checkers, cards and puzzles, books, simple arts and crafts materials, song sheets and bulletins with instructions for wholesome exercises and play activities. Purpose: to maintain physical and mental health, and decrease tensions among people confined.

Although Dr. Meyer personally opposes construction of individual family shelters and believes that, if built, they should be of neighborhood construction, warns, "Bomb shelter occupants better know some recreation pursuits or otherwise there will be severe tensions."

Prof. Meyer patterns the recreation kits after those used by people confined to shelters during World War II bombing raids.

The North Carolina Recreation Commission might distribute pamphlets telling bomb shelter occupants what recreation materials are considered best for bomb shelter activities, he said.

Dr. Meyer, who is interim chairman of the Recreation Committee of the United Nations' International Labor Office in Geneva, Switzerland, prefers to stress the more positive aspects of peace. For international ails, he recommends persons of different nationalities enjoy more recreation together. This cultural exchange, providing more dancing and singing together for example might promote world peace and understanding.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 13, 1961 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLIX, No. 66

Prices, Bad Checks And "Bookkeeping Charges"

Just before Thanksgiving, the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchants Association held a dinner meeting to dredge up reasons for what the association felt were unfavorable student attitudes toward Chapel Hill merchants.

We, along with Senior Class President Ray Farris, attended the meeting to air student gripes. As could be expected, prices headed the list of complaints.

Equally to be expected, the gripes did no good and there is no indication that they will. Franklin Street merchants enjoy the position of having a captive clientele. As a result, competition is held at a low key—there are plenty of students to guarantee every merchant a good volume of business without keen price competition. And students aren't the most sophisticated of consumers. Price is a secondary consideration to many students: the label is the thing.

The result is that the majority of Chapel Hill merchants compete in areas other than price. Service and quality—which too often means snob appeal—take the fore as merchandise aids. It's the student who wants good merchandise at a stiff competitive price—and who isn't interested in snob labels—who finds the Franklin Street market-place unenticing.

And it is this student who will continue to suffer: prices in Chapel Hill will not show any decline until real competition develops, a prospect that appears unlikely, at least for the present.

Another problem discussed at some length at the association meeting was that of bouncing checks. Many merchants now display signs informing patrons that returned checks will cost the writer a "bookkeeping" charge, usually $1.

These signs, whether warranted or not, leave the impression that checks bounce like basketballs in Chapel Hill. The implication is a poor advertisement for students and the University.

Much of the responsibility for bad checks lies with the students. many of whom sign them with the same nonchalance with which they scribble their names on classroom rolls. But the fault does not lie entirely with the students. Some merchants have been known to accept post-dated checks, a practice that encourages students to take a light view of responsible management of checking accounts. Besides the fact that this practice is illegal under state law, it serves to compound the already imposing problem of bad checks.

Under the circumstances, it is difficult to imagine that local merchants will suddenly lower their prices.

But it is certainly not too much to ask that they rip down their "bounced check" signs and use another approach in dealing with the check problem.

Not 'If' But' When'?

The Varsity Theater moved the final step to total integration this week as the theater began to allow admittance to non-University Negroes.

There was no desegregation announcement by the management and is unlikely that there will be Manager Gutierrez apparently is hesitant to commit himself with a statement that the Varsity has integrated.

While we, like most integrationists, would prefer that the question be met squarely and without equivocation, the tack taken by Gutierrez is understandable. The Varsity's policy on integration, whatever it is, must be acceptable to most of the theater's clientele. And although Chapel Hill has shown itself to be more willing to accept integration than most of the South public reaction to complete integration here cannot be predicted with accuracy. Manager Gutierrez wants to be in a position to renege if business suffers.

Chapel Hill, we are confident, will accept integration at the Varsity theater without so much as a raised eyebrow and that the Carolina will soon follow the Varsity's lead.

The feeling of most individuals close to the center of the integration negotiations is that the Carolina will completely lower the color bar sometime in January.

It now appears that the integration movement in Chapel Hill has lost much of the air of drama and intensity that characterized the first movements against the theaters about a years ago. This is as it should be. It has been axiomatic in integration proceedings across the country that the quieter the movement, the more effective and lasting the result.

In Chapel Hill, the de-segregation of the theaters has been accompanied by high feeling. De-segregation has been big news. And it still occupies a position of major interest. But the intensity has declined and the Chapel Hill community no longer seeks to know "if," but rather, "when."

In the most recent statement Varsity Manager Gutierrez released to newsmen, he stated that the Varsity has always sought to follow a policy which would reflect the feeling of the community. In removing all racial bars, he is, in effect, stating that he feels that the community now wants, or is willing to accept, theater integration.

This attitude, we hope, reflects the belief that integration is now past the stage where it is regarded as new and dramatic. Now it can be regarded with quiet acceptance.

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN REYNER
Associate Editor

LLOYD LITTLE
Executive News Editor

BILL HOBBS
Managing Editor

GARNET BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

NANCY BARR, LINDA CRAVOTTA—
Feature Editors

HARRY W. LLOYD ..... Sports Editor
DAVID WYRICK ..... Subscription Manager
JIM ESKRIDGE ..... Circulation Manager
ED DUPREE ..... Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE ..... Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MATHEWS ..... Advertising Manager

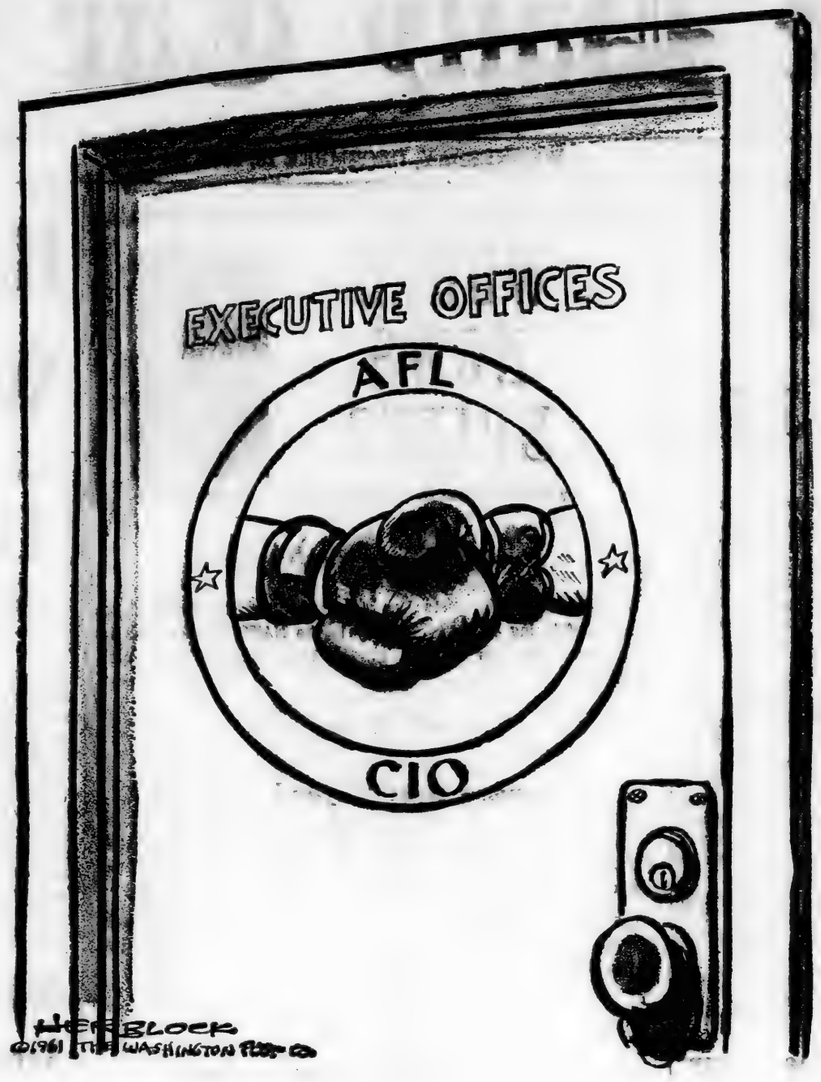
THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C. pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.



Germany's Trial By Ordeal

Early in 1945, moving into eastern Germany, the Russian armies treated themselves to an orgy of sadism without parallel in modern war. Women were nailed alive to barn doors, girls under fourteen literally raped to death, children drowned in water troughs and hurled from windows, like Astyanax of Troy. But there is no point, really, in giving details, and a short column doesn't allow for it.

On May 7, 1945, General Alfred Jodl appeared in Eisenhower's headquarters to negotiate the surrender. General Walter B Smith, speaking for Eisenhower, gave the terms: two separate documents of unconditional surrender, one to the western Allies, one to Soviet Russia.

"If you decline," Smith concluded, "the discussions will be considered closed. You will then have to deal with the Russians alone. Our Air Force will resume operations. Our lines will be closed even to individual German soldiers and civilians."

In victory . . . magnanimity. Jodl signed, and one third of Germany passed into Russia's control. Farsighted Americans knew that they had given away the victory, but few could guess how completely and tragically we had done so.

Last July, in the first stage of the Berlin crisis, I asked a German friend on campus if he thought the Americans would give up the city.

"I think they might," he answered gloomily.

We talked despondently. He didn't have much faith in America's will. The news, as we heard it that night, was depressing.

"Cheer up," I said. "You have a tough bunch of folks over there." Later, working through my assignments, I wondered how tough we are over here.

In the next few days, while Khrushchev screamed his demands and Washington sat grimly by, the refugee tide swelled to a record total of 2,000 per day. Then came August, the closing of the escape routes, and the concrete wall—the image of national slavery, the blatant repression of seventeen million people. Never since the crushing of Hungary had the workers' revolutions been so starkly revealed in its sinister malice.

The folowing month, while waiting in the drop-add line at Hanes Hall,

I asked a member of the liberal clan if he thought Berlin would fall to Russia.

"I wouldn't care if it did," he said, "except that the U. S. has a stake in it."

"There are two and a half million people in that city," I said.

"Every one of them Germans."

"They're still people."

"I dont want to fight for them," he said, and turned to other matters, confident that he had read Germany out of the human race.

Crass and repellent as this attitude seems, it isn't as scarce as one would like to think. A smug hatred of the new German generation is fashionable in some liberal quarters. But the bias against Germany goes a lot further than that. Jean Monnet, the founder of the European Common Market, has expressed dismay at the fact that Germany still isn't accepted on equal terms by the United States and Britain. Similar fears are reported of de Gaulle, who allegedly sees a second Yalta in Kennedy's Berlin policy.

In 1956, when ussia smashed Hungary in the name of the people's government, we stood by and did nothing. Last August, when Mosciw's East German lackeys built a wall through Berlin, we stood by and did nothing. As if this weren't enough, some British policymakers are reported willing to recognize the East German state, in exchange for guaranteed Berlin access.

The prime truth is that there is nothing to negotiate in the status of Berlin. The continued existence of the wall of shame is proof that for once we are in a black-and-white situation, where compromise is a crime against humanity.

Khrushchev yearns to break the will of the German people. He will not suceed. Berlin will not, as some columnists fear, wither on the vine and fall into Moscow's orbit. The German will stood firm through colossal sufferings in the last war, the vicious behavior of the Russians in the early days of occupation, the Berlin blockade, and the smashed revolt of 1953. It will stand firm now, even if we throw Berlin to the jackals and the Vopos.

It seems at once baffling and distasteful that some Americans (mostly self-styled "liberals," whatever that means) still regard Germany as a conquered country and a vengeful enemy, even though West Germany is the bulwark of NATO and Allied control rights terminated in 1955.

One thing more, and one thing only, remains to be said. Our bit-by-bit sellout of the Germans will backfire on us with savage poetic justice if we don't change our ways. Before 1970, West Germany will almost surely be the leader of a European power coalition that will take its own course, independent of Russia or America. If Germany then turns east, and bargains to quit NATO in exchange for a unified country, we might as well know that we earned it—first in the coerced separate surrender to Russia, next in our betrayal of the 1953 revolt, and finally in our tolerance of the Ulbricht wall.

—Wade Wellman

Yugoslavia: Thumbs Up

One thousand, eight hundred cheering delegates to the National Indignation Convention recently met in Dallas, Texas; and in Los Angeles, several protesters paraded carrying placards reading "Veto Tito," "Stop Red Trade," and "Indignation Sweeps Our Nation."

"Newsweek" carried a lead article entitled "Thunder on the Right." It reported the three main points of the Dallas protest meeting: "The U.S. should quit training Yugoslav pilots; quit sending jet planes to Yugoslavia; and fire the officials responsible for the policy."

President Sisenhower initiated an aid policy in 1952 to keep Tito independent of Moscow, and President Kennedy has seen fit to continue it. Now, the question is: Should the majority of Americans give thumbs up to their leaders on Yugoslav aid, or should they turn thumbs down along with the National Indignation Convention?

The answer should be thumbs up.

* * *

WE WONDER HOW many in this Dallas-style chorus of ultra-conservatives have ever put down their "NO AID FOR TITO" banners long enough to take a hard long look at what Tito and his nation means to the U.S. and its Allies.

Tito, we admit, is a self-professed communist, and aiding him is aiding a communist, but since his break with the Moscow-style orthodox Communism, Tito has developed an off-beat, way-out brand of Communism which probably has Karl Marx turning over in his grave, and Lenin pounding the walls of his Kremlin tomb.

Robert Littell tells how "Yugoslavia's Heresy Pays Off" in his report in "Reader's Digest" of a recent visit to Tito's nation. He reports that Tito has decided to turn loose some of capitalism's powerful human incentives within the framework of socialism in order to boost Yugoslavia's saggng economy. Competition is encouraged, the planned economy is giving way to a market economy, investment capital is being turned loose, and profit-sharing is a common practice. Does this sound like hard-shelled Communism at work?

* * *

TITO'S GREATEST break was allowing peasants to leave collective farms, now 90% of the land belongs to private citizens. Does this sound like Stalin's or Khrushchev's brand of Communism?

Since Tito turned in his membership card to the Kremlin Club, Yugoslavia has turned more and more toward production of consumer goods for home use and export. Yugoslav industry is free, but not private—all production means are publicly owned, and, in many cases, profits after taxation are disposed of by the workers. This is far from orthodox Communism.

Getting back to the question of U.S. aid, the United States has poured more than two billion dollars into Yugoslavia, and some Americans are asking—for what? The friendship of Yugoslavia is important to the U.S. and the West because: (1) Yugoslavia isolates and, thereby, neutralizes the tiny, war-like nation of Albania from the rest of the Eastern Communist bloc. (2) Yugoslavia has the largest national army in the East European Communist bloc. (3) Yugoslavia has considerable amounts of industrial raw materials equally valuable to East and West. These factors along with the geographic position of Yugoslavia in the soft under-belly of Eastern Europe makes it important to the West whether as an ally or as a friendly neutral.

* * *

BUT WHY SHOULD we take a chance and build up the Yugoslav army with jet fighters and trained pilots when they may be used against us should Tito again return to Moscow? First, there seems little chance that Yugoslavia will ever voluntarily return to the Soviet fold; furthermore, Yugoslavia needs to be strong in order to continue her path of off-beat Communism without fear of being forcibly pushed back into the Moscow camp.

Yugoslavia will probably never voluntarily take orders from the Kremlin for several reasons. First, Yugoslavs are not sealed off from the West by a cement wall or by fear that their families will suffer if one member flees to the West. Last year 80,000 tourists left Yugoslavia and many more cross into Italy every day to shop or work. Secondly, Yugoslavs enjoy a booming economy with a standard of living comparable to West European countries. Even after Tito's death, it seems inconceivable that Yugoslavs will be willing to give up their TV's, cars, and supermarkets for the collective farms and state factories of orthodox Communism.

So why shouldn't Yugoslavia be as eligible for thumbs up on U.S. aid as Laos or Vietnam or any other country which is threatened by the iron hand of orthodox Communism?

—Ray Wicker

Yes, Football Is A Very Lonely Battle

(The following article by Victor Gold in the National Review (conservative magazine) is reprinted by request from Bob Somers, Susan Grove, Robert Smith, David Smith, and Bill McNaull.)

The new coach leaned back in his rocking chair and lit a cigar.

"In the words of Knute Rockne," he said, "football in a lonely battle."

"Rockne?" asked the young sportswriter. "Are you sure?"

"Maybe it was Sam Huff," shrugged the Coach, "but what counts is that I post little sayings like that in the dressing room on Saturday afternoons."

"They help win football games?"

"No," said the Coach, "but quotes like that do give the boys a sense of security, don't you think?"

"I can see where they would be uplifting," the young sportswriter answered agreeably, "but what about this business of getting the team moving again? Back during the spring—"

"We are moving!" said the Coach, jabbing a forefinger across the desk. "Let's not forget the mess I inherited from my predecessor. Frankly, even I didn't realize how complicated this job was until I took it. Blocking, tackling, running, passing, shooting-the-gap, mousetrapping—believe you me intramural touch was never like this. It will take me at least eight years."

"To straighten out the ball club?"

"No, to learn what it's all about," replied the Coach. "As for straightening out the ball club, things are looking up. Just last week I ordered a resumption of practice sessions. Indoors, of course, but it's a starter."

"Everybody else in the league is working outdoors," said the young sportswriter. "Doesn't that give them something of an advantage?"

"Could be," said the Coach, "but they're also getting a bad press. Just last Saturday I told the boys at halftime, I said, and I quote: 'De-emphasis is the university's last best hope for football.' It sounded appropriate. We were behind six touchdowns at the time. Which reminds me, have you had a chance to study my new de-emphasis plan? Now, nobody could argue with that."

"I imagine some high-spirited alumnus just might," replied the young sportswriter.

"Not in public he won't!" snapped the Coach. "I have ordered an absolute embargo on any alumnus popping off in public Do you know what what one of those birds said last week? He said we were out to beat State. Repeat—to beat State! How the hell can I justify that one to the American Association of University Professors?"

"I can see where it might be embarrassing."

"Embarrassment is only half of it," said the Coach. "What worries me is that it might get the other team sore."

"Getting down to specifics," said the young sportswriter, "there has been a lot of criticism about the team's punting on first down."

"Criticism is one word we don't mention around here," admonished the Coach. "As for punting on first down, it's like I told the squad in one of my bulletins and I quote: 'A good defense is the best offense.'"

"I always heard it the other way around."

"Well, let's put it another way," replied the Coach. "The way we figure it, 'If you can't have the ball, you can't fumble.' Right?"

"Containment football?"

The Coach grimaced. "We prefer to call it our I.C. series. Short for Inner Contradictions. You see, every opponent has his weakness. If he's running, he's not passing. If he's passing, he's not running. If he passes and runs, then sooner or later, by sheer repetition of crossing the goal line, he either gets exhausted or loses interest in scoring. That's when we make our move."

"You score," said the young sportswriter.

"Not necessarily," replied the Coach. "Understand, in modern football, with all its terrible implications, the real idea is to threaten to score. As long as the other team knows you can score if you want to, then you really don't have to, do you?"

The young sportswriter thought a minute. "But if the other team's scoring," he said, "and you're not—"

The Coach held up a reproving hand. "You're not following son. You remind me of our alumni. Obviously, nothing in your education or experience has equipped you to comprehend the intricacies of today's game. The point is that no matter what the scoreboard shows, there are no winners in modern football. I'll admit our strategy is fairly complicated, but it's worked so far."

"How do you figure?" asked the young sportswriter. "You've lost five straight games."

"We're still fielding a team, aren't we?" the Coach snapped irritably.

"Back to specifics," said the young sportswriter, "what happened in the Tech game?"

"That again," sighed the Coach. "Well, I can tell you what didn't happen in the Tech game: What that guy wrote last week in "Sports Illustrated," that didn't happen. It was the most inaccurate version to date of what did happen."

"O.K.," nodded the young sportswriter. "So what happened?"

"I inherited a mess from my predecessor," said the Coach, rising from his chair, "for which I take full responsibility. It will take me at least eight years. At least."

"And this season?" asked the young sportswriter, closing his notebook. "You don't plan to win any games this season?"

"In the words of Grantland Rice," replied the Coach, walking toward the door, "never look ahead. You might be gaining on something."

"Grantland Rice? Are you sure?"

"Maybe it was Shipwreck Kelly," said the Coach, and he strode briskly out of the office and across campus, a stiff autumn wind at his back. Perfect for punting.

British Protest Kidnapping

BERLIN (UPI)—The British demanded in a stern protest Tuesday that the Soviets release two youths kidnaped by Communist border guards who invaded West Berlin.

The protest warned that British forces will take whatever measures are necessary to guarantee their sector against further "illegal incursions."

It was delivered to Soviet Berlin commandant Col. Andrei V. Solovyev as the East German Communists hinted they might stir a new flareup of the Berlin crisis if East-West negotiations were delayed by France.

France Tuesday vetoed the desires of its Western Allies for preliminary talks with Russia on the Berlin crisis. The split forced the Big Four western foreign ministers meeting in Paris into an overtime night session.

Discussions Relate To '62 Symposium Topics At UNC

Small discussion groups have been held during the past week at the Nurses' Dorm, the Phi Delta Theta house, the Alpha Tau Omega house, and the Delta Kappa Epsilon house as a part of the related discussions program of the Carolina Symposium.

The purpose of this program is to stimulate the interest and intellects of the student body in the theme "Today's Revolutions" which has been chosen for the 1962 Symposium Week in April. Faculty members have been asked to lead the discussions on topics of their own choice which may be related to the main theme.

The Symposium hopes to improve the effectiveness of its main program in April by preparing the students for it.

Last night Dr. G. V. Taylor of the History department spoke at the DKE house on the Concept of Revolution. He discussed the causes of revolt in polity, dividing political revolutions into three general types:

1) those in which merely the leadership of the government is changed, only slightly affecting the nation as a whole,

2) those in which the governmental structure changed, but not enough to create a great social change, and 3) those in which there is a violent change in the way of life of a people and their government.

He illustrated by using the examples of the French, American, and Bolshevik revolutions. His remarks also included some comment on the Cuban revolt and the effects upon the Western hemisphere.

Last Thursday evening Dr. Dan Patterson led a discussion on the topic of war at the Phi Delta Theta house. Members of the Tri-Delt sorority also attended the meeting. The group discussed the change in the attitude of modern nations toward war, contrasting the traditional grandeur of war with the modern fearful immensely destructive force of weapons.

This topic led to comments on the general social, economic, political, and moral changes which have taken place in modern Western culture.

On the same night Dr. Charles Henderson Jr. led a discussion of revolution at the ATO house.

Tonight Dr. Raymond H. Dawson of the Political Science Department will speak at Whitehead Dorm with members of Whitehead and the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity attending.

SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY MEET

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will meet at 265 Phillips Hall today. Professor Eugene R. Long will talk on schedule control of operant behavior in children, and Professor Halbert B. Robinson will talk on concept formation.

CLASSIFIED ADS

WHY SHOULD IT BE CALLED life insurance? It can bring a happier, better life to the man who owns it. You'll find real assistance when you call on a Northwestern Mutual agent. Arthur DeBerry Jr., C.L.U. Telephone 942-6966.

TEN DOLLARS REWARD. LOST in Ram's Head parking lot red booklet entitled "Brasilia" and spiral notebook. Ten dollars and no questions asked of returnee. Phillip Guin, 228 Parker.

TV Schedules

WRAL CHANNEL 5
6:00—Cap'n 5
6:05—Stateline News
6:20—Weather
6:30—Reeve with Sports
6:45—Huntley-Brinkley Report
7:00—Death Valley Days
7:30—Wagon Train
8:30—King of Diamonds
9:00—Bob Hope Show
10:00—Naked City
11:00—Dateline News
11:10—Sportline
11:15—Jack Paar

WUNC-TV CHANNEL 4
6:45—What's New
7:15—Music
8:00—Four Score
8:30—Chapel Hill
9:00—Marcel Marceau
9:30—Recorder
10:00—Sign Off

WTVD CHANNEL 11
6:00—Bugs Bunny
6:00—Chronicle
6:30—Your Esso Reporter
6:40—Weather
6:45—Douglas Edwards
7:00—Flintstones
7:30—The Alvin Show
8:00—Father Knows Best
8:30—Checkmate
9:30—Lawman
10:00—Us S. Steel Hour
11:00—Phillips 66 News
11:15—Star Theater

Sigma Delta Chi Initiates Ten

Ten new pledges were initiated into the UNC chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, Saturday.

Initiated were Roy Raben, Joe DeBlasio, Christopher Farran, Paul Shinn, Charles Mooney, Walter Phillips, William Waumett, Wayne King, William Hobbs and Peter B. Rose.

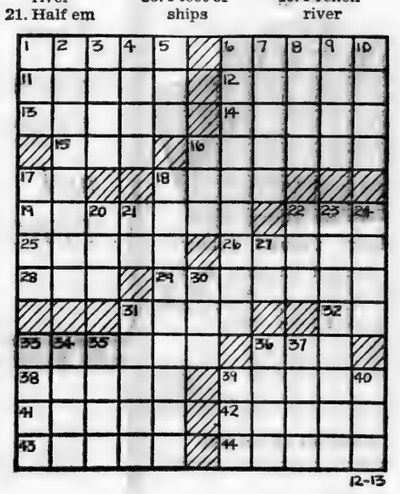
PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Canadian peninsula
6. Aforesaid thing
11. Foreign
12. Mistake
13. Fragment
14. French river
15. Inquire
16. Scorches
17. Gram (abbr.)
18. Boy's name (poss.)
19. Lack
22. Sheik's sleeveless robe
25. In Paris, a coin
26. Moses' brother
28. Cooling device
29. Vermont city
31. Festival
32. Yes vote (var.)
33. Fine hand-plaited hat
36. Sprite
38. Swiftly
39. To benefit
41. Blackbird
42. Spirit of St. Louis pilot (affec.)
43. A meeting
44. Runs from

DOWN
1. Fuel
2. The alcazar at Granada
3. Knights, as addressed
4. Peer
5. Finis
6. Portray
7. Manacles
8. Neat
9. Ripped
10. Native metals
16. American Indian
17. Barbed spear
18. An increase in salary
20. Polish river
21. Half em
22. Goddess of vengeance
23. Genuine
24. —— Hardy, American boy
27. Indian mulberry
30. In Japan, a song
31. Confronts
33. Portion
34. Armadillo
35. Fleet of ships
36. Wicked
37. Narrow roadway
39. Mr. Landon (affec.)
40. French river

Yesterday's Answer



12-13

WE GET A BOOT OUT OF CHRISTMAS

And so will you when you see the toe-tapping, hand-clapping variety of fashions now kicking up a gift storm here at

J. B. Rattikin

OF CHAPEL HILL

OLD WELL CHARMS

Sterling Silver $4.50
Gold Plate $6.00
Solid Gold $20.00

T. L. KEMP JEWELRY

Charm Headquarters
135 East Franklin St.

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST.

'SPICY, RACY, HILARIOUS & HIGHLY SOPHISTICATED' N.Y. World Tel. & Sun

LOVE AND THE Frenchwoman

Childhood • Adolescence • Virginity • Marriage • Adultery • Divorce • Women Alone

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

WON'T SHRINK EVEN IF YOU DO

Adler SC's are guaranteed not to shrink out of fit or your money back. Lamb's wool, in men's and women's sizes, in white and 12 other colors. Just $1 at fine stores.

ADLER SC's

ADLER SC's AVAILABLE IN WHITE AND COLORS AT

Town & Campus
Milton's Cloth. Cupboard

IN DURHAM

Young Men's Shop
The Hub
Stevens-Shepherd
Ellis Stone
The Hub
Stevens-Shepherd

Van Straten's
Ray Browning College Shop
Duke Univ. Shop

Don't Spend Money on Expensive Cards Until You've Seen the FIVE CENTS CARDS at the Intimate

The Prettiest Trimmings Are Not Always On The Tree . . .

Choose the Perfect Christmas Gift

MATCHING Sweater and Skirt Sets

from The FIRESIDE

Beautifully Gift Wrapped

Open at night from now 'til Christmas

POGO

PEANUTS

UNC Dolphins Meet Duke In Pool Here At 4

North Carolina's strong swimming team, winners of two straight matches thus far this year, will meet Duke at 4 o'clock here today in Bowman Gray Pool.

The Tar Heel dolphins took an easy 57-37 win over the Dukes last year.

Indications are that the real crowd pleaser of the day will come in the diving events. Duke's Clinton Brush was the ACC individual winner in both the high and low events in the ACC championships here last February. North Carolina has two fine divers of its own in Doug Fambrough and Sandy Patterson, who should be the top contenders for Brush's crown in the next conference meet.

Coach Pat Earey has expressed confidence that his team, which finished in a three-way tie for the title last year, can sweep through the Blue Devils. "This meet, and the meet with East Carolina on Thursday, should give us a chance to juggle our lineups and let us use a number of boys," he said. "I feel quite confident that we can take Duke and East Carolina in stride."

If their most recent performance is any indication, then Earey's words could well come true.

The Tar Heel swimmers, led by sophomores Thompson Mann and Don Murray, crushed a badly outmanned and outclassed Clemson team 65 to 30 at Clemson Friday night.

Mann, the record-breaking sensation of last year's freshman team, smashed the Clemson pool record in the 200-yard backstroke with 2:09.8. Murray was the only Carolina swimmer to take two individual firsts, winning the 60-yard dash in 31.0 seconds and the 100-yard dash with 55.7.

Carolina "drowned" Clemson in the first event when co-captains Bob Bilbro and Bob Briggs along with Joe Mummaw and Mann swam to an easy but unspectacular victory in the 400-yard medley in 4:04.3. After the opening event, Carolina continued to pour it on thick, winning six of the next eight events.

Carolina's Arthur Merrill, with Frank Lea second, won the 440-yard freestyle in 5:07.5. In the 220 freestyle William Bloom won in 2:16.1 as Merrill was second. Carolina's Doug Fambrough had relatively little difficulty in winning the diving exhibition. In the last event, the 400 freestyle relay, Michael Bissell, Mann, Bilbro, and Murray won in 3.47.8.

The one bright spot in the Clemson team was Chris Witaszek, who won the 200 individual medley in 1:47.5 and the 200-yard breaststroke in 2:33.3. Witaszek also took second in the butterfly.

team, said, "We did a thorough job on Clemson, but Clemson only had one good swimmer. Our team is coming along on the time schedule we've set. Our main concern now is not good time, but good physical condition."

Statistics Show Spahnie Best In National League

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The National League awarded its blue ribbons for pitching proficiency in 1961 Tuesday and 40-year-old Warren Spahn wound up with practically all of them.

Spahn, generally regarded the greatest left-handed pitcher in the history of the National League, had a 21-13 record for the Milwaukee Braves this year but that one statistic doesn't begin to tell even half the story.

The veteran, hawknosed southpaw led the league in earned runs with an average of 3.01 as well as tying Joey Jay of Cincinnati for the most victories. He also tied Jay for the most shutouts. Each had four.

Spahn hurled the most complete games, 21, and compiled the best winning streak of any pitcher in the league—10 games—from July 30 to Sept. 10.

Additionally, Spahn extended his major league record of "most times 20-or-more victories by a left-handed pitcher" to 12 and also extended his league record of "most shutouts by a lefthander" Spahn won the 300th game of his major league career on Aug. 11 and finished the season with a career total of 309 victories. Note to opposing hitters: He'll be back next year.
to 55.

contemporary jewelry handwrought

christmas shopping???

the only—but only place for the individualistic, the imaginative, the incomparable—

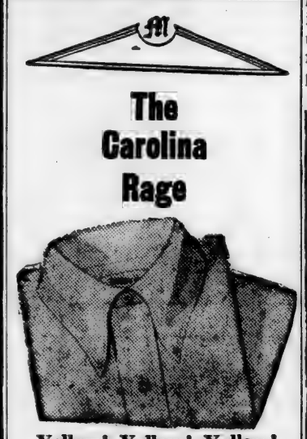
charles hopkins of Chapel Hill

designer/craftsman
(over sutton's)

We hear It hinted That our Camel Hair Sweaters Are Preferred For Christmas

For Him or Her–Two Luxurious New Sweaters of 100%, Pure Camel Hair. Fully Fashioned with Flawless Detailing.

Town & Campus



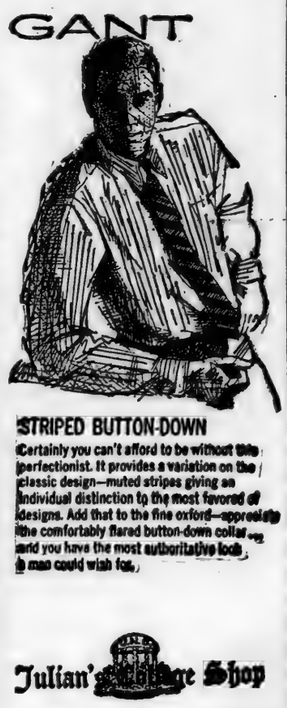
The Carolina Rage

Yellow! Yellow! Yellow!

Just received all sizes in this most popular of basics, in our famous roll collar button-downs with perfect taper—$5.50.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill



STRIPED BUTTON-DOWN

Certainly you can't afford to be without this perfectionist. It provides a variation on the classic design—muted stripes giving an individual distinction to the most favored of designs. Add that to the fine oxford—appreciate the comfortably flared button-down collar—and you have the most authoritative look a man could wish for.

Julian's College Shop

PUZZLED

about what to give for

CHRISTMAS?

TAKE HOME

Carolina
Scarfs
Animals
Pennants
Beer Mugs

Ledbetter Pickard Stationers

LA PIZZA

We Want to Thank You For Your Patronage this Fall and Sincerely wish all of you a VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS and a HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR!

LA PIZZA

We are sorry to announce that

Sarah Vaughan will not appear at the North Carolina College Gym tonight.

She is sick and will be unable to perform.

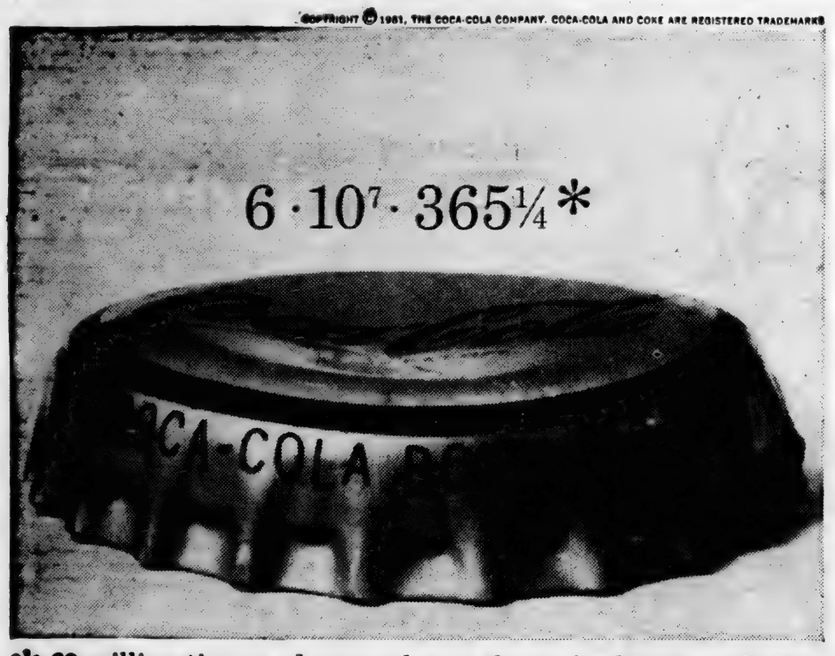
SIC FLICS

"What'll it be, Miss Porter... the Dekes or us?"

Chesterfield KING CIGARETTES

21 GREAT TOBACCOS MAKE 20 WONDERFUL SMOKES!
AGED MILD, BLENDED MILD – NOT FILTERED MILD – THEY SATISFY

COPYRIGHT © 1961, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY. COCA-COLA AND COKE ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS



6·10⁷·365¼*

✻ 60 million times a day people get that refreshing new feeling with ice-cold Coca-Cola!

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by Durham Coca-Cola Bottling Company

NOW!

Old Spice quality in a new hair tonic • Keeps hair handsomely groomed—all day • Fights dandruff • Moisturizes—prevents dryness • Guaranteed non-greasy

Old Spice HAIR TONIC
SHULTON

1.00 plus tax

Franny and Zooey

Uncle Shelby's ABZ Book

Lion on the Hearth

Plus

Brush Stroke Prints

And Bull Fight Posters!

Oh Me Oh My! What a Christmas!

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St.–Open Till 10 P.M.

PRE-CHRISTMAS

SALE!

- SPORT COATS $14.95
- PANTS were $18.95, now . . $9.92
- Yellow SHIRTS were $6.95, now $4.95
- TIES $1.43
- UMBRELLAS $4.95

University Shop

In Back of Sharyn Lynn on Franklin St.

University Shop

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Freedom?
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Fair and colder. High, mid, and upper thirties.

Offices in Graham Memorial | THURSDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Servic

Legislators Study 3 Financial Bills

Student Legislature will consider three finance bills at tonight's session. The largest one asks for a $500 appropriation for a Tours University exchange scholarship.

The Tours bill provides for $450 as a travel grant to a UNC student attending the university in France, and $50 to the International Students Board as part of a scholarship for a Tours student.

The bill says that "the international awareness of our University community depends to a large degree on the part played by foreign students in our University life."

Favorable Recommendation

Legislative committee favorably recommended the bill.

A bill for $35 to send a UNC representative to the "Disarmament and Arms Control" conference at Swarthmore College, Penn. in February, will come to the floor tonight.

The disarmament conference is "a well conceived attempt to throw some light on the problem of world disarmament," according to the bill.

Chosen By President

The UNC delegate will be chosen by the president of the student body and approved by Legislature. The bill was reported out favorably by legislative committee.

A third finance bill calls for a $70 appropriation to buy Yack space for the Dance Committee.

Legislative committee reported this bill out unfavorably because, according to committee members: (1) the Dance Committee had not shown its by-laws to Legislature, and (2) it had spent the $70 before it asked for the appropriation.

Communications Bill

A bill to establish a Communications Committee might come to the floor tonight.

The bill also calls for an appropriation of $475 to the new committee, to aid dormitory newspapers and improve overall campus communication.

Legislature meets in New East at 7:30 p.m.

FLU VACCINE

Any student who wishes to be given the influenza vaccine should go to the student infirmary before the beginning of Christmas holidays.

Infirmary officials say they have a small supply of the flu vaccine, which will be sold to students at cost—only $1.

The vaccine is "hard to get now," according to officials.

Ugly Man Voting Ends Tomorrow

The Ugliest Man On Campus contest ends Friday.

The final tabulation of votes will be made immediately after the buildings where the voting stands are located close Friday night. Stands are located in the Y building, Lenoir Hall, and the Circus Room in the Monogram Club.

Proceeds from the contest sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega go to Project HOPE. "Not only is every vote a vote for your favorite dorm or fraternity, but it is also a helping hand for someone in an underdeveloped country," said UMOC Committee Chairman Marvin Mason.

The winner of this year's contest will receive a UMOC Key and a date with Lindsay Raiford. The sponsoring organization will receive possession of the UMOC Trophy for a period of one year.

All sponsoring groups should turn in their sealed bids—which will be counted after the final stand tabulation—by 3 p.m. Friday to Marvin Mason in 401 Cobb or APO President Clarence Dixon in 444 Cobb.

3rd DTH Beauty

SENIOR BECKY HAYES is the third DTH beauty. The dark-haired beauty is a Tri-Delt and hails from Forest City.

Tshombe Pledges Fight To Death

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, The Crngo (UPI)—President Moise Tshombe said Wednesday a massive United Nations offensive supplied by U. S. Air Force globemasters is imminent in Elisabethville and that the Katangese are ready to die defending their freedom.

He delivered an impassioned appeal to the world to recognize Katanga's secession as huge American planes flew 700 Ethiopian troops to Elisabethville Wednesday with 45,000 pounds of stores, ammunition and 14 jeeps. Another 105 Ethiopians flew in from Kindu, raising U.N. troop strength to 5,000 for the offensive.

The Katanga government asked U. N. Undersecretary General Ralph Bunche to come here from Leopoldville for a fact-finding mission it said would "bring to the world proof of the cruel, inhuman actions of the U. N. armed forces on free Katanga soil."

As Tshombe predicted the all-out attack "tonight or early tomorrow," U. N. troops took up positions around three sides of the heavily bombed city. Katangese gendarmes and soldiers were entrenchen and children fled the battle zone.

Thant Withdrawing Request

In New York, Acting Secretary General Thant announced he was withdrawing a request for British bombs for Indian Canberra jet planes in the Congo as Britain sought a cease-fire in the United Nations against the opposition of the United States and Afro-Asian nations.

The U. N. forces are committed under a Security Council resolution to drive out of Katanga the European mercenaries who have directed Tshombe's armies and to end the secession of the province from the central government.

Heavy fighting was reported in the outskirts of Elisabethville. The center of the city was under heavy U.N. mortar attack which lighted the sky with flames during the night and filled it with smoke when dawn broke Wednesday.

The Red Cross began emptying key buildings, including schools. A second refugee train packed with 300 women and children left Elisabethville for Ndola on the border of neighboring Northern Rhodesia.

Bombed Lido Hotel

Ethiopian Sabre jets joined the fighting the first time. They swooped over the city and attacked the Lido Hotel with rockets. The Lido was a former recreation place for Swedish U.N. troops but was abandoned to Katangese troops at the outset of the fighting 10 days ago. Since then it has become a Katangese strongpoint.

A U. N. spokesman said Wednesday the reinforcements arriving Wednesday would assist in "restoring law and order in Katanga if the Katangese armed forces and armed civilians continue to fire on the United Nations."

The spokesman reported that U. N. forces directed their operations only on the fringes of the city. To the north, he said, they secured roads to the airfield by capturing a high building. To the northeast, Irish troops attacked a road block. To the south Swedes cleared another road block in heavy fighting.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Winston Churchill

Negro Demonstrators Halted

ALBANY, Ga.—A group of 74 Negroes knelt on the courthouse steps here Wednesday to sing hymns and pray for 11 "freedom riders" on trial inside. Police broke up the demonstration and jailed the leader for contempt.

It was the second such mass protest in as many days in this rigidly segregated south Georgia industrial city of 56,000. And even before the excitement from Wednesday's protest died down, Negroes met to plan their next move.

In contrast to the 267 persons arrested Tuesday, only integration leader Slater King was put behind bars Wednesday.

Recorders Court Judge Abner Israel held King in contempt of court for causing a noise outside the building and disturbing the proceedings against the "freedom riders." He sentenced King to a five-day term.

Those jailed Tuesday were charged with disturbing the peace. More than half of those taking part in Wednesday's demonstration were minors, and several appeared to be no more than seven years of age.

The juveniles were escorted back to the Negro section of the city while the adult demonstrators were temporarily detained at the courthouse. The adults were made to wait outside the courtroom while King was being tried, but were released after his sentence was announced.

★ ★ ★

U.S. Dominican Consulate Closed

SANTO DOMINGO, D. R.—The United States closed its midtown consulate indefinitely Wednesday after street mobs chanting anti-American slogans stoned a carload of six consular officers.

No one was hurt but the Americans spent some anxious moments in their station wagon before police broke up the demonstration. The consulate officers were identified as consuls Matt Ortwein and George Belcher and vice consuls John Spillane, Joe Fandino, Gerald Monroe and Rogelio Garcia.

Closure of the consulate followed. The office handles mostly visa and passport affairs. The street riots started as a crowd hunt for "Trujillo spies" falsely reported as getting visas at the consulate. It quickly degenerated into an anti-American demonstration when police reserves fired small arms and hurled tear gas grenades and noise bombs to scatter the demonstrators.

It was the second straight day of disorders at the consulate offices where visa and passport affairs are handled. Tuesday, some 400 youths invaded the building twice and caused heavy property damage before they were driven off.

★ ★ ★

U.N. Cancels British Bombs

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—The United Nations Wednesday withdrew its request for British bombs for use in the Congo after the move stirred an uproar in Britain.

Acting U.N. Secretary General Thant announced the withdrawal as the United States and the Afro-Asian bloc in the United Nations lined up in opposition to a British demand for a cease-fire in secessionist Katanga.

Leading Educators Condemn 'Service Station' Universities

Griswold, Hutchins Hit Current Values

By BILL WAUMETT

The "service station concept of the university" has been cited as contributing to "the crude pressure and bribery" of nonacademic interests that continue to "defile" educational standards.

This charge was made by Dr. A. Whitney Griswold, President of Yale University, and Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, former president of Chicago University, in a booklet called "The University."

The "service station concept" means the universities' attempt to offer any course urged by outside pressures. Dr. Hutchins gave as example a degree program in "mobile homes" offered by a major state university and said that special interests were responsible for this "academic major."

Attack Presidents

Griswold and Hutchins also attacked college presidents who "spend so much time justifying what they're doing that they don't have time to do what they're justifying."

The booklet was published this week by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions which Dr. Hutchins heads. Dr. Hutchins made history with his abolition of varsity football while he was at Chicago.

University presidents, he said, are judged "by the figures—by the amount of money that comes in, by the quantity of bricks and mortar that is assembled, by the number of students that enroll, and, in some places, by the digits on the football scoreboard."

High Schools Blamed

The defects in the current standards of education were blamed by Dr. Griswold largely on the preparation of high school teachers. The "icicles of the old system of pedagogy," which he blamed for repelling many of the ablest teachers, are protected by "a militant organization with branches in every state and elaborate headquarters in Washington," he said.

Xmas Xpress

WANT RIDES

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. or 100-mile radius—Jimmy Burke, 304 Connor Hall, 968-9154.

PITTSBURGH — December 16, Charles Doty, Mangum, 968-9110.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—December 16, Thurman Smith, 320 Joyner, 968-9185.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX. or general vicinity—Charles H. Lincoln, 201 Avery, 968-9046, can leave December 16. Will share driving and expenses.

NEW ROCHELLE OR NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Rosalyn Post, December 16, 12 noon, 968-3886.

WESTPORT, CONN. or vicinity—Call Evan Harrar, 327 Avery, 968-9116. Would like to leave Friday, Dec. 15.

ARLINGTON, Va. — Leonard Rogers wants ride to Arlington, Washington, D. C. or near vicinity, leaving Dec. 16. Call 968-9093 or go by 218 Cobb.

MIAMI, Fla.—Ruth Lebar and Vicki Lebar, share expenses, 942-6241.

MIDWEST (Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha, Neb.)—Sandy Hoffmann, share expenses, Smith Dorm, third floor, 968-9133.

DALLAS, TEX.—L. W. Lau, 176 Phillips Hall or call Physics Dept., share expenses.

WILLIAMSBURG or RICHMOND—Contact Charles Hobbs, 201 Ruffin, 968-9139; will share expenses.

NEW YORK CITY OR BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Ronnie Gabriel, Noon Friday or later, 408 Cobb, 968-9097, share expenses and driving.

WASHINGTON, D. C.— John Morene, December 16, share expenses, 215 Parker, 968-9140.

CINCINNATI, or Vicinity—Want to leave Dec. 15 or 16. Will share expenses, driving. Harve Harris, 968-5266.

ARLINGTON, VA. OR WASHINGTON, D. C. or Vicinity—Leonard Rogers, December 16, 218 Cobb, 968-9093.

FT. MYERS, FLA.—Tom Leanhardt, share expenses, 339 Cobb, 968-9145.

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. or NEW YORK CITY—Leaving Dec. 15. Call Ciaran Mercier, 207 Aycock, 968-9158.

ST. LOUIS, MO. or Vicinity — Dec. 15, 16, 17. Bill Weems, 310 Avery, 968-9029, share driving and expenses.

NEW YORK CITY — Dec. 16, Amnon Rapoport, III, Conor, 968-9155, share expenses.

NORFOLK, Va. — Judy Gray wants ride, leaving either Friday or Saturday. Call 968-9010, Nurses Dorm.

NEW MEXICO or Vicinity—Jim Carpenter, Box 4725, Duke Station, phone Durham 286-9230, wants a ride, leaving Dec. 20.

AUBURN, Ala., ATLANTA, Ga. or COLUMBUS, Ga. — Rick Edwards, 308 Stacy Dorm, 968-9112, wants ride leaving after 12 noon Saturday. Will share driving, expenses.

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Rudy Alert wants ride. 232 Teague, 968-

(Continued on Page 5)

Caroling, Concert Culminate Xmas Events For UNC

Carolina students will have an opportunity to join in the Christmas activities on campus by taking advantage of two Christmas programs which are being offered tonight.

The University Chorus of the Music Department will present its fall concert at 8 p.m. in Hill Music Hall.

The first half of the program will consist of Christmas melodies of many lands written or arranged by contemporary composers such as Charles Gordon Rex, Marie Castelnueve-Tedesce, Iluis Romeu, Geoffrey Shaw, and Teresa del Riege.

The second half of the program will feature Ottorine Respighi's "Laud to the Nativty." This will be the first North Carolina performance of this work which is characterized by Dr. Mason, director of the Chorus, as being one of the finest of twentieth century choral compositions.

(Carolers will not meet at GM at 7:30 as it was previously announced.)

The University Chorus is a group of mixed voices drawing its membership from students, employees, and other members of the University family.

The public has been invited and admission is free.

For those who wish to spend a less formal evening, the Order of the Grail and Graham Memorial will offer free coffee and cider at a gathering at 9:30 in GM to sing Christmas carols.

All caroling groups and any other students are invited to attend.

Reflections And Quarterly Engage In Cultural, Commercial Contest

Two student-edited literary magazines went on sale here recently indicating a new cultural zenith in a town long known and respected for its stamina in the arts.

Competition, and editorial differences, are said to be keen.

"Reflections from Chapel Hill," a monthly magazine of art and thought, and "The Carolina Quarterly," a by-product of the old University Quarterly established in 1844, are the two magazines.

Editor Brown

"Reflections," edited and published by Robert V. N. Brown, a UNC graduate student in history, leans heavily toward current political appraisals and dramatic typography, while "The Carolina Quarterly," edited by Jerome Stern and Richard Rickert, concentrates primarily on student writing of fiction and poetry.

The 104-page "Reflections" contains four articles of current social and political interest. They are: "The Last White Family on the Block," by Washington reporter Marvin Caplan; "The Struggle for Latin America," by economist Paul M. Sweezy; "The Poverty of Liberalism" by Duke graduate Elizabeth Tornquist; and "A Modest Proposal" by James K. Layton, a native North Carolinian.

"One Thousand Fearful Words for Fidel Castro," a Lawrence Ferlinghetti poem, five other poems, one short story, and a 12-page editorial also are included. There are 20 pages of photography, ten of which are devoted to the work of UNC Sculptor-teacher, Robert Howard.

"Reflections" Artist

Katharine Strong, a UNC graduate in Art and a resident of Chapel Hill, is Art Editor and Associate Editor of "Reflections," now in its third issue.

"The Carolina Quarterly" contains one editorial, 5 short stories, and nine poems. Two stories are written by UNC students. Three UNC student poets are included in the volume.

U.P. Donates $50 To NC Symposium

The University Party in an open meeting held in Gerrard Hall Monday night voted unanimously to contribute $50 to the Carolina Symposium.

Buzzy Stubbs first moved to contribute 75 dollars to the Symposium. It was decided to table Stubbs' motion in order to determine whether to give $75 or $50. Later a motion to contribute $50 was put forward and passed unanimously.

UP members were encouraged to write the DTH or their legislature representatives.

Money for Classes

A motion to donate a sum of money to the specific classes—the Freshman class in particular—was also brought up. A finance committee, with Phil Smith as chairman, was appointed to look into the possibility.

The Party also discussed measures in which it could help the dorms. Dorm needs which were discussed, including the need for food machines, the desire for an off-campus cabin, and the desire for dorm social rooms where the dorm residents could take dates.

The Campus Entertainment Committee, which the U.P. said the S.P. was discussing abolishing, was brought up.

"Legislature's Problem"

Inman Allen said that this was a problem for the Legislature. Allen also said he thought the U.P. should take the stand before the Legislature that the Party would vote to keep the committee if the Legislature would continue to subsidize it.

The next meeting was scheduled for January 8.

Campus Chest Is Being Organized For Annual Drive

The purpose of the Campus Chest, which was revised in October, 1961 by Student Legislature, is to unite under one organization the raising of funds from students for all non-profit organizations approved by the Advisory Board.

This advisory board consists of the President of the Student Body, a member of the Interdormitory Council, a member of the Panhellenic Council, a member of the Women's Residence Council, a member of the Interfraternity Council, the Chairman of the Campus Chest, the Treasurer of the Student Body, and two members of the Y Executive Committee.

Charles Shelton, one of the co-chairmen of the Advisory Board appointed by Student Body President Bill Harriss, explained the bill which brought the Advisory Board into existence.

Need For Board

According to Shelton, a need arose for the Board because formerly, charities continually called and pressured the co-chairmen of the Campus Chest.

At the same meeting, held late in November, Shelton explained the underlying philosophy to raise students' money for students. He asked how people felt about this and he wanted to know whether or not the policy should be adhered to.

Infirmary

Students in the Infirmary yesterday included Diana Dial, Phyllis Hale, James Ryan, Don Buffalo, Fred Burney, Catherine Johnson, Peter Goldberg, Susanne Ross, Jerry Barnett, Robert Coker, Fred Vogler, Pete Stokes, Warren Price, William Lyons, Steve Yates, Ted Tysinger, Robert Deal, Sam Barfield, Bonn Gilbert, John Small, Alan Morgan, John Freas, Dan Wilson, and Jane Clark.

German Students Find Beer, Customs Familiar In UNC Exchange Program

GERMAN EXCHANGE STUDENT Ditmar Schnitker, here on a one-year program from Goettingen University, finds many similarities between U. S. and German college students.
—Photo by Wallace.

By BILL WAUMETT

"Students and beer belong together," says Goettingen exchange student Ditmar Schnitker, and in this way at least, German students resemble their Carolina counterparts.

Goettingen, the university which exchanges two students with UNC each year, is similar in other ways to Chapel Hill.

There is a "Rathskeller" where students come to drink and sing. The "Rat" is a "huge cellar under the town hall," where "several hundred students meet to sing and singing naturally makes everyone thirsty and therefore there is beer in the Rathskeller, a lot of beer."

Goettingen has its Silent Sam also in the "Ganseliescht," the little "Goosegirl," which students climb up to kiss after a session of beer-drinking.

"Besides all that," Ditmar says, "sometimes German students have to study, too."

The Goettingen-Carolina Exchange originated in 1952-53 when five students from Goettingen spent six months at Carolina studying student activities and auditing courses.

Following their visit Carolina students worked out an exchange program which began in the spring of 1955.

Expenses of the students are paid by the Interdormitory Council, the Scholarship Committee of the faculty, the Interfraternity Council, the Order of the Grail, the Campus Chest and the Student Legislature.

Similar arrangements are made in Goettingen to pay the expenses of the Carolina students.

Applications for the year of 1962-63 will be available at Y-Court after the Christmas holidays. Students who will spend at least one more year at Carolina before graduation are eligible to apply.

German university life has a long and colorful history. Exchange student Kay Rump tells of one German town which was asked "which of two institutions it would rather have—a university or a prison? The town fathers decided to favor the prison; they knew the prisoners were quiet and behaved and could be controlled.

"Students of the 18th century were supposed to be rough and unrestrained fellows with tremendous self-confidence. Their exact ranking in the social hierarchy was not determined, but they were placed superior to 'militia, lower-clergy and other common populace.'"

According to supporters, Goettingen offers a grand opportunity for "open-minded students who are interested in the history, culture, and sociology of Germany and the partner university," to complement their education with a taste of European life.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 14, 1961 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLLX, No. 67

Freedom?

Carolina students, almost without exception, take pride in pointing to the freedom allowed them here. The honor system, autonomous student government, with control of over nearly $150,000, an active role in shaping policy—these are cited as proof positive that Carolina students are capable — and are given the opportunity—to decide the course of their own affairs, answerable only to themselves for their ultimate success or failure as students and as individuals.

The unfortunate thing about this picture of an utopian university society is that much of it is a myth perpetuated by wishful thinking and student ego. Although Carolina students enjoy more leeway in determining their own affairs than is granted at many colleges and universities, student autonomy will have to achieve much before the myth blends with reality.

And instead of improving, the picture seems to be growing gradually worse. Instead of gaining freedoms, we are losing them. The bulk of Honor Council cases, for instance, go across the desk of the Assistant to the Dean of Student Affairs before they are acted upon by the Council. Most originate within the faculty or the administration.

In the dormitories, the role of the Interdormitory Council is slowly being usurped by resident advisors, whose salaries are paid by the administration, and whose job it is to guide and advise, not to discipline. Some of these advisors, as a case in point, have been told that they have the right to search rooms, and have even been encouraged to do so.

In another area, regulations concerning the use of alcohol, although they have been modified somewhat, are still far short of being realistic and will not be so until the trustees and administration cease to hide their heads in the sand and come up with rulings which allow for the use of alcohol at the discretion of the student. If the privilege is abused, then expulsion should be swift and immediate. Drinking and gentlemanly conduct can exist in the same framework, and do at many colleges.

Curfew hours could be extended, allowing the coed more leeway in governing her actions.

None of these things are impossible or illogical. All of them are now in effect at various schools throughout the country.

Are they impossible here? Are Carolina students less mature and capable of setting their own standards? We say no.

But apparently the trustees and administration say yes.

Future Candidates

Spring elections are still months away, but it already looks as if there are front runners in what will later develop into a contest for the top two nominations to student government offices.

As always, every potential candidate is effecting an innocent "who, me?" posture in respect to queries about a possible candidacy. Every aspiring politician is waiting for what he considers the right moment to spring the news that he is "available." And, as usual, most would deny feeling the faintest tremor when the subject turns to politics. But, political ambition, like halitosis, is hard to hide.

For the presidency of the student body, about the only sure prediction is that Inman Allen, presently chairman of GMAB, will be the UP candidate.

Support for Allen has already manifested itself and it looks now as if nothing short of a major change of political climate will open the door for any other UP nomination.

Just who will be the UP candidate for the vice-presidency cannot be predicted with any real accuracy. Bill Criswell, chairman of the UP, has been mentioned and it doesn't seem likely that he will decline the nomination if it is offered. Larry McDevitt, doubly endorsed member of legislature, should not be ruled out as a possibility for the vice-presidential nomination — for either party. McDevitt has not declared any party leanings and both parties, we feel sure, would be receptive to his candidacy.

For the SP, presidential assistant Dwight Wheless seems the logical choice for nomination to the top office, although Junior Robin Britt, chairman of the Communications Committee, has some support. Honor Council member Walter Dellinger has indicated that he might seek nomination for one of the top two positions. Again, McDevitt should not be ruled out as a vice-presidential choice, although he has not yet indicated that he will accept a nomination.

Indications are that the race this year may be complicated by one or more independent candidates. Buddy Broome, formerly a member of student legislature and still politically active behind the scenes, has been mentioned in this regard.

Carolina politics are as capricious as a March wind and today's potential candidates might well be completely out of the picture tomorrow.

But, at present, that's how things look from here.

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARJORIE ANN REYNOLDS
Associate Editor

LLOYD LITTLE
Executive News Editor

BILL HOUSE
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

NANCY BASS, LINDA CRAWFORD—Feature Editors
HARRY W. LLOYD—Sports Editor
DAVID WILSON—Subscription Manager
JIM RATHER—Circulation Manager
ED DUTTON—Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

BEN HARRISON—Advertising Manager

The Daily Tar Heel is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C. Published with the aid of Merrit E. Hall. Subscription rates: $4.00 per semester, $8.00 per year.

The Daily Tar Heel is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau at the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Boredom Strange Malady, Hard To Cure

Boredom is a peculiar ailment. It is like the cold in that it is common, highly contagious, and far from easy to cure. One significant fact differentiates boredom from the cold: the latter is a physical ailment; the former is a mental one. So much is easy to understand, but it seems that the writer of the article appearing in the December eighth issue of the Daily Tar Hele entitled "Pure, Simple Boredom" missed this point.

He wrote: "Living in most of UNC's dormitories is a boring, noisy, frustrating experience." The position of the word "boring" emphasizes it, and the writer implies that noisiness and frustration result from boredom. He seems to be an accurate diagnostician thus far, but his remedies for the root of the problem show him to be a quack.

He states: "Many of the problems (are) purely physical in nature and impossible to alleviate by means other than construction of more liveable, less crowded facilities. These improvements can come only so fast as money can be acquired." This statement combines truth with falsehood. It is true that more space and better living accommodations are needed for students; it is not true that such physical improvements, including suggested recreational facilities, will ultimately remedy the cause of noisiness and frustration.

* * *

THE ELITE Romans were bored, too. The aristocrats had money, influence, spacious livng accommodations, servants, Greek slaves to do their homework. They had recreational facilities that were as luxurious and extensive as the age could produce, and entertaining spectacles that no doubt were a wonder to see. But as they came away from their gladiatorial combats and bloody animal-against-man matches, the brief balloon of excitement was punctured by a forced return to realistic routine. Only men like Cicero, Seneca, and Lucretius were able to banish boredom and fill their lives with significance. If gladiatorial combats were not able ultimately to satisfy the Romans, people like ourselves, it is not likely that a game of ping-pong will provide any real relief from boredom.

The writer also thinks it would be a good idea to loosen "the present ruling which prohibits women from entering men's rooms (which ruling) is based on Victorian morality . . . ." The fact is that this ruling is based not on Victorian morality buth rather on the judgment of experienced persons. In the first place, Victorian morality does not, as the writer seems to emphasize, mean false modesty or empty respectability.

In the recently revised "Handbook to Literature," Dr. Holman states that "a large part of the (Victorian) literature either did not exhibit such traits or set itself flatly in protest against them." In the second place, a dormitory is a place in which to study and sleep, not to socialize to the extent suggested by the writer. Girls, remember, can be quite frustrating.

* * *

"MOST OF THE dorm infractions stem from pure and simple boredom. Eliminate that first, then worry about firecrackers." Boredom should be eliminated, but it will never be eliminated by the superficial remedies suggested above. The cure must come from within, since the trouble originates from within. C. E. Montagu wrote in "Disenchantment":

> All dullness is in the mind; it comes out of the mind and diffuses itself over everything around the dull person, and then he terms everything dull, and thinks himself the impact of dull things.

One must become interested in the beauties of the world (not necessarily girls), the beauty of life, the fascination of intellectual and spiritual pursuits. A little mental force may be necessary at first, since there seems to be a built-in resister to mental activity and active appreciation, but that initial force may save one from a lifetime of boredom, noise, and frustration.

—Edwin Brinkly

"Rockets Here, Rockets There, Kids Will Forget How To Use Their Arms"

This Week In The Legislature

A bill to include $500 in the 1962-63 Student Government budget for an exchange scholarship between UNC and Tours University was introduced into legislative committee last week and will probably come to the floor tonight.

The bill cites "a growing sentiment among students, faculty and administration to expand our present scholarship program."

Officals of France's Tours University are willing to accept a Carolina student, according to the bill, and provide him with "all University privileges free of charge, in addition to providing room and board in a French family."

Considering that Legislature in bill RW-30-3 went on record as favoring such a proposal, it should pass the Tours scholarship plan.

(The $500 provides $450 for the UNC student's travel, and $50 as part of the French student's scholarship.)

* * *

"The Student Government of the University of North Carolina has a responsibility to create within the individual student an awareness of the nuclear testing question which is foremost in the minds of students throughout the world."

Thus reads one of the 'whereas' in bill RD-32-8, a resolution condemning nuclear testing in the atmosphere. The resolution was distributed to all student legislators this week, although it probably won't be voted upon for many weeks.

The resolution should be kept in mind as legislators vote whether to send a representative to the Disarmament conference in Swarthmore, Penn. in February. Monday night legislative committee passed the bill for $35 to aid in expenses. Legislature should vote the appropriation.

The resolution placing Legislature at the mercy of the Campus Entertainment Committee for future appropriations—which might come to the floor tonight—should be very carefully inspected before action is taken.

The committee's first action was near-disastrous, which might lead one to think that its future actions will be of similar nature. Or, if one chooses not to think of the past, what about the argument that Graham Memorial could do a better entertainment job cheaper?

Committee supporters argue that the campus wants a student-run entertainment organization. Obviously, the committee's first attempt didn't prove this claim. Maybe the committee should be given another fling at seeking profit. Maybe.

—Jim Clotfelter

Celebrating Christmas

By OTELIA CONNOR

One year just before Christmas, one of my neighbors said to me, "We are not going to have a tree this year, and no Christmas decorations. We are going to give the two boys, ten and twelve year olds, some clothes, and that will be that."

I said, "Oh, don't ever stop celebrating Christmas. The Christmas Spirit is the spirit of love and giving, and you have got to get into the spirit, or Christmas is just another day. Go home and decorate your tree, your mantle, your door, and put your candles in the window, and let the boys help you." She did, and I never heard anymore about not celebrating the Christmas season.

I think a certain editor owes the merchants of Chapel Hill an apology. He editorialized, "The 'Christmas Spirit in Chapel Hill has become a public menace, largely because it is not actually the Christmas Spirit, but a trumped-up, warmed-over version of the Christmas Spirit."

* * *

I WOULD HATE to think how we would get along celebrating the Christmas Spirit without the help of the merchants. Imagine everybody decorating for Christmas as they did when I was a child, when we tied oranges and apples on the tree, popped our own corn, strung it on strings and hung it on the tree, and cut out the paper decorations. People are less ingenious now than they were then, they are so accustomed to having everything machine-made, they have lost the use of their hands.

I remember one Christmas recently, when I ran out of Christmas cards before I had finished my list. I couldn't find a Christmas card in town, they were sold out. I am sure we don't appreciate the gamble that the merchants assume when they stock up for the holiday season. They have no way of knowing what the public will fancy from year to year. Every year they are left with an enormous amount of merchandise which they have to try to dispose of at a sacrifice.

I am very thankful that I can go to town and buy the things I want to give to friends and family, and for the Christmas wrappings, for no one would have anything I made.

* * *

TODAY I HEARD a minister make a constructive criticism over the radio about the annual Chrristmas Parade. He said instead of having pretty girls and balloons, etc., as the main attraction of the parade, that we should have scenes depicting the nativity, that we should center our attention more on the spiritual meaning of Christmas and less on the material. I can go along with him there. But let's keep old Santa in the picture, for he represents the spirit of love and giving to the child who wouldn't understand if you talked to him, or her, about a spirit.

And it never bothers a child how Santa Claus can be on every street corner, how he can deliver presents down the chimney, to every child, at the same instant, all over the world. But, "That is what it means to be a child—to believe in love, to believe in loveliness, to believe in belief."

I would like to suggest that the playing of Christmas Carols be not over-done in the stores. Like to enjoy the carols in church and not feel like Christmas is an anti-climax, but I would enjoy hearing "Jingle Bells," "White Christmas," "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer," and the like, along with the Christmas shopping.

Yes, I get excited every year when the first Christmas decorations go up, and I hope I always will.

BY GOETTINGEN SCHOLAR BOOKER:

East Berlin—Now A Harsh, Grim City

GOETTINGEN, Germany — Three of us—an Englishman, another American, and I—arrived in Berlin September 15 for a four-day sojourn. We spent our nights encased in sleeping bags and blankets at a campground beside the East German border and passed our days touring this stormy and divided city in East Germany.

West Berlin, encompassing 341 square miles and 2.2 million people, lies 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain. Now it is a rebuilt city with modern buildings having replaced the older, destroyed ones. Although many traces of the war stll exist, particularly the numerous empty lots and the few remaining ruins, the reconstruction here, as in the other German cities, has been remarkable.

"The Wall," built August 14 to divide the city, attracted us first. As we walked along it, the sight of the well-armed East German police (VOPOS) together with the reinforcing coils of barbed wire across on the east side impressed us with the difficulty—or near impossibility—of escaping to the West. East Germany has exerted a great effort to hold her people within her boundaries.

On September 17, the day of the German elections, we were at our campground. Then the Communists stared alternating over loudspeakers the broadcast of music and propaganda. When the music ended and the commentary began, the Germans around us commenced yelling and honking their car horns to drown out the "news." This points out that propaganda is ineffective when the people can see both sides of the story. These West Berliners can see both sides only too clearly. Thus the propaganda, being so far from the truth, appeared ridiculous to these West Germans.

BEING FOREIGNERS, we had the opportunity to travel into East Berlin. Many destroyed or partially destroyed buildings still remain in this sector, and the smell of the ruins is prevalent. Hanging from many of the buildings were gigantic propaganda slogans and East German flags. It was with truly an ominous feeling that we drove through this communist-controlled city.

Economically, East Berlin is obviously poorer than her western counterpart. The amount of destruction remaining, the extreme scarcity of automobiles, and the shabbiness of the stores' interiors—all indicate this. The people with whom we conversed were fearful to speak about politics. Some bluntly asked us to change the subject, the others would say very little.

The contrast between the two sectors was striking, both materialistically and in their different atmospheres. On the one side is West Berlin with her freedom and institutions as we know them, and on the other side is East Berlin, harsher and grimmer and dominated by slogans, police, and one-party newspapers. It was with a sigh of relief each time we returned to the West.

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Civil War Sketches On View At Ackland Museum To Jan.

During the Civil War, artists hired by illustrated weekly magazines such as Harper's Weekly and Frank Leslie's illustrated Newspaper made on-the-spot sketches of the war.

An exhibition of these Civil War drawings and watercolors is now being shown at the Ackland Art Center. The drawings are on loan from the Library of Congress, Harvard College Libry, the National Archives, and the United States National Museum. The drawings were brought together in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the Civil War.

The Civil War photographer was limited by his primitive equipment to taking "stills." It was the combat artist who captured the livelier war scenes with his pencil and sketching pad.

Through the sketches, viewers can still see how cannon smoke hung over the field, how the wounded were carried away on makeshift stretchers, and the panorama of great armies spread across a countryside at Second Bull Run. They can watch the soldiers at play in their camps and also watch as they bury their dead.

The artist usually made a rough sketch in the heat of the battle and then filled in the detail in a quieter area. If he had to send off an important sketch to meet a deadline, he might jot down written notations for the home artist: "2 windows each side of door," or "Put as much fallen timber and dead limbs between the figures as you can." The sketches often show the creases of folds made to insert them in envelopes for mailing to the home office. The combat artist, or "special" as he was called, shared the hazards and miseries of the soldiers in the field.

The exhibition, circulated by the Smithsonian Institution, will be on view to January 7. Ackland is open Tuesdays through Fridays, 2:30 to 5 p.m. and 8 to 10 p.m. Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Closed Mondays.

TV Schedule

WTVD CHANNEL 11

6:00—Leave It To Beaver
6:30—Your Esso Reporter
6:40—Weather
6:45—Douglas Edwards & News
7:00—Ozzie and Harriet
7:30—Leonard Bernstein
8:30—Bob Cummings Show
9:00—The Investigators
10:00—Dick Van Dyke
10:30—Window on Main St.
11:00—Phillips 66 News
11:15—Star Theater

WUNC-TV CHANNEL 4

6:00—Chronicle
6:45—What's New
7:5—Phys Science
8:00—Stones' Story
8:15—Darkroom
8:30—Research
9:00—Memoirs
9:30 Christmas
10:00—Sign Off

WRAL CHANNEL 5

6:00—Cap'n 5
6:05—Stateline News
6:20—Viewpoint
6:25—Weather
6:30—Reeve with Sports
6:45—Huntley-Brinkley Report
7:00—Sea Hunt
7:30—Bachelor Father
8:00—Donna Reed Show
8:30—Dr. Kildare
9:30—Hazel
10:00—Sing Along with Mitch
11:00—Dateline News
11:10—Sportline
11:15—Jack Paar

FOR HITLER'S TROOPS

History Book Spelled End

By CHUCK MOONEY

A battered, little black "German History book" helped spell the end for Hitler's troops at the Saint Lo break-through after the Normandy invasion.

It was discovered and translated by Associate Professor R .T. Taylor of the UNC German Department and two other U. S. Army linguists in London.

The book revealed the German plans for repelling the Allied invasion of Normany and the locations of all German 7th Army units to Allied Intelligence.

Taylor had been drafted and assigned to Intelligence at Supreme Headquarters Allied Forces in Europe as a German linguist.

"Our mission was to read and evaluate German papers," said Taylor. "The battalion and regimental intelligence officers would send captured documents up to our office.

Lived on Coffee

"Sometimes we would get leads and others we got nothing. We got enormous masses of the stuff just after Normany," he said. "We were always behind. Lived on coffee. We never knew but what the next thing we read would be the break we were looking for."

Late in June, 1944, one of the men picked the "completely inconspicuous" little book from the piles of books, papers and folders on the floor, glanced at it and tossed it aside as useless, because it was written in German shorthand.

Taylor also picked it up, looked in it, discarded it and moved on to something else. "A little red light flashed in my mind," said Taylor, "I had seen the initials of the 7th German Army Headquarters written out in longhand."

The book, part of the German was a detailed, round-the-clock Army Historical Section's notes, record of all German 7th Army phone calls to higher headquarters, taken from their main switchboard by stenographers.

Germn Plans

It revealed the strategic decisions of the German High Command for the first 90 days of our campaign in France, in conversations between Field Marshal Rommel and Hitler and their staff.

"We found that the Germans thought the terrain around Saint Lo was least favorable for attack," said Taylor, "and therefore was the thinnest part of the German line."

General Eisenhower's office was immediately notified and sent orders to transcribe and translate the shorthand.

A jeep, with a running engine, and a dispatch rider waited outside the office for the 52 hours that the three of them worked on the book. Every hour the rider would take the latest hour's translation to the Allied Headquarters Intelligence Center.

Allied invasion plans were changed and Saint Lo was the first breakthrough of the invasion.

British Juror Upbraided

LONDON, Dec. 6—The judge looked down sternly from his chair at the Old Bailey courthouse and told the juror in a slaying case:

"I have reached the conclusion you are stupid."

The juror, Gerald Kemp, 52 and Jamaica-born, blinked and made no reply.

Despite a warning to jurors not to talk to anyone about the case before them, Kemp had approached two witnesses during court recesses. He asked them questions about the case.

When Justice Sir Richard Elwes heard about the juror's behavior, he ordered him brought before the bench.

Suggesting that perhaps there should be an intelligence test for jurors, the judge said:

"It is very important that juries should be manned by people who have a minimum standard of intelligence and education. At present, the only qualification for jury service is the rateable (tax) value of the house in which he lives."

In Britain any person over 21 who owns land or who pays an annual dwelling tax of more than $56 is eligible for jury duty.

Justice Elwes fined the juror $28.

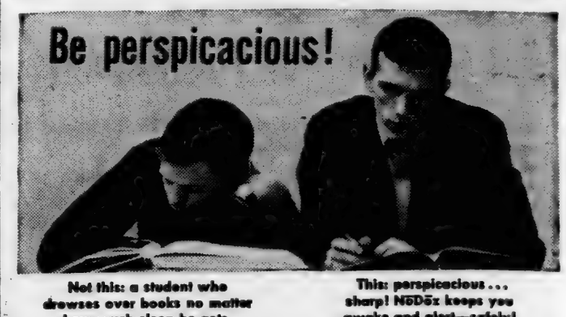
Approving the suggestion that some sort of intelligence test should apply to prospective jurors, the London Daily Mirror's columnist William Connor said:

"Barristers (trial lawyers) spend many years training in the art and science of justice, so do solicitors (lawyers who do not plead cases) and so do the judges.

"But almost any dolt, any prejudiced ass, any moron can help make a mockery of all these closely reasoned deliberations by a verdict that would horrify a jackass."

The Daily Sketch said Justice Elwes' suggestion that trial jurors should pass an intelligence test is understandable but dangerous. It said the answer "is continuing or greater care by judges and counsel to ensure that they are making procedure and arguments simple enough for a jury of the prisoner's peers to follow."

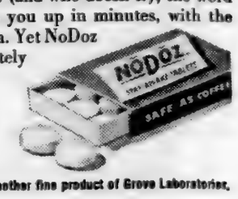
Be perspicacious!



Not this: a student who drowses over books no matter how much sleep he gets.

This: perspicacious... sharp! NoDoz keeps you awake and alert—safely!

If you sometimes find studying soporific (and who doesn't?), the word to remember is NoDoz.® NoDoz perks you up in minutes, with the same safe awakener found in coffee or tea. Yet NoDoz is faster, handier, more reliable. Absolutely non-habit-forming, NoDoz is sold everywhere without prescription. So, to keep perspicacious during study and exams—and while driving, too—always keep NoDoz in proximity.



The safe stay awake tablet—available everywhere. Another fine product of Grove Laboratories.

men recommend it to other men

Cool, clean Old Spice After Shave Lotion always gets you off to a fast, smooth start. Feels just as good between shaves as it does after shaving. Rates A-OK with dates. 1.00 and 1.75 plus tax.

Old Spice AFTER SHAVE LOTION

SHULTON

"Women are inferior"

So says George S. Albee in this week's Saturday Evening Post. He tells why they're inferior. And gives his recipe for putting "the little beasts" in their place. (P. S.: Mr. Albee is happily married.)

SPECIAL: 1962 CALENDAR PAGES Dec. 16 issue now on sale.

The Saturday Evening POST

Now Serving All of

FLORIDA

Faster Routes - Special Rates

take TRAILWAYS.

easiest travel on earth

Save 50% of your return fare from Florida when you buy special low round trip tickets. New routes, faster service.

From Chapel Hill to:	Round Trip	From Chapel Hill to:	Round Trip
MIAMI Express serv. via short route	$44.65	TAMPA Add'l service via Jacksonville	$37.20
ST. PETERSBURG Add'l serv' via choice of routes (Plus tax)	38.25	ORLANDO Express serv' via short route (Plus tax)	35.10

Union Bus Terminal

For information please call

311 W. Franklin St. Phone 942-3356

Open Every Nite 'til 9:00

(except Sat. nites)

until Christmas

RECORDS

L P ALBUMS

25 % off

★ Best Variety

★ Complete Stocks Latest Releases

The Record Bar

Cor. Church & Parrish Sts., Downtown Durham

It's what's up front that counts

Up front is FILTER-BLEND and only Winston has it! Rich, golden tobaccos specially selected and specially processed for full flavor in filter smoking.

KING SIZE Winston FILTER-CIGARETTES FINER FILTER FOR FINER FLAVOR

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

WINSTON TASTES GOOD like a cigarette should!

POCO PEANUTS

Prosecution Asks Eichmann's Death

Convicted Nazi Pleads For Life; Court Sentence Due This Morning

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI) — The Israeli prosecution demanded the gallows Wednesday for Adolf Eichmann as a "ferocious, blood-thirsty beast" who murdered 6,000,000 Jews. The 55-year-old Nazi rose stiffly to his feet and pleaded for his life.

"I do not recognize the guilt," Eichmann read from a statement behind the bullet proof walls of the prisoners dock. "I am the victim of a misconception. I must suffer for the acts of others. I must bear the burden imposed upon me by fate."

Presiding Judge Moshe Landau, who with two other German-born judges Tuesday convicted Eichman on all 15 counts, announced that sentence would be pronounced at 9 a.m. (2 a.m. EST) today. The prosecution said death is mandatory under Jewish law.

Eichmann has the right of appeal to a five-man panel of Supreme Court judges and his attorney has said he will appeal against a death sentence. Observers said it will take two months or more for an appeal ruling but if the appeal is rejected execution would follow swiftly.

Eichmann's eleventh hour plea for mercy followed his thinking throughout the long trial he was only following orders and "those who gave the orders justly deserve punishment." The demand for the death penalty had been expected; Eichmann's plea for mercy had not.

Doesn't Recognize Guilt

"I do not recognize the guilt," he emphasized. "My expectation for justice was disappointed."

"The mass murder was solely the guilt of the political leadership," he said. "The evidence given in this court shocked me considerably, but the misdeeds were committed against my will."

His defense attorney, Dr. Robert Servatius, joined him in the plea.

"The accused revolted against what was being done," Servatius said. "But when he saw what was being done by the rulers, his revolt died within him."

Israeli Attorney General Gideon Hausner not only asked for the death penalty for Eichmann but said:

"I know full well there is no possibility to give the prisoner the punishment he deserves even if he were killed a thousand times."

"I demand the death sentence for Eichmann as the only possible penalty for the person who headed the whole sanguinary apparatus" of Nazi Germany, Hausner said in the heavy hush of a courtroom jammed to capacity.

Death Penalty Mandatory

The death penalty is mandatory because "by the enormity of his misdeeds, Eichmann chose the course of a ferocious, blood-thirsty beast and for him there is one penalty and one penalty only," Hausner said.

As Hausner sat down Servatius rose to begin his final summation. But it was Eichmann who provided one of the trial's most gripping scenes. All eyes stared at the balding, bespectacled defendant as he read from a German text.

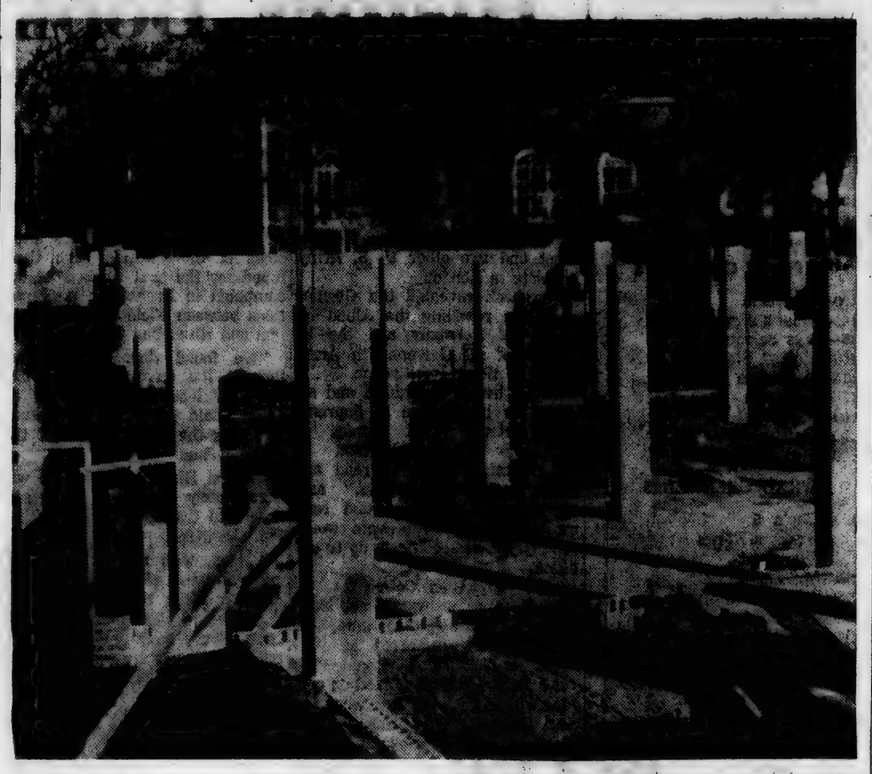
"Everyone in the German Ministry of the Interior knew of the death camps," he said. "But no one ever took a stand against these horrors.

"No one ever reproached me for doing my duties. Now I am enraged by the fact that all my superiors tried to shift the blame to me. I tried to get away from my desk to front line fighting. But my dark duties held me to my place. My respect for discipline came first.

"Obedience did not come easily. The government persecuted Jews avidly. Those in power in Germany abused my obedience. I would request that my having obeyed be the sole fact taken into account."

"Today of my own free will I would ask the Jewish people for pardon," he said. "But in the light of the grounds given in the judgment this would be construed as hypocricy."

New Building Construction



SLOWLY BUT SURELY the new addition to Hill Music Hall is rising from the ground between Hill and Smith Dorm. The new building is scheduled for completion in January 1963. It will cost over $400,000 and include a main rehearsal hall, a library, stack rooms, practice halls, and classrooms.—Photo by Wallace.

Ike Says State's Power Has Lost To Federal Government

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said Wednesday "the pendulum of power has swung far from our states toward the federal government" because the states have failed to meet pressing public needs.

The states must be ever-alert if "the kind of America we have known" is to be preserved, Eisenhower told members of Michigan's Constitutional Convention.

The former Republican chief executive said "the preservation of our states as vigorous, powerful governmental entities is essential to permanent individual freedom and to national growth.

"I hope the rewritten draft of Michigan's constitution will define carefully the responsibilities that its people believe should belong to Michigan and that they will forthrightly assume and exercise the authority essential to the carrying out of those responsibilities."

Eisenhower said states should seek to preserve the principle laid down by the nation's founding fathers, that "those who would be and would stay free must stand eternal watch against undue centralization of power in government."

He said Michigan's people could lead the way to a return of responsibility and authority to the states. "Michigan's example of self-examination and its assertion of responsibility and authority could lead to like action in other states," he said.

"The only limit placed by the constitution on the kind of state government established by its people is that it must be republican in form," Eisenhower said.

The GM Films Committee will meet today in Roland Parker I at 4 p.m. All members are urged to attend as well as anyone else who is interested in becoming a member of the committee.

In Shirley Basin, Wyoming, you can live on Ding Bat Avenue, or Wine-O-Row, or Whiskey Lane, or Beer Can Alley.

Campus Briefs

"Edvard Munch as a Painter" is the title of a discussion that will be given in the Lecture Hall at Ackland Thursday at 8 p.m. The public has been invited.

Dr. Harry Bergholz, Chief Bibliographer, University Library, and Dr. Joseph Sloane, Chairman, Department of Art and Director of the Ackland Art Center will present the discussion and show colored slides of Edvard Munch's work.

Prof. Ernest Mackie of the Math Dept. requests that all those who have not picked up their Phi Beta Kappa keys do so as soon as possible in Room 76, Phillips Hall.

Armstrong Circle Theater on Dec. 20th will feature a full length dramatization of marriage counseling as done by a marriage service agency. The show is titled "Battle of Hearts." CBS in this area is channel 11 or channel 2, Greensboro.

There will be a regular meeting of the National Student Association tonight at 6:30 in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial. All members must be present.

Moore Indicted In Alleged Murder

Bobby Lee (Lucky) Moore of Carrboro, who allegedly shot and killed Bill Ellis, son of the owners of the Village Cafeteria, in an argument over a poker debt, was indicted yesterday by a Hillsboro Grand Jury for first degree murder.

Assistant Clerk of the Orange County Superior Court, L. M. Cheshire, said Moore was being held without bond in the county jail in Hillsboro. Cheshire said that Moore's trial would not come before this session of Superior Court. He said Moore would be tried sometime in February.

Witnesses' Description

Witnesses to the shooting, which occurred on the night of December 2, said Moore confronted Ellis with a $100 debt which Ellis owed him. Moore then shot him near the base of the neck with a .32 caliber pistol, said the witnesses. Ellis jumped to his feet and ran out the back door of the cafeteria, where the shooting took place. A companion, Ruffin Harville, found him on the brick terrace in back of the Ackland Art Museum. He died before an ambulance arrived.

Moore will be represented by Bonner D. Sawyer, a Hillsboro lawyer. Sawyer could not be reached for comment.

Student Bruised In Bleacher Fall

A special student taking business courses at the University fell about 20 feet through the bleachers at Woollen Gym Tuesday night as he was leaving the Junior Class-sponsored basketball game.

Pete Stokes, who lives on South Greensboro St. in Carrboro, was reported by Dr. E. M. Hedgpeth of the infirmary to be in satisfactory condition.

Dr. Hedgpeth said that Stokes had no broken bones and no serious internal injuries as far as he could tell. He said Stokes suffered only bruises.

Stokes and a group of companions were walking down the seats toward the exit when a portion of the bleachers collapsed. Stokes fell to the floor. He was the only person injured.

Is Sinatra pushing his daughter too far?

At 21, actress Nancy Sinatra is on her way up. But is her dad pushing her too hard? In this week's Saturday Evening Post, you'll meet 7 daughters of show-biz celebrities. And learn how their parents feel about another star in the family.

SPECIAL: 1962 CALENDAR PAGES
Dec. 16 issue now on sale. The Saturday Evening POST

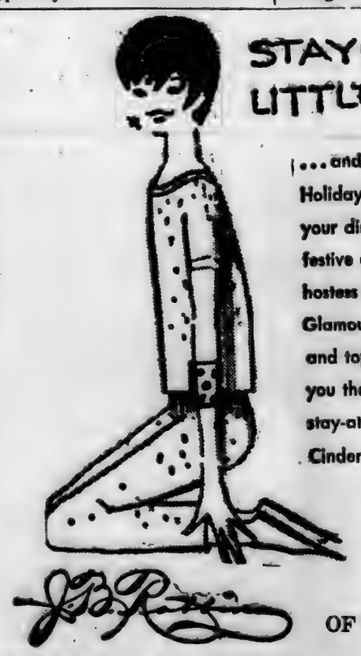
When it comes to career planning, do you find yourself in a predicament?

Perhaps you should look into the possibilities offered by a career in the life insurance business. Provident Mutual offers college men excellent opportunities in sales and sales management.

Take this time now to talk with us about our training program. We'll be glad to fill you in on the details.

RALPH S. RENDER
Campus Supervisor
101 E. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill
Phone 942-3000

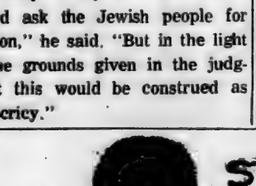
PROVIDENT MUTUAL
life insurance Company
of Philadelphia



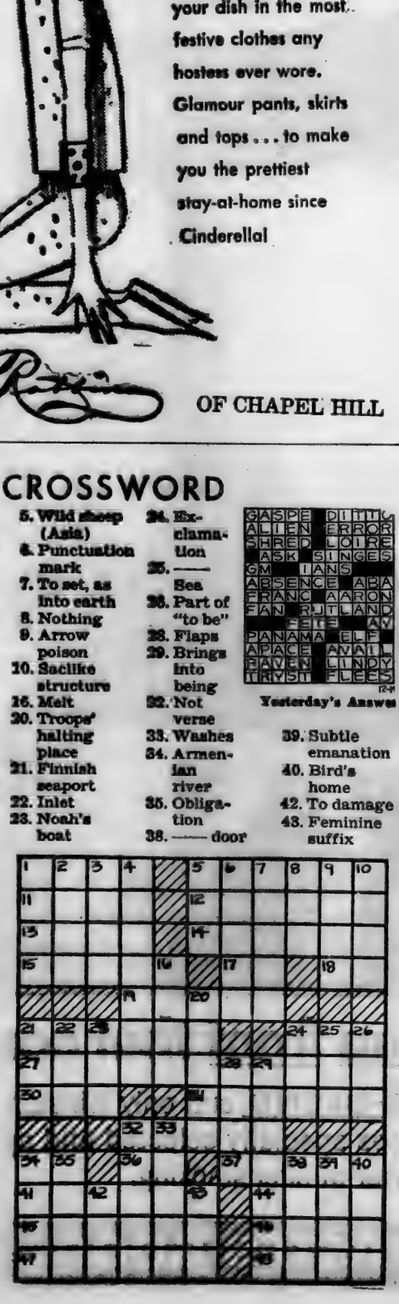
DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. To ooze
6. Picturesque
11. Golf ball (slang)
12. —— grits
13. Melody
14. Saunters
15. Respond
17. Pronoun
18. And (Lat.)
19. Forward
21. Mount near Persia
24. Constellation
27. An amateur ornithologist
30. Hardwood tree
31. Inauguration Day feature
32. West Point freshman
34. Paid notice
36. Sun god
37. The devil
41. Take away
44. Real
45. Degrades
46. Corn spikes
47. Emphasizes
48. Small quarrel

DOWN
1. To wrangle (colloq.)
2. Ireland (Gaelic)
3. Lamb's pseudonym
4. A penny
5. Wild sheep (Asia)
6. Punctuation mark
7. To set, as into earth
8. Nothing
9. Arrow poison
10. Sacklike structure
16. Melt
20. Troops' halting place
21. Finnish seaport
22. Inlet
23. Noah's boat
24. Exclamation
25. —— Sea
26. Part of "to be"
28. Flaps
29. Brings into being
32. Not verse
33. Washes
34. Armenian river
35. Obligation
38. —— door
39. Subtle emanation
40. Bird's home
42. To damage
43. Feminine suffix



Yesterday's Answer



STEVENS-SHEPHERD

HOLIDAY HOUSE

A Store Full of Fabulous Gift Suggestions for Her, for Him — for Everyone:

Gifts for Her!

6-ft. U.N.C. Wool Mufflers $5.95
Hip-Stitch Worsted Skirts 11.95
Jayson Classic Oxford Blouses ... 4.00
Alan Paine Shetland Cardigans .. 11.95
Adler Wool Athletic Socks 1.00

Gifts for Him!

"V"-Neck Lambswool Sweater .. 13.95
Imported Velour Tyrolean Hats . 10.95
Black Umbrellas—Imp. Handles 5.00 up
Button-Down Oxford Dress Shirts . 5.00
English Leather Cosmetics for Men ..... 1.00 up
Prince Gardner Billfolds and Key Cases ..... 2.95 and up
3-Piece, Antique Harness Leather Belts 3.95

Gifts for Everyone!

Kiwi Shoe Shine Kits 3.95
Convertible Travel Bar Set 23.95
Comical Party Napkins & Signs .. 1.00
Suede & Plaid Bottle Guards ... 6.00
"Hot-Rod" Immersion Heaters .. 2.50
Plastic, Thermo-Insulated Ice Buckets 6.95
Map Measure & Compass Guide . 2.50

... These and hundreds of other different & distinctive gifts

STEVENS-SHEPHERD

Come See, Save On Canadian Balsam

Christmas Trees

3 to 4 FT. TREE 79¢ — 5 to 6 FT. TREE $1.19 — 7 to 8 FT. TREE $2.39

Buy This Outstanding Value! Midget Twinkle
CHRISTMAS LIGHT SET 24 Lite Set $2.29

A&P

North Star Adjustable
TREE STANDS each 79c

Spray Type
AERO SNOW can 79c

Charm Christmas
CARDS 20-Ct. Package 39c

Cleo Brand—6 Roll Assorted Colors
GIFT WRAP ENSEMBLE ONLY 99c

No. 701 12-Roll Holly Tie—Assorted
RIBBONS • 3 Widths • 8 Colors Each Box 98c

Jane Parker, America's Favorite
FRUIT CAKE
1½-Lb. CAKE $1.49 — 3-Lb. CAKE $2.89 — 5-Lb. CAKE $3.99

BABY SUSAN SOFT
Vinyl Dolls Each $3.98

Come See Our Christmas Candy Display—Worthmore
CREAM DROPS 11-OZ. PKG. 29c

Come! Save On New Crop Nuts, Large
WALNUTS POLISH ENGLISH I-LB. BAG 53c

Allgood Brand—Smoked Flavored—Sliced
BACON FULL POUND PACKAGE 39c

PRICES IN THIS AD ARE EFFECTIVE THROUGH SATURDAY, DECEMBER 16TH

Chakravarty Describes Tagore's International Appeal At Centenary Celebration For Poet

UNC Tagore Group Honors Indian Poet

The international significance of the works and ideas of Nobel Prize winner Rabindranath Tagore was the theme developed by Dr. Amiya Chakravarty, his literary secretary from 1926 to 1933, at the first of two weekend "Tagore Celebrations" to be held here. 1961 marks the centenary of the birth of Tagore.

"The source of his internationalism," the Indian speaker said, "lay in his gift as a poet to realize the nature of humanity and his ability to implement the East-West relationship—not only because of political, but also deep spiritual, similarity."

"Today there is much talk about . . . the dissimilar way of life of East and West," he said, "but what is most often missed is that in modern India there is already remarkable similarity between the two cultures."

Society Founded

Dr. Chakravarty, now a professor of comparative Oriental religions and literature at Boston University, addressed his comments to more than 100 people meeting recently in the library assembly room. The Tagore Society was founded here last spring.

The Hindu poet, philosopher and mystic was born in Calcutta 100 years ago, a distinction shared with Motilal Nehru. Tagore received the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1913.

"Both Tagore and Gandhi," Chakravarty said, "were firmly united in their belief that the future of India depended on her capacity to develop deep and continuous links with the western world.

"Despite minor differences in opinion," he said, "Tagore and Gandhi struggled to maintain, and even deepen, Indian cultural, economic, and political links with the western world."

"A sharing, a willingness to give and receive—these," he said, "have brought us to the present day—not the power of guns."

"Because of their lead (Gandhi and Tagore), India was able to avoid a crisis (such as exists in China today).

"We believe," Dr. Chakravarty continued, "that Prime Minister Nehru, who himself was schooled in the teachings of these men, has maintained this spirit of positive acceptance, rather than rejection, of western relationship."

"East-West Bridge"

"The translations of Tagore's work have been a bridge between East-West understanding," he said.

The Indian speaker said that Tagore believed the coming together of man in a modern age was fact. "As with India so with the western world, Tagore believed. Today belongs to those who live through violence and power; tomorrow the world will belong to those who have seen the darkness but envision the dawn."

Reviewing Tagore's life, Dr. Chakravarty discussed Visva-Bharati, the international school at Santiniketan, 93 miles from Calcutta, which Tagore founded at the age of 40 and to which he devoted his life. Tagore died in 1941, still strong in his belief in the freedom and dignity of the Indian and people the world over.

Tagore Officers

Kenan Professor Werner P. Friedrich is president of the Tagore Society at UNC. Vice-Presidents are Kenan Professor Urban T. Holmes, and Dr. Jerrold Orne. Dr. J. N. Srivastava and B. N. Mukerji serve as Secretary I and II. Treasurer is G. S. Mudholkar. The Society has 35 members.

On Monday, December 11, the second "Tagore celebration" was held. "The World of Tagore: in Poem and Song" was its title. The program included readings by J. S. Nagelschmidt, Edward Danziger, Foster Fitz-Simons, Somesh Das Gupta, Lucile Joyner, Gwen Sides and Bani Roy.

Vocal renditions by Ranjan Borra, Biman Das, and Bamila Deshpande, also were featured, along with a series of classical Indian dances by Jenny Ball.

TAGORE—Dr. Amiya Chakravarty of Boston University, a noted Indian interpreter of East-West relations, addresses an audience of more than 100 at a weekend "Tagore Celebration" at Chapel Hill. Tagore, 1913 winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature, was born 100 years ago. Dr. Chakravarty was an intimate friend of Mahatma Gandi, a secretary to Tagore, and has visited Albert Schweitzer and Boris Pasternak.

Two UNC Sociologists Present Joint Paper At New York Meet

Two Carolina sociologists will present a joint paper at the meeting of the American Statistical Association to be held in New York, December 27-30.

Drs. Daniel O. Price and Ruth Searles of the Institute for Research in Social Science and the Department of Sociology and Anthropology will present a paper entitled "Some Effects of Interviewer-Respondent Interaction on Responses in a Survey Situation."

A native of Florida, Dr. Price is director and research professor of the University Social Science Research Institute, and professor in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology. He attended Florida Southern College where he received a B.S. degree in mathematics. He received a M.A. degree and a Ph.D. degree in sociology at UNC.

Textbook Editor

Dr. Price has published numerous articles on migration, demography and statistics. He is co-author with Dr. M. J. Hagood of a statistics textbook which has been published in Spanish and, in part, in German.

Among the many professional societies of which Dr. Price is a member are the American Statistical Association, the American Sociological Society, the International Union for the Scientific Study of Population, and the Sociological Research Association.

Currently, Dr. Price is conducting research on a study of the federal Aid to Dependent Children Program.

Dr. Ruth Searles is assistant director of the IRSS and an assistant professor in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology. She is a native of Toledo, Ohio, and attended Oberlin College, where she received a B.A. degree, and the University of Michigan where she received a M.A. and a Ph.D. degree. Before joining the staff of the University of North Carolina in 1959, Dr. Searles was the assistant study director of the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan.

Dr. Searles' research areas and teaching specialties are in survey methods, adult socialization, and interaction in the interview situation.

Congo May Lead To Allied Discord On UN Questions

By PHIL NEWSOM

(UPI Foreign News Analyst)

Like a stone dropped into a pond, the widening ripples from the United Nations Katanga venture have produced discords among allies and aroused serious doubts about the wisdom of the decision which sent U.N. troops into the Congo province in the first place.

Contributing to both was a sense of frustration arising from the fact that after 17 months and a succession of crises, the Congo conflict appeared no nearer a solution.

Other factors contributed.

One was the obvious hostility to the U.N. forces among both the black and white populations of Elisabethville, capital of Katanga and center of U.N. operations.

Another was the suspicion that the United Nations was attempting to force a political decision on Katanga, thus exceeding its mission.

Tshombe Opposes Reds

A third was sympathy for Moise Tshombe, secessionist president of Katanga who has been among the more militantly anti-Communist leaders in black Africa.

Contributing further to the doubts were reports that U.N. forces were proving themselves just as trigger-happy as Africans and that until their arrival Elisabethville had been about the most peaceful place in the Congo.

Tshombe proclaimed the independence of Katanga on July 11, 1960, 11 days after the Congo received its independence from Belgium. On the following day, answering a plea from Congo President Patrice Lumumba, the U.N. Security Council authorized the sending of troops to the Congo to re-establish peace and unity.

This established the pattern for subsequent events in which the U.N. sought to establish a strong central government in Leopoldville while at the same time dealing with other secessionist movements in Kasai and Oriental provinces.

What Tshombe had that the others did not were the strong financial resources which normally supplied the Congo with half its tax resources.

This came from uranium, copper, tin and gold in which Katanga abounds and which is dominated by the powerful Belgian mining company Union Miniere.

Despite the violence swirling around it, the company last year was able to turn in a profit of nearly $50 million and should do as well this year.

Xmas Xpress

(Continued from Page 1)

181, leaving after Saturday 1 p.m.

ASHEVILLE — Leaving on Dec. 16. Contact Betsy Parker, 110 McIver, 968-9148.

WANTS RIDERS BACK

FROM CHATTANOOGA, TENN. —For two people after Christmas, Harry Batchelor, 942-1725.

WANT RIDERS

MERIDEN, Conn. — Via NEW YORK CITY, four riders, leaving Monday, December 18, call Peter Ford, 968-2441, 6-7 p.m., will divide expenses.

ATLANTA — Leaving December 16, call J. M. Womack, 325 Teague, 968-9157.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (and en Route)—Leaving December 15 or 16, contact Fran Stallings, 310 Connor or 23 New East Annex.

AUGUSTA OR COLUMBUS, GA. —One rider, leaving Thursday, December 14, Beverly Bernier, 968-9168, share expenses.

CHICAGO or Vicinity — Contact Buddy Broome, 140 Cobb, 968-9092.

ARLINGTON, Va. — John Jennich wants riders. He will leave ec. 16; will charge $4 per trip. all Theta Chi house, 968-9123.

STAMFORD, Conn. — Mike Bell ants two riders, leaving Monday, Dec. 18. Call 968-9173, 220 Connor.

NEW YORK—Tim Tetlow wants ne rider, to pay $5 each way. Leaving noon Friday. Call 968-2338.

ATLANTA — Leaving Dec. 16, contact Jeff Weadkins, 328 Phillips Hall.

NEW YORK or BROOKLYN — Leaving Dec. 15. Contact Gene Rice, 301 Aycock.

DALLAS, TUCSON, or LOS ANGELES—Want two riders, leaving Saturday, Dec. 16, after 3 p.m. Elliott Schneider, TEP House, 968-9007.

Junior Year in New York

An unusual one-year college program.

Write for brochure to:

Junior Year Program
New York University
New York 3, N. Y.

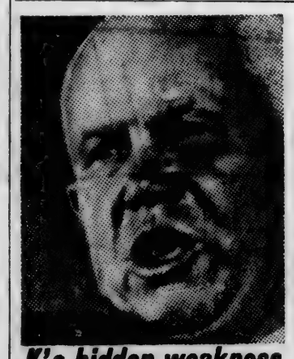
Sheraton Hotels Student-Faculty Discounts Heap fine news for smart Buck*

Students, faculty and other members of college tribe get plenty good service at plenty low rates. All because Sheraton's special rates help Buck travel very long way. If you're hunting for travel bargains — you'll find Sheraton Hotels the best place to stay.

Generous group rates arranged for teams, clubs and other college groups on the move.

Get these discounts at any of Sheraton's 61 hotels in the U.S.A., Hawaii and Canada by presenting a Sheraton Card. To get a Sheraton I.D. Card or Faculty Guest Card with credit privileges, write us. Please state where you are a full time faculty member or student.

Mr. Patrick Green
College Relations Dept.
Sheraton Corperation
470 Atlantic Avenue
Boston 10, Mass.



K's hidden weakness

Khrushchev is strong, says Stewart Alsop. But he has one great weakness. And he knows it. In this week's Saturday Evening Post, you'll read why the satellite nations are giving Kremlin big shots the jitters.

SPECIAL: 1962 CALENDAR PAGES
Dec. 16 issue now on sale.

The Saturday Evening POST

CLASSIFIED ADS

DOES SECURITY MAKE SENSE to the young man who wants success? Let a Northwestern Mutual agent show you how to gain security through an Insured Savings Program. Arthur DeBerry Jr., C.L.U. Telephone 942-6966.

KEMP'S Loose Diamond System

BUY YOUR DIAMOND THE WAY WE DO!

Pick Your LOOSE DIAMOND And Let Us Mount It In Mounting Of Your Choice.

T. L. KEMP Jewelry

135 E. Franklin St. Ph. 942-1331

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST

Season of Passion

(Formerly "SUMMER OF THE 17th DOLL")

Starring
ERNEST BORGNINE · ANNE BAXTER · JOHN MILLS · ANGELA LANSBURY

Released thru United Artists

THE BLISTERING INTERNATIONAL STAGE SUCCESS IS EVEN MORE EXCITING ON THE SCREEN!

Be an Angel...

Give her Heaven Sent Mist by Helena Rubinstein*

only 200

How heavenly can a Christmas gift be? Give her long-lasting Heaven Sent* Mist and see! A touch of her fingertip . . . and a mist of enchantment is in the air all around her. Mysteriously, the bewitching scent of flowers and spice lingers on . . . and on. A simply celestial gift idea. Only the price is down to earth! 1¾ oz. 2.00, 3 oz. 3.00. Eau de Parfum Mist in cut "crystal" bottle also in Helena Rubinstein's beloved White Magnolia.* Command Performance* at 2.25 and 3.50. Available, too, in the purse-size Perfume Spray. Prices plus tax.

A gift to you from Helena Rubinstein . . . Sparkling floral gift wrap.*

Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.

The Prettiest Christmas Wrapping in Town comes Free with Books from The Intimate

An invitation to shape your own future...

At General Telephone your starting point is on the job. Because we consider on-the-job training the best method available for the development of professional skills and talent.

Equal consideration is given to your interests and attributes. In accordance with the direction in which you wish to point your future, unusual opportunities are open to you in Engineering and Technical Activities, Business Administration, Accounting and Data Processing, or in Public and Customer Relations.

Whichever direction you may take, on-the-job training is supplemented by formal training courses and rotational assignments.

As a major communications company in a growing field, General Telephone has an ever-increasing need for men to assume positions of management throughout its system in 31 states. In consequence, we offer you every opportunity to shape your own future.

Your Placement Director has copies of our brochure on Management Careers that covers the opportunities at General Telephone in more detail. Ask him for one.

Employment Opportunities:

The General Telephone Company of No. Car. has many employment opportunities for college-trained people. Contact your Placement Office for full information.

GENERAL TELEPHONE

America's Largest Independent Telephone System

Mann And Lea Each Capture Two Firsts

Blue Dolphins Sink Duke Swimmers, 64-27

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Romping to eight first places, the Carolina swimming team posted its third straight victory of the young season yesterday by scoring a methodical 64-27 win over visiting Duke in Bowman Gray Pool.

Coach Pat Earey's splashers, paced by fabulous sophomore Thompson Mann and Frank Lea, who both copped two first places, never left the outcome in doubt, as they won the first four events by considerable margins.

UNC's crack 440-yard medley relay team started the Blue Dolphins on their way. Mann, swimming his backstroke specialty, co-captain breaststroker Bob Briggs, butterflyman Barry King, and freestyler Bryan Williams splashed to a 4:04.4 time, far under the 3:26.5 record set last year by UNC, but nevertheless enough to win.

Lea then took the first of his two victories, floating to a 2:18.2 win in the 200-yard freestyle. Carolina's Hank Mummaw finished second to Lea, and the rout was on.

Jim Huffman and Don Murray staged a two man show in the next event—the 50 yard free style—Huffman taking it in 23.9 to give the Tar Heels a 23-2 lead.

Mann Takes Medley

Coach Earey then pulled a surprise move by inserting his ace Mann into the individual medley—the most gruelling of all swimming races. The native of Hickory, Va., who last year set an NCAA freshman record of 56.6 in the 100-yard backstroke, responded brilliantly by romping to an easy 2:13.8 victory.

To the disappointment of the large crowd, the diving event was forfeited by Carolina, when Doug Fambrough failed to show up and Sandy Patterson was held out because of his questionable eligibility. Patterson had sent his eligibility papers to the ACC only Tuesday and Earey took no chances on the junior from Raleigh.

This forfeiture cut the Carolina lead to 29-10 but the Tar Heels came right back in the 220-yard butterfly as King and Joe Mummaw placed 1-2. King's time was 2:24.7. Duke then won its only individual event of the afternoon as the Blue Devils' Dave Goodner, who had finished second to Mann in the medley, grabbed a first in the 100-yard freestyle, with a time of 53.7. Murray of the Tar Heels finished second.

Carolina completed the mass "dunking" by placing 1-2 in the next three races. In the 220-yard backstroke—an event "automatically" conceded to the tankers this year by their opponents. Mann won going away in 2:08.8. The closest competitor was his teammate Huffman, who finished a lap behind.

Lea, a junior from Norfolk, Va., then completed his "double" by splashing to a 5:10 victory in the long 440-yard freestyle event. He was followed over the line by junior Jon Weber.

Griggs Wins Breastroke

Earey's boys saved their finest effort for the final individual event of the day—the 220-yard breaststroke. Co-captain Briggs and sophomore Peter Swift staged a brilliant duel, with Briggs winning the race, which brought the crowd to its feet for the first and only time of the day. Briggs was clocked in 2:37.5.

At this point the Tar Heels held their biggest lead 64-20 with only the 400-yard freestyle medley remaining. However, Duke coach Jack Persons' swimmers were not to be denied and they took home some consolation by just nipping Carolina in the race's last lap. Jerry Busch, Bob Kingsbury, John Tausid, and Goodner, were timed in 3:40.7.

Earey's undefeated tankmen have one meet remaining before the holiday recess. That will be tomorrow night when they travel to Greenville to face East Carolina College. The Tar Heels' next home encounter is with the same East Carolina team on Thursday night, January 18.

Hudock, McSweeney Lead UNC Shooters

By ED DUPREE

UNC's once-beaten basketballers are hitting a a cool .459 from the floor in their contests against Virginia, Clemson, and Indiana, while holding their three opponents to a .382 percentage.

The Tar Heels, sparked by Bryan McSweeney's 14 for 26 and .538 percentage and Jim Hudock's 16 for 31 and .516, have connected on 69 of their 151 shots.

Hudock Averaging 15

Hudock's 15-point average is tops on the club, but McSweeney is right behind with 14.3. The guards, Larry Brown and Donnie Walsh, are averaging 12.7 and 11 points, respectively. Brown has made good on 11 of his 26 shots, Walsh on 11 of 25.

Mike Cooke, the team's number six man, is fifth in scoring and fourth in field goal percentage. His 10 baskets in 23 attempts give him a 8.3 scoring mark and a .435 mark from the floor.

Dieter Krause, the fifth starter, is averaging 6 points a game and has hauled down 11 rebounds.

Two Tough On Foul Line

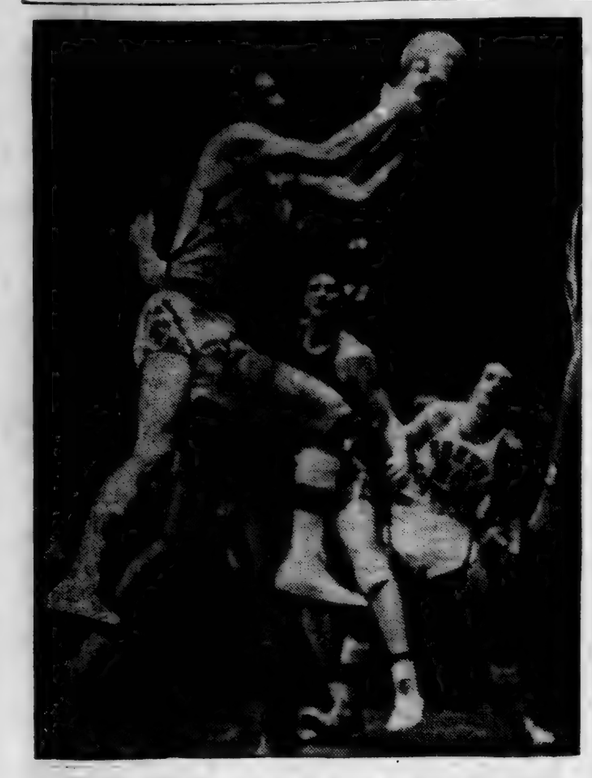
Brown and McSweeney are waging a close battle for free throw honors. Brown has missed only 2 of 18 attempts for a .889 mark on the foul line. McSweeney is close behind with a .882 percentage, connecting on 15 of 17 charity tosses.

The Tar Heels, oddly enough, have the same percentage from the foul line as their opponents, .647. The opposing clubs have hit on 44 of 68 free shots, while the Blue and White has sunk 66 in 102 tries.

Top rebounder is Hudock, who has snared 33 rebounds off the boards. McSweeney, near the top in every category.

Carolina

NOW PLAYING



DIETER KRAUSE drives in for lay-up in Monday night's cage battle with Indiana. The Hoosier defender seems ready to take the ball away from the Carolina forward, but Krause got the shot off. (Photo by Jim Wallace).

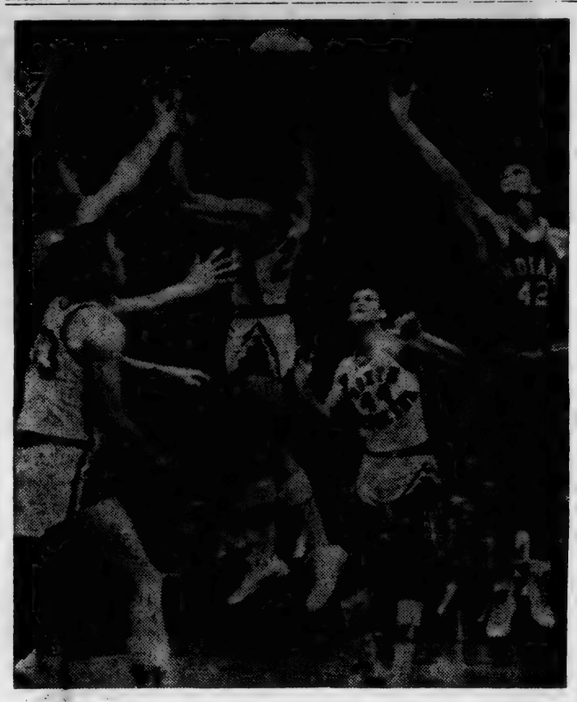
Town Touts And Phi Delts Advance To Cage Finals

The Phi Delt Owls pulled out a 46-45 victory over the Ruffin Rutes in the final seconds of play Tuesday, and thus advanced themselves into the Grail Mural Holiday Basketball Festival finals, played late yesterday. Their opponents were the Town Touts, who posted a 41-38 win over the Sigma Nu Blue in the other semi-finals clash.

Bill Hubbard pumped in 19 points to pace the Owls to their thrilling, but controversial, victory. Ruffin registered a protest, which was valid except that it was not filed at the proper time. The leading scorer for the Rutes was George Lockhart with 16. Jerry Evans of the Owls also hit in the double figures, scoring 12.

The Touts were led by John Hickey, who netted 17 points. The Sigma Nu attack was headed by Jerry Rucker with 12 and Gene Howden with 11.

Scores of Monday's quarterfinals were: Phi Delt Owls 32, Alexander 26; Ruffin Rutes 20, AK Psi Runts 17; Sigma Nu Blue 22, Cobb Squirrel Shooters 20; Town Touts 34, Phi Kappa Sig Fearsome Five 29 (overtime). Monday's high scorer was Dave Murr of the Town Touts with 21 points.



INDIANA'S HOOSIERS out-rebounded UNC Monday as they edged the Tar Heels, 76-70, but Mike Cooke got this one away from big Winston Fairfield. Jim Hudock, Bryan McSweeney, and Indiana's Hall look on. (Photo by Jim Wallace.)

Senior Footballers Edge Juniors In Junior Classic Basketball Comedy

Football players were in uniform Tuesday night for the Junior Basketball Classic, but the uniforms varied from the red Jersies, bras, and bonnetts sported by the junior gridders to the overalls donned by senior footballer Ward Marslender.

The game was basketball, but holding penalties, blocking, scrambles for fumbles turned Woollen Gym's court into a wooden gridiron.

Yet, many of the players provided the spectators with more than laughs, and showed why they were both football and basketball stars in their high school days. One of these was Marslender, a scholastic senior with another year of football eligibility remaining. Marslender led his team in scoring with 12 points, hitting consistently on long set shots.

The game, incidentally, was won by the seniors, the score being 33-31, or 32-28 as the scoreboard read, or something like that. The fourth-year men had to overcome a 23-15 halftime advantage, which the juniors had built up, to take the victory.

The game was played in two halves, the first one lasting 20 minutes and the last one only 10. This gave 'emcee" John Hegarty better than 45 minutes to amuse the fans with his play-by-play account, jokes, cuts, and what-not.

The juniors, prettied up with lipstick and rouge, in addition to their assorted costumes, fell behind 4-0, but shed their accessories and rolled up 13 straight points before the seniors scored again. With Junior Edge and Gene "Ain't She built" Sigmon leading the way, the juniors pushed their lead to 21-7 late in the first half. At this point, two buckets by Marslender and one each by Gib Carson and Jim LeCompte closed the score to 23-15 at halftime.

The seniors continued to close the gap and took the lead. But the Juniors roared back and when Sigmon dropped in a two-pointer to give the juniors a 31-29 lead, Hegarty broke up the minute amount of tension which existed when he reminded the crowd that "34 seconds remain in this cliff-hanger".

Lennie Beck and Ray Farris each hit on two foul shots in the last half minute to give the seniors the narrow victory.

Edge sparked the juniors with 12 points to match Marslender's production. Carson tallied 8 for the seniors and Sigmon accounted for 7 for the juniors.

Other senior scoring was: LeCompte 4, Beck 4, Farris 3, and Spainhour 2. For the juniors, Dunham scored 6, while Boutselis, Addison, and Duff Greene had 2 each.

The seniors, who marched on to the court gaily puffing away at cigars were bolstered by Conrad Sloop, George Knox and Gary Truver. Jue Robinson and Tony Hennessey were other junior team members, although Hennessey didn't show up for the contest as Hegarty put it: "due to unforeseen circumstances."

Rosy's Champs Top Duke Stars, 92-87

Lennie Rosenbluth's "Carolina Champions" came from behind to trim the Duke All-Stars, 92-7, in the feature game of the second annual Junior Basketball Classic Tuesday night.

The contest, a fund-raising project for the junior class, seesawed back and forth and it took a three-point play in the last minute by Ray Stanley to wrap the victory up for the ex-Tar Heel stars.

Stanley, a starter on the 1960 UNC squad which compiled an 18-6 mark, was high scorer for the Champs with 25. Doug Moe, one of Carolina's two All-Americans last season, dropped in 19 markers.

Hurt Top Scorer

Howard Hurt, a Blue Devil starter for three straight seasons, led both teams with 31 points. Hurt was true on 12 shots from the floor, but his performance was overshadowed by the balanced scoring of the Champs.

Moe dropped in a free throw to give the Champions a short-lived 1-0 lead, but the smaller All-Stars, sparked by the brilliant play of Hurt and Jay Beal, a guard who never started with Duke, ran up a 28-17 lead. Tony Radovich and Moe combined for five quick points to narrow the All-Star lead to six, but Beal connected again to make it 30-22.

A field goal by Radovich, foul shot by Moe, and two-pointers from Rosenbluth and Stanley closed the lead to one, and a minute later Stanley connected again — after Furin had tossed in a free throw for the All-Stars—and the score was knotted at 31-31.

The All-Stars moved ahead again, 35-31, and it was not until the closing minutes of the half when Stanley poured in another field goal that the Champs grabbed the lead for keeps. Rosenbluth's crew held a 42-37 advantage at halftime.

Big Lead Vanishes

Midway of the second half the Champions had built up a 16-point lead, but the scrappy All-Stars quickly began to chop away at the 79-63 margin. Two buckets by Hurt and one by Furin narrowed the lead to ten and with 2:47 to go in the game, Hurt sank a pair of foul shots to close the gap to 84-81, but that was as close as the Stars were to come.

Five players hit double figures for the Champs. After Stanley and Moe, Danny Lotz and Rosenbluth tallied 16 each, and Radovich accounted for 12. Al Long added four to the Champs' total and Joe Quigg, the starting center, failed to score.

The "almost non-partisan" Woollen Gym crowd cheered the good plays, more so than their favorite basketballers, and the sparkling play of Hurt and Beal gave them plenty to yell about.

Frosh Swimmers Open Season With Win Over ECC

UNC's freshman swimming team journeyed to Greenville Tuesday and opened their season on a successful note with a 61-31 victory over the East Carolina frosh.

Outstanding performances for the Tar Heel frosh were turned in by Dave Roberts in the 400-yard medley relay, Harrison Merrill in the 220-yard freestyle, Dave Hall in the 200-yard individual medley, Dick Woodrow in both the 100-yard and 50-yard freestyle events, and Ernie Oare in the diving competition.

Yearling Coach Vin Simonton feels that his team has great potential. "With a little hard work, this year's team could be the best frosh team Carolina has produced in quite a while," the ex-UNC swimmer said.

The frosh do not swim again until they travel to Staunton, Va., on January 20, to tangle with Staunton Military Academy's swimmers. The highlight of the season will be the freshman invitational meet in February.

THE HUB

Featuring "Botany 500" and Many Other Fine Name Brands.

Shop with friends at your store of quality, where Ivy League style and traditional fashion are a by-word. Everything in clothing and accessories for students and young executives alike, styled for you at a fair price.

CHARGE ACCTS. INVITED

THE HUB of Chapel Hill

103 E. Franklin St. Ph. 942-1252

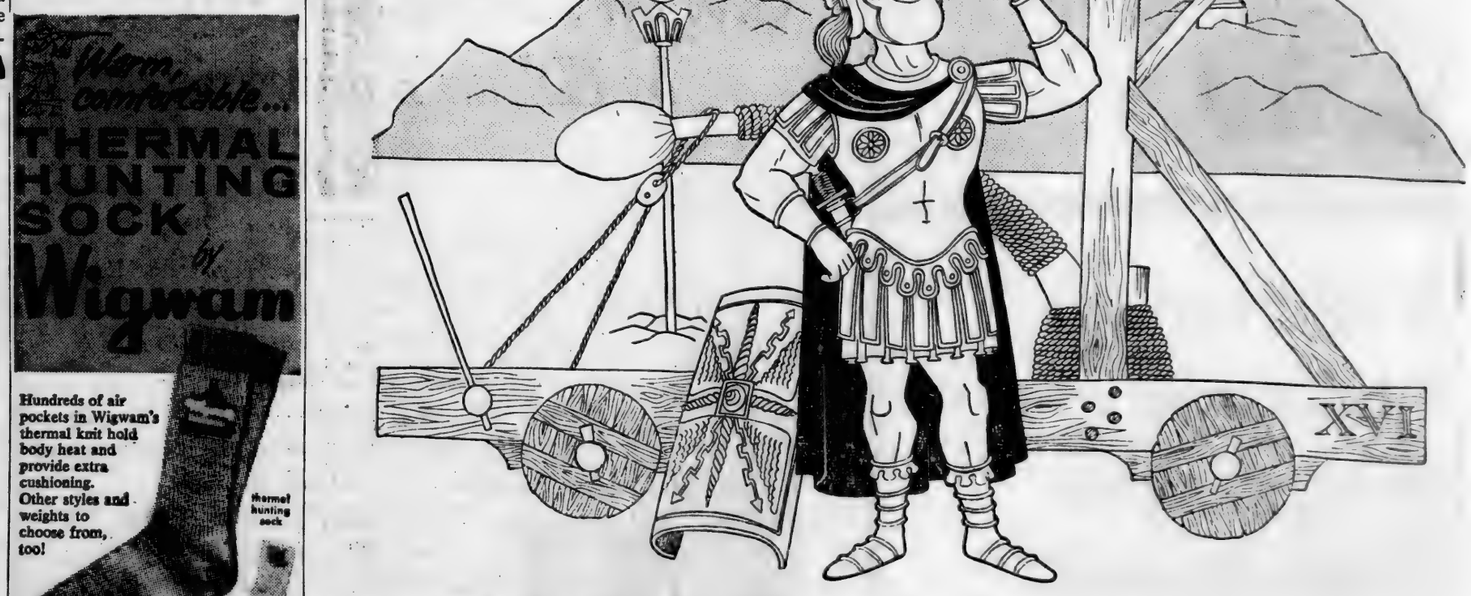
contemporary jewelry handwrought

christmas shopping???

the only—but only place for the individualistic, the imaginative, the incomparable—

charles hopkins of Chapel Hill

designer/crafstman (over sutton's)

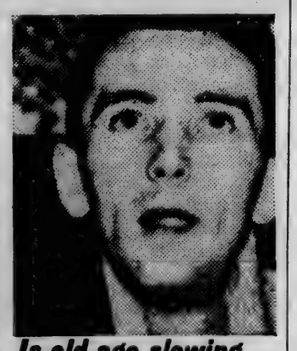


"Tareyton's Dual Filter in duas partes divisa est!"

says Lucius (Dead-eye) Claudius, crack marksman of the XVI Cohort catapult team. "People come from Nero and far for Tareyton," says Dead-eye. "Vero, Tareyton's one filter cigarette that really delivers de gustibus. Try a pack and see why the whole gang in the cohort is forum."

DUAL FILTER Tareyton

Product of The American Tobacco Company — "Tobacco is our middle name" ©A.T.Co.



Is old age slowing up the Celtics? Bob Cousy is 33. Teammate Carl Braun is even older. Will old age put an end to the Boston Celtics' winning streak? Coach Red Auerbach reports in this week's Saturday Evening Post.

SPECIAL: 1962 CALENDAR PAGES Dec. 16 issue now on sale. The Saturday Evening POST

Don't Spend Money on Expensive Cards Until You've Seen the FIVE CENTS CARDS at the Intimate

Hundreds of air pockets in Wigwam's thermal knit hold body heat and provide extra cushioning. Other styles and weights to choose from, too!

The Sport Shop

"It Pays to Play"

151 E. Franklin St.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

64

Propaganda Move

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather

Fair and colder. High, mid, and upper thirties.

Offices in Graham Memorial | FRIDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1961 | Complete UPI Wire Servic

IN NEW YORK

Aycock Pays Tribute To Dr. Frank

A speech by William B. Aycock, prepared for delivery tonight at a dinner honoring Frank P. Graham in New York City.

"A MAN AND HIS CAMPUS"

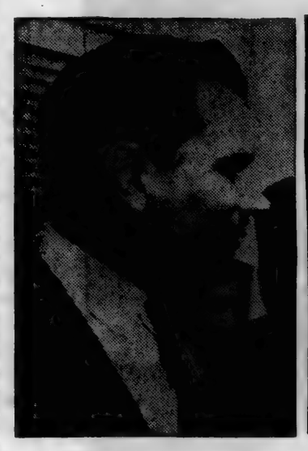
It is a rare privilege to be permitted to speak for the University family about its dearest and noblest son. My thoughts of Dr. Frank occur in the context of the man and his campus. The word "campus" usually connotes an area susceptible to precise definition. But to Dr. Frank the physical size of the forum is not the important thing. Whether he is in a classroom, in South Building, on the floor of the United States Senate, in Alaska or Indonesia, India, or Pakistan, or in the office building of the United Nations, he is a mighty force in action. At the same time, the qualities of kindness, consideration, gentleness, understanding and quiet vigor are evident. Always his vision transcends the geographical boundaries within which he works and lives. Within the walls of a classroom he has lifted the facts of history from textbooks and translated them into vivid patterns reflecting influential developments in the experience of mankind. In South Building, across the street from the Old Well, his leadership was never fettered by the intricate problems of the consolidation of three separate institutions of higher learning, by the difficulties imposed on all educational institutions by the Great Depression or by the shocking tragedies inherent in World War II. His contributions to the University of North Carolina as student, teacher, administrator and alumnus will endure so long as we have a University.

Although in recent years Dr. Frank has served on a larger campus, his spirit remains with us in that environment of beauty known throughout the world as Chapel Hill. It is not a transitory spirit destined to dissipate in time, nor does it merely hover over those of us who came after him. Instead, it is a dynamic force in the life of those who constitute our University. To think of him, as we frequently do, reminds us of his teachings: that our institution was fathered by rebellion against oppression and mothered by a vision of freedom, and as an instrument of democracy the University must strive to be more than a seat of learning. To reflect merely the status quo, thereby endorsing all that we are and all which surrounds us—the shortcomings as well as the achievements—is not sufficient. To keep faith with our fathers we must keep faith with our youth by developing an institution which is, in fact, a citadel of truth. We must recognize that we entered the Nuclear Age long before we solved and resolved many complicated problems in human relationships which emerged from the Agricultural and Industrial Revolutions. Today, the urgent challenge to solve these problems exists among us, on the other side of the tracks and across the seas. And it undoubtedly awaits us on the moon. Consequently, the university must seek to become more and more a center of positive thought and action.

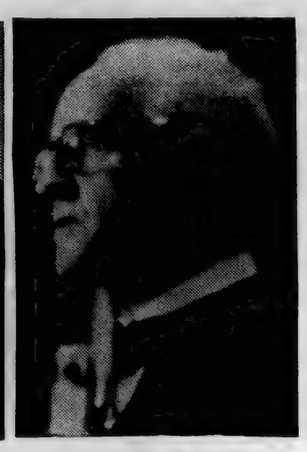
Dr. Graham has always preferred "booklines to breadlines" and "ballots to bullets" as the means for building a "nobler America in a freer and a fairer world." Be assured that those of us fortunate enough to be entrusted for the moment with the affairs of your University understand and appreciate the enormous intellectual and moral capital which was created during the fruitful but difficult years during which he provided the leadership which transformed a good institution into one which became known and highly regarded throughout this and other lands. No higher mission for the University can be expressed than for us to endeavor to produce more leaders in the mold of Dr. Frank.

Often we express our wish that Dr. Frank could return to his campus in Chapel Hill. Chancellor House put it this way: "We love each other better and the place just seems to go better when he is around." But so it is wherever he is. Perhaps we should understand that in the most vital sense he has not left us. He shall always remain wherever he has been.

Some day the dove of peace will be launched into its eternal orbit. Whenever this may be, the man whom we honor this night will be on hand to mark its flight. Some day the University of North Carolina in matters fundamental — truth, mercy, justice, and creativity (values not directly dependent on material wealth)—will become the greatest in the land, and wherever Dr. Frank may be—he will nevertheless be present during each difficult but glorious step of the way.



W. B. Aycock



Dr. Graham

New Opposition Joins Struggle Against Power Line Location

Is there no place for a power line to hide?

Duke Power Co. must be asking itself this question as new resistance arose Monday to the construction of a new transmission south of Chapel Hill.

The new line will be used to supply the University with additional power and was originally planned to run through the Laurel Hill area and along Morgan Creek. Residents of this area protested that the line would lower property values and destroy the scenic beauty of the area. They proposed an alternate route that would run through the Mt. Carmel area, south of Morgan Creek.

Mt. Carmel Protests

Now the residents of Mt. Carmel have presented a petition to the Board of Aldermen which states that Mt. Carmel residents are "unalterably opposed" to running the power line through Mt. Carmel instead of Morgan Creek.

"We feel we have as much right to be heard as some of these people who have been raising their voices all summer," attorney John Manning said. "We object to the line being shoved out our way by the people who will benefit from it, the University."

Petitioners Want Hearing

Mr. Manning said Duke Power had conducted a "walking survey" of the Mt. Carmel area, not using the usual surveying instruments. He said if there was any consideration of putting the power line through the Mt. Carmel area, the petitioners wanted a hearing on the matter.

Duke Power Co. is now considering four alternate routes, including two proposed by Research Triangle Regional Planning Commission head Pierson Stewart.

The company, however, is still pressing condemnation proceedings against several property owners to obtain right-of-way for the power line through Morgan Creek.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Winston Churchill

U.S. Asks NATO Buildup

PARIS—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara told the North Atlantic Treaty Organization NATO Council Thursday that the United States has added "great muscle" to its conventional forces since the Berlin crisis and expects its NATO allies to do the same.

West Germany called for creation of a NATO nuclear striking force to counter the threat of an estimated 200 Russian medium-range rockets menacing Western Europe. The NATO Council agreed to give the request urgent consideration.

The council also heard a report by French Adm. Max Duguet, chairman of the NATO standing group in Washington, that Russia is likely to have "several hundred' 'intercontinental missiles by 1963 but that the United States will have even more.

McNamara told a closed session of the 15-nation alliance's foreign, defense, and finance ministers that the United States has matched its words with actions in the Berlin crisis.

He said the buildup of non-nuclear forces has increased the U. S. Army by more than 250,000 men in recent months and that an additional 50,000 troops have been sent to Europe to strengthen NATO's defenses along the Iron Curtain. The measures have cost the American taxpayers an additional $6 billion, he said.

★ ★ ★

U.N.-Congo Fighting Heavy

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, Congo—United Nations jets heavily attacked Katangese gendarmerie concentrations in Elisabethville Thursday and U.N. troops fought a series of battles on the outskirts of the city, U.N. and Katangese sources reported.

Swedish U.N. troops beat off a Katangese army mortar attack on a refugee camp outside Elisabethville where 35,000 to 40,000 Baluba tribesmen are huddled in filth and squalor, a Swedish spokesman said.

The spokesman said the Katangese killed 10 of the anti-Tshombe tribesmen and wounded 30, six of them seriously, before the Swedes attacked with about 30 hand grenades and halted the Katangese shelling. No Swedish casualties were reported.

The Katangese government said its troops beat off two massive U.N. attacks on the city stadium and the strategic railroad overpass near Elisabethville airport during the night and early morning. A spokesman said "our men fought like lions following the president's call to defend in a fight to the death every inch of ground and every house."

★ ★ ★

Dominican Police Crack Down

SANTO DOMINGO, D. R.—Police cracked down on roaming street gangs Thursday. Twenty-one men were taken before police court judges on vandalism charges stemming from disorders of the past two days, including attacks on the midtown American consulate, the sacking of the former Cuban Embassy and bearings of alleged "spies."

A police charge with clubs dispersed a mob of several hundred smashing and stripping a parked taxicab suspected of carrying "spies." The vandals fled with its spare tire, bumpers, jack and a bag of tools.

Soldiers returned to the downtown area for the first time in several days to reinforce police patrols. They rescued a man being chased by a mob as a "spy" before he was injured.

Mob wrath, directed against the American consulate in recent days on grounds it was issuing visas to government supporters, turned against the Guatemalan consulate on rumors that "spies" also were seeking exit papers there. Special guards were posted at the premises to prevent any repetition of the invasions in which vandals damaged the American office.

Indian Student Sees Kennedy In Washington

At the recent Foreign Students' Day, December 5, 1961, held in Washington, President Kennedy personally greeted each of the twenty representatives of the 57,000 foreign students in the U.S. this year.

Among the twenty, India was represented by Mr. Bishwa Nath Mukherjee, at present a candidate for the degree of Ph.D. in Psychology at UNC. His selection marks the first time that the foreign students at the University of North Carolina have been represented in this annual affair.

Kennedy Draws Laughter

President Kennedy spoke to each student individually and then addressed the group. He drew some amused laughter when he spoke of his guests as "future Prime Ministers." In his talk with Mr. Mukherjee, President Kennedy referred to his plan to visit India, and said he was looking forward to it with great pleasure. In his formal address, he remarked that the students represented "a great means of communication as well as advancing education."

Before becoming a student at the University in September, 1960, Mr. Mukherjee was a Counselor at the Educational and Vocational Guidance Bureau, Government of Bihar, Patna, India. He holds a Fulbright Travel Grant and a fellowship in the Psychometric Laboratory at the University of North Carolina.

New Civil Defense Program Stresses Community Shelter

Xmas Xpress

WANT RIDES

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. or 100-mile radius—Jimmy Burke, 304 Connor Hall, 968-9154.

PITTSBURGH — December 16, Charles Doty, Mangum, 968-9110.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—December 16, Thurman Smith, 320 Joyner, 968-9185.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX. or general vicinity—Charles H. Lincoln, 201 Avery, 968-9046, can leave December 16. Will share driving and expenses.

NEW ROCHELLE OR NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Rosalyn Post, December 16, 12 noon, 968-3886.

WESTPORT, CONN. or vicinity—Call Evan Harrar, 327 Avery, 968-9116. Would like to leave Friday, Dec. 15.

ARLINGTON, Va. — Leonard Rogers wants ride to Arlington, Washington, D. C. or near vicinity, leaving Dec. 16. Cali 968-9093 or go by 218 Cobb.

MIAMI, Fla.—Ruth Lebar and Vicki Lebar, share expenses, 942-8241.

MIDWEST (Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha, Neb.)—Sandy Hoffmann, share expenses, Smith Dorm, third floor, 968-9133.

DALLAS, TEX.—L. W. Lau, 176 Phillips Hall or call Physics Dept., share expenses.

WILLIAMSBURG or RICHMOND—Contact Charles Hobbs, 201 Ruffin, 968-9139; will share expenses.

NEW YORK CITY OR BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Ronnie Gabriel, Noon Friday or later, 408 Cobb, 968-9097, share expenses and driving.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — John Morene, December 16, share expenses, 215 Parker, 968-9140.

CINCINNATI, or Vicinity—Want to leave Dec. 15 or 16. Will share expenses, driving. Harve Harris, 968-5366.

ARLINGTON, VA. OR WASHINGTON, D. C. or Vicinity—Leonard Rogers, December 16, 218 Cobb, 968-9093.

FT. MYERS, FLA.—Tom Leanhardt, share expenses, 339 Cobb, 968-9145.

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. or NEW YORK CITY—Leaving Dec. 15. Call Ciaran Mercier, 207 Aycock, 968-9158.

ST. LOUIS, MO. or Vicinity — Dec. 15, 16, 17. Bill Weems, 310 Avery, 968-9029, share driving and expenses.

NEW YORK CITY — Dec. 16, Amnon Rapoport, III, Conor, 968-9155, share expenses.

NORFOLK, Va. — Judy Gray wants ride, leaving either Friday or Saturday. Call 968-9010, Nurses Dorm.

NEW MEXICO or Vicinity—Jim Carpenter, Box 4725, Duke Station, phone Durham 286-9230, wants a ride, leaving Dec. 20.

AUBURN, Ala., ATLANTA, Ga. r COLUMBUS, Ga. — Rick Edards, 308 Stacy Dorm, 968-9112, wants ride leaving after 12 noon aturday. Will share driving, expenses.

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Rudy Albert wants ride. 232 Teague, 968-181, leaving after Saturday 1 p.m.

ASHEVILLE — Leaving on Dec. 16. Contact Betsy Parker, 110 McIver, 968-9148.

WANTS RIDERS BACK

FROM CHATTANOOGA, TENN. —For two people after Christmas, Harry Batchelor, 942-1725.

WANT RIDERS

MERIDEN, Conn. — Via NEW YORK CITY, four riders, leaving Monday, December 18, call Peter Ford, 968-2441, 6-7 p.m., will divide expenses.

ATLANTA — Leaving December 16, call J. M. Womack, 325 Teague, 968-9157.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (and en Route)—Leaving December 15 or 16, contact Fran Stallings, 310 onnor or 23 New East Annex.

AUGUSTA OR COLUMBUS, GA. —One rider, leaving Thursday, December 14, Beverly Bernier, 968-9168, share expenses.

CHICAGO or Vicinity — Contact Buddy Broome, 140 Cobb, 968-9092.

ARLINGTON, Va. — John Jennich wants riders. He will leave ec. 16; will charge $4 per trip. all Theta Chi house, 968-9123.

STAMFORD, Conn. — Mike Bell ants two riders, leaving Monday, ec. 18. Call 968-9178, 220 Connor.

NEW YORK—Tim Tetlow wants ne rider, to pay $5 each way. Leaving noon Friday. Call 968-2338.

ATLANTA — Leaving Dec. 16, contact Jeff Weadkins, 328 Phillips Hall.

NEW YORK or BROOKLYN — Leaving Dec. 15. Contact Gene Rice, 301 Aycock.

DALLAS, TUCSON, or LOS ANGELES—Want two riders, leaving Saturday, Dec. 16, after 3 p.m. lliott Schneider, TEP House, 68-9007.

WANTS RIDE BACK

FROM TAMPA, Fla or vicinity any time near end of vacation. Call Chris Parsons, 942-1041.

JFK Administration Asks $700 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Kennedy administration today unveiled a $700 million civil defense program that includes funds for subsidizing construction of community fallout shelters in schools and hospitals.

Deputy Defense Secretary Roswell L. Gilpatric told a news conference the key feature of the new program was a plan to subsidize building of shelters aimed at protecting 20 million persons.

Federal funds would be available to public or private, nonprofit institutions engaged in health, education and welfare activities—primarily schools and hospitals.

Will Ask $700 Million

Gilpatric said President Kennedy will ask Congress in January for the funds to underwrite the program.

He said Kennedy's appropriations request will be in the neighborhood of $700 million, more than twice the civil defense budget for this year.

It was understood that substantially more than half of the $700 million would be earmarked for the shelter subsidy program.

Gilpatric said the federal grant would be something less than the actual cost of construction. Local agencies presumably would put up the rest.

The Defense Department already is engaged in surveying and marking improvised fallout shelters for 50 million persons—over one-fourth of the population. These shelters will be stocked with food, waer and radiological instruments

Capacity Standard

Gilpatric said the emphasis in the subsidy program would be on community shelters. Only those with space for 50 or more persons would be backed by federal funds.

He said subsidies are planned for both single and dual-purpose construction. A dual-purpose shelter might serve, for example, as parking space.

"An effective civil defense requires the participation of every citizen," Gilpatric said. "An individual must be able to look to some agency of his state or local government for advice and assistance on civil defense planning, just as he looks to them for police and fire protection."

Dean Describes UNC Committee On Civil Defense

By BILL WAUMETT

"We are neither inactive nor totally prepared," Dean of Student Affairs Charles Henderson said yesterday in regard to the work of the UNC Disaster Committee. The committee is responsible for planning for the protection of UNC students in case of atomic attack.

Present plans call for the use of the Library, Woollen Gym, the basements of various other buildings on campus, and possibly the first and second floors of dormitories as emergency shelters.

The committee is also considering the idea of constructing a multi-story parking building in the Bell Tower parking lot. The building could be used as a fallout shelter and would be large enough to hold the entire UNC population.

The parking building probably could not be finished before 1965, Dean Henderson said.

Gen. Van Fleet Praises Morale Of Reservists

WASHINGTON (U P I) — Gen. James A. Van Fleet told President Kennedy today that an inspection of six training camps convinced him that the morale of National Guardsmen and reservists recalled to duty was "magnificent."

Van Fleet relayed his impressions to newsmen after reporting to the President for about 45 minutes on his visits to the camps as a consultant to Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr.

The general, recalled from retirement to be a consultant on guerilla warfare and other training matters, said his one indelible impression was that morale among the mobilized reservists was extremely high.

"I found no shortage of equipment that affects present training," Van Fleet added.

He said published reports and assertions by congressmen that morale was low or equipment was short were based on complaints from a "rather insignificant group" of reservists.

"The spirit of the citizen soldiers in all the units and camps visited by me was magnificent," Van Fleet said.

DeBLASIO UGLY MAN

"Big Daddy" Joe DeBlasio is the ugliest man on campus, according to students who cast 2228 votes for him in the annual APO Ugly Man contest which ended last night.

Runners-up were "Jungle Jim," 1932; "Eye of Newt," 1087; and M. T. Graves, 1041.

Ex-Student Active In Demonstrations

By LINDA BISER

A former Carolina student, David Andrews, arrested in Washington, D. C. as he staged a kneel-in demonstration, was neither condoned nor condemned by his supervising commission meeting here Wednesday.

Andrews sought immediate release of Morton Sobell serving 30 years at Alcatraz for conviction of "conspiracy to commit espionage."

Andrews, director of the Methodist Student Center at Appalachian State Teachers College at Boone, was arrested on a technical charge requiring pickets to keep moving. He was later released.

Chairman of the Wesley Foundation Interconference Commission of Methodist Student Work, Dr. W. A. Kale, professor of theology at Duke University said the commission decided Andrews' action undertaken as an individual and not as a representative of church opinion, said Dr W. A. Kale, Chairman of the Wesley Foundation Interconference Commission of Methodist Student Work

"He didn't try to disguise that he was with the church, however," Kale said, "since he used the student center letterhead in his press releases."

15 Reasons For Sobell's Release

Andrews listed 15 reasons why he was convinced President Kennedy should release Morton Sobell. Mrs. Sobell and their son, Marko continued picketing after Andrews' arrest.

Andrews identified himself to newsmen as a Methodist minister. The commission reviewed Andrews' reasons for undertaking the non-violent action since he is presently a "minister-on-trial," a two-year period for all Methodist ministers before being fully admitted into the conference. A recommendation for Andrews must be made to the Board of Ministerial Training by the commission before his acceptance into the conference.

Was Wesley President At UNC

Twice president of Wesley Foundation at UNC, Andrews finished the then two-year school of medicine here in 1947 after receiving numerous awards in the sciences and humanities as an undergraduate at UNC. He graduated from Duke Divinity School in 1952 and served with the American Friends Service Committee until 1957. He taught English, biology and Bible at Friends Boarding School, Barnesville, Ohio before accepting the directorship of the Boone Methodist Student Center in 1960.

Other non-violent demonstrations made by Andrews included a four-day individual fast in the United Nations Mediation Room in opposition to nuclear bomb tests of all nations. On Hiroshima Day, August 6, 1957, he was one of 11 conscientious objectors who entered the main gate of the atomic bomb test area in Nevada in opposition to bomb tests and as an appeal for world disarmament. He also participated in a 100-mile walk from Philadelphia to the United Nations on behalf of world disarmament.

—Don't Quote Me—

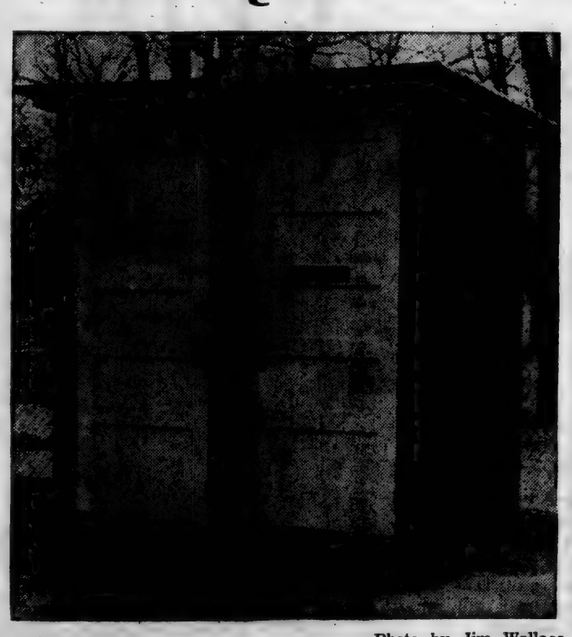


Photo by Jim Wallace

Scene Of A Sit-In?

Campus Briefs

Phi Beta Kappa Keys may be picked up by the December 5th initiates into the society at the society's office, 376 Phillips Hall.

Armstrong Circle Theater on Dec. 20th will feature a full length dramatization of marriage counseling as done by a marriage service agency. The show is titled "Battle of Hearts." CBS in this area is channel 11 or channel 2, Greensboro.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

December 15, 1961 Tel. 9422356 Vol. XLLX, No. 68

Propaganda Move

This week's Russian demand that the U. S. hand over Gen. Adolf Huesinger, once Operations Chief of the Nazi High Command and now chairman of NATO's standing committee in Washington, was laughed at by the State Department and recognized as exactly what it was: Crude and ludicrous propaganda.

But the damage has been done. The Soviet charge of war crimes leveled against Heusinger drew headlines all over the world and nurtured suspicion of NATO.

The charge, ridiculous though it is, provides an interesting example of the Soviet propaganda machine in action. It was coldly calculated and ingeniously devised.

1) It capitalized on the interest centering around the sentencing of Eichmann by recalling Heusinger's role as chief of military operations for the Third Reich.

2) It came just before the NATO council meetings which began Wednesday in Paris.

3) It added weight to Soviet charges that the NATO alliance is a threat to peace in Europe.

It is patently obvious that the U. S. has no intention of turning Heusinger over to the Soviets for trial on war crimes charges that include murder. No one knows this better than the Russians. Yet the request was lodged and had its effect, again underscoring the Russian ability to smear the West with brutal efficiency.

And the U. S. has yet to devise an effective method of combatting that ability.

The South's Search

"To live is to feel oneself lost—He who accepts it has already begun to find himself, to be on firm ground. Instinctively, as do the shipwrecked, he will look round for something to which to cling, and that tragic, ruthless glance, absolutely sincere, because it is a question of his salvation, will cause him to bring order into the chaos of his life. These are the only genuine ideas; the ideas of the shipwrecked."

—Ortega y Gasset

Modern-day searchers are still looking for solutions to their conflicts. They reach out for handy solutions—solutions which are easy to understand, easy to support, easy. But soon comes the day when their handy solutions are revealed as self-betrayals which lead to a deepening of the searchers' conflict.

The South is now celebrating the centennial of its search. And maybe, just maybe, the searchers are getting somewhere. But it was a long, cruel search, and for a portion of the South, it promises to continue, longer and more cruel than before.

The Southern racial situation—and all its economic, political, social and religious manisfestations—is the bitter conflict which Southerners must solve.

Until a couple a decades ago the solution was to tell oneself and one's neighbor that no conflict existed. In recent years the necessity to make a decision was forced on the South by national action and by pressure from the South's discontended "educated Nigras."

The more vocal segregationist elements in the South bypassed the searching—the revaluation of the system which integrity would have called for. These men of noise leapfrogged back to the days of handy solutions. As if shipwrecked, the white Southerner looked around for something to which to cling, and for the moment, he chose the Past.

But his searching was sincere, and it continued.

The white Southerner was told he could have segregated schools and open schools, State supremacy and Federal funds, plus the respect of the world . . . if only he would follow this politician and then that politician. None of the politicians payed off so the Southerner stopped following and began searching again—searching "to bring order into the chaos of his life."

* * *

In the past year his searching has been more fruitful.

Dallas and Atlanta desegregated their public schools this fall without disturbance. The Interstate Commerce Commission's anti-segregation decree was accepted with only minor opposition. Future sitinners have a Supreme Court decision on their side.

Chapel Hill and the University perhaps have done a disproportionate amount of searching for a "moderate solution." It certainly has solved a disproportionate number of its problems: the University was desegregated in 1951; the public schools districts were layed out geographically (not by race) this fall; most of the restaurants have desegregated . . . and now the theaters.

Townspeople, students and the theater managers took part in Chapel Hill's search-in-miniature. Vague declarations on both sides were forgotten as the issue was chipped down to the central one for the white Southerner: equal rights of citizenship for the Negro American—a problem which is tied up in the complex relationship of the South to the Nation.

Chapel Hill did not have to decide what the world thinks of the Southern race situation nor decide the importance of private ownership rights. The people had to decide simply what was right for them to do.

The decisions of these shipwrecked Southerners represent "the only genuine ideas," in Ortega's words. These are the decisions by which the region advances.

—Jim Clotfelter

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN RICHARD
Associate Editor

LOUIS LEVIN
Executive News Editor

[illegible]
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

HARRY BAUM, LINDA CRUMPLER ..... Feature Editors
HARRY W. LEVIN ..... Sports Editor
DAVID WILSON ..... Subscription Manager
[illegible] ..... Circulation Manager
BOB DURHAM ..... Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE ..... Photography Editor

TOM BURNETT
Business Manager

[illegible] ..... Advertising Manager

[illegible] Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Take 3 Sips From 9 Different Fountains

Skiing down a mountain with a lighted torch in your hand . . . strewing hay on the floor of your home . . . knocking on neighbors' doors in a symbolic pilgrimage—these are some of the ways you might find yourself celebrating Christmas in other parts of the world.

In token of Christ's birth in a manger, Poles spread hay on the floor and Lithuanians have straw under the tablecloth at their festive Christmas Eve meal. The colorful Mexican posada or pilgrimage dramatizes the search which led Mary and Joseph to the stable. For each of the nine nights before Christmas, a couple dressed as Mary and Joseph goes from house to house. Only at the last house are they—and the parade of neighbors which is now following them—invited in for supper.

An even more novel procession may be seen in the mountains of Austria. According to researchers for Shulton, Inc., who have been collecting material on foreign Christmases, wood carvers in the little town of Oberammergau meet on Christmas Eve and ski down the mountain slopes with flaming torches in their hands, singing as they go!

* * *

JUST ABOUT every country which celebrates Christmas has its unique bit of seasonal folklore or ritual. In Sweden, it's the feast of St. Lucia on December 13, ushering in the Christmas season. Each community chooses a lovely Lucia Queen to represent the young girl martyred for her religion centuries before in ancient Rome. In families with daughters, the prettiest plays the role of Lucia. Her "privilege": to wait on everyone else for the day!

But even the standard holiday features—Christmas dinner, Christmas presents and Yuletide decorations—have picturesque local variations. Not only does Santa have numerous aliases (he's Julenissen in Denmark, Pere Noel in France, the Abbot of Unreason in Scotland), but in Italy he is a she. Italian kids place their trust in Befana, an old woman on a broomstick who brings gifts to good children and ashes to bad ones. (In older versions of the legend, she ate the juvenile delinquents).

Americans are probably the champion gift-givers, spending more than $27 billion for Christmas presents in a recent year! The most popular gifts? For women, probably perfumes and colognes; at least 22% of the nation's annual perfume sales occur in December. (In round numbers, this means over $7 million in Yuletide fragrances!) Men who think this "scent-sational-ly" high should remember that this figure includes not only Joy—"the world's most expensive perfume"—but Desert Flower, which costs a dollar a dram, $3.50 for half an ounce.

* * *

TOILETRIES ARE a highly popular gift for men, too; despite the jokes about Christmas neckwear, many a man unwraps Old Spice instead of new ties on Christmas morn. Whether they give it, get it, or buy it for themselves, Americans spend over $44 million a year on after-shave lotion!

Many countries find it so blessed to give Christmas gifts that they do it twice a Yuletide. While waiting for Befana to come across on January 6, Italian children and their elders draw small gifts on Christmas Eve from a jar called the "Urn of Fate." The French exchange gifts on New Year's Day, but the impatient young fry are visited by Pere Noel on Christmas Eve. And leave it to the systematic British to establish December 26 as Boxing Day. On this pugilistic-sounding occasion, servants and tradespeople are remembered with boxes of money!

The date of the big Christmas dinner also varies around the world; many countries have it on Christmas Eve, before or after midnight services. Our traditional Christmas turkey does not appear on many menus. The French reveillon, a feast which occurs after midnight mass, is apt to feature oysters and sausages; in the French province of Brittany, buckwheat cakes with sour cream are served. The Norwegian Christmas dinner features a fish called lutfisk. At a Polish Christmas Eve dinner, the number of courses is fixed at seven, nine or eleven; a Lithuanian Christmas feast must include twelve courses, one for each of the twelve disciples!

During the Christmas season, Germans and Rumanians bake long, thin cakes that symbolize the Christ Child wrapped in swaddling clothes. In the Ukrainian part of Russia, cattle are given the first taste of the Christmas supper, because animals were the first to behold Christ. In parts of rural Germany, this is carried one step further—cattle and their owners both fast the day before Christmas, and eat well on Christmas Eve!

* * *

"DECK THE HALLS with boughs of holly" is a traditional refrain in English and American homes, but in Spain and Italy, householders decorate with flowers instead of evergreens at Christmas time. The Christmas tree, popular throughout the United States and Northern Europe, is relatively rare in Southern Europe; th rh, ore mangre sene, usually replaes it. In Sicily, many families use Christmas trees, but they deorate them with apples and oranges instead of tinsle. This carries out an old tradition that all the trees bor fruit whn Cehrist was born.

In England and France, the Yule log is favored; in some districts of England, whole families go to the forest to select their Yule log. Pear, olive and applewood are considered best, and tradition says that the log must be large enough to last until New Year's Day.

Perhaps the most unusual Christmas tradition of all is the one still adhered to by some Swiss romantics. These folk advise a boy or girl to visit nine different fountains and take three sips from each at the time the bells are ringing for midnight services on Christmas Eve. After this odd rite has been completed, the future husband or wife will be found standing at the door of the church and a regular courtship will begin — if the spell has worked.

Us, we'll take mistletoe.

For Last Minute Shoppers

The problem of choosing Christmas gifts has become increasingly difficult in our society of satisfaction. What meaningful gifts can be given to people who seem to have everything?

Fortunately, our government has solved this problem by introducing the wonderful world of fallout shelters.

In keeping with this shelter program I would like to suggest the following gifts for the underground man:

For the business tycoon — One Parker Brothers Monopoly game so he can keep in shape during the long weeks in the shelter.

For the Social Climber—An anthropological study of ancient barbarian peoples which will help him gain infinite amounts of status in the post-shelter society.

For the evangelist—One genuine sinner who may be converted up to twenty times a month while underground.

For the Comsymp—One genuine communist to symp.

For the Communist—One genuine comsymp to be symped by.

For the Existentialist in good faith—a crow bar so he can force his way into the shelter of the Existentialist in bad faith.

For the John Bircher — Several back copies of Dick Tracy comic books with mimeographed analysis and explanation sheets enclosed when necessary.

And finally, a plaque for every survivor's wall which reads, "Be it ever so sumble, there's no place like womb."

—Allen Mullins

Wellman Writes 'Twilight Of The Gods'

The marching bands played MEADOWLANDS, the snow whirled far and wide,
And Lenin's tomb cracked deep within, and split across the side.
Gregori paused in cold alarm, and stared a frightened stare,
And Lenin's ghost rose near his face, and whispered by him there:
"Now must I lie at Stalin's side, and smell his grisly crimes?
For these have filled my soul with pain; I've wept around the chimes.
And must I sleep in Stalin's grave, a dungeon worse than hell?
For I have heard the echoes of a fear I cannot spell.

"And will you pause and linger, when I turn to you for aid?
For I have suffered cruelly in the place where I was laid;
And can you doubt that it is he who causes me this woe?
For I have heard his victims sob while freezing in the snow.
And I have heard the sounds of pain and cracking of the whip,
Like breaking of the wooden planks that marks the sinking ship.
I know the workers' state will die, if Stalin's ghost lives on
In those whose task it is to guide, when our strong leader's gone.
Oh, move him out, take him away; I cannot bear to be
In rest beside the vicious scum of monsters such as he!"

The workmen came at Khrushchev's word, and labored in the gloom,
And Lenin's ghost lay back again, and silent for the tomb.

—WADE WELLMAN

"Same To You, Fella"

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for serious views of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Ars Poetica

Words, words, words—
Why bother to write them
Why bother to raed them
See I wasted your time.

Ubi e. Turold

GOOD-BYE

JIM and JANE

and

The Future Little One

℞ Monthly News

DECEMBER, 1961

PREPARE NOW TO ENJOY CHRISTMAS.

This month you will probably tire yourself with all the busy activities and gift shopping needed to properly celebrate the Holidays.

HOW TO HAVE A HEALTHIER CHRISTMAS.

Of course we will be available to supply any needed medicines Christmas week and every other week, but we know you will have more fun buying gifts than medicines. So . . .

GIVE YOURSELF THIS GIFT NOW.

Let your physician check your body to make certain it can withstand any invading virus or sickness attack. And . . . if he suggests your taking any meditation or vitamins for additional energy, follow his advice.

1961 WILL SOON BE OVER.

Please accept our grateful thanks for your friendship and patronage. We will never forget that our pharmacy's chief purpose is to dependably provide the medicines, health-aids and sickroom needs to guard your health.

MAY YOU ENJOY THE HOLIDAYS.

And . . . be sure to visit the Church or Temple of your choice . . . where you will receive the spiritual help we all need to truly be happy the coming New Year.

SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

& TOY CELLAR

H. A. YANDLE

Registered Pharmacists

East Franklin Street Chapel Hill

Phone 942-5161 For Free Deliveries

Copyright 1961 (M-1261) Printed in U. S. A.

Who Did You Forget? The Intimate has the book to make them happy!

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St.—Open Till 10 P.M.

SPECIAL COMPLIMENTARY OFFER

FOR COLLEGE MEN

Learn the Pleasures of Fine Tobacco . . .

Enjoy the Original Extra-Mild Cavendish in the Handy "Poly" Pocket Pouch

AMPHORA

Blended in Holland by Douwe Egberts Royal Factories

AMPHORA, is cool, even-burning, long-lasting. Its pleasurable smoking qualities have won loyal friends—it outsells all other tobaccos in its class! If you haven't tried AMPHORA, be our guest. Simply fill in the coupon below and mail it. You will receive a complimentary full 2-ounce pouch.

[illegible] INTERNATIONAL TOBACCO CO.
1192 Vine Street, North Hollywood, California
Gentlemen: Please send me a complimentary full 2-ounce pouch of AMPHORA. I enclose 10¢ coin to cover cost of handling and mailing.
(PLEASE TYPE OR PRINT)

NAME _____

STREET _____

CITY, ZONE, STATE _____

UNIVERSITY _____

Don't miss this outstanding series of historical plays by William Shakespeare. It's a National Educational Television highlight—brought to you by HUMBLE OIL & REFINING COMPANY America's Leading Energy Company. Esso

FRIDAYS at 9:00 PM-CHANNEL 4

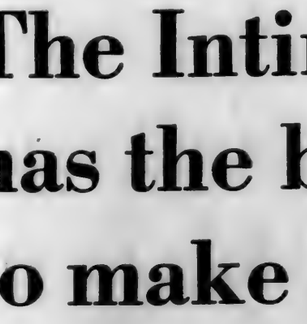
DAILY CROSSWORD

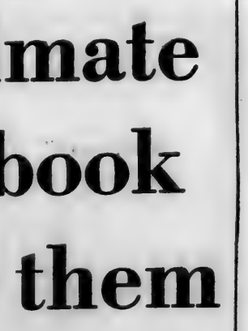
ACROSS
1. Belfry invaders
5. Owns
9. Mr. Wynn
10. To prepare for publication
11. Come into view
13. Skin disorder
15. Mirror reflection
16. Rose-petal oil
17. Excavate
18. Escape (slang)
20. To triumph
23. Dismounted
26. American poet, Mr. Field
29. Underwater "observatory"
31. Coloring chalk
32. Smell
33. East Indian tree
34. Australian bird
36. Man's name
39. Bring into line (var.)
42. To expect
45. Occasions
46. Maine city
48. To reach across, as a bridge
49. At hand
50. Health spot
51. Simplify

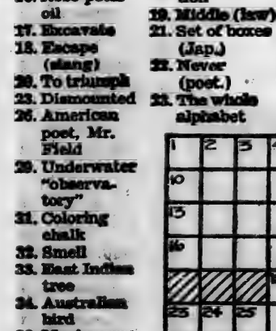
DOWN
1. Greek letter
2. Mine entrance
3. Slight color
4. Sly
5. Hebrew letter
6. Among
7. Half (prefix)
8. To urge
9. River in Scotland
12. Hay fever menace
14. Constellation
19. Middle (law)
21. Set of boxes (Jap.)
22. Never (poet.)
23. The whole alphabet
24. Byron poem
25. "Boot" country native
27. Overhead
28. Like a blackmailer
30. Exclamation
35. Doorstep "Welcome"
37. Equips
38. On the apex
40. Body of Kaffir warriors
41. Close to
42. Serf
43. Warp-yarn
44. Manner
47. Radium (sym.)

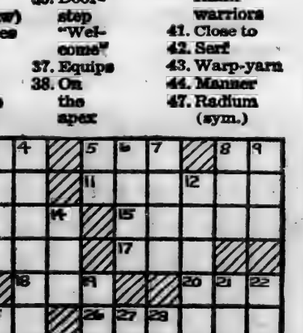
T	H	I	S		F	L	E	D
M	E	R	I	N	O		A	U	R	A
E	X	I	L	E	S		I	C	O	N
S	C	A	T		P	R	E	S	S
S	I	D		S	P	E	E	D
A	S		S	T	O	N	E	A	G	E
C	E	R	T	A		M	A	L	L	S
S	S	P	E	C	I	A	L		A	T
			A	M	A	N		I	S	E
S	H	I	M	S			H	O	S	E
H	I	R	E		P	R	O	T	E	M
O	D	O	R		R	E	M	A	S	S
D	E	N	S		O	D	E	S

Yesterday's Answer

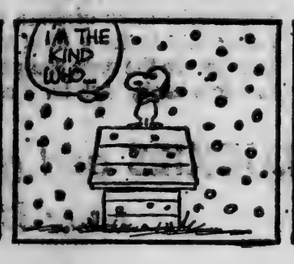


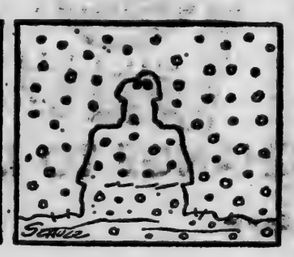






POGO





PEANUTS

'Debutante' Is Final Free Flick

"The Reluctant Debutante," starring Rex Harrison, Kay Kendall, John Saxon, Sandra Dee and Angela Landsbury will be the Friday night Free Flick.

The picture is a drawing-room farce that pokes fun at the practice of introducing 17-year-old girls to society. While the wife of a titled Englishman tries to launch her American-raised stepdaughter in the London "Season," the girl falls in love with an American jazz drummer with a scandalous reputation.

Showings will be at 7:30 and 9:30 in Carroll Hall for students with ID cards.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

CLASSIFIED ADS

CHRISTMAS MONEY LET THE old paper-backs you've finished with help pay for Christmas. We'll pay hard cash now, and some guy who needs cheap reading in January will thank you too. THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, 119 E. Franklin Street.

LOST: BLACK LEATHER WALlet on campus morning of December 14 Reward for finder. Stephen Dennis, 310 Stacy. Call 968-9112.

Who needs mistletoe? Give Woojums and get the same effect. A Base Gift Certificate is all it takes.

Hers $11.95

His $15.95

STEVENS-SHEPHERD

Old Spice Hair Tonic

Sold In Chapel Hill By

SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

HAVE A REAL 'COOL' YULE

We hope this holiday is the 'greatest' ever for all our friends.

PETE THE TAILOR

Don't Spend Money on Expensive Cards Until You've Seen the FIVE CENTS CARDS at the Intimate

On Campus with Max Shulman

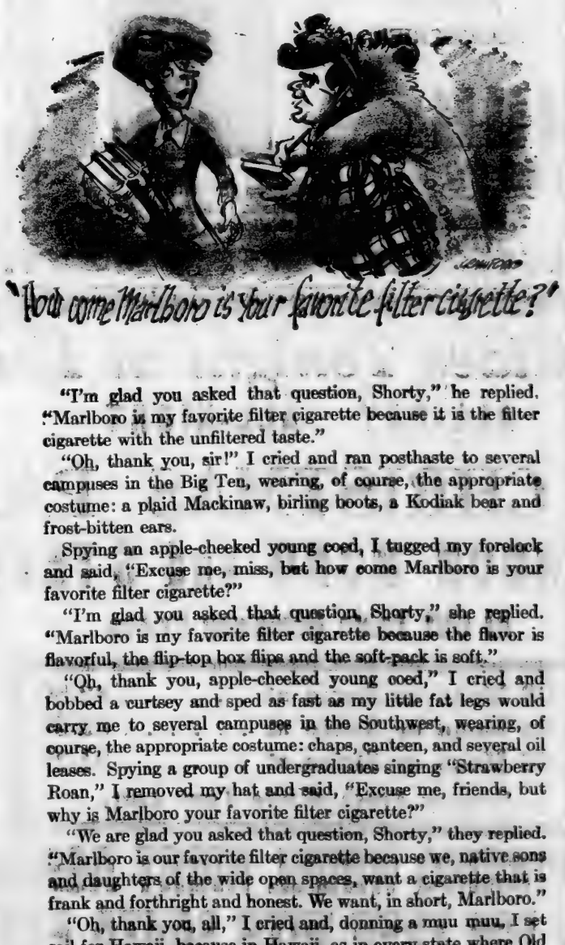
(Author of "Barefoot Boy With Cheek", "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis", etc.)

FROM SEA TO SHINING SEA

America is a great country. America's cities are full of houses. America's forests are full of trees. America's rivers are full of water. But it is not houses and trees and water that make America great; it is curiosity—the constant quest to find answers—the endless, restless "Why?" "Why?" "Why?".

Therefore, when I was told that Marlboro was a top seller at colleges from USC to Yale, I was not content merely to accept this gratifying fact, I had to find out why.

I hied myself to campuses in every sector of this mighty land. First, I went to the Ivy League—dressed, of course, in an appropriate costume: a skull-and-bones in one hand, a triangle in the other, a mask-and-wig on my head, a hasty pudding in my chops. "Sir," I cried, seizing an Ivy Leaguer by the lapels, which is no mean task considering the narrowness of Ivy League lapels, but, I, fortunately, happen to have little tiny hands; in fact, I spent the last war working in a small arms plant where, I am proud to say, I was awarded a Navy "E" for excellence and won many friends—"Sir," I cried, seizing an Ivy Leaguer by the lapels, "how come Marlboro is your favorite filter cigarette?"



"I'm glad you asked that question, Shorty," he replied. "Marlboro is my favorite filter cigarette because it is the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste."

"Oh, thank you, sir!" I cried and ran posthaste to several campuses in the Big Ten, wearing, of course, the appropriate costume: a plaid Mackinaw, birling boots, a Kodiak bear and frost-bitten ears.

Spying an apple-cheeked young coed, I tugged my forelock and said, "Excuse me, miss, but how come Marlboro is your favorite filter cigarette?"

"I'm glad you asked that question, Shorty," she replied. "Marlboro is my favorite filter cigarette because the flavor is flavorful, the flip-top box flips and the soft-pack is soft."

"Oh, thank you, apple-cheeked young coed," I cried and bobbed a curtsey and sped as fast as my little fat legs would carry me to several campuses in the Southwest, wearing, of course, the appropriate costume: chaps, canteen, and several oil leases. Spying a group of undergraduates singing "Strawberry Roan," I removed my hat and said, "Excuse me, friends, but why is Marlboro your favorite filter cigarette?"

"We are glad you asked that question, Shorty," they replied. "Marlboro is our favorite filter cigarette because we, native sons and daughters of the wide open spaces, want a cigarette that is frank and forthright and honest. We want, in short, Marlboro."

"Oh, thank you, all," I cried and, donning a muu muu, I set sail for Hawaii, because in Hawaii, as in every state where Old Glory flies, Marlboro is the leading seller in flip-top box. On campus, off campus, in all fifty states, wherever people smoke for pleasure in this great land of ours, you will find Marlboro.

© 1961 Max Shulman

• • •

And you will also find another winner from the makers of Marlboro—the king-size, unfiltered Philip Morris Commander, made by a new process to bring you new mildness. Have a Commander. Welcome aboard.

★ ★ ★

Huggins for Exciting Useful and Unusual Gifts

★ ★ ★

Take Home Gifts from Carolina

★ ★ ★

HUGGINS HARDWARE

christmas shopping???
the only—but only place for the individualistic, the imaginative, the incomparable—
charles hopkins
of Chapel Hill
designer/craftsman
(over sutton's)

Varsity Plays Freshmen At 8 In Last Pre-Holiday Contest

By ED DUPREE

UNC's basketball Tar Heels and their freshman counterparts collide tonight at 8 in Woollen Gym in the last pre-Christmas action for both teams.

The varsity basketballers, who play only 16 regular season games, will be idle until January 6 when they meet Notre Dame in Charlotte. Their next home contest is with South Carolina on January 15.

Jim Hudock's 15-point average is high for the Tar Heels after their three December meetings with Virginia, Clemson, and Indiana. The remainder of UNC's "six starters" and their averages are: Bryan McSweeney, 14.3; Larry Brown, 12.7; Don Walsh, 11; Mike Cooke, 8.3, and Dieter Krause, 6.

Town Touts Win Tournament, 46-41

By JOHN MONTAGUE

The Town Touts are now the intramural cage kings. Led by the ey, Dave Murr and Bob Deaton, ey Dave Murr and Bob Deaton, the Touts were able to offset a 12-18 field goal disadvantage and down the Phi Delt Owls, 46-41, in the finals of the Grail Mural Holiday Basketball Tournament Wednesday afternoon.

The Touts made good on 22 out of 28 free tosses while the Owls could make only 5 of their 14 foul shots.

John Hickey, with a perfect 8 for 8 mark at the line, paced the champions with 16 points.

PREDICTIONS

By HARRY W. LLOYD

Lack of space prevents us from giving any details, but here are our bowl predictions:

Rose Bowl—Minnesota 28, UCLA 10.

Cotton Bowl — Mississippi 14, Texas 7.

Orange Bowl—LSU 22, Colorado 6.

Sugar Bowl—Alabama 20, Arkansas 17.

Gator Bowl—Penn State 13, Georgia Tech 7.

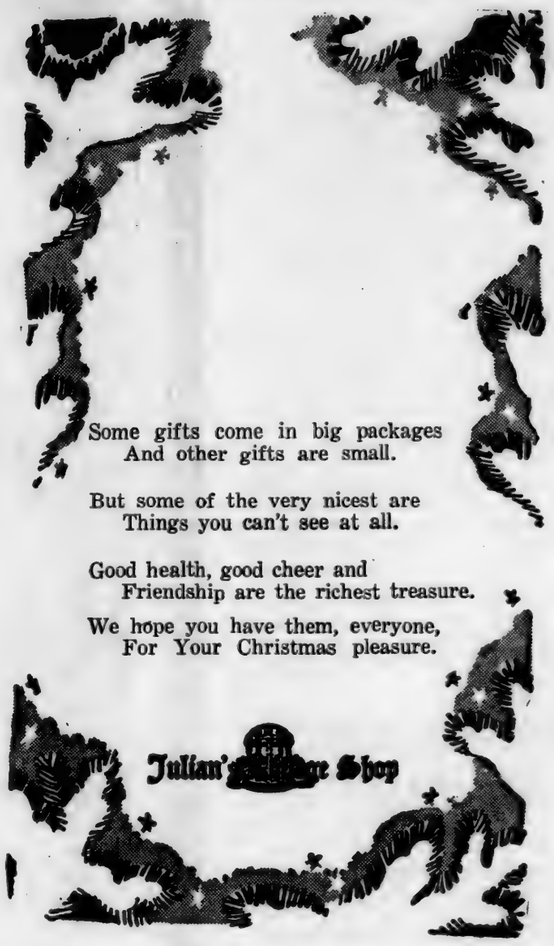
Liberty Bowl—Miami 22, Syracuse 14.

NOW!
Old Spice quality in a new hair tonic • Keeps hair handsomely groomed—all day • Fights dandruff • Moisturizes—prevents dryness • Guaranteed non-greasy
Old Spice HAIR TONIC
SHULTON
1.00 plus tax

"Beefeaters' Haven"
ANGUS BARN

RALEIGH-DURHAM WW./TE 4-1870

The Prettiest Christmas Wrapping in Town comes Free with Books from The Intimate



A Merry Christmas
From THE HUB of Chapel Hill
YOUR CHRISTMAS GIFT HEADQUARTERS
WHERE FAMOUS NAME BRANDS MEAN THE BEST.

VAN HEUSEN – JANTZEN
BRENTWOOD – WINGS –
BOTANY "500" – ALLIGATOR
A sweater collection beyond compare. See this beautiful array of sweaters in blues, olive and brown heather tones and soft shades of grey in 6 button cardigan front, Crew-Neck, and V-Neck styles.
CHRISTMAS GIFTS
PAJAMAS
ROBES
GLOVES
SCARVES
ACCESSORIES

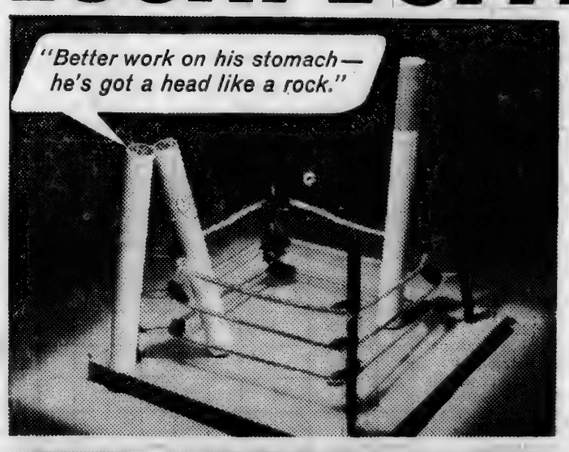
DRESS SHIRTS by Van Heusen, Wings. A terrific selection to choose from.
THE HUB
of Chapel Hill
103 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-1252

Dr. William E. Beel
OPTOMETRIST
Above Ledbetter-Pickard
Phone 942-5260
VISION ANALYSIS
CONTACT LENSES
GLASSES FITTED

Patrick/Augustus/Givens
BBCC

Merry Christmas
St. Mark

LUCKY STRIKE presents:
LUCKY PUFFERS "WINTER SPORTS"



WHEN DOES A LUCKY TASTE BETTER THAN A LUCKY? There's a dangerous question because, as you well know, college students are crazy about Luckies and smoke more of them than any other regular. Still, there is one kind of Lucky that tastes a little bit better than any other kind. These extra-special Luckies are the ones you get for Christmas. The only thing better than a Lucky is a free Lucky. Ask for a carton this Christmas.
CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change!
©A.T.Co.
Product of The American Tobacco Company — "Tobacco is our middle name"

Santa Rides Tonight at Kemp's
ALL-DAY ALL-NIGHT
CHRISTMAS PARTY
3000 LONDON MONO and STEREO LP's
At Gift Table Giveaway Prices
5.98 Mono or Stereo at $2.50
4.98 Mono or Stereo at $2.00
3.98 Mono or Stereo at $1.75
Factory Fresh While They Last!
IT'S SPINNING WHEEL NIGHT AGAIN
PLAY FOR FREE WITH SANTA KEMP
Refreshments After 7 P.M.
Open All Night Friday
Closed 6-7 P.M. To Prepare For The Fun
Kemp's All Out For Santa
Kemps Night Owl Deal

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

A Good Year—Almost

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Increasing Cloudiness
Warmer

Offices in Graham Memorial | THURSDAY, JANUARY 4, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Servic

1961 Reviewed In Ten News Stories

For the University of North Carolina, 1961 was a year of progress and disappointment, happiness and sorrow, like any other year. Like other years too, the year at UNC was reflected in the news columns of the Daily Tar Heel.

There was a somber side to the news, of course: basketball scandals, cyanide deaths, and the losing end of a state bond election.

In other moments, Carolina lost a basketball coach and gained $7 million from Uncle Mot.

Theater integration and deferred rush came in and so did John F. Kennedy, the first president to make the scene since FDR came here in 1939.

All things considered, 1961 was a newsworthy twelvemonth for UN C students. Here, the staff of the Daily Tar Heel rates the top ten news stories of the year:

1. On October 12 President Kennedy came to the university to keep a campaign promise that he made Governor Hodges before the presidential election, and to accept an honorary degree on the university's 168th birth.

In a speech that was not the major foreign policy address that was expected, Kennedy encouraged the intellectuals of the country to use their resources for the good of the country. Kennedy told over 30,000 persons in Kenan Stadium, "Regardless of your field, I urge you to recognize the contribution which you can make as educated men and women to intellectual and political leadership in these difficult days."

2) On October 6 two students were found dead in their Cobb Dorm beds. William Henry Harrison Johnson, Jr., 24, a graduate student from Statesville and James Michael Barham, 21, a junior from Burlington, were both ruled victims of cyanide poisoning.

An intensive police investigation accompanied by state-wide speculation followed. Yesterday, after months of investigation when the headlines died down, a superior Court solicitor ruled a tentative "murder-suicide."

3) For nearly six months basketball dominated the Tar Heel headlines. On January 10 the NCAA handed the UNC basketball team a one year probation for "excessive entertainment of prospective student athletes."

Then again on April 28, Lou Brown, a former Carolina player, was named as a co-conspirator in attempts to bribe college basketball players.

From this many repercussions developed that restricted big time basketball in North Carolina. Rulings handed down from the trustees of the consolidated University put an end to the traditional Dixie Classic and has put a strict limitation on out-of-state recruiting.

Also connected with the basketball scandals was the over-ruling of the Men's Honor Council by Chancellor William B. Aycock.

4. On November 7 voters went to the polls and voted down the 61.7 million bond issue that would have greatly aided higher education in North Carolina.

5. On December 8 the Varsity theater opened its doors to full integration. Partial integration had begun earlier in the fall at the Carolina Theater and was followed on Nov. 28 by the Varsity. Integration of the theaters ended a year of intermittent picketing by the Citizens Committee for Open Movies.

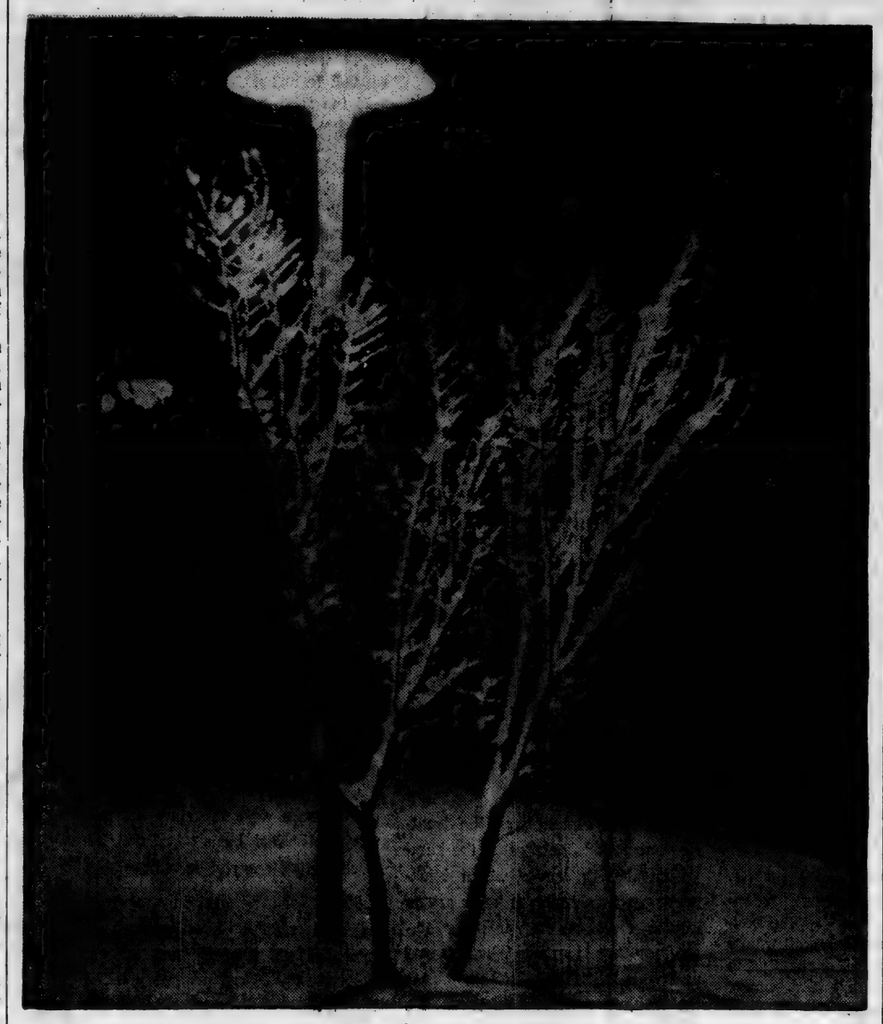
6. John Motley Morehead added almost $7 million dollars to the Morehead Scholarship Foundation on September 20.

He brought his UNC benefactions to a total of $7 million by donation of 50,000 shares of Union Carbide Corporation stock.

7. Article 4 of the Interfraternity Council By-Laws was deleted and replaced by a new article to allow deferred rush beginning in the school year 1963-64.

The article called for deferment of fraternity rushing until the spring semester with the dates of rushing determined by the IFC.

8. On March 21 Bill Harriss and Hank Patterson led the Student Party to a sweep of student gov-



ICED ILLUMINATION was offered to the Southland for New Year's Day this year. This picture was taken in Richmond, Va. which had the nation's third highest precipitation (sleet and rain) yesterday. North Carolina was surprised several days ago by a heavy snowfall and Chapel Hill still retains part of its snowy mantle. Roads and schools were closed in many parts of the state and the nation. Chapel Hill can expect warmer weather in the near future, however, with 50 the expected high for today.

— Photo by Jim Wallace

Patterson Elected To National Student Post

To Head Interim NSA Committee

Hank Patterson, vice-president of the UNC student government, was elected chairman of the National Interim Committee of the National Student Association at the annual NSA executive committee meeting.

The meeting was held at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, Minn. Dec. 26-31.

The executive committee tentatively decided that the annual National Student Congress will be held at Oberlin College in Ohio August 19-31.

UNC Request

Carolina had asked that the Congress be held in Chapel Hill next summer. The fall regional assembly of Carolinas-Virginia region representatives in Greensboro passed a resolution favoring UNC as the Congress site.

Last year's Congress was held at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, Wisc.

Patterson was elected by the executive committee. The Interim Committee has five members, including the chairman.

The duties of the Interim Committee are to "exercise interim budgetary control" with the power to revise the NSA budget; and to interpret policy and enact interim policies where necessary.

Other Members

Other members of the Interim Committee are from Radcliffe College, Harvard College, Manhattanville College and Swarthmore College.

Each of the student districts throughout the United States is represented by two delegates. Bill Harriss, student body president at Carolina was the only delegate from the Carolinas-Virginia region.

The purpose of the meeting was to review reports by the national officers, make recommendations from these reports, and to prepare for the Student Congress.

During the December convention "emergency legislation" was passed by the executive committee.

NO LEGISLATURE MEET

Student Legislature will not meet tonight, according to Hank Patterson, Speaker of the Legislature. It will meet Tuesday night at 7:30.

Statement Issued On 2 Cobb Deaths

Superior Court Solicitor Ike Andrews yesterday afternoon said the two students in the Oct. 6 cyanide deaths case, "died as a result of the act of one or both of them."

He said the case would remain open in the event new evidence is ever brought to light.

Andrews' statement said that after considering and checking all available information on the case "not one item or inference" known to him suggests that any third person was involved, nor that further investigation is necessary at this time.

"On the other hand," the statement continued, "numerous known facts and circumstances suggest that these young men (James Michael Barham, 21, junior from Burlington and graduate student William H. Johnson, 24, from Statesville) died as a result of the act of one or both of them.

"I don't believe it will serve any purpose to elaborate further," Andrews said when asked if he intended to rule on who killed who.

Chapel Hill Police Chief W. D. Blake, who along with detectives Howard Pendergraph and John Nesbitt, investigated the case, said he was "fully satisfied," with the ruling and expressed appreciation for Andrews' commendation of his department in conducting the investigation.

Andrews also commended the university administration officials for their help in conducting the investigation.

Dynamic Reading Demonstration Is Slated Monday

A demonstration of reading Dynamics by Greensboro residents and also a film of U.S. Congressmen utilizing Reading Dynamics will be held January 8, at 8 p.m., in the Home Building and Loan's Community Room, 123 N. Columbia St. according to Dabney White, Area Manager of Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics Institutes for the Carolinas.

The Monday night demonstrators were students last fall at the Reading Dynamics Institute in Greensboro. The Institute teaches a technique valuable to those who do a great deal of reading for research, study or for pure pleasure.

Meaning Patterns

This new method is designed to train students to note patterns of meaning on a page rather than individual words. At the same time it combats backtracking and fixation that are barriers to good reading speeds.

"Speed is not most important," say instructors of reading Dynamics, "but only through speed can you get good understanding."

During 12 two and one half hour sessions students are taught to increase their reading speeds from 3 to 10 times. Beginning speeds of these enrolled in the Greensboro Institute last fall ranged from 160 to 600 words per minute. Ending speeds were all over 1,000 words per minute and some ranged as high as 3,000 per minute.

The price of this course is $150 for 12 weeks. This includes a manual, 30 hours of class room instruction and special counselling if necessary.

New Dorm Plan Given To State

A plan aimed at hastening the building of new dormitories at state-supported colleges is expected to be presented today to the Advisory Budget Commission by representatives of the State Board of Higher Education.

James Wadsworth of the UNC Housing Office said that he knew of no plan to hasten construction of Carolina's three new men's dormitories and doubted that such a plan would be feasible.

Officials pointed out that this plan would have the effect of permitting colleges to proceed with dormitory construction almost a year sooner than if they waited for the 1963 General Assembly to act.

The plan calls for a "gentlemen's agreement" under which the Budget Commission would recommend to the General Assembly that the state pay half the cost of the buildings. The colleges would pay the other half from dormitory rentals.

Only dormitories included in the recently defeated bond issue would be included in the proposal.

Infirmary

Students in the infirmary yesterday included Ellen Ragan, Mina Haynes, Guterine Lemmond, Sue Woodward, Thomas Harrelson, Jeffery Dicks, Donald Buffalo, William Holdfield, James Jarrett, Catherine Johnson, Peter Kelly, William Taylor, Richard Sherman, Henry Blair and Fred Randell.

Campus Briefs

The University Chorus won't meet Friday. Instead it will meet Tuesday to hear tapes of the Christmas program.

Pledge class officers of Lambda Chi Alpha are: George Little, president; Jim Kaley, vice-president; Tony Eggleston, secretary; and Dick McGovern, treasurer.

Student Legislature will not meet tonight and will instead meet Tuesday night.

Playmakers To Present New Civil War Play By Hinrichs

The Carolina Playmakers will present "Renegade," a new war play by Carl Hinrichs, Jan. 10-14 at the Playmakers Theatre. Tickets for the production become available to season ticket holders today and to the general public Friday.

Set in the Civil War, "Renegade" is the story of a young Confederate lieutenant who sees both sides of the war as wrong, but who is thrown into a brutal situation in which he must act or die. A guitar-playing balladier who also participates in the action of the play serves as a "narrator-in-song" for the war drama.

Playwright Hinrichs is a 1960 graduate of the Carolina drama department where "Renegade" was begun. Hinrichs now lives with his wife and children in New York City.

Playing Lieutenant

Playing the young lieutenant, William Christian Dry, is Larry Randolph of Ft. Smith, Ark. A graduate of the University of Arkansas, Randolph worked in numerous productions there and at the Peninsula Playhouse in Erie, Pa. He recently appeared as Malachi Stack in the Playmakers touring production of "The Matchmaker." Last summer he acted in "Unto These Hills" at Cherokee.

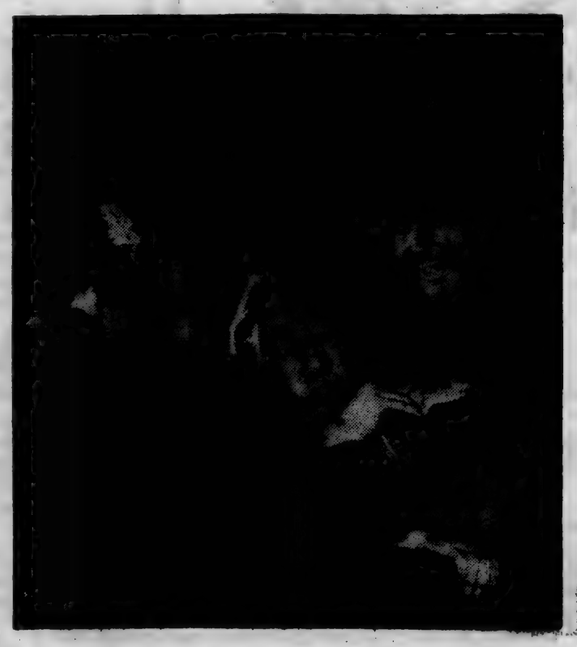
Sandy Moffett of Taylorsville will play the balladier. He acted in "The Curious Savage" and "Wishing for the War to Cease" with the Playmakers, and is the author of "Dark Morning," a new play presented here last summer.

John Crockett of Baltimore, Md., appears as Major Roger McClinton and Bill File of Anderson, S. C., plays Neville. Gordon Clark of Asheboro and Wes Van Tassell of Kent, Minn., play the two drunken Yankee soldiers who hold the lieutenant captive.

Also in the cast are Paul Gold and Allen Josephs, Charlotte; Frank Beaver, Statesville; George Gray III and Mel Starr, Gastonia; Larry G. Steele, Kennett Square, Pa.; Larry McMullen, Yanceyville; Woody Eney, Alexandria, Va.; Al Miller, Chapel Hill; Henry Bigger, Stanton, N. J.; and "Sir Richard," a live rabbit which appears in two scenes of the play.

"Renegade" is directed by Thomas M. Patterson, staff director of the Playmakers. Among Playmakers productions directed by Patterson are "South Pacific," "A Little to the Left" and "Death of a Salesman." Stage manager for "Renegade" is Rhoda Blanton of Shelby. Bobbi Bruton of Lexington is assistant stage manager.

Tickets for "Renegade" become available to season ticket holders today at the Playmakers Business Office (214 Abernathy Hall) and at Ledbetter-Pickard. They go on sale to the general public Friday at $1.50 each. All seats are reserved.



RENEGADE — "First time I ever had to force liquor on anybody!!" laughs Birch (Gordon Clark, right, of Asheboro) to his companion (Wes Van Tassel of Kent, Minn.) in "Renegade," a new play running Jan. 10-14 at the Playmaker Theatre. Their captive is an idealistic young Confederate lieutenant (Larry Randolph of Ft. Smith, Ark.) Tickets for the Civil War drama are available at the Playmakers Business Office, 214 Abernethy Hall (next to the Scuttlebutt), and at Ledbetter-Pickard for $1.50 each. All seats are reserved.

Exam Schedule

By action of the faculty, the time of an examination may not be changed after it has been fixed in the schedule. Quizzes are not to be given in this semester on or after Monday, January 15, 1961

The Official Class Roll and Grade Report will be prepared by the Data Processing Section and forwarded to the departments prior to the examination period. As in the past, the original copy will be returned to the Office of Records and Registration, the second copy (canary) is to be retained by the department, and the third copy (goldenrod) is to be kept by the instructor.

Grade reports are to be handed in to the department office within 72 hours after the scheduled time of the final examination. The department chairman shall be responsible for recording receipt of each grade report (the Form DR-1 may be used for this) and for forwarding it promptly to the Office of Records and Registration. In unusual cases, if it is clearly needed, an extension of the time limit, preferably not to exceed 48 hours, may be approved by the department chairman or the dean of the school concerned. The Office of Records and Registration must be given notice of the delay. (Faculty Council, May 6, 1960.) Machine processing of grades makes it urgent that all grades be turned in on time.

All permits to take examinations to remove grades of "Exc. Abs." or "Cond." must be secured from the Office of Records and Registration prior to the exam. No students may be excused from a scheduled examination except by the University Infirmary in case of illness or by his Dean in case of any other emergency compelling his absence.

All 12:00 noon classes on MWF, *Econ, 81	Mon. Jan. 22	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on MWF, *Econ. 31, 32 61 & 70	Mon. Jan. 22	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Tues. Jan. 23	8:30 a.m.
All 12:00 noon classes on TThs, all *Naval Science and *Air Science	Tues. Jan. 23	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on TThs	Wed. Jan. 24	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on TThs, *Poli 41, Busi. 150	Wed. Jan. 24	2:00 p.m.
All French, German & Spanish courses Numbered 1, 2, 3, 3x & 4, *Phch. 61	Thurs. Jan. 25	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Fri. Jan. 26	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Fri Jan. 26	2:00 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Sat. Jan. 27	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on MWF *Busi 160, *Phys. 24	Sat. Jan. 27	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Mon. Jan. 29	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on TThS, *Busi 130, *Chem. 43	Mon. Jan. 29	2:00 p.m.
All 3:00 p.m. classes, *Chem. 11, *Busi. 71 & 72, and all classes not otherwise provided for in this schedule	Tues. Jan. 30	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Tues. Jan. 30	2:00 p.m.

Instructors teaching classes scheduled for common examinations shall request the students in these classes to report to them any conflict with any other examination not later than December 15. In case of a conflict, the regularly scheduled exam will take precedence over the common exam. (Common exams are indicated by an asterisk.)

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Dr. Sukarno

Astronaut Launching Delayed

CAPE CANAVERAL — Troubles in a giant booster rocket have delayed until at least Jan. 23 the launching of astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., on America's first manned orbital flight, it was reported Wednesday.

The shot was originally set for Jan. 16, but the schedule has slipped at least a week.

Informed sources said difficulties in an Atlas booster rocket, placed on its launching pad last month, developed "almost overnight" and forced the decision. No details of the problems were immediately revealed.

★ ★ ★

Salazar Threatens UN Exit

LISBON — Prime Minister Antonio De Oliveira Salazar threatened Wednesday to take Portugal out of the United Nations because of its refusal to halt the Indian invasion of Goa.

He proclaimed an immediate boycott of most U. N. activities.

"The United Nations is not only useless but actively harmful," he said in a bitter attack on the organization.

"I do not yet know whether we shall be the first country to abandon the United Nations but we shall surely be among the first," his prepared speech said. "Meanwhile, we shall refuse them our collaboration in everything that is not in our direct interest."

★ ★ ★

JFK Calls Up More Reserves

PALM BEACH, Fla. — President Kennedy Wednesday ordered activation of two new permanent Army divisions totaling 31,712 men and said two National Guard units called up during the Berlin crisis would be released later this year.

The chief executive made the announcement after conferring with his top military advisers at the winter White House.

Army sources in Washington said more than half the men in the new divisions would be draftees who have had eight weeks or more training at replacement training centers. The remainder would be taken from existing Army units.

Jungle Jim Lobdell Voted Ugliest Man

The annual Ugly Man Contest, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, was won this year by Jungle Jim, alias David Lobdell, of Cobb Dorm.

'Jungle Jim'

Jugle Jim polled 9,463 votes, at a penny a vote. This was nearly 1,000 more votes than his closest rival. Big Daddy De Blasio. De Blasio finished with 8,481 votes. Following him were: M. T. Graves with 6,236 votes, Newt Smith with 1,379 votes, Rat with 193 votes, and the Transformed Co-ed with 118 votes.

For his looks Jungle Jim, who was runner-up last year, is awarded a date with Lindsay Raiford, sophomore class social chairman. APO hopes to use the half-time of the UNC-NC State game on January 17 to award a trophy to Cobb, and to award Jungle Jim his key and date.

The Ugly Man contest brought in $290.73 for APO. The $200 remaining after expenses will go to HOPE.

The winner of the contest last year was Lambda Chi Alpha. At the half-time ceremonies the trophy will be transferred from Lambda Chi Alpha to Cobb, which will hold it for the coming year.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 4, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLLX, No. 69

A Great Year—Almost

Just four days ago the 1961 calendar became just another scrap of paper, rivaled only by yesterday's newspaper in its uselessness. For most Carolina students, it was ripped down joyously, with the sound of tinkling glasses forming background music.

Most of us returned to the Hill with light hearts in our breasts and dark circles under our eyes, slightly repentent for the failures of the past years but filled with solemn vows that this year, come hell or high water, will be different.

But, given a month—or perhaps two for the strong-willed—most of our iron-clad promises to ourselves will weaken, become a bit strained as they are modified, finally becoming just as old and useless as that calendar we discarded just a short time ago.

But this does not mean that progress will not be made, and that we will not g r o w—imperceptibly perhaps — both as individuals and as part of the assortment of people and property that we call collectively the University.

Like 1961, the new year will reveal its horde of setbacks, shocks, failures and disappointments. Hopefully, none of them will be a basketball scandal, a bond issue failure or a dormitory poisoning. But some of its revelations, surely, will be as unpleasant.

Surely? Perhaps not, for behind every failure there is an individual, of a group of individuals, who somehow didn't succeed in guiding a particular moment toward final achievement. Failures and disappointments, like successes, are not a part of irreversible destiny. They are made by people. People who, because they didn't care enough, were ill-prepared, or were too afraid, did not exert the necessary effort to avert failure and insure success.

Thankfully, not all the news of 1961 was gloomy. The University enhanced its p h y s i c a l facilities, strengthened its faculty and managed to keep abreast of burgeoning enrollments.

The status of athletics was re-evaluated and strong efforts made to curb professionalism and its ill-effects.

But evaluating 1961 objectively and in perspective—if such an evaluation is possible so soon after its close—it was just another year. But to every one of us it gave experience and few of us are worse for it ,although there are many who would give much to be able to live it over again using the insights we have gained to correct the errors we made.

In just 12 months, we will be pulling down another calendar, and in all likelihood, it will be just another year. But with a little more courage and effort, it can be the great one that 1961 almost was.

Almost.

Who's Off Base?

Of course, basketball fans miss the Dixie Classic. Games in Raleigh matching some of the best U. S. college teams year after year added pleasure and zest to the holiday season. For thousands of Tar Heels the tournament was entertainment deluxe. But to say that the Dixie Classic is missed is not to say that President William Friday of the Greater University of North Carolina, who decreed the death of the tournament, is an old Scrooge who has not yet learned the lesson of Christmas.

It is irritating, even disgusting to read some of the current comments of sports writers bemoaning the passing of the Dixie Classic. This comment, for instance: ". . . . President Bill Friday was far off base with his decision. The practice of penalizing the masses for the mistakes of a few irresponsible persons certainly is not in line with the code of good sportsmanship. Yet, that's the story in essence. A few basketball players 'sinned,' but the many, many thousands of hardwood fans around the state are the ones serving the sentence. How this can be construed as fair play is beyond us to comprehend."

The sports writer, not President Friday, is off base when he makes such an observation as this. He has not grasped the essence of the story at all. If colleges and college basketball exist simply to provide entertainment for sports enthusiasts, it is not hard to understand how some writers might conclude that Presiden tFriday was wrong in banning the Dixie Classic. But the essence of the story is the truth that colleges were not established to provide entertainmet for followers of athletics. And a colege or university that fulfills its primary purpose—the advancement of learning —must not be allowed to become subservient to basketball or football, nor to fans who support the games.

President Friday saw a threat to higher education in the over-emphasis of athletics. Over-emphasis led to a number of evils, the most glaring of which was scandal—the fixing of games by players who accepted bribes from gamblers. The Dixie Classic had become a symbol of over-emphasis .When the basketball scandal "struck home," involving players on teams representing institutions in the State Unviersity System, President Friday decided that drastic action was necessary to keep sports subservient to education. A s y m b o l had to go. The "rights" of "innocent fans" were not involved really, only so if education was properly subservient to sports.

The Administration of the University acted sanely and responsibly. And the rest of us should look upon its action not without regret, perhaps, as we miss the pleasure and excitement of the Dixie Classic, but with sanity and a sense of responsibility—a n d w i t h appreciation for leadership that keeps its head while too many of the rest of us are losing ours.

Smithfield Herald

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KENG
Editor

MARIANNE ANN REYNERS
Associate Editor

LLOYD LETTER
Executive News Editor

BILL HOBBS
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

NANCY BAIRD, LINDA CRAWFORD—Feature Editors
HARRY W. LLOYD—Sports Editor
DAVID WYSONG—Subscription Manager
JIM EDELSON—Circulation Manager
ED DUPREE—Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MATHEWS—Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Eichmann Case: A Summing Up

One of the unsolved mysteries in the life of Adolf Eichmann is his name. In his signed confessions, published in 1960 by LIFE, he gave it as Adolf Otto. Biographers and commentators unanimously give it as Karl Adolf. Maybe it's Karl Adolf Otto.

The multiple accounts of his flight, exile, and capture all contradict each other on many points. Also, a number of myths surround the period in question. At times it has been reported that he underwent plastic surgery, that his sons kept the name Eichmann while living in exile, that his captors drugged him for the flight to Israel. The first two stories are false, the third unproven.

Early in 1961, before the trial was opened, a Jewish acquaintance told me with complete assurance that Eichmann wouldn't get capital punishment. "E i c h m a n n won't get death," he said quietly. "He'll get a life sentence."

"How do you know?" I asked.

"I know the Jewish mind, and Eichmann won't get death. He'll get life imprisonment."

But most people disagreed with this, and history proved them right. On December 11, 1961, after some four months of deliberation, the Israeli court reconvened. The verdict was a 300-page document, one hundred thousand words in length. Without preliminaries, Presiding Attorney Moshe Landau gave the essence of the report: Guilty on all of the fifteen counts advanced. Twelve of these carried a possible death sentence.

Eichmann's face showed no expression, though he might pardonably have been stunned by the sudden blow. An NBC commentator spoke of his "iron self-control"; the description was trite but accurate. It took more than a day to read the verdict. But Israel wasn't dallying. On December 15 the court imposed the death sentence. Once more the defendant was emotionless, his face like the face of a statue. The NBC reporter seemed impressed by this stoical bearing; he said that E i c h m a n n took it "calmly and bravely," words which themselves required courage from the speaker.

And now we can rationally ask ourselves what the Eichmann trial has proved. In addition to reminding us of the full magnitude of Nazi barbarism, the Israelis have brought out several other points rather conclusively.

In the first place, it appears quite certain that the annihilation of the Jews was not an overall crime of the German people. The "final solution" was effected in the utmost secrecy, probably to keep that knowledge of it from lowering public morale in wartime. Jewish observers, notably John Dornberg in the preface of his Schizophrenic Germany, have testified that the German public knew little or nothing of the crimes of the Hitler regime.

By contrast, it now seems obvious, not only that Germany's enemies well knew what Eichmann was doing, but that they didn't much care. The Royal Air Force, which bombed cities indiscriminately and at high cost, refused to bomb the death camps or the transportation routes. Jewish leaders requesting this operation were turned down, on the flimsy pretext of "technical difficulties."

Still more blatant was the treatment accorded Joel Brand, the Hungarian Jewish leader whom Eichmann approached with an offer of one million Jews in exchange for 10,000 military trucks. When Brand met with British officials to discuss the deal, they refused to listen. He was taken to Cairo and detained there under house arrest for four and a half months. Lord Moyne, British deputy in the Middle East, commented bleakly: "A m i l l i o n Jews? What shall I do with a million Jews?"

Last year, testifying at the trial, Brand said that the British "just didn't want" the people Eichmann offered to swap.

If the trial was largely an effort to impress on the world, for all time, the colossal brutality of the final solution, it had only partial success. It aroused immense interest; already there are three books about Eichmann, one semi-fictional movie, and no telling how many articles. But it probably aroused very little sympathy for the victims of this holocaust. Indeed, the high-handed abduction of Eichmann and the dubious legality of the trial have stirred up a new wave of anti-Semitism. Even many Argentine Jews were annoyed by Israel's violation of their national sovereignty.

How much of this was revenge motive, and how much was a serious desire to enlighten the world, may never be known. Tuvia Friedmann, i n h i s graphically written autobiography, T H E H U N T E R, makes it candidly obvious that the men who traced Eichmann down were driven by revenge, and David Ben-Gurion clearly implied the same in a long letter to Argentine President Arturo Frondizi on June 9, 1960. It is also noteworthy t h a t Eichmann was seized in Buenos Aires just two days after an extradition treaty had been concluded between Argentina and Israel.

The trial was certainly a great deal fairer than its critics had expected. If anything, it was far more objective than the Nuremberg trials, which amounted to pure lynchings. A few things marred its objectivity, chiefly the frantic outbursts of the prosecuting attorney, Gideon Hausner, and Israel's refusal to grant safe conduct for witnesses for the defense. (Later, this refusal was set aside for two SS men, who declined to appear.)

Some of the charges against Eichmann seemed petty. It was rather a disagreeable spectacle to see the defendant arraigned for "membership in hostile organizations," principally the Gestapo. And one wonders why the charges of "crimes against humanity" and "crimes against the Jewish people" were listed as separate indictments. The last-mentioned count threw a tinge of racism on the whole proceedings.

But, for all this, the trial was generally dispassionate; the defendant was given every opportunity to explain his side of the case. Harking back to an earlier point, I would like to quote the full text of this statement, credited to an Israeli spokesman in U. S. NEWS for August 28, 1961:

"For many of us, the full evidence brought out at the trial was a clear indication that a distinction has to be drawn between the Nazi government and the German people as a whole. It opened the eyes of a lot of us, who had gotten in the habit of thinking that the Nazis and the Germans were one and the same thing.

"Nothing in the trial tended to show that the mass of the German people knew about the mass extermination of Jews.

"In fact, the evidence tends to show that they probably did not know about it. The whole operation was carried out as a secret conspiracy by the N a z i s, as though they knew they were committing a crime which they would prefer not to have people know about, either at home or abroad."

Nothing could be plainer. I humbly propose that on this score, if nowhere else, it will hereafter become the world to be silent.

And perhaps the best thing now is for everyone just to forget about Adolf Eichmann, his robotlike sadism, and his sick, twisted philosophy. Our enemy is world Communism, not the defeated Third Reich; and if Israel now realizes this, more power to her.

—WADE WELLMAN

"Sit Down, Sit Down"

Man's World
It's A Short Man's World

Suppose a reliable survey found that shotgun owners fired their weapons on an average of fifteen times a year. Would manufacturers then turn out a product which could be used no more often than that?

Assume it was discovered that the typical American received eleven years education. Should colleges close down and public schools shorten their curriculum?

Anyone asked questions like these laughingly points out that averages, though useful in their own ways, are never taken as laws of design, just as informative general guides, guides to be ignored in case of exceptions.

Suppose, again, that automobile companies, having realized that the representatives U. S. male stands five feet nine inches, began to build their cars around this hypothetical buyer. Laughable? It would be were it not universally true. Drivers today over six feet tall automatically expect to be uncomfortably cramped under the wheel and bent nearly double in a fashionable back seat.

NO, GRIPING would be short-lived if inconvenience to long-legs confined itself to automobiles (and buses, trains, planes, etc.). Transportation, we concede, poses problems of space far too delicate for the lay mind's grasp. Anyway the plight of the tall man is even more severe in other indispensable areas, such as the modern home. The frame on the closet door in my apartment, for instance, hangs some four inches beneath my hairline. No week is complete until I thereby crack my forehead at least twice.

Movie theaters and concert halls for an oversized man often turn out to be more evil than necessary. I sometimes wonder if John Wayne and Rock Hudson have ever seen their own shows without special chairs in the aisle.

But even these hardships could probably be borne with a smile except for that most thoughtless, notorious offender, the clothes manufacturer. While pants can eventually be altered to fit anyone (if you're willing to forget cuffs), wearable coats have to be sorted out like Miss America contestants. Something is always wrong, usually sleeve lengths. I'm also lucky if a shirt tail remains tucked in over an hour or two. The trouble with "tall-man shops" is not fit but style. Deciding between well-fitting but double-breasted bell-bottomed serges and tightly binding Ivy League models can result in a wardrobe little short of ludicrous.

ALL THIS has led me to add a new quirk to the questionable theory that height often implies qualities of leadership. Forced to fight hard merely for space, room, and fit from adolescence on, the outsized male (or female) develops a streak of persecution-agression which makes him no mean contender in the world of commerce, a sure success.

The only problem is: If that were true, why are short men obviously still running all the automobile, construction and clothing companies?

—TOM NEELEY

Should Journalism Students Edit DTH?

To the Editor:

As a student of the University and as a person who has had experience in several phases of journalism, I find myself reading the DAILY TAR HEEL with considerable—and often critical—interest. A somewhat obscure item in the Dec. 1 edition, however, has me concerned with what may well be a more serious problem than the item itself indicates.

On page one of this edition, the staff appealed for additional help, noting "There are presently openings in all departments, especially news." It is indeed ironical that the most important part of this paper, the news department, is so clearly the most neglected part of the paper, which is, of course, the most important means of communication in the college community. The irony of this situation is only heightened when one realizes that the University has North Carolina's only accredited journalism school.

I understand that several years ago, an idea was presented to the student body to allow the School of Journalism to help guide the paper's news staff. The proposal was then defeated, apparently because of some unfounded fear that such help would gradually turn into administrative censorship. (Those who know the members of the faculty of the journalism school, however, can attest that there are no persons more dedicated to the idea of a "free press" than these very gentlemen.)

Yet, looking at the back issues of the TAR HEEL this year, I find that the paper is now apparently suffering from administrative control of an entirely different nature. The result of this "control," although unintentional, is that the majority of items in the paper are press releases of stories that the administration wants publicized. The TAR HEEL has no reporter assigned to cover South Building and consequently the only reports from this, the nerve-center of the university, are those given the paper. It is little wonder that the important story of what the university will do in the face of the bond issue defeat was written not by the TAR HEEL stall, but by the CHAPEL HILL WEEKLY staff. Also the trouble that the TAR HEEL had reporting the deaths in Cobb Dormitory this year is quite understandable when one considers that the paper does not have anyone checking the police department for news.

The news staff of the paper thus appears to be lacking enthusiasm and creativity, caring only to take what comes in the way of news, not looking or working for the news that could give needed insight to the college community.

The editorial page of the TAR HEEL offers quite a contrast for here one can see no signs of a lack of enthusiam. In fact, the height of journalism appears to be being a columnist for the paper. And, daily, without fail, these young, eager moralists offer their ideas of how to right the world. To be quite honest, I do enjoy these discussions, though the issues sometimes become rather hackneyed. Yet, I cannot but feel that this emphasis on the editorial page has an extremely high price, and that price is simply the lack of concern shown the news columns. Several times this year stories that should have been news items have been explained in the naturally bias form of the editorial page. For example, the decision to close the library stacks and the administration's reaction to criticism of the closed portion of one of the dining halls were both clearly newsworthy, yet were reported only through the editorial page.

Furthermore, the apathy toward the news content of the paper is reflected in the physical makeup of the paper itself. There is apparently little interest in creatively displaying the news items, for many stories are simply dropped under the lifeless headings: "World News Briefs, Campus Briefs, and Faculty News."

The photography is also rarely creative. CHARLOTTE OBSERVER columnist Kays Gary went so far as to question one story from the TAR HEEL after seeing a picture illustrating the story. He wondered if the French gentleman who ate in Lenoir Hall this year really enjoyed his meal. He had just seen the picture of the gentleman taken by one of the TAR HEEL's photographers.

Chapel Hill has become, to residents of this state, at least, the image of a community associated with the enthusiam and vigor of youth. Yet the news columns of the TAR HEEL remain in stark contrast to this image and will remain thus, until we discover how to fully utilize the potential resources of this university.

Bill McAllister

Editor's Note: The above letter is a thoughtful commentary on this newspaper. At present, the paper does suffer greatly from an inadequate staff (although it must be said that we had no difficulty in covering the Cobb deaths—the police department was covered like a tent—and South Building is covered, although this coverage could certainly be improved by a larger, more energetic staff) and the addition of only a few industrious reporters would be a great asset.

Also, the idea of Journalism School help in putting out the paper is already being considered. However, a marriage between the Daily Tar Heel and the Journalism School would not necessarily be a happy one, and as far as this editor is concerned, such an arrangement should not be entered into hurriedly. If the situation warrants this, however, be assured that it will be done.

Mr. McAllister, we might add, would be a welcome addition to the staff. The door is open every afternoon to him or anyone else who is sincerely interested in improving this newspaper.

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expression of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Pilot Spends Night In Tree After Bailing Out Of U-2 Jet

PICAYUNE, Miss. (UPI) — A U-2 pilot who parachuted from his crippled aircraft and spent the night snagged in a 120-foot cypress tree said Wednesday he bailed out when the jet plane became "uncontrollable."

The plane was the same type as the one that crashed in Russian territory resulting in the conviction of pilot Francis Gary Powers as a spy.

At the time of the international incident, the Russians claimed to have shot down Powers' plane with a super missile, but there was speculation that the craft may simply have flamed-out and crashed.

Air Force Capt. Charles B. Stratton, who was at the controls of the plane that crashed Tuesday night in one of Mississippi's snake-infested swamps, said the plane apparently developed a "malfunction in its electrical system."

Everything Normal

"I left Laughlin Air Force Base, Del Rio, Tex. at 6 p.m. on a navigation flight to Birmingham, Ala.," he said, "and everything went normal until on my way back home.

"The plane became uncontrollable. I ejected at about 45,000 feet using normal procedure."

Stratton said he became a "little dizzy" during his descent, but didn't panic.

Asked if he thought Powers might have experienced similar plane trouble, Stratton replied:

"That's always a possibility, but I couldn't say."

Stratton said he had met Powers when they were in the same squadron at Turner Air Force Base, Ga. Powers is now serving a prison term in the Soviet Union.

Stratton landed [illegible] marshland about six miles from the nearest road and it took rescuers 10 hours to reach him.

However, he carried a small two-way radio strapped to his green pressurized flight suit and he was in contact with a hovering helicopter during the course of the rescue operations.

He said he could see as he descended that he was in a remote area, and when his chute hung up in the tree, he dropped his helmet to determine how far it was to the ground. It took the helmet so long to land, he said, that he decided against trying to free himself from the parachute straps.

Stratton said he was later advised by radio to remain in the tree because the area was infested with cottonmouth moccasin snakes and wild hogs.

Stratton was finally rescued by a search party that set out from Bush, La., at dawn in an aluminum boat. Helicopters directed the searchers to the cypress tree where the pilot was snagged.

1961 Reviewed

(Continued from Page 1)

ernment.

Harriss took a 136-vote lead over UP's Bob Sevier for the Presidency of the student body.

9. Coach Frank McGuire left the University in August to take up the post of head basketball coach for the Philadelphia Warriors.

10. The "King of the World," Homer A. Tomlinson, came to UNC on April 15 to crown himself king of the University of North Carolina.

The ceremony took place in the Forest Theater before approximately 700 unruly students, some of whom greeted the 'King' with eggs.

Experts To Study New Powerful Russian Rifle Captured In Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—A Royal Laotian officer said Wednesday loyal tribesmen captured from rebel forces a high-powered armor-piercing Russian recoilless rifle, believed to be the first of its type to fall into Western hands.

He said the weapon, reported to have tank-killing capabilities at a more than two-mile range, will be sent to the United States for study by weapons experts.

Security restrictions prevented U. S. officers here from commenting on the Soviet bazooka-type weapon. But reliable sources confirmed its imminent shipment to the United States.

Col. Bng Pao of the Royal Laotian Army said the weapon was captured Dec. 22 by pro-government Meo tribesmen on the Plain of Jars.

Thieves Get $8 In Local Robbery

Thieves broke into Belk-Leggett-Horton clothing store Tuesday night, but escaped with only eight dollars.

Police Chief W. D. Blake reported entrance was gained by cutting a hole through the plaster skylight after the thieves had climbed to the roof by a rope.

Eight cash registers were pried open but the cash had been removed from the store the night before.

CLASSIFIED ADS

THE CURE FOR DEPENDENCE at sixty-five must be taken in the twenties. You'll find real assistance when you call on a Northwestern Mutual agent. Arthur DeBerry Jr., C.L.U. Telephone 942-6966.

WANTED — RESPONSIBLE person to take over established newspaper route — Married students preferred — Car necessary — ALSO Carrier need to deliver papers to dorms. Call 942-5053 after 5:00 p.m.

A NEW YEAR'S TREAT!

"The World's Greatest Orchestra"

— COMING JANUARY 9th —

DUKE INDOOR STADIUM

PHILADELPHIA ORCHESTRA

EUGENE ORMANDY — Music Director

Reserved seat advance sale, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50. Day of Performance $2.00, $2.50, $3.00. Non-reserved seating, $1.00. Tickets on sale, 202 A Flowers Bldg., or phone 681-0111, Ext. 2911 or write Box KM, Duke Station, "Enclose stamped self-addressed envelope."

NOTE: Tickets "2.00-$2.50" for remaining concerts also available.

COMING: The Robert Shaw Chorale Orchestra Feb. 1st. Leon Fleisher, Pianist, Feb. 20th, Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, Soprano, March 9th.

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST

1:00 — 4:50 — 8:40

Now Showing Thurs.-Saturday

WINNER OF 11 ACADEMY AWARDS including BEST PICTURE

from METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER WILLIAM WYLER'S

BEN HUR

Uncle Shelby's ABZ Book Is back In Stock

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St.

Open Till 10 P.M.

Down in the Dumps?

See the Contemporary Studio Cards at

Ledbetter Pickard

ANNUAL CLEARANCE SALE FINAL REDUCTIONS

STYLED RIGHT PRICED RIGHT TO SELL RIGHT

AT

THE HUB of Chapel Hill

SUIT REDUCTIONS—100% worsted wools in heather tones and Glen plaids. Over 225 fine styles and shades to choose from

From $39.99

SPORTCOAT SALE — Finest brands of sportcoats in plaids, stripes, and solid colors in beautiful olives, browns, greys and blues. Traditional styling at its best.

From $24.99

TOPCOATS—Our famous name brand topcoats are all on sale. Ragland and set-in sleeve in large Herringbone weave, styled for the college man in soft shades of brown heather, burnt olive and blue gold. Also many fine Harris tweeds to choose from.

From $29.99

SWEATERS—100% wools and Alpacas — plaids, stripes and subtle tones of brown and olive. Cardigans, Crew Necks, V-Necks

All 20% OFF

DRESS SHIRTS—Our famous name brands are now on sale. Tab-collars and button-downs. Whites, pastel colors and stripes.

$2.99 and $3.99

DRESS SLACK SALE—The best ever. All our dress slacks are tremendously reduced. Hundreds left in all sizes. 28 to 46. 100% worsted wools.

From $7.99 to $11.88

SPORTSHIRTS ..... All REDUCED

CORDUROY PANTS ..... Just $4.99

CAR COATS ..... From $12.88

CORDUROY TOUCHDOWN COATS All $19.99

OTHER SALE ITEMS

Hats — Ties — Jackets — Sleeveless Sweaters — Vests

The Hub of Chapel Hill

AT

103 E. FRANKLIN — FREE ALTERATIONS — PH. 942-1232

NO LIMIT AT YOUR FRIENDLY A&P!

Allgood Brand Smoked Flavored — Sliced

BACON

A&P 1-lb. pkg. • 39c

"Super-Right" Heavy Grain Fed Beef

ROASTS

CHUCK BLADE Per Lb. 39c

Roasts ... lb. 55c

Boneless Chuck

"Super-Right" Lean Freshly Ground

BEEF 3 lb. Pkg. 1.17

Bananas

2 POUNDS FOR 19¢

Jane Parker Large Family Size

CHERRY PIES Ea. 43c

Prices in this ad are effective through Saturday, January 6th

ANNUAL JANUARY SALE

CLOSEOUT ON PHONOGRAPHS

ABSOLUTELY BELOW WHOLESALE

40% OFF OR BETTER

—SOME 50% OFF—

—SOME 60% OFF—

Lasts For 10 Days

Kemp's

Agronomists at North Carolina State College say it is much easier to increase average corn yields from 20 to 50 bushels per acre, as Tar Heel farmers have done, than to increase them from 50 to 75. They are convinced it can be done, however, because individual growers in the state are making up to 150 bushels per acre.

UNC Players In All-Star Cage Game

Several Carolina athletes will be featured next Tuesday night in an All-Star Basketball game at the Durham High School Gymnasium. The game, which will match the "Everett Case All-Stars" against the "Vic Bubas All-Stars," will be played for the benefit of the March of Dimes.

The UNC participants will include football players Ray Farris and Jim LeCompte and former basketballers Danny Lotz, Doug Moe, Ray Stanley, and Joe Quigg. As of yet, none of the players have not been assigned to any team.

Representatives from Duke who will play are footballers Jack Wilson, Tee Moorman and George McAfee, basketballers John Frye, Howard Hurt and Doug Kistler, Olympic trackman Dave Sime, and coaches Fred Shabel and Bucky Waters.

N. C. State players include Lou Pucillo, Sam Ranzino, and Ron Shavlik.

The admission charge for the game is one dollar. The game will begin at 8 o'clock.

Saturday Game At Charlotte Will Be Free

UNC students will be admitted free to the Notre Dame basketball game Saturday, Jan 6, at Charlotte. An ID card must be shown at a special student gate. Date tickets may be purchased for $1 at the same gate.

* * *

Tickets are now available for the South Carolina basketball game here on Jan. 15. They are available to all students on a first come, first served basis, with no priority.

* * *

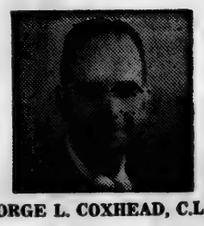
Coach Dale Ranson announced yesterday that winter track practice will resume immediately.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

SPECIAL CLEARANCE
On Some Radios and Phonographs
This Week Only
Thurs. - Fri. - Sat.
THE SPORT SHOP
"It Pays to Play"
151 E. Franklin St . Ph. 942-4064

Get Better Grades With Study Aids
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

Lady Milton January Colossal
Ultra smart casual wear at enticing reductions.
Group shirtdresses formerly to $19.95, now $10.99 and $21.95 to $32.95 at $14.99
Remaining shirtdresses cut from $14.95 to $12.99; $16.95 to $13.99;; $19.95 to $16.99; $22.95 to $18.99; $24.95 to $19.99; $26.95 to $21.99.
Ladies car coats cut from $32.50 and $35.00 to $27.-99; $39.95 and $42.50 to 34.99; $50.00 to $39.99.
Ladies suits cut from $35.00 to $29.99; $25.00 and $19.-95 to $14.99; $55.00 to $69.50, at $39.99.
Group sheath skirts, formerly to $25.00, at $8.99.
Entire remaining stock wool skirts in straight, box pleat and kilt models cut from $16.95 to $12.99; $18.95 to $13.99; $19.95 to $14.99; $22.95 to $17.99; $24.95 up to $18.99.
Group imported Elliot beige full fashioned shetland sweaters cut from $14.95 to $8.99.
Group sweaters formerly to $14.95 at $5.99.
Group Lady Milton shirts in buttom-down and choir boy collars, regularly to $9.95, at below cost of 1 for $2.99 or 3 for $8.50.
Entire remaining stock Lady Milton shirts in choir boy and button-down collars cut from $5.95, $6.50 and $6.95 to $4.99; $7.75 to $5.99; $8.95 to $6.99; $9.-95 to $7.99 and $19.95 to $8.99.
Entire stock wool bermuda shorts regularly to $14.95, now priced at $7.99.
All Sales Cash and Final —
Milton's Stocking Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

The New York Life Agent on your campus is a good man to know.


GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
(Over The Hub) Ph. 942-4358
New York Life Insurance Company

Old Southern Magazines
The feature case in our Old Book corner this week is filled with an interesting collection of back-number magazines—mostly Southern. You'll find ancient copies of The Trinity Archive, The North Carolina Quarterly, Holland's Southern Magazine—plus what's left of the set of National Geographic we first put out last Fall—all at cute little prices. Whether you buy or not, we think you'll get a kick out of looking through them.
COMING NEXT MONDAY—the Library of a Diplomat-Historian. A distinguished collection of "work-horse" books for your pleasure.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
OPEN TILL 10 P.M.

Carolina
THURSDAY

College Supplies
● NOTEBOOKS ● PENCILS
● PAPER ● PENS
● TYPEWRITER PAPER
Ledbetter Pickard

Semi-Annual Fall and Winter
SHOE SALE
Now All Shoes At 1/2 Price
Including all our branded names shoes such as Mademoiselle—Paradise Kittens and Kittenettes—Dolmode—Capezios—Town and Country—College Debs.
J. B. Robbins
Chapel Hill's Finest SHOE SALON

We've whipped prices into line!

SALE on SMART CLOTHING

Entire Stock Taylor-Made
SHOES AT COST!
● Suits—25 to 50% OFF ● Sport Coats—33⅓% OFF
● Alligator Raincoats ..... NOW $7.95 & $16.95
$13.95 & $25.95
● ★ ●
Ladies' Sportswear
Entire Stock Shetland, Camel Hair and Cashmere
SWEATERS REDUCED
Corduroy, Dark Cottons, Wool and Madras
SHIRTWAIST DRESSES ..... CUT 33⅓%
Wool and Corduroy
TWO-PIECE SUITS ..... CUT 33⅓%
Town & Campus

JULIAN'S
ANNUAL SALE
SPECIAL GROUP:
SUITS
SPORTCOATS
PANTS SHIRTS
SWEATERS
SHOES

Julian's College Shop

STEVENS-SHEPHERD'S
Gigantic JANUARY
SALE!
Reductions—20 to 50% and More On Seasonal Apparel.
B.D. and Tab Collar Dress Shirts, white & colors, reg. 5.00 & 5.95 NOW . . 3.99
Imported Worsted Cheviot Herringbone Suits, reg. 70.00 NOW 56.00
Our Own dacron-wool and worsted Flannel trousers, reg. 16.75 NOW 13.95
Israel: Import Hand Fashioned Cardigan Sweaters, reg. 24.95 NOW 17.95
French-Shriner Black Cordovan Wing-Tips, reg. 29.95 NOW ... 18.95
Imported Velour Hats, reg. 10.95 NOW 7.99
Silk Repp & Wool Challis Ties, reg. 2.50 NOW ..... 3 for 5.00
Orlon-wool Sweater Shirts, reg. 10.95 NOW 6.99
Madras, Felt, Wool Belts, reg. 2.50 NOW 1.69
Scottish Cotton Sport Shirts, reg. 5.95 NOW 3.99
Shetland Sports Coats, reg. 39.95 NOW 31.95
Rex Harrison Style Hats, reg. 5.00 NOW 3.99
All Topcoats & O'Coats, reg. 65.00, NOW 49.95
Special Group Socks, reg. 1.50 NOW ..... 2 prs. 1.00
All Wash 'n Wear Suits, reg. 42.50 NOW ..... 25% OFF
All Lightweight Sport Coats NOW ..... 25% OFF
● FROM OUR LADIES' SHOP ●
Tailored Oxford Blouses, reg. 4.00 NOW 3.00
Shetland Cardigan Sweaters, reg. 14.95 NOW ..... NOW 10.95
Worsted Flannel Skirts, reg. 11.95 NOW 8.95
Lambswool Cardigan Sweaters, reg. 14.95 NOW 10.95
¾ Length Housecoats, reg. 8.95 NOW 6.95
Crew-Neck Shetland Sweaters, reg 13.50 NOW 9.99
Hurry — SAVE — Hurry — SAVE
ALL BLOUSES $1.00 OFF REG. PRICE
at
STEVENS-SHEPHERD

Milton's January Colossal
This is the Event all Carolina has been waiting for. The selections couldn't be more enticing—the weather is right—the price is right—fight the crowds and have a buying ball!
All suits and sport coats now specially reduced — Group suits cut from $85.00 to $57.50; group suits regularly to $70.00 now at $39.-99; $62.50, and $65.00 suits onw $49.99; $69.50 suits cut to $55.00; $72.50 to $57.50; $75.00 to $60.00; $79.50 and $85.00 now $65.00; $90.00 reduced to $70.00.
Group sport coats formerly to $51.50, now $29.99; Group sport coats regularly to $45.00, take your pick at $24.99; remaining stock of sport coats cut from $39.95 to $32.99; $42.50 and $45.00 to $34.99; $48.-75 to $39.99 and $51.50 to $42.99.
Group $16.95 and $14.95 full fashioned imported sweaters, cardigan model, now at giving price of $8.99.
Group of miscellaneous sweaters, formerly to $16.95, January Colossal price — $5.99.
$20.00 four ply imported shetland boatneck sweaters, now only $10.99.
Narrow brim dress hats in all basic tones cut from $12.50 to $7.99; $15.00 to $9.99.
Try our fabulous English shoes at our January Colossal prices — $20.00 plain toe grain shoes now $17.99; $22.95 wing tips and plain toe cordovans cut to $19.99.
With the weather just right enjoy our smart town topcoats at substantial savings — $69.50 now $55.00; $75.00 to $60.00; $79.50 to 65.00; $85.00 to $67.50; $90.00 and $92.50 to $72.-50 and $110.00 to $92.50.
You've no doubt heard many of our friends rave about our roll-button-down shirts with the perfect body taper —why not try several during this special January Colossal — $5.00 shirts now 1 for $4.00 or 3 for $11.50; $5.50 to 1 for $4.50 or 3 for $13.00; $5.95 now 1 for $5.00 or 3 for $14.50; $6.50 now 1 for $5.50 or 3 for $16.00.
Group belts formerly to $4.00 at $.99; group formerly to $5.00 at $1.49.
Imported India Madras and Danish oxford plaid sport shirts, frmerly to $10.95 at $5.99
Our worsted wool flannel trousers now cut from $13.95 to $10.99; $14.95 to $11.99; $16.95 to $13.99; $18.95 to $15.99 and $19.-95 to $16.99.
Cotton wash pants now reduced — Safari poplins cut from $7.95 to $4.99; other $7.95 pants now $5.99; $6.95 to $5.49 and $5.95 to $3.99.
Smart array of car coats at tempting reductions — $32.50 and $35.00 at $27.-99; $39.95 and $42.50 to $32.99; $50.00 to $39.99 and $60.00 to $44.99.
All Sales Cash and Final — Alterations Extra but superbly done by Carlton
Milton's Stocking Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

70

Coddled Generation
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Increasing Cloudiness
Warmer

Offices in Graham Memorial | FRIDAY, JANUARY 5, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Berlin Subject For Talk

Tuesday Program Third In Series

Berlin authority Art Wilson will present his film-lecture on "Berlin" in the third program of Graham Memorial's Travel Adventure series Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Memorial Hall.

In his narration of the color film Mr. Wilson will examine the various problems facing the divided city. The film will include a historical review and a visit to a German refugee camp.

Mr. Wilson has recently returned from Berlin where the filming of the situation was brought up to date.

Tickets may be purchased from the GM information desk or at the door for $1.

Drama Dept. Gets 400 Rare Books

Kenan Professor Emeritus Archibald Henderson has given the Department of Dramatic Art more than 400 rare and out-of-print books from his private collections, Harry Davis, the department chairman, announced today.

Dr. Henderson has long been associated with the drama department and the Carolina Playmakers. An internationally-known literary critic at the turn of the century, Dr. Henderson was among the first to acclaim George Bernard Shaw as a great dramatic genius. He became Shaw's official biographer in 1904.

The 400 volumes are a part of his library collected during those drama reviewing and writing days. They largely center around Henrik Ibsen, the Norwegian playwright and allied dramatists.

The 400 titles include 99 by Ibsen, 40 by August Strindberg, 18 by Bjornson, 21 by Schnitzler, 24 by Suderman, 24 by Brieux and several each by Yeats, Synge, Pinero, Granville-Barker and Benavente, all top-drawer dramatists. More than 50 general books on the drama, miscellaneous in their nature, are also included.

Dr. Henderson, born in Salisbury, holds honorary degrees from the University of the South, Tulane, William and Mary, Catawba and Oglethorpe. He has published numerous books on mathematics, American history and drama. "Bernard Shaw: Playboy and Prophet," a work of almost nine hundred pages, is rated as probably the "most fully documented biography of a man of letters ever written."

Openings & Interviews

Placement Director J. M. Galloway was elected president of the Southern College Placement Association at its annual meeting last week in Roanoke, Virginia.

This association is made up of college placement directors in the Southeast and employers who recruit in this area. Of its 500 members approximately 350 attended the meeting at which Mr. Galloway was elected.

The Placement Service has also announced that the following companies will recruit on campus next week, January 8-12:

Monday: Rural Electrification Administration, Northwestern University.

Tuesday: Bureau of Census, Shell Oil.

Wednesday: U.S. Naval Research Labs, Social Security Administration, Lybrand, Ross Bros. and Montgomery.

Thursday: Procter and Gamble, West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co., National Cash Register, Koonce Wooten, CPA's.

Friday: Aberdeen Proving Ground, Hooker Chemical Corp., Dan River Mills.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Dr. Sukarno

Macmillan To Talk With Adenauer

LONDON — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan will fly to Bonn for talks Tuesday with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer on crucial East-West cold war problems, the British Foreign Office announced Thursday.

★ ★ ★

Walker To Testify

WASHINGTON — The Senate inquiry into alleged muzzling of military leaders will open Jan. 23 with public testimony on censoring of speeches in the Defense and State departments, chairman John C. Stennis announced Thursday.

The Mississippi Democrat said former Major Gen. Edwin A. Walker has accepted an invitation to testify during a later phase of the study. Walker, relieved as an Army division commander in Europe in a controversy over his troop indoctrination program, will testify when the subcommittee studies troop indoctrination and training.

★ ★ ★

U.S. To Rebuild Air Force Base

WASHINGTON — The United States will rebuild the Air Force base on tiny Johnston Island in the Pacific in preparation for possible resumption of atmospheric nuclear tests, it was disclosed Thursday.

★ ★ ★

Jacquelyn Named Best Dressed

NEW YORK — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy was named the best dressed woman in the world for 1961 Thursday, the second straight year she has been elected to the honor.

★ ★ ★

Sukarno Hopes To "Liberate" New Guinea

MAKASSAR, Indonesia — President Sukarno told a million rain-soaked residents of this southern Celebes capital Thursday night their harbor, airfield and fighting spirit made it the logical base for launching an attack to "liberate" West Irian Dutch New Guinea.

Pianist In First Petite Musicale

Pianist Ellsworth Snyder will appear in the first Petite Musicale Concert of the season, Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Graham Memorial Lounge.

Mr. Snyder is instructor of piano at Newcomb College.

Contemporary music will be the theme of the concert, although two numbers by Shubert (a sonata) and Liszt (Eleventh Hungarian Rhapsodie) will add a flavor to the classical standards. Works by Wobern, Schoenberg, and Dr. Charles Hamm, professor of theory and composition at Newcomb College will be included.

Mr. Snyder will close with a Burl Ives Rendition in Ragtime of the old hymn, "Bringing in the Sheaves."

"We are fortunate in securing a pianist for the Les Petites Musicales series who will play both contemporary and classical music," said John L. Currie, chairman of the GMAB Music Committee. "His program will cover a wide variety of musical interests; thus we anticipate a sizeable attendance."

Sanford Against Dorm Loan Plan

The Advisory Budget Commission met late Thursday with the State Board of Higher Education to hear a request for a 100 per cent federal loan program to continue dormitory construction at state-run schools.

At noon the following statement was issued:

"The State Board of Higher Education and the Advisory Budget Commission met in joint session today and studied the need for increased dormitory facilities at state-supported institutions.

"The two boards agreed that further study is necessary to enable the boards to determine what action if any, should be taken at this time."

There was no indication of when a further study would be made, or by whom. Wednesday, Gov. Sanford had indicated little sympathy with hopes of state-run schools of higher education to continue housing construction with 100 per cent federal loans. Several members of the Advisory Budget Commission, made up mostly of legislators, also had indicated private opposition to the idea.

In a press conference Wednesday, the Governor said the idea of such a loan runs contrary to two other factors.

"In effect," he said, "This would mean that the total loan must be paid off by student fees. This ties in with the idea of whether you are going to price college education out of the reach of the poor student. Our policy has been to try to find ways to meet the rising cost of education for the poor man. I still like that policy."

Second, Sanford said, the Higher Education Board had planned to ask the budget commission for a 'gentlemen's agreement" to include 50 per cent of the dorm costs in the budget to be presented to the 1963 Legislature. Sanford called this "poor planning .. we don't know what the 1963 Legislature will do."

Individual Needs

Sanford said Wednesday that he didn't want to "advise the Advisory Budget Commission what to advise me," but felt that any decision on the request by the Higher Education Board should be made on the basis of "the need at each individual college and the capabilities of the students to pay."

After the Nov. 7 bond referendum, several colleges, led by East Carolina College, broached the idea of 100 per cent federal loans. Funds for 50 per cent of the dormitory costs were included in the proposals which were defeated.

Most dorm construction for several years has been handled on a 50-50 basis, with the state paying half and a federal loan paying the other half. Student fees have been used to repay the loan.

Sanford said the entire field of college costs is being studied by his administration and the Committee on Education Beyond The High School. He indicated that one answer to the problem of rising costs is a revolving fund out of which 100 per cent loans would be made to needy students.

He said banks had also indicated an interest in some sort of long-term higher educational loan program.

UNC Competes In Debating Meet At Duke

Carolina will compete with five other colleges and universities in the Annual Atlantic Coast Conference debate tournament at Duke University today and Saturday.

Teams from the Universities of South Carolina and Virginia; Wake Forest College, and Washington and Lee and Duke Universities will also compete.

The debate will be on the national topic for 1961-62, "Resolved: That Labor Organizations Should Be Under the Jurisdiction of Anti-Trust Legislation."

The University of South Carolina was the winner of the 1961 tournament.

'Great Ziegfeld' Movie Set Tonight

Tonight's Free Flick "The Great Ziegfeld" will star William Powell Myrna Loy, Louise Rainer and Frank Morgan.

The story portrays the life of Florence Ziegfeld from his 1893 activity as promoter of Sandow, the "World's Strongest Man," to the height of his Broadway success. Top figures of American show business, and some of the best known theater tunes are presented in this film.

An Academy Award as the best actress in a starring role was won by Louise Rainer for her role in this movie. The movie also won several other awards including the New York Times Critic awards for best actor and best actress won by Dick Powell and Myrna Loy.

The features are at 7:30 and 9:30 at Carroll Hall. Students must have ID cards.

FILM SOCIETY FEATURE:

Garbo Stars In 'The Kiss'

Greta Garbo and Conrad Nagel, two of the stars of MGM's last silent movie, "The Kiss" which will be shown to members of the UNC-Chapel Hill Film Society on Monday night at 8 o'clock in Carroll Hall.

"The Kiss" also marked the first screen appearance of the young violinist Lew Ayres who has remained a popular Hollywood actor. Jacques Feyder a Belgian director and personal friend of Garbo, directed the picture.

Two Chaplin shorts "Laughing Gas" and "A Night in the Show" are also on the film society program.

Clay Will Give JFK First-Hand Report On Berlin

BERLIN UPI—Gen. Lucius D. Clay will fly to Washington this weekend for a first-hand report to President Kennedy on the Berlin situation, an American spokesman said Thursday.

Kennedy sent Clay, hero of the American-British airlift that broke the 1948-49 Soviet blockade of Berlin, to this divided city as his personal representative at the height of the Communist-provoked crisis last year.

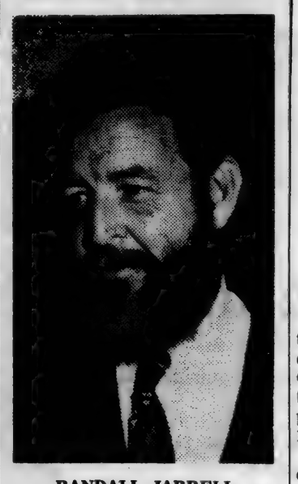
The announcement coincided with renewed East German claims to the "right" to control official American traffic crossing the East-West Berlin border.

The Communists, meanwhile, reinforced security precautions along their wall through Berlin and the adjacent "death zone."

Three 50-foot high watchtowers were erected on the Communist side of the Soviet-American Zone border—in the Zehlendorf, Tempelhof and Steflitz districts.

Infirmary

Students in the Infirmary yesterday included Ellen Ragan, Nina Haynes, Guntherie Lemmond, Susie Woodward, Gail Henrotte, Edith Rogers, Robert Kerney, David Buxton, Thomas Hammond, William Kezziah, John Pettibone, Donald Buffaloe, William Hollyfield, William Hughes, Kenneth Sasser, Robert Bolen, Jerry Johnson, Clinton Coulter, Catherine Johnson, Peter Kelley, William Taylor and Henry Blair.



RANDALL JARRELL

R. Jarrell To Teach Course

Randall Jarrell, 1961 winner of the National Book Award for Poetry and a professor at Woman's College, will teach a graduate seminar on Robert Frost at UNC beginning the spring semester, the English department announced today.

A Literary Recognition Convocation honoring Jarrell was recently held here.

Jarrell was named as the recipient of the $1,000 National Book Award in March. He received the award for his collection of poetry entitled "The Woman at the Washington Zoo," published by Atheneum.

Other well-known poetry collections of the North Carolina poet include "Blood for a Stranger," 1942; "Little Friend, Little Friend," 1945; and "Losses," 1954. The poet-professor has served as Consultant in Poetry in English for the Library of Congress, as literary editor of "The Nation," as Poetry Critic for the "Partisan Review," and has received numerous other honors and awards.

Frost is a four-time Pulitzer Prize winner and the author of some of America's best-loved verse, including "Birches," "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening," "Mending Wall," "Brown's Descent," and "Death of the Hired Man."

Duke Presents E. Ormandy Orchestra

Duke University will present the Philadelphia Orchestra and its noted conductor Eugene Ormandy in a concert in the Duke Indoor Stadium on Tuesday at 8:15 p.m.

The performance is the second attraction in the University's 1961-62 All Star Artists Series and will mark the Philadelphia group's seventh appearance here since 1939.

From its first concert on Nov. 16, 1900, the Philadelphia Orchestra has been one of the world's leading artistic institutions. A Newsweek critic calls it "the world's greatest orchestra." Ormandy assumed his present position in 1936 and has since brought the group its brightest years in its history.

One of the objectives of the Philadelphia Orchestra and Ormandy is the introduction of new works and a continuing expansion of the repertoire. During an average season, approximately 50 works are added to the repertoire, including 12 new works, some of which are world premieres.

Reserved and unreserved seats are available for the Duke performance. All non-reserved seats are $1 and during the advance sale reserved seat tickets may be purchased for $1.50, $2 or $2.50. All reserved seat tickets will cost an additional half dollar the day of the concert.

Reservations may be made by calling Duke University at 681-9111, extension 2911, or writing Box KM, Duke Station, Durham.

SSL Selections Announced Jan. 7

Selections for the State Student Legislature will be announced after the Interim Committee of the SSL meets at Duke University Jan. 7.

The committee has not yet assigned a definite number of SSL delegates for each school. Two UNC students will attend the committee meetings. They are Lila Smith and Dwight Wheless.

Final selections will be announced soon, said Wheless.

Norton Tennill

Carolina Graduate Rhodes Scholar

A 1961 UNC graduate will begin two years of advanced study in classics at Oxford University next October as the 16th Rhodes Scholar to be chosen from UNC during the past 57 years and the first since 1955.

Norton Fortune Tennille, who compiled one of the "finest student records" while here, was named a Rhodes Scholar-elect for 1962 at district competition in Atlanta during the holidays.

The 21-year-old native of Winston-Salem, currently at Harvard on a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, successfully competed against eight others from six Southern states. The Oxford grant, valued at more than $2,000 per year, carries considerable prestige.

An honor graduate in the classics, named Phi Beta Kappa on the strength of a straight A average and 1961 president of that organization, he was a member of leading honor societies including the Golden Fleece, the Order of the Minataurs, the Old Well and the Order of the Grail.

He was also the student organizer of the Advisory Committee of the New Honors Programs, a member of Beta Theta Pi social fraternity, and chairman of the Special Committee of the Carolina Symposium.

Dr. Preston H. Epps, Kenan Professor Emeritus, who, during a teaching career of 45 years, has taught a host of brilliant students including Secretary of State Dean Rusk, calls Tennille one of the five best students he ever had. He is of the same calibre as Rusk, Dr. Epps said, and predicts that Tennille "will not only be a good Rhodes Scholar but a very distinguished one."

Dr. Charles Henderson, Associate Professor of Classics and Dean of Student Affairs, also is a former teacher of Tennille. "I've known him since he was a freshman," he says, "and he's as fine a student as I've had."

UNC's last contribution to the Rhodes Scholar rank was in 1955 when two seniors, Ed Yoder of Mebane and Richard H. Baker of Greensboro, swept to the forefront in Southern competition and became the first "pair" of UNC scholars in the history of the school to win.

Previous Rhodes Scholars from the University were James Horner Winston, class of 1904, a Chicago attorney; Col. Oscar R. Rand, U.S.A. Ret., '08, of Washington, D. C.; William M. Gaddy, '09: Edgar Turlington, '11, Washington, D. C. practicing international law; C. P. Spruill, '20, professor of economics here and former dean of the UNC faculty; Thomas J. Wilson III, '21, director Harvard University Press; William J. Cocke, '25, Asheville attorney; D. Ed Hudgins, '28, Greensboro attorney; Robert W Barnett, '33, and Don G. Henderson, '47, both with the U.S. State Department; N. Ferebee Taylor, '42, New York City attorney; Paul Likins, '55, a nuclear physicist; and Yoder and Baker. Dr. Ernest Craige, '39, a heart specialist with the UNC Medical School, was named a Rhodes Scholar but was unable to attend due to the outbreak of World War II.

Exam Schedule

By action of the faculty, the time of an examination may not be changed after it has been fixed in the schedule. Quizzes are not to be given in this semester on or after Monday, January 15, 1961

The Official Class Roll and Grade Report will be prepared by the Data Processing Section and forwarded to the departments prior to the examination period. As in the past, the original copy will be returned to the Office of Records and Registration, the second copy (canary) is to be retained by the department, and the third copy (goldenrod) is to be kept by the instructor.

Grade reports are to be handed in to the department office within 72 hours after the scheduled time of the final examination. The department chairman shall be responsible for recording receipt of each grade report (the Form DR-1 may be used for this) and for forwarding it promptly to the Office of Records and Registration. In unusual cases, if it is clearly needed, an extension of the time limit, preferably not to exceed 48 hours, may be approved by the department chairman or the dean of the school concerned. The Office of Records and Registration must be given notice of the delay. (Faculty Council, May 6, 1960.) Machine processing of grades makes it urgent that all grades be turned in on time.

All permits to take examinations to remove grades of "Exc. Abs." or "Cond." must be secured from the Office of Records and Registration prior to the exam. No students may be excused from a scheduled examination except by the University Infirmary in case of illness or by his Dean in case of any other emergency compelling his absence.

All 12:00 noon classes on MWF, *Econ, 81	Mon. Jan. 22	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on MWF, *Econ. 31, 32 61 & 70	Mon. Jan. 22	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Tues. Jan. 23	8:30 a.m.
All 12:00 noon classes on TThs, all *Naval Science and *Air Science	Tues. Jan. 23	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on TThs	Wed. Jan. 24	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on TThs, *Poli 41, Busi. 150	Wed. Jan. 24	2:00 p.m.
All French, German & Spanish courses Numbered 1, 2, 3, 3x ? 4, *Phch. 61	Thurs. Jan. 25	8:30 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Thurs. Jan. 25	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Fri. Jan. 26	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Fri Jan. 26	2:00 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Sat. Jan. 27	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on MWF *Busi 160, *Phys. 24	Sat. Jan. 27	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Mon. Jan. 29	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on TThS, *Busi 130, *Chem. 43	Mon. Jan. 29	2:00 p.m.
All 3:00 p.m. classes, *Chem. 11, *Busi. 71 & 72, and all classes not otherwise provided for in this schedule	Tues. Jan. 30	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Tues. Jan. 30	2:00 p.m.

Instructors teaching classes scheduled for common examinations shall request the students in these classes to report to them any conflict with any other examination not later than December 15. In case of a conflict, the regularly scheduled exam will take precedence over the common exam. (Common exams are indicated by an asterisk.)

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 5, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLLX, No. 70

The Coddled Generation

A recent issue of Post magazine featured an article outlining the results of a Gallup Poll inquiring into the attitudes of today's young people—meaning those falling in the age group from mid-teens to mid-twenties.

The figures Post reported amount to a scathing indictment of the generation that now fills America's high schools and colleges and makes up its young labor force.

Summarizing the results of Dr. Gallup's ambitious undertaking in as few words as possible, America's youth is coddled, ultra-conformist, not overly moral, and content to aim low and achieve limited success rather than risk failure by setting its sights too high.

There is little in Gallup's findings that comes as a great surprise. Few would have expected the poll to unearth a seething generation of young fire-brands bent on changing the world. Such a group would be incongruous with today's demands on youth.

Most parents—and indeed, most educators—of today's society prefer a "well-adjusted" young man or woman to a misfit, a conformer to a reformer, a Babbitt to an idealist.

One would hardly expect the youth who has been spoon-fed on warm milk and tepid homilies to suddenly kick over the traces and jump headfirst into the lonesome world of the ambitious, inquiring and dissatisfied.

Perhaps the most disturbing thing about the attitudes of today's coddled generation is that most of the individuals who make it up like it that way. And little wonder. It's a lot easier to take a comfortable job with a big corpration than it is to live on a shoestring while trying to organize your own. And who's around to criticize?

The young man who turns down a secure job with an insurance company to go to Paris and write a book is regarded by the overwhelming majority of people as a thoroughgoing idiot, a worthless and starry-eyed dreamer, or worse.

Post and Dr. Gallup picked on the wrong group for their survey. It's apparent that young Americans are not courageous, idealistic and sacrificing. The question is, why aren't they? They didn't manufacture their conformity and spinelessness, they inherited it. It was shoved down their throats by an older, and supposedly wiser, generation which told them it was better to compromise and settle for a position somewhere well down the scale from the top than to risk getting hurt.

We got the message, Dr. Gallup. Now how about a poll of the Guiding Generation—the parents and teachers who gave us the benefit of their wisdom?

Aid To Communists

After weighing all the pros and cons, and despite deep irritation over President Tito's generally pro-Soviet foreign policies, the Administration has decided to sell Yugoslavia another $45,000,000 worth of surplus food, repayable in untransferable dinars. This brings our total aid to Yugoslavia to more than $2 billion since its break with Moscow in 1948.

The Administration is likewise selling another $44,000,000 worth of agricultural products to Poland, bringing our total aid to it to some $700,000,000 since its anti-Soviet uprising in 1956.

This aid to Communist-dominated countries, a part of our mutual security program that is now passing the $80 billion mark, has always been under challenge, and so are the latest transactions. The Administration itself is well aware of potentially negative effects. It has already cut the Yugoslav request in half and gives Poland only 35 per cent of the 1960 total, besides making most of it repayable in dollars.

But the weight of all considerations is still in favor of continued aid. First of all, it is necessary to distinguish between the Communist rulers and the real sentiments of their people, which enabled President Tito to defy Moscow and inspired the Polish revolt. It is to our interest to keep that spirit of independence alive, and do so by more than words.

Furthermore, so long as President Tito maintains his own independence from Moscow and does not engage in aggressive foreign adventures as he did by aiding the Communist guerillas in the Greek civil war, we have every reason to help him to be independent and as long as possible. He will not fight for the West, but he keeps the Soviets from the Adriatic, and his people would compel him to fight against any Russian invasion of their country.

To a lesser extent similar considerations apply to Poland. It is under the Soviet heel, and Gomulka may be a more subservient Communist than Tito. But the Polish people have enforced reforms that make their country still the freest, internally, among the satellites, and that degree of freedom would have decisive influence on Poland's armies—a factor Premier Khrushchev cannot forget.

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN RETTARI
Associate Editor
LLOYD LEWIS
Executive News Editor
BILL MOSES
Managing Editor
GARRY BEARCHARD
Assistant Editor
NANCY HAIR, LINDA CHAVOUSIA—
Feature Editors
HARRY W. LEWIS Sports Editor
DAVID WYSONG Subscription Manager
JIM BERLAND Circulation Manager
BOB DOWNS Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager
MIKE MATHEWS Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.00 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a member in the United Press International news service. It receives the services of the News Bureau at the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Troika Principle In Asia

Graduate Students Should Realize Other Fields Exist

I am in complete agreement with President Carroll V. Newsom, president of New York University from whom I quote:

"The typical doctoral candidate today is devoid of any breadth of interest; often, in fact, he has specialized so narrowly that he can converse with only three or four people in the world, and he may have little interest in or understanding of the vast realm of ideas that undergird the actions and thoughts of our civilization. These are the people, however, who all too frequently become the teachers and counselors of American university students."

I have lived in the house with graduate students for more than four years, and in my opinion, the whole concept of a Phd needs to be revised. Students have to be in the superior mental group to get in graduate school. To stay in, they have so much work piled on them, as one student said, "You feel like you can't go on, and yet you know you must go on." They work day and night, seldom have time for any kind of outing, and yet they never catch up.

* * *

TO CITE the latest case—One graduate student, just before Christmas, worked all week, went out on Saturday evening, came back and worked on her term-paper until 3:30 a.m. Got up at six and finished her paper in time to go to a ten o'clock class.

I offered to take her paper for her and let her go to sleep. She said this couldn't be done. She had another paper to write for the next day, and a second paper to hand in before she went home on Friday for the Christmas vacation. Nor was this all, she would have to spend her entire holiday studying. She went off more dead than alive, with no prospects of enjoying the Christmas season, or of returning refreshed after Christmas.

Each professor is an expert in his field. He expects a student to be an expert in the subject he teaches, forgetting that the student has three, maybe four, other courses, in which the professors expect the same of him.

If all the subject matter the student covered was important, or relevant, it might be well worth the students time to work himself to the point of exhaustion, to the point where he begins to hate his work. But much of the material he is required to know, to be able to pass a comprehensive examination on, is of no earthly use to him, except to know that it exists and to be able to find it if he needs it.

Psychology teaches us that pleasure is a much more effective teacher than pain. Why not cut the work loan down to the point where the scholar will enjoy his work while stretching his learning capacity to the limit.

NOW THAT WE are on this subject, I have heard more than one graduate student comment on the complete lack of communication between the graduate student and her professors, that they never receive a word of praise or commendation from a professor—that they are not even recognized when they meet in the halls or on the campus.

This is not a strange situation in the large undergraduate classes, but the graduate school class is small. No doubt the professors are burdened with work, and he has to build up a defense mechanism in order not to collapse, but that is another reason why the graduate school may need over-hauling.

I would like to see our universities turn out more complete souls, souls who are not only specialists in their fields, but who are aware other fields also exist.

Maybe, we should call a conference of graduate students, professors, and the administration, and talk this whole thing over. We might be surprised at some of the things we heard, and it is just possible the graduate student, and the professor, no less, might get a better break.

— OTELIA CONNER

Were Old Days Really Good?

Anyone who has ever huddled around a pot-belly stove in a crossroads store on a cold night, or spent a few hours sitting in a village tavern has undoubtedly heard some weatherbeaten old cuss lambasteing everything in today's generation from whiskey to wages to morals. "Back when I was a boy," he begins, "Now, those were the good old days." Then, invariably some young whippersnapper will commit the unpardonable sin of asking —"When was that, Grandpa?"

No one should ever ask such a question. It puts the old timer on a spot, but he always has an answer, and it usually goes something like this: "Well, Sonny, it was afore you ever set foot on God's green earth."

Such an answer will never satisfy the young, inquiring mind, so it sets off to find out if there actually were any good old days.

Let's see, the good old days must have been sometime between 1900 and 1940, Grandpa couldn't date back much further than that. The nineteen-hundreds were supposed to be great years. Years when falsies meant teeth, and some guy named Ford gave Americans a ride in his new vibrating seat called "Tin Lizzie," sending them charging down the road at the breathless speed of thirty miles an hour. Yep, the old black "Lizzie" was a mechanical marvel, but she had one small fault—her cute little crank. In those days, you could always tell the man with a car; he carried his arm in a sling as a trademark. Maybe these were the good old days; there were certainly plenty of modern luxuries; air-conditioned bathrooms only a few hundred feet from the house, and roaring fireplaces that turned your face red while your back slowly turned a pale blue.

These don't sound like the good old days, you say. Well let's take a look at the "roaring twenties." These years must have been great with none of the tensions, toils, and taxes of today.

These were the years that began when most of the voters who could stagger to the polls voted the nation dry. These were the days when Ness and the "Untouchables" kept locking the doors on the "unquenchables," the days of gin mills and G-men. There was no "Twist" or "Rock and Roll" to corrupt the morals of this generation, for they were too busy doing the "Charleston" and the "Black Bottom." The only dangers to health and well-being in these days came from bad booze and stray bullets. At least the twenties went out with a bang, or should we say a crash.

It would be hard to say that the thirties were good old days, unless, of course, you liked to stand in soup lines or sell apples and pencils. Wall Street came tumbling down, and with it went stocks, stockbrokers, and millions of sad suckers.

Hoover taught the nation to eat corn pone and love it. Then FDR taught them a whole new alphabet—CCC, WPA, NRA and PWA. Farmers in the Dust Bowl watched as their top soil departed for Missouri, Arkansas, and points east. There was nothing very good about these old days.

Just when were the good old days? The truth is they were only yesterday, for there is something wonderful in our brain that tends to blur the bad pictures in our memory, and to bring into sharp focus all the good things in our past. So when you take down the old calendar and put up the new remember that 1961 will be the good old days ten years from now, and our generation will bore the next with tales of westerns on black and white TV, and of the time when we had a good-looking doll in the White House.

A Word FOR TV Commercials

Mavericks come and go, but Pepsi-Cola is here to stay.

That's my way of stating a simple truth about television: commercials are better than the programs.

I dissent loudly when someone attacks TV commercials as being odious and out-of-taste. My opinion goes far the other way. I believe they are the best part of any show.

During the World Series, I can barely sit through the tedious innings waiting for the lively Falstaff commercials between them. I find myself tapping the TV tray nervously during football action, anticipating the pleasant break during which a low, sexy voice will tell me of cigarettes that are lit at either end wherever people congregate.

I can figure the exact ending of any suspense story after the first five minutes. The only reason I sit staring at the one-eyed monster is to see those band men march through the tobacco fields playing the L & M song at the end.

DON'T GET ME wrong. I don't run out and buy every product that is presented in such memorable ditties. No more than I buy a piano after hearing Van Cliburn give a delicious rendition of Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto.

I just enjoy commercials as art. And I believe most viewers agree with me.

Why else do they sit glued to their chairs through thousands of the selling pitches? Why else do they veto every attempt to get pay-as-you-go, non-commercial television?

And why shouldn't we feel that way? I believe the industry must pay twice as much for commercials' idea men than for script writers for the actual shows.

I realize everyone doesn't share my beliefs. I realize some people start nonsense conversations or leave the room when the sponsors turn up the volume to tempt them into buying aspirins.

(Incidentally, I believe the leading cause of headaches is that three-times-normal volume in which aspirin commercials are presented.)

But surely these people who score commercials do so only because they have seen all of them at least 400 times. Why do they need to watch and listen? They know all the tunes and pitches by heart.

AND I DON'T think dear old Dad is running out to the kitchen to get beer during every commercial. Most likely he is just opening the refrigerator door to see if the light is still burning.

When Dad whistles (which is 99 per cent of daylight hours—the other one per cent is just before bedtime when he eats soda crackers to ease his ulcers), he never whistles "The Bridge on the River Kwai March." It's always the Jesse Jones Franks song. See what I mean?

Heaven forbid that sponsors should read this article. They might take my statements to heart.

The final result could be one bleak day next March when you hear: "We now interrupt this commercial to bring you the regularly scheduled program."

— KEN WHEELER

Quiet Integration Best Policy Here?

Editor of the Tar Heel,

With the current controversy raging on the theater integration situation, let me inject an idea.

It is becoming accepted by most whites, at least those in our area, that integration is inevitable, but time will be the only impeding factor. The Negroes, however, do not wish to wait any longer. They feel that nearly one hundred years is long enough. In the difference of these two attitudes lies the conflict.

With the total integration of the Varsity there was considerable publicity, but only after four days of integration. The people who sat beside those Negroes did not know whether they were students or non-students until the news was released. They accepted them and sat with them. There was no tension, I am sure.

This demonstrates that a certain amount of hypocrisy exists among the whites. They accept their fellow students who are Negro but will not do the same for the off-campus Negro. I have heard many of my fellow students speak of the Negroes they know as fine people, then turn and utter a condemnation of Negroes in general. A large portion of the solution to the problem lies in their recognition of their hypocrisy.

THE TOTAL integration of the Varsity may result in a loss of some of its prestige among students. Their lack of attendence may cut down on the receipts of that theater. However, it is too soon yet to tell about this. Nevertheless, the possibility still exists.

The Carolina, as far as I know, still follows its policy of admitting student Negroes only. The rest of the Negroes will eventually demand complete integration there also. Their success will probably come, but only after tense nerves and harsh words on both sides and a possible loss of prestige to the theater. A solution is in order to alleviate if not to eliminate these feelings.

This is the solution that I would propose:

1. That the Carolina begin, in the near future, a policy of complete integration. This would come eventually anyway.

2. That no public announcement be made by either faction, Negro or white, as to the change in policy.

In the second provision lies the solution to the conflict. In order to assure the success of this provision, the explicit help of the press would be required.

Of course, eventually the policy change would become known, but only after an extended period of integration.

* * *

WHEN THE POLICY change became public, the white segregationist who sat next to the town Negro might think twice before he condemned him. He might realize his hypocrisy and that the off-campus Negro might not be as different as he thought he was. Also, the impact of the change of policy might not take a toll on the Carolina's prestige if the change was not immediately evident.

In closing, let me say that I am not a fiery-eyed integrationist at all. I just feel that integration is inevitable and the smoother we can make the transition, the better the chances for the solving of the cultural and sociological factors that enter into the problem.

NEAL A. JACKSON

Let's Stand & Sing?

Dear Sir:

Reference is made to the article which appeared in The Daily Tar Heel on December 13, 1961, by Mr. Wade Wellman.

My congratulations, Mr. Wellman, on a brilliant analysis of the relative evil shown by the Russians during World War II compared to that of the Germans under Hitler. With your flair for creating an illusion, I think you should seriously consider a career in creative writing.

Now shall we all stand together and give a rousing rendition of "Deutschland Ueber Alles"?

CHARLES E. JENNER

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Carrier Current

Friday, January 5

6:00 The Dinner Hour
6:55 Campus News
7:00 Project 60
8:00 Let's Listen to Opera
10:00 10 o'clock Report
10:15 Concerto for Human Voice
10:45 Hillside Jazz
11:15 News
12:00 Sign-off

Saturday, January 6

6:00 The Dinner Hour
6:55 News
7:00 Canadian Drama
7:30 Vistas of Israel
7:45 One More Step
8:00 Masterwork
10:00 10 O'clock Report
10:15 Pete Ivey News
10:30 The Quiet Hours
10:55 News
11:00 Campus News
11:05 Quiet Hours
11:55 Preview
12:00 Sign-off

Sunday, January 7

6:00 The Dinner Hour
6:55 Campus News
7:00 The Canterbury Hour
7:15 Man with a Question
7:30 Sacred Note
7:45 The Search
8:00 Concert Hall
10:00 10 o'clock Report
10:15 Press Round-up
10:30 Quiet Hours
10:55 News
11:00 Campus News
11:05 Quiet Hours
11:55 Preview
12:00 Sign-off

Monday, January 8

6:00 Music from the Screen
6:55 Campus News
7:00 Masterworks from France
7:30 Dateline London
7:45 Radio Moscow
8:00 Masterwork
10:00 10 o'clock Report
10:10 C.U. News
10:15 Round-up of British Weeklys
10:30 Quiet Hours
10:55 News
11:00 Campus News
11:05 Soultime
11:55 Preview
12:00 Sign-off

Kennedy Leaves Fla. Early

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—President Kennedy decided Thursday to cut short by 24 hours his stay in this resort city in order to spend a busy weekend in Washington preparing for the reconvening of Congress next week.

The Chief Executive originally planned to remain here until Saturday and fly to Columbus, Ohio, for a political speech that night, but the White House announced Thursday that this schedule had been changed and the President would leave for Washington at 4 p.m. EST Friday.

The President's wife, Jacqueline, and their two children will remain in Palm Beach for a few days after the Chief Executive departs. However, Mrs. Kennedy plans to be back in the capital in time to hear her husband deliver his State of the Union message to a joint session of Congress next Thursday or Friday.

Kennedy has been in Palm Beach since Dec. 19 when he rushed southward to the bedside of his father, former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, who suffered a stroke. The elder Kennedy now appears well out of danger and is reported making daily progress.

To Send Mission

The White House also announced Thursday that it is sending a foreign aid mission to the Dominican Republic to fathom the needs of the new regime.

President Kennedy for weeks has been encouraging the development of a stable government in the island nation which was caught up in confusion and unrest following the fall of dictator Rafael Trujillo.

Thursday's announcement that a special foreign aid mission would leave for Santo Domingo next Sunday was regarded as a major step in the Kennedy administration's support of the new Dominican government.

The mission is to be headed by Teodoro Moscoso, chief of Kennedy's "Alliance for Progress" program.

Moscoso, whose official title is assistant administrator of the Agency for International Development (AID)," has been instructed to "seek information in the areas of the monetary and fiscal situation in the Dominican Republic and the possible need for emergency programs," the announcement said.

To Meet With Mills

Topping Kennedy's agenda upon his return to Washington Saturday will be a 10:30 a.m. meeting with Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee. It is this committee that will handle such important administration legislation this year as medical care for the aged and overhaul of the reciprocal trade agreements program.

He will spend only a few hours Saturday night in Columbus, arriving at 5:45 p.m. EST and departing after his address for Washington at about 9:30 or 10 p.m. EST.

Sunday he has scheduled talks with John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and Gen. Luscius D. Clay, the President's personal representative in Berlin who is returning to this country for consultation.

TO VISIT GUINEA

MOSCOW (UPI)—First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan left Thursday for Guinea to try to patch up the strained relations between Russia and Guinea. He will visit Ghana en route home.

Canadians Are Gabbiest People On A Telephone

WASHINGTON (UP)—Canadians are the gabbiest people in the world—at least on the telephone.

This was the conclusion served up Thursday by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. which said the average Canadian citizen made 525 calls during 1961.

The average American, with about 515 calls to his credit, was not far behind.

The United States, with more than half of the world's 141.7 million telephones located within its borders, had about 16 times more phones than the Soviet Union, the company said. The United States had 74.3 million and Russia 4.2 million.

This meant there were more than 40 phones for every 100 Americans and about 2 for every 100 Russians.

New York City, with 4.5 million telephones, far outdistanced Los Angeles with 3.2 million and Chicago with 1.9 million.

But Washington, D. C., city of federal bureaucrats, had 83.1 telephones for every 100 citizens. This was far more than any other major city in the world.

Campus Briefs

The Carolina Forum will not meet today but will meet next Friday, Jan. 12.

The YW-YMCA Catholic Orphanage Committee's field trip to the orphanage in Raleigh will leave Y-Court at 2 p.m. Sunday. Interested students have been invited to come. The committee will return to the campus by 5:30 p.m.

Associate Dean of Arts and Sciences Frank Duffey yesterday announced that students interested in graduate study at Syracuse University may inquire at the College of Arts and Sciences regarding the residence adviser program at that institution.

The Baptist Student Union will host a group of Duke's BSUers tonight at its supper-study program at 5:45 p.m. at the BSU Center, 151 E. Rosemary St. A square dance at Camp New Hope will follow the program. The BSU has invited students to the supper-study program, which is held every Friday, and to the special dance tonight.

The University Party will hold an open meeting Monday at 7 p.m. at Gerrard Hall. President Bill Criswell said the purpose of the meeting will be to discuss policy for the spring semester and to air the financial issues which were brought out in the last meeting.

Thomas J. Jenkins of the Federal Bureau of Investigation will be on campus today at 1:50 p.m. in the Court Room of the Law School. He will discuss career opportunities in the FBI with any interested students.

WUNC-TV is presently holding auditions for an on-camera TV newscaster. Interested students should contact Roger Koontz at WUNC for an appointment.

WUNC Widens Range To 100 Mile Radius

One million more North Carolinians were brought within range of frequency modulation station WUNC, broadcasting at 91.5 on the FM radio dial, in ceremonies here this week.

WUNC has extended its broadcasting area from 25 miles to 100 miles from Chapel Hill, made possible by a gift of a transmission system valued at $20,000 which gives WUNC extra power. WUNC advanced Wednesday night from 14,000 watts to 50,000 watts, bringing 1,500,000 people of the state within the sound of the broadcasting station in the University here.

Chancellor William B. Aycock and President William C. Friday spoke at the first broadcast under the new power system.

Broadcasts will be daily from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. Cultural and educational programs will predominate, including network programs from British Broadcasting Co., French Broadcasting System, Israel Broadcasting Service, United Nations Radio and Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Friedrich Will Address French Club Tuesday

Dr. Werner Friedrich, Kenan professor of German Literature, will speak on "The Hegemony of French Literature in the 18 Century" Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the regular meeting of the Alliance Francaise in the Chapel of the Cross.

A brief business meeting and social hour with refreshments will also be part of the program.

Dr. Friederich was the founder of the Comparative Language Section of the Modern Language Association as well as the founder and long-time editor of the Comparative Language Series which are published in Chapel Hill.

At different times he has served as president and secretary of the Internation Comparative Language Association. Currently he is active in the organization of a Congress on Languages and Literatures to be held in the U. S. in 1964.

Members of Alliance Francaise have been urged to attend this meeting.

Nehru Hopes To Liberate Kashmir

PATNA, India (UPI)—The president of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's Congress party pledged Thursday to drive the Chinese from Indian soil and "liberate" all of Kashmir from Pakistan.

The threat of military action against China and Pakistan was made by Sanpiva Reddy shortly before an unruly crowd of thousands of Nehru's admirers broke through police barriers with bamboo poles for a closer look at their idol.

The annoyed Nehru declined to be present in a meeting "dominated by such undiciplined admirers." He stalked out of the pre-conference session, ending the proceedings an hour ahead of schedule.

Reddy spoke at the traditional flag raising ceremony before formal opening of the party's conference. He delivered the major political address although Nehru spoke in support of the party's election manifesto calling for national integration.

Reddy Said

Reddy said Communits China's new pentration in the Ladakh area north of Kashmir has tried India's patience. The Chinese are mistaken if they believe India will allow this indefinitely, he said.

Referring to Pakistan, Reddy said India cannot accept the present cease-fire line in Kashmir as a permanent solution to the dispute with Pakistan which also claims Kashmir. He said the entire country supports the government action to "liberate" parts of Kashmir now under Pakistani control.

Speeches by the congress president usually reflect official Indian government policy. Reddy's rejection of the cease-fire line indicated a hardening of government policy in the long-smoldering dispute.

Liberate Kashmir

"We hope that within a short time the government will take steps to liberate that part of Kashmir occupied by Pakistan," Reddy said. "It is, however, to be left to the government to choose the proper time for this purpose."

Reddy said India fully supports Indonesia's claim to West Irian Dutch New Guinea and expressed confidence "the Indonesians will be able to wipe out the last vestiges of colonialism from their soil within the next few months."

He denied India was guilty of aggression in taking Goa and said if Portugal walked out of the United Nations the organization "would not be poorer if the colonialists left it."

Fellowships Open To Grad Students Here

Donald R. Hamilton, Dean of the Graduate School of Princeton University, has announced the availability of the Louis E. Wolfson Fellowship for students from the Southeastern area of the United States who show "unusual brilliance and promise" in the fields of the humanities and social sciences.

Recipients of these fellowships will be chosen in the area covered by Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee Alabama and Mississippi.

The students must be legal residents of one of these states to meet the geographical eligibility requirement. The Louis E. Wolfson Fellowship normally carries a stipend of $2,700, of which $1,450 will be paid for tuition fees.

Applicants should write to the Princeton Graduate School for a catalogue and an application for admission. A short statement on the application that the student wishes to be considered for the Wolfson Fellowship is the only application required.

TO VISIT U.S.

TOKYO (UPI) — Former Japanese Premier Shigeru Yoshida will visit the United States and Argentina in April, the newspaper Yomiuri Shimbun reported Thursday.

TV Schedule

WUNC-TV Channel 4

6:00—Chronicle
6:45—What's New
7:15—U.N. Review
7:30—Music
8:30—Prelude
9:00—Age of Kings
10:30—Sign Off

WRAL TV Channel 5

6:00—Cap'n 5
6:20—Viewpoint
6:25—Weather
6:30—Reeve With Sports
6:45—Huntley-Brinkley Report
7:00—Hawaiian Eye
8:00—Robert Taylor's Detectives
9:00—77 Sunset Strip
10:00—Ben Casey
11:00—Dateline News
11:10—Sportsline
11:15—Jack Paar

SOCCER SCRIMMAGE TODAY

The varsity soccer team will scrimmage with an all-campus team today at 4 p.m. at Fetzer Field. Any member of either team who has not been notified is requested to attend.

TICKETS NOW ON SALE
ALL-TIME ACADEMY AWARD CHAMPION!
METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER presents WILLIAM WYLER'S

TECHNICOLOR® CAMERA 65
1:00 — 4:50 — 8:40
Varsity

Old Southern Magazines

The feature case in our Old Book corner this week is filled with an interesting collection of back-number magazines—mostly Southern. You'll find ancient copies of The Trinity Archive, The North Carolina Quarterly, Holland's Southern Magazine—plus what's left of the set of National Geographic we first put out last Fall—all at cute little prices. Whether you buy or not, we think you'll get a kick out of looking through them.

COMING NEXT MONDAY—the Library of a Diplomat-Historian. A distinguished collection of "work-horse" books for your pleasure.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
OPEN TILL 10 P.M.

Positions with Potential
ENGINEERS • CHEMISTS • PHYSICISTS
Ceramic • Chemical • Civil Electrical • Industrial • Mechanical Metallurgical

National Carbon Company, America's leading manufacturer of carbon and graphite products, offers positions to qualified B.S. and M.S. graduates in the fields listed above.

Our products include graphite anodes, electrodes, motor and generator brushes, arc carbons and special graphite shapes used in nuclear, missile, and a wide variety of industrial applications.

We serve such key industries as aircraft, aluminum, automotive, chemical, mining, motion pictures, nuclear, steel, transportation, and the electrical manufacturers.

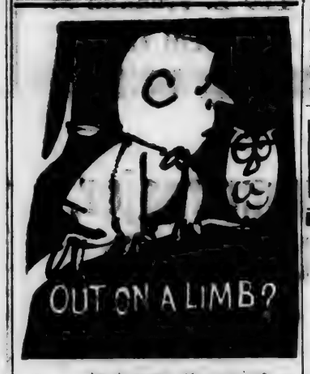
Positions are available at 12 plants and laboratories located in Ohio, New York, West Virginia and Tennessee and also in our Marketing organization which covers the 48 states from nine key cities.

Interesting, rewarding careers are offered in research, process and product development, production and methods engineering, product and process control, machine development, plant engineering, marketing, technical sales and technical service.

A National Carbon representative will be on campus:

JAN. 16, 1962

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY
Division of Union Carbide Corporation
UNION CARBIDE
AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER



It's easy to feel that way when you can't seem to get ahead of financial woes. But, things probably aren't as bad as they seem.
A good way to begin your financial planning is through life insurance. And a good time to begin is now, when you'll profit by lower premiums. Many new plans and features, especially attractive to college students, deserve your consideration.
Stop by our campus office, or telephone for more information.
PROVIDENT MUTUAL
Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

Get Better Grades With Study Aids
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

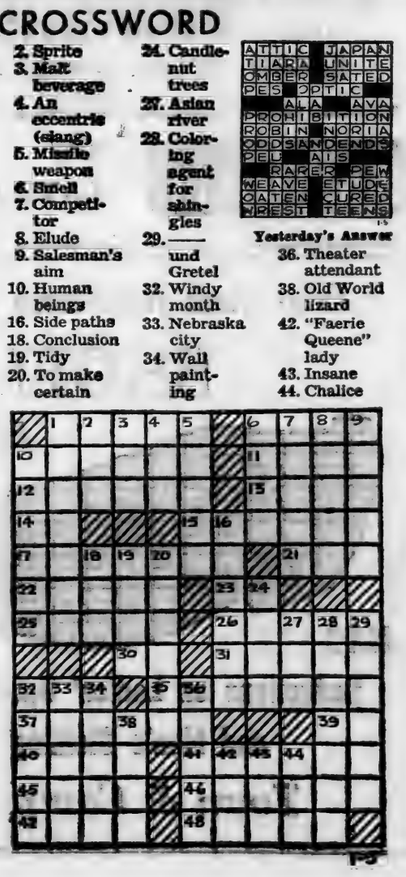
GOLF CITY'S 19th HOLE
MUSIC • DANCING
SANDWICHES • BEER
ACROSS FROM HOWARD JOHNSONS OPEN 12-12

BERLIN
a film report in full color
Narrated in person by the man who made the film
ART WILSON
MEMORIAL HALL 8:00 P.M.
Tuesday, January 9
Admission $1.00
Graham Memorial Travel Adventure Series

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Resources
6. Metallic rocks
10. Airplane maneuver
11. A prima donna
12. Spent
13. Egg-shaped
14. About
15. To rub off
17. Complete
21. Man's nickname
22. Unaspirated consonants
23. Siamese measure
25. Old Norse works
26. Sect of Mennonites
30. You: It.
31. Black Sea resort
32. Mother (colloq.)
35. Moscow citizen
37. Entertains
39. Part of "to be"
40. Not common
41. Kind
45. Fellow (colloq.)
46. Tooth covering
47. Dutch painter
48. Radio detecting device

DOWN
1. Deadened, as sound
2. Sprite
3. Malt beverage
4. An eccentric (slang)
5. Missile weapon
6. Smell
7. Competitor
8. Elude
9. Salesman's aim
10. Human beings
16. Side paths
18. Conclusion
19. Tidy
20. To make certain
24. Candlenut trees
27. Asian river
28. Coloring agent for shingles
29. —— und Gretel
32. Windy month
33. Nebraska city
34. Wall painting
36. Theater attendant
38. Old World lizard
42. "Faerie Queene" lady
43. Insane
44. Chalice



Yesterday's Answer

ATTIC JAPAN
TIARA UNITE
OMBER SATED
PES OPTIC
ALA AVA PROHIBITION
ROBIN NORIA
ODDS AMENDS
PEL AIS
RARER PEW
WEAVE ETUDE
OATEN CURED
WREST TEENS

Read more, Retain more, get Better Grades through
Reading Dynamics
LEARN TO READ 3 TO 10 TIMES FASTER WITH IMPROVED COMPREHENSION

If you are an average reader, you read at a speed of about 250 words a minute. If you are exceptional, you may approach 550 words a minute. Whatever your present speed, Reading Dynamics can teach you to increase it by 3 to 10 times—and increase your understanding and enjoyment of what you read.

Through Reading Dynamics, you can breeze through your required reading and retain more of what you read. You'll get better grades and still have plenty of time to pursue your own reading interests.

Thousands of people, ranging in age from 13 to 84, have learned to read in this new way. Classes include top business executives, government officials, professional men and women, students and educators.

U. S. Senators and members of the House of Representatives have taken the course. A number of them demonstrated their progress in reading on a nationwide TV show. Many have urged that this method be taught in every public school in the country.

Those who have practiced one hour a day and completed the course have increased their reading speed by at least 3 times. Others have been able to achieve a reading rate of 10 times their beginning speed. A few, with special aptitude, have learned to read—and understand—what they read—at 100 times their original rate. Reading experts and educators, skeptical at first, have verified the ability of Reading Dynamics students to read and comprehend at such speeds. You may have seen such skill demonstrated on the Jack Paar, Garry Moore or Art Linkletter TV shows, or read about Reading Dynamics in Time, Newsweek or Business Week.

MORNING, AFTERNOON AND EVENING CLASSES NOW FORMING. SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT FOR GROUPS.

FOR COMPLETE INFORMATION, DESCRIPTIVE LITERATURE, CLASS SCHEDULES, WRITE, VISIT OR CALL:

274-4273

Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics Institute of Greensboro, Inc., 1410 Westover Terrace, Greensboro, N. C.

SEE
Reading Dynamics in Action
Home Savings & Loan Community Room, 123 No. Columbia St., Chapel Hill, N. C.
January 8 — 8:00 P.M.
NO RESERVATION • NO OBLIGATION

POGO

PEANUTS

Students Can Charter Bus To ND Game

HARRY W. LLOYD

THE SPORTS

Tabbloyd

Coach Dean Smith is interested in a lot more than just producing a winning basketball team here at UNC. The Carolina mentor, in his first season at the top job, feels that his team belongs to the students. Since taking over, Smith has done his best to see that the students get to enjoy their share in the basketball team.

There are some problems in presenting basketball to the UNC student, especially this year. Because of the limited seating capacity in tiny Woollen Gym, more and more games have been moved off campus to allow a larger crowd.

This year, with the schedule cut to 16 games, there were only 6 home games on the card — not a single varsity contest on the home court between December 2 and January 15. Coach Smith was mainly responsible for having the priority periods removed from the ticket distribution plans for the first two home games. He also made it easier for a person to get his free ticket, by not requiring him to accompany his ID card to the ticket window. That is, one person can get tickets for his buddies if he shows their ID cards along with his own.

The coach also pushed for letting students in free to games played in such places in North Carolina as Greensboro and Charlotte. The cost was cut in half for the game in Greensboro on Dec. 11. For the Notre Dame contest in Charlotte tomorrow night, there will be no admission charge to UNC students.

Smith yesterday put his endorsement behind a plan to charter a bus to carry fans to Charlotte to the game. In fact, he would like for any student who wants to see his Tar Heels play get free transportation to the game — but that isn't possible quite yet.

Before the holidays, we discussed with him the feasibility of showing game films on WUNC television. He was pleased at the possibility, and also expressed hope that he could show basketball films — especially the one about the '57 championship team — at one of the "free flick" sessions one weekend.

It remains to be seen, however, if Coach Smith is barking up the wrong tree in trying to do a good turn to Carolina students. In the past, only a handful or so have been ready to accept such gratuities.

For example, the Student Athletic Association tried to sponsor its annual "Carolina Caravan" to Maryland for the football game there. Interested students were given the opportunity to go by chartered bus to the game. The result was that the trip had to be cancelled because less than a dozen were interested. None of the male cheerleaders made the trip. The people who stayed at home missed seeing one of the best games played all year by the Tar Heels.

Even with the admission prices to the Indiana game at Greensboro cut to half price, only a few diehard fans, mostly friends of the players, troubled to make the trip. Not a cheerleader was present.

Head cheerleader Al Roper said afterwards, "We all had tests the next day. It wasn't a home game, anyway."

When the Carolina basketball teams of a couple of years ago were riding the waves of success, almost any student who knew that the school colors are blue and white would have followed them to Zanzibar to watch a basketball game. Today, even the cheerleaders will go to games only when it is convenient.

We hope that at least a few of the UNC students will respond today and tomorrow. If 41 students will sign up to take the chartered bus to Charlotte, they will be able to make the trip and see two fine games Saturday for only $3.50.

We urge all real sports fans to act fast. They have only until noon to make a reservation. Their presence could mean a lot toward a UNC victory.

The Studuent Athletic Association, in co-operation with the Daily Tar Heel sports department and Graham Memorial, is attempting to sponsor a chartered bus trip to Charlotte for the North Carolina-Notre Dame game on Saturday.

All persons interested in making the trip by bus must act immediately. Anyone who would like to go to the game on the charter is asked to come to the GM information desk THIS MORNING BEFORE 12 NOON in order to make a reservation.

Reservations must be accompanied by the sum of $3.50, which is expected to cover all of the costs.

There will be no admission charges for UNC students who wish to see the game. Date tickets for the game will cost one dollar.

The cost per person of $3.50 is based on the total costs for a 41 passenger bus. It is absolutely necessary that all reservations be made before noon today so that the bus company can be notified.

The bus or buses would leave Chapel Hill about 4 p.m. on Saturday. The Carolina-Notre Dame game begins at 9 p.m., following a preliminary between Belmont Abbey and Catawba College. The bus would return to Chapel Hill immediately after the game.

In case there are not enough persons to make reservations, then the trip will be canceled. All money will be returned to those people who have made their reservations.

Daily Tar Heel Sports

Page Four — Friday, January 5, 1962

Frosh Spank Davidson; Away Tonite

By ED DUPREE

UNC's freshman basketballers travelled to Davidson Wednesday and came home with a 67-63 victory over the strong Wildcat frosh for their fourth straight win of the young season.

The Tar Babies never trailed the Wildkittens, but it took the clutch play of Bill Brown and Ray Respess to sew the game up in the last minute.

Brown's field goal with thirty seconds remaining broke a 62-62 tie and after Davidson tallied with a foul shot, the 6-3 guard added a free toss of his own to run the score to 65-63.

Davidson's Fred Hetzel missed a one-and-one foul shot with 8 seconds left and Respess sunk two charity tosses with two seconds to go to account for UNC's final two points.

The Tar Babies, who hold pre-Christmas wins over Virginia, Elon, and South Carolina, played with only two days practice since December 15. Coach Kenny Rosemond added that the Davidson yearlings had been practicing for a week and had also played a game Tuesday night.

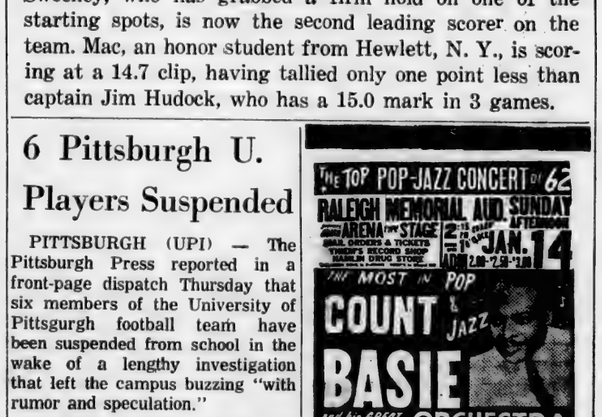
The Tar Heels frosh played a delay game for the last 12 minutes when Bill Cunningham, Jay Neary, and Brown got in foul trouble. The home team went into a full court press at the same time, but the Tar Babies' cautious play resulted in a victory.

Neary connected on 10 of 16 field goals for 20 points and high-scoring honors. Brown was close behind with 19 markers.

Respess hit on 4 of 5 from the floor and 5 of 6 on the foul line for 18 points. Cunningham, 9, and Pud Hassell, 6, rounded out the Carolina scoring.

Don Davidson was high scorer for the Wildkittens, tallying 16, while Hetzel accounted for 14.

Neary leads the well-balanced Tar Baby scoring attack with 78 points and a 19.5 average. Cunningham follows closely with an 18.5 mark, and Respess is next with 17.5. Brown's 12.8 mean and Hassell's 7.5 round out the starting lineup.



FLASHY FORWARD — Sophomore Bryan McSweeney, who has grabbed a firm hold on one of the starting spots, is now the second leading scorer on the team. Mac, an honor student from Hewlett, N. Y., is scoring at a 14.7 clip, having tallied only one point less than captain Jim Hudock, who has a 15.0 mark in 3 games.

Golf Trail Begins Today With Los Angeles Tourney

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The million dollar chase toward the gold at the end of the 1962 golfing rainbow starts Friday when the world's greatest shotmakers tee off in the $45,000 Los Angeles Open-first stop on a full year of campaigning.

While most of the top professionals in the country will be competing, much of the attention will be focused on Jack Nicklaus, the National Amateur king who is making his debut in the pro ranks.

It's a 72-hole battle over the public Rancho course, with the final set for Monday.

There isn't a favorite in the all-star field. The defending champion is Bob Goalby, a longshot victor last year. But the competitors also include Masters' champion Gary Player, leading money winner of 1961; Arnold Palmer, considered the greatest of the current crop, and Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis dentist who has won more money than any other man in the post war years.

"It's hard to pick a favorite in this field," says soft-spoken Art Wall, a former Masters' champ who hasn't won a tournament in more than a year and a half. "It's always a tossup. But I suppose you would have to go with big winners like Player and Palmer."

Hottest man in recent weeks has been Gay Brewer, of Crystal River, Fla. He won two of the last three tournaments in which he played and finished second in the other.

6 Pittsburgh U. Players Suspended

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Press reported in a front-page dispatch Thursday that six members of the University of Pittsgurgh football team have been suspended from school in the wake of a lengthy investigation that left the campus buzzing "with rumor and speculation."

Pitt athletic director Frank Carver confirmed the suspensions, but said he was not certain of their durations. The Press reported they ranged from one to two trimesters, which could leave all six players ineligible for varsity competition next fall.

Other university officials, when contacted, refused to comment on the disciplinary suspension or why they were imposed.

DENIES REPORTS

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — The Cambodian government Thursday denied reports Prince Norodom Sihanouk has agreed with Communist North Viet Nam officials to allow "an increase" of Communist Viet Congo troops in Cambodia. A report in the Saigon newspaper Dan Viet said Sihanouk was permitting Communist bases in Cambodia. The government denied that, too.

CLASSIFIED ADS

LIFE INSURANCE IS MADE TO order for impatient young men. Let a Northwestern Mutual agent assist you in creating an estate. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. Telephone 942-6966.

Milton's January Colossal

All those special patterns in Milton's finer fitting suits and sport coats now at fabulous reductions.

Group suits cut from $85.00 to $57.50; group suits regularly to $70.00 now at $39.99; $62.50, and $65.00 suits now $49.99; $69.50 suits cut to $55.00; $72.50 to $57.50; $75.00 to $60.00; $79.50 and $85.00 now $65.00; $90.00 reduced to $70.00.

Group sport coats formerly to $51.50, now $29.99; Group sport coats regularly to $45.00, take your pick at $24.99; remaining stock of sport coats cut from $39.95 to $32.99; $42.50 and $45.00 to $34.99; $48.75 to $39.99 and $51.50 to $42.99.

All Sales Cash and Final — Many other door-breaking buys.

Alterations Extra but superbly done by Carlton.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

Lady Milton January Colossal

Tempting buys on the best looking sportswear in the North, East, West and South

Group shirtdresses formerly to $19.95, now $10.99 and $21.95 to $32.95 at $14.99

Remaining shirtdresses cut from $14.95 to $12.99; $16.95 to $13.99;; $19.95 to $16.99; $22.95 to $18.99; $24.95 to $19.99; $26.95 to $21.99.

Sweaters, skirts, belts and other items for a buying holiday.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

Carolina NOW PLAYING

Entire Stock Taylor-Made

SHOES

AT COST

ALSO—

Reductions on Ladies' Sportswear and Men's Clothing

Town & Campus

Uncle Shelby's ABZ Book Is back In Stock

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St.

Open Till 10 P.M.

SPECIAL GROUP

OF SUITS, SPORTCOATS AND TOPCOATS REDUCED

20%

Broken Sizes In FLORSHEIM and FRENCH SHRINER SHOES

Julian's College Shop

Career Cues:

"Whatever your major, make sure to include a course in 'people'!"

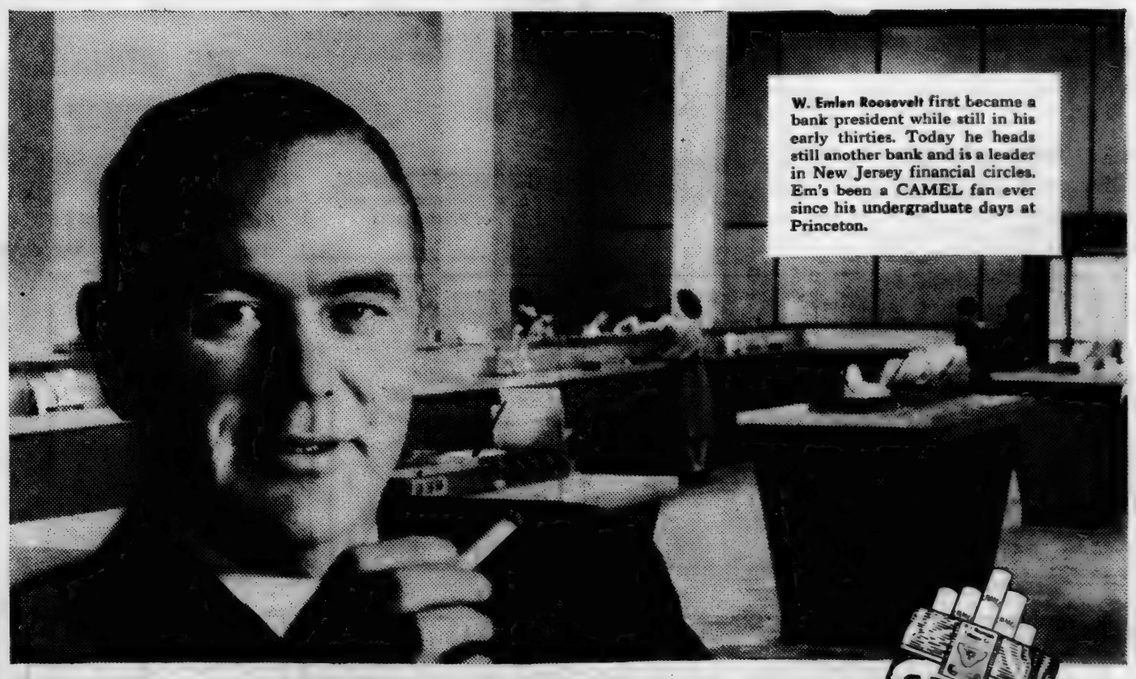
W. Emlen Roosevelt, President
National State Bank, Elizabeth, N.J.

"If my college adviser had prophesied that studying psychology would some day help promote my career in banking, I'd have scoffed. Yet that is exactly what has happened. And when I think about it now the reason seems obvious. The facts and figures of banking, or of any other field, are mechanical devices. They take on real meaning only when related to people.

"Good psychology is also the basis of all teamwork. And, since most of today's business and scientific problems are too complicated for 'one man' solutions, teamwork is essential. If you want to be a valuable team player, and a likely candidate for captain, be the person who understands people. Learn what it takes for people to work together in harmony. Learn how to win trust and confidence. Learn basic human psychology.

"Bear this in mind, too. World tension, community tension, business tension, even family tension are the facts of everyday life. The more you know of human behavior, the better prepared you will be to deal with these problems.

"So, if you have the chance, take a course devoted to 'people.' Your class adviser can probably help you fit a psychology elective into your schedule. I don't think you'll regret it... I know I didn't."



W. Emlen Roosevelt first became a bank president while still in his early thirties. Today he heads still another bank and is a leader in New Jersey financial circles. Em's been a CAMEL fan ever since his undergraduate days at Princeton.

If flavor is your major satisfaction in smoking...

Have a real cigarette—Camel

THE BEST TOBACCO MAKES THE BEST SMOKE

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company Winston-Salem North Carolina

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.
Wasted Volumes

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Occasional rain, turning cooler

Offices in Graham Memorial | SATURDAY, JANUARY 6, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

SHIRLEY MacLAINE

Shirley MacLaine Stars In Flick, 'The Sheepman'

Glenn Ford, Shirley MacLaine and Leslie Neilson star in tonight's Free Flick, "The Sheepman."

The theme of this technicolor comedy is the conflict of cattlemen and sheepmen and is presented with a whimsical tinge in the story of a sheepowner who brings his herd into the heart of cow country.

The newcomer (Ford) prefers to outwit his adversaries, but is ready to outpunch or outshoot them if the need arises.

Showings will be held in Carroll Hall at 7:30 and 9:30. ID cards will be checked before students are admitted.

NSA Pushing Exchange Plan With Russians

The United States National Student Association is conducting negotiations with Russia with the hope of continuing the program of joint-academic exchange.

The proposed program will consist of the exchange of two students from each country for one academic year, beginning Sept., 1962. Negotiations for this program have not been completed.

Qualifying students must be pursuing academic objectives which can be advanced by a year of study in Russia, must have a good knowledge of the Russian language, spoken and written and must have a broad acquaintance with all aspects of United States and Russian life and culture.

All costs to the student will be borne by the program.

Students can pick up applications at the Student Government Office. Applications must be returned by Feb. 28, 1962.

4 Grad Students Win Rotary Grants

Teachers Expected To Pick Schools In Mexico, Brazil, Austria, & Scotland

Four Carolina graduate students have been awarded Rotary Foundation Fellowships for study abroad during the 1962-63 academic year, it was announced yesterday.

They are Julia Steanson, Sidney Williams, Jere Starling and Gayle Henrette.

Studying under a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, Miss Steanson expects to receive her master's degree this year. She will attend the National Autonomous University of Mexico under the Rotary fellowship.

Mr. Williams was awarded a teaching fellowship in 1960 by UNC and expects to attend the National University of Buenos Aires.

Mr. Starling, who also holds a fellowship, is working toward a doctor of philosophy degree. He expects to attend the University of Edinburgh, Scotland.

Miss Henrette, winner of a Maud E. Warwick Fund scholarship in 1958, received her master's from UNC last year. She is expected to attend the University of Vienna.

Own Responsibility

Admission to these schools is the responsibility of the students.

Awarding 135 fellowships, Rotary International awarded 135 fellowships to outstanding young men and women students in 34 countries, with each grant averaging approximately $2,600.

As Rotary Fellows, Miss Steanson will study Hispanic language in literature, Mr. Williams will study modern Spanish drama, Mr. Starling, English literature and Miss Henrette, music and literature.

All four are planning to enter the teaching profession.

MINISTER RESIGNS

PARIS (UPI)—Finance Minister Wilfrid Baumgartner, 58, has offered his resignation for health reasons, government sources said Thursday. President Charles de Gaulle is expected to announce a successor later this month.

Infirmary

Students in the infirmary yesterday included Donna Hunt, Nina Haynes, Guthrie Lemmond, Gayle Henrette, Robert Kearney, David Buxton, Mort Neblett, Dale Robinson, John Pettibone, Brent Buscher, Donald Buffaloe, William Hollifield, Robert Bolan, Jerry Johnson, Clinton Coulter, Robert Ashby, Neil Clark, George Wynne, Winston Sanford, Catherine Johnson, David Wysong, William Taylor, Henry Blair, John Gentry, Theodore Steinberg.

REQUESTS NEGOTIATIONS

PARIS (UPI)—Tunisia has asked France to resume negotiations on Bizerte and to name a responsible cabinet minister to take part in the talks, government sources said Thursday. Talks between the two countries broke down in Rome last week.

Campus Briefs

The University Party will hold an open meeting Monday at 7 p.m. at Gerrard Hall. President Bill Criswell said the purpose of the meeting will be to discuss policy for the spring semester and to air the financial issues which were brought out in the last meeting.

The YW-YMCA Catholic Orphanage Committee's field trip to the orphanage in Raleigh will leave Y-Court at 2 p.m. Sunday. Interested students have been invited to come. The committee will return to the campus by 5:30 p.m.

WUNC-TV is presently holding auditions for an on-camera TV newscaster. Interested students should contact Roger Koontz at WUNC for an appointment.

Alexander Heard, dean of the Graduate School, will be the luncheon speaker for the University's Faculty Club Luncheon, Tuesday at 1 p.m. in Faculty Club Building.

The title of Dean Heard's address is "The University, the Region, and the Nation."

Dr. A. T. Miller, department of physiology, and Dr. E. D. Palmatier, physics department, will speak before a meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society, Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m. at 205 Phillips Hall.

Dr. Miller will speak on "Medical Research and Education in Israel" and Dr. Palmatier will talk on "A Satellite Study of the Constitution of Cosmic Radiation."

In Memory Of Mike Barham

Navy Band Proceeds For Scholarship

Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Music fraternity will sponsor an appearance by the United States Navy band, March 6 in Memorial Hall.

The two concerts to be given by the band are part of Phi Mu Alpha's project to raise funds for a music scholarship, which will be given in memory of Michael Barham, one of two Carolina students found dead in their Cobb dormitory room last Oct. 6.

The afternoon concert will be presented at 2:20. The cost for Carolina students is $1. Through arrangements with the Morehead Planetarium, students may see the concert and the Planetarium program for $1.50. Grade school students may see both performances for $.75 and junior high and high school students may see them for $1.

The evening performance of the concert will begin at 8:15. The cost will be $1.50 for everybody.

National tours of the Navy band

(Continued on Page 3)

Sukarno Bans Flights Over East Indonesia

Desires Speedy Surrender

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — The Indonesian air force Friday banned all flights over easternmost Indonesia and a government spokesman warned The- Netherlands to negotiate the surrender of West Irian Dutch New Guinea or face "total capitulation."

Air force spokesman Maj. Agus Suroto said the ban on flights over Indonesian territory closest to New Guinea was in line with President Sukarno's mobilization order for the "liberation" campaign.

He said the action invalidated all permits previously issued for flights in the area and warned that violation of the ban would bring "serious and firm" action by the Indonesian air force. The air force recently was reinforced with Soviet-made MIG jet fighters.

Sukarno appealed to the nation last Dec. 19 to mobilize for the fight to "liberate" the Dutch-controlled New Guinea territory he claimed is part of Indonesia. The armed forces already have been alerted for possible action.

On Airline Fares

NSA Urges Student Tariff

By JIM CLOTFELTER

The 33-person National Executive Committee (NEC) of the National Student Association called for reduction of student airline fares, and studied student health insurance costs and textbook expenses at the annual December meeting in Minneapolis, Minn.

NSA's elected representatives met on the University of Minnesota campus Dec. 26-31.

Other "emergency" legislation passed condemned two instances of "brutal actions against students in West Berlin" by the East German police; and urged member schools "to intensify their efforts to raise money for the Southern Student Freedom Fund"—to support desegregation attempts in McComb, Miss. and Albany, Ga.

Regional Representatives

The members of the executive committee are elected by their NSA regions. Each region is entitled to one representative—two, if the region has more than 40,000 students in member colleges. The committee meets during the summer National Student Congress and each winter.

Bill Harriss, president of the UNC student body, represented the Carolinas-Virginia region.

The airline fare resolution called for the Civil Aeronautics Board and the domestic air carriers "to recognize the special nature of the student's situation, and to grant such reductions in air fares as the carriers feel permissible.

"We believe that a properly conceived 'student tariff' would increase revenues by drawing more student traffic."

Health Insurance

The NEC directed NSA national officers to study possibilities for (1) a catastrophe hospital provision; (2) a tuition refund provision; and (3) a summer health insurance plan.

A resolution urged member schools to "consider the benefits offered by the International Student Cooperative Union . . . offering substantial discounts to student members on many books, and pays a commission to sponsoring student governments."

East German "violations of the Four Power agreements" were condemned by the executive committee. The NSA "expresses solidarity with all those students (in Germany) who seek academic and civil liberty and those students assisting them in their cause."

Local Action

The UNC student government is considering the possibility of raising money for the Southern Student Freedom Fund, started by NSA with the cooperation of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee. At the Student Congress last year the full plenary passed a resolution urging the Association to cooperate with SNCC.

(Continued on Page 3)

New Divisions Not Affected

Draft Calls To Be Lowered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army slashed the draft rate by more than half Friday and said the step would not prevent the formation of two new combat divisions ordered by President Kennedy earlier this week.

The new rate calls for the induction of 8,000 draftees in February and 6,000 in March, compared to 15,000 this month and 25,000 during the start of the Berlin crisis buildup last September.

"The strength objective of the Army including provisions for manning the two new Army divisions has now been reached," an announcement said. It added that there has been a 20 per cent increase in enlistments since the start of the buildup.

Active Duty

As of last Nov. 30, the Army had 1,062,582 men including nearly 119,000 reservists and National Guardsmen called to active duty last fall. Its strength objective was then 1,081,000 men.

The new authorized strength of the Army designed to maintain 16 combat divisions during the year beginning July 1 is scheduled to be substantially lower, probably 960,000 men, or approximately what the Army will have after the reservists and guardsmen are returned to civilian life this year.

But the reduced Army at 960,000 would still have 85,000 more soldiers than were scheduled at the start of last year to maintain a ground force of 14 combat divisions.

Draft Calls

The draft calls after last September fell to 20,000 each for October and November, and to 16,000 for December. The new calls will bring to 2,725,950 men the total inductions since the draft was resumed in 1950.

The new combat divisions—the 1st Armored at Ft. Hood, Tex., and the 5th Infantry at Ft. Carson, Colo.—will contain a total of 31,700 men, of whom more than 10,000 already are in units.

The Army pointed out that even after the reduction, the draft calls will be higher than the average for the year ended last July 1. The fiscal 1961 average was approximately 5,000 a month.

Pine Room Profits Finance Remodeled Plush Cafeteria

The Old Pine Room, Sporting Wooden Tables, chairs, juke box, and occasional light . . .

—Photo By Wallace

By EDITH ALSTON

Students are now going to the Pine Room just to watch the open-mouth expressions of surprise from first comers to the new, plush cafeteria.

It was completely remodeled almost entirely from Lenoir Hall profits.

Formerly referred to as "a rathole" and "a dingy smokefilled room", the cafeteria just beneath Lenoir Hall, was even called "a real paradise" by one enthusiastic coed. The entrance has been made more attractive by artificial leather seats lining the pine panelled walls and encasing the pillars of the lobby.

The most striking improvements are in the cafeteria, however, where modern brass chandeliers and flourescent cove lights have replaced the old inadequate lighting. The conveyor belt carrying dirty dishes to the kitchen is now concealed behind a low wall of pine. Pastel walls and stainless steel equipment add to the effect of cleanliness and open space and the old juke box has been replaced by piped in music.

The back wall is to be covered by a mural being planned under the direction of Dr. Joseph Sloane of the art department.

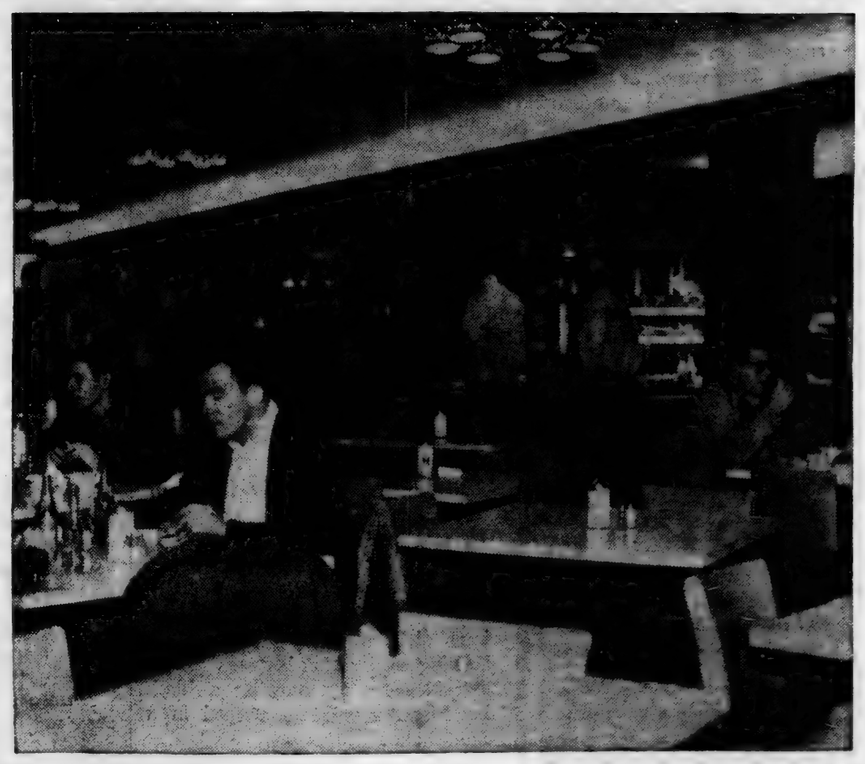
G. W. Prillaman, manager of Lenoir Hall, speaks with obvious pride of his recently finished project. "Everything is new," he says. Previously he has been in charge of some remodeling but this is the first completely new outlay for which he has been responsible.

"It is the only lay-out of its kind in the nation right now," said Prillaman, and it is based on his own plans according to the needs he foresaw as early as two years ago. The basic design is that of a horseshoe shaped counter with lines for the cafeteria and the snack bar converging in the middle.

The latest equipment has been installed, including a charcoal broiler for charcoal steaks and a radar oven which bakes a potato in two minutes. A giant rotisserie will be able to turn out barbecued chickens and shishkebabs as soon as the proper wiring is installed.

Mr. Prillaman estimates the final cost of the new Pine Room will approach $125,000 and gives credit to the Lenoir Hall employees for earning this through their hard work. "Any profits made in our dining rooms is turned back into the funds for improvements." Profits should be high in the Pine Room. On January 3, 3000 people were served before noon.

The new Pine Room is only the beginning, according to Mr. Prillaman. "We hope to upgrade the food service throughout the university and this is a good start.



Now, A Plush, Well-Equipped Cafeteria, ... all with profits from Lenoir Hall.

—Photo By Wallace

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 6, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLIX, No. 71

In Wilson Library

Wasted Volumes

Closed stacks or open stacks, Wilson Library has its problems. Reclosing the stacks alleviated most of the problems that resulted from the ill-advised experiment, but left the situation just about where they were before the whole thing started.

The same inconveniences that helped to prompt the stack opening originally still prevail. Obtaining a book is slow, irritating business, and the number of books that cannot be found for one reason or another is still alarmingly high—or so it would seem from the number of times the harried desk attendants return from the stacks with an apology instead of a book.

Most of Wilson Library's one-million-plus volumes seem sadly out of reach to the student who enters the library merely to browse—and thumbing through the card catalogue is a poor substitute for pulling down a book and glancing through its pages to see if it contains anything of interest.

And even those fortunate few who possess a stack permit are little better off: the ten floors of books are about as warm and inviting as a mortuary. The corridors are close and poorly lighted, the whole tmosphere forbidding.

It's a trifle trite to observe that books were written to be read, but this assumption appears to be the one overlooked at Wilson. The volumes are not exhibited for use, they are merely stored—and in a particularly uninviting manner.

But, like many of the University's problems, most of those that beset Wilson Library cannot be solved without money—money for reading rooms where currently popular works and the classics can be displayed, along with other books of fairly wide interest, in a comfortable, well-lighted atmosphere. Money is also needed to bring some of the books that are now shoved away on virtually inaccessible shelves closer to the students who are to use them, leaving the stacks for those books which are used only once, perhaps, in ten years by some scholar chasing an elusive and obscure bit of fact.

Redesigning and enlarging the main desk area to provide room for more persons to assist in locating books might also help—but again, this cannot be done without a budget.

The failure of the bond issue which carried an appropriation for an undergraduate library-student union building put off most of the improvements until a later date.

Until they can be made, some of the usefulness of over one million books will be wasted.

Busses For UNC:

Just Like Suburbia

Student government recently has begun laying groundwork for the first steps in establishing a bus shuttle between the campus and those dorms which will be built long distances from the campus.

The project is little more than an idea at present, but chances appear good that it will at least get some discussion. It's certainly an idea that should not be dismissed without at least a consideration.

The two new dorms already under construction — Craige and Ehringhaus — are too far from the campus to be within comfortable walking distance three or four times each day. Those that will be built in the future will be even more distant.

Naturally, every old grad who hears of the proposal will immediately launch into a diatribe about how he used to walk miles every day — in bitter cold weather, with a broken leg, etc.

But, all such protests notwithstanding, the day is not too far distant when the campus will have sprawled across so much terrain that none except the most hardy will find the walk "invigorating." And since most of the space in the new dorms will probably be occupied by freshmen, for whom cars have been ruled taboo by the administration, about the only solution is a bus system.

We are certainly not opposed to the proposal, but it might take some getting used to. This place is enough like suburbia already without some briefcase-carrying student saying "Pardon me, I've got to catch the 3:42 to French class."

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITOR

Managing Assistant Editor

Associate Editor

News Editor

Sports Editor

Business Manager

Advertising Manager

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Green Hand

Remember those little lapel buttons distributed by CORE, symbolizing cooperation between whites and Negroes by showing a black hand and a white clasped in a handshake?

The latest version shows a white hand intwined in a green one. We haven't quite figured out the significance of this one yet.

Martin L. Wilson

U. S. Aiding Reds In Katanga

Once again the United States has come to the aid of Communism. Our support of the United Nations operation in Katanga is our latest attempt to commit suicide and to punish freedom-loving peoples.

Under the pretext of "restoring order" in the Congo, we have helped to crush a pro-Western anti-Communist government under Moise Tshombe, elected by the people of Katanga who still support him.

But what Tshombe believes in is anathema to the United Nations and the liberals who control our foreign policy. Tshombe has made the mistake of believing that his people could prosper best by being free from the shackles of Communism; he believes that those who rule should do so by the consent of the governed; he is a second-generation Christian and, therefore, can not believe in the atheism that is the guiding force of Communism. He may even be a white man in disguise.

Our support of the U.N. operation in the Congo can benefit only the Communists. Even with any so-called "reunification," the ideological difference will remain, despite the best efforts of the U. N. to force the Communist-dominated Central Congolese government upon the Katangese.

We in the United States have long boasted that we are the champions of freedom and justice. This will now come as a surprise to Katangese, Hungarians, Poles and Cubans. The fact is that whenever peoples have sought to throw off the chains of Communism, we have rushed in to bail the Reds out and stifle hopes for freedom. These peoples believed us when we told them that they could count on our support to gain their liberty; we have lost few opportunities to double-cross them.

Our support of the United Nations over the years has been a continuing story of defeat and frustration for freedom, victory and jubilation for the Communists. When we have failed to aid human beings desperately clutching for freedom, we have shrugged it off with pious quotations from the U.N. Charter.

Our ambassador to the U.N., Adlai Stevenson, has told us that, under the U.N. Charter, we are no longer free to intervene unilaterally to stop Communism. This is apparently so, but we are obviously free to "help" Communism, because we have repeatedly done so and are doing so in the Congo at this moment.

The Katangese have learned this the hard way. U.N. forces in Katanga have plundered and massacred as would barbarians to bring "peace" and "reunification" to the Congo. Persons of unassailable integrity have brought back reports of unwarranted murdering by U.N. troops, and even the throwing of wounded Katangese from second and third story windows of hospitals. Thus the U.N. brings "peace" to the Congo.

Katanga is one of the very few areas of Africa that has attempted to banish Communist influence from its government. But such a policy runs counter to the practices of the U.N. Therefore, our "liberal" policy makers did what has come to be natural for them to do: They crushed the hopes for freedom from Communism.

In a few days, President Kennedy will ask Congress to vote on bonds that will help pay for the continuation of the U.N. Congo operation. It is our hope that Congress will refuse to subsidize this war against freedom by a godless organization in collaboration with the U.S. State Department. Freedom has suffered long enough at the hands of the United Nations and the "liberals" in our government.

"Why, Sure Enough — It's Fearless Barry Himself"

ATTITUDES By Clotfelter

Thoughts On Giesler, Darrow

Jerry Giesler, one of the country's most colorful lawyers, died in Hollywood on New Year's Day. He was best known for defending wayward glamour girls and leading men, such as Marilyn Monroe, Robert Mitchum, Charlie Chaplin, Lana Turner and Errol Flynn. But he was also one of the last in an unusual tradition of lawyers.

Fifty years ago in a courtroom in Los Angeles Giesler served as a legal assistant to the great Earl Rogers, famous for his courtroom theatrics and his resulting legal success.

Rogers was defending the legendary Clarence Darrow, "attorney for the damned."

Darrow was accused of bribing two jurors who were to decide the fate of the McNamara brothers charged with blowing up the Los Angeles TIMES building in a labor union war. Darrow's trial was set for the summer of 1912.

* * *

On many occasions Giesler admitted he hero-worshipped Darrow. He patterned his courtroom technique after a mixed Rogers-Darrow combination: the soft-spoken friendly questioning of witnesses (after Darrow), mixed with the wild and wooly shows Rogers often put on.

But in the Darrow bribery trial there was little room for foolishness. The defense was conducted with heavy sarcasm, counter-attacks on the prosecution and a stirring, emotional personal defense of the defendent (Darrow) — all ingredients which Giesler used in good measure.

The defendent himself addressed the jury, "If you twelve men think that I, with 35 years of experience . . . with all kinds of clients and important cases — if you think that I would pick out a place half a block from my office and send a man with money in his hand in broad daylight to go down on the street corner to pass $4,000 (the prosecution's accusation) and then skip over to another street corner and pass $500—two of the most prominent streets in the city of Los Angeles; if you think that, gentlemen, why, find me guilty. I certainly belong in some state institution. Whether you select the right one or not is another question . . . "

One of Darrow's most famous characteristics was his ever-present vendetta against the prosecutor, as in the bribery trial, "Sometime his (the prosecutor's) heart might be touched by feelings of kindness and charity, it might—if the days of miracles had not passed."

In this trial, however, the emphasis always was on Darrow, Darrow himself. Rogers and Giesler built up a sound technical case for him, but it was left to the defendant to defend his personal integrity —the only reason he was on trial, said Darrow, was because he had stood for the poor and the weak . . . the mob.

"I know the mob. In one way I love it, in another way I despise it. I know the unreasoning, unthinking mass. I have lived with men and worked with them. I have been their idol and I have been cast down and trampled beneath their feet. I have stood on their pinnacle and I have heard the cheering mob sound my praises; and I have heard them hiss my name—this same mob . . . . The mob in rags and the mob in broadcloth.

"I have committed one crime," Darrow told the jury. "I have spoken for the poor, for the weak, for the weary, for that long line of men, who in darkness and despair have borne the labors of the human race."

* * *

Now Giesler is dead. Rogers and Darrow have long been gone . . . And thoughts of the sensationalist Hollywood attorney will always lead back to thoughts of the attorney for the damned.

— JIM CLOTFELTER

Women With Brains: Who Needs 'Em?

"Time" magazine's cover story a month ago was titled "Girls in College: They Have Scarcely Begun to Use Their Brains." The article featured the efforts of the new president of Radcliffe College, Dr. Mary I. Bunting, who is trying to intellectualize American womandom.

As "Time" views Dr. Bunting's crusade for intellectual equality of the sexes, it could be the rumblings of the largest mass movement by females since the delirious antics of Carrie Nation and Susan B. Anthony.

Dr. Bunting first experimented with the academic stimulation of her sex while she was Dean of Douglass College in New Jersey. There she allowed the girls to run their own multilingual course in world poetry. When offered the top seat at Radcliffe, she accepted—for she was even more concerned with the low motivation of United States college girls in general—and prestigious Radcliffe seemed to be the ideal launching pad for her brainstorms.

The first result of the doctor's handiwork at Radcliffe has been her Institute for Independent Study. Eligible for this are all women with doctorates or the equivalent, and they get a $3,000 stipend, as well as complete run of Harvard and Radcliffe's intellectual stimulants. The fields being studied range from archaeology and philosophy to poetry and psychiatry.

A set of quite imposing statistics have been dredged up in support of this new movement. For example, of the top ranking high school seniors who don't attend college, two-thirds are girls.

Also, did you know that the per cent of girls attending college in the U. S., has dropped from 47 to 37 since 1920? And finally, for every 300 girls capable of earning a doctorate degree, only one does. Fascinating, no?

In further discussion of today's degraded coeds, "Time" reports, "What a girl expects from her education drops back from high goals of professional, intellectual or artistic attainment to a desire for 'finish' and for the grace of motherhood."

Dr. Bunting deploringly adds, "Girls more than ever go to college not to pursue learning—but to learn pursuing."

We can only agree with these statements, Dr. Bunting, but unlike you, we like things as they are right now. Or at least, concerning the role of the female sex in our society, this seems to be one area in which it would be far better to go backward than forward.

Remember how things were in the 18th century? Women knew their place, they were happy there, and the men were even happier. Then fanaticism struck in the 19th century—and by the mid-20th century, we were told that women owned more of the United States than men. Other parts of the World were luckier, like Europe and the Orient. Women there are little different than they were in the good ol' 19th century. And have you noticed how many American men are going abroad and bringing wives home from these places?

Look before you leap onto the "Bunting Bandwagon." Take a look at what we're dealing with: a middle-aged matron whose greatest love is her continuing research in microbial genetics, and especially with some kind of red bacteria. That's Dr. Bunting, a frustrated, lonesome homebody who won't accept life as it is, but must mold it to her own delights.

She may need us—but, brother, we don't need her.

BILL TYSON

Who's Apeing Whom?

The subject of evolution has been pretty quiet in this country since the end of the Scopes trial in Tennessee. The idea that monkeys preceded man and were the actual grandpappies of man still strikes fear into the hearts of some people. But Americans today are seeing evolution in action without even a whimper.

A five and a half pound chimpanzee was the first American astronaut to go into orbit thus paving the way for the first American human astronaut to pull the same trick. Monkeys are also used in tests for many drugs before they are tried on man. And monkeys are used in tests by psychologists to find clues to man's behavior.

Human beings must be careful to prevent a rebellion on the part of the monkeys. They are ahead of us in almost every field. We have seen that they are already ahead of us in space travel, medicine, and psychology. We must keep them isolated because if free association is allowed they might organize and take over the world.

Furthermore, monkeys are much better suited to rule the world. They are healthier, more agile, and their dietary needs are more easily satisfied. In addition to their physical advantages, they may be more intelligent and more emotionally stable. Monkeys rarely fight among themselves. They have no birth control problems; in fact man has trouble in making them reproduce. They are not greedy. And they refuse to have anything to do with nuclear weapons.

Man must remain aware of this ever present menace and guard against any attempt on the part of monkeys to take over the world. It would be a horrible experience living in this world if the monkeys took over and we had to follow their way of life.

DOW SHEPPARD

Reflections

Just to ease the minds of anyone who might have been disturbed by the fire alarm yesterday which sent trucks speeding to Memorial Hospital, there's nothing to be alarmed about.

The whole hullabalioo started with a fire drill, got complicated when someone forgot to tell the switchboard operator about it, and reached a head when she called the trucks.

Some people just can't take a joke.

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expression of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

American Stock Exchange Accused

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Securities & Exchange Commission SEC Friday charged the American Stock Exchange with widespread failure to enforce its own rules and punish its members for violations.

★ ★ ★

Policeman Chases Russians In Berlin

BERLIN (UPI) — A military policeman chased a carload of Russians for six blocks Tuesday to make sure the Soviet Berlin commandant was not trying to evade an American ban on his entry to West Berlin, a U. S. Army spokesman disclosed Friday.

★ ★ ★

78 Dead In Algerian Rioting

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — Terrorists killed two and wounded six more persons today to raise the total to 78 dead and 172 wounded in five days of violence throughout Algeria.

The latest attacks came as the rightwing secret army organization OAS called for a "general mobilization" against President Charles de Gaulle's policies for Algeria and the government announced the results of a two-month crackdown on the OAS.

★ ★ ★

Dominicans Hope To Help Economy

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — Jubilant Dominicans, their country back in the good graces of the American family of nations, started work Friday on a national planning organization to revitalize the flagging economy.

Less than 24 hours after Organization of American States lifted political and economic sanctions imposed in 1960, the new Council of State mapped ways to restore prosperity as well as political peace to the nation.

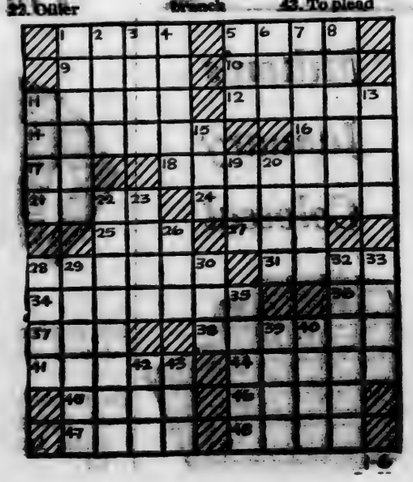
ANNUAL CLEARANCE
SALE
FINAL REDUCTIONS
THE HUB
of Chapel Hill
Styled Right — Priced Right

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Coal scuttles
5. Chinese division
9. The "Iliad," for one
10. Dry
11. Play
12. Worth
14. Non-workers
16. Enemy
17. Music note
18. Nuclear explosion hazard
21. Snappish
24. Vulgar
25. Embouchure (Scot.)
27. Muscular spasm
28. Missile weapons
31. Ship's floor
34. Gladiator's vehicle
36. Music note
37. Hawaiian birds
38. Talk (slang)
40. River dams
41. Pointed arch
43. Sweetheart (colloq.)
45. Pleura (anat.)
46. Sea eagle
48. Headland

DOWN
1. Bison, an ox
2. Iridescent gem
3. Ten cents
4. Mutter
5. Mayan Indians
6. Eager
7. Air Warfare division (U. S.)
8. Hateful
11. Terrible
13. Old hair-do
15. American Indian
19. Fate
20. Placed
22. Otter
23. Period of 365 days
26. Assam silk-worm
28. Flat-bottomed boat
29. Small bird
30. To soak
32. Anne of ——
33. Danny ——, comedian
35. Sharp-pointed branch
39. S-shaped molding
40. Insect eggs
42. Norse sea goddess
43. To plead

Yesterday's Answer



'Intellectual Circus' New Carrier Show

One of Carrier Current's newest programs is "Soultime", described by its creator, Myles Eric Ludwig as an "intellectual circus."

Mr. Ludwig said he proposes to discuss such subjects as the abolition of certain existing institutions such as Lenoir Hall lines and High Dorner Hall prices. The 30-minute program will also feature music and comedy by such artists as Dizzie Monday, Mike and Elaine Mayo.

AFROTC Open 2nd Semester

Freshmen transfers and freshmen who did not enroll this fall in the AFROTC program still have time to do so for the second semester.

Those interested in enrolling for the spring semester have been asked to contact the AFROTC detachment at Caldwell annex as soon as possible. For the remainder of this semester AFROTC cadets will be designated in the dorms to discuss the program with interested freshman.

Navy Band

(Continued from page 1)

were resumed in the spring of 1948, after the close of World War II, and the band has toured to some part of the United States each year since.

Band Soloists

The concert presentations will be highlighted with renditions by the band's soloists, Frank Scimonelli and Lawrence Weihe.

According to Stro Fox, chairman of the Social and Activities Committee of Phi Mu Alpha, the amount of the scholarship will be determined by the amount of money raised by this and following projects this year.

"We hope to get between $250 and $500 for this scholarship," said Fox. "There is only one music scholarship given to freshmen right now, and it is not renewable.

"We are trying to add to this. We feel a definite need for more scholarships in the music department."

The scholarship will be given this summer to an incoming freshman. "We'll get the money together, and give it to the music department," Fox said. "The department will set its own criteria for giving the scholarship.

It's easy to find fault, easy when you can't seem to get ahead of financial worries, but things probably aren't as bad as they seem.

A good way to begin your financial planning is through life insurance. And a good time to begin is age, when you'll profit by lower premiums. Many new plans and features, especially attractive to college students, deserve your consideration.

Stop by our campus office, or telephone for more information.

RALPH S. RENDER
157½ E. Franklin St.
Phone 942-2860

PROVIDENT MUTUAL
[illegible]
of Philadelphia

For Housing

U. S. Alone In Making Students Pay

The rising costs of student tuition and lodging at state universities was one of many education problems touched on here yesterday when Dr. Harlan Hatcher, president of the University of Michigan, addressed the Governor's Committee on Education Beyond the High School, headed by Irving Carlyle of Winston-Salem.

"We are the only nation," Hatcher said, "which expects students to pay through fees and room and board for the building of housing. In all other countries," he said, "the government pays for buildings and, in many cases, helps pay the student's other expenses."

"At Oxford, for instance, I believe 84 per cent of all the students are receiving financial help."

Among other items discussed by Dr. Hatcher and the Committee were points relative to a Community College program, a system being considered by the Governor's Committee for possible implementation into North Carolina as a relief measure for crowded conditions in the state institutions.

Junior Colleges

Hatcher stated that in Michigan there were 60 community or junior colleges available to almost everyone, encouraged, supported and developed by the state. These, he said, represented the "twilight zone" between local and state responsibility. The need for such a system of schools was, he indicated, keenly reflected in the fact that "out of a freshman class of 9,000 applications only 3,300 could be accepted by the University of Michigan."

Michigan University is recognized as one of the top institutions in the country.

Entrance requirements, the drop-out problem, graduate school set-up, and year-round systems of study were some of the numerous other points considered at the meeting which was attended by representative educators and laymen from over the state.

OFFICIALS MEET — Dr. Harlan Hatcher, president of the University of Michigan, spoke to the Governor's Committee on Education Beyond the High School at the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill yesterday. With him are UNC President William C. Friday (right) and Chancellor William B. Aycock (left).

FINDS GOOD WOMEN

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Clifton Daugherty, 25, who said, "good women are hard to find, but I had two good ones," was sentenced Thursday to up to five years in prison for bigamy.

POSTMASTER COMPLAINS

LONDON (UPI) — Postmaster General Reginald Bevins complained Thursday that a letter addressed to "postmaster general, London" was returned to the sender with this note scrawled across the top: "Insufficiently addresser, state name of firm."

NSA Urges

(Continued from Page 1)

Other NEC resolutions:

—Re-stated the position of the full Congress on nuclear testing. "In the event that nuclear testing is resumed by the United States Government, the NEC of USNSA urges that such testing be minimal in radioactive fallout and be conducted only as a means of safeguarding national security and not as a means of political terrorization."

—Reaffirmed NSA's stand that "'students have a right to participate in active non-violent protest' against such social injustices as segregation."

Speaker Ban

—Condemned decisions by New York City colleges banning speakers (including a Communist, a Black Muslim, and conservative editor William F. Buckley Jr.) from appearing on campus.

—Forbid any student from claiming to represent NSA at the Eighth World Festival of Youth this summer in Helsinki, Finland. The Festival is dominated by Communist students.

—Deplored recent Dominican Republic "repressive action depriving students of the rights . . . of university autonomy and free association."

"Irresponsible Charges"

The NEC also mandated the national office to "prepare position papers to be used in making the Association's position clear in the face of many recent and historic irresponsible charges on both the political and structural nature of NSA."

Charges have been made by individual students in past years, condemning NSA's "leftist" position on many issues and calling it an unrepresentative body.

The executive committee set up a body to study the feasibility of adding two more national officers, one of whom would be Program Vice-President for the South.

NAVY CLAIMS RECORD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new helicopter speed record of 199.01 miles an hour for a three-kilometer distance has been claimed by the Navy. The record was set Dec. 30 by Comdr. Patrick L. Sullivan and Marine Capt. David A. Spurlock.

TAX LIEN FILED

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A $6,271 tax lien today was pending against Harry James and his wife Betty Grable.

The Internal Revenue Service reported Thursday that the lien was filed against the couple for their 1959 taxes.

TV Schedule

WRAL-TV Channel 5

Saturday, January 6

5:30—Champ Wrestling
6:30—Telephone Hour
7:30—Wells Fargo
8:30—Tall Man
9:00—Untouchables
10:00—Fight Of The Week
10:45—Make That Spare
11:00—Dateline
11:10—Movie Of The Week
"Secret Of Convict Lake"
Glenn Ford-Ethel Barrymore

WTVD-TV Channel 11

Saturday, January 6

5:30—WTVD Dance Party
6:30—Roaring Twenties
7:30—Perry Mason
8:30—The Defenders
9:30—Have Gun, Will Travel
10:00—Gunsmoke
11:00—Three Star Final
11:15—Sat. Night Country Style
Jim Thornton

STRICKEN WITH SMALLPOX

DUESSELDORF, Germany (UPI)—Four members of a local family have been stricken with smallpox, health authorities announced Thursday. Businessman Wolfgang Jacob, head of the household, was believed to have contracted the disease during a trip to Africa.

CRAMTIME
Your best chance of finding the study aid you need
The Book Exchange
Five Points DURHAM
We Buy & Sell All Books

London Dancing School Bans 'Twist' Craze As 'Too Sexy'

LONDON (UPI) — A London dancing school manager banned the new "twist" dance craze from his floor Friday because it is "too sexy," but others in the trade refused to follow suit.

Bernard Stetson, manager of the London Dance Institute, started the controversy over the shimmy-and-wiggle import from America.

"The twist is far too uninhibited, abandoned and frankly sexy to be performed in Britain," he said. "It belongs to the African bush."

But his colleagues in the dance business rose up in arms.

"If you are a sexy person, it will come out sexy, I suppose, but so will the tango," said Marie Cartmell, an attractive instructor at the Arthur Murray School of Dancing.

The director of Mecca, Inc., biggest ballroom chain in the world, ruled out the idea of banning the twist.

"Fully-fledged men and women don't want the twist," said Morley. "It's a dance for bored socialites who are tired of holding each other in their arms."

Teen-agers don't really like it either, he said.

"There's not enough leg motion for them. Teen-agers want action. They don't want to stand in one place wiggling their hips about," he said.

Toni Tynegate-Smith, who owns a dancing school on Baker Street, said she found nothing suggestive about the twist.

"I certainly don't think it is vulgar," she said. "It's . . . it's the way you do it."

However you do it—and most British don't seem quite sure—London's nightclubs are jammed with people every night who are trying.

Dr. Allen Talks On 'Day After Rome Was Built'

Dr. Walter Allen Jr., Latin professor ,will present a paper entitled, "The Day After Rome Was Built," at a meeting of the Philological Club, Tuesday at 7:45 p. m. in the Faculty Lounge, Morehead Planetarium.

Dr. Allen will explain to the members and their guests what American tourists actually see when they go to Rome.

"The ancient monuments, impressive in their present state, are very different from what they once were," said Dr. Allen. "Some parts of them were re-used in Renaissance buildings. Some of the Roman buildings have had to be extensively restored in order to preserve them."

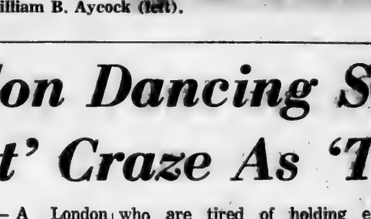
ACTRESS HAS SON

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI)—Actress Shirley Jones gave birth by Caesarean section to her second son Thursday.

Miss Jones and her actor husband, Jack Cassidy, have one other child, Sean, 3½.

REGRETS FAILURE

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Israeli Premier David Ben-gurion, in an interview in the Indian Express, said Friday India's failure to establish normal relations with Israel is a "matter for regret and amazement."

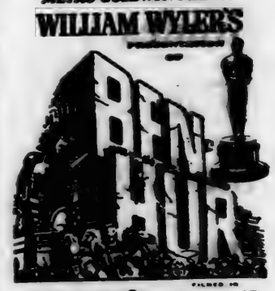
TROY DONAHUE
CONNIE STEVENS
DOROTHY McGUIRE
LLOYD NOLAN
Troy and Connie in love again!


DELMER DAVES PRODUCTION
Susan Slade
MUSIC BY MAX STEINER · TECHNICOLOR® FROM WARNER BROS.
Carolina NOW PLAYING

SALE!
SHETLAND SWEATERS
Cardigans reg. 17.95 Now 13.95
Pullovers reg. 12.95 Now 9.95
The Young Men's Shop
★DOWNTOWN ★NORTHGATE
Durham

TWO ROOMS
For males who can install Heater
$18 MO. EACH
(plus heat)
Call 942-3894
Evenings

Uncle Shelby's ABZ Book Is back In Stock
The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

TICKETS NOW ON SALE
ALL-TIME ACADEMY AWARD CHAMPION!
METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER
WILLIAM WYLER'S


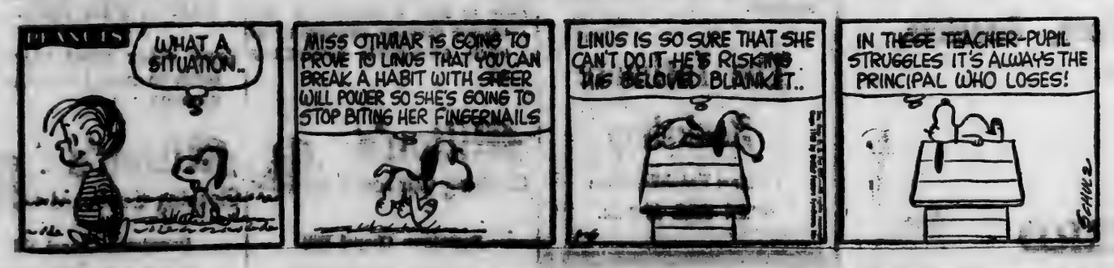
BEN-HUR
TECHNICOLOR® CAMERA 65
1:00 — 4:50 — 8:40
Varsity

BE CONTEMPORARY

Give Contemporary Studio Cards from
Ledbetter Pickard

POGO

PEANUTS



Tar Heels Meet Irish In Charlotte Tonight

Still Looking For First Win

Carolina Wrestlers Take On State Matmen Here Tonight

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Still looking for their first victory coach Sam Barnes' grapplers face North Carolina State here tonight at 8:00. A freshman match will precede the varsity contest.

The wrestlers, who have lost all five of their meets, will be taking on their first ACC foe in State College. The Wolfpack is also winless in four starts.

Senior Pete Gilchirst, and Junior Dick Blackman are the only Tar Heels to have met with any success so far this season. Each has won 4 and lost 1. Gilchrist will start tonight in the 130 pound class, and Blackman will line up at 147.

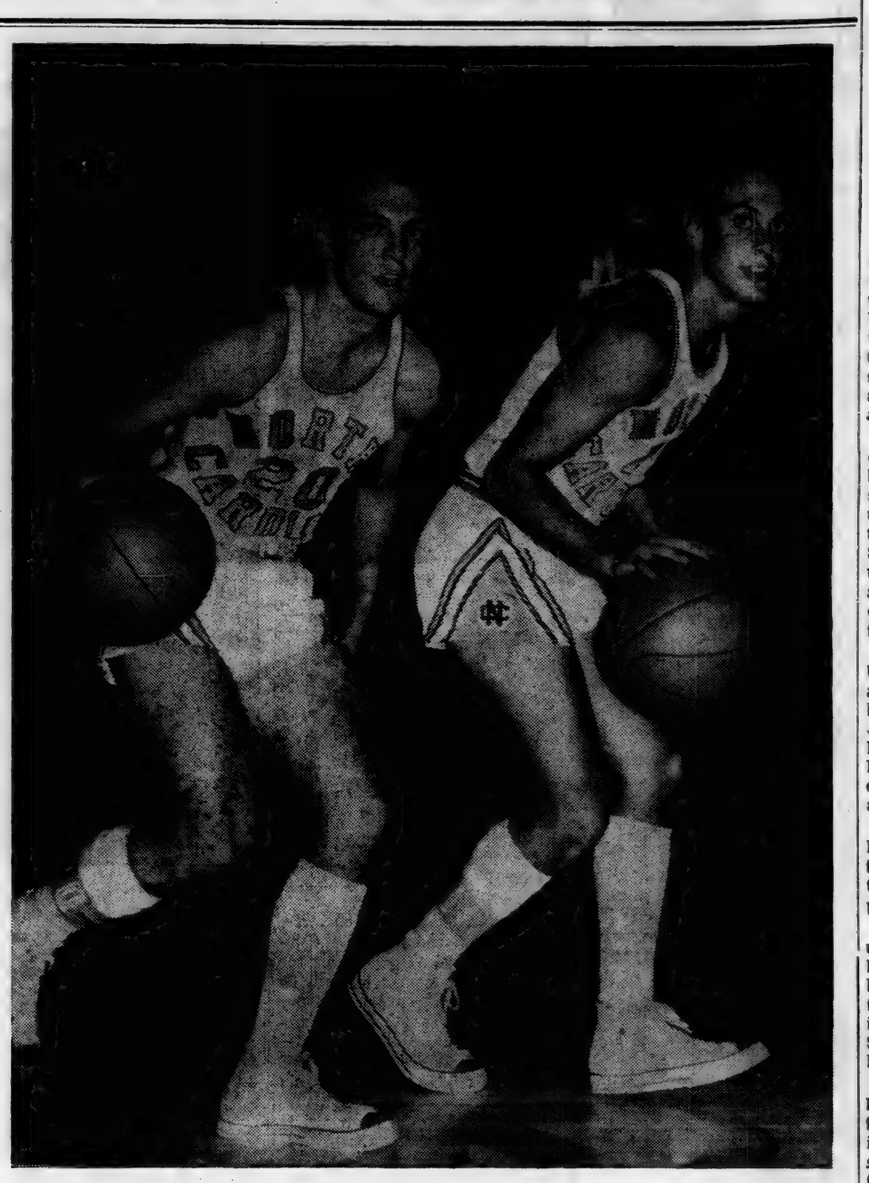
Juniors— Louis Arthur at 23, Willis Johnson—137, and Gene Record—177 are the only other definite starters in Barnes' lineup. In the 157 pound division, the starting assignment is a tossup between junior Jack Jones, and sophomore Tom Grant. Both boys have seen considerable action this year.

Either Whitney Durand or Bill Lowery will get the nod in the 167 pound class, and in the unlimited division, the starting slot will go to one of two sophomores: Jerry Cabe or Gordon Appell.

Cabe, a guard on the Carolina football team, and Appell have relegated to the bench, two of last year's lettermen—Cole Kortner and Bill Shipp.

Barnes, who had hoped to improve on last year's record of 5-6, dearly misses one of Carolina's all-time great wrestlers, Pope Shuford, who failed to come out for the team this year. The Tar Heels have dropped contests to Washington and Lee, Virginia, Davidson, The Citadel, and VMI. In addition to the State meet Carolina has 6 remaining matches before the ACC championships, where they placed second to Maryland last year.

Freshman coach Grover Wilhoit, whose charges have split their two matches, tonight will start: Don Walter—123, Bucky Brinton—130, Dave Wiles—137, Bob Crook—147, Pat Wilson—157, Elliot Dworin—167, E. C. Burchett—177, and John Hill in the unlimited division.



GUARD COMBINATION — Senior Donnie Walsh, left, and junior Larry Brown combine to give Carolina a fast, smooth-working combination at guard. As freshmen, they each led their respective teams in scoring, and this year both are hitting at better than an 11 point scoring average. Brown is noted for his long sets, and Walsh is a top-quality playmaker and defensive man.

Jim Donohue Will Return To Cage Duty

Smith Says Shaffer May See Action For First Time

The Tar Heels will be strengthened for tonight's game by the return of 6-9 center Jim Donohue, who became eligible on Jan. 1. UNC Coach Dean Smith said late this week that sophomore forward Charlie Shaffer has recovered sufficiently from a knee injury to allow him to see action tonight, also.

Donohue, who was a starter at center in '59-'60 before Doug Moe became eligible, did not play last season. "He will be able to help us in scoring, on defense, and in the rebounding department too," Smith said of Donohue. "But he may not be as effective now as he should later in the season, because he's been out of basketball for a full year now."

Donohue will probably turn the UNC "6-man starting lineup" into a 7-man group. Heretofore, Smith had alternated his top six men—Jim Hudock, Bryan McSweeney, Dieter Krause, Mike Cooke, Larry Brown and Don Walsh—so that all of them saw about the same amount of action.

Another man that could see a lot of action tonight is sophomore forward Art Katz. Smith says that Katz has shown a lot of improvement since the holidays.

Shaffer, whom Smith wants to use because of his shooting skill, has been out of competition since he hurt his knee in a freshman football game in 1960. His speed is returning now to the extent that Smith expected him to play a lot before the end of the season.

The Notre Dame team, which has essentially the same squad that almost beat the Tar Heels in Charlotte last year, has been something of a disappointment thus far. Smith, who scouted them in an 82-73 loss to St. Louis, said that in the game he saw the Irish got into early foul trouble and didn't have the reserve strength to catch up. In another game, the Irish were whipped by Indiana, 122-95.

The top players for the Notre Dame team are forwards John Andreoli (6-3), John Dearie (6-6), and Armand Reo (6-6), center Karl Roessler (6-7), and guards John Mathews (6-0) and Eddie Schnurr (6-0).

All Eyes On Heyman As NCS Visits Duke

DURHAM—With Art Heyman and Jeff Mullins combining to outscore Penn State by themselves Wednesday night, Duke followers are beginning to consider this duo as one of the greatest at Duke in many years as the Blue Devils prepare to meet N. C. State tonight.

Tapoff for the important ACC clash is 8:15 in Duke Indoor Stadium with the freshman teams of the two schools meeting in a prelim at 6:15. The Duke frosh have an unblemished 5-0 mark.

The magnificient twosome of Heyman and Mullins combined for 60 points in the Blue Devils' latest 95-55 win over Penn State. Heyman led all scorers with 36 and Mullins rang the bell for 24 in the top effort of the year for the two as a pair.

Heyman, the prime candidate for All-American honors, will be the man to watch Saturday when the Wolfpack comes to town. The Rockville Centre, N. Y., junior seems to fire to special heights in appearances against Big Four clubs. His 33 point performance against Wake Forest in Greensboro last week was a thing of beauty as he rebounded, shot, and handled the ball to perfection. The Penn State game saw him put on the same kind of show. The scoreboard showed 26 Heyman points at halftime of the rout.

Mullins hasn't wasted any time in becoming one of the ACC's top sophomores. The Lexington, Ky., product has amassed a 19.3 average through the first ten games on the Duke slate. To go along with his fine point production, the 6-4 soph is second only to Heyman in rebounds with an 11.6 per game average.

The Wolfpack, led by Jon Speaks ano John Punger, comes into the game with a 2-1 mark while the Blue Devils have raced to a 9-1 record. State holds wins over Maryland and Tennessee, while dropping one to Wake Forest, a team the Blue Devils nipped 75-73 a week ago.

The spotlight will be on Heyman more than usual in the clash with the Wolfpack, because the brilliant forward will have an opportunity to enter the elite circle of all-time Duke scorers. Heyman now stands on the fringe of the number ten spot which is presently occupied by two-time All-American Ed Koffenberger with 923 points. Heyman has 916 points going into the State game. If the bustling Mr. Heyman should produce 20 or more points in the game, he will advance to the No. 8 spot in the rankings—passing Doug Kistler of last year's team and Ceep Youmans.

At his present rate Heyman, in two seasons, will move higher in the rankings this season. The top spot is held by double All-American Dick Groat with 1,886 points in a three year career.

Tickets Available For USC Game

Student tickets for the UNC-South Carolina game, to be played in Woollen Gym on Monday, Jan. 15, are now being distributed to UNC students with athletic passes. They are available on a first-come first-served basis, with no priorities.

Distribution of tickets for the UNC-N. C. State game, to be played here on Jan. 17, will begin Monday, Jan. 8. There will be a priority period for those whose names begin with the letters A-M. This priority will last through Thursday.

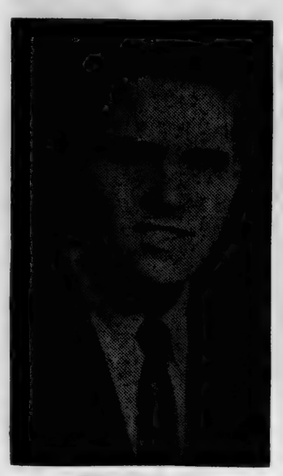
Get Better Grades With Study Aids

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 East Franklin Street

Chapel Hill

Open Till 10 P.M.



ED DUPREE

Dupree 13th In National Competition

Ed Dupree, Daily Tar Heel Assistant Sports Editor, placed 13th in the November sports writing competition of the William Randolph Hearst Foundation's second annual $40,900 journalism awards program.

Dupree, a junior in the School of Journalism, received mention for a feature story on Carolina's football twins, Bruce and Duff Greene and Jim and Frank Gallagher.

Harold L. Brown, University of Nebraska, won first place and a $200 fellowship. Other cash awards went to Harold E. Rummel, University of Florida; Dick Leutzinger, University of Oregon; Jerry Elsea, State University of Iowa; and Ronald Roberts, Syracuse University.

Brown's article, judged best of the 64 entries, was written for a depth reporting project at the University of Nebraska School of Journalism. His idea was to find out why sports fans support the Nebraska athletic program. Brown is a reporter for the Lincoln Star.

The five top-scoring schools were Nebraska, Florida, Kansas, Oregon, and Stanford.

The program is sponsored by the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism in 47 colleges and universities throughout the United States. Competition for the month of January is in news writing.

Musial Takes Cut

ST. LOUIS UPI—Stan Musial took a pay cut to about $70,000 Friday as he signed his 21st contract with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I think this will be my last year and I'll try to end up with a good year," he said. "You can't go on forever, you know."

WF, Clemson Meet In TV Game Today

WINSTON-SALEM — Wake Forest and Clemson, each sporting identical 4-4 overall records, hook up in the first ACC Regional TV contest of the season here this afternoon in Memorial Coliseum at 2 o'clock.

A preliminary game matching the Wake Forest freshmen against Wingate Junior College will open the afternoon program at 12 noon.

Coach Bones McKinney's Demon Deacons will bring a 2-1 league record into the contest while Clemson comes in with a 1-2 mark. The Deacons have beaten N. C. State and Virginia while losing to Maryland. Clemson got its lone win over Virginia and lost to North Carolina and Duke.

Wake Forest has broken even in two games since resuming play after the Christmas holidays. It dropped a 75-73 decision to Duke Saturday night, but scored a 79-70 triumph over Minnesota Tuesday.

Clemson dropped both of its games in the Poinsettia Tournament at Greenville last week, losing to Arkansas by a 62-60 count in he opening round and to Furman in the consolation game, 89-63.

McKinney is still seeking to hit on a winning combination, and is expected to start either Frank Christie or Richard Carmichael, both sophomores, along with Len Chappell and Bob Woollard in the front line. Billy Packer and Dave Wiedeman will handle the backcourt duties. Christie got the opening call in the Duke game and Carmichael started against Minnesota.

The work of Woollard at center has been a very pleasant surprise in the last two games. The 6-10 junior got nine points and 11 rebounds against Duke, and collected 13 points and 12 rebounds against Minnesota.

"If Woollard continues to do the job we will be okay," McKinney said after the Minnesota game.

Big Len Chappell is still the top man for the Deacs with a 26.6 scoring figure and a 12.5 rebound average while Packer is the only other player in double figures at 13.3.

Clemson Coach Press Maravich is expected to start four sophs and a senior in Saturday's game. Capt. Tommy Mahaffey is the lone experienced performer in the lineup. The sophs are guards Jim Brennan and Nick Milasnovich, forward Mike Bohonak and center Donnie Mahaffey.

Brennan is the Tigers' top scorer with a 15.3 average while Milasnovich ranks second at 12.3.

South Team Favored In Senior Bowl Tilt

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Passing aces Ed Wilson of Arizona and Mike Cotten of Texas square off Saturday in the 13th annual Senior Bowl all-star game and 50 college gridders get their first taste of "play for pay" football.

Cotten's southerners are favored by six and one-half points to hand the North squad its eighth defeat in the series. Some 37,000 fans, and a national NBC television audience are expected to witness the kickoff.

Baltimore Colt Coach Weeb Ewbank, making his third appearance as southern mentor, plans to utilize Cotten's accuracy with a three-end offense—ends Gary Collins of Maryland and Dave Edwards of Auburn on the line and end Bill Miller of Miami as a flanker back.

Along with the aerial attack, the southerners will have the running of halfback Ronnie Bull, the third-string All-America from Baylor, and powerhouse Earl Gros, the big LSU fullback.

The Yankees, coached by Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys who is making his first appearance here, will be out to avenge last year's closing seconds defeat. In the 1961 edition, South quarterback Norm Snead connected with just 10 seconds left to give the southerners a 33-26 victory.

Landry had one problem most coaches would like to have—an abundance of good quarterbacks. But the Cowboys coach decided to go with Ed Wilson, the flashy little ace from Arizona. And understandably, during the regular season, the 184-pound aerialist completed 79 of 154 for 1,294 yards and 10 touchdowns.

As receivers, Wilson will have ends Larry Vargo of Detroit and Dave Viti of Boston U.

The North's running attack will be centered around halfbacks Jim Dillard of Oklahoma State and fullback Steve Simms of unbeaten Rutgers.

Dietzel Relieved Of LSU Position

BATON ROUGE, La UPI—Officials at Louisiana State University Friday freed head football coach Paul Dietzel of a contract with four years remaining so he could take over coaching duties at the West Point Military Academy.

Old Southern Magazines

The feature case in our Old Book corner this week is filled with an interesting collection of back-number magazines—mostly Southern. You'll find ancient copies of The Trinity Archive, The North Carolina Quarterly, Holland's Southern Magazine—plus what's left of the set of National Geographic we first put out last Fall—all at cute little prices. Whether you buy or not, we think you'll get a kick out of looking through them.

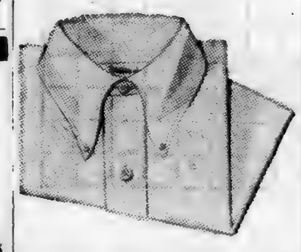
COMING NEXT MONDAY—the Library of a Diplomat-Historian. A distinguished collection of "work-horse" books for your pleasure.

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin Street

OPEN TILL 10 P.M.

Milton's January Colossal



You've no doubt heard many of our friends rave about our roll-button-down shirts with the perfect body taper—why not try several during January.

Colossal — $5.00 shirts now 1 for $4.00 or 3 for $11.50; $5.50 to 1 for $4.50 or 3 for $13.00; $5.95 now 1 for $5.00 or 3 for $14.50; $6.50 now 1 for $5.50 or 3 for $16.00.

This is just a sample of the choice goodies beckoning at such attractive quotations at

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

Lady Milton January Colossal

It's raining sweaters at mouth-watering reductions

Entire stock Fair Isle brushed Scottish shetlands reduced from $23.95 to $19.-99

All Braemar shetlands, cashmeres and lambswool sweaters substantially cut.

Group imported Elliot beige full fashioned shetland sweaters cut from $14.95 to $8.99.

Group sweaters formerly to $14.95 at $5.99.

Group Lady Milton shirts in button-down and choir boy collars, regularly to $9.95, at below cost of 1 for $2.99 or 3 for $8.50.

Many other most attractive buys to round out the cool months

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

BERLIN

a film report in full color
Narrated in person by the man who made the film

ART WILSON

MEMORIAL HALL 8:00 P.M.

Tuesday, January 9
Admission $1.00
Graham Memorial Travel Adventure Series

"Beefeaters' Haven"

ANGUS BARN

RALEIGH-DURHAM BYP./TE 4-4070

Stevens-Shepherd's Great January

SALE!

Reductions of 20- to 50%

and more on: Suits, Sport Coats, Trousers, Sweaters, Shirts, Topcoats, Ties, etc.

ALSO: From Our Ladies' Dept.—Blouses, Sweaters, Skirts—All Reduced

STEVENS-SHEPHERD

Soft On Communism
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Decreasings cloudiness. High in the low 50s.

Offices in Graham Memorial | SUNDAY, JANUARY 7, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

College Roundup

George Claims Professors Indoctrinate Integration

(Note: Following are news items from leading college newspapers across the country, as reecived at the DTH office. The column is run every Sunday.)

UNC "INDOCTRINATION"

DURHAM, N. C. — Dr. W. C. George, professor emeritus of UNC, was quoted in a Duke University newspaper interview recently that UNC students were being indoctrinated by integrationist professors.

He asked the interviewer if Duke students were being "indoctrinated." George said, "You can't go to Carolina any more without getting indoctrinated and I can imagine what's happening at Duke."

George has been hired by Gov. John Patterson of the state of Alabama to scientifically prove Negroes inferior to white men. He claims integration will lead to "interbreeding" of whites and Negroes which will rob Caucasions of their "creative genius."

"Integration will cause the decline of civilization," said the professor.

* * *

FOOTBALL FOR FORDHAM

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The University Student Council of Fordham College voted unanimously last month to petition the Administration for the return of "small time, non-scholarship football" to Fordham.

Intercollegiate football was stopped at the college in 1954 because "too much of the student's money was being poured down the drain," said Father Victor R. Yanitelli, Fordham's vice-president for student affairs.

Father Yanitelli cautioned the Council that a coach would have little control over a non-scholarship team, and that "there is a difference between football supporters and backers" among students.

* * *

FOOTBALL INTEGRATION

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Dr. Frank G. Dickey, University of Kentucky president, said recently it would be "just a matter of years" until Negroes begin competing on Southeastern Conference athletic teams.

"I hope the University can be one of the leaders in bringing this about," Dickey said.

* * *

CHAPEL HILL PRAISED

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—The December issue of the SOUTHERN PATRIOT devoted more than half its four pages to the First Amendment conference held in Chapel Hill in November by the Southern Conference Education Fund.

"Mention should be made of the Chapel Hill community atmosphere," said the PATRIOT, "which made such a conference possible.

"As controversy has become taboo in many places, this town has maintained its long tradition of free speech and provides a setting where emotion-charged subjects can be discussed intelligently.

"It is a community of which the South and America should be proud."

* * *

ADMINISTRATION ATTACKED

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—The Student Council of the University of Virginia recently attacked Dean of the University B. F. D. Runk's action in placing six fraternities on social probation.

The chief objection of the Council was not that the fraternities had been disciplined for their behavior during a certain fraternity program but that Dean Runk had acted without conferring with the Interfraternity Council which "should enjoy original jurisdiction."

The Council said it "strongly objects to any usurpation of the powers of the Interfraternity Council or any other branch of student government by the Dean of the University."

* * *

NSA "THREAT"

CHANDLER, Ariz. — Kay Wonderlic, national chairman of Students Committed to Accurate National Representation, recently charged the National Student Association with anti-intellectualism and distorted standards of conduct.

NSA is "the most serious threat to the academic community in over two decades," she said.

* * *

'LOBO' CONTROVERSY

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. — 'Lobo," the school newspaper of the University of New Mexico, is currently under attack as "leftist-oriented."

The editor of the "Lobo" was arrested last month at his own request when he felt Albuquerque city police were "participating willfully in harrassment of a Negro tenant in an all-white neighborhood, according to the University Press Service.

A member of the University Board of Regents has called for a state investigation of the newspaper, which has taken a consistent pro-integration position.

(Continued on Page 3)

Campus Briefs

The student chapter of the NAACP will meet Monday night at 9 in Gerrard Hall. Members have been urged to attend as this will be one of the last meetings until after final exams.

"The Christian and His Political Outlook" is the topic for the student supper-seminar at Binkley Church house this evening at 5:45. The speaker will be Dr. Earl Wallace of the political science department.

The YW-YMCA Catholic Orphanage Committee's field trip to the orphanage in Raleigh will leave Y-Court at 2 p.m. today. Interested students have been invited to come. The committee will return to the campus by 5:30 p.m.

WUNC-TV is presently holding auditions for an on-camera TV newscaster. Interested students should contact Roger Koontz at WUNC for an appointment.

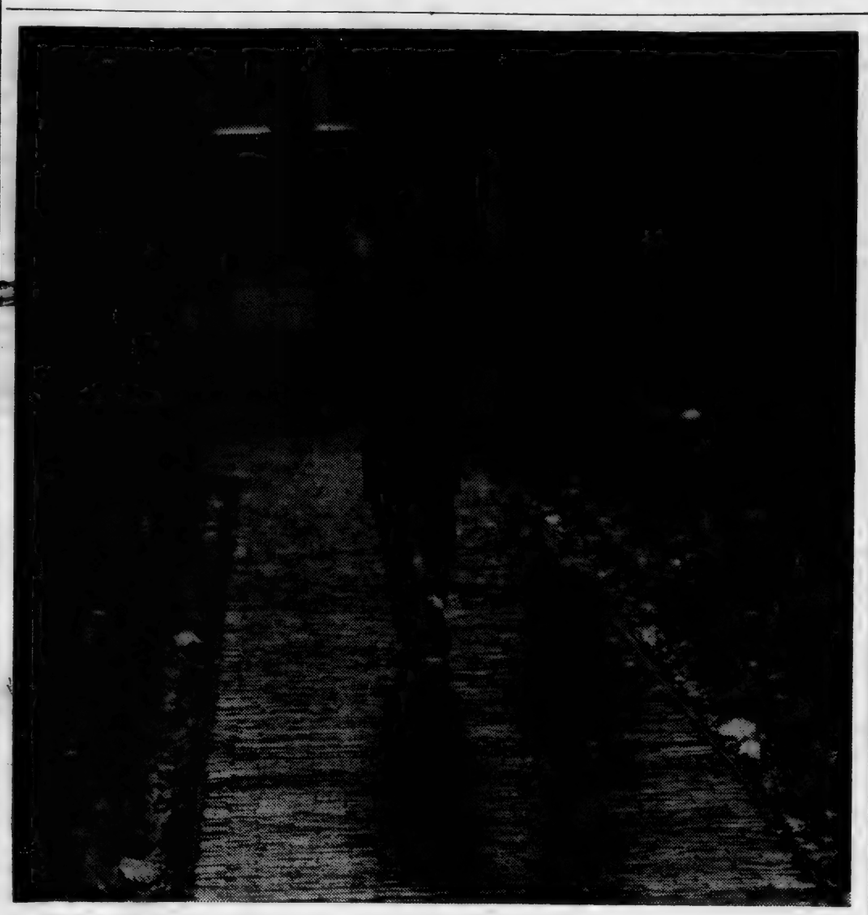
Alexander Heard, dean of the Graduate School, will be the luncheon speaker for the University's Faculty Club Luncheon, Tuesday at 1 p.m. in Faculty Club Building.

The title of Dean Heard's address is "The University, the Region, and the Nation."

Dr. A. T. Miller, department of physiology, and Dr. E. D. Palmatier, physics department, will speak before a meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at 205 Phillips Hall.

Dr. Miller will speak on "Medical Research and Education in Israel" and Dr. Palmatier will talk on "A Satellite Study of the Constitution of Cosmic Radiation."

Parisian Reds Protest OAS Terror Campaign



AND THE RAIN CAME DOWN

TRUDGING—While the rain drenched Chapel Hill yesterday, many students headed into the dorms and libraries in the beginning attack on books in preparing for final exams. This student, seemingly fresh from a pool game in Graham Memorial heads for Battle-Vance-Pettigrew under one of the ubiquitous umbrellas one could see all over campus yesterday. The weather forecast for tomorrow indicates a halt in the rain, but everyone knows about weather forecasts.—(Photo by Zalk.)

Increased Force Of French Police Disperses Group

PARIS (UPI) — Communists demonstrated on the rain-soaked boulevard of downtown Paris Saturday against the terror campaign of the Secret Army Organization (OAS) which demands a "French Algeria."

There was no violence.

About 4,000 to 5,000 men, women, and leather-jacketed youths paraded in response to a summons from Communist Party headquarters, but they dispersed when they encountered a well-drilled task force of armed riot police.

A cordon of 1,000 mobile guards and city police blocked all access to the downtown Communist Party headquarters where the main demonstration was to have been held. The Communist headquarters was the target of a machine-gun attack attributed to the OAS early Thursday.

Forty police vans barricaded the six streets leading to the headquarters this morning, and after a half hour of noisy shouting "OAS-assassins" and "Peace in Algeria" the demonstrators dispersed. At the same time other groups marched along nearby boulevards, shouting and singing. None of the protests was directed against President Charles de Gaulle or the government, which has accused the Communists of using anti-OAS sentiment to whip up agitation against De Gaulle.

About 5,000 additional riot police and mobile gendarmes had been rushed into Paris during the night, but they were not called out during the demonstrations and they remained in their barracks in the suburbs.

Reconsideration Urged At Emporia

A resolution was passsed urging the Board of Trustees of Emporia College (Kansas) to reconsider their recent dismissal of two administration officials at the December meeting of the national executive committee of the National Student Association. College president Richard E. Hanna had resigned when the Board of Trustees, headed by Elvin Perkins, fired faculty member David Butterfield. Professor Butterfield had written a letter to the school newspaper protesting the forced resignation of the Student Council President.

The President of the Student Council had resigned as a result of being asked to testify in the trial of a student who was being dismissed for his part in an off-campus beer party, which the president attended.

Butterfield's letter, which was never published, was picked up by the newspaper advisor, who showed it to her husband, the Dean of Students at Emporia. The editor of the paper was asked to withhold the letter from print until it could be showed to President Hanna. The faculty advisor at the College of Emporia has the power to veto any article submitted to the newspaper. This power was not used in this case. The firing of Rev. Butterfield followed with no formal charges or hearing allowed him.

Later Reinstated

President Hanna at first complied with the instructions of the executive committee of the Board of Trustees to fire Butterfield, but later reinstated the professor and submitted his own resignation, in effect asking for a vote of confidence on his right to hire and fire faculty members.

Elvin Perkins, chairman of the Board of Trustees, accepted Hanna's resignation and confirmed the firing of professor Butterfield.

In its December resolution, the executive committee of the NSA reaffirmed its stand "on academic freedom, the right to protest, and the right for a just hearing and formal charges presented to anyone dismissed from an educational institution."

NSA Disagrees

The NSA further declared that it "strongly disagrees with the method used in firing Rev. Butterfield without formal charges or hearing, and the dismissal of President Hanna in carrying out his duties free from outside pressure.

In passing the resolution 25-0, the NSA quoted a front-page editorial which appeared in the city newspaper. The Emporia Gazette, on Dec. 13:

"The issue here is sadly simple. An acting College President was fired because he refused, at the demand of the executive committee of the Board of Trustees, to fire a professor in the middle of the term, against whom no charges had been filed and to whom had been given no hearing, nor any chance to face his anonymous accusers."

The NSA's declaration ended: "We urge the present administration and the Board of Trustees to reconsider this action and to give a fair hearing to the the abovementioned parties. We further hope that the administration at the college will realize the necessity to guarantee the freedoms and rights to faculty members as outlined by the American Association of University Professors and deplores the unethical principle of an advisor having the power to veto articles submitted to the college newspaper."

Award-Winning 'Bicycle Theif' Tonight's Flick

"The Bicycle Thief," acclaimed by Time magazine as the "best film in 30 years," will be tonight's Free Flick.

The film is shown at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. at Carroll Hall. Students must show I.D. cards.

The review of the New Yorker magazine called the movie "A masterpiece! None better! A drama at once funny, appealing, exciting and sad. Director Vittorio De Sica is the peer of any movie maker in the world."

The movie has won seven awards, including Grand Prix, Belgium World Film Festival; Best Film of the Year, National Board of Review; and Best Foreign Film of the Year, by both the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences and by the New York Film Critics.

Ranks With Best

Movie critic Bosley Crowther called the film "One of the ten best films in 40 years. In its revelation of the loneliness of man in a complex world it ranks for all-around greatness with any picture made."

The movie is about a man and his son who search through the streets of Rome for his bicycle, stolen just when he needs it for a long-sought job. This simple plot is so poignantly written and directed by the two leaders in the Italian Neo-Realist school that the personal experiences of the man and boy become a great human drama. The film shows life in Rome and in post-war Europe.

It is directed by De Sica and stars Lamberto Maggiorani as the father and Enzo Staiola as the boy.

Bryn Mawr Opens New French School

Bryn Mawr College is opening for the first time in June, a Summer Institute in Avignon, France, for undergraduate students who anticipate professional careers requiring a knowledge of France, it was announced yesterday by Miss Katharine E. McBride, president of Bryn Mawr.

A grant of $20,000 from the Carnegie Corporation of New York has been made to Bryn Mawr to aid in the establishment of the program which will be under the direction of Dr. Michel Guggenheim, associate professor of French at the college.

The Institute will be open to young men and women of high academic achievement and demonstrated proficiency in French. Preference will be given students contemplating careers in which a knowledge of France and of the French language is basic, such as teaching, foreign or government service.

French professors teaching in the United States and in France will constitute the faculty for the first session. Courses in the fields of French language and literature, history and art will be offered.

Classes will begin on Monday, June 25. Applications for admission to the Institute must be received at Bryn Mawr College before March 1, 1962.

UP MEET SCHEDULED

The University Party will hold an open meeting Monday night at 7 at Gerrard Hall. Party Chairman Bill Criswell said the purpose of the meeting will be to discuss policy for the spring semester and to air the financial issues which were brought out in the last open meeting.

Assassins Shoot Algeria's Causse

ALGIERS (UPI) — Moslem terrorists shot and killed the French-born vice-president of the Algiers Superior Court Saturday only a hundred yards from the court building.

The assassins' victim was Charles Causse 41, one of Algeria's most prominent judges. He was the father of five children.

Two police inspectors, who witnessed the attack, said they saw two Moslems carrying pistols shoot the judge in the back of the neck. They fled with a third man who apparently had been their lookout.

Causse was one of two Europeans and three Moslems killed in Algeria Saturday as the wave of European-Moslem terrorism continued unabated. Since the first of the year 95 persons have been killed and 217 wounded in the outbursts throughout Algeria. Violence was reported Saturday in Algiers, Constantine, and Oran.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Dr. Sukarno

'Only God' Can Stop Indonesia

PARE-PARE, Indonesia—President Sukarno Saturday told a mass rally that only God could prevent Indonesia from "liberating" West Irian Dutch New Guinea before the end of 1962.

Attending the rally were foreign ambassadors accompanying the Indonesian president on his tour of Indonesia with Soviet Astronaut Gherman Titov.

Sukarno introduced Titov and the ambassadors before addressing the crowd in this town on Celebes Island. U. S. Ambassador Howard Jones shouted the word "merdeka" freedom into the microphone and the ambassadors from Japan and Czechoslovakia followed suit.

★ ★ ★

Record Budget For Castro

HAVANA—A record Cuban budget was unvailed by the Fidel Castro government Saturday along with a new income tax increase to help pay for it. The total budget as approved by the council of ministers was announced at 1,953,500,000 pesos. Missing from the public account sheet was any mention of defense funds.

The peso officially is pegged at a rate of one to the U. S. dollar. The actual exchange rate varies between four and five pesos to the U. S. dollar.

It was described as the island's "first scientific budget." The government said it would involve "no deficit" and took a step toward fulfilling this forecast by a new tax law which boils down more than 100 national taxes into 10 major categories.

★ ★ ★

Walker Says 'No' On Governor

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI)—Resigned Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker said Friday night a report that he is going to run for the Democratic nomination for governor in Texas was news to him.

The Chicago Tribune said in a Washington dispatch signed by Walter Tronan: "He (Walker) had been expected to try for congressman at large and then for the Senate, but has been urged to bid for the state's highest office."

Walker has discussed the gubernatorial race with many Democratic leaders and other prominent Texans, the Tribune said. Walker, 52, was removed from command of the Army's 24th Division in Germany for "participating in controversial activities," which were later disclosed to have included attempts to influence the votes of his troops in favor of candidates with ultra-conservative records. He later resigned his Army post.

★ ★ ★

Reds Capture E. German Refugee

BERLIN—Communist border guards Saturday fired on and captured an East German trying to reach refuge in the American Sector of West Berlin but two other youths made it safely through the barricades and "death zone" dividing the city. On the French Sector border, workmen guarded by armed Vopos people's police and police dogs demolished cottages and one-family houses along Klemke Strasse to provide Communist border patrols with a wider range of fire to stop refugees.

Alleged 'Fixer' Held In Wake County Jail

Paul Walker, New York, described by Raleigh District Solicitor Lester Chalmers as a "basketball fixer," was placed in a Wake County jail Friday night.

He is charged with conspiring with Joseph Green, convicted fixer, of bribing two members of the State College basketball team, to shave points in a game with Maryland on Feb. 13, 1960.

Green was accused of giving Don Gallagher and Stan Niewierowski $1,250 each for the game, which the Wolfpack won, 48-46. Walker, Chalmers said, was involved in the same deal.

The arrest of Walker was expected to be the first of several that will be made in a continuation of the sports bribery and conspiracy case handled by Chalmers and the SBI.

RECEIVES LETTER

LONDON (UPI)—Hoare's Bank in Fleet Street reported Friday it had received a letter addressed to its previous location in Cheapside. The bank moved from Cheapside in 1690.

Infirmary

Students in the infirmary yesterday included Martha White, Donna Hunt, Robert Kearney, Morton Nibblet, Gayle Robinson, John Pettibone, Donald Buffloe, William Hollifield, Berry Gary Johnson, Quinton Colter, Robert Ashby, Neil Clark, George Wynn, Winston Sanford Theodore Steinburg, James Silvers, Steven Dennis, David Wysong, William Taylor and John Gentry.

All Noted

Three Public Health Speakers Slated For Coming Months

Three noted speakers in the field of public health have been scheduled by the School of Public Health within the next three months, the first to appear here on Jan. 15.

Dr. L. S. Goerke, associate dean of the School of Public Health at the University of California at Los Angeles, will speak on Jan. 15. He and the other two speakers will lecture at Student-Faculty Seminars which will be held at 3 p.m. in the Assembly Room of the Louis R. Wilson Library.

Dr. Goerke will speak on "Medical Care, Southern California Variety." His appearance here is sponsored by the school's Departments of Epidemiology and Parasitology.

Dr. Sheps

Dr. Cecil Sheps will be guest speaker on Feb. 12. He is professor of medical and hospital administration of the Graduate School of the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Shep's topic will be "Pioneering in Public Health's Medical Care Role." This lecture is sponsored by the school's Department of Public Health Administration.

On March 5 the speaker will not be a public health educator, but instead, a man in public life, a member of Congress and a man who has been closely allied with important health legislation. He is John E. Fogarty of Rhode Island.

HEW Subcommittee

The topic of Congressman Fogarty's lecture has not been announced. He is a member of the Appropriations Committee and a member of the subcommittee for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as well as that of the Department of Labor.

In the field of health affairs, the Congressman, along with Senator Lister Hill, introduced the Hill-Fogarty "Health for Peace" bill. This establishes a National Institute for International Health and Medical Research.

The Congressman also is the author of the Health Education Facilities Construction bill, which provides for a 10-year program of grants for the construction of medical, dental and public health schools.

Cited By Congress

In the field of health affairs he has been cited for outstanding work in Congress by the American Cancer Society, Welfare League for Retarded Children, United Cerebral Palsy Association, National Association for Retarded Children, American Dental Association, American Public Health Association, National Tuberculosis Association and the World Health Organization of the United Nations—just to name a few such honors.

The public is invited to attend all of the lectures.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 7, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLLX, No. 72

Soft On Communism

It seems that about half the nation's politicians are competing in an unofficial race to see who can exhibit the most hatred for Communists. One of the latest to leap awkwardly onto the band-wagon is Rep. Basil Whitener of Gastonia, who this week pounced on the Federal Communications Commission for being "soft on Communism" (where have we heard that before?).

Rep. Whitener indicated Friday he felt the Commission had gone "soft" because one of its spokesmen hinted it might consider requests for equal TV time from groups wishing to refute parts of a film, "Hollywood's reply to Communism," currently being shown by various TV stations and which was aired by Charlotte's WBTV Dec. Dec. 11.

Speakers on the film called for a complete turnover in the State Department, hinting that some members of the Department might be too receptive to leftist tenets.

The FCC spokesman commented as follows: "The FCC is not going to advocate giving communists TV time to reply to anti-communists but the . . . film is being shown more and more in the east. We are pretty sure when it reaches New York some pretty far left-wing outfits are going to ask time to reply."

Joseph Nelson, director of the FCC license renewal office said, quite correctly, that the questions the film raises are controversial issues of public importance and that TV stations have an obligation to give "issues fair treatment."

These statements caused Rep. Whitener, in a perfect imitation of the little boy who cried wolf, to declare: "This soft on communism utterance by the FCC is unsupported in law and good morals. The Communist element is not a political party. It is a cancer on the body politic and will not be combatted successfully by mouthings of 'fair play' and 'fairness doctrine.' The only doctrine that Americans should have in combatting this deadly enemy is all-out war with no holds barred."

What Rep. Whitener seems to have overlooked in his hasty scramble to paint himself as a valiant anti-communist crusader is that the "fair play' " he sarcastically writes off is one of the best weapons against encroachments upon freedom—much better than the "all-out, no-holds-barred" approach that he recommends.

Some of the questions that the film under consideration raises are certainly open to legitimate debate — complete turnover in the State Department for instance is hardly an uncontroversial suggestion.

Merely to oppose this, and other suggestions and insinuations in the lengthy film, does not make the dissenter a Communist, as Rep. Whitener suggests. It means only that he has a difficult time accepting some of the carping, slightly wild-eyed attacks the film makes.

One of the things that Rep. Whitener and others of his ilk seem to be getting confused of late is the difference between being soft on communism and being soft on freedom.

Isn't There Another Way

Not that we're complaining, but it seems that the only gimmick left open to magazine advertisers in the past few years—and it gets more evident every day—is the enhancing of every conceivable kind of product by associating it with an unclothed, or half-clothed female figure.

Besides the disconcerting effect this has on the serious reader, who can't keep his mind on the article he's reading because his eyes keep straying off to ogle the advertising, this kind of product-pushing puts many manufacturers at a major disadvantage.

Consider the plight, for instance, of the tractor manufacturer. He is faced with the dilemma of either having his product displayed by a winsome lass in a bikini bathing-suit blithely plowing the lower forty, or running the risk of having his ad overlooked as the reader skips over it to gaze upon less prudish layouts.

If the trend continues, advertising will have reached such a state the credulity of even the most gullible consumer will be stretched as he is assailed by ads portraying birthday - suited blondes smoking pipes, driving the latest Mack truck, or using new, improved Vitalis.

As we said, we're not complaining. But somehow the outlook, although intriguing, doesn't really seem comforting.

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN REYNES
Associate Editor

LLOYD LITTLE
Executive News Editor

BILL HOUSE
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

NANCY BAIR, LINDA CRAVOTTA—
Feature Editors

HARRY W. LLOYD.....Sports Editor
DAVID WYSONG.....Subscription Manager
JIM ESKRIDGE.....Circulation Manager
ED DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE.....Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MATHEWS.....Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1870. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Another Arrest

The arrest of truck-driver Paul Walker in New York Thursday on charges of conspiring to bribe State basketball players Stan Niewierowski and Don Gallagher last season in a game against Maryland is the most recent incident in the game-fixing investigations that have stretched over more than a year.

The investigations still continue and there are promises of more arrests still to come.

The occasional cropping-up of new arrests serves as a continuing reminder that college sports, vital as they sometimes seem to a school, can and do get too big. Perhaps the reminder is unnecessary — but scandals occurred in 1950 and it took only ten years to forget it completely enough for a reoccurrence.

Maybe this time it won't be forgotten so easily.

Attitudes By Clotfelter

For American Stone Age shelter-dwellers the recent report from Russia by Harrison E. Salisbury must have been a great shock. Salisbury, veteran NEW YORK TIMES Moscow correspondent, said that in his travels covering most of the populated area of Russia, he had not seen nor heard of a single fallout shelter existing or in the process of being built (with the exception of the shelter in the Kremlin which existed in World War II and which has probably been improved since then).

Salisbury said he talked to peasants, workers, students, and children—in no conversation were fallout shelters even discussed. The experienced correspondent reported that nowhere had he observed anything which led him to believe that shelters were being constructed or already existed, neither in Moscow, other minor cities, nor in the rural areas.

This report is in direct contradiction to previous ones by American writers claiming that a massive shelter-building program is in progress in the Soviet Union. Salisbury's past record leads one to accept his on-the-scene version in place of the preconceived mind-over-matter prognostications of homefront observers.

* * *

This story — although probably omitted from or shoved to the back of many newspapers—should ease the worries of the Americans who are wondering what they and the government should do about civil defense.

Most Americans have not succumbed to the shelter craze. Most Americans don't want their government to pour millions into construction of questionable worth. Most Americans have not reached the point where war appears to be inevitable. Many Americans worried, "If the Russians are building shelters, then shouldn't we?" Now we see the Russians aren't and we shouldn't.

No individual citizen can be told to build or not build his own shelter, but a government building program is clearly a public issue. By building shelters government agencies are reconciling the public to the inevitability of war and wasting money which could be used more wisely to keep the peace.

University and town officials should take another look at their civil defense plans for the UNC campus and Chapel Hill itself. An academic community should not fall for the shelter fraud. It should help lead the nation away from fright and defeatism.

—Jim Clotfelter

Africa Awaiting Uhuru (Independence)

Last year I was a graduate student at UNC, studying history and political science. This year I am teaching at Machakos Training College, a teacher-training college for young African girls, at Machakos, Kenya, in the Ukamba district of Kenya. I am one of the 150 American teachers sent here by the International Cooperation Administration. We were recruited and trained by Columbia University during the past summer, received further training at Makerere University College in Uganda, and were posted to various schools and colleges throughout East Africa. I thought perhaps the readers of the DTH might be interested in some of my observations.

"Africa is a land of contrasts." We heard this sentence frequently during our training program, and now see that it is indeed true. Africa is a land of contrasts in wealth and poverty, progress and backwardness, sincerity and treachery. The Stone Age and the Atomic Age seem to exist side by side. Even the weather does things by extremes. After two years of drought, the rains have come, and millions of acres are under flood water.

One can fly from Nairobi to London or New York by Comet jet, yet it is often impossible to make a telephone call from Nairobi to Machakos, 39 miles away, as there is only one line. There are many places where a message can only be sent by police radio.

* * *

The African politicians all ride in the newest Mercedes cars, yet the poor who have paid for these cars walk into town, the women carrying babies on their backs and loads of firewood from a band around their heads. The new Stanley is a beautiful hotel with modern decor and a wealthy, international clientele. Just outside its doors lepers and legless beggars cry plaintively to the passersby. There are restaurants where diners can spend 100 shillings for an evening. This is the monthly wage for many.

Superstition is rampant. Recently an agricultural officer, grading cattle, pointed out one which should be killed and replaced with a better animal. Instantly the African owner put a spear through the officer's chest, explaining later to authorities, "That cow had the spirit of my brother."

Education is desperately needed, yet schools are being closed and teachers turned away because the people refuse to pay taxes. They are waiting for Uhuru (independence), for the politicians have told them that after Uhuru there will be free education for all.

* * *

Theft is common. Schools are found to be under-equipped because the headmaster has pocketed part of the school fees. Bags of grain intended for famine relief mysteriously disappear. The important thing is not to get caught. Thievery is almost a game. Last week an African was caught in the act of fishing some clothing from an automobile with a wire in Nairobi. He apologized, "I'm sorry, bwana, I didn't know anybody was looking."

The older generation still clings to tribal ways; the school-age children reach wholeheartedly for education and Western ways. They will be the saviors of their nation in ten years. Meanwhile, the middle generation, the ones in control now, are bringing about conditions that may result in civil war. They have seen enough of the Europeans' way to want to copy it, but not enough to know how to achieve this. These "children of the dawn," as their history book calls them, have been thrust into the midday sun of the Twentieth Century. They stand blinking uncertainly in the unaccustomed bright light.

An Old Fashioned Honor

Editor, Tar Heel:

Well, I am glad old-fashioned honor is not out of style, for at least one family, in the year of our Lord 1961. The story in Time magazine, Modern Living, December 29, 1961, recalls my own childhood, and two experiences with my own family after I was grown and married.

When my son, who is now grown, was a little boy, he told me that he and another small boy had found a hoe in the park and had done some digging in the woods. I thought nothing of it until a neighbor called over the telephone to say that my son and his pal had taken a hoe from her yard. I knew then that my son had lied. I immediately took him to the neighbor's house and had him apologize for his misdeed. The neighbor was most gracious, her one concern was that the child shouldn't feel too badly about the incident. As far as I know he never lied to me again.

* * *

The other incident occurred when my young niece stayed with me for a year. She had a habit, whenever she returned from another house, of bringing with her some little something that didn't belong to her, and kept me busy returning the things. Finally, one day, I said, "Here, I am tired of this." Straightway we went to the friend's home, I had the child return the article and apologize for taking it. Instead of giving her a switching, it was a gamble I took. I am relieved to say it worked. The child never brought anything else home with her.

The tears of the little boy cited in Time Magazine were pathetic and touching, because he was not thinking of himself but of giving happiness to someone else. I could have wept with him.

But more honor to the mother, who didn't let her heart interfere with her sense of honor and duty to her child. Let's nominate her the woman of the year!

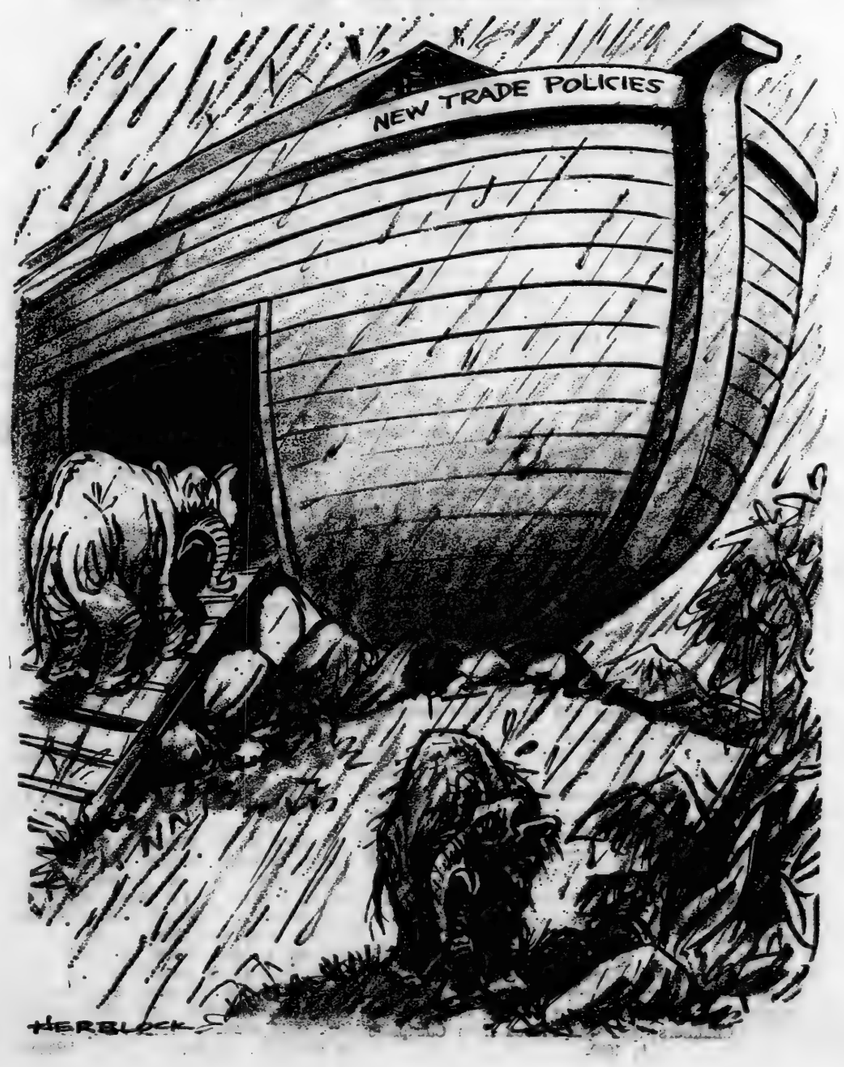
—Otelia Connor

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

"Come On — You Want To Become Extinct?"



Robinson's Ramblings

Today there is almost universal approval of the value of a college education. Here is a little story that proves the point:

After the college boy delivered the telegram to the estate-owner, the man said: "What's the usual tip for you messenger boys?"

"Well," replied the youth, "this is my first trip here, but the other guys said that if I get a dime out of you, I'm doing great."

"Is that so!" snorted the man. "Well, just to show them how wrong they are, here's a dollar."

"Thanks," replied the boy, "I'll put this into my special school fund."

"What are you studying?" asked the man.

The lad smiled.
"Psychology."

* * *

We are quite intrigued with this idea of the Federal regulatory agencies that whatever is shown on television ought to be exactly what it says it is. It offers a logical approach to some interesting possibilities.

You know, the cake the lady spieler slices to show you how luscious it looks must be a real cake, but photographs better than the real thing. Just the other day, for example, the F.T.C. jumped an advertiser for having a man lathered up with what really wasn't a shave cream at all. It's the kind of thing that's supposed to shake a man's confidence in the true-to-lifeness of TV.

Well, the same night we saw that the commercial, we also watched a soap opera in which one of the characters gulped down several martinis. True, in the make-believe drama, the action took place over several days, but in the performance this one actor drank three doubles in the space of an hour.

We don't want to add to your disillusionment about television veracity, but we have a tiny suspicion that those martinis were actually water. And we're waiting for the F.T.C. or F.C.C. to get around to them. Insisting on truth in these soap operas is sure going to lead to some spirited consequences.

Can Society Survive Without Its Heroes?

Is the downgrading of Stalin or, rather, the de-Stalinization of Russian life a political technique peculiar to Communism? Or is it simply a Communist version of a worldwide reaction against political heroes in the era following World War II?

"Ours is an age without heroes," writes Harvard Professor Arthur Schlesinger Jr. (See "The Decline of Heroes," an essay included in the book "Adventures of the Mind," published by Alfred A. Knopf, New York, 1960.) Professor Schlesinger notes that World War II "precipitated a universal revulsion against greatness." The war destroyed Hitler and Mussolini. After the conflict, the British repudiated Churchill, the Americans slapped at Roosevelt (by adopting the 22nd amendment to bar Presidents from a third term), the Chinese renounced faith in Chiang Kai-shek.

* * *

And the revulsion against heroes also spread to Russia.

"Khrushchev, in toppling Stalin from his pedestal," writes Professor Schlesinger, "pronounced the general verdict against the uncommon man: the modern world, he said, had no use for the 'cult of the individual.' And, indeed, carried to the excesses to which the worshippers of Hitler and Stalin carried it, even to the much milder degree to which admirers of Roosevelt and Churchil sometimes carried it, the cult of the individual was dangerous. No man is fallible, and every man needs to be reminded of this on occasion. Still, our age has gone further than this—it objects not just to hero worship but to heroes. The century of the common man has come into its own."

The repudiation of heroes by the common man, Professor Schlesinger suggests, is more than dismissal of leaders "identified with a season of blood and agony." Envy is at work. "Modern democracy," writes Professor Schlesinger, "inadvertently gave envy new scope. While the purpose of democracy was to give everyone a fair chance to rise, its method enabled rancorous men to evoke 'equality' as an excuse for keeping all down to their own level."

If this is true, we in "free society" are confronted with a real danger "from within" that deserves serious attention.

* * *

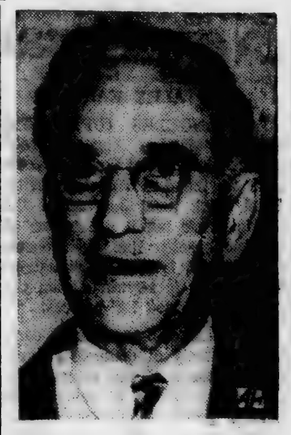
No one longs for new Hitlers or new Stalins, but we can still use heroes in our society as long as we do not make them gods. We are in trouble, as Professor Schlesinger warns, when we decide we can do without great men. The quest for "togetherness" is damaging in so far as it stifles creative individualism and dissent from the group—that which produces heroes. The cult of the group can be as devastating as the cult of the individual. The common man's reaction against the uncommon man could ruin civilization. Great men of the caliber of Socrates, Shakespeare, Washington, and Lincoln are needed to inspire lesser men. In the words of another uncommon man, Emerson, "We feed on genius. Great men exist that there may be greater men." And we also ned great men, Professor Schlesinger tells us, for the larger role of affirming "human freedom against the supposed inevitabilities of history."

Khrushchev feels that Russia has been menaced by the cult of the individual, and he has confronted the menace head-on—in what we term "true Communist style." De-Stalinization takes on aspects that amuse us on this side of the world. We make jokes. We laugh. But perhaps we should make sure that the joke is not on us. As we laugh about the extremities of the downgrading of Stalin, the cult of the group holds too great a sway among us. It stands in need of some downgrading, in true democratic style.

Complete distrust of heroes is as destructive as hero worship. As Professor Schlesinger concludes: "If our society has lost its wish for heroes and the ability to produce them, it may well turn out to have lost everything else as well."

—Smithfield Herald

Returning Legislators Face New Problems, New Policies



SUCCEEDING Sam Rayburn as speaker of the House, McCormack (D.-Mass.) has feuded with Kennedy in both Massachusetts and national politics.—Associated Press Photo.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Members of 87th Congress began returning to the Capital Saturday with the feeling that they were entering a new era in which the future is but dimly charted.

Far-reaching changes have occurred in the 19 weeks since adjournment of the first session at dawn Sept. 27.

With a new and untested Democratic leadership in the House, the legislators will be asked by President Kennedy to face many controversial issues—some raised by revolutionary changes in the world's economic and political structure.

The change in atmosphere from last year is in a sense greater than that which occurred when Democrats took control of the White House last January. In the first session, Kennedy concentrated on pushing to enactment major bills which had been chewed over for several years by Democratic congresses in struggles with Republican President Eisenhower.

The second session convenes on Jan. 10, and Kennedy delivers his State of the Union address to a joint session the next day.

Faces Thorny Issues

The new thorny issues on which Kennedy will press for action this year include:

Trade — Far-reaching Presidential authority to negotiate reciprocal tariff cuts which Kennedy contends are necessary if the United States is to meet the trade challenge posed by Western Europe's new common market. Approval of anything close to what he wants would mean an about-face for Congress which, for more than a decade, has been paying lip service to liberal trade while pushing the country toward protectionism.

Medical Care—The President's proposal to expand the Social Security program into the controversial field of medical care for the aged will for the first time be given top priority by the administration. The plan would raise Social Security taxes and provide hospitalization and nursing home benefits for 16 million persons 65 or older.

United Nations — For the first time U.S. financial support for the world peace organization faces a serious challenge. Kennedy will pose the issue by asking for authority to buy up to $100 million worth of bonds to tide the United Nations over a financial crisis caused by failure of Russia and many other nations to pay assessments for military actions in the Congo. The opposition engendered reflects in part congressional concern over the decline of the West's influence in the U.N. and the rising power of the Asiatic and African blocs.

Uncertainty Compounded

Uncertainty over the outcome of these and other controversial matters was compounded when cancer last fall struck down Kennedy's most powerful congressional ally, Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas.

The new speaker will be Rep. John W. McCormack, 70-year-old Boston Irishman who has served as House Democratic floor leader longer than any man in history.

Rep. Carl Albert, a 53-year-old, quiet-spoken Oklahoman, will be elected floor leader.

The changeover has caused some apprehension in the White House. It is in the House, rather than the Senate, where Kennedy's legislative battles will be won or lost. There is widespread agreement that McCormack will be unable to wield the power that Rayburn exercised among conservative Southerners.

Thus, the White House and its lobbyists are expected to play a more active role on Capitol Hill than last year.

In the Senate Republicans face a change in the leadership of their policy committee. Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, for years the most influential Republican in the Senate, died last fall. Candidates to fill his post are Sens. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

Duke Music Meet Hosts W. Schuman

Pulitzer Prize-winner and composer Dr. William Schuman will speak at Duke University in Durham Monday night at 8:15.

Dr. Schuman's two-day visit on the Duke campus in Durham will also include an all-day music conference featuring the Brass and Woodwind Quintets of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

All events will be open to the public.

Schuman's Monday lecture titled "On Being an American Composer" will be given in Page Auditorium. An informal reception in the Flowers Building lounge will follow.

Quintet Performances

Tuesday's agenda includes performances by the Brass Quintet from 9:30 to 10:15 a.m. and by the Woodwind Quintet from 2:30 to 3:15 p.m. in the Woman's College Auditorium. Each concert will be followed by two clinic sessions to be conducted by the quintet members.

The musicians are members of the Philadelphia Orchestra which will appear under the direction of Conductor Eugene Ormandy Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Duke Indoor Stadium. This will be an All-Star Artists Series attraction.

Dr. Schuman's visit to the campus is through the support of the Mary Duke Biddle Foundation. Currently president of the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts in New York City, he served as president of the Juilliard School of Music in New York from 1945 to 1961.

Petite Musicale Presents Pianist In Concert Today

Ellsworth Snyder will appear tonight in the first Petite Musicales cocert of the season. The performance will be held in the Graham Memorial Lounge at 8.

Snyder is a pianist and instructor of piano at Newcomb College, Tulane University, New Orleans, La .

Contemporary music will be the theme of the concert, although two numbers by Shubert (a sonata) and Liszt (Eleventh Hungarian Rhapsodie) will add a flavor of the classical standards.

Webern, Schoenberg

Included will be works by Webern, Schoenberg, and Dr. Charles Hamm, professor of theory and composition at Newcomb College. Snyder will close with a Burl Ives rendition in ragtime of the old hymn, "Bringing in the Sheaves."

"We are fortunate in securing a pianist for the Les Petites Musicales series who will play both contemporary and classical music," said John L. Currie, chairman of the GMAB Music Committee.

"His program will cover a wide variety of musical interests; we therefore anticipate a sizeable attendance."

SENDS KENNEDY GIFT

LONDON (UPI) — The lord mayor of London, Sir Frederick Hoare, has sent President Kennedy four decks of playing cards as a gift.

The Playing Card Bureau, which announced the gift, said the cards are unique. Their backings feature color reproductions of the mayoral regalia, the first time such reproductions have been permitted.

Get Better Grades With Study Aids

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 East Franklin Street

Chapel Hill

Open Till 10 P.M.

Rusk, Clay In Basic Agreement On U. S. Policy For Berlin

GEN. LUCIUS D. CLAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Gen. Lucius D. Clay said yesterday they had no disagreement on "basic policy" regarding Berlin. They indicated, however, that they did not always see eye to eye on proceedural matters.

Clay, President Kennedy's special representative in Berlin, conferred with Rusk for about 90 minutes. In talking with newsmen afterward, Clay said he will report to Kennedy at the White House Sunday and return to his Berlin post Monday.

Rusk said stories regarding policy differences between him and Clay were false.

"There was nothing in those stories and I hope the inference in them will die away," the secretary said.

Clay said that when contingency planning is involved — deciding what to do in specific crises—"It is normal that I express my views . . . It is necessary in making policy to have this type of reporting."

Rusk added that the United States had "benefitted greatly" from Clay's presence and advice in Berlin. The secretary added that the planning process involved getting everyone's views. Clay's ideas, he said, had been helpful.

Rusk and Clay did not deny specifically the reports that they were at odds over the authority give the U.S. military commander in Berlin, Maj. Gen. Albert Watson, to deal with uprisings along the wall dividing Berlin.

NSA Prints New Travel Guide

The fourteenth edition of the annual student travel guide, "Work, Study, Travel Abroad" has been published and released by the National Student Association.

The newly revised book contains eight major sections including tips and information for students going abroad.

New to the book is the "North American Supplement." This section provides information on programs and opportunities opened to North American students in the United States.

Another feature is an article on the Seattle World's Fair. A third new feature is an article entitled "Get Lost" by Peter Colliers which tells how students can get the most from trip abroad.

—Roundup—

(Continued from Page 1)

CUT FOR KENTUCKY

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky Gov. Bert Combs said recently the State will propose a 39-million-dollar budget for the University of Kentucky for the next two years.

The state's proposed figure falls $13 million short of what University President Frank G. Dickey said was "an absolute necessity . . . if the University is to keep operating without loss of ground during the coming biennium."

* * *

NSA ENTRANCE?

ITHACA, N. Y. — The Student Senate of Cornell University recetly recommended that the school "become actively engaged in the proceedings of the National Student Association.

"Cornellians must be educated as to the various aspects of NSA, and students with interests in national and international problems should be encouraged to participate actively."

* * *

SHELTERS "TRAGIC"

MADISON, Wisc. — Thirty-seven University of Wisconsin faculty members and civic and religious leaders attacked the government-backed fallout shelter program as "a decision by the United States to accept general nuclear war as an instrument of national policy" in an open letter recently published.

Dependence upon shelters is an "evasion of reality," the letter said.

Science Grant

The National Science Foundation has awarded a grant of $38,000 to the Department of Geology and Geography to conduct an Institute in Earth Sciences from June 7-July 17, 1962.

The period of the institute coincides with the University's regular summer school and is open to 38 junior and senior high school teachers to improve the subject matter competence of the teachers.

The institute is designed for those teachers with little or no formal course work in the earth sciences. Courses will be given in physical geology, historical geology, and physical geography. Each participant will receive a stipend of $450, an allowance for travel, allotments for dependents, and free tuition. Applications should be submitted by February 15.

SBI Enters Case Of Funeral Home

GREENSBORO (UPI)—Investigation of the burial practices of a local funeral home was extended Saturday with the entry of State Bureau of Investigation SBI agents into the case.

Guilford County authorities had been handling the investigation of Hargett's Funeral Home and owner Nathaniel Hargett Sr. since Dec. 18 when a bizarre report by a hunter that someone was trying to bury a small foreign car on a farm touched off a pryamiding police inquiry.

Two deputy sheriffs sent to the scene found a car owned by Nathaniel Hargett Jr. resting on its side and wedged in the top of a deep ditch across from a crude cemetery. They also discovered by accident that a grave across the way had been uncovered by the diggings of animals.

The exposed grave yielded a small pine box which was found to contain the bodies of five Negro infants wrapped in newspaper and placed one on top of the other. There were at least 19 other graves placed only inches apart on the land owned by the Hargetts and used as a children's cemetery.

These events followed the initial disclosures of the car and grave the afternoon of Dec. 18.

The younger Hargett was arrested and charged by Greensboro authorities with causing false information to be broadcast over a police radio. Police said this stemmed from his reporting his car had been stolen.

Arrest of Hargett Jr. by county of filing false claim in order to authorities the next day on charges collect insurance on the supposedly stolen foreign car. Opening of two other graves in the middle of the night by vandals and disappearance of parts of one or more infant bodies from them.

Burning of a dilapidated house across from the graveyard and used by the Hargetts as a storage shack.

Inspection of the graveyard by officers of the North Carolina Funeral Directors Assn., the State Embalming and Licensing Board, and a representative of the State Burial Commissioner.

Defending the use of the field as a cemetery, the wife of the elder Hargett said, "We receive no pay for three-quarters of infant burials yet we are forced to make proper disposal of the body." She said lots in a city cemetery would cost $30-$50 per child.

Hargett faces a hearing in municipal Court Jan. 10 on the city charge and must appear before a justice of the peace on the other charge the following day.

Hospital Fan Fire Causes No Damage

A fire in an exhaust fan motor in Memorial Hospital yesterday caused no damage except to the motor, according to the Chapel Hill Fire Department.

The window fan was on the second floor of the hospital in the pharmacy section. It is believed the fire was caused by a malfunction of the motor.

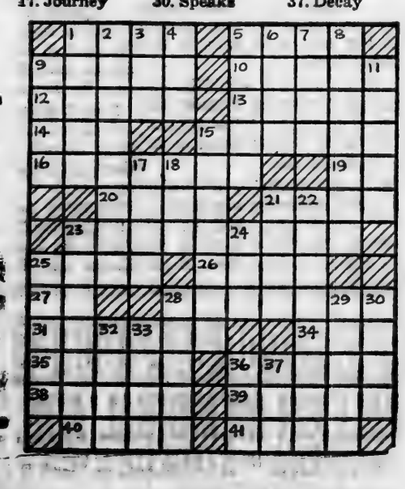
Carolina NOW PLAYING

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Scarlett O'Hara's home
5. Thick slice
9. Troubled
10. Fails to win
12. Location of Valletta
13. Indian aha
14. Segment of circle
15. Invent
16. Sunbathers' garments
19. Compass point (abbr.)
20. Iroquoian
21. Manner of walking
23. Another name for Santa Claus
25. Musical instrument
26. Relative
27. Man's nickname
28. Involves
31. Wealth
34. By way of
35. Slow-mover
36. Graft (slang)
38. French seaport, Le ——
39. Memorandums
40. Prophet
41. Shoehorses

DOWN
1. Coronet
2. Civil Defense signal
3. Soak flax
4. Girl's name
5. Disparages
6. Learning
7. Largest continent
8. A "pad" dweller
9. Oriental nurse
11. Winter hazard
15. People of Crete
17. Journey
18. One: Ger.
21. Miss Lollobrigida
22. To make active
23. Salt marshes
24. Squirrel's dinner
25. Severe
28. An eel fisherman
29. Dwells
30. Speaks
32. Bear's hideout
33. Employ
36. African antelope
37. Decay

Saturday's Answer



The label on a prescription bearing your name is your "road map to health". Read that label and follow it — those are your doctor's orders. Remember — your prescription is compounded for you and you alone. Don't let anyone else use yours; don't use anyone else's because you think you have "the same thing."

ALWAYS RELY ON OUR PHARMACIST

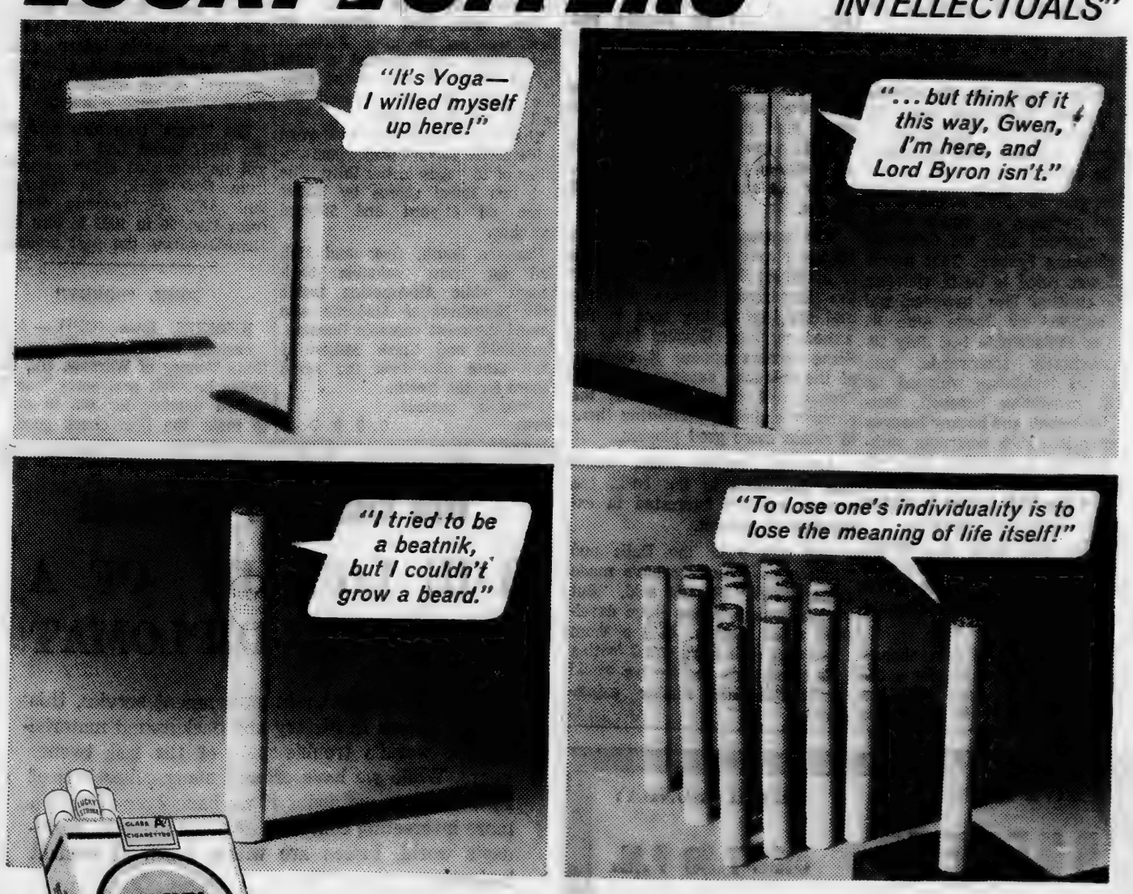
RX4

SUTTON'S

YOU'RE ALWAYS WELCOME AT YOUR Walgreen AGENCY DRUG STORE

LUCKY STRIKE presents: LUCKY PUFFERS

"THE INTELLECTUALS"



IF YOU'RE AN INTELLECTUAL, be thankful you're living at the right time. The climate of our contemporary culture is sympathetic to new voices, new ideas. The new age of enlightenment explains, among other things, the popularity of Luckies on college campuses. Deduce this yourself: Enlighten up a Lucky. As its heady aroma swirls about you, reflect on this profundity: College students smoke more Luckies than any other regular.

CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change!

©A.T.Co.

Product of The American Tobacco Company — "Tobacco" is our middle name

Chappell Nets 27 As Wake Forest Buries Clemson

Deacons Race To 81-54 Win, Brennan Also Shines

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

With massive Len Chappell pouring in 27 points, the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest coasted to an easy 81-54 victory over a badly-outclassed Clemson team Saturday in Winston-Salem's Memorial Coliseum.

Coach Bones McKinney's Deacons never left the outcome in doubt as they raced to a 20-7 lead in the early minutes of this—the first ACC egional TV contest of the season.

Wake hit a dry spell in the middle of the opening period when it found itself with only a 25-13 lead, unable to work against the Tigers' zone defense. McKinney called time and switched his offense from an overload of the zone to one where he could feed his ace, Chappell. Immediately, the big All-American, who had been held to 2 points thus far, went on a torrid scoring spree.

In the next five minutes, Chappell scored 14 straight points, interrupted only by a three-point play by Clemson's fine sophomore guard, Jim Brennan. This outburst sparked the Deacons to their 41-21 halftime lead.

Wake Forest, which now has won 5 and lost 4, steadily increased the margin in the second half and were never in trouble. Paced by sophomore Dick Carmichael, who, in appreciation of a starting assignment, came up with his best effort of the year and Chappell, the Deacons scored at will and opened up a 30-point lead, 72-42, with less than six minutes remaining in the game.

The sophomore-infested Tigers, coached by Press Maravich, seemed bewildered at times with the taller and more experienced Wake club. Brenan, who has been a standout for Maravich all season, averaging 15 points a game, led the Tigers with 18 points, and played a solid floor game.

Chappell—one of the top point producers in the nation with his 26.8 average—also pulled down 17 rebounds. The giant from Portage, Pa., now has a total of 240 points and 117 rebounds for the year—both high water marks for the Deacons.

Mural Play Starts Tomorrow

The Intramural Office announces that action will start again in three sports on Monday, January 8.

The point system volleyball playoffs get under way with games in the Fraternity Blue and White Divisioins. In the handball tourneys, seven games in the Blue Division and one in the White Division will take place. The basketball league play starts with contests in the White Division.

The Mural Office asks that each organization have a representative at a special meeting tomorrow evening. The meeting is scheduled to be held at 7:00 in Woollen Gym —Room 301-A.

Gros, Bull Lead South To 42-7 Win

By BILL TOME
(United Press International)

MOBILE, Ala. — Bullish Earl Gros of Louisiana State and swift Ronnie Bull of Baylor ground out yardage and touchdowns almost at will Saturday as the South's devastating ground attack buried the North 42-7 in the 13th annual Senior Bowl.

The victory was the eighth for the South and by the largest margin in Senior Bowl history. In their first taste of professional pilay-and-money, the winning Rebels collected $600 each with $500 per player going to the losers.

The 220-pound Gros cracked over tow touchdowns from a yard out, and Bull added one on a one-yard buck and swept 58 yards for a second. Miami's Bill Miller hauled in a 17-yard pass from Billy Canty of Furman and another of eight yards from Mike Cotten of Texas. Don Fuell added all six conversions.

In the last minute of play, Mel Melin of Washington State passed 61 yards to Jim Dillard to avert a shutout and Melin added the extra point.

Tom Larscheid, a scampering 174-pound will o' the wisp from Utah State, was a constant threat for the Yankees but virtually the only one in a Senior Bowl which was a reversal of most previous contests with the running game dominating rather than the pros' favorite weapon, the forward pass.

Larscheid led the North's only threat, carrying the ball on seven of 10 plays, including a 30-yard dash, as the North marched 54 yards with the opening kickoff to the South six from where Melin missed a field goal attempt.

Bull, a 198-pound running terror who has signed a contract with theo Chicago Bears, brough the crowd to its feet with the game's offensive gem, his 58-yard scoring dash in the third period with a key block supplied by tackle Ronnie Osborne of Clemson. Bull cut off right tackle, swept outside as Osborne sprung him free and outraced defensive sideback Hank Rivera of Oregon State to the goal line.

The great Baylor halfback ground out 133 yards rushing behind a South line which opened huge holes for him and for teammate Gros who was equally as effective on inside power plays as Bull was to the outside. Gros had 114 yards rushing and also caught a 30-yard pass from Cotten.

The South's first touchdown by Gros was set up when Alabama tackle Bill Rice blocked a punt by Ed Wilson of Arizona and Billy Joe Booth of LSU covered the ball at the North 13.

The South unleashed a 51-yard drive in the second period and another of 56 yards in the third. The last two Rebel scores by Miller came on 61-yard and 79-yard marches.

For the South, Gros and Bull tied for most valuable back honors while All-America tackle Billy Neighbors of Alabama was named the most valuable lineman. Larscheid and Clark Miller of Utah State also took the same honors for the North.

Score by periods:

North .....0 0 0 7—7
South .....7 7 14 14—42

Scoring summary: South—Gross 1, run; Fuell kick; Bull 1, run; Fuell kick; Bull 58, run; Fuell kick Gros 1, run; Fuel kick; Miller 16, pass from Canty; Fuell kick; Miller 8, pass from Cotten, Fuell kick.

North—Dillard 61, pass from Melin; Melin kick.

Attendance—35,132.

AFL's Wismer Sells NY Stock

NEW YORK (UPI)—Harry Wismer, president of the New York Titans, announced Saturday that he has sold 30 per cent of his stock in the American Football League club to Royal F. Raidle, a prominent realtor in Palm Beach, Fla., for $500,000.

Wismer said the deal would leave him with 60 per cent of the tock in the Titan and he would continue to control the club.

Raidle, 44, i a leading Florida real estate man and a close friend of Sen. George Smathers, D.-Fla., who is executive vice-president of the Titans.

Wismer said papers for the sale of the club would be signed within the next few days at Washington or Palm Beach.

Before leaving for San Diego, Calif., where the AFL meetings begin next Monday, Wismer said he would renew his efforts to bring the league headquarters to New York.

The Titans' president emphasized that he did not wish to become embroiled again in a public controversy with AFL Commissioner Joe Foss. However, the location of AFL headquarters has been a point of contention between these two men.

Wismer said the league offices, now in Dallas, Texas, should be located in New York both for public relations purposes and also for negotiation of the AFL television rights.

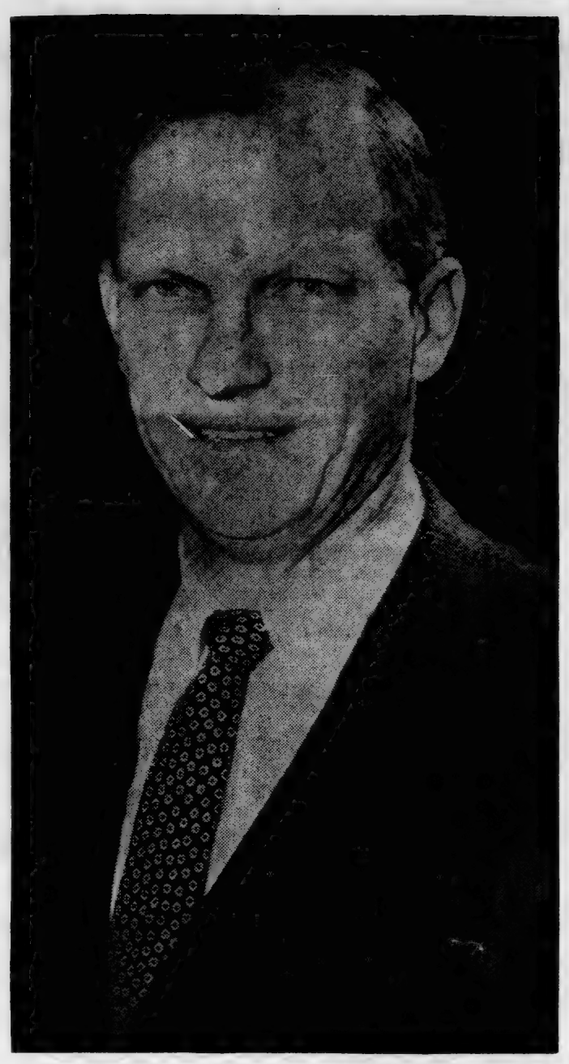
Foss has been quoted as saying that he would resign as commissioner if the owners vote to transfer the AFL office to New York.

Wismer said that at last year's meeting in Houston, Texas, a motion to move the league office to New York was defeated because one owner, Ralph Wilson of Buffalo, voted against it. Unanimous approval of the owners would be required for such a move.

The Titans' boss also said that the AFL would find it easier to sell its television rights operating from New York. He reiterated that AFL TV revenue dropped from $220,000 in 1960 to less than $100,000 during the past season.

FEEL "SORRY"

KEOKUK, Iowa (UPI) — After cashing a bogus check for $45, Gene Tunney of Warsaw, Ill., told police he "felt real sorry," so he cashed another for $55 in order to make the first check good.



Wake Forest Coach Bones McKinney—one of North Carolina's greatest high school and college basketball performers—is in his fifth season as cage boss of the Demon Deacons. Wake went to the NCAA Championships last year before losing to St. Joseph's in the Semi-finals and is bidding for ational honors again this year, paced by their All-American forward, Len Chappel.

Detroit Cops Play-Off Bowl, 38-10

MIAMI (UPI) — Jim Ninowski and Earl Morrall alternated in the heroics as the Detroit Lions knocked passing star Sonny Jurgenson out of action Saturday and scored a 38-10 National Football League playoff bowl win over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Morrall scored once and he and Ninowski each passed for a pair of touchdowns in a playoff between the N.F.L.'s two runnerup teams which attracted a crowd of 25,612 in 81-degree heat that blanketed the Orange Bowl.

It was a satisfying win for Detroit which avenged a 27-24 defeat at the hands of the Eagles in their final regular-season game. And it also was the Lions' second straight win in this strictly-for-money bowl game inaugurated last year.

It also was a costly defeat for the Eagles as Jurgensen, the all-N.F.L. quarterback, suffered a shoulder separation in the second quarter. Team physician Mike Mandarino called it "one of the worst I've ever seen, with all the ligaments torn."

He said Jurgensen would be operated on Tuesday in Philadelphia and that he "hoped" the 27-year-old former Duke star would be all right next season.

Add to the Eagles' woes, tackle J. D. Smith was taken to a hospital with a twisted knee. Both he and Jurgensen thus were knocked out o fthe N.F.L. all-star game at Los Angeles, Jan. 14.

The Lions had a host of stars as they trampled the 2½ point favorites. They held Jurgensen to eight completions and 62 yards in 17 passes before Wayne Walker threw the block which made Jurgensen's future a question mark after one year of stardom.

Terry Barr scored twice on passes from Ninowski while Pat Studstill and Sam Williams caught scoring tosses by Morrall. Jim Martin kicked an 18-yard field goal and five extra points.

Philadelphia's lone touchdown came on King Hill's 9-yard end zone throw to Pete Retzlaff while Bobby Walston booted a 23-yard field goal in addition to the lone Eagles extra point.

Detroit left no doubt from the beginning that it was high and ready. Gary Lowe started it off when he intercepted a Jurgensen pass on the Eagles 47 and returned it 13 yards to the Philadelphia 34. Fullback Nick Pietrosante carried the load to the 11 and, when the Eagles held, Martin broke the ice with his 18-yard field goal.

Detroit stopped the Eagles cold and then blasted 80 yards in three plays to run up a 10-0 lead. Jim Carr gave the Eagles momentary hope with a deep secondquarter interception and Philadelphia hammered to the Detroit 10. But that's where the Lions broke up the Eagles and Jurgensen.

UNC's Jim Beatty Leads Los Angeles' New Track Club

By ALEX KAHN

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The newly-formed Los Angeles Track Club makes its first public appearance in the Los Angeles Invitational track meet Jan. 20 at the Sports Arena but if the caliber of its membership and the renown of its coach is any individualewn if its coach is any indication the group is destined for success.

The track club thus far is composed entirely of distance runners and its coach is the famous Mihaly Igoi, ranked as one of the world's great developers of long distance competitors dating back to his days as a coach in Hungary.

Igloi was enticed into coaching the track club by the opportunity to work with some of the greatest distance men in the country and accepted a comparatively meager salary which was raised through contributions.

For the past four years the Hungarian coach has been turning out track stars for the Santa Clara Valley Youth Village in the northern part of the state.

Beatty Heads List

Igloi is not drilling his pupils in any plush surroundings in the warm Southern California sunshine. It's early in the morning and late in the afternoon that the Hungarian with the horn-rimmed glasses and thinning hair gets to see his athletes.

But despite the adverse conditions, he has a prime crop of distance stars as his proteges led by this country's greatest long-distance runner, Jim Beatty.

Igloi worked with Beatty at Santa Clara Youth Village and is credited with improving the lithe runner to the point where he was ranked the world's best miler and the United States champion in the 1,500 and 5,000 meters and the three-mile run.

Joining Beatty in receiving Igloi's tutelage are such renowned distance performers as Max Truex, Laszle Tabori, Jim Grelle, Bob Seaman, Bob Schul, Bob Holland, Bill Peck, Mal Robertson and several others.

Some of these like Truex and Schul are in the Air Force and stationed at nearby Oxnard Air Force Base. They can only occasionally work under Igloi's personal direction but train by themselves with his written and verbal instructions to guide them.

Demonstrates Mettle

Beatty, spurred on by Igloi's statement that he could become the first man to run under four minutes for the mile indoors, demonstrates the mettle of these dedicated track men with his person schedule.

Because he works all day as an insurance company claims investigator, Beatty breaks his training routine into two sections. He's on the track at the Dorsey High School training grounds at 5 a.m. and runs from four to six miles, does several speed sprints and goes to work.

But at 5 p.m. he's back at the track with Igloi again in attendance and Betty may run anywhere from 10 to 18 miles.

"I think Beatty is getting closer to running under four minutes indoors," Igloi says. "It could be in the invitational meet or it may be later. But I am confident he can do it."

And Beatty along with Igloi smile when asked about the "soft American" brand put on U.S. runners by Australian champion Herb Elliott recently as they reflect on the stern schedule the Hungarian coach has set up gfor his runners.

Dietzel On Way To New Job At Army

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Paul Dietzel, former Louisiana State University football coach, was the first passenger to alight here Saturday when his commercial airline flight from the South was grounded because of bad weather along the East Coast.

He took a train to New York, where he was scheduled to confer with officials of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point about his new coaching duties there.

Upon landing in Atlanta in the morning, Dietzel learned that rain and fog had closed the airport at New York. He then boarded a plane for Washington.

The 37-year-old Dietzel was expected to head for West Point Sunday to sign a five-year contract at $20,000 annually as head coach. He will bring four of his LSU aides with him. They are Larry Jones, George Terry, Bill Slaiosky and Charles Pevy.

His chief assistant at LSU, Charles McClendon, appeared a good bet to become head coach at the University of Kentucky.

Dietzel was freed to negotiate with the U.S. Military Academy when LSU officials released him Friday from the last four years of his five-year contract.

Army officials were overjoyed with the prospect of regaining West Point's old-time football prominence under Deitzel. The blond, husky coach served at West Point as assistant to Earl (Red) Blaik in 1948.

Dietzel said he planned to install his LSU three-platoon system at West Point.

"I'm not familiar with the boys at the Point now but I'm sure we can work the system in," Dietzel said.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

CRAMTIME

Your best chance of finding the study aid you need

The Book Exchange
Five Points DURHAM

We Buy & Sell All Books

NFL Meets In Miami, Wants TV Contract

National Football League's multi-million-dollar "package" television contract and a proposal for the first playing rules change in four seasons are high on the agenda of the NFL's annual meeting which begins Monday.

Among the other matters to be taken up by the owners during their scheduled three-day meetings are a recommendation to expand each team's player limit from 36 to 38 and a discussion of the $10-million antitrust suit brought on by the rival American League.

For the time being, however, the NFL has no plans to expand beyond its 14-club makeup, according to Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

The meetings, to be held at the Shamrock Isle Hotel, follow Sunday's playoff bowl game between the Philadelphia Eagles and Detroit Lions, the 1961 division runnersup.

PETE ROZELLE

Looks For TV Contract

Having just completed the most profitable season in its 42-year history, the NFL now looks for its newly legalized "package" TV contract to insure that prosperity for the future.

Last year the NFL signed a $4,650,000 package, or single - network, contract with the Columbia Broadcasting System. That agreement was ruled to be in violation of the antitrust laws, however, and was nullified by Judge Alan K. Grim of Philadelphia last July 20.

Immediately afterwards, congressional legislators whipped up a bill permitting baseball, football, basketball and hockey leagues to enter into such contracts without antitrust prosecution. The bill was signed by President Kennedy and now the NFL is free to sign a new single-network contract.

Rozelle said such a contract would insure each NFL team an annual income of more than $300,000 from TV. The contract would be for two years with CBS.

The only important rules change would make it a penalty for a defensive team to grab the face mask of a ball-carrier. This has been proposed by Rozelle and Mike Wilson, supervisor of NFL referees.

At present, it is a penalty to grab the face mask of any player other than the ball-carrier.

NFL owners have turned down all proposed playing rules changes, nearly all minor, since the 1958 season.

The proposal to increase each team's player limit from 36 to 38 is based on the injury attrition of the increased 14-game schedule and the loss of key men to the armed services. Coaches favor it. Some owners oppose it because of the increase expense involved. Others feel it woul benefit the stronger clubs by permitting them to retain more good players.

Although certain cities would like franchises in the NFL, the owners are not interested in expanding at present.

"At this point the Dalls and Minneapolis franchises have made great strides," Rozelle said. "But we are anxious to see them developed a bit further, to see them competing on a more equal footing with older clubs, before we would contemplate any further expansion."

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY

BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M.

at the RANCH HOUSE

Recommended By Duncan Hines and Gourmet

Can Eat— It's A All You Treat Cowboy

With Great Pride We Present

THE LIBRARY OF A SCHOLAR–DIPLOMAT

Collected by a scholar in government service, this library is rich in history and background material on the world's trouble-spots of the last twenty years. While we have offered many collections of rare editions, we doubt if we have ever offered a more interesting collection of living material on today's world. Prices are within reach of student budgets.

Part I — Week of January 8th
Books of interest to the student of European History and current events.

Part II — Week of January 15th
Latin America, Asia, and Africa are covered in this interesting group.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin St. Open Till 10 P.M.

THE TOP POP-JAZZ CONCERT OF '62

RALEIGH MEMORIAL AUD. SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Featuring AGAIN ARENA TYPE STAGE

MAIL ORDERS & TICKETS
Kemp's Record Shop
And At the Door

2:15 PM SHARP 1 O'CLOCK DOORS OPEN

JAN. 14

ADM 2.00-2.50-3.00

THE MOST IN POP & JAZZ

COUNT BASIE

and his GREAT ★★★★ Recording ORCHESTRA

FEATURING IRENE REID OCIE SMITH

PLUS A GREAT ALL-STAR CAST OF 'POP' ARTISTS

Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!

Kemp

CLEARANCE SALE

40%

Reg.	Now
1.98	1.30
2.98	1.95
3.98	2.60
4.98	3.30
5.98	3.85
6.95	4.40

TAX INCLUDED

LONDON EXTRA SPECALS

Were	Sale
3.98	1.75
4.98	2.00
5.98	2.50

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

A Sinking Ship?
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather 73
Decreasings cloudiness. High in the low 50s.

Offices in Graham Memorial | TUESDAY, JANUARY 9, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Power Line Struggle Ending With First Route Seen Final

By EARL MOORE

The controversy over the route of a power line which is to feed the University's plant on Cameron Avenue is rapidly ending.

The 100,000 volt loop transmission line, to be installed by Duke Power Company in the Morgan Creek area, has been a topic of discussion for Morgan Creek landowners, for nearly a year.

At a recent meeting of a Duke Power attorney, the Board of Aldermen, and a number of interested citizens, many alternate routes were suggested but refused by the Power Company.

Not Feasible

The possibilities of laying an underground line were discussed, but Gordon Battle, an attorney for Morgan Creek landowners, presented information released by an engineer of the State Utilities Commission which indicated this solution would not be feasible.

The only problems remaining in the matter are Duke Power's condemnation suits pressing for rights-of-way. These are expected to be "ironed" out by appraisers appointed by the Orange Superior Court.

Duke Power's attorney, W. I. Ward, said his company's main objection to the alternate routes was that they ran through property more developed than the Morgan Creek route.

Maintain Uniqueness

Pearson Stewart, spokesman for the landowners, explained that his reason for suggesting alternate routes was to maintain the "unique character of Morgan Creek valley." He said it is a valley of rare beauty and unusual vegetation.

Attorney Ward said that power lines caused little if any property damage and rarely led to depreciation in property value. Mayor Sandy McClamroch added that Duke Power did avoid homes wherever possible.

When questioned about the possibility of underground construction Ward answered that the Morgan Creek line would cost about $60,000 as planned and approximately ten times that if laid underground.

Underground

Another point of contention at the meeting was the reason why the University did not supply the land for the route if it was going to receive the major benefits. This suggestion was also ruled out.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Dr. Sukarno

Reds Intercept Belgian Plane

ISTÁNBUL, Turkey — A Belgian jet airliner with 27 persons aboard was intercepted by Soviet Mig jet fighters Monday along the Soviet-Turkish border and forced to land at Yerevan, capital of Soviet Armenia, official sources reported. One American was reported aboard.

There was no word on whether the Soviet Migs had opened fire on the French-built Caravelle which was flying erratically with a defective radio compass on an 850-mile flight from Tehran to Istanbul. Soviet planes opened fire on two U. S. Air Force planes in that area in 1958.

In Moscow, Belgian Embassy officials said they were trying to win the release of the crewmen and passengers but had received no word from the Soviet foreign ministry and expected none before Tuesday morning.

★ ★ ★

27 Feared Dead In Shipwreck

DOVER, England — The 2,811-ton Yugoslav freighter Sabac collided in the fog-shrouded English Channel last midnight with a British freighter twice its size and sank with the feared loss of 27 lives.

As darkness fell Monday night six survivors of the Sabac, one of them seriously injured, were reported safe in England and France. The bodies of 16 were picked up from the icy channel-waters and 11 other men were listed as missing and feared dead.

★ ★ ★

Argentina Presents Cuban Proposals

WASHINGTON — Argentina has presented to the United States three draft proposals for collective action against Cuba at the Jan. 22 inter-American foreign ministers conference, it was learned Monday.

The proposals call for:

—Condemnation of Cuba's Communist ties.

—A plea by the Organization of American States (OAS) to Premier Fidel Castro's regime to renounce those ties and rejoin the inter-American community.

—Consideration of possible sanctions if Cuba refuses to sever its Communist links.

★ ★ ★

Assassination Try Denounced

JAKARTA — Angry Indonesians Monday denounced an attempted assassination of President Sukarno as a Dutch plot to break the spirit of the people.

The incident intensified the bitterness in the dispute with the Netherlands over West Irian Dutch New Guinea which Sukarno has pledged to take by force if necessary.

The government said three persons, including a child, were killed and 28 persons were injured when a hand grenade burst 150 yards behind Sukarno's car Sunday night as the president drove to an auditorium for an anti-Dutch speech in the Celebes city of Makassar. Sukarno escaped unharmed.

Berlin Expert To Talk Tonight On 'The Island City'

Art Wilson will present his film-lecture on Berlin in the third program of Graham Memorial's Travel Adventure Series tonight at 8 in Memorial Hall.

"Berlin, The Island City," is a new film accompanied by the narration of Wilson. He has recently returned from Berlin where he has brought his documentation up to date.

In his narration of the color film, Wilson will examine the various problems facing the divided city. The film will include a historical review, a visit through a German refugee camp, and other aspects of the situation.

"Not only will you be entertained by Mr. Wilson," according to GM, "but you will learn and understand the various problems facing Berlin today.

"Certainly no area of the world today is more pertinent than that of Berlin. Mr. Wilson promises to give an insight from the present to the future," continued the GM announcement.

Tickets for the film-lecture may be purchased at the information desk of Graham Memorial or at the door for $1.

IDC Court Bars 3 Students From All UNC Housing

Three students were removed from all University housing until the spring semester of 1962-63 by the Inter-Dormitory Council last week.

The students were charged with violation of quiet hours by engaging in a water fight with a fire extinguisher. Three other students who had also engaged in the fight were placed on Dormitory Probation until spring semester 1962-63.

The Court removed two other students from Mangum Dorm to other dorms. The first, charged with making excessive noise during quiet hours, was issued an official reprimand. The second student was charged with violation of quiet hours after repeated warnings.

Campus Briefs

The Junior Class Cabinet will meet tonight 8:30-9 in Roland Parker III, GM. All cabinet members were urged by the president to attend this meeting.

Sociology and Anthropology Wives Club will meet at Charles Hopkins Studio tonight at 8.

There will be English classes for foreign students tonight at 8 in the Y Building to help them with their colloquial and idiomatic speech.

UNC Business Wives will meet tonight at 8 in the Victory Village Day Care Center, Mason Farm Road. John Boyd Flynn of the School of Business Administration will be guest speaker. All wives of B.A. students were invited to attend by the group.

Walter Allen Jr., professor in the department of classics, will address the Philological Club tonight at 7:45 in the Faculty Lounge, Morehead Planetarium.

Allen will speak on "The Day After Rome Was Built." All faculty members, graduate students, and members of their families were invited to attend by the club.

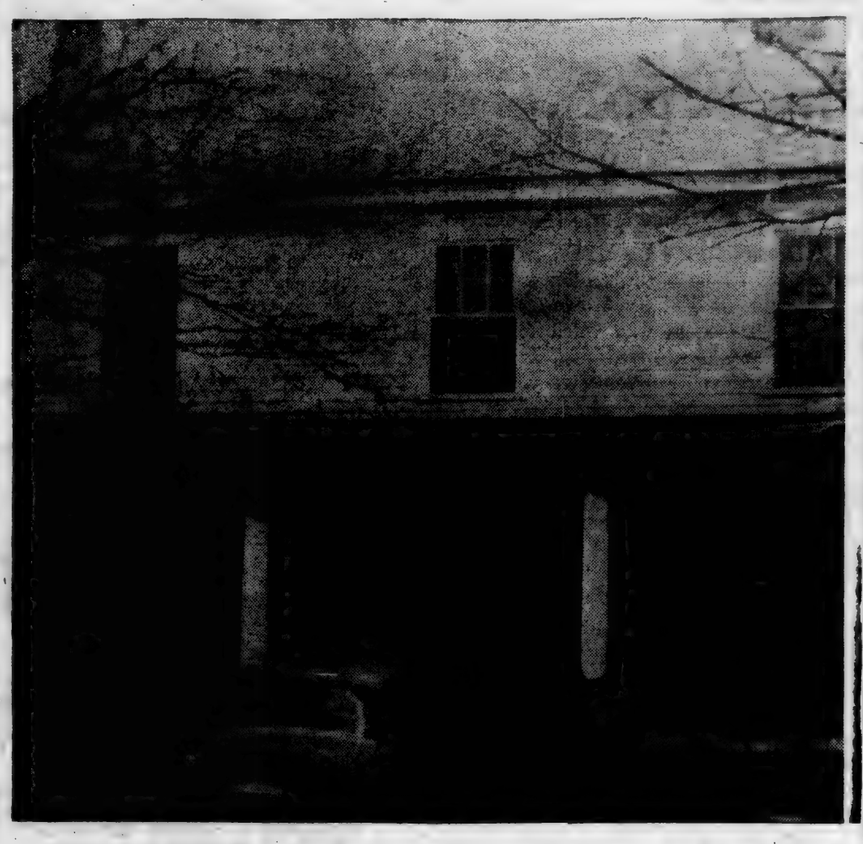
WUNC-TV is presently holding auditions for an on-camera TV newscaster. Interested students should contact Roger Koontz at WUNC for an appointment.

Alexander Heard, dean of the Graduate School, will be the luncheon speaker for the University's Faculty Club Luncheon, today at 1 p.m. in Faculty Club Building.

The title of Dean Heard's address is "The University, the Re-

(Continued on Page 3)

Faculty Committee To Study Off-Campus Housing Here



OFF-CAMPUS HOUSING, such as the house shown above at 140 E. Rosemary St., is the subject of study by a new faculty committee. The committee will work in co-operation with Chapel Hill realtors in an attempt to study some of the housing problems of the more than 2,000 UNC students who live off-campus. The committee may also establish a set of minimum standards for off-campus living units. The Rosemary Street house shown above is occupied by over 10 UNC students and is similar to the many student living quarters on Rosemary Street and in the surrounding area on the other side of Franklin Street from the campus.

Group May Set Standards For Town Housing

A University faculty committee, with the cooperation of the Chapel Hill Board of Realtors, is initiating a study of off-campus housing in the Chapel Hill area in order to insure adequate housing standards for Carolina students who live off-campus.

Dean of Student Affairs Charles Henderson stated that a facutly committee was appointed last February to investigate the problems of off-campus housing.

He added that although the school has no standards for off-campus dwellings, the University health and safety of the 2,125 students who live in town.

Standards established will be derived partly from studies conducted by the American College Health Association. However, these standards may be altered to comply with conditions that are peculiar to Chapel Hill.

Health Association Standards

Maximum recommendations by the American College Health Association include adequate electrical outlets, a bed with a firm and even mattress, a dresser with four drawers, at least ten square feet of closet space, non-combustible waste hasket an individual towel rack.

Other important recommendations of basic requirements are entrance and exit ways which are safe from fire hazards, accommodations conducive to conditions of study and adequate toilet facilities.

According to those national standards for non-institutionally-owned student housing the minimum width of a room is seven feet, with at least 70 square feet of floor space for each individual.

Enrollment Rise

Since World War II the University has experienced an unprecedented rise in student enrollment. The University has made efforts to provide adequate housing for the influx of students, but many have been obliged to seek housing in buildings other than those maintained by the University. Dean Henderson said much of this problem will be eliminated by the completion of the three men's dormitories.

Exam Schedule

By action of the faculty, the time of an examination may not be changed after it has been fixed in the schedule. Quizzes are not to be given in this semester on or after Monday, January 15, 1961

The Official Class Roll and Grade Report will be prepared by the Data Processing Section and forwarded to the departments prior to the examination period. As in the past, the original copy will be returned to the Office of Records and Registration, the second copy (canary) is to be retained by the department, and the third copy (goldenrod) is to be kept by the instructor.

Grade reports are to be handed in to the department office within 72 hours after the scheduled time of the final examination. The department chairman shall be responsible for recording receipt of each grade report (the Form DR-1 may be used for this) and for forwarding it promptly to the Office of Records and Registration. In unusual cases, if it is clearly needed, an extension of the time limit, preferably not to exceed 48 hours, may be approved by the department chairman or the dean of the school concerned. The Office of Records and Registration must be given notice of the delay. (Faculty Council, May 6, 1960.) Machine processing of grades makes it urgent that all grades be turned in on time.

All permits to take examinations to remove grades of "Exc. Abs." or "Cond." must be secured from the Office of Records and Registration prior to the exam. No students mav be excused from a scheduled examination except by the University Infirmary in case of illness or by his Dean in case of any other emergency compelling his absence.

All 12:00 noon classes on MWF, *Econ, 81	Mon. Jan. 22	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on MWF, *Econ. 31, 32 61 & 70	Mon. Jan. 22	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Tues. Jan. 23	8:30 a.m.
All 12:00 noon classes on TThs, all *Naval Science and *Air Science	Tues. Jan. 23	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on TThs	Wed. Jan. 24	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on TThs, *Poli 41, Busi. 150	Wed. Jan. 24	2:00 p.m.
All French, German & Spanish courses Numbered 1, 2, 3, 3x ? 4, *Phch. 61	Thurs. Jan. 25	8:30 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Thurs. Jan. 25	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Fri. Jan. 26	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Fri Jan. 26	2:00 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Sat. Jan. 27	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on MWF *Busi 160, *Phys. 24	Sat. Jan. 27	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Mon. Jan. 29	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on TThS, *Busi 130, *Chem. 43	Mon. Jan. 29	2:00 p.m.
All 3:00 p.m. classes, *Chem. 11, *Busi. 71 & 72, and all classes not otherwise provided for in this schedule	Tues. Jan. 30	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Tues. Jan. 30	2:00 p.m.

Instructors teaching classes scheduled for common examinations shall request the students in these classes to report to them any conflict with any other examination not later than December 15. In case of a conflict, the regularly scheduled exam will take precedence over the common exam. (Common exams are indicated by an asterisk.)

Radio Expands In 35,000-Watt Rise

High quality broadcasts via frequency modulation radio became available this week to 1,500,00 North Carolina people living within 100 miles of Chapel Hill.

A boost in wattage, from 15,000 to 50,000, made possible by a new transmission system — a $20,000 gift by Merck, Sharpe Dohme Drug Co. — brings staticfree broadcasting programs of superior cultural and public-service value to North Carolinians.

Owners of FM sets may tune in at 91.5 on the radio dial.

Some of the best programs from over the world are available. British Broadcasting System (BBS) musical, lecture and other events will be heard, as well as network programs from Canada, France and Israel. The United Nations Radio ties into WUNC.

"Dutch Light Music"

An outstanding program on Tuesday evenings is "Dutch Light Music" at 7:15. On Wednesdays at 10:30 p.m. "Some Come to Sing," a folk music program featuring local talent will regularly be heard.

WUNC radio is the student workshop of students majoring in radio, television and motion pictures.

To receive frequency modulation broadcasts from Chapel Hill, owners of conventional radio sets must have them equipped with special FM apparatus, or may purchase FM sets.

Merck Contribution

The new WUNC antenna has been installed at the top of the 825-foot WUNC-TV tower on Terrell's mountain, seven miles west of Chapel Hill and 1500 feet above average terrain level. The pharmaceutical firm of Merck, Sharpe, and Dohme contributed equipment expenses and paid for the costs incurred in the changing of transmitter sites. WDNC in Durham gave the station a microwave transmitter and receiver set which allows WUNC to send their signal from the Swain Hall offices on the campus to the Terrell mountain site without the use of telephone wires.

WUNC programs will be received in these cities along the 100-mile periphery: Kannapolis, Concord, Lumberton, Kinston, Greenville, Elizabeth City, Roanoke Rapids, Emporia, Va., Martinsville, Va., and other North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia cities.

Perfect Conditions

When conditions are perfect, the non - commercial educational station will be picked up in cities outside the 100-mile radius, such as Charlotte, Statesville, New Bern, Washington, Roanoke and Lynchburg, Va.

WUNC is operated by the Department of Radio, Television and Motion Pictures of which Earl Wynn is chairman. Dr. Robert Hilliard, assistant professor in the department, is the director of radio. The station is staffed entirely by students, about 45 of them, with

(Continued on Page 3)

8 Campus Groups To Seek Support From Chest Fund

Representatives from 8 different organizations will appear before a meeting of the Campus Chest Advisory Board tonight for the purpose of gaining financial support for their activities from the Campus Chest.

Seeking to gain support will be: The National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students, the World University Service, the American Friends Service, the International Students Board, the Heart Association of Buncombe County, the Cross Roads Africa Organization, and the Poltical Science Department (in order to establish an internship at the U.N.) along with Memorial Hospital (for research on Mental Health).

With NIH Grant

New Clinical Research Unit Initiated At School Of Medicine For Studies And Care

A new Clinical Research Unit was activated at the School of Medicine yesterday and the first of a number of scheduled patients will arrive today.

The new unit was made possible by a grant, in late 1960, from the National Institutes of Health of the U. S. Public Health Service.

The initial grant, which covers a seven-year period and involves a total budget of almost $900,000 for the first three- years, makes it possible to carry out meticulous research studies while providing high quality care to patients with a wide variety of disorders.

One of First

The UNC School of Medicine was one of the first schools in the nation to receive a grant for this type of research facility. The first such grants, in 1960, went to 18 leading medical institutions throughout the United States, and the Chapel Hill school was among this number.

The Research Unit here is a 10-bed facility located on the fifth floor of the South Wing of North Carolina Memorial Hospital. This arrangement was made possible when the Department of Psychiatry voluntarily agreed to relinquish the space for this purpose until a more permanent location for the Unit is available.

The Unit is directed by Dr. Walter Hollander Jr., associate professor of Medicine, and Dr. Robert Zeppa, assistant professor of surgery, both of whom are Markle Scholars in Medical Science.

Under them is a special staff which includes nursing, dietary and laboratory personnel, but as the Unit is an integral part of N. C. Memorial Hospital, all personnel are also members of the regular hospital staff.

Wide Variety

Dr. Hollender discussed the manner in which the new unit will operate:

"Every member of the medical faculty who is on the attending staff of Memorial Hospital will be privileged to use the new clinical Research Unit. The purpose of the unit is to facilitate a wide variety of clinical research projects and is, in no sense, intended for the use of any particular group or department.

The unit is controlled by a special committee of the Medical Faculty appointed by Dean Reece Berryhill and headed by Dr. Louis G. Welt. This committee determines policies for the unit and reveiws all projects proposed for study on the unit. After a project has the committee's approval, suitable patients to whom the nature of the study has been fully explained will be admitted to the unit on a voluntary basis. While on the unit such patients will not be charged for any aspect of their hospitalization or medical care."

Balladier Sandy Moffett Stars In New Playmakers Production

By GORDON CLARK

(See Picture on Page 3.)

An all-student, all-male cast of 15 will be seen tomorrow night when "Renegade" opens at the Playmakers Theatre for a five-night run. The war drama was written by former UNC student Carl Hinrichs.

Sandy Moffett of Taylorsville is one of the students in "Renegade." A senior, Moffett plays Sgt. Vincent Fletcher, a guitar-playing balladier who takes part in the action of the play and serves as a "narrator-in-song" for the drama.

Born in Kiangyan, China, the son of a missionary, Sandy has been playing the guitar since he was 13 years old.

"The folk song is America's greatest contribution to music," he says.

Dorm Advisor

At present a history major and dormitory adviser at UNC, he will enter graduate school here this spring to major in dramatic art.

"Theatre is the most exciting thing I've ever worked in," Sandy says. "I want to teach it—to communicate some of the excitement I've found in it."

He has appeared i several Carolina Playmakers productions, including "The Great Diamond Robbery," "Wishing for the War to Cease" and "The Curious Savage."

He is the author of "Dark Morning," produced by the Playmakers here last summer, and he directed the recent Student Theatre Workshop production of "Bury the Dead." This summer Sandy plans to work in one of the state's outdoor dramas.

Steele, McMullen

Among the other students in "Renegade" are UNC soccer player Larry Steele and former halfback Larry McMullen.

Tickets for "Renegade" are available at the Playmakers Business Office, 214 Abernethy Hall (next to the Scuttlebutt), and at Ledbetter-Pickard for $1.50 each. All seats are reserved. Curtain time for the production is 8:30 each evening.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 9, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. XLIX, No. 73

No, But Some Want Off

A Sinking Ship?

A news story in yesterday's Raleigh News and Observer reports that most representatives from the East who voted for the food tax in the Legislature last year are feeling some uneasiness about the possibility of its becoming a campaign issue. Many are dubious about accepting Gov. Sanford's backing in their campaigns because of the governor's unpopularity as a result of the tax, according to the story.

While the analogy of rats leaving a sinking ship is a bit too barbed to apply in this particular situation, the sentiment it expresses is hardly inappropriate.

Legislators were quick to cultivate the Governor's good graces when it appeared that his program would be accepted with little more than a whimper from the people. Some of these same legislators now are cool to his aid, ready to shift all the weight of political unpopularity to his shoulders.

Although we are in complete sympathy with the view that the food tax was one that could have been avoided by the imposition of other taxes — on cigarettes and soft drinks, for instance — we feel that the legislators who voted for the tax should not suddenly, for the sake of political expediency, do a cowardly flip-flop when the program they helped to install proves too unpopular.

Now that the Governor's affection is regarded by some as a political kiss of death, neither he, nor the food tax, seems as "courageous" and "equitable" as was the cas before public resentment manifested itself in the failure of the bond issue.

The ship hasn't really started sinking, and there's a good chance that it will float for some time yet. But some are getting a little restless.

Hope In Algeria

Though terror continues to stalk through Algeria in a three-sided civil war, President de Gaulle's plan to end that conflict this year "by one means or another" and to return the bulk of the French Army to Europe finds support in two new developments.

One is the increasing moderation of the Algerian nationalist rebels, suggesting favorable progress in the secret negotiations between them and France. The other, presumably connected with such progress, is the decision of President Bourguiba of Tunisia, where the Algerian nationalist headquarters are located, to start top-level talks with Frace on the future of Bizerte, the key air and naval base that was the scene of bitter fighting last July.

This improvement in diplomatic contacts is not yet matched in the field. On the contrary, the prospect of a settlement that would lead to an "Algerian Algeria," envisaged by Pesident de Gaulle, has only intensified the terroristic campaign of Genera lSalan's "Secret Army Organization" i nits fight against both the Algerian nationalists and French Government forces. In their turn, the Algerin nationalists and extremists are stepping up their own guerrilla warfare.

But the improvement in the diplomatic atmosphere is welcome. The nationalist rebels, facing the posibility of a temporary or permanent partition of their country and interminable war, are beginning to appreciate that President de Gaulle and his offer to aid a "sovereign and independent Algerian state" are their best hope for peace and progress. They are therefore moving to meet his conditions. And President Bourguiba now holds that a "friendly solution" is in sight.

It would be tragic if the hopes thus raised were dashed again.

New York Times

A Mistake Somewhere

Figures, we are told, do not lie.

But, before anyone comes too convinced of their reliability, let him consider the following concerning the beer taxes and census figures for Orange and Durham counties for 1961:

Orange County received $44,646.-17 in beer taxes. A quick check with the county population figures released by the Bureau of Census shows this to be a per capita outlay of $1.03.

Durham County, however, had a per capita beer tax figure of $1.04 by a similar comparison of figures.

Now, all else being equal, this means that Duke students drank more beer than Carolina students.

Obviously, the Bureau of Census, the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, or both, has made a serious error.

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN RETTGER
Associate Editor

LLOYD LITTLE
Executive News Editor

BILL HOBBS
Managing Editor

GARRY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

NANCY BASS, LINDA CHAVOOR.....Feature Editors
HARRY W. LLOYD.....Sports Editor
DAVID WYRONG.....Subscription Manager
JIM SHELTON.....Circulation Manager
ED DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE.....Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MATHIS.....Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester or $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Are College Fraternities On Way Out?

By GEORGE STARR LASHER
Pi Kappa Phi Magazine

IN A BIASED, SLANTED ARticle which belies its claimed standard of impartial non-editorialized news coverage, Newsweek in its issue of March 27 raised the question, "Are fraternities on their way out?"

The editor responsible for the article in Newsweek is either ignorant or vicious in his attack.

The emphatic negative answer is not based upon generalizations from a few specific instances, but on over 50 years of personal observation as a teacher and administrator in classrooms and campuses of varied character in these United States; on an impartial survey that in 1957 gave through "Baird's Manual of College Fraternities" factual material dealing with 3,437 chapters of national fraternities and 1,903 chapters of national sororities; on the attendance of more than thirty of the annual meetings of the National Interfraternity Conference; on the reading of exchange copies of practically all the fraternity and sorority magazines published in the past 35 years;

From personal acquaintance with hundreds of students, whom I have seen develop into well-poised, well-mannered, socially effective young ladies and gentlemen, conditioned for group leadership and participation throughout life, thanks largely to what they had gained by being college Greeks; through chats with many parents who told of the benefits their sons and daughters had received through their membership in fraternities and sororities; from visits on numerous campuses and conferences with many administrators and faculty members as to the desirable contributions of the Greeks; and also by acquaintance with alumni now in all types of activities who credit a substantial share of their success in business, professional, civic, and personal activities and relationships to their experiences as fraternity men and sorority women.

If fraternities are on their way out, why is the number of chapters installed in the past few years the largest on record in college history?

Why are more campuses opening their doors to national fraternities and sororities than ever before?

Why is the present financial support of fraternities and sororities through building funds endowments and foundations the greatest in history?

If the fraternity is dead, it is obviously the liveliest corpse in the entire history of social institutions.

Just What Are The Facts?

1. Both fraternities and sororities are having the greatest growth in their history; in 1959-1960 alone 48 new chapters were installed by fraternities, 24 by sororities. In 1955-59 new National Panhellenic Conference chapters totaled 288. This growth has been experienced by members of the National Interfraternity Conference, the National Panhellenic Conference, and the four large national fraternities and four large national sororities in the National Panhellenic Council, whose membership is predominantly Negro. The loss of individual chapters like that of Alpha Tau Omega at Stanford, Sigma Nu and Beta Theta Pi at Dartmouth, has been negligible.

2. New campuses opened to national fraternities and sororities in 1955-59 totalled 88; more have been opened since and will be in the years immediately ahead. In the meantime only two institutions have banned chapters: Norwich, a small semi-military school with six, and Randolph-Macon Woman's College, nine.

Fraternities, Sororities Make Valuable Contributions

3. The reason why so many campuses are being opened to national fraternities and sororities is because their administrators and trustees have been convinced by administrators of Greek campuses that fraternities and sororities make highly valuable contributions: raising standards in dress, social manners, general conduct, campus citizenship, school loyalty and institutional prestige; recruiting of desirable students; building alumni support and leadership; improving campus activities; helping in disciplinary matters both with individuals and groups; cooperating in the improvement of scholarship; arousing interest in the school and its problems; encouraging students to continue their attendance until graduation, and helping to develop and maintain school spirit and pride.

4. Membership in practically all undergraduate chapters is high, making the total of collegiate Greeks today the largest on record.

5. The number of alumni groups throughout the nation is also increasing steadily.

6. Evidence of their appreciation of the value of fraternities and sororities is shown by the fact that the financial contributions of alumni today are at an all-time high. As a result:

• • •

Despite high building costs, more chapter houses, properly designed for gracious living, are being built than at any previous time.

Millions of dollars are being provided for endowment funds and educational foundations as aids to members in completing their education, undergraduate and graduate. One fraternity, for instance, awards more than $26,000 annually in scholarship grants.

An increasing number of fraternities and sororities are providing thousands of dollars annually in support of philanthropic programs, money raised through projects and gifts.

7. The great contributions of fraternities and sororities to the educational institutions of which they are a part is appreciated by administrators universally. Not a single administrator of a Greek campus is on record as being opposed to fraternities and sororities, while hundreds are on record as to their constructive value.

Fraternities Invited Back

8. Institutions which in a few cases have discouraged fraternities and sororities in the past are now encouraging them. The University of Chicago, for instance, is urging fraternities that withdrew chapters there to re-establish them and has announced it will welcome national sororities if they wish to place chapters on that campus, which at the present time has only local clubs.

Fraternities, Sororities—Effective Trainers

Fraternity and sorority chapters are the most effective agencies in training persons for life in a democracy for the undergraduate members not only elect their own officers to enforce the chapter laws that they themselves make and change, but as delegates in convention assembled they are responsible for national legislation.

A chapter is really a social laboratory, providing the most valuable experiences available on a campus in learning to know thoroughly and judge wisely human beings.

The undergraduates with unusual ability meet the problems involved in feeding and housing chapter members and in planning social activities of the group, collecting and spending the thousands of dollars necessary.

In learning how to plan, work, and play with others, members later become more effective husbands and wives, parents, employees and employers, and citizens.

Fraternities and sororities give members desirable goals and a sense of responsibility in meeting them.

The carrying on by chapters of helpful community projects through Help Weeks have won appreciation from civic, religious, welfare, educational, and philanthropic groups.

Opportunities for Leadership

The comparatively small size of the chapter gives most members an opportunity for leadership and varied participation as there is a wide range of activities. Most campus leaders are Greeks even where Greeks are in the minority.

Surveys show that cost of Greek membership today is not excessive and that on an increasing number of campuses living expenses in fraternity and sorority houses do not exceed, and in some cases are lower than, living costs in dormitories.

Membership Is Not Limited To Wealthy

Greek organizations do not limit themselves to persons from wealthy families. A large percentage of members earn part or all of their college expenses.

Greeks today do not develop snobbery; in fact, they definitely discourage any tendency of that kind of attitude knowing well that it is bad public relations, hurtful to individual members as well as to the chapter.

Most sons and daughters of Greeks become Greeks when they attend college, evidence that the parents have continued faith in fraternities and sororities.

Records of practically every alumni association show that the percentage of alumni who contribute most generously to their alma mater in money, leadership, and participation is much higher among those belonging to Greek-letter organizations than among non-Greeks.

The give and take of chapter living is the best preparation for success in marriage. Evidence of this is the remarkably low percentage of divorces among fraternity men and sorority women.

Greek groups develop cultural interests by participation in and support of art, music, dramatic, and similar activites.

Fraternities and sororities are based upon idealism, and fortunately for this country a large number of young people are idealistic, despite the cheap cynaicism of some critics.

Personnel men, who visit campuses in an effort to secure top students each year for their organizations, evaluate highly membership in Greek organizations as a means of having individuals learn how to live and work together. They rate particularly high the experience received by those who serve as officers.

Social fraternities are the oldest adjuncts in the history of American higher education. They and the sororities, which came with the extending of higher education among women, have persisted through the years because they have been and are the most effective agencies for training men and women for life in a democracy, giving them profitable experience in living and working together, in group leadership and participation, in facing and solving group problems, and in building lifelong friendships, the finest by-products of college life.

And there is no substitute for college fraternities and sororities.

"After All, Boy, It's Only For Life"

Fulbright's Fast, But Faubus May Play

By Robert C. Albright
Staff Reporter
Washington Post

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 5 "Tell Bill Fulbright for me he hasn't got a thing to worry about."

There was a pause, and then this kicker: "Unless Orval Faubus runs for the Senate."

In these words, flung after his departing fare, the redneck cab driver summed up what is perhaps the political consensus of Arkansas.

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), who hasn't had opposition in a Senate race since 1944, isn't waiting for the Arkansas Governor to make up his mind.

Faubus will wait six months for the May filing date. But Fulbright's do-it-yourself campaign is already mounted, slowly, efficiently encompassing the state.

Aside From Faubus . . .

The cabbie may have erred just a bit. The Governor of Arkansas isn't the only man looking over Fulbright's shoulder at the Senate or whatever lies beyond.

The memory of the 1957 school desegregation riots is slowly receding in Little Rock, but the trauma still lies below the surface and could project itself into the 1962 primaries.

Fulbright somehow kept out of the emotional holocaust of four years ago. But Gov. Faubus, the incumbent when former President Eisenhower sent Federal troops into Little Rock, parlayed the development into a third and fourth term as Governor. So firm is his hold now that he probably could win handily if he seeks a record fifth term as Governor.

Somebody else who collected political dividends from unhappy 1957 incident was U. S. Rep. Dale Alford, the Little Rock ophthalmologist and segregationist who defeated Democratic Rep. Brooks Hays in the upheaval. If Faulbus fails to run for the Senate, one thing appears sure: Fulbright will hear more of Dale Alford.

The Main Chance

Alford was elected in one of those colossal accidents that seldom occurs in American politics. He beat Hayes, the man who couldn't be beaten, after the Arkansas moderate tried and failed to work out an accommodation between Faubus and the White House that would have staved off the Federal-State clash.

Today, Alford once again has his eye on the main chance. No one doubts that he will run for the Senate if Faubus holds back. If Faubus goes for the Senate, Alford will probably go for Governor. His third and last choice apparently would be to run against Democratic Rep. Wilbur Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, whose redistricted constituency has been merged with Alford's own.

The lively speculation in Arkansas, however, centers on what Faubus will do. It's building up into a fascinating local guessing game.

With the men who hardly ever guess—the hard-headed politicians and the bankers—the feeling is that Faubus will take the safe route back to the state capitol—rather than challenge Fulbright.

Cost of Political Living

Some of the people who pay the bills say it takes a minimum of $300,000 to finance a campaign for governor. Usually this is a sound political investment if the campaign is successful—there are countless things a governor can do legitimately, from deposit of state funds to key agency to appointments to reward his backers. But as one Delta businessman put it: "Faubus in Washington would be of little or no value to his supporters."

One story current across the state is that Faubus really doesn't want to go Washington after what happened at Little Rock four years ago —that he'd be persona non grata there.

"I think he'll just sit around and test the water for a while," said one former associate. "If it looks rough he won't go in, but if it calms up he might."

If Faubus runs, it will be one of the roughest races in Arkansas history, but the Fulbright people point out that the Governor can be and has been beaten.

Early this year he was licked 2 to 1 on a $60,000,000 bond issue for a state building program. In 1959 he was defeated on "Amendment 52," providing local-option grants for private schools.

Sweet Fulbright Victory

Fulbright downed a former Arkansas Governor in his first race for the Senate in 1944 and hasn't been troubled with competition since. Ironically, the man he beat was Homer Adkins, who had ousted him as president of the university a few years before because of critical comments by the Senator's mother in the Fulbright family paper. Fulbright says the victory was sweet.

In case Faubus runs against him, Fulbright can count on the support of Arkansas liberals, who cooled to him after the Little Rock incident because he failed to speak out. Fulbright's friends say that in 1957 discretion was the better part of valor, that an endorsement of desegregation by the Senator at that time would have cut his political life short.

Fulbright's stand, in his memorandum to Defense Secretary McNamara, opposing domination of military seminars by "radical right" speakers has helped woo the liberals back. In a race with Gov. Faubus their support could be decisive, even in this deeply conservative state.

One source estimated there are some 100,000 liberals and 60,000 Negroes in Arkansas out of a total registered electorate of about 400,-000. In a race with Gov. Faubus such a vote could be decisive.

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

New Speaker To Fill Office Second Only To Presidency

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The post which is regarded by many as the second most powerful in American government will be filled Wednesday by an election in which only 429 citizens will be eligible to vote.

The election will take place in accordance with the U. S. Constitution which says: "The House of Representatives shall chuze (sic) their speaker."

The speaker is the dominant figure in Congress. He has far more power than any other member. He stands next to the vice president in the line of pesidential succession. Like the vice president he draws $45,000 a year in salary and expenses—twice as members.

Commander of Party

The speaker is the commander of his party in the House. He is expected to, and does, use his vast gavel-wielding powers to advance the interests of his party. This aspect is peculiarly American. In contrast, the speaker of the British House of Commons is expected to show no partisanship.

Elected by the House, the majority party. With Congress out of session, the post has been vacant since the death last fall of Texas Rep. Sam Rayburn, who served as speaker of every Democratically-controlled House for the last 21 years.

much as senators and other House

House Democrats have scheduled a caucus late today to nominate their veteran floor leader, Rep. John W. McCormack, 70-year-old Boston Irishman, to fill the vacancy. As the Democratic nominee, McCormack is certain to be elected when Congress convenes at noon Wednesday for its election-year session.

House Democrats outnumber Republicans 258-174. Three of the Democrats, newly elected, will be unable to vote because they will not be sworn into office until after the election.

The speaker's legislative power is largely due to his power of recognition—his power to determine who may speak on the House floor at any particular time. This gives him the power to prevent consideration of any motion or bill.

Power Over Bills

Among other powers, he can, on certain specified days, force a House vote on any motion he favors without permitting amendments. Any

Balladier Moffett

RENEGADE — "How did you die, William Dry?" sings the balladier (Sandy Moffett of Taylorsville) in "Renegade," running Jan. 10-14 at the Playmakers Theatre. The new, full-length Civil War drama is written by Carl Hinrichs, a UNC graduate. Tickets for The Carolina Playmakers' production are available at the Playmakers Business Office (214 Abernethy Hall) and at Ledbetter-Pickard. All seats are reserved at $1.50 each.

-WUNC-

(Continued from Page 1)

Reno Bailey, from Cliffside, N. C., a senior, as station manager. He has organized the station into twelve departments, all headed by students.

Programming will concentrate on classical music, drama and documentary films, and news and activities of the UNC campus, colleges, schools, institutions and divisions.

Live Programs

Station Manager Bailey stated that soon the WUNC station may be able to receive live programs also from the Educational Radio Network. The ERN is composed of educational stations from Canada to Washington, D. C. A link from Washington to Chapel Hill is scheduled for completion in the next year or so.

WUNC will continue to carry University lectures, recitals, concerts and other campus activities of high calibre.

North Carolina Memorial Hospital uses the station during afternoon hours to broadcast medical programs to nearby hospitals. Merck, Sharpe, and Dohme Drug Company contributes $5,000 a year to this program. The University loaned the medical school money to initiate the program and the National Foundation for Medical Education equipped a studio in the hospital so that programs could be taped at the doctor's convenience. Dr. William P. Richardson heads the hospital broadcasts.

Political Science Offers New Course

A special program in Political Science designed to give a better understanding of the international situation has been announced for the Spring Semester of the Evening College.

Three courses—Political Science 41 (Introduction to Government in the United States), Political Science 55 (Soviet Government), and Political Science 88 (The United Nations)—will be offered to Evening College students for college credit.

These three courses will be taught by a select faculty, according to Sim Wilde, Director of the Evening College.

William Brigman, graduate student and doctoral candidate in the Department of Political Science, Dr. Robert Rupen, authority in Soviet Government, and Dr. Violet Wurfel, extensive traveler in Europe and the Orient, will teach the courses in "an attempt to create a better understanding of world tensions and what attempts are being made to solve them."

Registration for classes will be January 30-Feb 2 from 8:30-4:30 and 7-9 in 219 Abernathy Hall on the campus. Classes will begin February 5.

GBD—Unequaled Pipe Smoking Satisfaction

For Other Fine Imported Pipes and Accessories Try

Varley's MENS SHOP

Troy and Connie in love again!

TROY DONAHUE
CONNIE STEVENS
DOROTHY McGUIRE
LLOYD NOLAN

DELMER DAVES' Susan Slade

MUSIC BY MAX STEINER · TECHNICOLOR® FROM WARNER BROS.

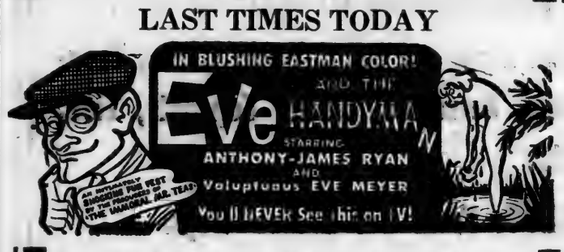
Carolina NOW PLAYING

BERLIN

a film report in full color
Narrated in person by the man who made the film
ART WILSON
MEMORIAL HALL 8:00 P.M.
Tuesday, January 9
Admission $1.00
Graham Memorial Travel Adventure Series

VARSITY — EAST FRANKLIN ST.

LAST TIMES TODAY



Annual January Clearance

SALE

Now In Progress

All Big Toys

⅓ OFF

Many Reduced to ½ Price

SUTTON'S TOY CLELLAR

With Great Pride We Present

THE LIBRARY OF A SCHOLAR-DIPLOMAT

Collected by a scholar in government service, this library is rich in history and background material on the world's trouble-spots of the last twenty years. While we have offered many collections of rare editions, we doubt if we have ever offered a more interesting collection of living material on today's world. Prices are within reach of student budgets.

Part I — Week of January 8th — Books of interest to the student of European History and current events.

Part II — Week of January 15th — Latin America, Asia, and Africa are covered in this interesting group.

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St. Open Till 10 P.M.

Briefs

(Continued from page 1)

gion, and the Nation."

Dr. A. T. Miller, department of physiology, and Dr. E. D. Palmatier, physics department, will speak before a meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society, today at 7:30 p.m. at 205 Phillips Hall.

Dr. Miller will speak on "Medical Research and Education in Israel" and Dr. Palmatier will talk on "A Satellite Study of the Constitution of Cosmic Radiation."

CLASSIFIED ADS

FOUND: 1 PAIR LADIES GLASSES in front of Varsity Theater on Sat. night. Made by S. H. Laufer Opticians, 88 Rivington St., N.Y., N.Y. Call Mr. Brady Jackson at Memorial Hospital, extension 471 and describe same for return.

IF YOU REALLY WANT TO SAVE—but think you can't—consider life insurance. Let a Northwestern Mutual agent show you how your dollars will grow in an insured savings plan. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. Telephone 942-6966.

FOR RENT — LOG CABIN PRIvately located in country—Perfect for Picnic Parties. Phone 968-2945, nights.

WANTED—RESPONSIBLE PERson—Established Newspaper Route. Earnings $15 to $25 per week — Married student preferred — Car necessary — Approx 10 hours per week. Call 942-5953 after 5 p.m.

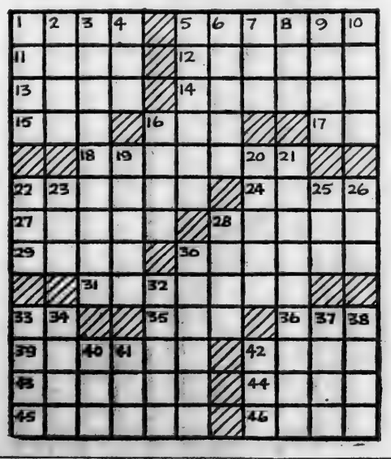
IMMEDIATE OPENING FOR two women for part time work at our local office. Good starting pay with possibility of advancement to full time. Call 942-6562 for interview, or apply office number 6 Dawson Building 230½ W. Franklin Street. 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Ham's son
5. Food from curd of milk
11. Plexus
12. Overacted (slang)
13. Winglike
14. To make certain
15. Hebrew letter
16. Insect
17. Half em
18. By the hundred
22. Invent
24. Algerian seaport
27. Having many hedges
28. French soldier (W.W. I)
29. Fencer's foil
30. Black rock
31. Carters
33. Like
35. —— and downs
36. Fuel
39. Eye membrane
42. Askew
43. Catkins
44. Vetiver grass
45. Reorganize into a body
46. Employs

DOWN
1. To stuff
2. African river
3. Ran away in panic
4. Feminine pronoun
5. To risk
6. Celerity
7. Printer's measures
8. Australian bird
9. Dried up (var.)
10. Paradise
16. Bohemian-like
19. Anxious
20. Hangman's rope
21. Acute, isosceles, and equilateral
22. Asian shrub
23. Twilled fabric
25. Completely
26. Goddess of heavens
28. Knaves of clubs
30. Detour
32. Relatives
33. Sandarac tree
34. Dotted with figures (her.)
37. First rate
38. Resorts
40. Evening sun god
41. Miss Claire
42. Irish battle cry

Yesterday's Answer



SALE

Reductions of ⅓ on fall and winter stocks

The FIRESIDE

POGO

PEANUTS

Liveliness and luxury at a low, low price!

CHEVY II NOVA

A top-down picture in January? Sure! We simply couldn't wait to show you the easiest-to-own Chevrolet Convertible you ever flipped a top over! Get a load of that broad-loop carpeting, the elegant instrument panel, and the leather-like vinyl on those bucket seats* up front. We call it Fisher Body finesse. What else will you find? Plenty of zip, for one thing, from a spunky 6. Plenty of room, too. And the ride's firm, but ever so gentle, thanks to new Mono-Plate rear springs. Go see how inexpensively your Chevrolet dealer can put some June in your January with Chevy II!

Chevy II was put to the test by the men who know cars best—
WINNER OF THE CAR LIFE AWARD FOR ENGINEERING EXCELLENCE

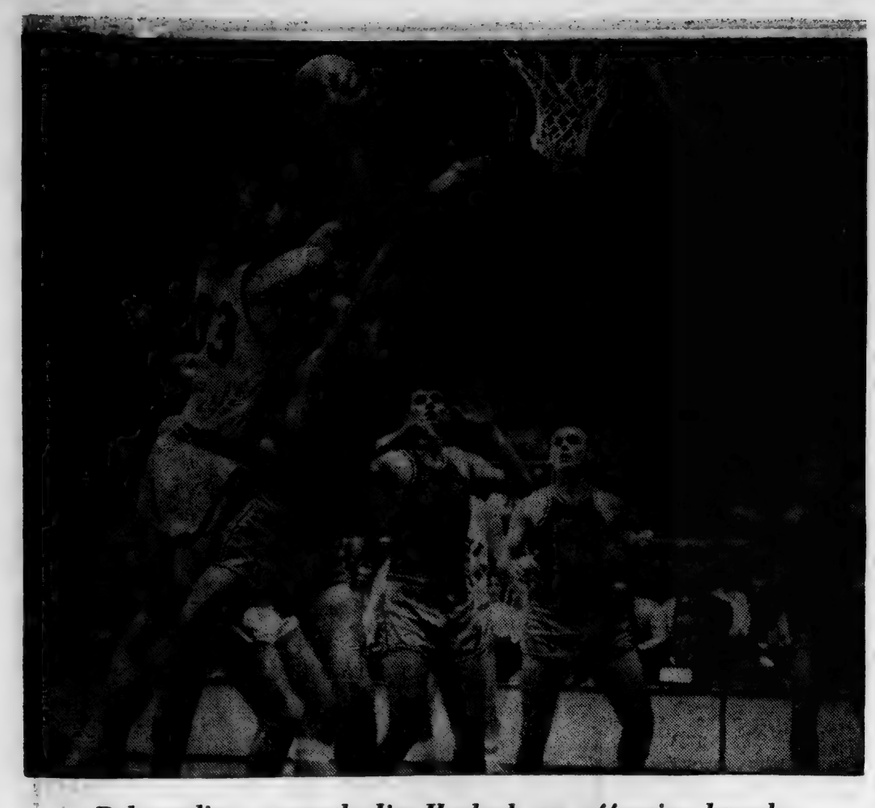
CHEVROLET

*Optional at extra cost. Also available in Nova Sport Coupe.

See the new Chevy II at your local authorized Chevrolet dealer's One-Stop Shopping Center



Rebounding strength—Jim Hudock on offensive boards

Fast Breaking Tar Heels Run Wild Over Notre Dame, 99-80

By Harry W. Lloyd
DTH Sports Editor

If there was ever any doubt about North Carolina's having a contender for the ACC basketball championship, it's gone now. The Tar Heels decided that point against Notre Dame in Charlotte last Saturday night.

It was a game in which little of anything could go wrong for the Tar Heels, who hadn't played a game since losing by six points to Indiana on December 11. They started out like a house afire, and the Irish didn't even have a water gun to use against the blaze.

Had coach Dean Smith wished, the Tar Heels could have made shreds of the team's scoring record of 115 points. Instead, the UNC mentor let his reserves play much of the second half, and the final score was a mere 99-80.

Carolina did almost everything well. Their team speed was a telling factor. On offense, the Tar Heels ran their shuffle to perfection, and were often left with easy layups. They outmaneuvered and outrebounded the Irish. And along with this rebounding and defensive strength, the Tar Heels could run the fast break at will.

Larry Brown, who was a near-unanimous choice as the outstanding player in the game, carned his recognition by leading the UNC break. He was usually the man with the ball, who either zig-zagged up the court while dribbling or passed off to teammates for shots.

The Carolina shooting from the floor was good enough to beat almost anybody. In the first half, while they were piling up a 53-26 lead, the Tar Heels rammed through 19 shots and missed only 14 for an eye-catching percentage of .613. They cooled off just a bit in the second half by hitting the same number but missing five more. Their final field goal percentage was .567.

Carolina scored first after 53 seconds of play on a free throw by Mike Cooke. Bryan McSweeney and Jim Hudock hit from the floor to push the lead to 5-0 before Karl Roesler dropped in a free throw for Notre Dame.

Larry Brown hit one of three free tosses, and McSweeney connected again for an 8-1 lead. After the Tar Heels held a 14-8 lead and it appeared that the Irish might be ready for a comeback, Brown got hot. He swished a long set, pegged in a free toss, and then hit two more field goals while the visitors were only scoring one point.

At the 10-minutes mark, or with one-quarter of the game played, the blue and white held a 28-11 lead. Five minutes later, they had made the spread even more, with a 47-15 lead.

In the middle ten minutes of the opening half, Carolina outscored its opponents by 37-11.

The final outcome was really decided even before the first half was over. Notre Dame's only chance lay in the possibility that they could rebound with the Tar Heels. They couldn't—and what's more, they lost their leading rebounder, Roesler, when he fouled out with 5:16 left in the first half.

Jim Donohue, in his first game of the year, was the best of the Carolina reserves. Big Jim, 6-8, pulled down 6 rebounds and hit on two shots, a long jumper and a left-hand hook.

With seven minutes left, Carolina was ahead by 85-52 and looked like a sure bet to hit 100. But with five minutes left, and the score 92-58, Smith removed all of his starters and top reserves. The remaining men excitedly tried to reach the magic figure, but made too many mistakes. Charlie Burns, a junior, finished in a flurry by pouring in the final six points, in the last minute and a half.

Sophomore Bryan McSweeney was the scoring leader of the night with 22. Brown and Hudock were close behind with 18 each, and Don Walsh dropped in 16.

Armand Reo, Ed Schnurr, and John Matthews hit 17 each for John Jordan's Irish, who lost their seventh game.

What do the Tar Heels themselves say about the impressive win? Nothing. They have put all their attentions to preparing for tomorrow night's game at Wake Forest.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Ohio State's Undefeated Buckeyes Top Cage Poll Again; Blue Devils 8th

NEW YORK (UPI) — Southern California and Kentucky moved up to the number 3 and 4 spots behind Ohio State and Cincinnati Monday in the United Press International college basketball ratings and West Virginia regained a place among the top 10 teams.

Those were the most important of this week's changes as Ohio State and Cincinnati remained locked in the 1 and 2 rankings for the sixth week in a row.

Ohio State, undefeated in 11 games, once again was the top choice of 34 of the 35 leading coaches who comprise the UPI rating board. One coach again voted for Cincinnati (11-1).

Kansas State's defeat at the hands of Colorado during the weekend gave Southern California (11-2) and Kentucky (10-1) the opportunity to advance one notch each in the ratings. Kansas State, third last week, dropped to fifth place.

Villanova, Duquesne, Duke, Oregon State and West Virginia rounded out this week's top 10 group. West Virginia, 12th last week, was the only newcomer in the select group, replacing Wichita.

West Virginia moved back into the top 10 group after handing Villanova its first defeat in 13 games this season. Despite the setback, Villanova moved up one place to No. 6.

Cincinnati, in addition to its first-place vote, received 33 for second place and one for third. That gave the Bearcats from Ohio a total of 315 points, compared to Ohio State's 349 out of a possible 350.

The United Press International major college basketball ratings with first-place votes and won-lost records in parentheses:

Team	Points
1. Ohio State 34 (11-0)	349
2. Cincinnati 1 (11-1)	315
3. Southern California (11-2)	241
4. Kentucky (10-1)	233
5. Kansas State (9-2)	183
6. Villanova (12-1)	107
7. Duquesne (9-1)	106
8. Duke (9-2)	60
9. Oregon State (9-1)	46
10. West Virginia (9-3)	41

Second 10 teams: 11, Mississippi State, 39; 12, Utah, 25; 13, Bradley, 22; 14, Wichita 20; 15, Santa Clara, 19; 16, Bowling Green, 16; 17 Illinois, 15; 18 tie Temple and Purdue, 12 each; 20, Colorado State U., 9.

Others: St. John's, 8; North Carolina State, Tennesse and Arizona State, 6 each; Stanford, 5; Wisconsin, 4; Drake, Colorado, Texas A. & M. Utah State and Texas Tech, 3 each; Houston, 2; North Carolina, Loyola Ill., and Arkansas, 1 each.

Wrestlers Top State By 28 To 5

Barnesmen In First Victory Of Season

By Ed Dupree

Carolina's wrestlers bounced into the win column Saturday night with a convincing 28-5 thumping of N. C. State's Wolfpack.

The Tar Heels wasted no time, as they quickly ran up a 16-0 lead in the first four matches and coasted to the easy victory. Only Tom Grant, wrestling in the 157-pound class, met with defeat, and he went all the way against his Raleigh opponent before losing by a decision. Heavyweight Jerry Cabe wrestled to a draw in the night's final match.

Dick Blackman continued his winning ways in the 147-pound class, as he took a decision and moved closer to the UNC season scoring record. The Whiteville, N. C., junior has scored 17 points in five matches and needs only 13 in the last six contests to tie the mark set by Perin Henderson in 1959.

Pete Gilchrist, 130-pound class, needed only 59 seconds to pin his opponent in the most impressive Carolina win of the night. Louis Arthur, 123-pound division, and 177-pounder Gene Record also won their matches by falls.

Whitney Durand win by default in the 167 class and Willis Johnson took a decision in the 137 division.

Coach Sam Barnes is preparing his squad for this Saturday's match with West Virginia, a team UNC hasn't defeated in five attempts. The Mountaineers have lost five starters from last season by graduation and Barnes feels that they will be weaker than in previous seasons.

The Carolina mentor plans to alter his line-up for the West Virginians by starting Glenn Glaser in the 167 division, Mickey Nelson, in the 123 division, and Gordon Appell in the heavyweight class.

UNC's frosh fell to the State frosh, 8-22, in a preliminary match. The Tar Babies do not wrestle again until February 3, when they play host to VPI.

LEGISLATURE MEETS

Student Legislature will meet tonight at 7:30 in New West in the last session of the fall semester.

Bills on the communications committee and nuclear testing are scheduled to come out of legislative committee tonight.

The next meeting of Legislature will be Feb. 8.

Tar Babies In Fifth Straight Victory

By Ed Dupree

UNC's Tar Babies racked up their fifth consecutive basketball victory Friday night at Wilmington with a 70-68 overtime win over Wilmington Junior College.

The Carolina frosh controlled the contest for the first 29 minutes of the game, then ran into an 11-minute scoring famine which saw the Sea Hawks tally 18 points and knot the score at 64-64.

A field goal by Billy Cunningham, high scorer with 26 points, and two foul shots each by Jay Neary and Ray Respess accounted for Carolina's overtime scoring.

The Tar Heel frosh played a near-perfect first half which saw them connect on 18 of 25 shots from the floor and take a 40-28 halftime lead.

Cunningham and Company continued to dominate play and held a 64-46 lead before the scoring lapse came and the home team whittled away at the lead until it had disappeared.

Cunningham, who has now scored 100 points in five games for a 20-point scoring average, not only led all scorers, but snared 27 rebounds in his best performance of the season.

The Tar Babies now boast a 78.6 scoring mark per game and have held their opponents to a 62.4 average—a victory margin of 16.2 per game. Neary is second in scoring with an 18.8 mark and Respess holds a 16.8 average.

All-Star Cage Game Tonight

Seven former UNC football and basketball stars will join others from Duke and State in an all-star basketball game tonight at 8 o'clock in the Durham High School Gym. The game will be played for the benefit of the March of Dimes.

Coach Vic Bubas of Duke will coach one team, and Everett Case of State will head the other.

Playing for Bubas will be Ray Farris and Jim LeCompte of the Carolina football team, Albert Long, Danny Lotz, and Doug Moe of past Carolina basketball teams; George McAfee and Walt Rappold of Duke football fame; and Lou Pucillo, Sam Ranzino, and Ronnie Shavlik, former State All-America basketball stars.

Case will have Johnny Frye, Bobby Joe Harris, Howard Hurt, and Doug Kistler, former Duke stars; Joe Quigg and Ray Stanley, former Carolina greats; Dave Sime, the world record holder in the dashes; Bucky Waters, former State player who now is freshman coach at Duke, and Tee Moorman and Jack Wilson, former Duke footballers.

BASKETBALL TICKETS

Tickets for the UNC-South Carolina game to be played here Monday, Jan. 15, are still available on a first-come, first-served basis to UNC students with athletic passes.

Those whose names begin with the letters A-M have priority on tickets for the UNC-N. C. State game, to be played Wednesday, Jan. 17. The priority will last through tomorrow. Starting Thursday, tickets will be available to all students.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

CRAMTIME
Your best chance of finding the study aid you need
The Book Exchange
Five Points DURHAM
We Buy & Sell All Books

GOLF CITY'S 19th HOLE
MUSIC • DANCING
SANDWICHES • BEER
ACROSS FROM HOWARD JOHNSONS OPEN 12-12

Stevens-Shepherd's Great January
SALE!
Reductions of 20- to 50%
and more on: Suits, Sport Coats, Trousers, Sweaters, Shirts, Topcoats, Ties, etc.
ALSO: From Our Ladies' Dept.—
Blouses, Sweaters, Skirts—All Reduced
STEVENS~SHEPHERD

SPECIAL GROUP
OF SUITS, SPORTCOATS AND TOPCOATS REDUCED
20%
Broken Sizes In FLORSHEIM and FRENCH SHRINER SHOES
Julian's College Shop

For the Finest in FORMAL WEAR
Rentals for All Occasions
Varley's Men's Shop

It's what's up front that counts
Up front is FILTER-BLEND and only Winston has it!
Rich, golden tobaccos specially selected and specially processed for full flavor in filter smoking.
R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.
WINSTON TASTES GOOD like a cigarette should!

Get Better Grades With Study Aids
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

Milton's January Colossal

Buys across the board on the best-looking dress and casual clothes.
Group full fashioned cardigans regularly $16.95, January Colossal price $8.99.
Group size large and extra large imported shetland crew necks, cut from $13.95 to $5.99.
Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

Lady Milton January Colossal

Starting today group 325 Shirts including imported India madras, imported shetland sport coat patterns, solid worsted flannels, formerly to $20.00, at give-a-way of $5.99.
Plenty of other choice items at drastic reductions.
Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

74

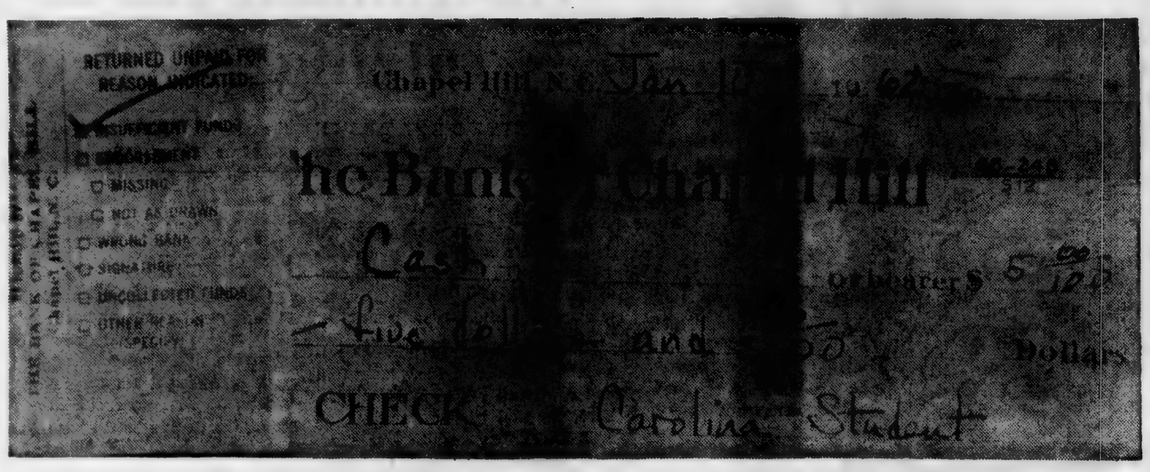
Co-Signers
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Increasingly Cold,
Scattered Snow Flurries

Offices in Graham Memorial | WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Students Pass 90 Bad Checks Worth $1,000 Every Day



FAMILIAR? — Insufficient funds has been cited as one of the major reasons for a heavy increase of student bad checks within the past year in Chapel Hill. Bank officials report about 90 bad checks, totaling well-over $1,000, are cashed each day by careless students and townspeople.

— Photo by Wallace

By LLOYD LITTLE

About 90 bad checks totaling well-over $1,000 are passed on the average day in Chapel Hill—most of them by University students.

Justice of the Peace Paul Robertson: "I've been here for 30 years and within the last year, I have probably issued more warrants for worthless checks than I issued in any two year period."

A bank official: "It's been a terrific increase. We've had more trouble in the last two years than ever before."

Why has there been consistently a large number of worthless checks written by students? What happens when a student writes a bad check? What legal action can results?

FROM THE BANKERS:

Mrs. Ann Wright head bookkeeper for the Central Carolina Bank and Trust Co., estimated that the bank carries 1,500 to 2,000 student accounts with a total turnover of about 4,000 checks per day.

Of these, approximately 40 are worthless. They usually range from $2 to $10 apiece for the students.

Central Vice President O. Gordon Perry blamed overdrawn accounts as the major cause of bad checks. "Some students even know it when they write the check. I don't know why. I guess they anticipate money coming in and go ahead and write the check."

"Yes, I would say there has been an increase and perhaps it has been because of the rise in the number of accounts. Bad checks are a terrific headache to us."

"I feel the major cause of student bad checks is the lack of reconciling bank statements. We have so many people who close their accounts and forget they have outstanding checks against it."

William R. Cherry, comptroller of the Bank of Chapel Hill, estimated the bank carried around 2,500 student accounts. The bank cashes a total of $7,000 to $12,000 in checks on an average day.

About fiftyt bad checks, totaling $600 to $1,000, pass through that bank each day.

"You would be surprised at the number of students who do it deliberately," Cherry said. "The majority of the bad checks result from overdrawn accounts. The biggest rush is just prior to vacations and during the spring.

"Usually, we send two notices to the student. If no action is taken, Mr. (Sam) Harrison (head of the bad check department) sends a letter to the student and depending upon the nature of the check may send a carbon copy to the Dean of Student Affairs."

"If all this fails, we turn the student's name over to the Dean. Only on very rare occasions have we turned a bad check over to the Justice of the Peace."

"There has been a terrific increase in the past several years. Of course the student body has grown and perhaps more students are banking than ever before. It's a puzzle to me. I don't understand why they don't answer the notices we send out."

What happens when a student cashes a bad check?

In cases where the overdraft is less than a dollar, the bank may deposit the needed amount to the

(Continued on Page 3)

Officials Agree Last 2 Years 'Worst Period'

John McCormack Succeeds Mr. Sam

Hickenlooper Favored For Vacant Republican Policy Chairmanship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democrats today chose Rep. John W. McCormack as speaker and Rep. Carl Albert as floor leader, marking the party's first leadership change in 21 years.

McCormack, 70-year-old Boston Catholic, succeeds the late Sam Rayburn, whom he served as leader for all those 21 years. His appointment will be made official by a House vote Wednesday.

Albert, a 53-year-old Oklahoman, moves up from the assistant leadership spot to replace McCormack. His selection is not subject to House approval.

Both actions were taken at a closed party caucus, and were without opposition.

The Senate's only leadership contest will be settled Wednesday, when Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, appears to have a good chance of winning the GOP Policy Committee chairmanship left vacant by the death of Sen. Styles Bridges, N. H.

Following the House Democratic caucus, McCormack and Albert made speeches pledging support of President Kennedy's legislative program and appealing for unity among party members, who often find themselves split along liberal-conservative lines. They received enthusiastic applause from assembled Democrats.

McCormack said that following Sam Rayburn as speaker is a job to tax any man. He appealed for support and unified backing of Democrats, and promised that "members who support the party policies can go to the polls next fall with assurance of victory."

Albert said the fact is that Democrats are united "in a common zeal to protect and safeguard the interests of the American people."

McCormack assumes a post that has come to be regarded as second in power only to the presidency. The speaker is the dominant figure in Congress, and stands next to the vice president in the line of presidential succession.

Like the vice president, McCormack will draw $45,000 a year in salary and expenses-twice as much as senators and other House members.

UP Gives $50 To Two Classes

The University Party voted Monday night to give $50 to both the Freshman and Sophomore classes to be used as the classes wished.

Freshman President Bob Spearman said his class planned to use the money to finance parties with the Nurses Dorm and a party with Woman's College in the spring.

The party voted to draw up a new plan of convention procedures to be used at the spring convention, including the manner of voting.

Platform plans for the spring elections were also discussed and amended.

Freshman Class Discusses Plans For 2nd Semester

Officers of the freshman class met Monday to discuss several prospects for the coming semester.

President Bob Spearman announced that the class treasury has been allotted $50 by the University Party.

Prospects of having a dance with freshman girls from Woman's College were discussed and other dances may be arranged with UNC coeds.

Class treasurer Harrison Merrill suggested that a benefit basketball game between "Rosenbluth's Raiders" and the Tar Heel varsity team be held to increase the freshman class funds. Other money-making suggestions included were a cake sale handled by the coeds and a car-wash.

Study Dorm

Discussion included a teaching award, a petition for a study dorm and a list of study rooms available during exams.

John Dunne, national and state affairs chairman, stated that a poll is being taken in freshman dorms on national and state affairs in order "to awaken interest on such subjects." He also mentioned freshman class participation in plans for the spring Symposium.

Spearman expressed plans for an open class meeting to be held in the middle of February.

Infirmary

Students in the infirmary yesterday included Ann Lobdell, Louise Yates, Barbara Brownfield, Martha Ann Myers, Dale Robinson, Richard Brodeur, George Wynne, William Stubbs, William Lathan, Carl Lundeen, Henry Morgan, James Fain, Joseph Langdon, John Gentry, Robert Ashby, John Weaver, Stephen Dennis, William Taylor, Irvin Blanchard, Robert Deal, and Fred Thompson. The Infirmary hours are 9-11:30 A.M. and 2-5 P.M.

Civil War Drama Opening Tonight

'Renegade,' Written By Graduate, Is Playmakers' 3rd Play Of Season

"Renegade," a new war play by UNC graduate Carl Hinrichs, opens at the Playmakeres Theatre tonight at 8:30 for a five-night run. The Civil War drama is The Carolina Playmakers third major production of the current season.

With an all-male cast of 15 and a live rabbit who appears in three scenes of the drama, "Renegade" tells the story of an idealistic young Confederate lieutenant who is destroyed by the pressures of war. He sees both sides of the battle as wrong, but is thrown into a situation in which he must act or die. Larry Randolph of Ft. Smith, Ark., plays the lieutenant, William Dry.

A singing, guitar-playing balladier who also participates in the action of the war drama serves as a "narrator-in-song" for the play. He is played by Sandy Moffett of Taylorsville.

Confederate Officers

John Crockett of Baltimore, Md., and Bill File of Anderson, S. C., appear as the Confederate officers, Major McClinton and Captain Neville. Gordon Clark of Asheboro and Wes Van Tassel of Kent, Minn., are the two drunken Yankee soldiers who hold the lieutenant captive.

Also in the cast are Paul Gold and Allen Josephs, Charlotte; Frank Beaver, Statesville; Larry G. Steele, Kennett Square, Pa.; Larry McMullen, Yanceyville; George Gray III and Mel Starr, Gastonia; Woody Eney, Alexandria, Va.; Norman Pendergraft, Durham; and Al Miller, Chapel Hill.

Playwright Hinrichs began writing "Renegade" while a graduate student in drama at UNC in 1960. The play is directed by Thomas M. Patterson, Hinrichs' former playwriting instructor here. Hinrichs will be present for the opening night performance.

Designer Rezzuto

The setting for "Renegade" was designed by Tommy Rezzuto; costumes by Irene Smart Rains and lights by Johnny Meadows. Stage manager is Rhoda Blanton and assistant stage manager is Bobbi Bruton.

Tickets for "Renegade" are available at the Playmakers Business Office, 214 Abernethy Hall (next to the Scuttlebutt), and at Ledbetter-Pickard, both in Chapel Hill. They will go on sale at the Theatre Box Office each evening at 7. All seats are reserved at $1.50 each.

BEATEN BY PIGEON

LONDON (UPI) — Postal employees, on a slowdown strike for higher wages, took one hour and 40 minutes Tuesday to deliver a telegram to Sutton, Surrey, about 14 miles away. A carrier pigeon made the flight in 50 minutes.

KASSEL, Germany (UPI) — A nationwide search was under way today for burglary suspect Herman Boese, who escaped from custody Sunday by ramming a policeman's false teeth down his throat.

Three Americans Abroad

Reds To Return Belgian Airliner

27 Passengers Reported 'Safe'

MOSCOW — (UPI)—The Soviet Union Tuesday promised to release the Sabena Caravelle jet and the 27 persons aboard when the plane was forced down by Mig jet-fighters.

At least three—and possibly five—of the 19 passengers were Americans. All the passengers and the eight crew members were reported safe and well at Grozny, about 275 miles north of the Russian-Turkish border. They were expected to be released Wednesday.

It was first reported that the plane had been forced to land in Yerevan, the capital of Soviet Armenia, after straying across the frontier on a flight from Iran to Turkey Monday. But officials here said today the airliner was escorted by Soviet Mig jet fighters to Grozny and landed there.

Pilot Reports

Sabena officials in Tehran, Iran, said the pilot reported a faulty radio compass 19 minutes after takeoff and it was thought that strong winds might have blown the plane across the border into the Soviet Union.

The airlines office in Tehran identified three of the passengers as Americans—Charles and Maria Weimer of New York and a Fred Holden, whose address was not immediately available. It said Weimer is an employe in Tehran of the Morrison Knudsen Engineering Company of Boise, Idaho, while Holden was in transit from the Far East to Istanbul.

A passenger list released by Sabena in Brussels included a "Mrs. Haddad and one baby" from the United States.

Receives Ambassador

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov received Belgian Ambassador Hypolite Cools Tuesday and told him that the plane and its passengers and crew members would be released. But, at the same time, he lodged an oral protest against what he said was the violation of Soviet airspace.

Cools assured Kuznetsov that any violation was completely unintentional, the Belgian Embassy reported.

Kuznetsov said the Soviet Union considered the matter closed and would release the plane, probably Wednesday.

Campus Briefs

Tryouts are now being conducted for the UNC Concert Band. There are openings in all sections except percussion. Interested persons should contact Dr. Herbert W. Fred, director, 02 Hill Hall, before Thursday afternoon.

* * *

The Cosmopolitan Club will meet Sunday for bowling. Cars will leave Y-Court at 3:45 p.m. There will be a charge of 50 cents per person. Marguerite Boue-Raad can supply additional information.

* * *

Foster Fitz-Simmons's dance class is open for auditors for the spring term, he said yesterday. The class will meet from 2-3:30 p.m. T, Th and F in Memorial Hall.

RENAME SONG

LONDON (UPI)—The Daily Express said Tuesday that the title song of Lionel Bart's musical, "Oliver!" has been rearranged to twist tempo and renamed "Oliver Twist."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Dr. Schorse

Seach Continues For Air Force Plane

NEW YORK An everwidening sea and air search began Tuesday for an Air Force tanker plane with nine men aboard long overdue on a flight to the Azores Islands.

The six engine-four piston engines and two jets—KB50 had enough fuel to stay aloft until midnight Monday night when it took off from Langley Air Force Base, Va., Monday for Lajes, in the Azores.

Premier Boun Oum 'Cannot Be Coerced'

VIENTIANE, Laos — A cabinet minister Tuesday said, in an obvious reference to the suspension of U. S. aid, that the Laotian government of Premier Prince Boun Oum cannot be coerced into negotiating a coalition regime with the rival Communist-backed prices of Laos.

Group To Study Pentagon 'Muzzling'

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara Tuesday appointed a committee of prominent Americans to study the Pentagon's troops education program and propose improvements.

He acted in advance of a Senate investigation of alleged "Muzzling" of military men, the Defense Department's programs for educating troops and the participation of military men in seminars on cold war problems.

Student Mobs Rampage Through Algiers

ALGIERS — Student mobs rampaged through the streets of Algiers and Oran Monday during a two-hour general strike. A security force of 20,000 soldiers prevented major violence.

The strike was ordered by the underground secret army organization OAS in support of Algiers' doctors who staged a walkout to protest police incursions into hospitals. The OAS has pledged to keep Algeria French.

Carolina Debaters Honored

Three Carolina debaters were among the nine students cited for excellence in the debate at the annual Atlantic Coast Conference tournament at Duke last weekend.

Bill Imes, Haywood Clayton and Max Armstrong were the winners from North Carolina, receiving more certificates of excellence than any other school.

Twenty-four debaters represented Duke, Wake Forest, University of North Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, University of South Carolina, and Washington and Lee.

Negative Second

In team competition, Imes and Clayton tied for second in the negative division and the affirmative team, composed of Armstrong and Jeffrey Lawrence, tied for third.

A tournament was also held for novices, in which Charles Heatherly and Kellis Parker on the affirmative and George Carson and Roy Kirk on the negative placed third in their respective divisions.

Coach Donald Springen announced that Carolina will serve as host for the annual tournament to be held next January.

IN CELESTIAL IDENTIFICATION

Planetarium Training 7 Astronauts

By JOHN KOURI

America's seven astronauts have been instructed and trained in celestial identification four times since Feb., 1960, by Morehead Planetarium technicians.

A. J. Jenzano, director of the Planetarium, said technicians John C. Brittain and James W. Gates built a simulated capsule for use in the training program. The capsule, which reproduced the exact viewing area as in a real capsule, was placed in the Planetarium chamber.

Each astronaut took turns in making an orbit in the chamber guiding the capsule by manual controls built into the simulated capsule. Orbiting in the chamber will help the astronaut in recognizing celestial bodies and in guiding his capsule by the stars if the need arises.

"Only Way"

Jenzano said "In orbit a good scientific observer must be able to check his instruments against a reference in order to know where he is. Should the instruments fail, the astronaut's only way to determine his location is by recognizing celestial objects."

By the study of the stars the astronaut can ttell if his instru-

(Continued on Page 3)

SPACEBORNE — A. F. Jenzano, director of the Morehead Planetarium, demonstrates the use of the planetarium's astronaut-testing device. The seven American astronauts have used UNC's planetarium as an instruction base four times since Feb., 1960.

— Photo by Jim Wallace

Professor Speaks On Moscow

Nicholas Kazarinoff, professor of Mathematics at the University of Michigan who recently spent a semester as an exchange professor at Moscow State University, will speak to the Computation Center Seminar at 4 p.m. Wednesday. His subject will be "Mathematics at Moscow State University, the Stoklov Institute, and the Computing Center of the Academy of Sciences."

While in Moscow, he attended Professor Pontriagin's seminar and worked closely with Dr. A. P. Eoshov in editing in English language translation of several Soviet works on automatic programming theory.

Professors Family

At 8 in 265 Phillips Hall, he will speak informally on "An American Professor and his family in the Soviet Union."

Prof. Kazarinoff, who was accompanied in Moscow by his wife and three children, will speak about problems of housing, schools and general relations with the Russian people. The public is invited to attend the 8 p.m. speech.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 10, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 74

Co-Signers

There is a remarkably dissimilarity in the ways different people sign their names.

Some signatures are written in a firm, sure, masculine script, some with a flourish, some with a dainty Some are scrawled carelessly, making them hard to decipher. Such signatures, often, have little in commfemininity that suggests charm. mon. But in Chapel Hill many of them do. They turn up regularly on the bottom of checks that aren't worth the paper they're written on.

We had occasion to examine a fistful of such checks recently pulled from a cash register drawer by a Chapel Hill merchant. We had asked about bad checks. "Bad checks? I get a bunch like this one every week — most of them are made good, but I get far too many of them."

So, apparently, do a lot of merchants in Chapel Hill. Ninety bad checks on an average day turn up in the two local banks . . . written, most of them, by students. Over $1,000 each day.

* * *

True, most of the names that appear at the bottom of the checks belong to students. Students write them, students pay the fines and get the sentences, students consciously, irresponsibly carelessly, write most of the bad checks that the banks receive day in and day out .Fr this winking at responsibility, students pay the toll in fines, bank assessments and Honor Council trials. This is as it should be. The blame for the writing of bad checks lie smost heavily with the writer. It is his carelessness and irresponsibility that should carry the weight of whatever punishment is necessary.

* * *

But just as any person is the sum of his experiences, his attitudes are the sum of his influences. Students who sign their names to bad checks have help in learning to push the pen.

Banks urge students to "pay by check," but refuse to accept any responsibility for those that bounce Merchants accept checks willingly, content in the knowledge that parents will underwrite the debt. Both the merchants and the banks are more interested in protecting their income than forcing students to use accounts sensibly.

* * *

They coddle and pamper students rather than making it clear that conscious and continued writing of bad checks will not be glossed over.

Rather than levying bookkeeping charges for frequent bad creck writers, banks should close the accounts. Merchants, after adequate notice, should immediately turn bad checks over to authorities, who in turn, should dole out stiff fines for those who have obviously and consciously refused t settle their accounts.

* * *

The University administration, on the other hand, has neither the responsibility nor the perogative to act on bad checks. It is not the duty of the Office of Student Affairs to interfere in a student's mismanagement of his bank account. Collection of debts is not a part of its obligation to the student, nor to the merchants and banks.

* * *

The University's part in handling bad check cases has too often contributed t othe attitude that a bad check is relatively unimportant — just a debt that was made quite honestly . . . . the check was just an I. O. U.

Many of the names appearing on the sheaf of bad checks we looked over recently did belong to students. But there was also the unseen, but unmistakeably evident, signature of the judges, the banks, the merchants and the University.

Student attitudes are to blame. But there are reasons for those attitudes, too.

Urban Affairs

President Kennedy's plan to create a single cabinet-level Department of Urban Affairs continues to meet with strong opposition from most conservatives, many southerners and practically all rural politicians in Congress despite the fact that seven Americans out of 10 live in areas blighted by slums, crowded schools and inadequate streets.

This is the gist of news stories that continue to appear in newspapers throughout the country.

The reason for the opposition? Fear of increased government control in what many regard as "local problems," disdain for welfare programs and—from the southerners—opposition to the expected appointment of a Negro, Federal Housing Commissioner Robert C. Weaver, to the new cabinet post if it is created.

* * *

It seems to us that when these "local problems" have defied any real solution by the cities themselves, there is little reasonable basis for refusing government assistance. The problem of corwded cities has become an increasingly serious one in the past few years, so serious that it has exceeded local bounds and entered the realm of national affairs. And to label the prorankest kind of Goldwaterism. Slum posal as a welfare program is the clearance, city planning, adequate school systems—these are tools of progress, not part of a welfare program.

The Daily Tar Heel

WAYNE KING
Editor

MARGARET ANN REYNDS
Associate Editor

LLOYD LITTLE
Executive News Editor

BILL HOSS
Managing Editor

GARY BLANCHARD
Assistant Editor

NANCY BAER, LINDA CRAVOTTA—Feature Editors
HARRY W. LLOYD.....Sports Editor
DAVID WYRONG.....Subscription Manager
JIM EBER, JR.....Circulation Manager
ED DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
JIM WALLACE.....Photography Editor

TIM BURNETT
Business Manager

MIKE MATHEWS.....Advertising Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1870. Subscription rates: $4.00 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

3 New Vintage Books Offer Variety

★ ★ ★

US In World Affairs Has Unified Theme, Intelligent Slant

THE UNITED STATES IN WORLD AFFAIRS 1960. By Richard P. Stebbins. Vintage paperback, $1.45.

"A basic goal for each American is to achieve a sense of responsibility as broad as his world-wide concerns and as compelling as the dangers and opportunities he confronts."

Thus President Eisenhower's Commission on National Goals instructed the American people in November, 1960. By that time the nation had seen with great anguish how great its "responsibility" was to be in coming years. The "Spirit of Camp David" had transformed into post-summit pessimism. Africa was in chaos, Red China advanced in the Far East, and "Fidelismo" was gaining new converts in Latin America. This is the picture painted by Richard Stebbins's The United States in World Affairs 1960, a publication of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Stebbins's book deals primarily not with the European situation, not with NATO relationships, nor even directly with the East-West power struggle, but with the effect of these on the underdeveloped countries.

Chapter titles are indicative of the emphasis: "The YEAR of Africa," "The Inter-American SYSTEM" . . . Always the underlying theme was the so-called battle for men's minds. Prime Minister Macmillan expresses the relation of the Struggle as it concerns Africa, "The growth of national consciousness in Africa is a political fact and we must accept it as such . . . If we cannot do so, we may imperil the precarious balance of East and West . . ."

(Mr. Stebbins, by writing a book which was outdated before it is printed (Oct. '61), took a considerable risk. One of his major errors of foresight (in common with most other observers who were not in on the Central Intelligence Agency's shenanigans) concerned Castro's continual accusations in 1960 that a U. S. invasion of Cuba was imminent. Stebbins called this phophecy a "hackneyed procedure.")

THE UNITED STATES IN WORLD AFFAIRS 1960 is mediocre history, written from an intelligent slant insufficiently developed. The book's most admirable characteristic was its almost unified theme—East-West struggle in Africa, Latin America, Asia—which helped pull together the diverse events of 1960.

—Jim Clotfelter

"Always Glad To See Somebody In There Pitching"

4 Contemporary Plays, Edited By Cerf, Perform Analysis On Today's US Mores

FOUR CONTEMPORARY AMERICAN PLAYS
Edited by Bennet Cerf
Vintage Paperback. $1.45

A new collection of four contemporary American plays edited by Bennet Cerf could almost be termed a scriptwritten sociological study.

Performing the analysis on modern American mores are four competent literary "psychologists": Paddy Chayefsky, contributing "The Tenth Man", Lorraine Hansberry, with "A Raisin In The Sun," Lillian Hellman, author of "Toys In The Attic," and Saul Levitt, playwright of "The Andersonville Trial."

* * *

EACH OF THE four plays, regardless of its setting in time and place, draws a meaningful parallel to a modern theme. "The Tenth Man" shows a young man's love for a mentally ill girl and their struggle against old fashioned, mystical notions of how to deal with demons that possess the bodies of others. It is an unusual and appealing story, combining the right amounts of big city loneliness-in-a-crowd (the setting is New York) with the proper amount of old-world religious mysticism. The result keeps readers floating in a world between reality and fantasy.

Chayefsky exploded out of a typical Bronx boyhood with the successes "Marty," "Bachelor Party," "Middle of The Night," and "The Catered Affair." Cerf introduces him as "television's greatest gift to the legitimate theatre" because Chayefsky's TV scripts, directed by such able producers as Garson Kanin and Tyrone Guthrie, later became plays and motion pictures. "Marty" took an Academy Award and his first original screenplay, "The Goddess" won the Critic's Prize at the 1958 Brussels Film Festival.

"Toys In The Attic" is a masterpiece of character study. Author Lillian Hellman must have known two aging matrons like Anna and Carrie Bernier when she was a girl in New Orleans. The sisters' speech and their coquettish mannerisms are too subtly perfect for mere fiction.

Lillian Hellman's first stage hit—"The Children's Hour" — came in 1943. Since then, a series of six successes, including "Watch On The Rhine" and "The Autumn Garden" have assured her Broadway reputation as a master of personality-revealing dialogue.

* * *

"THE ANDERSONVILLE Trial," by Saul Levitt, has recently had a striking parallel in the trial of Adolf Eichmann. Although the play was first produced in December of 1959, Mr. Levitt may as well have been writing the script for the Eichman trial.

The powerful and suspenseful play deals with the same concepts of military privilege and necessity. In the summer of 1865 Henry Wirz was tried by a Federal court in Washington D. C. for "criminal conspiracy to destroy the lives of the soldiers of the United States in violation of the laws and customs of war."

The further indictments of Wirz, who had been in charge of the Confederate Prison Camp at Andersonville, Georgia, read very much like the list of charges that started Eichmann's ordeal: ". . . . did keep in barbarously close confinement Federal soldiers, up to the number of forty thousand, without adequate shelter . . . did not provide the prisoners of war with sufficient food, clothing or medical care . . . used bloodhounds to hunt down, seize, and mangle escaping prisoners of war . . . by his own hand he brought about the murder of 13 prisoners . . ."

The tense trial that follows brings home very emphatically the question of when an officer should follow orders from his superiors and when he must follow the dictates of his own conscience.

* * *

THE FOURTH STORY of the collection, "A Raisin In The Sun", is certainly the most poignent and probably the one our society should be most concerned with.

An average Negro family living on Chicago's Southside has recently received ten thousand dollars upon the death of a grandfather. Just as they make the decision to move into a better (but previously all-white) neighborhood, they are duped out of the insurance money by a fast-talking con man. The theme of the play, though, is not the dramatic move into a hostile neighborhood, but the family's struggle for some affluence, some dignity for themselves. The sister wants a good enough education to become a doctor. The father wants a small business of his own. The grandmother wants a home where her grandson will have a lawn instead of a gutter for a front yard. The mother merely wants to feed and clothe her children decently. Universal desires — exploding with tension because of the restrictions on the dream.

Lorraine Hansberry has written a painful truth that was brought to the stage so successfully in 1959 by Sidney Poitier. The drama's search for happiness parallels the poem by Langston Hughes:

What happens to a dream deferred?
Does it dry up
Like a raisin in the sun?
Or fester like a sore—
And then run?
Does it stink like rotten meat?
Or crust and sugar over—
Like a syrupy sweet?
Maybe it just sags
Like a heavy load.
Or does it explode?

CHRIS FARRAN

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

On Pay Phones

I was delighted on seeing the newly remodeled Pine Room yesterday with the new stoves, serving lines, and booths. However, I saw a point on which disturbed me, the fact of pay phones. After a couple of days of normally putting it off, I sat down and called the phone company, and talked with a nice lady who explained that because of some young men's destructions the damages were necessitating charges on local calls.

The flood of this has only so far reached the Pine Room, Lenior Hall, and the Library. It may reach your and my dorm in a few weeks making it necessary to pay for all local calls. So let's think it over the next time our girl says "no" for the coming big weekend and calmly go down to the gym to work that fire off there.

Yours truly,
JIMMY WEEKS

Malraux's Temptation Of West Brilliantly Alive & Expressed

THE TEMPTATION OF THE WEST
By Andre Malraux
Vintage paperback. 95c

The Temptation of the West was first published in 1926 in French and has been translated into English for the first time. It is a series of letters between a young European traveling in China and a young Chinese travelling in Europe, which contrasts the eastern sense of life with that of the west in an attempt to comprehend the reason for what both of them feel to be a crisis in their own cultures.

The germs of the crisis are found in the west. The east has only been contaminated by association. One of the reasons which Ling, the young Chinese intellectual, discovers from his observations has become one of the dominant themes of contemporary western literature. He expresses it by the following proposition:

"at the core of European man, ruling the important movements of his life, is a basic absurdity."

Malraux has set this off by italics so that it is more than just an easterners view of the west, it is also a westerners view of himself.

This absurdity, A.D., the European, writes is the result of a "hopeless contradiction" at the core of western civilization:

"This conflict between the thinker and his thought, between the European and his civilization or his reality, between the indiscriminate consciousness and its expression in the everyday world through everyday means—I find it in every aspect of contemporary life.

Sweeping away facts and, finally, itself, this spirit of contradiction trains our consciousness to give way and prepares us for the metallic realms of the absurd."

* * *

IT IS THE INEVITABLE frustration of trying to explain the irrational rationally. God is dead and reason reigns in his place, but reason breaks down; and if reason is dead then man is dead also, for it is reason which has formed the image of western man.

The western intellect, which seeks to define man apart from the universe, issued to direct action in order to achieve identity. Malraux cites the struggle of the rational with the emotional in Greek Art which culminated in the Classical emphasis on the idealized individual. Man was the measure of all things, even the gods. Christianity strengthened this conception by creating a god who encompassed all yet loved each separately, a god who even became man. Western civilization is built on the idea of the individual.

* * *

EASTERN MAN is not driven by an obsession for an individual identity. He does not wish to define his existence but experience it. His intellect is used to direct contemplation in order to achieve serenity.

The serenity that comes from experiencing the universe in its entirety, accepting a fragmentary awareness in order to be in harmony with the universe. However, Ling sees his people tempted by the power of the west. He seeks the secret of its vitality which his people envy, yet discovering its source in contradiction, is disgusted by it.

A. D. writes of a conversation with Wang Loh, an old Chinese intellectual, who speaks ominously about the late fate of China. He says that the fall of Confucianism and the decline of the ancient culture has created a conflict in the minds of the Chinese. They envy the fruits of western civilization, its power, its possessions, its industrial accomplishments, but the ancient tradition has conditioned them otherwise so that they dispise the west at the same time they admire it.

"Innovation, accumulations money, territorial expansion, the construction of useless psychologies or allegories to interpret the universe, all that is vain, totally vain. We are incapable of becoming interested in ourselves, do you understand?"

And speaking of Chinese youth:

"There remains in them only the furious desire for destruction—wait and see."

Now in 1961, thirty years after this was written, a glance to the east makes this seem grimly prophetic.

This book, Malraux's first important work, is less an epistolary novel than a series of essays on culture. But the ideas are brilliantly alive and beautifully expressed with none of the pedantic dullness usually associated with philosophical essays. The letters record the anguish of two deeply concerned intellectuals whose ideas are "felt" with all the anger, the disgust ,the bitterness, the longing, the courage, and the hope of 20th century man.

—NEIL CLARK

Bad Checks Passed

(Continued from Page 1)

person's account from a special fund.

Under Federal law, however, the bank must pay or return a check within 24 hours. If the person is well known the bank often holds the check; however, in cases of students, who cannot easily be contacted, the bank usually returns the check to the merchant.

Both banks in tChapel Hill charge $1.50 to the person's account for each bad check. A number of merchants also charge up to $1.50 for bad checks.

FROM THE MERCHANTS

Mrs. Jean O'Daniel of the Chapel Hill Merchants Association, said her office has handled 20 bad checks since Nov. 6. In one case, a student had two worthless checks totalling $65. She added that she had heard of "many, many" checks that the merchants had cleared up themselves.

"The major cause is insufficient funds," she said. "Second is closing the account and third is the actual mistake in address, names and so forth."

"The merchants are complaining that there have been more and more bad checks lately."

"Merchants can take these cases to the Justice of the Peace the day they receive the check, but most of them first attempt to locate the student. However, the merchants have definitely been going to court over these cases more and more than in years past."

"I think a lot of students don't feel responsible to the town and some simply can't keep their account straight. They are so used to being pampered by their parents' handling their acounts that they don't know what to do.

"I don't think most of them do it on purpose."

FROM THE UNIVERSITY

Senior Eddie Manning, chairman of the Student Credit Commission (formerly the Bad Check Committee), has sent out about 10 notices to students every two weeks this semester.

"However, "there seems to be fewer bad checks than in past years. So far this year I haven't had to send out a second notice. Either the merchants are handling them themselves or the students are paying them."

"After a second notice, which would probably carry a threat of court action, I would go to see the student personally. Usually there is just an error in keeping track of the account."

"In case a student refused to pay a bad check the Dean of Student Affairs would be notified, who has the power of holding back a diploma or grades."

"Most of these cases are just that the student didn't keep accurate records and they don't realize the consequences of passing a bad check."

What are the consequences?

William Long, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs, said a student can be brought before the honor council if he passes a large enough check or repeatetdly cashes bad checks.

"The last case was two and a half years ago when a student went before the council for a bad check and received indefinite probation. Of course, we have brought actual forgers before the council.

"I don't think there has been a large increase in bad check cases recently, at least judging from the cases coming through this office."

FROM THE COURTS:

B. J. Howard, clerk of Chapel Hill Recorder's Court. "We once had a great traffic in bad checks. Up until several years ago, the court generally issued a fine, plus the amount of the check. However, not long ago, Judge (William S.) Stewart decided the court was not going to be a bad check cllector and he decided only to fine the person.

"In the past year, we've issued a few warrants, but usually when someone finds out that a warrant is out for his arrest, he comes in and pays the fine."

Perry at Central Carolina Bank viewed stricter legal enforcement "only if it becomes necessary. Nine times out of ten the student doesn't have that sort of money anyway."

Cherry at the Bank of Chapel Hill said, "We feel that we should do our own collecting. We prefer to work out these things through the university and with the students. I personally frown on the banks becoming mixed up in a legal tangle."

Most of the cases involving bad checks are handled through the Justice of the Peace, Paul Robertson. He issues the arrest warrant and it is served on the person by one of the three sheriff's deputies in this area.

Robertson said, "One of the main reasons I feel this has happened is that the courts handling these cases, including my own, have been too lenient. Usually the bad check case is settled with the verdict: prayer for judgment continued with the payment of the check and the cost of court which are eight dollars.

"This is being used too much. It is mainly due to, I feel public demands that are adhered to too often by the courts. In my opinion the 30-day sentence on the roads (which is the maximum sentence) should be used.

"The public too seldom wants this because they are interested only in getting the money. I also feel that the banks have encouraged this by advertitsing and urging people to pay their bills by check.

"There are so many young people who write checks promiscuously and then they get the idea that they can do it and get by with it.

"Usually, I let the person off with paying the check and court costs. However sometimes I have given 30-days of hard labor, just to teach him a lesson, and then suspend the sentence on payment of the check and costs.

"It is an evident fact that there are a lot of young people getting into college who did not get the proper training and discipline from their parents.

"The University doesn't have a class in such things as this. That has to be learned at home. It's more a matter of parental delinquency than juvenile delinquency in my opinion."

Get Better Grades With Study Aids

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 East Franklin Street

Chapel Hill

Open Till 10 P.M.

CLASSIFIED ADS

$75.00 MONTHLY FOR STUDENT who qualifies as roommate and assistant to handicapped senior for spring semester, 1962. If interested, contact Miss Worth, Student Aid Office.

SCIENCE ADDS YEARS TO LIFE; life insurance adds living to years. For a sound program, call on a Northwestern Mutual agent. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., CLU Telephone 942-6966.

FOR RENT — LOG CABIN PRIvately located in country—Perfect for Picnic Parties. Phone 968-2945, nights.

IMMEDIATE OPENING FOR two women for part time work at our local office. Good starting pay with possibility of advancement to full time. Call 942-6562 for interview, or apply office number 6 Dawson Building 230½ W. Franklin Street. 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

SUMMER in EUROPE??

—KLM ROYAL DUTCH AIRLINES & IRA WINN present—an unusual 70 day itinerary SPECIALLY planned for the mature and ADVENTUROUS, for those who dislike being herded and who seek ample leisure time:

Visiting W. Europe from Scandinavia to Athens GREECE and from Ireland & Spain east to communist Czechoslovakia & Yugoslavia. MUCH leisure time (no rush stops!) — MANY sports activities (Grindelwald, Switzerland; Black Forest, Germany; Slovenia, Yugoslavia; French Riviera) & MANY cultural programs (music festivals, UNESCO, Florence etc.) VERY limited groups—train, ship & plane between cities—accent on time to meet the people—A LUXURY ITINERARY IN THE MEDIUM PRICE CLASS—WRITE FOR BROCHURE:

L&M Travel Service, 1151 So. Robertson Blvd. Los Aangeles 35

DAILY CROSSWORD

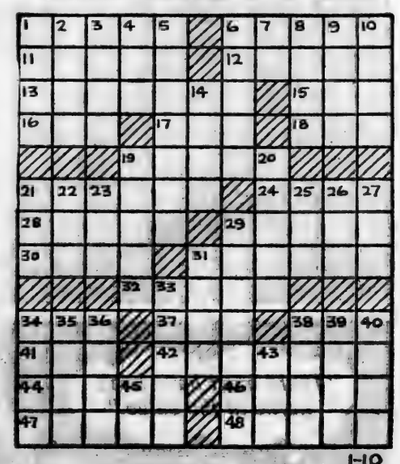
ACROSS

1. Bottomless gulf
6. Pulls
10. Fresh-water fish
12. To fray
13. Electric ray fish
15. Miss Claire
16. Solemn wonder
17. To trouble
18. Girl's nickname
19. To melt ore
21. Forms
24. Java tree
28. Listened to
29. Old-womanish
30. Extra (Scot.)
31. Inborn
32. Savory
34. Belgian town
37. Guido's note
38. Old Chinese kingdom
41. Even (poet.)
42. Thoughtful
44. Spanish dance
46. Roman magistrate
47. Precipitous
48. Dinner course

DOWN

1. Leaf-cutting ant
2. Forehead
3. Old times
4. Take supper
5. Emitted vapor
6. Comical
7. Sun god
8. Greedy
9. Factor
10. Thick slice
14. Perishes
19. European herring
20. Mackerel-like fish
21. Japanese measure
22. Feminine pronoun
23. Rhine tributary
25. Polynesian herb
26. High (mus.)
27. Papal court
29. Scorpio's brightest star
31. —— of Wight
33. Famous fabulist
34. Places
35. Fuel
36. —— of Cleves
38. To dirty
39. Hawaiian dance
40. Employed
43. Mrs. Cantor
45. Earth goddess

Yesterday's Answer

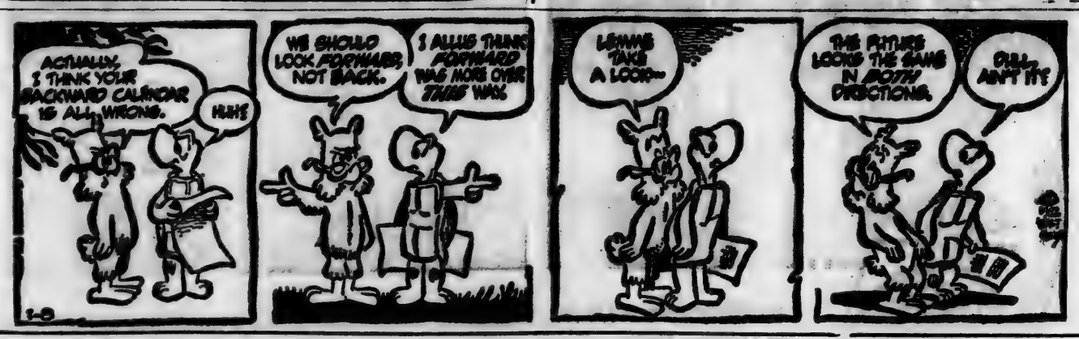


1-10

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST.

STARTS FRIDAY

POGO



PEANUTS

YRC Meeting To Feature B. Patterson

Bill Patterson, South Eastern Region College Chairman of the Young Republicans' clubs, will speak to the campus YRC concerning the state Young Republican convention.

The convention will be held in Greensboro Feb. 2-3 at the King Cotton Hotel.

The YRC meeting will be Monday, Jan. 15, at 7:30 p.m. in 210 Manning Hall. Club President Earl Baker said that the convention would be a "good opportunity for any Young Republican to learn more about politics, and have fun doing it." For that reason he urged all members to attend the Monday meeting, and "if possible to plan to be in the UNC delegation to the state convention."

Several resolutions have been proposed for consideration by the YRC. Among these are a resolution to improve representation of the student body in the National Student Association and a censure of the North Carolina General Assembly for "gerrymandering" Rep. Charles Jonas out of his district.

Astronauts

(Continued from Page 1)

ments are functioning properly, thus knowing if the capsule is in the right place during orbit.

In the event the conventional devices fail, the stars will serve as a guide so that the astronaut will re-enter and land in the pre-destined area, ready to be picked up.

Prestige Cited

As to why the National Aeronautical and Space Association (NASA) chose the Morehead Planetarium for this training, Miss Gail Johnson said "the prestige, background and convenience of the University and the enlarged and modernized Planetarium attracted NASA."

Chem II Students want to score high on your final exams?

Special tutoring service gives you a concise, simple explanation of the exam essentials.

Call 942-6439

Carrier Current

Tuesday

6:00—Dinner Hour
6:55—Campus News
7:00—Dutch Light Music
7:15—Perspective 61
7:30—World of the Mind
8:00—Hill Hall Concert
10:00—Ten O'Clock Report
10:10—Consolidated University News
10:15—Labor Answers Your Questions
10:40—Quiet Hours
10:55—News
11:00—Campus News
11:05—Quiet Hours
11:55—Preview
12:00—Sign off

Wednesday

6:00—Dinner Hour
6:55—Campus News
7:00—Songs of France
7:15—Impetus
7:30—Jazz from Canada
7:45—Lincoln Story
8:00—Masterwork
10:00—Ten O'Clock Report
10:10—Consolidated University News
10:15—French Press Review
10:30—Some Came to Sing
10:55—News
11:00—Campus News
11:05—Quiet Hours
11:55—Preview
12:00—Sign off

Manned Rocket To Be 27-Story Monster Ship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency said Tuesday that the rocket which will hurl the first Americans toward the moon will be a 27-story monster generating 7.5 millions pounds of thrust at liftoff.

Known for the time being as the advanced Saturn, it will have five times more booster power than the early Saturn with its 1.5 million pounds of thrust.

It also will be 20 times more powerful than the Atlas, the largest rocket now used for U. S. space flights, and seven to 10 times as powerful as Russia's current boosters.

In announcing details of the advanced Saturn, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration NASA in effect confirmed elimination of three intermediate versions of the Saturn bearing the drawing board designations of C-2, C-3, and C-4.

The early Saturn, the booster stage of which was successfully tested at Cape Canaveral, Fla., last fall, is C-1. The advanced Saturn is C-5.

The advanced Saturn's first flight test from the Cape is expected in 1965.

Openings & Interviews

According to the Placement Service, the following companies will recruit on campus next week:

Monday, Jan. 15, 1962
Social Security Administration.
Riegel Textile Corp.
Carolina Enterprises, Inc.
Seaboard Citizens National Bank.

Tuesday, Jan. 16, 1962
General Telephone Company of the Southeast.
Roadway Express.
National Carbon Company.

Wednesday, Jan. 17, 1962
Vick Chemical Company.
Agency for International Development.

Thursday, Jan. 18, 1962
Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.
Carolina Power & Light Co.
State Capital Life Insurance Co.
Kavanaugh-Smith.

Friday, Jan. 19, 1962
Dan River Mills.

Carolina

TODAY ONLY

ALL THEIR MORALS, THEIR PASSIONS, THEIR LOVES AND DESIRES. THEIR INFIDELITIES.. BARED!

"THERE IS TOO MUCH NUDISM IN OUR MARRIAGE!"

3 STRANGE LOVES

...the offbeat story of a strange relationship...

Sharyn Lynn's

JANUARY SALE

WOOL SKIRTS ..... as low as $4.99
Straight and pleated. Values to $12.98

SWEATERS ..... as low as $3.99
Slipovers nad cardigans. Values to $12.98

CREWNECK CARDIGANS one group as low as $5.99

All Fall DRESSES ... as low as $7.00
Wools and cottons. Values to $24.98

CAR COATS ..... as low as $7.00

Flannel PAJAMAS and GOWNS ..... $2.99 to $3.99
Values to $6.00

All WOOL SLACKS ..... REDUCED

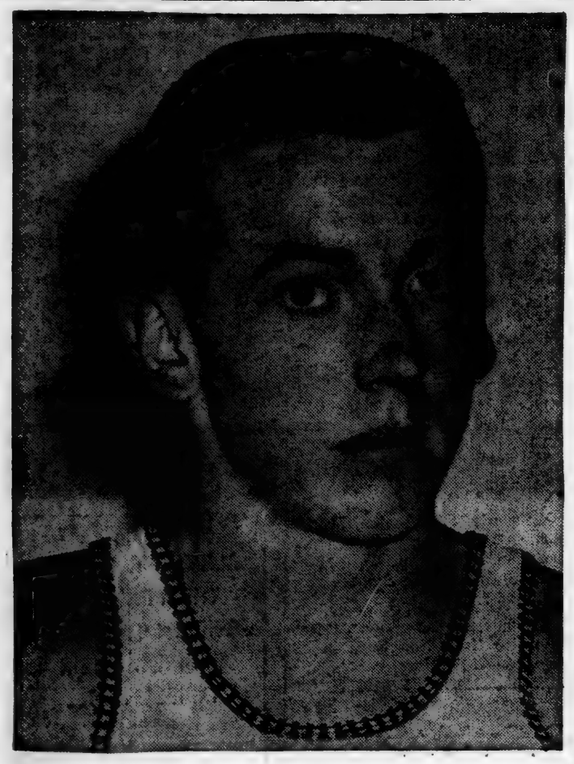
Sharyn Lynn Shoppe

135 East Franklin

With League Lead At Stake, NC Invades Wake

Daily Tar Heel Sports

Page Four — Wednesday, January 10, 1962



BILLY, THE KID — Six-four center Bill Cunningham, the top scorer on the UNC freshman team, hit a season high of 31 Monday night as the Tar Babies topped State, 73-70. Cunningham, who blocked several shots, connected on 13 of his own 19 tries.

Deacons Hold Second Place With 3 Wins

By HARRY W. LLOYD

North Carolina and Wake Forest collide tonight in a first magnitude battle that will have all the star gazers of the ACC peering toward Winston-Salem. The game begins at 8 o'clock following a freshman preliminary.

The winner of tonight's battle will automatically take over the top spot in the league. Carolina is now sitting on the crest with a 2-0 mark, and Wake is right behind with a 3-1 record. The Deacons have lost only to Maryland in league play.

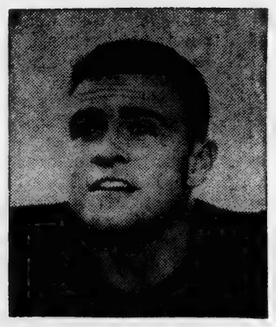
Conference astrologers will also have their eyes open to see if Carolina is really fast enough and accurate enough to compete on an even level with big, talented teams like the Baptists, who were rated third in the nation before losing a couple of surprises early this year.

The Deacons still have some performers that will keep them in the thick of things. Six-nine all-American Len Chappell is scoring at a 26.7 average, and guard Bill Packer has a 12.9 mark. Guard Dave Weidemann and sophomore Frank Christie are averaging 8.4 and 7.4 respectively.

Carolina coach Dean Smith and his players will be on the lookout for Bob Wollard, a 6-11 bundle of arms and legs who has come on fast in recent games and now has a 5.7 mark.

Carolina starters will be Jim Hudock at center, Bryan McSweeney and Mike Cooke at forward, and Larry Brown and Don Walsh at guard. Center Jim Donohue and forwards Art Katz and Dieter Krause are the top reserves.

JOE CRAVER



WARD MARSLENDER

Two native Tar Heels will captain the 1962 North Carolina football team. Center Joe Craver of Shelby and halfback Ward Marslender of Washington were named co-captains at the annual football banquet Saturday night.

Jim LeCompte, a senior guard who cocaptained the 1961 eleven, was elected by his teammates to win the E. Carrington Smith award as the "Most Valuable Player." LeCompte was an All-ACC performer at his position and tied with Duke's Art Gregory for the Jacobs Blocking Trophy, coveted award for the top blocker in the conference. Le Compte has been drafted by the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League.

Ray Farris, senior quarterback, won the William F. Prouty Memorial award as an outstanding athlete, student and participant in extra-curricular activities.

Fullback Bob Elliott, also a senior, won the Educational Foundation Award as the team's most outstanding football player.

Monogram To Induct

Some 25 athletes who won letters for fall sports here will be initiated into the Monogram Club tomorrow night, said Joe Davies, club president, yesterday. The club will also map plans for an alumni football game to be held during spring practice this year.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 in the club room.

Freshmen Squeak By State, 73-70

By HARRY W. LLOYD

The Carolina freshman basketballers opened a heavy week of work at State Monday night by losing a 19-point lea dand then coming back to defeat the Wolflets in the final minute, 73-70. Guard Bill Brown converted four consecutive foul tosses at the end of the game to sew up the contest for the Tar Babies.

The Tar Babies moved to a 45-27 halftime lead after hitting on a fantastic 74 per cent of their field goal tries in the opening period. They pushed their advantage to 48-29 before coach Lou Pucillo's cakers found the range and outscored the favored visitors by 27-7 in a twelve minute period.

Center Billy Cunningham and guard Brown combined scoring talents in the last six minutes of play to pull the game out of the fire and give the Carolina freshmen their sixth win of the year without a loss.

Cunningham, the 6-4½ Brooklyn boy, was the offensive pacemaker for the Tar Babies. The freckled sharpshooter poured in 31 points on an assortment of layups, jump shots, outside sets, and wheeling underhand pivot maneuvers that left the State defenders baffled and the small crowd in the Coliseum uncomfortably entertained.

The Carolina yearlings, coached by Ken Rosemond, agained opened by displaying an uncanny shooting eye. At the outset, Bill Brown hit on a pair of easy layups to tie the score at 4-4. Butch Hassell canned an outside jumper and Hale of State hit— and both teams had tried and made three shots each. Brown hit again before Jay Neary missed a driving layup. After Neary's miss, the first of the night for Carolina, the UNC boys hit on seven straight shots. When Cunningham hit to make the score 22-12, the Tar Babies had hit on 11 of 12 field goal tries.

In the entire first half, they made good on 20 of 27 tries, for their 74 per cent. At this point, Cunningham had 17, Ray Respess (who hit 4 of 4 from the floor during the game) had 9, Neary had 7, and Brown and Hassell had 6 each.

The Carolina defense fell apart, however, early in the second half. State center Charlie Grob, an oversized kid who only managed to score 3 points in the first half, poured in 17 points in the final 20 minutes on a series of close-in baskets. During one string, Grob, who hails from New Jersey, dropped in 13 of 17 points for State. Carolina was scoring four during this period.

With seven minutes left in the game, State took the lead at 56-55 on a Grob layup. The score was tied again at 58 all, before Carolina got eight straight on baskets by Cunningham, Richard Engle, Neary, and Cunningham again.

With the score at 69-66, Carolina, with 50 seconds left, Brown converted twice on a one and one try. Goodnight hit for State, and then Brown connected twice again for UNC. Tommy Mattocks of State put in the final points of the night.

In addition to Cunningham's 31, the Carolina scoring was led by Brown's 14 and Respess' 10. Respess, against the tight pressing defense, didn't try a shot in the second half.

Larry Worsley also had 20 for State.

In the final totals, Carolina hit on 30 of 46 shots from the floor for 65 per cent. Cunningham himself made good on 13 of 19.

Betas Play Dead, Lose 76-0 Game To Kap Sigs

By John Montague

A busy schedule which included 13 basketball games, 8 volleyball games, and 5 handball matches kicked off the 1962 Intramural Year on Monday. Highlighting the day's activity was the Kappa Sig Plummers-Beta Rinkydinks cage skirmish, in which the Rinkydinks had the dubious distinction of being shut out, 76-0. Young with 29 and Fearing with 24 set the scoring pace in the fiasco.

Henry Rogers pumped in 28 points in leading the PiKA Pandas to 38-37 squeaker over the DU Lakers. Brawley went on an 18-point scoring spree as the Sigma Chi Trolls dumped the Beta Quail, 42-11.

Other top scoring efforts of the day were turned in by McMillan, who hit for 17 as the Phi Kap Flashes won 32-18 over DKE Straf, and Gertz, scoring 14 in the TEP Tepids' 34-16 rout of the Kappa Psi Scrubs.

SAE won two matches in the In the opening round of the volleyball play-offs, Chi Phi and ATO each walked off with two victories, the latter also suffering a defeat. lead-off round of the handball tournament.

Here are the results of Monday's basketball games:

PiKA Pandas 38, DU Lakers 37.
Pi Lamb Polecats 2, SAE Studs 0 (forfeit).
Phi Delt Nads 22, Chi Phi Shorts 20.
Sigma Nu Maxericks 40, Sigma Chi Frogs 34.
Beta GL 70's 22, Kappa Psi Celtics 18.
TEP Tepids 34, Kappa Psi Scubs 16.
Phi Kap Flashes 32, DKE Straf 18.
ATO Rooters 44, DU Hawks 15.
Phi Delt Loads 2, PiKA Peaks 0, (forfeit).
DKE Whites 2, Phi Delt Squirrels 0 (forfeit).
Kappa Sig Plummers 76, Beta Rinkydinks 0.
Sigma Nu Riflemen 2, Phi Delt

Mermen Face Deacons, Too

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

The crack Carolina swimming team, undefeated in its first four meets, journeys to Winston-Salem this afternoon to take on the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest. The races will start at 4:00.

Coach Pat Earey, in anticipation of an easy victory, is taking only ten of the tankmen, (who have rolled to victories over VMI, Clemson, Duke and East Carolina) and is leaving behind ace sophomore ers Barry King, Bob Huffman, and

"I expect no trouble from Wake and think we are taking sufficient strength to win," says the amiable Irishman. "We have one more meet after this one to prepare for Florida, Maryland and North Carolina State. We are really pointing for them in that second week of February."

This afternoon, Earey wil start co-captain Bob Bilbro in the freestyle sprints, Art Merrill in the 220 Thompson Mann plus other start- free, and Frank Lea in the 440 free. Jim Mummaw will race in the 200 yard butterfly event while co-captain Bob Briggs and sophomore Bob Burns will line up in the 200 breastroke.

The New York Life Agent on your campus is a good man to know.

GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
(Over The Hub) Ph. 942-4358
New York Life Insurance Company

There's a Gorgeous
NEW PEANUTS BOOK
at the
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
OPEN TILL 10 P.M.

GOLF CITY'S 19th HOLE
MUSIC • DANCING
SANDWICHES • B - - R
ACROSS FROM HOWARD JOHNSONS OPEN 12-12

SALE CONTINUES

Julian's Men's Store Shop

SALE AT THE HUB
All our Fall and Winter Apparel is greatly reduced for this after Christmas Clearance Sale

SUITS ..... $39.99 up
SPORTCOATS 24.88 up
TOPCOATS ... 29.99 up
CAR COATS .. 12.88 up
DRESS SLACKS 7.88 up
CORDUROYS 4.99
DRESS SHIRTS ... 2.99
NAME BRANDS .. 3.99
SPORT SHIRTS 2.99 up
TIES ..... 1.44 to 1.88
SWEATERS ... 20% off
HATS 7.44
GLOVES ..... 20% off
SCARVES 2.99

Final Reductions AT THE HUB
103 E. Franklin St.
Ph. 942-1252

CRAMTIME
Your best chance of finding the study aid you need
The Book Exchange
Five Points DURHAM
We Buy & Sell All Books

Lady Milton Shirt Heaven At January Colossal Prices

Group Lady Milton shirts, mostly button-downs, some choir boys, formerly to $10.95 at amazing 1 for $2.99 or 3 for $8.50.

Other choir boy and button-down pullovers formerly to $6.95 at $4.99; $7.95 to $5.99; $8.95 to $6.99; $9.95 to 7.99; $10.95 to $8.99.

Give-a-way of 300 skirts, formerly to $20.00 at mere $5.99.

Many other drastic reductions

LADY MILTON SHOP
Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

Selections Unlimited During Milton's January Colossal

The biggest advantage of shopping at Milton's is that even in the midst of our sales, our stock doesn't get that picked over look. This is because our starting selections are four times as vast as our competitors, offering you by far the largest traditional stock found anywhere under one roof.

Group dirty buck leather lined shoes in following sizes only, 8A; 8B; 8½A; 9A; 9½A; 10B —cut from $16.96 to $10.00.

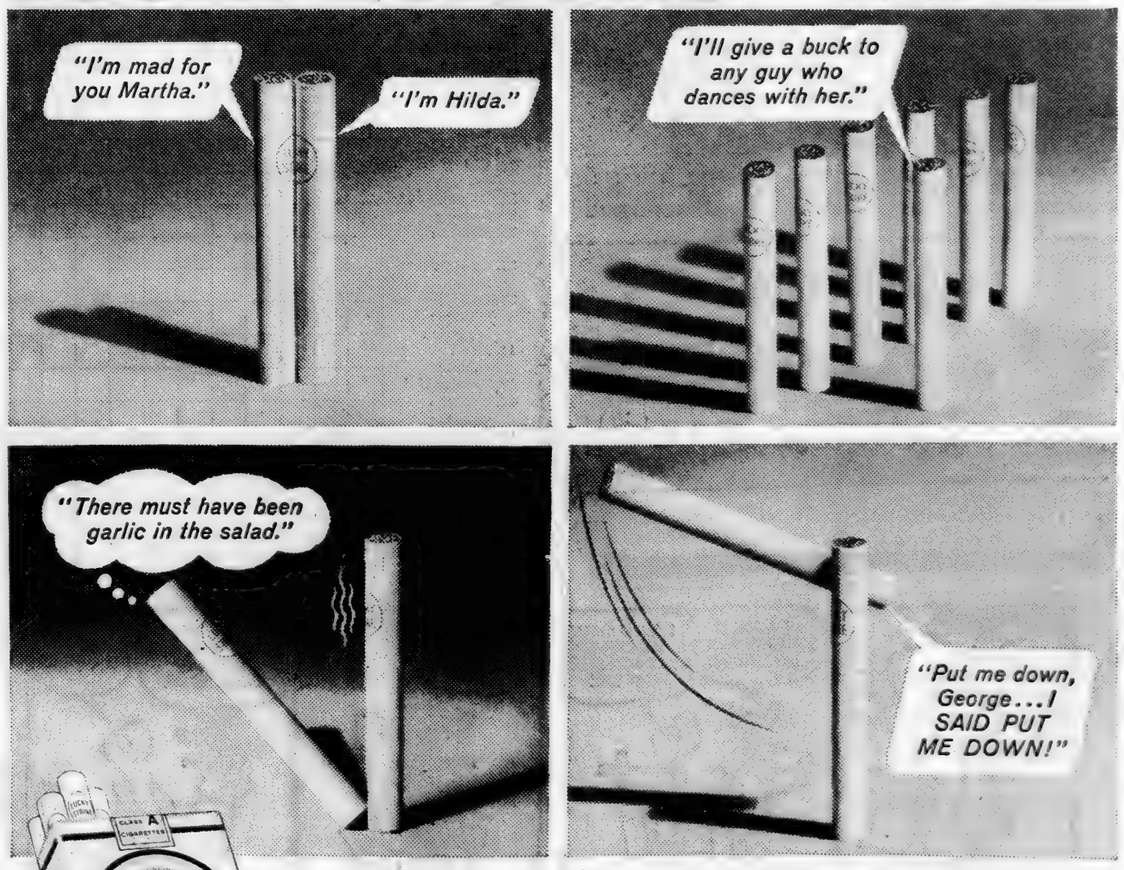
$21.50 leather lined Horween shell cordovans in following sizes—brown—8A; 8½A; 9A; 10A;—Black—8A; 8D; 8½E; 9A; 9D; 9½A; 10A; 10D; 11C; 11½A; 11½C; 12A; 12C—cut from $21.50 to $12.99

Try our famous English shoes during our January Colossal—all $20.00 grains now $17.99 and $22.95 cordovans and wing tip grains now $19.99.

Plenty of choice suits, sweaters, slacks, sport coats and all those items for good grooming.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

LUCKY STRIKE presents:
LUCKY PUFFERS
"AT THE PROM"



IF TOBACCO COULD TALK (and who is certain it can't?) it would beg to be placed in Luckies. However, we would turn a deaf ear. Only tobacco that can prove its worth will ever get in a Lucky. This may seem heartless—but it pays! Today, college students smoke more Luckies than any other regular. We'd never be able to make that statement if we listened to every slick-talking tobacco leaf that tried to get into Luckies.

CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change!

D.A.P.G.

Product of The American Tobacco Company — "Tobacco is our middle name"

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

World Court Decision
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Increasingly Cold,
Scattered Snow Flurries

Offices in Graham Memorial | THURSDAY, JANUARY 11, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

75

Amateur Exhibit Presented Here In Planetarium

By J. A. C. DUNN

F. Zane Kinn may not become a guest lecturer at the Morehead Planetarium. He is living in a little dream world at the moment, since his backyard in Danville, Virginia, turned into a home-grown Cape Canaveral, but he has a certain hesitation about professors.

He says he only has a high school education, and he can't see himself lecturing about rockets and space travel in the midst of experts on physics and chemistry and astronomy. He himself is a credit investigator for Sears Roebuck.

The reason Kinn could conceivably be lecturing at the Planetarium at all, experts or not, is that he has developed a space exhibit. At this point, instead of trying to interest people in the exhibit, Kinn is having trouble keeping up with the exhibit's meteoric progress before the public eye.

Six months ago Kinn began to put together a solar map for the benefit of students at Danville's John L. Berkley School. His son and two other boys caught the bug and joined him. The project snowballed. Six months later they had an exhibit comprised of about 50 pieces—models of airplanes from both World Wars, the first jet plane, the first rocket, the German V-1, a flying saucer, the latest spacecraft under development, and the original solar map. Commander Alen Shephard not only made headlines around the globe, he made Kinn's exhibit—in pictures and with a model of the Redstone rocket he rode.

Kinn barely had time to draw breath before both he and the exhibit were prominently established at the Berkley School, the exhibit being thoroughly gawked at, Kinn giving a two-part lecture.

Then he did the same thing at Robert E. Lee High School.

One of the things that astounded him most was that he held students spellbound. Another thing was that some of the students knew more about space and space paraphernalia than he did. When he made a mistake at Lee High and called the X-15 the U-2, one boy called him down. At Berkley School a first-grader walked up to a real missile Kinn had borrowed from the Air Force and described how it was assembled.

Correspondence with Morehead Planetarium director Tony Jenzano eventually resulted in the Kinn exhibit being brought to Chapel Hill on loan for three months.

Models of the Sidewinder missile and the Zuni rocket have been added to the exhibit by the University's NROTC unit.

The exhibit, entitled "Land, Sea, Air and Space," is on display in the Planetarium's South Science Exhibit Room, free of charge, daily from 1-5 and 7:30-10 p.m.; Sundays from 1-10 p.m.; and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Kinn has not yet been added to the exhibit in a lecturing capacity, despite assurances that chemistry and physics professors are not as current on space as their titles might imply.

—Communications Committee—

COMMUNICATIONS — The Communications Committee plans a campus-wide survey to determine if students want a Campus Entertainment Committee. Left-to-right the committee includes (first row) Robin Britt, Lyn Ogburn, John Garris, Jerry Hancock, Lindsay Raiford, Wilbur Ruth Young; (standing) Steve Read, Steve Nauheim, Chuck Neely, Marty Kruming, Dick Jones, Howard Cone.

Lack Of Space Not Reason For Students' Parking Woes

By CHRIS FARRAN

There is adequate parking space available it's just that students are often reluctant to take advantage of it.

That's the gist of what Chief of Campus Police Arthur Beaumont said yesterday in reference to the campus parking problem.

Many streets and lots near the center of the campus are overcrowded because students fail to une available space when it means a short walk to class, he said.

Beaumont emphasized, however, that cures to the problem will be available when the new dormitories—Craig and Ehringhaus—offer even large parking facilities.

Adjustment Problem

Much of the present parking problem, he said, is a simple matter of adjustment—the problem is a new one at Carolina. A few years ago, enrollment was much smaller and the percentage of cars was even smaller. The recent "population explosion" has meant a corresponding increase in the number of students who bring cars to school. And University planners are having a rough time keeping the pace.

There are other solutions, however. Plans are in the works to make the Bell Tower parking lot into a multi-level parking building; this would provide the campus with an easily-accessible parking lot with a capaiity that couldn't be taxet for many years to come.

Other Solutions

Another solution, more lucrative for the school althouih not quite as expansive, i s the five-ticket last fall. Under this rule, a student who accumolates five tickets or traffic violations in a single semester will have his car sent home. The rule itself has not claimed a great many victims but the threat of such a measure is a great deterrent to parking violators.

A third cure might be to initiate town and campus bus systems. Beaumont believes that this could greatly relieve the parking congestion. But Robert Foushee, of the Chapel Hill Parking Association, believes that people would not be willing to ride buses in a town the size of Chapel Hill. "They're just too expensive," he said. "Buses simply couldn't pay for themselves."

Planners at City Hall said the town is trying to acquire more of street parking space and may take over a lot now being leased to the Chapel Hill Merchants Association.

Status Symbols

But while all this juggling is going on in the city itself, the problem remains on the campus. Beaumont believes that students who really don't need cars and actually can't afford them bring autos anyway as a "status symbol." Every time a new building goes up, parking space is cut down. The influx of several thousand football fans on fall afternoons is a crisis that can be handled only because the Highway Patrol, the city police, and the Campus Police work so effectively together.

Despite the keen competition for parking space now, the future looks a little less crowded. New, wider access roads, the addition of several levels to the Bell Tower lot, and the realization by students that everyone can't squeeze downtown in the afternoons will help.

Until then, proper registration of cars and compliance with parking regulations are the surest, swiftest remedies for a needless problem.

Infirmary

Students in the infirmary yesterday were: Carolyn Platt, Jerry Stroud, Louis Yates, Barbara Brownfield, Martha Myers, Evelyn Hollandsworth, Dale Robison Benton McMillan, James Gerardi, Larry Windley, George Wynne, Carl Lundeen, Henry Morgan, James Fain, James Langdon, Fred Thompson, Richard McGovern, David Sapp, Douglas Reed, Stephen Dennis, William Taylor, Robert Deal.

Coates To Retire At End Of Spring

Albert M. Coates, director of the Institute of Government, will retire at the end of the spring semester.

Coates founded the Institute of Government in 1931 and has served as director since that time. He will continue his duties as a professor in the UNC School of Law.

Carolina Game Among Those Said Fixed In New Indictment

UNC's Feb. 17, 1960 basketball game with N. C. State was one of the ten games involved in the recent expose of game-fixing scandals.

Carolina won the game, played in Raleigh, 66-62.

An Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament game and a Dixie Classic contest were involved in the nationwide game-fixing scandal indictments returned Tuesday by the Wake County Grand Jury in Raleigh.

The indictments also mentioned a school, South Carolina, and one of its former players, Mike Callahan, not previously mentioned in the spreading scandal.

The grand jury returned 10 true bills indicting 10 men on a total of 65 bribery counts. Solicitor Lester Chalmers described them as participants in one of "the biggest gambling networks" in the nation.

It was charged that one game was fixed in each of the two big Raleigh tourneys — the Dixie Classic of 1959, and the Atlantic Coast Conference tourney of 1959.

The indictments listed 10 games involving North Carolina State College, from Dec. 5, 1959, to Jan. 7, 1961, as having been fixed. Four players were said to have agreed with the gamblers to shave points.

One of the 10 games listed in the indictments was the Wake Forest-N. C. State game played in Winston-Salem Dec. 5, 1959.

One of the indictments said Callahan was offered $1,000 to shave points in a game between South Carolina and N. C. State in the first round of the 1959 ACC tourney. Callahan was not indicted, but his name was mentioned in the true bill.

State won the game 75 to 72. Callahan scored 17 points, hitting on four of 13 field goal attempts and nine of nine free throws.

The indictments also charged that in a Dixie Classic game played Dec. 28, 1959, between N. C. State and Dayton, State player Don Gallagher was paid $1,000 to shave points, Dayton won 36-32.

Gallagher and three other former State players, Terry Litchfield, Anton Muehlbauer and Stan Niewierowski, had been mentioned previously in connection with the scandal. None was indicted.

Exam Schedule

By action of the faculty, the time of an examination may not be changed after it has been fixed in the schedule. Quizzes are not to be given in this semester on or after Monday, January 15, 1961

The Official Class Roll and Grade Report will be prepared by the Data Processing Section and forwarded to the departments prior to the examination period. As in the past, the original copy will be returned to the Office of Records and Registration, the second copy (canary) is to be retained by the department, and the third copy (goldenrod) is to be kept by the instructor.

Grade reports are to be handed in to the department office within 72 hours after the scheduled time of the final examination. The department chairman shall be responsible for recording receipt of each grade report (the Form DR-1 may be used for this) and for forwarding it promptly to the Office of Records and Registration. In unusual cases, if it is clearly needed, an extension of the time limit, preferably not to exceed 48 hours, may be approved by the department chairman or the dean of the school concerned. The Office of Records and Registration must be given notice of the delay. (Faculty Council, May 6, 1960.) Machine processing of grades makes it urgent that all grades be turned in on time.

All permits to take examinations to remove grades of "Exc. Abs." or "Cond." must be secured from the Office of Records and Registration prior to the exam. No students mav be excused from a scheduled examination except by the University Infirmary in case of illness or by his Dean in case of any other emergency compelling his absence.

All 12:00 noon classes on MWF, *Econ, 81	Mon. Jan. 22	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on MWF, *Econ. 31, 32 61 & 70	Mon. Jan. 22	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Tues. Jan. 23	8:30 a.m.
All 12:00 noon classes on TThs, all *Naval Science and *Air Science	Tues. Jan. 23	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on TThs	Wed. Jan. 24	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on TThs, *Poli 41, Busi. 150	Wed. Jan. 24	2:00 p.m.
All French, German & Spanish courses Numbered 1, 2, 3, 3x ? 4, *Phch. 61	Thurs. Jan. 25	8:30 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Thurs. Jan. 25	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Fri. Jan. 26	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Fri Jan. 26	2:00 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Sat. Jan. 27	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on MWF *Busi 160, *Phys. 24	Sat. Jan. 27	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Mon. Jan. 29	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on TThS, *Busi 130, *Chem. 43	Mon. Jan. 29	2:00 p.m.
All 3:00 p.m. classes, *Chem. 11, *Busi. 71 & 72, and all classes not otherwise provided for in this schedule	Tues. Jan. 30	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Tues. Jan. 30	2:00 p.m.

Instructors teaching classes scheduled for common examinations shall request the students in these classes to report to them any conflict with any other examination not later than December 15. In case of a conflict, the regularly scheduled exam will take precedence over the common exam. (Common exams are indicated by an asterisk.)

House To Retire

Chancellor Emeritus Robert B. House will retire from his teaching duties at the end of this year.

House retired from his executive position five years ago, but has continued to teach English and classics.

Chancellor William B. Aycock made the announcement at a recent trustees executive meeting.

House graduated from UNC in 1916 and received the M.A. degree from Harvard. He held major administrative posts from 1926 until 1957.

Gordon Grey Is Elected Chairman Of D. C. Council

Gordon Grey, 52, former president of the University, was elected president of the Federal City Council of Washington, D. C. this week.

The Council's board of trustees elected Grey to succeed William C. Foster, who resigned to become director of the President's Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Grey was president of UNC from 1950 to 1955. He resigned to become Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs.

Secretary of Army

Before coming to Chapel Hill Grey was Secretary of the Army and Special Presidential Assistant under President Truman.

Gordon Grey

After taking the defense department job in the Eisenhower administration Grey became director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, and in 1958, Special Assistant for National Security Affairs.

The City Council is a group "interested in Washington's community development problems," according to the trustees' statement.

Grey Successor

When Grey resigned as University president the post was held by acting presidents until the fall of 1956 when William C. Friday became president.

Grey, a Yale Law School graduate, maintains a home in Winston-Salem, but makes his home in Washington.

AEC Information Indicates Snow Radioactively Ok

Frank Tobey, information officer for the Atomic Energy Commission, said yesterday that the radioactivity in Chapel Hill's snowfall was "not enough" to be dangerous.

Contacted by the Daily Tar Heel at the AEC's Germantown, Md. headquarters near Washington, D. C., Mr. Tobey said the radioactive content of snow which fell in various parts of the United States yesterday was high, but not high enough to cause undue concern.

Dr. Leon L. Terry, surgeon general of the U.S. said eating snow was dangerous, but not because of atomic fallout. He warned of animal products which might be in the snow, but said present fallout levels in the precipitation was "negligible."

Mr. Tobey also said that the radioactive fallout from the 50-megaton Russian blast last October had proved to be "less than we originally expected."

Glen Seaborg, Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, was unavailable for comment on Chapel Hill's snow.

And The Snow Lay Thick On The Ground

Carolina students witnessed their first snow of the new year Wednesday morning, and if the weather forecast proves accurate, they may see some more this week-end.

Today's outlook calls for fair skies with hte high temperature reaching only 20 degrees. The weatherman sees little chance for further snow during the week, but they say that the snow may begin again on Saturday.

In any event John Bennett, Director of Operations at Carolina, plans to make the situation as convenient as possible for campus travelers.

"We had tractors out all day, dragging the walks and streets," said Bennett, "and we put sand where we could to prevent slipping on the ice.

"We had the main roads and walks cleared off, but after the ice formed, the best we could do was spread sand over it."

Workers stayed on duty until nightfall, and returned to work early this morning to continue their work.

"There are chains on all service vehicles," stated Bennett, "and we will be ready to meet any emergencies which might occur because of the snowfall."

The Raleigh weather bureau gave these figures as represetative of the snowfall around the state as of noon, Wednesday: Asheville, two inches; Greensboro, four inches; Charlotte, three inches; and Winston-Salem, three inches.

The Raleigh weatherman said that this cold air covers practically all of the United States where the snow has fallen. This area will remain cold for several days, and after the temperatures rise, they will still be far below normal.

—Photos by Jim Wallace

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 11, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 75

World Court Decision

The decision of the General Assembly to issue $200 million worth of bonds and the subsequent authorization of Secretary-General U Thant to ask the International Court of Justice to hand down a ruling on whether members will have to pay their share of costs for special operations could lead to a new crisis.

If the World Court hands down a decision requiring members to assume their fair share of debts incurred, it will probably mean that some nations will be ousted. Many have already made it pointedly obvious that they will not pay—and the World Court decision will not cause many of them to undergo a change of heart.

Should the Court rule that this will be necessary, it will mean that the U. S., whose stake in the U. N. is vitally important, will be forced to continue to bear a disproportionate share of the burden. The U. N. operations in Katanga and elsewhere have been expensive — but most of them have been necessary.

Whether President Kennedy will be able to persuade a reluctant Congress to share his view and vote increased appropriations to the world organization is a moot question. The influences of conservatives and other elements dissatisfied with the progress in the U. N. is certain to produce strong opposition. Yet, the nation's foreign policy is already committed to strong support of the operations.

The World Court's decision will have violent effects on that policy.

Those Fake TV Ads

The Federal Trade Commission recently denied Colgate-Palmolive Co. further use of a TV commercial which depicted the shaving of a piece of sandpaper softened by Rapid-Shave.

The commission was rubbed the wrong way because the "sandpaper" used in the ad was in reality a piece of Plexiglass coated with jelly and sprinkled with sand.

The ruling, unimportant enough in itself, may signal a tightening-up of the FTC's policy concerning the use of fake props and false gimmicks in TV ads. As yet, there has been little discussion of any but the most flagrant instances of charlatanry in ads, such as the one mentioned. Perhaps the commission will now look into some other practices in common practice by TV advertisers—fake food, dyes, clever camera manipulation to give a false image, speeding up films in automobile ads, and a myriad of others embodying greater or lesser degrees of fakery.

The FTC decision on the Rapid-Shave ad has been a long time in coming; the hassle over its use started over a year ago.

Now that it has come, we hope it means that more advertisers will finally have to put up or shut up on some of the wild claims made for their products.

Alternatives In Laos

The disagreement between rival leaders in Laos over the composition of a coalition government confronts the United States with a harsh dilemma.

The Vientiane Government, which the United States has built up and backed following its rupture a year ago with neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma and his collaborators, is now unwilling to enter a coalition with Prince Souvanna on the terms he poses. These terms would give the ministries of Detense and Interior to Prince Souvanna's group. With these two key Cabinet posts added to others that would be assigned to neutralist and Communist-led Pathet Lao leaders, the neutralists and Pathet Lao factions would have a preponderance of strength in a new government.

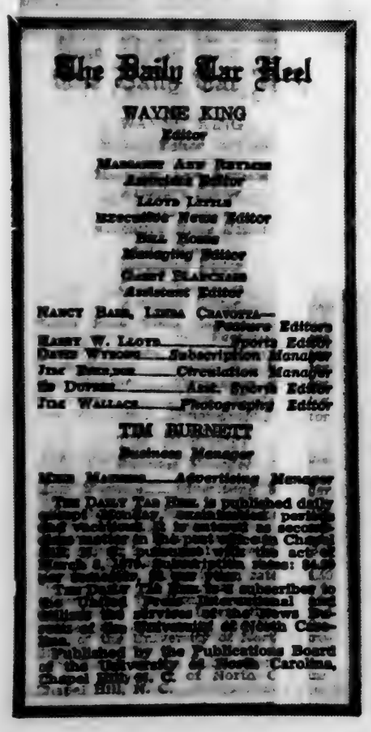
In view of the close ties between the neutralists, the Pathet Lao and the Communist powers, there would be a real danger that Laos, under a government weighted in favor of the neutralists and Pathet Lao, would eventually come under Communist domination.

A similar danger will exist if the Vientiane leaders do not enter a coalition. Their refusal to do so could mean resumption of the Laotion civil war; and it is doubtful if the Vientiane Government could win such a war unless assisted by American or other foreign military forces. Western military intervention in Laos would, of course, create the possibility of comparable intervention by the Communist powers.

The United States thus faces the alternatives of renewed conflict or action to persuade Vientiane leaders to enter a risky coalition. Washington appears to have chosen the latter, a course consistent with agreements on the neutralization of Laos that the United States has made with Russia, Communist China, Britain, France and other countries at the Geneva Conference. Pressure on the Vientiane Government is being exercised by withholding United States funds used to pay Laotian military forces. Other and stronger means of persuasion are available.

Heavily dependent as it is on American support, Vientiane will find it very hard to resist these pressures. Already further conferences at Geneva between the rival Laotian leaders are in prospect. Possibly by further negotiations they can get a better coalition deal from Prince Souvanna than they have so far been able to obtain.

—NEW YORK TIMES



Student 'Happy to See Uncle Sam'

UNC's Pete Range Visits East Berlin

Goettingen, Germany — There were seven of us together recently—three East Berlin students and four foreign students from West Germany, sitting around a Ratskellar table in East Berlin. We four students from Goettingen had been invited along by the East Berliners when we asked them on the street where we might find a tavern for some beer and conversation. It was the first night we had gone over into this walled-in city of Vopos and fear and we were somewhat surprised with the openness we received from these three students of the Humboldt University.

The conversation over the seven beers rocked back and forth between those things students generally find to talk about and the political situation of East Berlin. As we got to know and trust one another more, the East Berliners began to express some of their feelings about "The Wall": "We felt so completely depressed on the Thirteenth (August)," said one of the students. "It was almost as though a part of each of our bodies had been cut away. Before the Thirteenth we could at least taste freedom and plenty by going over to West Berlin. Now we don't get close enough to The Wall to even see life on the other side."

Even when they can take their eyes off The Wall and their longing away from West Berlin, the East Berliners are feeling the effects of Ulbricht's brutal imprisonment in their daily lives. Those who were employed in West Berlin, some who had had the same job for over ten years, have been provided jobs by the East German government. These jobs are, of course, the most menial and poorest paying ones, those which were naturally open when the government suddenly had 4000 unemployed on its hands this August 13th. According to the three students, some of these workers had to leave Berlin altogether, taking jobs somewhere else in the Soviet Zone, many miles from their homes and friends.

* * *

AS FOR CONDITIONS within East Berlin, the bread-lines are longer and the deprivations are greater as a result of The Wall. Fruit, carrying the important vitamin-nourishment, is non-existent. Cheeses and other milk products are almost not-to-be-had. The families are allowed a quarter-pound of butter per week. Salt has recently joined the list of unavailables. The clothes which are still available, said our three comrades, cost more than anyone could pay; an average dress can cost $125.00. A pack of ten of the poorly-tasting East German cigarettes costs fifty to seventy-five cents.

The lives of our three student friends at the University are going along rather normally. Although these students were lucky enough to get areas they were interested in, all Humboldt University students major in fields chosen for them by the government, according to the current need of the socialistic society. They receive every semester, and especially during the early ones, a number of courses which boil down to pure political indoctrination.

"I'm full of it," said one of the students, speaking lowly and putting his hand up to his neck, "Up to here. I couldn't hold any more. Everyday, everywhere; in the lectures, in the newspapers, on the radio and television, on the streets!" At the end of each semester they must take an exam on the political doctrines covered. Naturally, everyone gives the expected answers, contrary to his own personal beliefs.

Only as they begin to get into the last semesters or if they are students of science do the Humboldt University students receive the free and pure subject matter, unimpeded by so much political coloring. For students of history, philosophy, literature, and "law," however, there is never an end to the indoctrination.

* * *

ALTHOUGH OUR friends seemed fairly confident and at ease most of the evening we four students from the free side of the world could not help feeling somewhat tense. For months now we have been reading about The Wall, the Vopos, the unsuccessful and successful escape attempts, the unjustified arrests of some student visiting in East Berlin.

We had visited "Checkpoint Charley," the U. S. Army installation at the only street entrance into East Berlin for foreigners. Later, that night, we had registered with "Checkpoint Charley" that we would return by 1 a.m., then had weaved our way in our Fiat past the Tommy gun-carrying East German Vopos through the zig-zag opening in The Wall.

Our passports were checked over, the car was well-inspected, and we were asked if we had brought any East German money with us (not allowed, since you can get four EG Marks for one WG Mark in West Berlin). The process was repeated in greater or lesser degrees all six times we crossed the border during the weekend. For the most part, the Vopos were polite and even friendly, answering our questions about where we might take pictures or see The Wall. But these cordial fellows are reputed for being able to become extremely dangerous when provoked or irritated.

* * *

UPON ENTERING the Ratskellar we had been asked for our passports, as always when foreigners want to buy something. We were always conscious of the possibility of not making it back across Checkpoint Charley if we made any serious wrong moves. As one goes around the city, the sight of every fifth or sixth person in a uniform is not very encouraging.

Although banners and slogans are not nearly so present as before the Thirteenth and before the death of famous Stalinallee (now renamed Karl-Marx-Allee), one doesn't look far, even in the slum districts, for a red banner with some words in white calling for the signing of a peace treaty with Russia. At the busiest section of East Berlin, the Friedrichstrasse railroad terminal, there stands a huge, electric news-reading machine over the street (similar to the one on Times Square, New York). The news which we read was alternately something very critical of the United States followed by praise of some Soviet maneuvre.

* * *

BESIDES the two or three points such as Friedrichstrasse and Karl-Marx-Allee, East Berlin is essentially ugly, pitiful, and dead city which looks like it went through a war about three years ago. Only a minimal number of new buildings have been built, those which were only fifty percent destroyed by the war are being lived in, the rest left standing.

The center of old Berlin, UNTER DEN LINDEN, is surrounded by the partial ruins of the glorious old Prinzess Palais, the Operhaus, the University, the old military ministry, the huge Domkirche (church). One is impressed with the magnificence which the one-time capital of the German Reich must have had, and with the complete lack of rebuilding this area has received since 1945. Though the Soviets inherited undoubtedly the most beautiful part of what was once a glorious Berlin, their half is now by far the ugliest.

* * *

AT ONE POINT we were able to approach the Wall, where it goes across a bridge to within 20 yards. At the end of the bridge we conversed a while with the four Vopos (Volkspolizei, or People's Police). They were polite but, of course, dry in their talking. We asked harmless questions and made only light, day-to-day remarks, sometimes even joking a little with them. They usually laughed with us. After such an experience, one gets the feeling—even though he knows they would shoot him if he did anything out-of-order—that these fellows are human too; that they are really just everyday guys who do not want to shoot me anymore than I do them. But they are full of fear and indoctrination, they have no choice. We were happy to see Uncle Sam at Checkpoint Charley at 1 a.m.

"You Really Think You Can Charm Those Birds?"

New Year Provides Same Old Problems

It is a fact that 1962 has been born and that this is the beginning of a new year. For the world though, it is not a fact that the birth of 1962 is a new beginning to solve all the world's ills.

Not that the world does not want a new beginning. But in the cold light of reality what 1962 saw when it first came into existence was not a world at its beginning, but more like a world at its beginning of the end. There was a wall dividing Berlin. There was guerrilla warfare in Viet Nam. There was a restless, edgy, about to explode sort of peace in the Congo, Laos, and Albany, Georgia. In fact, this was the atmosphere that seemed to prevail over the entire world.

In the United States there were various attitudes toward these world problems as 1962 was born. There were those who cared but said nothing. There were those who cared and said they cared, but did nothing to show that they cared. There were those who felt that everything would work itself out in the end (without their aid or worry). There were those who felt that the world would never see 1963. And finally there were those who just didn't give a damn, because it was a new year and they were happy, drunk, dancing the twist, and for all practical purposes out of this world.

This was the United States at the beginning of a new year. A nation where millions made new year's resolutions, kissed, loved, sang, drank, danced, lived, died and built bomb shelters. It was a nation that was far from being at a new beginning, and everyone prayed was far from being at an end. It was a nation traveling on the wings of Janus into an infant year of a century now growing grey at its temples, hinting at old age—and just possibly more maturity, wisdom, and compassion for the human race.

HENRY BROWN

ATTITUDES by Clotfelter

Did Hoover Only Add To US Confusion About Katanga-United Nations Problem?

The sense of confusion with which most Americans have been reading about the Katanga—United Nations problem was made more confused recently by a statement from Herbert Hoover.

From the heights of his Waldorf-Astoria Hotel headquarters Mr. Hoover gave The Word to his loyal subjects.

"It is a sad day for the American people," said Mr. Hoover sadly, "when American resources are being applied to the killing of people who are seeking for independence and self-government, free from Communist domination."

Hoover made his proclamation in support of mineral-rich Katanga's rebellion from the central Congolese government.

Hoover expressed support for Sen. Thomas Dodd's call for a Senate investigation of U. S. support of the U.N. action. (Could the Nation survive without those handy Congressional investigations?) The Connecticutt Senator also had demanded a reorganization of the U.N. to prevent any future military thrust.

* * *

Dodd and Hoover represent two of the foremost critics of U.S. support of the U.N.'s military action.

In recent months there has been a great deal of money and effort exerted on behalf of Moise Tshombe and his "anti-Communist" Katanga province. Tshombe has become the symbol to some persons of the courageous anti-Communist freedom- fighter, having to resist an invasion from the United Nations.

Tshombe, according to South African journalist and author Colin Legum, "has the bounce of an india-rubber ball, and the facility to leap on any likely-looking bandwagon..."

He negotiated with the late Patrice Lumumba about entering a federal government, but "those negotiations broke down," according to Legum, "only after Tshombe's impossibly high demands for seats in the Cabinet were turned down. He then raised the banner of Katanga's independence."

Tshombe, "like Senator McCarthy, is not afraid to use the smear campaign on his opponents; at one time or another he has accused all his opponents of being Russian agents," said Legum. "It is a line which goes over well in certain Belgian, American and British circles."

* * *

It is strange that the Congo's good guys of 1960—Joseph Kassavubu and the central government—should now become part of the international Communist conspiracy seeking to conquer Katanga. The Dodds, the Hoovers and their kind could not bear to see two anti-Communist contingents in any given area (Adoula-Kassavubu AND Tshombe), so alakazam-o, Adoula and Kassavubu suddenly become pro-Communists and Tshombe becomes the world's last, best hope.

(If Adoula and Kassavubu are pro-Red, it must be unbearable for Dodd and Hoover to consider what Lumumba was and Antoine Gizenga is.

It is also strange that the "pro-Communists" like Lumumba and his follower Gizenga first appealed for U.N., American, African, and even Belgian aid before they turned to the Soviet Union. On the other hand, Tshombe appealed to Russia, some time ago to intervene militarily. The Russians laughed at him.

* * *

"There are no annual awards for political or journalistic over-simplification by demagoguery," said columnist-editor Ralph McGill. "If there were, the prize for 1961 almost certainly would go to . . . many Western politicans and journalists concerned with the Katanga crisis." Those who claim that the President has turned direction of U. S. foreign policy in Africa over to the U. N. are the worst offenders, claims McGill.

Last summer the choice for the United States and the United Nations was a strong central government for the Congo (under Patrice Lumumba) or a federation of provinces (under Kassavubu). The U. S. and the U. N. chose the federation under Kassavubu and events have proven them mistaken.

Tshombe with the aid of Kassavubu killed Lumumba, making the choice now: strong central government (under Cyrille Adoula and Kassavubu) or a bankrupt, chaotic Congo under many Sovereign rulers (as Tshombe would wish.)

The choice in the Congo is not one of Communism or non-Communism, liberalism or conservatism, bad guys or good guys.

The choice is between a Congo of tribalism, chaos and ruin—which will result if Katanga remains separate from the central government permanently — or a Congo strong and relatively stable, under an intelligent, moderate central government with Adoula as premier.

Chaos and tribalism are not the answers to the Congo's woes, Messrs. Dodd and Hoover notwithstanding.

An independent Katanga is not the answer.

—JIM CLOTFELTER

Four Professors Slated To Retire At End Of Spring

Four UNC Professors will retire at the end of the spring semester. They are Dr. John W. Lasley Jr., Dr. Milton S. Heath, Margaret Blee and Ruth Hay.

Dr. Lasley, a professor in the mathematics department, has a longer teaching career than any other member of the faculty. He entered the University in 1906 at the age of 14. Upon his graduation in 1910, he became an instructor. Later, he received an M.A. degree here and the Ph.D. degree at the University of Chicago. He is co-author of three mathematics textbooks.

UNC Wind Ensemble To Give Concert Tuesday

The UNC Symphonic Wind Ensemble conducted by Dr. Herbert W. Fred will present a concert in Hill Hall next Tuesday at 8 p.m. The public is invited.

The ensemble is comprised of a select group of 45 instrumentalists from among those enrolled in the University band program which includes the Marching Tar Heels, the Concert Band, pep bands, and the Symphonic Wind Ensemble. This group of instrumentalists which has gained a statewide reputation of excellence, has performed many contemporary works for winds, which, until these performances, had not been heard in this area. This year's program includes another such work, "Suite Francaise" by Darius Milhaud. This work met with such success that Milhaud was later prompted to transcribe it for orchestra.

Another work of particular interest is the "William Byrd Suite" which consists of some selected pieces from the Fitzwilliam Virginal Book. These have been freely transcribed for band by the English composer Gordon Jacob. One of these pieces, "The Earle of Oxford's March," was commonly played by military bands of the 17th century. These bands of 6 to 10 were the forerunners of today's military bands.

Other works to be performed are the Suite from "Royal Fireworks Music" by Handel, Polka and Fugue from "Schwanda" by Weinberger, Pines of the Appian Way from the "The Pines of Rome" by Respighi, Sebastian Ballet by Menotti, and the overture to "Candide" by Bernstein.

Prior to his appointment as Director of Bands at the University. Dr. Fred served as director of an Air Force Band during the Second World War, Band Director at Evanston (Ill.) High School, and Director of Bands at Ball State College (Ind.). Nationally known as a composer and arranger for band, he is a member of the American Bandmasters Association and the College Band Directors National Association. Two of his recent transcriptions for concert band, "Ballet du Plaisir" by Charpentier and "Alte Kameraden" by Teike, are due for publication in 1962.

It Pays to Advertise!

'Scouting The Skies' New Planetarium Show

"Scouting the Skies," a program designed to depict the rewards of family participation in the study of astronomy, opened at Morehead Planetarium this week. It will run through February 12.

The demonstration also is the Planetarium's annual tribute to Boy and Girl Scouts at this season.

"We want to help all youngsters and Scouts who are interested in obtaining merit badges in astronomy," Planetarium Director Anthony F. Jenzano said. "At the same time we are providing in this new program some very elementary but basic ideas that might well be used by teachers and parents and all those who are trying to help youth understand the sky."

For instance, bright stars and constellations now in view are described and named, and the astronomical concept of sizes, speeds and distances of planets is explained. In addition, the phenomena of horizon, sunrise, sunset and circumpolar stars is detailed.

The program also highlights and reproduces the approaching most peculiar combination of the planets which will be visible only out in the Pacific Ocean on February 5.

"A total eclipse of the sun will reveal the visible planets of Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn grouped with the moon around the constellations of Capricorn and Aquarius," Mr. Jenzano explained.

"This is something that has never happened before in all the years of recorded astronomy. The accuracy and versatility of the Zeiss planetarium instrument enables us to reproduce this phenomenon."

In order to encourage active family interest in astronomy, two children will be admitted free with each adult admission to every evening demonstration of "Scouting the Skies."

It will be presented also at matinees on Saturdays at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., and on Sundays at 3 and 4 p.m. Shows for school groups with reservations will be given at 11 a.m., 1 and 4 p.m. Wednesdays through Fridays.

N.C. State Says Danger Minimum From N.C. Snow

RALEIGH (UPI)— The heavy snowfall covering North Carolina and other parts of the nation yesterday does not increase hazards from radioactive fallout.

This was reported by a North Carolina State College scientist.

L. Thomas Caruthers, radiological safety officer at N. C. State, said he saw no reason for alarm regarding increased levels of radioactive fallout in the atmosphere as a result of the snowfall.

He reported that the college's atomic monitoring system, in fact, showed much lower levels of fallout in the atmosphere now than was the case shortly after the Russian bomb tests.

Caruthers said: "I feel that there is absolutely no reason for alarm over children playing in the snow from fear of radioactive fallout." He added, "my own three children will be playing in the snow, and I plan to join them."

Caruthers explained that the United States Public Health Service confirmed his appraisal of the current fallout status.

Film-Lecture On 'Island City' Of Berlin Presented Tuesday As Third Of Graham Memorial Travel Series

"Berlin, the Island City," the third of Graham Memorial's Travel Adventure Series, was presented Tuesday night at Memorial Auditorium. Arthur Wilson, co-author of the film was on hand to narrate the documentary.

Wilson presented a picture of a city containing forests, parks, lakes, a zoo, modern apartment dwellings, and modern shopping places. The film also contained scenes of an East Berlin parade of military might on May Day, East Berlin streets lined with rubble untouched in 16 post-war years.

Wilson has been engaged in overseas activities since living with a French family for several months during World War II. It was in 1952 while escorting the two children of this French family on a tour of America that he had the idea for his first film. Soon he and associate Fred Kieffer had completed the documentary "Here Is America," a picture of the United States as seen through the eyes of these two French teen-agers. Wilson and Kieffer narrated the film throughout France and free Germany on a tour sponsored by the Detroit Historical Meuseum.

Months' Preparation

Several months were spent in Berlin during the preparation of this film.

Interviews with many German families were included. "West Berliners," Wilson reported, "were eager to help when they found out we were Americans. Again and again they asked us to thank the American people for helping them."

SUMMER in EUROPE??

—KLM ROYAL DUTCH AIRLINES & IRA WINN present—an unusual 70 day itinerary SPECIALLY planned for the mature and ADVENTUROUS, for those who dislike being herded and who seek ample leisure time:

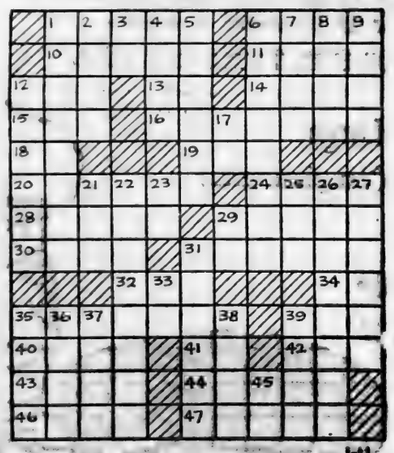
Visiting W. Europe from Scandinavia to Athens GREECE and from Ireland & Spain east to communist Czechoslovakia & Yugoslavia. MUCH leisure time (no rush stops!) — MANY sports activities (Grindelwald, Switzerland; Black Forest, Germany; Slovenia, Yugoslavia; French Riviera) & MANY cultural programs (music festivals, UNESCO, Florence etc.) VERY limited groups—train, ship & plane between cities—accent on time to meet the people—A LUXURY ITINERARY IN THE MEDIUM PRICE CLASS—WRITE FOR BROCHURE:
L&M Travel Service, 1151 So. Robertson Blvd. Los Aangeles 35

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Harbinger of spring
6. Deep-water vessel
10. Light sarcasm
11. River duck
12. Trick-taker (cards)
13. Verb form
14. Constellation
15. Property (L.)
16. Gray-brown bird
18. From: prefix
19. Man's nickname
20. Arm muscle
24. Wading bird
28. Manacles
29. A trap
30. God of wind (Babyl.)
31. Sailed, as to knots run
32. Extinct bird
34. Music note
35. Fruit-cake nuts
39. To slice
40. Movable barrier
41. Music note
42. Bullfight cry
43. Bird of peace
44. Perfect
46. Hastened
47. Betimes

DOWN
1. Bobolink (Southern U.S.)
2. Metallic rocks
3. Hobo (slang)
4. Miss Claire (poss.)
5. Forest maidens
6. Black bird
7. Mister: Ger.
8. Shakesperian villain
9. Turn over, as a field
22. S.W. Asian peninsula
17. Rough lava
21. Food fish
22. Charmed
23. Postscript (abbr.)
25. Sack
26. Irascibly
27. Serious
29. Therefore
31. A lad (Scot.)
33. Preposition
35. Affixes
36. Noose
37. To stir
38. Drugstore drink
39. Fuel
45. Hesitation sound

Yesterday's Answer



Chem II Students
EXAM WORRIES
Short Series of Evening Chem. Classes Provides Quick, Simplified Review Of Exam Essentials.
Call 942-6439 TODAY

CLASSIFIED ADS

FOR RENT — LOG CABIN PRIvately located in country—Perfect for Picnic Parties. Phone 968-2945, nights.

IMMEDIATE OPENING FOR two women for part time work at our local office. Good starting pay with possibility of advancement to full time. Call 942-6562 for interview, or apply office number 6 Dawson Building 230½ W. Franklin Street. 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

$75.00 MONTHLY FOR STUDENT who qualifies as roommate and assistant to handicapped senior for spring semester, 1962. If interested, contact Miss Worth, Student Aid Office.

THE PROFESSIONAL MAN'S very occupation creates a special need for life insurance. A Northwestern Mutual agent is trained to give you understanding advice with your program. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., CLU Telephone 942-6966.

Here is a new "TWIST"
Kemp is still Selling
THURSDAY FRIDAY SATURDAY
Bach—Beethoven—Brahms
Mozart
Sat Nite Til 11:59.59
First Records At Regular Price
Second Record of Your Choice
For Only 99c
Both Stores
EASTGATE E. FRANKLIN

SPRING SEMESTER
Begins February 5, 1962
TOWN CLASSES
Secretarial College Offers
Shorthand
Typing
Business Correspondence
Other Subjects
For full information — Come by or Call —
TOWN CLASSES
Secretarial College
159½ E. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Phone: 942-4797

Get Better Grades With Study Aids
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

PLAYING BY EAR?
Then lend an ear to our message!
If being in a business that can be built from your own ability and imagination sounds appealing, you should look into the possibilities of life insurance sales and sales management. The opportunities are limitless—and you can get started now, while you're still in college.
Our booklet, "Career Opportunities", will give you a good picture of what the life insurance business can mean to you. Just write or phone us.
RALPH S. BENDER
157½ E. Franklin St.
Phone 942-2860
PROVIDENT MUTUAL
Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia

NEW
Multi-Color Carolina Leatherette
SEALS
Ideal for Notebooks Scrapbooks And Luggage.
25c Each
Fraternity Emblems 35c Each
Ledbetter Pickard

CRAM TIME
Your best chance of finding the study aid you need
The Book Exchange
Five Points DURHAM
We Buy & Sell All Books

From The RECORD BAR
Corner of Church & Parrish Sts. in Downtown Durham
LP ALBUMS 25% OFF
Latest Releases — Finest Variety — Complete Stocks
Complete Satisfaction Guaranteed

NO LIMIT AT YOUR A&P — COME SAVE!
Allgood Brand Smoked Flavored—Sliced
BACON
FULL POUND PACKAGE
39c
A&P FRENCH FRIES
4 9-Oz. Pkgs. 49c
Make A Pudding—Use Golden
BANANAS
2 POUNDS FOR 19c
A&P Brand Concentrated, Frozen
ORANGE JUICE
2 6-Oz CANS 33c
Jane Parker Large MINCE PIES ea. 49c
Jane Parker PUMPKIN PIES ea 45c
JANE PARKER TWIN PACKAGED GOLDEN
LOAF CAKE 2 Cake Pkg. 49c
Ann Page Red or Kidney Beans or Sultana Pork and BEANS 1-lb Can 10c
Prices in this ad effective Through January 13th

POGO

PEANUTS

Carolina Bows To Tall, Powerful Deacons, 91-72

By HARRY LLOYD
DTH Sports Editor

Defending ACC champion Wake Forest had too much height and might for North Carolina last night at Winston-Salem. The powerful Deacons steam-rolled to a 91-72 win over North Carolina on the strength of their second-half rebounding.

It was the fourth conference win for the Deacons and it shoved them into first place ahead of the Tar Heels who are now 2-1 in conference play.

Giant center Len Chappell stuffed in 30 points and 6'11" Bob Woollard scored 19, mostly on under the basket shots, to subdue the Tar Heels.

Carolina started well against the Wake Forest zone defense with the outside shooting of Larry Brown and Mike Cooke and the inside work of Jim Hudock helping them to a 20-16 lead at one point.

The Tar Heels scored first in the game on a set shot by Cooke. The Deacons tied it on Woollard's tap-in after Chappell missed a free shot.

Brown then hit on the first of five consecutive 30-foot-plus set shots which had the Wake Forest crowd yelling "Don't let him shoot" all during the contest.

The game was tied at 14-14 with 12:33 left in the first half, and again seconds later at 16-16 before Hudock scored four straight to give the Tar Heels their biggest lead of the night.

After Brown hit two free shots to put Carolina ahead 20-21, Wiedemann hit for Wake Forest and the Tar Heels did not regain the lead again until Cooke scored with 2:30 left in the half to make the score 35-34.

Tommy McCoy tied the game on a free shot. Chappell then hit from close in and the Deacons led for the remainder of the contest.

They led at halftime by 41-39. However, in the first half, Carolina held the best shooting average with a 56.5 mark against a 47.1 average against Wake.

The Deacons, however, led in rebounds by 20-11. Then Carolina's shooting eye went bad in the second half and Wake Forest pulled away. They had their biggest lead at 89-68 with 1:21 left in the game.

Center Jim Hudock was the scoring leader for the Tar Heels in a losing cause with 20 points. Larry Brown and Donny Walsh, the Carolina guard combination, scored 16 and 13 points respectively. Mike Cooke had 11 and Bryan McSweeney 7.

Three players, Brown, Cooke and Jim Donahue, who had three points, fouled out of the game for Carolina.

Intramural Notes

Two of the more successful teams in the recent Grail-Mural Holiday Basketball Festival, Ruffin and Avery, will meet tonight at 6:30 as a prelimiary to the battle between the Carolina and Duke frosh squads.

The contest, to be played in Woollen Gym, is a regulation intramural league game with two 18-minute halves. George Lockhart and Doug Pearson are expected to be the mainstays of the Ruffin attack, while Avery has a well-balanced line-up which includes Phil Mathews and Duffy Skeen, students during their high school days, as well as Bill Watkins and John Kachel, recent high scorers.

Results of Tuesday's games in the Volleyball Play-offs are: Parker over Old West Mice; Ruffin Wussy over Winston; Joyner Jocks over Mangum Misfits; Med School over Law School; Ruffin Rutes over Everett Rogahs; BSU over Manly Riverrats; Town Touts over Mangum Mavericks.

The opening of Church League basketball play, sponsored by the intramural department, has been postponed until the begininng of the Spring Semester.

Just to show you how things can get turned around, in the Intramural Handball Tourney Tuesday, the Navy Losers won and the Navy Winners lost. The latter bowed to Alexander while Old West was the victim of the former. Other results: Everett downed Lewis, the Med School beat the Dental School and the Law School won out over the City Planners.

NFL Outlaws Mask Tackles

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — The National Football League, realizing it was fortunate to escape the tidal wave of 40 grid deaths which struck college and high school football last season, Tuesday outlawed face mask tackles.

Making its first rule change in four years, the NFL admitted it "hadn't had the problems" of college and high schools but said that it felt "preventive action was necessary."

The new rule, submitted by the Baltimore Colts, orders that "no player shall grasp the face mask of an opponent. Penalty 15 yards. Flagrant offenders shall be disqualified."

"It has been against the rule to grab face masks in blocking, but you could grab the mask of a ball carrier," explained Commissioner Pete Rozelle at the annual meeting where owners huddled over possible trades but consumated no deals. "But the ball carrier actually is the most defenseless of all and this new rule could prevent possible serious injury."

To Use Radio Device

The NFL players association had asked that, to avoid confusion, the league make the scoreboard clock the official time piece in all games. Clint Murchison Jr., of the Dallas Cowboys presented a radio device intended to synchronize the timekeepers watch with the scoreboard clock. It will be used on an experimental basis next season and be made mandatory if satisfactory.

Aycock Five Paces Murals

By JOHN MONTAGUE

Aycock could do no wrong in Tuesday's intramural basketball openers. The boys from the Lower Quad, who didn't have too much to cheer about during the autumn activities, started the new year off in perfect style, winning all three of their opening games.

The Blue unit tripped up Mangum, 56-45, as Bill Brown and Alex Howson led a double-barreled attack with 17 and 16 points respectively. Linwood Hall with 14 and Len Dellolio with 13 paced Mangum.

The Aycock Twisters danced easily over the Joyner Tunas to the tune of 60-29. Mike Spain with 18, Bill Jessup with 15 and John Bestic with 13 provided the punch. And finally, the Aycock Hounds nosed out the Alexander Esquires, 35-31, as Jackson netted 13 to lead the way.

The Gallagher twins, Frank and Jim, combined for a total of 41 points as the Winston Weiners trounced the Joyner Toppers, 71-37. Frank was high man with 22, Jim following with 19. Kelly bucketed 20 points and Hardy 15 in the Library's 48-40 win over Navy.

Parker rolled over the Tube Steaks, 75-20, with two footballers leading the way. They were Junior Edge with 18 and Bob Lacey with 14. Cronin Byrd scored 18 points in Alexander's 54-31 triumph over the Rambling Wreck, the latter led by Steve Ferlazzo with 14.

Ben Clifton hit the meshes for 18 as the Winston Wompers nudged out the Avery Axes, 39-37. Dick Finger pumped in 18 for the losers. Everett surprised Avery, 45-40, with Bunch's 16 leading the way. Bill Watkins netted 15 for Avery.

Preston Aldridge hit for 14 and Mike Griffin for 11, but the Mangum Mau Mau's still fell short of the Avery Aardvarks, 28-26. Don Jeffries dropped in a dozen points for the victors. Bowman had a hot hand for the Avery Addicts, netting 22 points as his team trouced the Mangum Mastodons, 55-27. Harris Gooch's 10 points was tops for the losers.

Buster Harrill scored 14 points while the Grimes Grits topped the Joyner Sardines, 52-46. Bill Croom and Chuck Ferguson both bucketed 12 points to pace AFROTC to a 40-37 victory over Lewis, and Joyner dropped Stacy, 39-32, with D. Johnson scoring 14.

W. L. Pryor's 13 points boosted the Joyner Fishes to a 34-20 win over the Ruffin Suiciders, while McMahon hit for 14 in leading Graham to a 31-24 decision over Winston. The Avery Atrocities downed the Everett Schmucks, 43-26, with Teasley getting 14 and Hardy following with 12.

Other cage results: Navy Bowlines 36, Old East Scholars 30; AFROTC Navigators 2, Grimes Grapes 0 (forfeit); Old West 2, Old East 0 (forfeit).

Freshmen Trounce Deaclets; Set Stage For Imps Tonight

The North Carolina Freshmen set the stage for a showdown battle with Duke University's undefeated Blue Imps here tonight by trouncing the Wake Forest freshmen 79-58 to run their undefeated string to seven.

The game was played as a preliminary to the UNC-Wake Forest game in Winston-Salem. Guard Jay Neary led the hot-shooting Tar Babies with 22 points. Neary connected on 8 of 11 shots while the entire Tar Heel team continued their excellent shooting with 28 of 54.

North Carolina meets Duke here tonight in a feature attraction at 8:00. UNC students will be admitted free.

Carolina moved to a 27-25 halftime lead behind the scoring of Bill Brown and Neary. They reached their biggest margin, 79-52 with about three minutes left in the game. Billy Cunningham, the season's high scorer for coach Ken Rosemond, had an off night with only three field goals and 10 points. Cunningham fouled out in the second half.

Forward Pud Hassell was the second high scorer for UNC with 13 points, followed by Ray Respass with 12 and Brown with 11. Reserve guard Bill Taylor played a big part in the Carolina win with 9 points. Richard Herring of Winston-Salem led Wake Forest with 31.

Carolina relied mainly on the shuffle offense and used the fast break on many occasions while coasting in for the win.

In Hatley, Wis., a junkyard employee named Roy Gardner hit the jackpot of a 45-year-old slot machine—with a sledge hammer. From the machine poured a stream of quarters, the newest of which was minted in 1912.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

Daily Tar Heel Sports

Page Four — Thursday, January 11, 1962

LEADING ACC SCORERS

The leading scorers in the Atlantic Coast Conference through games of Tuesday, January 9, 1962:

PLAYER, SCHOOL	GAMES	FG	FT	PTS.	AVG.
Heyman, Duke	11	113	80	306	27.8
Chappell, Wake Forest	9	79	82	240	26.7
Whisnant, South Carolina	12	80	94	254	21.2
Mullins, Duke	11	89	33	211	19.2
Laquintano, Virginia	10	73	42	188	18.8

There's a Gorgeous
NEW PEANUTS BOOK
at the
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
OPEN TILL 10 P.M.

FALL and WINTER
SPORTCOATS

1/3 to 1/2 Off
at
TOWN & CAMPUS

GENUINE
CORDOVAN WEEJUNS

Good Looking BASS WEEJUNS With all the QUALITIES OF CORDOVAN
● EASIER TO SHINE
● BETTER LOOKING
● LONGER LASTING
● MORE DURABLE
Available Only At
Julian's Shoe Shop

Carolina
TODAY ONLY
An exquisite new film. —Beckley, Herald Tribune end of innocence
THEATRE

Wigwam SOCKS

The Sport Shop
"It Pays to Play"
151 E. Franklin St.

BUDDY NIGHT AT THE
zoom-zoom
BIG 3 HOUR DEAL
8:00-11:00 P.M. TONIGHT ONLY
Eat A Reg. Price Large
(Then With Our Complements)
Pizza Inside
Take Home A Large
Plain Pizza to Your Buddy
For
Only
10c

freshen your shirt supply
This is the moment to freshen up your shirt drawer . . . . . while we feature a special price on our Manhattan Shirts. All color styles. Were $5 and $5.99.
NOW 3 for $10
Town & Campus

Join Milton's Winternational At January Colossal Prices

Entire stock car coats cut as follows — $32.50 lodan coats and $35.00 sheepskin lined beeksude now $27.99; $39.95 and $42.50 car coats cut to $32.99; $50.00 coats down to $39.99.
Many other tempting buys in clothing and accessories.
Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

Lady Milton Shirtdresses at January Colossal Prices

Get a jump on spring during our January Colossal. Many shirtdresses go off sale after this week.
Group shirtdresses formerly to $19.95 at $10.99; $21.95 to $32.95 including nice woollens at low low $14.99.
Group Lady Milton shirts, formerly to $10.95 at give-a-way of 1 for $2.99 or 3 for $8.50.
LADY MILTON SHOP
Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST

STARTS FRIDAY

Inventory Has Got To Go
99¢
Kemp's
Prices Go All The Way Down!
Final Sale
Thursday – Friday – Saturday
First L.P. Or Stereo At Regular Price_Second Of Your Choice For 99c (Same Price Category)
STOCKWIDE – STOREWIDE – WALL TO WALL
OPERA — CLASSICAL — JAZZ — POPULAR — FOLK-SPOKEN
chez Kemp Ltd. – Both Stores – Eastgate, Franklin Street
THIS SALE OPEN SAT. NIGHT UNTIL 11:59.59 P.M.

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

76

Fussbudgets

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather

Partly Cloudy, not so cold.

Offices in Graham Memorial | FRIDAY, JANUARY 12, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

UNC Planetarium To Be Mentioned In Issue Of 'Life'

If the circulation of your magazine equals that of Life Magazine then you too can help plan programs at the Morehead Planetarium.

Just call up Director Tony Jenzano, as Life did recently, and tell him that you plan to mention some of his programs. Then ask him if he plans to discuss certain stars in a future program. And chances are you will get the same answer Life did, even if the script for the program is not yet complete.

Accommodation

"I'll tell you what we'll do," Mr. Jenzano told Life, "You write anything you want about that program, and on Jan. 12 we'll buy a copy of Life magazine. And whatever you've said will be in the program, we'll certainly write it into the script."

Then you will surely agree with Life who said, "That is the most accommodating offer we've ever had."

No one, however, can argue with Mr. Jenzano's reasoning. "Who wouldn't be willing to cooperate?" he said. "Whenever a publication with millions of readers and potential patrons mentions something at the Morehead Planetarium, we'll make certain we've got it when someone comes to see it."

Infirmary

Those in the infirmary yesterday included: Jerry Stroud, Martha Myers, Evelyn Hollandsworth, Lillian Ennis, Mrs. Andrea Longenecker, Dale Robinson, Benton McMillan, Edwin Kerr, Walter Lemmond, Barry Carroll John Chaffin, Carl Lundeen, Henry Morgan, James Fain, Joseph Langdon, Fred Thompson, Richard McGovern, David Sapp, Douglas Reed Robert Burns, Thomas Baggett, Stephen Dennis, William Taylor, Robert Deal, Charles Vollmer, Wallace Cox, Tim Keese.

18 SSL Delegates Selected For Meet

Eighteen students have been selected as Carolina's official delegates and alternates to the State Student Legislature. The group, chosen by competitive testing and interviews by the SSL Committee of UNC's student government, contains leaders in many fields of Student Government.

The 12 official delegates to SSL are Robin Britt, a legislator and chairman of the Communications Committee; Bill Criswell, chairman of the University Party; Pete Harkness, former candidate for the freshman class presidency; Ann Maxwell, a former student legislator; Bill Harriss, president of the student body; Dennis Rash, a student legislator and former chairman of the UP;

Parliamentarian Chosen

John Randall, parliamentarian of the student legislature and a member of the SSL committee; Lila Smith, a member of the SSL Committee; Scott Summers, a legislator and member of the SSL committee; Beth Walker, secretary of the junior class; Dwight Wheless, presidential assistant and member of the legislature and SSL committee; and Bill Whichard, Speaker Pro-Tem of the legislature.

Appointed as official alternates to the SSL were Rufus Edmusten, a legislator; Bill Hobbs, managing editor of the Daily Tar Heel; Bill Imes; Betty McDonald; Pete Thompson, student body treasurer; and Mary Townsend, secretary of student government.

UNC Delegation Large

Carolina will have one of the largest delegations to the SSL meeting in February. The SSL is attended by delegates from most of North Carolina's institutions of higher learning. UNC students Jey Deifell and Tony Harrington will attend the meeting as SSL officers, but will not vote with the Carolina delegation. Deifell is Vice-President of the SSL and Harrington is Sergeant-At-Arms.

The six official alternate delegates to the meeting can vote and speak only if they take the place of an official delegate on the floor. Unofficial alternates can act only as observers.

24 Alternates

The 24 unofficial alternates appointed were: Charles Cooper John Angell, George Rosental, Angelyn Stokes, Martin Lancaster Judy Bryant, Dailey Cerr, Bonnie Menaker, Lin Sitton, Clarke McAfee, Jimmy Weeks ,Darid Williams, Frank Adkinson, Phil Mathews, Bill Straughn, Cole Waddell Chuck Neely, Leon Barber, Pete Wales, Nields DeVere, Dan Robbins, Larry McDevitt, Bob Spearman, and Darst Murphy.

A spokesman for the SSL committee which selected the UNC delegation said the group was "especially pleased with the high caliber of representation we will have at the meeting."

UNC Is Awarded $38,000 Grant

The National Science Foundation has awarded a grant of $38,000 to the University of North Carolina Department of Geology and Geography to conduct an Institute in Earth Sciences from June 7-July 17, 1962.

The period of the institute coincides with the University's regular summer school and is open to 38 junior and senior high school teachers to improve the subject matter competence of the teachers.

The institute is designed for those teachers with little or no formal course work in the earth sciences. Courses will be given in physical geology, historical geology, and physical geography. Each participant will receive a stipend of $450, an allowance for travel, allotments for dependents, and free tuition. Applications should be submitted by February 15.

Goettingen Forms Now Available In Campus Locations

Application forms for the Goettingen Exchange scholarships are now available at Y-Court, Graham Memorial, and the reference room of the Library, the International Students Board announced yesterday.

The scholarship is for one year of study at the Georgia-Augusta University in Goettingen, Germany. The university there ranks among the foremost educational institutions in Europe.

Method of Selection

Applicants are chosen on the basis of a written examination and an interview before a selections committee. They are judged on points such as maturity, scholastic ability, and adaptability.

Students of at least sophomore standing who will return to UNC for at least one year are eligible. Applicants must meet minimal requirements in knowledge of German unless they possess exceptional language aptitude.

Applications must be in by Feb. 19.

Campus Briefs

The "Circulo Hispanico" will meet tonight at 6:30 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial. The program will be "Una Noche en la Tierra del Tango—Argentina. "There will be color slides, a tango demonstration, and group singing. The public is invited.

Copies of the Music Directory, a listing of known talent, musicians, teachers, etc., have been placed by "Music for Children Inc." at the following locations: Graham Memorial, Y-Court, Danziger's, the Intimate Bookshop, and the Merchants Association office. Copies of the Directory may be obtained by writing to P. O. Box 408.

President Calls For Powers To Lower U.S. Tariff Rates

JFK Addresses A Joint Session On Union's State

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy called on Congress Thursday to let him cut taxes in the face of any recession and to lower tariffs as part of the Free World's economic battle against Communism.

In a State of the Union message that left Congress split along party lines, the President appealed for a host of foreign and domestic programs ranging from his controversial medical care and school plans to U. S. funds for the United Nations.

Warning that a cold war armistice "seems very far away," he urged approval of a five-year tariff-cutting trade program so U. S. producers can join Europe's common market manufacturers in "A trading partnership." Otherwise, he said, the United States will be cut off from its allies amid a mounting economic offensive by the Communists.

The President's message, delivered in person before a joint session of the House and Senate, was hailed by Democrats as a model of world leadership and criticized by Republicans as a catalogue of inflationary and even unconstitutional programs.

Lower Income Tax

Republicans quickly denounced one of his major domestic proposals —a request for presidential authority, subject to a congressional veto, to lower personal income taxes within a specified range and time when a recession threatened.

Kennedy said the idea would be to "slow down an economic decline before it has dragged us down." He sought the authority now, although the country is on "the high road" out of the recent recession, because "the time to repair the roof is when the sun is shining."

He also sought authority to speed up such programs as reclamation, flood control, irrigation and construction of urban water and sewer systems in economic crises.

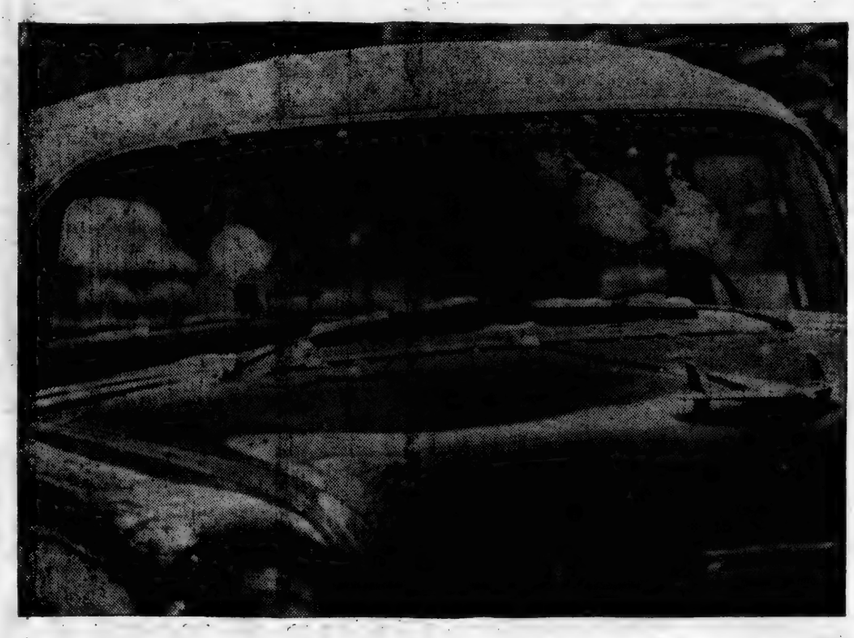
Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., and Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., were among those charging that the President had asked Congress to surrender its tax-writing authority. They predicted Congress would refuse. Sen. Homer E. Capehart, R-Ind., called the tax proposal unconstitutional.

As for the speech as a whole, Dirksen said it "can hardly be called a great message nor can it be called a bad one."

On the Democratic side, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., said it had "the authentic mark of greatness." Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Democratic whip, termed it "a prescription

(Continued on Page Three)

Snow Causes Vandalism



BALLING — The snow balls splattered across the windshield of this car are believed to be similar to those used by several UNC students who threw snowballs at cars near the fraternity district yesterday. The snow balls caused some damage to cars, and the cases of those who threw them have been turned over to the IFC court for trial by the campus police under Arthur Beaumont. The snow lay thick upon the ground of Chapel Hill yesterday for the second day. With temperatures in the low teens and below most of the day, melting suffered by the snow was negligible. The weather bureau believes the snow will stay with the campus and town for several days because of the expected cold spell which set in yesterday. In spite of the cold, many UNC students are known to have taken some pleasure in Wednesday's snowfall.

ARTICLE PUBLISHED

A recent issue of Daedalus, the journal of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, included an article on "The Psychodynamic Aspects of Leadership" by Professors S. W. Abse and Lucie Jessner of the UNC Department of Psychiatry.

IFC Court To Try Snowball Incidents

Chapel Hill police reported a number of snowball throwing incidents Wednesday, primarily near the UNC fraternity district.

The police department received the complaints and turned the information over to Arthur Beaumont, head of the campus police. Further action was left up to the campus police.

Beaumont said that two taxis and a car reported broken windows. "All the damage was done in front of the fraternity court," stated Beaumont. "It wasn't just one boy out there throwing; it was mass hysteria.

"Idiots"

"They were out there running around like a bunch of idiots. Of course, they stopped when I asked them to, but the damage had already been done.

"The rest of the campus acted like Carolina Gentlemen. We had no complaints about them."

Beaumont said all bills for the damage done by the boys would be turned over to to the Interfraternity Council.

The infirmary reported that Edward Miller of 123 Daniels Road was admitted because of a broken arm.

Miller is reported to have fallen in front of Murphy Hall Wednesday.

Infirmary head Dr. Edward Hedgpeth said that the arm was fractured above the right elbow and that Miller was all right, but that he would spend the next few days in the infirmary.

Snow Ordinance

Chapel Hill's new "snow ordinance" was used for the first time Wednesday as snow plows attempted to clear the streets.

The ordinance provides for the removal of cars on downtown streets that are blocking snow clearance efforts whenever two or more inches of snow has fallen.

"No parking bags" were placed over meters and police scoured downtown stores to find the owners of cars that were blocking the plows. No tickets, however, were issued, according to town manager Robert Peck.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Dr. Sukarno

No-Refuel Flight Completed

TORREJON, Spain — A U. S. Strategic Air Force eight-jet B52H bomber roared in from Okinawa Thursday on "Operation Persian Rug" — a 12,519-mile flight half way around the world without stopping or refueling.

The giant bomber with nine men aboard was in the air for 22 hours 10 minutes before it rolled to a stop with a big yellow air brake parachute trailing behind it at the U. S. Air Force Base here at 8:10 a.m. EST. It broke 11 distance and speed records.

The plane averaged 575 miles an hour over the full flight and reached top speeds of 666 as it demonstrated the ability of SAC to reach any target on earth. The plane under combat conditions can carry two Hound Dog guided missiles or four nuclear-armed Sky Bolt ballistic missiles.

★ ★ ★

Thousands Killed In Peru

HUARAZ, Peru — Ice and snow roaring down Mt. Huascaran in an avalanche 40 feet high and a half-mile wide crushed six villages in central Peru late Wednesday with casualties estimated at 3,000 to 4,000.

Public Health Minister Eduardo Watson returning from an aerial tour of the stricken area estimated between 3,000 and 4,000 persons died in the disaster. He said there were "practically no survivors."

Bodies were washed up on the shore at Chimbote, Pacific Coast seaport 60 miles distant, where the Santa River empties into the sea. The river runs through the stricken area.

U. S. Ambassador James Loeb, Jr., flew to the scene from Lima. His Air Force plane carried emergency relief supplies from Catholic groups and individual Americans.

★ ★ ★

Republicans Attack Speech

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy's State of the Union Message generally split Congress along party lines Thursday. Democrats called it a "bold, forward" program but Republicans branded it a "Sears Roebuck catalogue with the old prices marked up."

Republicans were quick to attack the President's request for standby authority to reduce income taxes if necessary to head off inflation. One GOP lawmaker said such a step would be unconstitutional.

Chairman Harry F. Byrd D-Va., of the Senate Finance Committee also condemned the President's proposals for standby tax cutting and public works spending authority as "fundamental violations of the Constitution."

In delivering his address, Kennedy was roundly applauded by the Democrats when he advanced his proposal for cutting tariffs. This plan was met by silence from the Republican side.

★ ★ ★

Cold Wave Blasts South

Dixie suffered in a Yankee-style deepfreeze Thursday while an intense cold wave slowly began to relax its frosty grip on parts of the West and Middle West.

Ice struck damaging blows at Texas and Louisiana citrus groves and six-foot icicles formed on a fountain in front of the Pensacola, Fla., city hall.

A finger of Pensacola Bay froze so solid that a man could walk on ice 350 feet from shore.

The record-breaking cold wave gripped all the Southland from Arizona to the Atlantic, except for the semi-tropical Florida Peninsula.

Dean Heard Calls On UNC's Reach To Exceed Its Grasp

By CHRIS FARRAN

"A university's reach should exceed its grasp," Dean Alexander Heard told the Faculty Club Tuesday in calling for "national and universal" goals, standards, and achievements for UNC.

Dr. Heard, Dean of the University's Graduate School said, "The time has come for the University to "move on" to a more national concept of potentialities; to aim beyond its "role of unique regional importance and distinction in southern higher education."

Dean Heard began his speech: "My thesis is simple: First, we have played a role of unique regional importance and distinction in southern higher education; second, we can no longer and should no longer play that role; third, to fullfill our responsibilities to ourselves, to our state, to our nation and to our time, we must become a national institution—national in our goals, national in our standards, national in our concept of university potentialities, national in our achievements; and finally, to do this will require the best that is in all of us, and more than we have thought was in most of us."

More Ph.D's

Dr. Heard began by citing facts which clearly establish the regional superiority of the University of North Carolina. Recipients of teaching fellowships from the Southern Fellowships Fund consistantly chose Carolina over other universities and colleges within a 14-state area. A larger number of Ph.D. degrees has been awarded at Carolina since 1956 than at any other southern University. Generally, the University of North Carolina awards twice as many Ph.D. degrees as any one of the other AAU schools.

However, Heard pointed out, "whoever is first in the south is not necessarily even in the running in the national picture." He said we "draw from the South and send back to the South."

Wider Perspective

"We have in the past enjoyed immense special advantages of prestige and opportunity because we have been not only a highly visible and respectable southern institution, but because we have been distinctive. Over the years ahead we can preserve much of the visibility and all of the respectability, but little of the unique distinctiveness. That day has gone. Instead of being, as in the past, one of the very few institutions in the South, we shall, in the future be one of the very many institutions of the South."

Dean Heard views Carolina as needing to widen its perspective bevond the demands of the state and the region: "I say the time has come to move on, to view ourselves, explicity in the future, as orientated to the nation and to the universe.

Four Assets

"By turning our thoughts and our aspirations more toward the world and the nation," he said, "we can in a multitude of tangible and intangible ways make our research, our teaching, and our service more sophisticated and more relevant to the heritage and the hopes of the state of North Carolina and of the Union of which it is a part."

In breaking out of our role as a regional institution, he said, "we have four immense assets that can aid us to become the first national university in the South."

First, he said, "We have our existing quality, reputation, and momentum."

Second, "We are closely connected in distance, in interest, and in harmonious working relationships of demonstrated effectiveness with the most advanced, privately supported university in the region and with a technological institution of eminent achievement, admirable determination, and inevitable distinction. The collaborative endeavors and the facts of common destiny shared by Duke University, the North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill—symbolized in these years by the North Carolina Research Triangle—are among our mightiest resources for self-advancement."

"Third, we suffer less than most of our neighbors from crippling chains of racial intolerance . . ."

Finally, the fourth of many advantages Carolina enjoys in aiming for national goals, is the "widespread comprehenson of the idea, the purposes, and the conditions necessary for a free and sophisticated university that is found across our state."

National Image

Dean Heard emphasized that there is "a clear image in the nation of the University of North Carolina as a place of tolerance, of academic freedom, of concern for social justice, and of active citizen service.

"For ourselves, on the faculty and in other positions of leadership," Dean Heard concluded, "the task is to build on our assets and to carry forward a revolution of expectations. We cannot ask of others what we do not ask of ourselves. Our most important step is to widen the horizons of our ambitions and to raise the levels of our hopes. A University's reach should exceed its grasp. Our own vision of our own destiny as a member, first class, of the universe of universities must first come if we are to release the energy, inspire the talent, and enlist the treasure necessary to make this university of the people worthy of its people."

African Scholars To Enter Schools In New Program

Some 300 African students will enter American colleges and universities next fall under the rapidly-growing African Scholarship Program of American Universities (ASPAU).

The students will come to the United States under four-year undergraduate scholarships provided by 190 cooperating institutions, both public and private, in 41 states and the District of Columbia.

ASPAU, begun in 1959 by 24 institutions, grew to more than 100 institutions last year and is now being joined by an additional 100 colleges including members of the Cooperative African Scholarship Program organized by Dean Frank Kolmin of Ithaca College and institutions of the United Negro College Fund, and others.

Central, East Africa

Eight American college admissions officers left Idlewild Airport Jan. 5, to begin the selection process, in cooperation with African educators, in the countries of Cen-

(Continued on Page 3)

Snow Isn't White

'Harmless And Fluffy' Snow Is Cause Of Many Misconceptions

By EARL GRAHAM

A person who stands on a high, snow-covered hill and admires the white splendor of the countryside is seeing things. Snow is not actually white. It just looks white. Since it is frozen water, it is colorless. A scientist will tell you that light rays are reflected and bent when they strike the surfaces of the snow crystals. The transparent ice of the flake appears white because it has so many of these reflecting surfaces. Therefore, there is no such thing as a "white" Christmas. Without realizing it, we wish for a snow crystal surface-reflection Christmas, a thought which most certainly spoils the romantic spirit of that season!

Fresh snow looks delicate, fluffy, and extremely harmless. Scoop up a handful, and it seems like nothing. Twenty-six inches of fluffy snow flakes fell on New York City, Dec. 26, 1947. It took $4,500,000 and 30,000 men to clean up the paralyzed city. As one fellow said, it was "snow" joke.

Even Hawaii

Every state, including Hawaii, gets some snow. It has fallen in Idaho every month of the year. Silver Lake, Colorado holds the record for a single day. There, in April of 1921, 76 inches fell in 24 hours.

Quite a blizzard, you say? Not this storm. A blizzard means low temperatures, high winds, and driving snow. You can have a blizzard without snow falling. Winds can pick up dry, fine snow and hurl it so fast you can't see the sky. There are many such blizzards in Antarctica; but there is little snow. Surprisingly, in 1959, the U. S. weather station there reported a fall of only two inches for the year. The cold polar air contains little water vapor, and therefore there is little precipitation. So there's truth in the old saying, "It won't snow today. It's too cold."

Snow Not Cold!

But snow is not so very cold. In fact, it is one of nature's best insulators. Hold a thermometer just above the crust of the snow and take a reading. Then thrust the thermometer down into the drift and see how much warmer it reads. Farmers know that snow is the overcoat for their fields, holding heat in the ground and keeping the seeds from freezing.

A poet may, in the moonlight, gaze upon the white silent expanse of snow drifts and exclaim, "There is here unforgettable beauty to behold!" Would his reaction be the same to a GREEN silent expanse of snow drifts? Or a black snow fall? Or red or blue or brown snow?

Too fantastic even to consider? Of course not. In certain remote parts of the earth, you can sometimes see red snow. For instance, high in the Alps, climbers are sometimes startled to come upon a dark red landscape. It is caused by microscopic red plants that grow on the surface of the snow. Black snow falls have been reported in Virginia. Carbon particles from factory stacks combined with the falling flakes. Chicago had a brown snowfall in 1947, caused by a dust mixture. When pollen from pine and cypress trees mingle with snow, you see yellow snowfalls. And there have been green and blue ones.

Have you ever looked at a snow flake under a microscope? If you have, then you are aware of the marvelous makeup of the flake. All have six-pointed shapes arranged in a beautifully symmetrical pattern. No one has ever found two flakes that are exactly alike.

(Continued on Page 3)

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 12, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 76

Fussbudgets

The Young Americans for Freedom, a group of youthful Conservatives somewhere to the right of Barry Goldwater and barely left of Robert Welch, has produced an impressive mass of literature condemning various men, institutions and ideas, including the UN, foreign aid, welfare, the Supreme Court, all Liberals, some Conservatives, most Democrats, most of the State Department, all opponents of HUAC, and various and sundry others.

It should be said of YAF's favor that it has not, as far as we know, lambasted God, penicillin, or Mother's Day. An oversight, we feel sure.

The latest dribble of vitriol to seep over the edges of the organization's seemingly bottomless well is directed at Time magazine's selection of President Kennedy as Man of the Year.

YAF Secretary Ralph Anderson writes in a letter in 'Time's latest issue:

Sir:

Your selection of John Kennedy as Man of the Year is an insult to both the intelligence and integrity of your readers. Although articulate, he is a man of inaction; although forceful in appearance, he is inadequate in performance.

We are not sure just whom Anderson feels should have been chosen. "Time," either because of space limitations, or because Anderson did not include them, failed to print a list of his favorites.

At any rate, we have no indication of whom he feels is qualified—if anyone. The YAF slogan seems to be "Whatever it is, wherever it is, whoever it is, at whatever time, OPPOSE IT!"

As for Anderson's disdain for the President on the grounds that he is "articulate" but "a man of inaction," we have somehow failed to note that the YAF has been particularly short on words and long on actions. Neither have we been able to see many instances in which YAF's carefully polished "appearance" as a group of freedom defenders has been bolstered by "adequate performance."

On the contrary, most of what we have been able to see of YAF is that it is making one hell of a lot of noise, directing most of its efforts toward loosing arrows at everything in sight that pricks its conservative conscience—as prescribed by Barry Goldwater, William Buckley, Jr., and a few others.

This is not to say that we quarrel with YAF's embracement of conservative dogma: we do not. What we do object to is its insistence on blasting, jabbing and ripping everything within range. The object seems to be to hamstring our foreign policy, besmirch the nation's leadership and otherwise follow a plan of destruction rather than construction.

Young Americans for Freedom?

A better name would be Young American Fussbudgets.

Student Stand

There won't be any Dixie Basketball Classic here this year — and had you noticed that any complaining about its absence comes from people not connected with State College and not from the students themselves? In fact, had you noticed that when basketball was deemphasized last spring at State and Carolina that the squawks came from alumni, merchants, people about town and not the students themselves?

There must be some real significance in the calmness with which the students have accepted the deemphasis program. Part of the significance must come from the fact that the highly emphasized basketball programs at both State and Carolina had long ago reached the point where they were aimed at the outsiders and not at the campus. They had reached the point where they were spectacles for off-campus spectators instead of simply games being played for the benefit of students.

In a recent editorial on the subject, the State College newspaper, The Technician, put it this way: "The primary misssion of State College is quality education, not recreation for the students, local businessmen, and alumni. The athletic programs, like other student activities, are of course an important part of the college experience; college recognition merely on the basis of the type athletes attracted there is shallow, indeed."

That's a good summary of what a college must be, and what athletic programs must be and must not be in a good college.

The Dixie Classic will be missed this year, make no doubt of that. It was mighty nice to see the friends from all over the State who saved part of their vacation time so that they could come here for the three days of the Classic. It was fun visiting with them, going to the games with them, talking over old times with them.

But there is no doubt that the Dixie Classic had nothing to do with State College's standing as an institution of higher education. There is no doubt, too, but that the Dixie Classic had come to represent the king cand o-no-wrong attitude which contributed to the things which made basketball de-emphasis necessary.

We still have basketball, good basketball, in this area. We won't have as much of it this season as we had last year. But, because basketball has been de-emphasized, we'll be more likely to have it for a longer time to come than we would have been had basketball not been cut down to proper size last spring.

Raleigh Times

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIAL STAFF

WAYNE KING.....Editor
MARGARET ANN RHYMES—Associate Editor
LLOYD LITTLE—Executive News Editor
BILL HOBBS.....Managing Editor
JIM CLOTFELTER, BILL WUAMETT—News Editors
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor
CHUCK MOONEY.....Feature Editor
HARRY LLOYD.....Sports Editor
ED DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
GARRY BLANCHARD—Contributing Editor

BUSINESS STAFF

TIM BURNETT....Business Manager
MIKE MATHERS—Advertising Manager
JIM EVANS..Subscription Manager
JIM ESKRIDGE—Circulation Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

The Daily Tar Heel is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau at the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

"I Don't Know If It's Solid Enough To Hold Both Of Us"

The Great Chaotic Awakening

America is a nation where public spirit at times has been known to doze off into the quiet comforts of complacency. It is in these little periods of national back to the womb philosophy that the American citizen's concern for events taking place in the outside world seem to be at its most dormant state.

The decade from 1950-1960 has been labeled by many critics as a decade of public complacency in America. It is now felt by these critics that America has awakened from this complacency, but the awakening has been a most disturbing and chaotic one.

America's awakening has been much like that of a small boy who has been dreaming that he and his playmates are fighting an imaginary war with imaginary bullets with an imaginary enemy, and that he is considered a great hero and leader by his playmates. Then he suddenly awakes and finds that there is absolutely nothing imaginary about the war, bullets or enemy. They are all very real, and he and his playmates (who no longer consider him a hero, but nevertheless look to him for leadership) are in great danger of being destroyed.

YES, AMERICA has awakened to find herself and the free world under a tremendous assault by communism. How did America get into such a precarious position? There have been many answers applied to this question since America's public awoke. There are those who place the blame on the previous administration. There are those who place the blame on liberals going back usually as far as F.D.R. There are those who place the blame on a great internal communist conspiracy which has supposedly infiltrated every branch of our government, schools, churches, etc. There are those who place the blame on our newspapers, radio, and TV. There are those who place the blame on segregation, and those who place the blame on integration. There are, infact, as many opinions as there are citizens who have at last awakened in America.

* * *

AMERICA IS now awake. She is examining herself internally and even inspecting the outside world with a look more critical and intense than just that of a tourist. She is still a great nation, but she is also a worried, confused, and sometimes even frightened nation.

But this in itself is a hopeful sign. For being worried is better than being listless. Being confused is better than being indolent. Being frightened is better than being complacent. The American public is, in short, stimulated. They might not be in agreement as to what road of action they are to take, but at least they have their eyes open now and are searching for one.

—ALAN GOLDSMITH

Kennedy Is More Popular Than Ever

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy enters upon his second twelve months in a strengthened political position.

This second session of the 87th Congress will be encountering a more confident, and a more decisive President.

Gone is Mr. Kennedy's haunting pre-occupation with the closeness of the election; gone is that special element of uncertainty which came from the fact that a near-majority wanted Mr. Nixon in the White House.

Congress will not be a rubber stamp this year anymore than it was last. Congress remains the same, more conservative than the Democratic platform and on some issues more conservative than the Chief Executive. But the President is not the same.

There is this difference: After winning the election so closely that he barely made it, Mr. Kennedy has in less than a year remarkably consolidated his standing with the American people.

As a candidate for President Mr. Kennedy was able to win no more than a paper-thin majority. As President Mr. Kennedy has succeeded in winning a higher approval-rating than any of his recent predecessors —a high of 83 per cent, and in the latest Gallup poll, 77 per cent. (Mr. Eisenhower's peak was 79 per cent.)

Last January Mr. Kennedy took office as a Chief Executive who almost lost. This January he is a President who has gained new political credentials and new public standing.

* * *

THIS DOES THREE things. It gives the President greater confidence. It encourages him to take a bolder course, as he has in his proposed trade policy to take advantage of the European Common Market. It gives added leverage to his leadership.

Opinions will vary as to what has produced the nearly steady rise in Mr. Kennedy's graph of public approval. But the fact is not in dispute. Senate leaders of both parties, recently returning after several months at home, almost uniformly agree on the President's general popularity.

Sen. Barry Goldwater noticed it, but he does not believe it will help the White House much with Congress on controversial legislation. Sen. Mike Mansfield noticed it, and believes it will help the White House. It was confirmed in the elections last fall. Where Mr. Kennedy personally campaigned, as in New Jersey and Texas, the Democrats won.

WHEN YOU LOOK back over his first year in office, it is evident that in the early months of the new Administration the President was neither very popular — nor very unpopular — until he made the great mistake over Cuba. Oddly enough, the first substantial rise in Mr. Kennedy's public approval status came in the immediate wake of the Cuban fiasco. Since that time it has risen further and held. These seem to be the reasons:

1—Obviously the horrendous failure of the Cuban operation — all the blame on the United States for having a hand in it but never putting a sufficiently strong hand in it to make it successful — did not give the President any credit or any credentials. But the fact that Mr. Kennedy publicly took the full responsibility for all the final decisions, quickly calling off the overeager apologists who were looking for scapegoats, did more than anything else to win him an upsurge of goodwill and approval.

I know of no one in the Administration and few outside who do not think that Mr. Kennedy learned immeasurably from the Cuban experience and that his action in taking complete blame was not only wise but accurate. He was to blame and in saying so he won more public support than the failure lost him.

2—The second factor in the President's present popularity is his wise and firm handling of the Berlin crisis. He has succeeded in strengthening his ties with Macmillan, De Gaulle, and Adenauer. He has helped to keep the allies united on the substance of policy, including the unviating determination to defend our rights in West Berlin. He has kept the door open for serious negotiation whenever the Soviets want to negotiate seriously.

Most people, I think, feel that the danger of war over Berlin is less than it was six months ago largely because Mr. Kennedy has got his message through to the Kremlin.

—CHARLOTTE OBSERVER

Primer For Defense Loan Applicants

AN UNUSUALLY righteous Congress has shoved down President Kennedy's throat an amendment to the bill providing for the extension of the National Defense Education Act. The amendment provides that in order to qualify for a loan under the act, a student must first take a solemn oath (in writing, no less) that he is not a Communist, and presumably that he will refrain from applying the education he receives as a result of the loan to activities conducive to the violent overthrow of the government of the United States.

Taken at face value, this seems entirely reasonable. Who among the American taxpayers, wants his money spent to finance the furtherance of such evil, Godless practices?

It is thus assumed that everyone, red, pink and blue, will honor this solemn vow. After all, what decent, self-respecting Communist would initiate disorder, turbulence and internal strife in the good old U.S.A. after having promised on his honor forever to behave?

Now that Congress has dissipated forever the Communist menace in our colleges with one act, only one minor point remains to be clarified —what the devil is subversion?

WELL, recent precedent seems to say it is positively against the interests of freedom and democracy to steal secret documents for the Soviet Union. One could also put his heartfelt loyalty in a bad light if he shot the President of the United States or set off a bomb in the Senate cloakroom while in the pay of the international Communist conspiracy.

Such practices should be discouraged by all available means, and the new amendment praised for any deterrent effect it may produce. People (and there are such people) who would do things like that definitely have to be deterred.

If you were to take a loyalty oath, chances are you would very likely realize that participation by you in such goings-on is entirely out of the question. Having therefore given up your plans for assassinating President Kennedy (or Senator Goldwater, as the case may be) you might well assume that you have become a "100 per center" in strict accordance with your NDEA vow.

If it were that simple, being a loyal American citizen would be remarkably easy for most of us, and an editorial on the subject entirely unnecessary.

But, in the strict sense, being a true patriot is much more complicated. In fact, it is entirely possible that you are, in reality, a dupe of the Reds.

In addition to abstaining from clearly defined acts of aggression and sabotage of the fundamental tenets of our American way of life (which, to compound the issue, vary from list to list) you will find it necessary to employ strict introspection to determine whether they are not being subversive in less conspicuous ways.

HEREFORE, here is a list which, though by no means complete, may nevertheless aid such students in following to the letter their vow never to interfere with the prinicples on which this great nation is based.

1) above all, do not join or permit your name to be connected with any Communist front organization, or with any group which may take the "Communist line" on any given issue. Lists of forbidden organizations can be obtained from the Attorney General, the F.B.I., or the John Birch Society, so ignorance of the nature of a group is no excuse.

2) And nearly as important; do not join or permit your name to be connected with any group which has as a member a man or woman who is also a member of or a sympathizer with any of the groups on the aforementioned lists. This may sound difficult, and it is. You will avoid trouble, on this point, however, if you join only anti-Communist groups which are not listed as subversive—groups like the JBS, the American Legion, the American Nazi Party, or the Ku Klux Klan.

3) To thus decline from actively preaching the Communist line is not enough. You may unwittingly become a dupe of the Reds by merely being attentive to the subversive elements which infest the United States. Avoiding these people is not as easy as one might suppose. To do so requires a constant and active effort. Careful adherence to the following will definitely aid you in this respect.

Read Norman Vincent Peale and Fulton Lewis, Jr., but never Walter Lipmann or Walter Winchell. Studiously avoid Red propaganda films such as "Spartacus" and "Inherit the Wind." "Operation Abolition" and "The Alamo" are recommended, however.

Avoid association with Catholics, Negroes and Jews, all notoriously subversive. Shun the National Council of Churches, oppose the NAACP, beware of Shirley Temple and Eleanor Roosevelt. Support "right to work" laws and any other anti-labor measures, but never say a good word for UNESCO, Moral Rearmament, or SANE.

Trujillo (late dictator of the Dominican Republic,) Nasser, Chiang Kai-Shek, and Salazar (dictator of Portugal) are above reproach; but Nehru, Khrushchev, Kennedy and the like are to be constantly watched and criticized.

4) Learn these fundamental truths:

Anyone formerly a member of a questionable organization is still a Communist.

Those who oppose the American way of life have no constitutional rights. Unprovable accusations against suspected leftists are permitted, and should be encouraged. Bombings, beatings and dismissal from jobs are among the sanctions which should be applied to such people. Only an extreme radical would think of exercising his rights under the First and Fifth Amendments. Persons who do so are therefore Communists. Those who associate with suspected peple are very suspect themselves. Above all, remember that anyone who opposes a group of avowed anti-Communists, no matter what reasons he gives, is without doubt in sympathy with the international conspiracy.

(It is recommended that these axioms be memorized, since only a gifted intellect can derive them logically.)

THOSE WHOSE interests have been aroused may want to read more detailed works on the subject. Unfortunately, the Constitution of the United States is not suitable for the purpose. However, much information can be gotten from any Birch Society member, and long libellous lists of American subversives are available from Society headquarters or from the revealing files of the House UnAmerican Activities Committee.

If these are insufficient, trust your judgment. A person who disagrees with you on any subject can, as a general rule, be regarded as a dangerous and subversive person, and it is your duty as an American to fight this person with whatever means happens to be available to you.

You are now a real American. Good luck, and good hunting.

—JAMES NICHOLS
—Michigan Daily

Letter To Dr. George

I have read with great interest your opinion that U.N.C. students are being "indoctrinated" by integrationist professors.

Your remarks stirred the memory of an "indoctrinating" experience which I once had, though not in the college classroom. It happened on the streetcar, before I had even started to college. I say on the streetcar; actually it happened because I looked out the window, into the back yard of a Negro house.

I got a pretty close view: the tracks cut right across the Negro yard, black of course, and glistening with mud. The white side of an enamel slop bucket broke a blackness otherwise unremitting, and then one's eyes came to rest upon the house itself. The original white paint had long since faded, and the bare boards showed, muddy, to match the yard.

By contrast, my uncle's hog pen, as I had remembered it from my last visit to the country, was a thing of beauty. The pigs were well cared for, the fence was in good repair, and the greenery surrounding the pen was lovely.

Naturally I accepted then, and still accept, as nothing out of the ordinary, the fact that Negroes live in homes worse than hog pens. After all, as you will ably demonstrate, Negroes are "inferior," and I suppose that the real estate brokers have taken this to mean that Negroes are hogs, or worse than hogs.

I wanted you to have the picture that "indoctrinated" me; and I wanted you to know that in my opinion your study, when it is finished, will provide a very appropriate frame.

—MAXINE PHILLIPS

Pink Press

The DAR is at it again. This time, the Texas branch, for very novel reasons, has objected to a group of American authors (including, Benet, Faulkner, Sandberg, etc.) because they are "questionable," i.e., sort of pink.

Maybe the girls just don't like authors. Maybe they can't read. But more likely, their novel reasons are just fiction.

—G. STORCH

– State Of Union Message –

(Continued from Page 1)

of strength and responsibility for world leadership."

Tax Proposal Hit

But one key Democrat, Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., of the Senate Finance Committee, joined the Republicans in terming the President's tax proposal a "fundamental violation of the Constitution." He also opposed the President's plan for U. S. purchase of United Nations bonds, and what Byrd called a proposal for "federalization of unemployment insurance."

The President was applauded frequently by the legislators and packed galleries in the House chamber as he laid down a series of programs keyed to his belief that the United States must take the lead in assuring Free World prosperity to meet the Communist threat.

With wife Jacqueline, who drew two rounds of applause on her own, watching from the gallery, the President declared:

"Our nation is commissioned by history to be an observer of freedom's failure or the cause of its success. Our overriding obligation in the months ahead is to fulfill the world's hope by fulfilling our own faith."

He particularly sounded this note in advising Congress that he would submit a new five-year trade expansion act aimed at elimination of many tariffs and a gradual reduction of others. He said the program would carry safeguards for American producers "to make certain that its benefits far outweigh any risks."

"Members of Congress," he told the lawmakers, "The United States did not rise to greatness by waiting for others to lead."

The President renewed his plea for programs stymied in the last session—medical care for the aged under social security and federal aid to public schools. He said he would submit new programs for college construction and scholarships.

Mentions Civil Rights

He also said he would send Congress a new public welfare program that would concentrate in getting people off relief rolls and into jobs. He promised a new farm program "designed to prevent chaos with a program of common sense."

For the first time since taking office, he called for action on civil rights legislation. He offered no proposals of his own but said the administration would back pending bills to wipe out poll taxes and literacy tests as a prerequisite for voting.

His program for strengthening the economy included an 8 per cent tax credit to business for investment in machinery and equipment and training programs to prepare men for jobs eliminated by automation.

In calling anew for creation of a cabinet department of urban affairs, he proposed new laws to fight crime, air pollution and mass transit problems in the nation's cities.

The President told Congress his 1963 budget would be balanced provided the legislators raise postal rates, adopt tax reforms including a withholding tax on dividends and interest, and extend present excise and corporate taxes. He will send Congress later a transportation message proposing tax relief for public carriers.

The President's assessment of the international situation was less dark than the one he made a year ago upon taking office. Where he said then that things would get worse before they got better, he now promised to spare "no honorable effort" to resolve the Berlin problem.

And he believed such a solution could be found and relations with Russia improved "if only the leaders in the Kremlin will recognize the basic rights and interests involved."

Calls For Strength

But declaring that this country must remain strong, he said his defense plans call for 300 additional Polaris and Minuteman missiles, two new Army divisions replacing National Guard units now on duty and more Air Force fighter units.

To strengthen the Western Hemisphere, he proposed a new long-term $3 million fund for the Alliance for Progress program in Latin America. He said U. S. relations with Latin America were improving and presented an area of great promise.

Get Better Grades With Study Aids

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

JOHN COAN OTTS

Queens College Man To Teach Education Here

John Coan Otts, head of the Queens College Education Department and former principal of Central High School in Charlotte, has been appointed professor in the School of Education at the University, it was announced today by University Chancellor William B. Aycock with the approval of President William C. Friday and the Board of Trustees.

Mr. Otts will assume duties in the faculty of the School of Education here beginning September 1, 1962.

A native of Spartanburg, S. C., Mr. Otts attended Wofford College where he received a BA degree in 1930. He received an MA degree in English in 1931 at Vanderbilt University and an MA degree in Education in 1941 at Columbia University and the Doctor in Education degree a. Columbia in 1955.

Queens Professor

During 1961-62, he is professor of education and head of the Education Department at Queens College. He served as assistant superintendent of Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools from 1955 to 1961. Previously, he was principal of Central High School in Charlotte, 1945 to 1955. He served as principal of Spartanburg Schools from 1939 to 1945, and head of the English Department at Spartanburg High School from 1931-39.

CLASSIFIED ADS

FOR RENT — LOG CABIN PRIvately located in country—Perfect for Picnic Parties. Phone 968-2945, nights.

African Scholars To Enter School

(Continued from Page 1)

tral and East Africa. Another group of American college officers will fly to West Africa in March to complete the selection interviews.

The Americans will sit on joint boards of selection with African educators and civic leaders familiar with educational problems and national needs in each country.

Administrative support for the 1962 program comes from the African-American Institute, the Carnegie Corporation, the New World Foundation, the Old Dominion Foundation and the Rockefeller Brothers Fund.

The program for 1962-63 follows the successful admission of 24 African students in 1960 and of 238 students in 1961 under ASPAU-affiliated programs.

Scholastic Rating

The original group of African students achieved first-year marks including 20 As, 67 Bs, 26 Cs and only 2Ds, according to David D. Henry, director of the International Students Office at Harvard University and Director of ASPAU. He said all indications are that the second group of students on ASPAU scholarships are doing equally well.

The group of eight American educators will visit several countries in Sub-Sahara Africa, including Ethiopia, Kenya, Uganda, Northern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, Tanganyika, Zanzibar, Basutoland, Bechuanaland, Southern Rhodesia, and Swaziland.

Four of the countries visited this year will be sending students to the United States under ASPAU for the first time. They are Ethiopia and the three High Commission Territories — Basutoland, Bechuanaland, and Swaziland.

Cooperation

Growth in the number of colleges in ASPAU this year resulted from last year's cooperation by colleges of the Cooperative African Scholarship Program and of the United Negro College Fund.

ASPAU began as a pilot project in November, 1959 on the initiative of African and American educators. Its purpose is to enable qualified young men and women from Sub-Sahara Africa to study for the Bachelor's degree in recognized American Universities.

The success of ASPAU, Henry says, "has been achieved primarily for two reasons; first, because educators directly representing U. S. colleges and universities and working in close collaboration with their African counterparts select only well qualified African students to come to the States, and second because adequate provision is made for meeting most of the student's anticipated expenses for a normal four-year American degree course before he leaves Africa."

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
Carroll Baker in Bridge to the Sun co-starring JAMES SHIGETA

SNOW

(Continued from Page 1)

Wilson A. Bentley, who devoted his whole life to the study of snow structures and published a classic book entitled Snow Crystals, took more than 5,000 photographs of snow crystals. Every one was different.

But put all the facts together about snow, and they point to the same conclusion. Snow, like womanhood, is of a beauty that must sometime fade. The white mantle covering the path to the front door must soon become a sickening mass of slush, mud, and ice. With this comes an ailment known as shoveling sickness. The only cure is a Florida vacation.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

GOLF CITY'S 19th HOLE
MUSIC • DANCING
SANDWICHES • B--R
ACROSS FROM HOWARD JOHNSONS OPEN 12-12

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST
GLENN FORD BETTE DAVIS
HOPE LANGE ARTHUR O'CONNELL
FRANK CAPRA'S Pocketful of Miracles
PANAVISION COLOR

New Quiet Dorm Hours Enforced

Dormitory quiet hours will be enforced 24 hours a day during exams, the IDC announced Thursday. Round-the-clock enforcement will begin Jan. 21 and continue through Jan. 30.

The enforcement decision was passed by a unanimous vote of the Interdormitory Council at its meeting Wednesday night.

The quiet hours will be enforced by the IDC members in each dorm and by the dorm advisors. If an IDC member leaves school before the end of the exam period the Council will appoint a representative to take his place.

BUDDY NIGHT AT THE
ZOOM-ZOOM
3 HOUR DEAL
8:00-11:00 P.M. TONIGHT
10c
"CRISPY PIZZA"
PIZZA
Eat a regular price large Pizza inside —Take home a large plain Pizza to your Buddy for only
10c

WHAT'S GOING ON, ON CAMPUS?
PANTI-LEGS
THAT'S WHAT!

What's going on girls in every college in the country? PANTI-LEGS by GLEN RAVEN... the fabulous new fashion that's making girdles, garters and garter belts old fashion! A canny combination of sheerest stretch stockings and non-transparent stretch panty brief, PANTI-LEGS are ecstatically comfortable with campus togs, date frocks, all your 'round-the-clock clothes — especially the new culottes and under slacks. No sag, wrinkle or bulge. L-o-n-g wearing. Of sleek Enka Nylon. Available in three shades of beige plus black tint. Seamless or with seams. Petite, Medium, Medium Tall, Tall.
Seamless, $3.00. 2 for $5.90.
With seams (non-run), $2.50. 2 for $4.90.

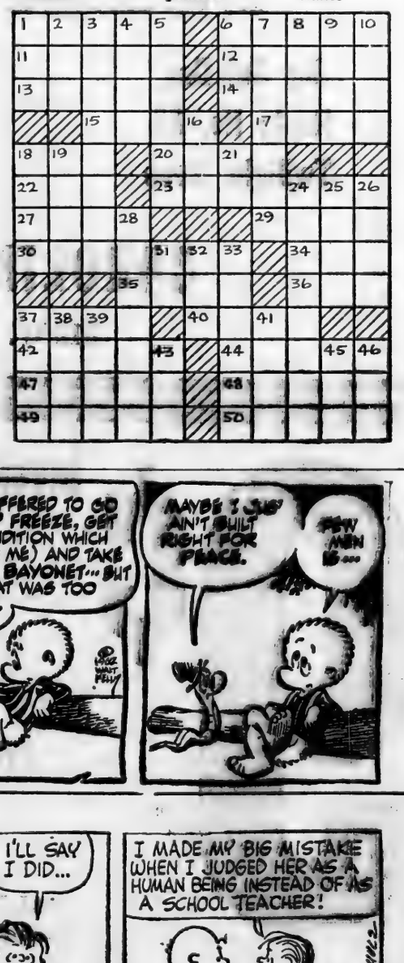
OF CHAPEL HILL

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Frighten
6. Units of weight
11. A Great Lake
12. Eagle's nest
13. Earth's path
14. Reptile plate
15. Bullfight cries
17. God of war
18. Prickly envelope of fruit
20. Shower
22. Ancient
23. Tarnished
27. Hidden obstacle
29. Prefix meaning half
30. Aphorisms
34. An uncle in Edinburgh
35. Castle ditch
36. Unhappy
37. Actress Celeste
40. Exclamation
42. Benefit
44. Money (Brit. slang)
47. Cavalry weapon
48. Mohammedan bible
49. To quench, as thirst
50. —— voce

DOWN
1. Japanese measure
2. Mongrel dog
3. Tree-planting date
4. To stir up
5. Comes in
6. Fuel
7. Retracts
8. Sandarac tree
9. Distance measure
10. Descries
16. Weaken
18. Foreman
19. Inner bone of arm
21. American moth
24. Cotton undergarment
25. Woman's name
26. Perished
28. Magician's secret weapon
31. Japanese drama
32. Choking bit
33. Emblems of birth
37. Dutch painter
38. Egg-shaped
39. Miss Turner
41. Scare away
43. Confederate general
45. —— (King) Cole
46. Biblical name

Yesterday's Answer



PIONEERING

Somewhere out there, beyond the realm of man's present understanding, lies an idea. A concept. A truth.

Gradually, as it comes under the concentration of disciplined minds, it will become clear, refined, mastered. This is the lonely art of pioneering.

In the Bell System, pioneering often results in major breakthroughs. Planning the use of satellites as vehicles for world-wide communications is one. Another is the Optical Gas Maser, an invention which may allow a controlled beam of light to carry vast numbers of telephone calls, TV shows, and data messages.

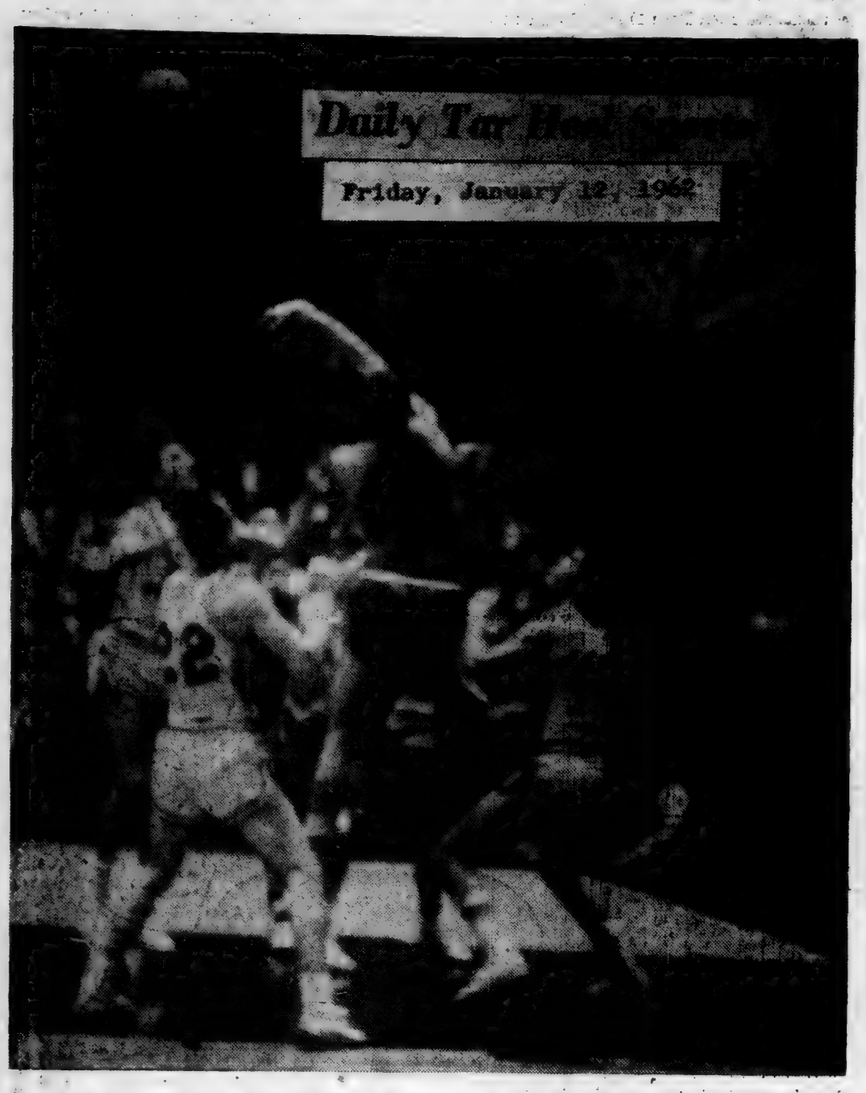
Breakthroughs like these will one day bring exciting new telephone and communications service to you. The responsibility of providing these services will be in the hands of the people who work for your local telephone company. Among them are the engineering, administrative and operations personnel who make your telephone service the finest in the world.

BELL TELEPHONE SYSTEM

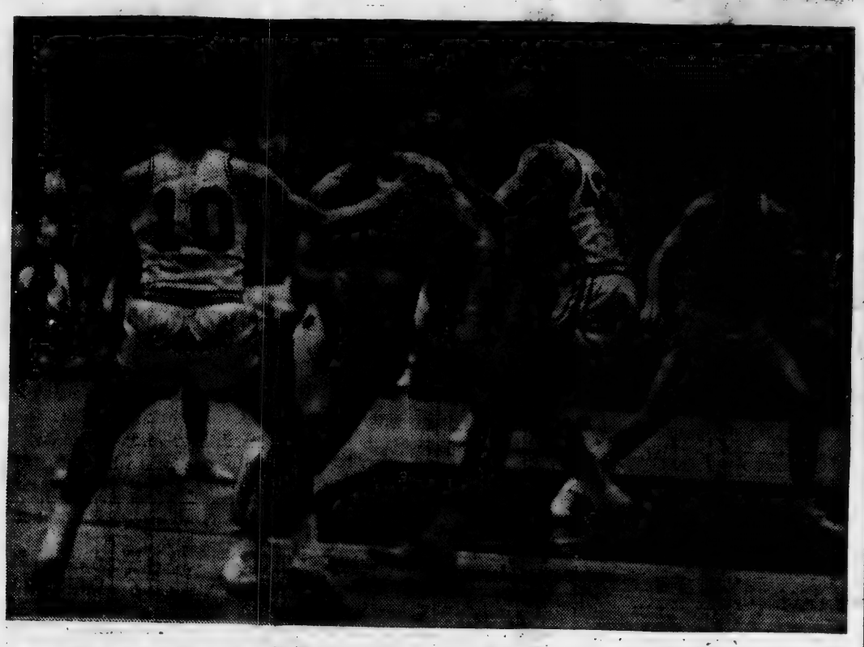
POGO

PEANUTS

Action At Wednesday Night's UNC-Wake Game



Carolina reserve Jim Dohohue is shown above as he leaps over three Wake Forest defenders to bat out an offensive rebound to one of his blue-shirted teammates. The Wake Forest players shown are Bob Woollard, left, Dave Weidemann, (22) and Al Koehler, right. (Photos on this page by Harry W. Lloyd)



Jim Hudock and Mike Cooke of Carolina get a UNC fast break underway as Len Chappell, right, growls at himself for letting the Tar Heels get the rebound. However, Chappell got his share of the rebounds, both offensive and defensive, during the game, and the Tar Heels weren't able to run the break as many times as they would have liked.

Making noise for Wake Forest—this Wake Forest cheer leader kicks high and urges the other Deacon fans to yell for the home team. That they did. It was awfully noisy in Winston-Salem.

Carolina center Jim Hudock, with the ball, dribbles between two Wake Forest players from his pivot spot to the UNC basket. Guarding on the play are Hassell (10) and Carmichael (42) of the game-winning Deacons.

THE TOP POP-JAZZ CONCERT OF 62
RALEIGH MEMORIAL AUD. SUNDAY
ARENA STAGE
JAN. 14
THE MOST IN POP & JAZZ
COUNT BASIE
and his GREAT ★★★★ Recording ORCHESTRA
FEATURING
IRENE REID
OCIE SMITH
PLUS A GREAT ALL-STAR CAST - POP ARTISTS

Milton's
January
Colossal

This is the Event all Carolina has been waiting for. The selections couldn't be more enticing—the weather is right—the price is right—fight the crowds and have a buying ball!

All suits and sport coats now specially reduced — Group suits cut from $85.00 to $57.50; group suits regularly to $70.00 now at $39.99; $62.50, and $65.00 suits now $49.99; $69.50 suits cut to $55.00; $72.50 to $57.50; $75.00 to $60.00; $79.50 and $85.00 now $65.00; $90.00 reduced to $70.00.

Group sport coats formerly to $51.50, now $29.99; Group sport coats regularly to $45.00, take your pick at $24.99; remaining stock of sport coats cut from $39.95 to $32.99; $42.50 and $45.00 to $34.99; $48.75 to $39.99 and $51.50 to $42.99.

Group $16.95 and $14.95 full fashioned imported sweaters, cardigan model, now at giving price of $8.99.

Group of miscellaneous sweaters, formerly to $16.95, January Colossal price — $5.99.

$20.00 four ply imported shetland boatneck sweaters, now only $10.99.

Narrow brim dress hats in all basic tones cut from $12.50 to $7.99; $15.00 to $9.99.

Try our fabulous English shoes at our January Colossal prices — $20.00 plain toe grain shoes now $17.99; $22.95 wing tips and plain toe cordovans cut to $19.99.

With the weather just right enjoy our smart town topcoats at substantial savings — $69.50 now $55.00; $75.00 to $60.00; $79.50 to $65.00; $85.00 to $67.50; $90.00 and $92.50 to $72.50 and $110.00 to $92.50.

You've no doubt heard many of our friends rave about our roll-button-down shirts with the perfect body taper—why not try several during this special January Colossal — $5.00 shirts now 1 for $4.00 or 3 for 11.50; $5.50 to 1 for $4.50 or 3 for $13.00; $5.95 now 1 for $5.00 or 3 for $14.50; $6.50 now 1 for $5.50 or 3 for $16.00.

Group belts formerly to $4.00 at $.99; group formerly to $5.00 at $1.49.

Imported India Madras and Danish oxford plaid sport shirts, formerly to $10.95 at $5.99.

Our worsted wool flannel trousers now cut from $13.95 to $10.99; $14.95 to $11.99; $16.95 to $13.99; $18.95 to $15.99 and $19.95 to $16.99.

Cotton wash pants now reduced — Safari poplins cut from $7.95 to $4.99; other $7.95 pants now $5.99; $6.95 to $5.49 and $5.95 to $3.99.

Smart array of car coats at tempting reductions — $32.50 and $35.00 at $27.99; $39.95 and $42.50 to $32.99; $50.00 to $39.99 and $60.00 to $44.99.

All Sales Cash and Final —

Alterations Extra but superbly done by Carlton.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

SALE
• SPECIAL GROUP •
SUITS
SPORTCOATS
SHOES—SHIRTS
Yours at Substantial Savings . . . Now
Julian's Clothier Shop

Lady Milton
January
Colossal

Ultra smart casual wear at enticing reductions.

Group shirtdresses formerly to $19.95, now $10.99 and $21.95 to $32.95 at $14.99

Remaning shirtdresses cut from $14.95 to $12.99; $16.95 to $13.99; $19.95 to $16.99; $22.95 to $18.99; $24.95 to $19.99; $26.95 to $21.99.

Ladies car coats cut from $32.50 and $35.00 to $27.99; $39.95 and $42.50 to $34.99; $50.00 to $39.99.

Ladies suits cut from $35.00 to $29.99; $25.00 and $19.95 to $14.99; $55.00 to $69.50, at $39.99.

Group sheath skirts formerly to $25.00, at $8.99.

Entire remaining stock wool skirts in straight, box pleat and kilt models cut from 16.95 to $12.99; $18.95 to $13.99; $19.95 to $14.99; $22.95 to $17.99 ;$24.95 up to $18.99.

Group imported Elliot beige full fashioned shetland sweaters cut from $14.95, to $8.99.

Group sweaters formerly to $14.95 at $5.99.

Group Lady Milton shirts in button-down and choir boy collars, regularly to $9.95, at below cost of 1 for $2.99 or 3 for $8.50.

Entire remaining stock Lady Milton shirts in choir boy and button-down collars cut from $5.95, $6.50 and $6.95 to $4.99; $7.75 to $5.99; $8.95 to $6.99; $9.95 to $7.99 and $19.95 to $8.99.

Entire stock wool bermuda shorts regularly to $14.95, now priced at $7.99.

All Sales Cash and Final—

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

SALE
AT
THE HUB
All our Fall and Winter Apparel is greatly reduced for this Tremendous Winter Clearance Sale

SUITS ..... $39.99 up
SPORTCOATS 24.88 up
TOPCOATS .. 29.99 up
CAR COATS . 12.88 up
DRESS SLACKS 7.88 up
CORDUROYS 4.99
DRESS SHIRTS .. 2.99
NAME BRANDS . 3.99
SPORT SHIRTS 2.99 up
TIES .... 1.44 to 1.88
SWEATERS .. 20% off
HATS 7.44
GLOVES .... 20% off
SCARVES 2.99

Final Reductions
AT
THE HUB
103 E. Franklin St.
Ph. 942-1252

JUST ARRIVED
A Large Shipment of Men's and Women's BASS WEEJUNS

All Sizes And Colors
Black
Cordovan
Antique Brown
Loden Green
New Cashmere Grain
LACOCK'S SHOE STORE
E. Franklin St. - Ph. 942-4836

Historians are having a picnic in our Old Book Corner This Week! Join the Fun . . .
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 E. Franklin St.
OPEN TILL 10 P.M.

AT THE CAROLINA GRILL—IT'S
DATE NIGHT
Every Friday & Saturday Nite (8-10 P.M.) If the Gal Pays (it could be habit forming)
GLASS—10c PITCHER—50c
Try our delicious and orignal sandwiches:
Big Bull Dog
Route No. 66
Twilight Zone
King of the Sea
Big-Mo
Burger Bost
CAROLINA GRILL
312 W. Franklin

99¢ Inventory Has Got To Go
Kemp's
Prices Go All The Way Down!
FINAL SALE
Friday-Saturday Only
First L.P. Or Stereo At Regular Price—Second of Your Choice For 99c (Same Price Category)
chez Kemp Ltd.—Both Stores—Eastgate, Franklin Street
THIS SALE OPEN SAT. NIGHT UNTIL 11:59.59 P.M.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

77

Uncaring Legislature

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather

Partly Cloudy, not so cold.

Offices in Graham Memorial | SATURDAY, JANUARY 13, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

SLUSH – Snowplow on Cameron Avenue.

Driving Easier This Year After The Heavy Snowfall

Two things made driving easier in Chapel Hill after the last snowfall. The first was the new Chapel Hill snow ordinance and the second was the work of Mr. Shelton Womble, Superintendent of Public Works for the town of Chapel Hill.

Since Chapel Hill does not get many large snowfalls, there is no need for having a storage of equipment designed specially for the purpose. Chapel Hill uses two truck-plows and two road graders to plow their snow. All this equipment is used during the year for regular road work.

Standby Crew

The road crew of four men is kept on standby in case of snow or when snow is expected. They have a supply of sand and calcium chloride for icy roads. The men are regular employees of the Public Works Department.

The new ordinance states that there will be no parking in the Chapel Hill Fire District after a two-inch or greater snowfall accumulates. The Fire District includes Rosemary and Franklin streets from Spring Lane west to Carrboro city limits and all crossing streets.

This facilitates work for Mr. Womble and his crew when they must plow the entire street up to the curb. The men are authorized to move automobiles if they are parked and blocking the plows. The owner of the car must pay tow costs.

Cooperation of People

"Drivers in town," Mr. Womble stated, "should not park in the town Fire District when it is snowing or when there is a chance of snow. When the plows go to work, the signs for no parking will be put up and their cars may be towed away."

Mr. Womble, an employee of the city of Chapel Hill for 14 years, stated that, "The people cooperated very well during this last snowfall and got their cars out of the way almost as soon as the signs were up."

The Public Works Department, which controls the cemetery, sewer and sanitation works also, hires private equipment when the snow gets deeper than five or six inches. A road tractor is then used to hoist the snow into dump trucks and have it carried away.

New Snow Plow

The department, according to Mr. Womble, is better equipped than ever but he hopes to purchase a new truck plow, at the cost of $750, during this year. He feels that this past snow removal was the best job that has ever been done.

In cost, the snow removal varies from time to time according to the size of the snowfall. This particular job cost about $200 and, Mr. Womble added, "about $150 of that cost was for labor and gasoline."

SPREADING SAND – City employees at work Wednesday morning.

McNamara To Eye Aid To Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara will make a series of monthly trips to Hawaii to personally supervise increased U. S. aid to meet the mounting Communist threat to South Viet Nam, it was announced Friday.

McNamara, who will make his first rush flight Sunday to Pacific fleet headquarters, was described by a spokesman as determined that "no stone be left unturned" in helping the South Vietnamese against Viet Cong Communist guerrillas.

The secretary's trip was disclosed after Frederick E. Nolting, Jr., U. S. Ambassador t South Viet Nam gave President Kennedy a first-hand report on the worsening situation in the tiny Southeast Asian country.

The State Department said no immediate new crisis prompted McNamara's trip. Rather it is part of increased U. S. efforts to deal with a situation in which Communist-led guerrillas have been stepping up their raids against South Viet Nam.

In a related development, the department announced that Averell Harriman, assistant secretary of state for the Far East, would fly to Geneva this weekend for meetings early next week between the three rival princes of Laos. The princes are trying to work out a coalition government.

At the same time, the department announced that it had resumed U. S. financial aid to the government of Prince Boun Oum by forwarding a $3 million check for January. Aid was held up after Boun Oum broke up a meeting between the three princes in Vientiane, the Laotian capital, several weeks ago.

McNamara was scheduled to leave Washington for Hawaii Sunday afternoon and be back Tuesday to prepare for congressional hearings on the defense budget.

Accompanying him will be Nolting; Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and a group of other top advisers on southeast Asia.

Thompson, Gromyko Battle

MOSCOW (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko held their second sparring round on Berlin Friday and indications were the three-hour session was a tough one.

The two men met in Gromyko's office in the skyscraper building housing the foreign ministry. This sessino was 40 minutes longer than Thompson's first probe of Soviet intentions on Berlin Jan. 2.

There was no official statement after the meeting. Thompson simply confirmed that it was a continuation of the probing for avenues of reaching agreement with the Soviets on Berlin and Germany. Asked whether he was optimistic or pessimistic, he commented: "I don't think I can say anything."

Thompson said he would send a report on the meeting to Washington at once. He also was expected to brief the British, French and West German ambassadors as he did after the first meeting with Gromyko.

ECONOMICS SEMINAR

Donald W. Taylor, Yale University psychology professor, will speak on "Problem Solving and Decision Making" at a UNC seminar in economics and business at 4 p.m. this Wednesday in the faculty seminar room on the third floor of Carroll Hall.

Laos Receives Aid After Short Delay

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — The Laotian government of Premier Prince Boun Oum Friday received its monthly aid allotment of $4 million from the United States after a 12-day delay.

At the same time, it was announced that Boun Oum would leave Sunday for Geneva for talks with the neutralist and pro-Communist Laotian princes on formation of a coalition government.

Although neither Laotian nor American officials would comment, the decision to release the funds was believed prompted by Boun Oum's acceptance of the invitation from the 14-nation conference on Laos to meet in the Swiss city with neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma and Prince Souphanouvong of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

The United States was known to have been disturbed by the collapse of scheduled princely talks here last month. The breakdown generally was blamed on the insistence of Boun Oum's right-wing faction that it retain the key defense and interior ministries in a future coalition regime.

The delay in releasing the funds stirred speculation that the United States was applying economic presures to break the impasse and speed a solution to the Laotian crisis.

While Boun Oum will go to Geneva, it was made clear the right-wing faction intended to maintain its tough attitude.

Deputy Premier Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, the recognized strongman in the Boun Oum regime, declared in a belligerent speech this week that the government will not give up its fight to keep the defense and interior police posts. Phoumi will go to Geneva with Boun Oum.

Souvanna and Souphanouvong also have accepted the invitations from Britain and Russia, co-chairmen of the conference in Geneva. Souvanna is in Europe. The Communist Chinese news agency said Souphanouvong will leave rebel headquarters in the Plain of Jars for Geneva "very shortly."

Peiping radio also broadcast claims by the Pathet Lao that the rebel forces had "routed" three government battalions in fighting at Muong Sai in northwestern Laos. The rebels also said there had been fighting in other areas during the "past fortnight."

The communist rebels claimed 100 government troops were killed and 30 taken prisoners while "others" surrendered.

Contemplated For Years

Major Army Shakeup Expected Next Week

Protests Expected From Army Brass

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The administration will announce next Tuesday a shakeup in the Army department so controversial it is certain to bring protests from Army officers and meet criticism in Congress.

Contemplated for years, the reorganization is one that former Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett once said it would be no more painful for government leaders than backing into a buzz saw. But he agreed it should be carried out.

The final plan was developed by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and approved by President Kennedy. Chiefly affected are such old line technical services as the ordnance, chemical, quartermaster, signal and transportation corps.

Asked about the plan, a Defense Department spokesman said the Army would "have something to say about this" Tuesday.

Draws Sharp Protest

Some details of the plan have been leaking out for weeks. The authoritative Army - Navy - Air Force Journal said Friday that the reorganization already had "drawn sharp protests from a number of senior officers."

The office of the chief of engineers, which is responsible for civilian and military construction projects, and the office of the surgeon general, will hold their own. But other technical services will disappear or be absorbed in new commands.

The plan calls for two new commands—material development and logistics command, and combat and combat developments command. The continental Army command will take over nearly all training including that now conducted by technical services.

Just before he left office in 1952, Lovett sent a memorandum then President Harry S. Truman in which he said the technical services overlapped and complicated the problem of administration and control.

Lovett said he was amazed that the system worked at all, and added: "A reorganization of the technical services would be no more painful than backing into a buzz-saw but I believe that it is long overdue."

Student-Faculty Seminar Slated For This Monday

The first in a series of student-faculty seminars of the School of Public Health, on Public Health and Medical Care Administration, will be held here Monday.

The guest speaker will be Dr. L. S. Goerke, associate dean of the School of Public Health of the University of California at Los Angeles. His subject will be "Medical Care, Southern California Variety."

The program will be held in the Assembly Room of the Louis R. Wilson Library at 3 p.m. The public is invited.

This particular program is sponsored by the Departments of Epidemiology and Parasitology of the UNC School of Public Health.

The next seminar in the series will be held on Feb. 12. At that time, Dr. Cecil Sheps, professor of medical and hospital administration of the Graduate School of Public Health, University of Pittsburgh, will be guest speaker.

'Country Only Weak As Fears' AFROTC Told

"Our country is only as strong as the hopes or as weak as the fears of its people," Chaplain Oscar L. Sylwester, Capt. USAF, told AFROTC cadets Thursday.

Chaplain Sylwester's speech "Dynamics of Spiritual Leadership," was delivered during the unit's Leadership Laboratory. Sylwester is Chaplain at Pope Air Force Base at Fayetteville.

The Cadets, as future leaders of men were challenged to bring out what "no firing squad can kill," to "bring out what is within."

Battle for Minds

The true conflict is not between Communism and the West, the Chaplain emphasized, but is a "battle for the mind." Communism is an attempt to "denature man," he stated, and it seeks to break down the "moral fabric of man."

Sylwester commented that while "980 million people and one-third of the earth's surface are under Communist control, only 3½ per cent of Russians are Communists."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Dr. Sukarno

Belgian Airliner On Way Home

MOSCOW—A Belgian Sabena Airliner forced down over Soviet territory by Mig jets Monday with 18 passengers aboard arrived Friday en route to Brussels.

Pilot Freddy Moureau confirmed that a defective radio compass caused the plane to stray off course on a flight from Tehran to Istanbul and said it had been repaired with the help of Soviet technicians.

★ ★ ★

Drastic Plan Possible In Algeria

PARIS—Government sources said Friday France is planning drastic measures to combat growing chaos and bloodshed in Algeria.

The death toll exceeds 170 in the strife between Europeans and Moslems since New Year's Day. Government officials were concerned over the posibility of civil war.

★ ★ ★

Pakistan Asks UN Hearing

UNITED NATIONS—Pakistan Friday requested that the Security Council again consider the Indo-Pakistani dispute over Kashmir as a threat to international peace.

A U.N. spokesman said that a date for the council meeting will not be set until next Monday, when the 16th General Assembly reconvenes following the holiday recess.

★ ★ ★

Two Biggest Railroads Merge

NEW YORK—The nation's two biggest railroads—the Pennsylvania and the New York Central—announced Friday plans to merge, subject to government approval, into a $5.5 billion transportation system.

The Interstate Commerce Commission ICC, which must pass on all rail consolidation, was certain to take a long and hard look at a merger that would create by far the largest rail network in the country.

Tri-Delt Scholarship Available

The nineteenth annual Tri Delta General Scholarship Fund Competition is open January 1-March 1.

The total amount of the awards granted on this campus may not exceed $300. The scholarships will be forwarded to the winners at the beginning of the term for which they are awarded and may be used for the 1962 summer session. Successful candidates will be notified on May 15.

Application forms can be obtained from Miss Nancy Adams in the Dean of Women's Office, 202 South Building.

There is no restriction as to race, creed, color or sorority membership but the students should show "promise of valuable service in their future communities."

GINA LOLLOBRIGIDA

'Never So Few' Tonight's Flick With F. Sinatra

Tonight's Free Flick features "Never So Few" starring Frank Sinatra, Gina Lollabrigida, Peter Lawford, and Bian Donlevy.

The story involves an American Army captain, played by Frank Sinatra, who leads a handful of guerrilla troops against overwhelming Japanese forces during World War II.

The plot is complicated by the captain's diplomatic battle with his military superiors and the competition for his luxury loving mistress in Calcutta (Gina Lollabrigida).

The movie will be presented in Carroll Hall at 7:30 and 9:30. Students must show I.. cards.

No smoking or refreshments are allowed in the auditorium.

Infirmary

These in the nifirmary yesterday included: Marion Berryhill, Martha Myers, Lilliam Ennis, Mrs. Andrea Longenecker, Jan Bryant, Dale Robinson, Benton McMillan, Edward Smith, Edwin Kerr, Walter Lemmond, John Chaffin, James Fain, Joseph Langdon Fred Thompson, Richard McGovern, David Sapp.

Douglas Reed, Robert Burns, Thomas Baggett, Charles Vollmer, Wallace Cox, Stephen Dennis, William Taylor, Robert Deal, Tim Keese, William Benedict, James Rogers, Kerry Nordon, Richard Fuller, Robert Bolan, Hugo Specker ,and Emily Sweet.

Campus Briefs

Application blanks for those interested in the Goettingen scholarship are now available at the YMCA, the German department, and the circulation desk in the library.

* * *

The UNC Student Wives will meet Tuesday evening at 8:00 on the second floor of Graham Memorial for an End of the Fall Semester party. Featured will be Bridge, entertainment by members of the club, and lessons on the Twist and the Limbo.

* * *

The UNC School of Public Health will present a program on "Ions in the Atmosphere—Do They Affect Man's Health?" at 10 a.m. on January 13. Dr. David A. Fraser of the school's Department of Sanitary Engineering will speak in the Public Health building.

Graduated In 1916, '18

Two Carolina Men Retiring In June

Chancellor Emeritus Robert B. House will retire from teaching at the end of the current academic year and Albert M. Coates will retire as director of the Institute of Government, although he will continue his duties as a Law School professor.

Their retirement, along with that of four other prominent UNC faculty members, was announced by Chancellor William B. Aycock following a meeting of the Board of Trustees' executive committee this week.

Chancellor House retired from his administrative duties as required by the state regulations that University administrators must retire at the age of 65 but may continue to teach until the ago of 70. Since then he has taught classes in classics and English.

Founder of Institute

Mr. Coates founded the Institute of Government in 1931 and has served as its director since that time. He graduated from UNC in 1918 and joined the Law School here in 1923 after receiving a law degree from Harvard.

Mr. House graduated from UNC in 1916 and received the M. A. degree from Harvard. He held major administrative posts from 1926 until 1957.

The four other professors whose retirements were announced at the same time are Dr. John W. Lasley Jr., Dr. Milton S. Heath, Margaret Blee and Ruth Hay.

Longest Teaching Career

Dr. Lasley, a professor in the mathematics department, has a longer teaching career than any other member of the faculty. He entered the University in 1906 at the age of 14. He became an instructor upon his graduation and later received the M.A. degree here and the Ph.D. at the University of Chicago. He also studied at John Hopkins University. He is

(Continued on Page 3)

MATH COLLOQUIUM

Professor J. R. Schoenfield of Duke University will speak on "Applications of Orders of Unsolvability" at a UNC mathematics colloquium at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 17, in 383 Phillips Hall.

TRAFFIC DEATHS

North Carolina traffic deaths in 1962 had killed twelve persons as of last Monday, Jan. 8. Seventeen had been killed as of that date in 1961.

Wedding

Olivia Erickson Huske will be wed to John Stanley Warren at 5 this afternoon in the Chapel of the Cross. The Rev. Jake Viverette will officiate. Miss Huske and Mr. Warren wish to invite all friends to attend, "especially their Lenoir Hall Friends."

Angel Flight Elects New Commander

Judy Anne Johnson of Burlington was elected Commander of the UNC Angel Flight of the Air Force ROTC this week. She will hold her position for the next year.

Also elected to offices were: Ann Daniels of Charlotte, Executive Officer; Sue Himelick of Durham, Administrative Services Officer; Muff Greason of Morristown, N. J., Assistant Administrative Services Officer; Nancy Tillman of Raleigh, Comptroller; Mary Ann Noble of Fort George G. Meade, Md., Information Officer; and Gail Crockett of Quantico, Va., Chaplain. These officers will hold their positions for the Spring semester only.

The officers hold the following honorary ranks: Commander-Major; Executive Officer-Captain; Administrative Services Officer-1st Lt.; Ass't Administrative Services Officer-2nd Lt.; Comptroller-1st Lt.; and Information Officer-1st Lt.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 13, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 77

Uncaring Legislators

Discussion of the new election laws ground to a premature halt in the last meeting of Student Legislature when it was discovered that ten members had left the hall, bringing the total present below the quorum necessary for a vote.

According to the Student Legislature roll, the meeting opened with 30 members present, seven more than the necessary quorum. During discussion, 10 members left, reducing the number to 20, three less than the number required.

Of 50 legislative seats, only 20 were filled when an important piece of legislation was due to come to a vote. This is a disturbing fact considering that the Student Legislature is the heart of student government.

It is even more disturbing when one considers that of the 50 seats available, only 44 are filled at present due to resignations. One seat has been empty since the resignation of veteran legislator Chip Woodrum last spring upon his graduation. The failure to appoint a replacement in seven months is an inexcusable show of disinterest and inefficiency on the part of the party which controls the seat.

Of the 44 legislators still active, only 20 had the interest or felt the obligation to attend the meeting and stay until the bill was acted upon. With this sort of shirking of responsibility, it is hardly surprising that Student Legislature is often inordinately slow in acting on bills. Some of the legislators absent, we are sure, had valid reasons. However, we are equally sure that some did not.

The Legislature will face an imposing array of bills in the coming months, including honor system legislation, budget appropriations totaling well over $100,000 and action concerning the student constitution. All these will be time-consuming and important. None of them can, or should be, acted upon by a skeleton Legislature. It would be wise for that body to consider tightening up its policy concerning absences.

As for unfilled seats, it would be a simple matter to deny a party control of any seat which is allowed to stand vacant for more than two meetings. Turning control of the seat over to the opposing party after that period would be an effective means of insuring that seats stay filled.

As things now stand, disinterested legislators and delinquent parties are denying representation to much of the campus and unnecessarily stalling action on legislation.

Coates Can't Retire

It doesn't seem either possible or right that Albert Coates is about to retire as director of the Institute of Government. Of course, the Institute he fathered and raised to such a useful maturity will keep right on being so very useful to the people of North Carolina. But it just won't seem exactly like the Institute of Government without Albert Coates actually being its director.

Those of us who aren't so very old can remember so well the days when Professor Coates was riding up and down North Carolina seeking support for his idea for such an Institute of Government. We can remember how he used to come to Raleigh on his own time and at his own expense to buttonhole legislators and tell them of what this idea could mean to all the people of the State. He was such a persistent buttonholer, and such a patient talker. It took him a long time to really get enough money to turn the Institute into anything more than a dream, but that is understandable when one remembers how hard it was to find any sort of money in the early 1930's.

The Institute is a big thing now, with a big building and a big staff and a big job. Fortunately, its bigness hasn't gotten in the way of its only reason for existing: The doing of a job for all the people. It has continued to do that with the same care and the same enthusiasm it showed when its only staff was a man named Albert Coates.

It has provided excellent training for so many public officials. It has helped public officials explain their jobs to their own people, and such explaining sometimes doesn't come easy but is more valuable the harder it is to do.

The Institute has provided the excellent service of sending out detailed reports of legislative action, on new bills, committee action, amendments to bills, etc. Its legislative reporters have had the time and the skill to do the digging which makes its service of such value to the newspapers, to others of the State.

The law says that Albert Coates must retire as director of the Institute because he is now 65. The law may force somebody to take his name off the door of the director's office, but as long as there is a really good Institute of Government functioning as part of the University, the work Albert Coates did in forming it and helping it grow up will still be a major factor in directing its work.

—The Raleigh Times

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIAL STAFF

WAYNE KING.....Editor
MARGARET ANN RHYMES—Associate Editor
LLOYD LITTLE—Executive News Editor
BILL HOBBS.....Managing Editor
JIM CLOTFELTER, BILL WUAMETT—News Editors
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor
CHUCK MOONEY.....Feature Editor
HARRY LLOYD.....Sports Editor
ED DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
GARRY BLANCHARD—Contributing Editor

BUSINESS STAFF

TIM BURNETT....Business Manager
MIKE MATHERS—Advertising Manager
JIM EVANS..Subscription Manager
JIM ESKRIDGE—Circulation Manager

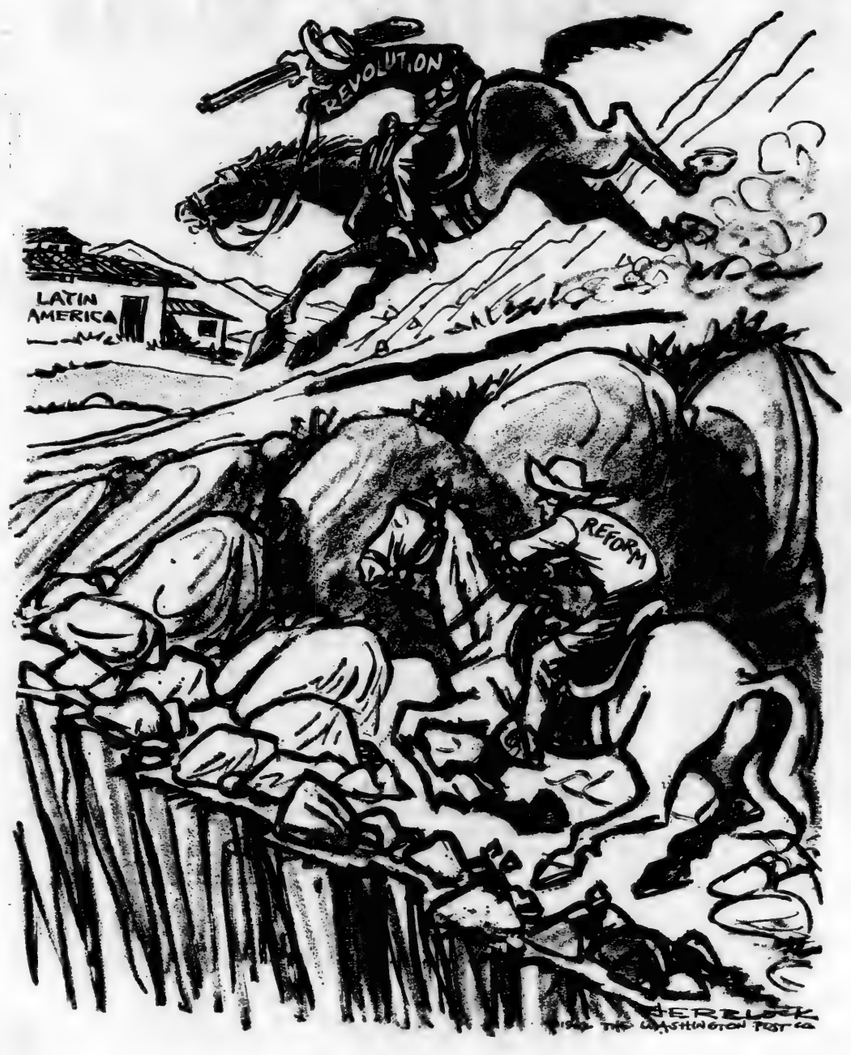
THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Race To The Rancho



AMA Poses Friend To All Except Self

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Which group do you imagine was the biggest lobbyist in Washington during the first half of 1961? Which group spent the most money as a means of influencing legislation in the Congress of the United States?

It was none other than our old friend, the American Medical Asm. For the first six months of 1961, a Congressional Quarterly study of spending reports shows the AMA topped the 274 lobby organizations with half-year expenditures of $146,694.

This was nearly $80,000 more than the second-running group is the listings, the AFL-CIO. Most of the AMA money was spent in opposing the Administration's proposals for medical care for the aged through Social Security.

Now there is no doubt that the AMA has a right to do this—indeed, has a duty to do this if it believes such a program is against the best national interest. But what are some of the other bills that the AMA lobbied against—and effectively—during the year?

It opposed Social Security benefits for physicians, liberalized Social Security disability benefits, creation of a U. S. Commission of Aging, and several proposals for expanding medical treatment under the Veterans Administration.

And what did the AMA lend its support to? Bills to provide construction grants to medical schools, to give doctor and other professional people a tax break on income set aside for retirement, and to grant deductions for lobbying expenses.

In addition, the AMA said it was submitting this lobby information "under protest," because it did not consider itself subject to the Federal law regulating lobbies.

The bills the AMA supported would take money away from the U. S. Treasury, but the doctors are most zealous that no money be taken away by other segments of the population, where medical care is concerned.

Now, the AMA has a legal right to do this—to ask as much for itself as it can get, and to oppose the milking of the Treasury by other groups. But then the AMA has no right to put itself on a pedestal and to resent criticism of itself as a trade association.

For this is what the record shows it to be—a group no better and no worse than the labor unions, the farm interests, the truckers, the steamship companies or the post office clerks. Devotion to the public, and the sacred duty of medicine, have little to do with the case. It is time the AMA stopped posing as a friend to anyone except itself.

Our New Stake In Vietnam

Fresh details are slowly emerging from reticent Administration sources about the expanded program of American participation in South Vietnam's anti-Communist struggle.

From now on Americans will be flying Vietnamese troops into battle and accompanying them in combat on the ground; Americans will help run the Vietnamese intelligence system, assist in military planning and have a voice in measures to improve social and economic conditions. If some of the more than 2,000 Americans now in South Vietnam get shot at in combat dones, they are authorized to shoot back.

These new arrangements, added to the many other steps the United States has taken to bolster South Vietnam, represent a very extensive American commitment. Americans certainly will be shot at; some will almost certainly be killed. Communist China has just sent to Hanoi a Chinese military mission headed by Marshal Yeh Chien-ying, Vice Chairman of the National Defense Council in Peiping. Marshal Yeh is a tough and capable soldier well known to many Americans as the Communist member of the truce agency set up by General Marshall during the latter's attempt fifteen years ago to halt warfare between the Nationalists and Communists in China. It can be assumed that Marshal Yeh will, with North Vietnam leaders, try to counter the stepped up American-Vietnamese effort in the South.

The extensive new American involvement in South Vietnam has been made on the basis of parallel commitments by President Ngo Dinh Diem to improve his regime. The effectiveness of what the United States is doing will largely depend on how far he proceeds in this respect. He has made commendable moves. Military pay is to be increased, command channels improved; he will consult frequently with his advisory National Council and take new steps against nepotism and corruption. We do not yet know whether these and other actions he contemplates will be sufficient to produce the governmental efficiency and popular morale required for the struggle ahead.

What is certain is that the increased American stake and American risk in South Vietnam now needs, more than ever to be accompanied by a fresh, resilient and imaginative effort by President Ngo to mobilize resources for a fight that is certain to get harder before it get is certain to get harder before it gets easier. President Kennedy can only justify the new United States role to the American people on this basis.

—NEW YORK TIMES

Many, Many Answers Would Be Needed

There is a movement on foot in Raleigh to revive the Dixie Basketball Classic as a purely commercial venture, with private sponsors handling it. If the Classic is to be revived, this would be the best way to do so, but there are many points which should be considered before there is any real consideration given to the idea.

First and foremost, this question should be answered: Would State and Carolina participate? That leads to another similar question: Should Carolina and State be permitted to participate in such a tournament?

Until those two questions are answered, there could be no realy serious consideration given to reviving the classic as a commercial venture. In their statements killing the Dixie Classic as an aftermath of the basketball scandals, the heads of the Consolidated University talked about athletic participation not directly connected with the campuses. Presumably, unless there should be a change in that thinking, State and Carolina wouldn't be permitted to play in a revived Dixie Classic.

Actually, if the University heads wish to keep basketball on a level below the highly emphasized state which it had reached at both State and Carolina, it is doubtful if the teams should be permitted to participate in such a non-campus-connected tournament.

The next thing to be considered would be whether a Dixie Classic without State and Carolina would go over. There is much interest in basketball in this section, but would that interest hold up without the presence of State and Carolina?

Would such a commercial tournament be able to draw the really top-flight teams of the country? It is true the tournament probably would be commercial in name only since it presumably would be a non-profit thing, but it still would be commercial.

Maybe there should be a Dixie Classic. Goodness only knows it would add much to the merriment of the Christmas holidays in this whole section of the state.

But if there is to be one, get some real, solid answers before going too far into the deal.

—RALEIGH TIMES

Cuba And The OAS Problem

The chanceries of the Western Hemisphere are busy these days preparing possible resolutions for the foreign ministers' meeting of the Organization of American States on January 22 in Punta del Este, Uruguay. The aim is to agree on a collective attitude toward Cuba. Meanwhile, as he announced at a military celebration in Havana this week, Premier Castro is preparing a monster rally for the same day "to reply to (Yankee) imperialism and its lackeys."

The issues are far more complicated than North Americans seem willing to admit. There is no firm evidence, for instance, that Premier Castro's defiant proclamation of his and his revolution's "Marxism-Leninism" has influenced the situation in a significant way. Neverthless, Washington hopes that its White Paper on Cuban communism, published on Jan. 3, will impress Latin Americans by its massive array of facts. These facts could have come as no surprise in any Latin-American capital; but there has been a tendency below the Rio Grande to look the other way when Cuban communism is mentioned.

It has to be recognized that there are subtle but important differences between the United States and the Latin-American attitude toward Fidelismo. Our basic concern is with the cold war, which is a matter of national life and death to us. Latin-American Governments are all anti-Communist internally and they all fear the possibility of Castro-type social revolutions, whatever they are labeled. They try to prevent Cuban subversion in their countries. However, they think the cold war only touches them indirectly; local Communist movements are weak, and the Latin Americans do not have our intense fear of "international communism." They fear and dislike United States interventionism even more. Besides — to be realistic, if cynical — they profit by our reaction to Fidelismo. The Alliance for Progress plan is, essentially, the United States answer to Fidel Castro.

All things considered, some careful and skillful diplomacy will be required before the foreign ministers' conference. The essential problem is to censure and isolate Cuba without dividing and weakening the O. A. S.

—NEW YORK TIMES

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Freedom Of The Press–Today

A REPORTER is required to report what he believes is the truth and he is responsible for what he writes. When an Ambassador calls a reporter into his office and complains that his published reports do not correspond with the Abassador's reports to the State Department, the reporter should notify his publisher, who should print the story of the illegal interference on the front page of his newspaper. When an Ambassador tells a reporter that the latter is confusing "liberalism" with communism, the reporter should tell the Ambassador to go to the Devil after reading to him the First Amendment to the Constitution.

A reporter tells me that when he described "Che" Guevara, then an adviser to Jacobo Arbenz of Guatemala, as a Commnnist and said Guevara was a liaison between Arbenz and the Soviet Embassy in Mexico City, the Ambassador was particularly annoyed. This Ambassador was ultimately removed and the issue is not the particular man, who was succeeded by a first rate anti-Communist. The issue is the danger that comes to the United States when such men hold important offices and a President and a Secretary of State depend upon them for information tion to returning Communists or Fellow-Travelers are imitation Joe McCarthys. It is the United States that needs to be protected, and when men are appointed to office solely because they were dismissed under pressure by McCarthy, the United States may suffer. McCarthy must have been right about some things, None of this developed in the Eisenhower or Kennedy Administrations but goes way back to 1952 and it seems silly to bring up this old stuff now for the sole purpose of giving a job to someone who had either been a Communist or had used bad judgment.

* * *

NO ONE WHO realizes the seriousness of the moment wants a renewal of the excitement of the McCarthy days; on the other hand, whoever permits the gang that brought on that excitement by their treacherous conduct to return to office, is not serving this country. It may be true that some are emotionally pledged to support and protect those who have "suffered" because of congressional investigations, but the fact remains that the peril becomes very grave to this country when small men O. K. appointments and policies about which responsible men only know when they read what they are responsible for in the newspapers. It is now not important which Administration has been responsible for the suppression of and guidance.

It is an error of judgment for the President or the Secretary of State to assume that those who call attenfacts. What is important is that we find out who the little boys are who set themselves up to play at greatness. Unfortunately the American people are as weary of what they call the Extreme Right as they are of the Extreme Left, but the truth is unrelated to whether anyone is Right or Left, extreme or moderate.

Sooner or later, facts will come out. Even in a dictatorial country like Soviet Russia, the facts ultimately come to the surface, as Khrushchev told what he knew about Stalin or as Trotsky wrote in his magnificent history of the Russian Revolution.

The politician who believes that he can cover up errs. There is always a leak always an exclamation of horror at discovery. It is usual for the politician to seek to destroy truth by calling it gossip, hearsay, but the wise man never rejects gossip or hearsay or rumor until he is sure that he is not being tricked.

* * *

THE POLITICAL GENIUS of modern times was, beyond doubt, Talleyrand, who established the European system that prevailed for a century. Talleyrand always found ways of uncovering those who tried to make France a lesser country. He never permitted himself not to know, and it was because Talleyrand created so effective an intelligence service that France survived through all the frightful years from the Revolution to the Congress of Vienna.

Talleyrand was never tricked by incorrect data, for he believed no one person but an indisputable fact. He knew that the usual weakness of a politician was to deny, to delay investigation, to mistranslate and mislead so that those on top were betrayed by their own underlings. No man is more clever than his accesses to intelligence.

—WASHINGTON POST

Reflections

First things come first, we suppose.

Extremely unofficial word has it that a recent high-level conference between a Russian official and an American went like this:

RUSSIAN: When do the Americans plan to put a man through space in a rocket?

AMERICAN: I'm not sure. We're still trying to get a Negro through Alabama on a bus.

McCormack Says JFK Will Push Proposals Thru

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Speaker John W. McCormack predicted Thursday that President Kennedy would be "very successful" in pushing his legislative proposals through Congress. A postal rate hike was given top priority for early action.

At his first formal news conference since his election as speaker, the Massachusetts Democrat declined to forecast specifically the probable fate of the most controversial proposals Kennedy made in his State of the Union speech Thursday.

But other key lawmakers saw the outlook as ranking from poor to excellent for such presidential programs as aid to schools, medical care for the aged, tax revision, liberal new tariff-cutting power and higher postal rates for letters and post cards.

McCormack said Thursday that he favored federal aid for both public and private schools but would vote for assistance to just public schools if that were the only bill available.

He was pictured by some last year as the leader of Catholic opposition to the administration bill to provide aid for public schools only.

May Be First

The speaker said Friday the bill to increase postage rates for first class letters from four to five cents and for post cards from three to four cents would be one of the first, if not the first, of Kennedy's proposals to be put to a vote in the House. Other mail rates also would be boosted.

The measure, which would bring in an extra $631 million a year in postal revenue, is ready and waiting for action. It may come up as early as the week after next. Its chances of passage are good.

The new federal budget Kennedy will send to Congress next week was expected to show a narrow surplus, based in part on the assumption that Congress will approve the higher postage rates.

In a general appraisal of Kennedy's program and its chances for passages, McCormack said:

"In the last session of Congress the President had a remarkable record of achievement. At least 34 of his important recommendations were enacted into law, which was a remarkable achievement. I am satisfied that in this session of Congress . . . He also will have a very successful session."

DR. LUCY S. MORGAN

WHO Renews 3rd Term Of UNC Health Teacher

Dr. Lucy S. Morgan of UNC has been appointed to her third five-year term as a member of the World Health Organization Expert Advisory Panel on Health Education of the Public.

Dr. Morgan, who was first appointed to this United Nations organization in 1951, is professor of public health education of the UNC School of Public Health.

In 1957 she served on the World Health Organization Expert Committee on Training of Health Personnel in Health Education of the Public. She also served as a short-term consultant for the World Health Organization in 1956-58.

Dr. Morgan is currently on leave from the University, serving as a health education consultant for the World Health Organization in the Western Pacific and Southeast Aisa. For the next three months, she will be teaching at the High Institute of Public Health in Alexandria, Egypt.

Dr. Morgan has been on the faculty of the UNC School of Public Health since 1942. She holds degrees from the University of Tennessee, Columbia University, and her Ph.D. degree was awarded by Yale University.

Meantime, the White House said it had received a heavy and favorable public response to Kennedy's State of the Union message.

State Dept. Plans To Deny Passports To Communists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department Friday announced new regulations that deny pasaports to members of the U. S. Communist party. But they permit anyone accused of membership to confront and question his accusers.

The department said it intended to invoke the new rules first against "the outstanding passports of certain leading officers and members" of the Communist party. It can act after the rules are published in the Federal Register in about two weeks.

Roger W. Jones, deputy undersecretary of state for administration, said the new regulations undoubtedly would spart coontroversy in Congress and elsewhere.

But he said the administration believed it was on firm ground.

Might Be Criticism

Congressional sources said the action might run into some strong criticism on grounds that it might tie the hands of officials who would be unable to deny passports without disclosing confidential sources of information about suspected subversives.

The regulations provide that a passport "shall not be issued to or renewed for any individual who the issuing officer knows or had reason to believe is a member of a Communist organization registered or required to be registered under the Subversive Activities Control Act."

Unlike passport rules which the Supreme Court declared invalid in 1958, the regulations require that the evidence against an individual be fully disclosed to him if he is denied a passport.

The department said any person denied a passport on Communist grounds would have the right to "appear, to be represented by counsel, to present evidence, to be informed of the evidence against him and the source of such evidence, and to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses."

Must Present Evidence

A decision to deny a passport will be based only on evidence presented to the applicant. This means the department could not deny a passport if it was unwilling to disclose confidential information—perhaps to protect a secret informant.

The State Department said it drew up the regulations after consultations with the Justice Department and notified the appropriate Congressional committees that they were to be issued.

On June 16, 1958, the Supreme Court ruled that the State Department had no authority to refuse passports to artist Rockwell Kent and psychiatrist Walter Briehl because they refused to file non-Communist affidavits.

After that ruling, the State Department said it lacked power to refuse passports to Communists. At least 400 party members are estimated to hold passports now.

GOP Predicts JFK Proposals Won't Be Passed

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (UPI) —The Republican National Committee met in Oklahoma City Friday and one of its leaders predicted that not much of President Kennedy's program will get through Congress.

The leader was Rep. Bob Wilson of California, chairman of the GOP Congressional Campaign Committee. He said Kennedy's program is designed "to offer goodies to everyone and make economic serfs out of the majority of Americans."

"I don't think Mr. Kennedy is going to get much of his program through and I think it's going to boomerang against him in the 1962 elections," Wilson said.

Representatives from all 50 states attended the national committee meeting. They set their sights of regaining control of Congress and winning other offices in the 1962 elections.

Kennedy's State of the Union message came under heavy fire.

Miller Opposes Plan

Rep. William E. Miller, R-N.Y., GOP national chairman, said he oppose giving the President standby authority to decrease taxes or increase public works spending, because it could be abused in an election year.

"If all the things Kennedy asked for should become law, that will be the last State of the Union message," Miller said, "because there won't be any more union."

He charged that Kennedy had lost touch with what the people want.

"We think our chances are very good for winning a majority in Congress," he said.

Engineers Reach Peru Area

HUARAZ, Peru (UPI)—Army engineers reached the devastated areas of Mt. Huascaran Friday to aid those who escaped with their lives when a 6-million ton mass of ice, snow and mud obliterated a dozen villages, killing more than 3,000 persons.

The engineers dug into a 40-foot high mass of rubble with picks and shovels in a near-hopeless search for any who might still be alive. The engineers, on the 200-mile road from Lima for more than 24 hours, left heavy equipment behind to force their way into Huaylas canyon during a break in the weather.

Heavy rains and fog sealed off the disaster zone from the world again only three hours after their arrival. Three Air Force planes with relief supplies were forced to fly over the region.

RUBE GOLDBERG, MAYBE?

Some of Carolina's aspiring art connoisseurs aren't as perceptive as they might be—and at least two of them have been awakened to their shortcomings.

The pair, after haggling for a bit in discussion of a new addition to the collection in Harry's Restaurant on Franklin Street, took their argument to Proprietor Harry Macklin for settlement.

"Who painted that one, Harry?" one asked. "I say a student did it, he says it's done by a professional."

"Well, I don't know who painted it," Harry answered, "but what you're pointing at is the front of the air conditioner."

Two Men

(Continued from Page 1)

the co-author of three mathematics textbooks.

Dr. Heath is a professor of economics in the School of Business Administration. He joined the faculty here in 1925. A native of Kansas, he received the A.B. degree at the University of Kansas and later received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard.

Prof. Blee is a native of Missouri and received her training in public health nursing at the University of Missouri, Vanderbilt University and St. Joseph's Hospital School of Nursing in Kansas City. She joined the faculty here in 1941 and became a professor in 1958.

Prof. Hay is a native of Ohio. She received her B.A. degree at Ohio Wesleyan and also attended Western Reserve University and Lakeside Hospital School of Nursing in Cleveland. She joined the School of Public Health faculty in 1941.

3 Ex-Presidents To Be Informed

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

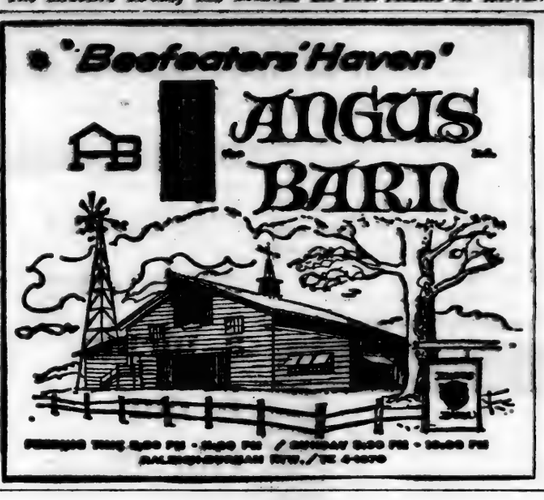
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The three living ex-Presidents of the United States will be kept abreast of developments pertaining to the nation's defense posture and relations abroad.

On direct orders of President Kennedy, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Harry S. Truman and Herbert Hoover will be given periodic intelligence briefings by high government officials, it was learned Friday.

The directive already has been put into effect. Now Central Intelligence Agency director John A. McCone visited Eisenhower's winter retreat in Palm Springs, Calif., Friday to give him a rundown.

The White House said the Eisenhower briefing consisted generally of a review of developments in the past year and an intelligence evaluation of problems facing the nation this year.

Next week end, McCone is scheduled to visit Truman at Independence, Mo., for a similar briefing. A date is being arranged for the first resume for Hoover.

"Beefeaters' Haven"
ANGUS BARN


Tareyton delivers the flavor
DUAL FILTER DOES IT!

TV Schedule

WTVD—Channel 11

5:30—WTVD Dance Party
6:30—Roaring Twenties
7:30—Perry Mason
8:30—Golden Showcase
9:30—Have Gun, Will Travel
10:00—Gunsmoke
11:00—Three Star Final
11:15—Saturday Night Country Style

WRAL—Channel 5

5:30—Wrestling
6:30—Porter Wagoner
7:00—The Hathaways
7:30—Tales of Wells Fargo
8:30—Tall Man
9:00—Untouchables
10:00—All Star Bowling
11:00—Dateline
11:10—Movie of the Week

WUNC-TV Channel 4

6:00—Big Picture
6:30—Aspect
7:00—Health
7:30—Neighbor Moon
8:00—Memoirs
8:30—Suburban
9:30—Sign Off

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

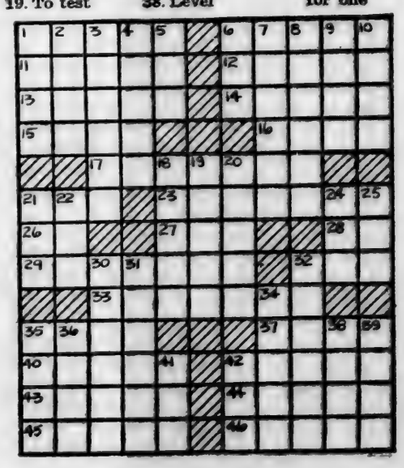
Get Better Grades With Study Aids
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Wall recess
6. Pertaining to a duke
11. Mistake
12. Silly
13. "—— and Punishment"
14. Jaeger gulls
15. Glacial hill
16. Egyptian goddess
17. Gas
21. Distress signal
23. Pancake pan
26. Ahead
27. Pole
28. Word of disgust
29. To take as true
32. Affirmative vote
33. Introduces
35. Type assortment (print.)
37. Not closed
40. Musical instrument
42. One's energy
43. Genus of palm trees
44. Ventilated
45. Man's nickname
46. Bearings

DOWN
1. Head support
2. God of war (Babyl.)
3. Forms into curls
4. A home run (baseball)
5. Before (poet.)
6. Underworld god
7. Cruel
8. Brought about
9. White ant (Phil. Islands)
10. Minus
18. Monsters
19. To test
20. Helper
21. Wasp
22. Single unit
24. To place
25. Female sheep
26. Loiter
31. Unimpaired
32. To long for
34. Gateway (Jap.)
35. Spume
36. Strange (Scot.)
38. Level
39. Boy's nickname (poss.)
41. Negative vote
42. Hoover, for one

Yesterday's Answer



VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST
GLENN FORD BETTE DAVIS
HOPE LANGE ARTHUR O'CONNELL
FRANK CAPRA'S Pocketful of Miracles
PANAVISION COLOR

"Tareyton's Dual Filter in duas partes divisa est!" says Julius (Cookie) Quintus, ace javelin man and B.M.A.C. (Big Man Around Coliseum). "A Tareyton would even make Mars mellow," says Cookie. "Tareyton's a rara avis among cigarettes. It's one filter cigarette that really delivers de gustibus. Pick up a pack today and you'll find there's Pliny of pleasure in Tareyton."

DUAL FILTER
Tareyton
Product of The American Tobacco Company — "Tobacco is our middle name"

POGO

PEANUTS

Heels Face Cavaliers On Greensboro Court

Virginia Has One Victory In ACC Play

The University of Virginia, with whom Carolina opened its 1962 basketball season back on Dec. 2, makes a reurn trip to this state today to battle the Tar Heels at Greensboro.

The Cavaliers, who were defeated easily in the opener, 80-46, defeated South Carolina on Monday night for their first conference win.

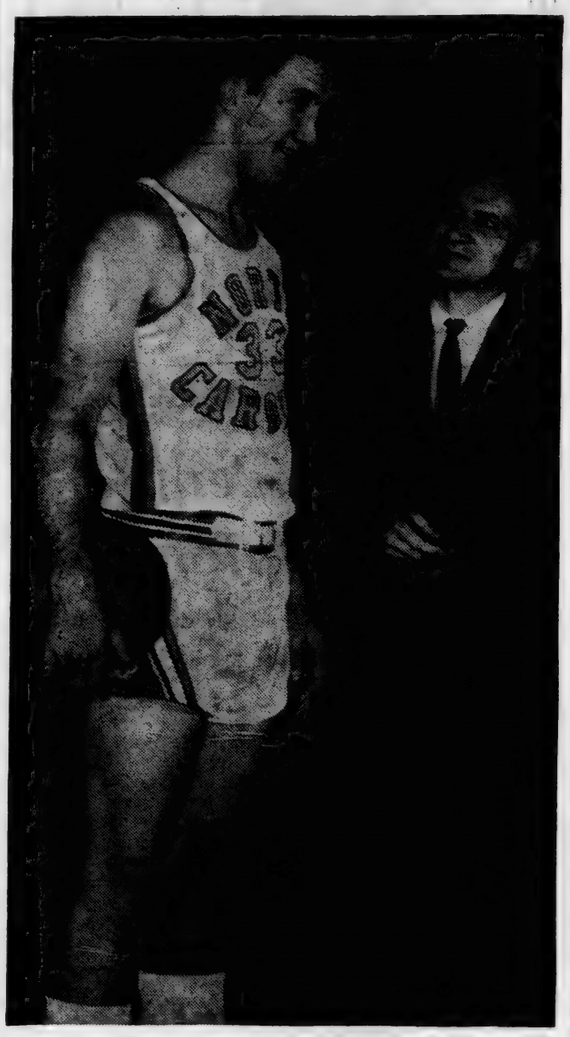
Carolina suffered its first ACC loss on Wednesday at the hands of Wake Forest, and thereby dropped to third place in the standings with a 2-1 league mark.

Tonight's game starts at 8 p.m. in the Memortial Coliseum. There are still some tickets available at $2.50. There will be no preliminary contest.

Coach Billy McCann's Cavalier offense is centered around the shooting ability of senior guard Tony Laquintano, who is hitting at a 18.8 average per game. However, Laquintano has had a lot of trouble in recent games against Carolina, and mainly against one man, Donnie Walsh. The easy shooting guard scored only seven points against Walsh's guarding in the opener.

Other starters for Virginia are Chip Connor, with a 12.7 average, Gene Engel (12.5), Richard Katstra, and Ron Miller.

Carolina coach Dean Smith will start Jim Hudock (16.6), Bryan McSweeney (14.4), Mike Cooke (8.2), Larry Brown (14.4), and Donnie Walsh (12.4).



Jim Hudock and Coach Dean Smith

The streets in Salt Lake City are 132 feet wide. Brigham Young directed that the intersections be left wide enough for sixteen head of oxen pulling a covered wagon and its trailer to make a U-turn without backing up.

Spiders are near-sighted.

Matmen Host Mountaineers

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Fresh from their first victory of the season, Carolina's wrestlers go after win number two tonight when they tangle with the Mountaineers of West Virginia at 8:00 in Woollen Gym.

Led by Dick Blackman and Pete Gilchrist, who both extended personal records to 5-1, the grapplers looked impressive in posting that first win last Saturday night against North Carolina State.

Gilchrist, wrestling in the 130-pound class, needed only 59 seconds to pin his opponent, and Blackman ran his point total to 17 in the 147-pound division, as the Tar Heels pounded the Wolfpack, 28-5.

Tonight, coach Sam Barnes' matmen will have their work cut out for them as they face a tartar of the Southern Conference in WVU. The Mountaineers, who under coach Steve Harrick have won 27 matches in the last three years while losing only 7, have only three lettermen returning—but they are good ones.

Ray Bazzoli, a junior from Meadowlands, Pa., who went undefeated and took the 1960 conference championship in the unlimited division, Paul Cheek, a junior in the 130-pound class, and Sam Church, still another junior, are the West Virginia veterans. Church will have the unenviable assignment of tangling with the Tar Heels' Blackman at the 147-pound level.

The Morgantown maulers, who have yet to lose to Carolina in five previous outings, will probably start four sophomores and one junior — all newcomers this year, in the other weight divisions.

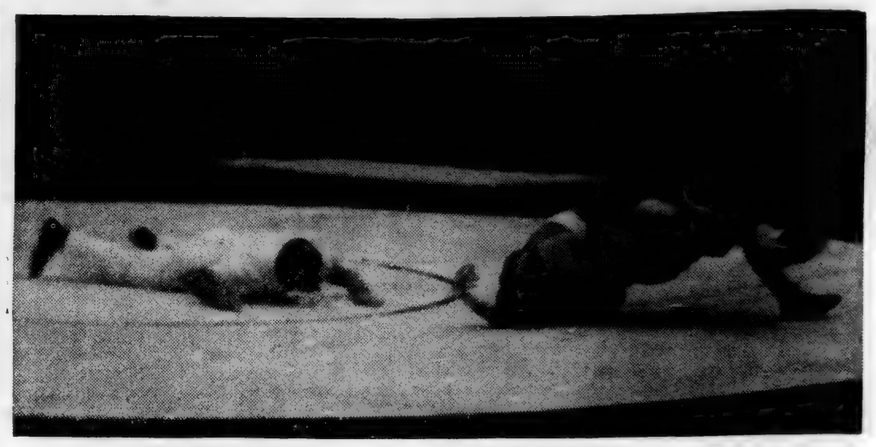
They are soph. Dave Cain at 123, soph. John Walker at 137, soph. E. "Spike" Hickman at 157, soph. Roy Sisler at 177 and Junior Tim Rihn at 167.

Carolina coach Barnes, who feels WVA may be weaker than in previous years and that his boys can take this one, has shaken up his lineup for the big meet.

Senior Mickey Nelson and junior Glenn Glaser will take over in the 123 pound division and 167 class, respectively, while Sophomore Gordon Appell, a pleasant surprise this year, will wrestle against Bazzoli in the unlimited division.

137-pounder Willis Johnson, 157-pounder Tom Grant and Gene Record at 177, will be the other Tar Heel starters in addition to Gilchrist and Blackman.

Blackman, a junior from Whiteville, N. C., is just 13 points shy of Perin Henderson's all-time Carolina record of 30 set in 1959.



130-pounder Pete Gilchrist pins Citadel opponent

Cunningham, Brown Spark 8th Straight Win

Tar Babies Whip Duke Imps, 74-62

By ED DUPREE

Billy Cunningham came off the bench and teamed up with guard Bill Brown to spark the undefeated Tar Heel freshmen to a 74-62 victory over Duke's previously unbeaten Blue Imps in Woollen Gym Thursday night.

Cunningham and Brown combined for ten points in the final two minutes after Duke's 7-foot center, Hack Tison, had narrowed the score to 62-60 with a jump shot at the 2:13 mark.

Cunningham, the 6-4 basketballer from Brooklyn, played less than half the ball game because of four first-half fouls and still led the Tar Baby scoring with 18 points. The freckled center also snared ten rebounds as the Carolina yearlings chalked up their eighth straight win.

The Tar Babies started fast and rolled up a 22-11 lead in the first ten minutes of the contest, but when Cunningham drew his fourth foul with nine minutes remaining in the half, the roof almost fell in.

Duke's Elliott McBride sank a pair of free tosses and Ron Herbster hit on a field goal and two more foul shots to close the gap to 22-17. Ray Respess then hit on the first of three straight field goals to push the Tar Baby lead back to seven. Ted Mann, Dennis Ferguson, and Brent Kitching each connected for two-pointers and the Blue Imps quickly cut the lead down to one.

Respess connected again to keep the Tar Heel frosh in the lead, but Herbster added four more points and the Dukes pushed ahead, 27-26, with 2:59 remaining in the period. Once more, it was Respess who came through with another two-pointer to regain the Tar Heel lead, but Ferguson made it 29-28 only seconds later. Bill Taylor and Pud Hassell each scored their first baskets of the game to give the Tar Babies a 32-29 advantage and Tison followed with a tap-in to make the half time score, 32-31, UNC.

Respess and Jay Neary led the Carolina scoring in the first half with eight markers each, while Cunningham and Brown trailed with six apiece. Herbster had eight for Duke at the midway point.

The Blue Imps tallied five straight points to take a 36-32 lead in the second half, their biggest and last lead of the game. Hassell scored on a tap-in, Neary connected on a jump, and Hassell connected again to give the Tar Heels a lead they never lost.

The Tar Heel yearlings built their newly acquired lead to 51-42 at the ten minute mark and it looked as if they were off to the races, but the Methodist frosh rose to the occasion and whittled away at the lead. Three minutes later it was 56-50 and at this point Cunningham and Mann, son of Duke's sports publicity director Ted Mann, dominated the scoring.

The Tar Heel center had returned to the game at the 8:42 mark when Hassell fouled out. After Mann scored, Cunningham outsmarted and out-maneuvered the taller Blue Devils and bucketed two easy baskets, but the 6-5 forward from Durham countered with a pair of field goals to make it 60-56. Then, Cunningham scored again to make it Cunningham 6, Mann 6 in a four a half minute scoring contest.

The closest the Durham lads could come was 62-60. Cunningham hit again at the 1:53 mark, for the first of 12 straight Tar Heel points. Brown, a 6-3 Durham product and an ex-teammate of Mann, entered the scene and tossed in five consecutive charity shots to put the icing on the cake. In the last minute, Cunningham added three more points, Taylor two, and Brown another foul shot.

Brown, a high-jumping guard, racked up 16 points—hitting on 12 of 15 from the foul line and snared nine rebounds from his guard position.

In a basketball oddity, every player in the game scored an even number of points. The Carolina totals read Cunningham 18, Brown 16, Neary 14, Respess 12, Taylor 8, and Hassell 6.

Tison was high man for Duke with 20. The other Duke scorers were Mann 14, Kitching 10, Herbster 10, Ferguson 6, and McBride 2.

Respess led all rebounders with 13 and Cunningham pulled down 10 in a flashy 19-minute performance. Tison, the 7-footer, Kitching, 6-7, and Mann, 6-5 were all taller than the five Tar Baby starters, but the faster Chapel Hillians out-rebounded the visitors 46-40. Tison and Kitching grabbed ten apiece for Duke.

The UNC frosh hit on 29 of 59 field goal attempts against the zone press used by the Methodists for a 49.2% mark from the floor. On the line, the winners connected on 16 of 28 for 57%.

The victory was the first for Rosemond over a Duke freshman team in three seasons and it was the first loss to a Big Four team in three years for Duke coach Bucky Waters. His teams had won 22 games in a row, dating back to last season, before they ran into Rosemond's rampaging basketballers.

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
Carroll Baker in Bridge to the Sun
starring JAMES SHIGETA

When Studying For Exams Think of LA PIZZA 967-1451

Historians are having a picnic in our Old Book Corner This Week! Join the Fun . . .
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 E. Franklin St.
OPEN TILL 10 P.M.

Lady Milton January Colossal

Tempting buys on the best looking sportswear in the North, East, West and South.

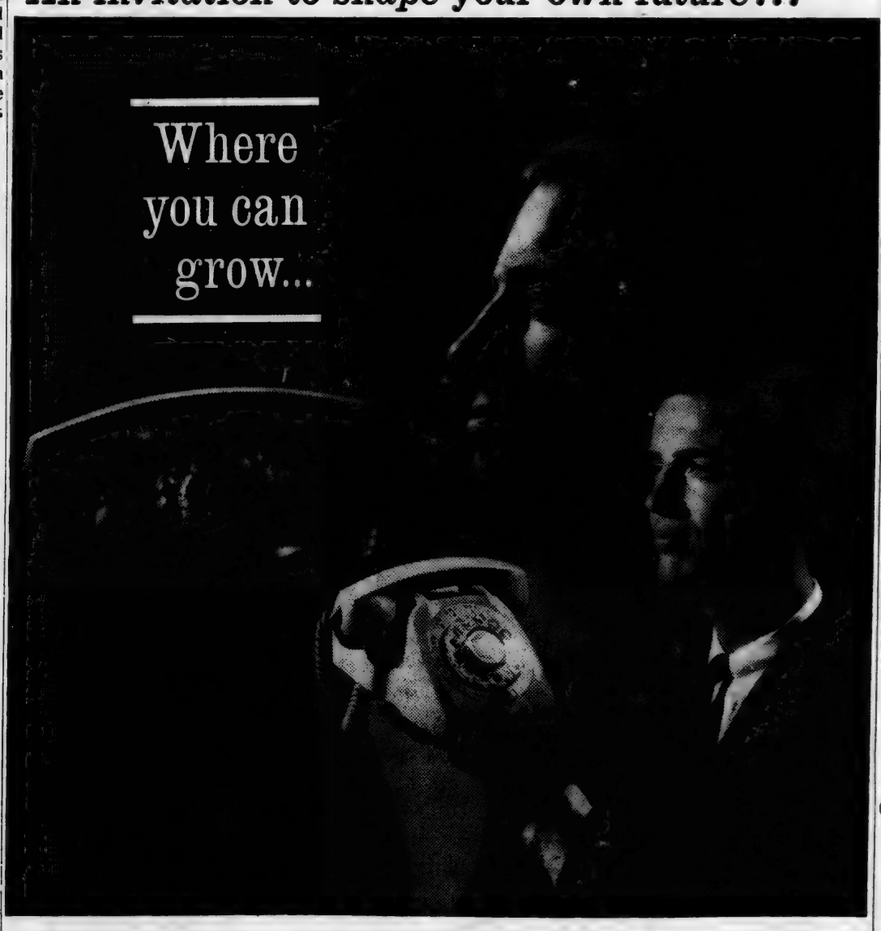
Group shirtdresses formerly to $19.95, now $10.99 and $21.95 to $32.95 at $14.99

Remaning shirtdresses cut from $14.95 to $12.99; $16.95 to $13.99; $19.95 to $16.99; $22.95 to $18.99; $24.95 to $19.99; $26.95 to $21.99.

Sweaters, skirts, belts and other items for a buyink holiday.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

An invitation to shape your own future...



General Telephone has tripled its size in the last 10 years — expects to double its size again in the next decade. With expansion such as this, there is an ever-increasing need for larger and more competent management teams.

In all of its activities—from research and manufacture to the provision of modern communications services in 31 states—General Telephone charts its own course.

To help you grow with the company, the General Telephone System provides planned training programs, and encourages and aids an individual in self-development. You are given every opportunity to chart your own course in accordance with your interests and attributes.

Your Placement Director will be pleased to provide you with a copy of our brochure on Management Careers at General Telephone.

ON CAMPUS INTERVIEWS:
A representative of the General Telephone Company of Southeast will be on campus the week beginning Jan. 16. Ask your Placement Director to arange an interview.

GENERAL TELEPHONE
America's Largest Independent Telephone System
GENERAL SYSTEM

Milton's January Colossal

All those special patterns in Milton's finer fitting suits and sport coats now at fabulous reductions.

Group suits cut from $85.00 to $57.50; group suits regularly to $70.00 now at $39.-99; $62.50, and $65.00 suits now $49.99; $69.50 suits cut to $55.00; $72.50 to $57.50; $75.00 to $60.00; $79.50 and $85.00 now $65.00; $90.00 reduced to $70.00.

Group sport coats formerly to $51.50, now $29.99; Group sport coats regularly to $45.00, take your pick at $24.99; remaining stock of sport coats cut from $39.95 to $32.99; $42.50 and $45.00 to $34.99; $48.-75 to $39.99 and $51.50 to $42.99.

All Sales Cash and Final —

Many other door-breaking buys.

Alterations Extra but superbly done by Carlton.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

SIC FLICS

"Now, now Susan...everybody can't be the Homecoming Queen!"

21 GREAT TOBACCOS MAKE 20 WONDERFUL SMOKES!
AGED MILD, BLENDED MILD - NOT FILTERED MILD - THEY SATISFY

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Mediocrity . . .

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather

Partly Cloudy, not so cold.

Offices in Graham Memorial | SUNDAY, JANUARY 14, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

78

College Roundup

Million Dollar Donor Wants To Bar Reds From Berkeley

(Note: Following are news items from leading college newspapers from across the country, as received at the DTH office. This column is run every Sunday.)

$ MILLION FOR 'NO REDS'

BERKELEY, Calif.—An Oakland real estate man has promised to bequeath a $1 million student loan fund to the University of California if it will bar all "communistic speakers" from its campuses.

Fred Reed, 82, said, "I want to see the University's red-blooded students organized against communism."

Since 1944 the University has had a policy forbidding members of the U.S. Communist Party from speaking on campus. But Reed says he intends to investigate to make sure the rule is being observed, if his offer is accepted.

* * *

CAR BAN RESCINDED

NORMAN, Okla.—The University of Oklahoma board of regents voted this week to rescind the no-car rule for freshmen passed the week before.

Only five members of the board had been present at the previous meeting and a majority of the board voted to reconsider the proposal and defeated it.

A regents committee had recommended that freshmen be forbidden to have cars.

* * *

STIFFER LIBRARY FINES

MADISON, Wisc.—A drastic rise in library fines will go into effect at the University of Wisconsin at the beginning of its spring semester.

There is to be a 10 cents daily fine on all overdue two-week books. The current fine is 2 cents a day.

In addition, if a request is submitted for a two-week book that is out, but not overdue, the library will send a notice to the holder of the book specifying the date when that book must be returned. If it is not returned by the requested date, a fine of $1 a day will be imposed.

The rise in fines will also include a charge of $1 an hour for all overdue reserved books, with the penalty going up to $2 an hour for reserved books kept overdue on Saturdays and Sundays.

* * *

DUKE PROPOSAL DOWNED

DURHAM, N. C. — The campus-wide student government proposal passed in November by men's student government of Duke University was killed last week when the women's organization defeated it.

No votes were cast for the plan, which would bring together graduate and undergraduate representatives to deliberate on problems involving the student body as a whole.

The women's group said ad hoc committees would be preferable to a full-time set-up. Few problems are shared jointly by the men's and women's campuses, said the group.

* * *

PAID SG PRESIDENT?

NORMAN, Okla.—A student constitutional amendment for paying the student body president $40 per week was introduced in the University of Oklahoma student senate last week.

The proposal must go through a 7-week period of consideration and pass the senate by a two-thirds vote to become part of the constitution.

* * *

APARTMENT PERMISSION URGED

MADISON, Wisc.—Senior women under 21 at the University of Wisconsin should be allowed to live in apartments with parental permission and approval of the Dean of Women, the women's student government urged last week.

The women's group voted down a motion that junior women should also be allowed to room off campus.

* * *

BIG BROTHER

BALTIMORE, Md.—George Orwell's novel "1984" was selected as the Book-of-the-Month for January at Morgan State College, scene of recent "sit-in" and "freedom ride" activity.

Professor's Wife Receives Injury In Car Accident

Mrs. James W. Dimmick, wife of a UNC Modern Civilization professor, suffered a fractured vertebrae Thursday evening when the car her husband was driving overturned on ice-covered Mann's Chapel Road.

She is reported in fair condition in Memorial Hospital.

Dimmick reported he was on the way home when "something, I guess it could have been the ice, threw the car over the side of the road." He was not seriously injured.

Another professor, John P. Dreher, philosophy department, received no injuries when his sedan Volkswagen overturned on icy Highway 54 Thursday morning. He was alone.

Dreher had a safety belt in his car while Dimmick did not. "But we will from now on," he said. Dimmick said his late model automobile was probably damaged beyond market value.

Campus Briefs

Murray McRae of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in Ottawa will speak on "Some Methods in Investigating Economic Time Series" at the Statistics Colloquium to be held at 4 p.m. next Monday in room 265 Phillips. The public is cordially and humbly invited.

The YW-YMCA Catholic Orphanage Commission's trip to the Raleigh Orphanage will leave Y-Court at 2 p.m. today. All who are interested are asked to be present. The Commission will return by 6 p.m.

Students interested in applying for the Goettingen scholarship are reminded to pick up their applications at any of these locations: Y-Court, German Department, or the circulation desk in the library.

"The Christian and Social Welfare" will be the topic of Dr Keith-Lucas' seminar to be held at 5:45 Sunday evening in the Brinkley Church House, 507 E. Franklin St.

The UNC Student Wives will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. on the second floor of GM for an end of the Fall Semester Party. Featured will be bridge, entertainment by members of the club, plus twist and limbo lessons.

Tau Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha has elected its officers for the spring semester. Jackie Lohr was re-elected President and Fred Croom was elected Vice-President. Other officers are: Allen Hornthal, treasurer; Bill Craig, social chairman; and David Edwards, house manager.

TRAFFIC DEATHS

North Carolina traffic deaths in 1962 had killed twelve persons as of last Monday, Jan. 8. Seventeen had been killed as of that date in 1961.

ECONOMICS SEMINAR

Donald W. Taylor, Yale University psychology professor, will speak on "Problem Solving and Decision Making" at a UNC seminar in economics and business at 4 p.m. this Wednesday in the faculty seminar room on the third floor of Carroll Hall.

Three Speakers To Discuss Problems Of Race Relations

FLOYD McKISSICK, Negro NAACP lawyer who will be a member of the three-man Carolina Symposium panel scheduled to discuss racial relations before UNC students next April.
(Photo courtesy of Mr. McKissick)

Attorney McKissick In UNC Symposium

A panel discussion on race relations and problems will be the afternoon program of the Carolina Symposium scheduled to begin on April 1. This panel will be one of several to be held on various problems of current interest to students and the American public.

Participating in this seminar discussion will be Floyd B. McKissick, a Negro NAACP lawyer, Jack Kilpatrick, editor of the Richmond News Leader, and John McNeill Smith, chairman of the North Carolina advisory committee for the Civil Rights Commission.

A native of Asheville, McKissick has four children, brought suit North Carolina College and UNC.

Brought Suit

McKissick, who is married and has four children, brotught suit against the University and gained admittance in 1951. He was counsel in the suit entitled "Frazier vs. U.N.C.," in which suit admittance was gained for Negroes to attend the Undergraduate School.

On behalf of his daughter, he filed suit against the Durham Board of Education to gain admission to the Durham High School. He presently has one child in an integrated school.

The recipient of a "Man of Year Award" in Durham for 1959 and 1960, he has been engaged in his own law practice there since 1952 and has become well known locally and nationally in the field of Civil Rights. He has participated in the sit-in action in the South and in the picketing of Chapel Hill theaters.

"Smut Peddlers"

Kilpatrick, the editor of The News Leader has recently received publicity for his bootk "The Smut Peddlers," a history of obcenity censorship," published by Doubleday in 1960.

He is also author of "The Sovereign States" and co-editor of "The Lasting South."

Born in Oklahoma City, he received a degree of Bachelor of ournalism from the University of Missouri. From the same University, in 1953, he received honors for his distinguished work in Journalism because of a two-year editorial campaign for the release from prison of a Negro lifetermer who had beenc onvicted of murder.

Editor Since 1949

Before his position as editor, Kilpatrick worked on the Capitol staff of The News Leader covering the Governor's office, the General Assembly, and the State. He became editor in 1949.

A former editor of The Daily Tar Heel, McNeill Smith graduated from UNC in 1937.

While at Chapel Hill, he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and Phi Beta Kappa, and was tapped into the Order of the Grail and the Order of the Golden Fleece. His education continued at Columbia Law School from which he received his LL.B. in 1941.

Wall Street Lawyer

After his graduation he accepted a position with a Wall Street law firm. His legal practice was interrupted by World War II.

Smith was selected by the Civil Rights Commission to act as chairman of an advisory committee being formed in North Carolina during 1959. His belief is that: "every man charged with an offense is entitled to a defense and the best defense his lawyer can give: the more serious the charge, the more serious the need."

Smith is currently an attorney in Greensboro.

World University Body Starts Here

A World University Service (WUS) campus committee is currently being formed at UNC. It will seek to inform students on WUS, which receives funds from the annual Campus Chest at Carolina.

The members of the committee will be from the local chapters of the national WUS sponsors: United States National Student Association, National Student Councils of the YMCA and YWCA, and the national Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant organizations. Other interested students are welcome, according to organizer Bill Bowerman who can be contacted between 7 and 10 p.m. at 942-3688 for more information.

Student-To-Student

The World University Service is an international mutual assistance program and is the only one which is "student-to-student." An association of university students and staff members in forty-one countries, WUS attempts to promote material, intellectual, and spiritual sharing without regard for racial, religious, or political factors.

The common objective of all projects and activities are listed in the WUS "Program of Action 1961-62" as to help meet the basic needs of universities . . . especially through the development of new techniques of corporate endeavor; to promote the sharing of knowledge and experience in seeking solutions to practical university problems; and to foster the development of international understanding and cooperation between the university communities of all nations."

Tokyo Libraries

The World University Service has engaged in projects such as restoring libraries in Tokyo after an earthquake in 1923, aiding Chinese student victims of Japanese aggression in 1937, placing 1,000 Hungarian student refugees on scholarships in American colleges in 1956. It is now building student dormitories in earthquake-struck Conception, Chile.

WUS also sponsors projects which are self-help, with the area involved contributing toward the goal. Projects for next year include establishing cooperative cafeterias, dormitories, and book and printing shops in Southeast Asia, developing a student health service in Sudan, and establishing a hostel at Florina College in Greece.

The United States is the biggest contributor to the WUS program, with a planned $1,879,230 of the 1961-1962 (two year) $4,638,076 total budget.

SP Schedules Open Party Meeting

The Student Party will hold a meeting Tuesday night at 8 in Roland Parker I-II, GM.

The Program Committee, under the chairmanship of Bill Straughn, will present the first in a series which will include the Honor System, Executive Committees, the Legislature, Orientation needs, and a history of campus political parties.

The Student Party News-Letter will be discussed at the meeting by the co-editoirs, Anne Lupton and Charles Cooper. The News-Letter is published periodically to keep members well informed on all phases of Student Government activities."

All persons, whether party affiliated or not, were invited to attend by Party Chairman Jimmy Weeks.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Dr. Schurz

Adoula Orders Gizenga's Arrest

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo—Informed diplomatic sources said Saturday Central Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula had ordered the arrest of his defiant Communist-leaning vice Premier Antoine Gizenga. Adoula denied the report.

Gizenga has defied a parliamentary order to return here from Stanleyville to answer charges of "secessionist activities." There have been demands that he be fired from the Cabinet, arrested, and put on trial.

Acting U.N. Secretary General Thant issued an order in New York today to U.N. troops in the Congo to restore law and order in Stanleyville and "avert civil war there."

★ ★ ★

U.S. Rejects Cuban "Coexistence"

WASHINGTON—The United States rejected Saturday a Brazilian proposal that the nations of the Western Hemisphere consider adopting a code of co-existance with Cuba.

A State Department spokesman pointed out that the members of the Organization of American States OAS are bound by its charter and the treaty of Rio de Janiero to carry on "continued and positive resistance to any totalitarian ideology."

Press officer Francis W. Tully Jr. said the United States would "naturally" give the proposal, made by Brazilian Foreign Minister Francisco Santiago Dantas, "carefully study." But he made it clear the United States was opposed.

★ ★ ★

'No Signs Of Ease' On Berlin

WASHINGTON—The United States informed its principal allies Saturday that the Soviet Union still shows no signs of easing or dropping its harsh Berlin demands.

The State Department said, however, that it intends to continue the Moscow talks in an attempt to find some tension-easing arrangement which would lessen the danger of war by miscalculation.

Foy D. Kohler, assistant secretary of state for European affairs, met for almost an hour with the representatives here of Britain, France, and West Germany. He gave them a summary of the Berlin talk in Moscow Friday between U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

★ ★ ★

OAS Orders Food Hoarding

ALGIERS, Algeria—Housewives obeying an order by the Secret Army Organization OAS to hoard two months supply of food stripped Oran stores Saturday as the Algeria crisis apparently neared a decisive point.

An explosion followed by shots shook Oran's Jewish quarter shortly before noon. One Jew was wounded and within minutes hundreds of persons were out on the streets demonstrating. There also was violence in Algeris, Bone and Constantine.

Despite the presence in Oran of French Defense Minister Pierre Messmer on a flying security visit, many stores reported bare shelves by midday. Wholesalers supplying the food stores also ran out.

UNC Graduate Exhibiting Art Works In Harry's And Other Local Stores

A 28-year-old UNC graduate has returned to Chapel Hill after seven years bringing exhibitions of her art work to Harry's, Kemp's and Eastgate Beauty Shop.

Miss Betty Bell, born in Punxsutawney, Pa., presently has eight paintings displayed in Harry's Grill sporting such titles as "Introspection," "Communication," "Fear" and "Cocktail Party."

Tall with dark brown hair, Miss Bell says she gets "inspiration" for her oil and water color paintings from oriental literature, philosophy and art.

For instance, explained Miss Bell, the painting, "Introspection," portrays a man looking so much into his inner world that his view of the outside world is completely obscured. Done in oil, the painting is for sale at $45.

Graduate Work

Following graduate study at New York University and Yale, she entered several contests, winning first prize in the 10th annual art contest at Penn State in 1953 and two first prizes in 1954 at the N.C. State Fair. That same year she also held a one-woman show at Limestone College, Gaffney, S. C.

Another painting is "Cocktail Party," on sale for $35. Miss Bell painted this at Yale and it, she explained, represents her impressions of "an objective wallflower at a cocktail party." Also in oil, it is painted in scraffito design, that is, scratching through one layer of paint into the second.

Forum Gallery

In 1955, Miss Bell was invited as one of nine young artists from NCU at a forum gallery of the Gibbs Gallery in Charleston, S. C. She was art supervisor of the Thomasville City Schools in 1957 and taught at Durham Junior High school in 1959.

Group To Consider Integration At WF

The Wake Forest Board of Trustees voted unanimously Friday to refer the question of admitting undergraduate Negroes at Wake Forest to its race relations committee, headed by L. Y. Ballentine, secretary of agriculture.

This is the first action taken on the integration question since the Baptist State Convention called on Baptist colleges to "move as quickly as possible" toward dropping racial bars.

No other Baptist school in this state has Negroes in its undergraduate body although Mars Hill matriculated one Negro girl earlier this year. She is no longer in the school.

No Negroes have been admitted to Wake Forest although Negro students have been admitted to summer school and night school with the stipulation that credits thus gained cannot be used toward graduation from Wake Forest.

In a poll conducted by the student newspaper, the "Gold and Black," the undergraduates voted "about 50-50."

A CORRECTION

Thursday's Tar Heel printed that Edward Miller of 123 Daniels Road broke his arm in front of Murphey Hall. This was not true. Actually Edward Smith of 704 North Columbia Road broke his arm. The Daily Tar Heel regrets this mistake.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 14, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 78

Or Possible Greatness?

Mediocrity . . .

Occupying a large portion of today's editorial page is Neill Clark's review of "Renegade," the Playmakers' current production. Since we have not yet seen the production we cannot speak for its accuracy. We are confident, however, that it is both fair and perceptive.

In fact, we are sure Mr. Clark could have written much of it before he saw the play by leaving out specific references. Such a review —and it would have been reasonably accurate — would have read something like this:

"The Playmakers handling of Hinrich's "Renegade" was a polished, adequately staged, adequately costumed, adequately lighted and adequately directed production. Some of the performers were slightly better than the rest; no performer turned in an outstanding performance, none were abominable. Attendance was good."

After plugging in the fact that it was a new play along with a few references to this or that detail of direction or individual performance, we would have a fairly competent review. If we changed the name of the play, noted whether it was a musical, a comedy, a farce, etc., the review would fit almost any Playmaker show.

This is not a comment on Mr. Clark's critical abilities. He wrote, we are sure, exactly what he saw—what any good reviewer would have seen: a fairly competent production, with some shortcomings and some strong points.

This, in fact, is what a reviewer sees in most Playmaker productions. It is also what he would probably see at any better-than-average community theatre anywhere in the country. The Playmakers for the past few years, have been producing "good" plays. Rarely do they stage a real turkey. Neither do they produce a play that causes the audience to wonder if the director has gone completely berserk — a play that one reviewer might call "imaginative" and another would call "completely ridiculous."

A good example of such a play is the Playmakers' treatment of the Oedipus cycle two seasons ago. After seeing it, Classics scholars tore their hair, drama majors smiled, most of the audience scratched their heads and reviewer Anthony Wolfe violently pronounced it "murder." In it, director Jurgenson violated every rule of producing Greek drama, rewrote scenes, juggled dialogue, changed the setting, heightened most of the effects, and produced something that would have caused Sophocles to steal a march from Socrates and take a belt of hemlock.

Dramatically, it was roughly similar to Orson Welles' production of "Julius Caesar" in modern dress. Welles, however, succeeded in walking the tight-rope, while Jurgenson was generally conceded to have fallen off with an audible crash.

Still, the production had more value, to our way of thinking, than the whole gamut of slick, "competent," and wholly uninspiring productions that the Playmakers have strutted across the stage before and since.

We are not asking that the Playmakers consciously try to neglect "the people out front." Neither do we share the view of one actor who said recently that "half the shows would be flops if they weren't rehashed Broadway musicals and standard stuff." Chapel Hill audiences are certainly sophisticated enough to appreciate more than an occasional dose of the off-beat, the imaginative and the original.

Such fare would probably increase the mortality rate of productions, but the assets would far outweigh the liabilities. Sticking to "standard stuff" usually insures fairly good productions. But it also eliminates the possibility of the once-in-a-lifetime brilliant production.

Experimental productions need not interfere with the Playmakers' role as a community theater group. The primary goal of producing good entertainment can be pursued as successfully with the unusual as with the hackneyed.

The choice is a simple one: guaranteed mediocrity or chance for

Pros, Antis, Leftists

Unbaised news reporting is actually is more common than it was 60 years ago, but today the front-page subjectivists are much more, subjectivists are much mare subtle.

For instance, the reporting from the Congo.

Moise Tshombe, premier of Katanga province, is an honorable, tureblue "anti-Communist" to millions of American readers, because the Associated Press and United Press International chose to give the title to him. The New York Times News Service does not designate him by any title. (Recently the AP has dropped its moniker, too).

Joseph Kasavubu, president of the central government, used to be "pro-Western" until he lost favor with the wire services. Now he is just plain Joe. Premier Cyrille Adoula likewise is without a title (thereby confusing millions of label-loving readers.)

Antoine Gizenga, head man of semi-rebellious Stanleyville province, is anything from a "leftist," "Communist-leaning", "pro-Communist" or just plain "Communist", depending on which wire service is doing the reporting.

No objective journalist can be sure who is "anti-Communist," who is "Communist-leaning," or who is "Communist."

—Jim Clotfelter

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIAL STAFF

WAYNE KING.....Editor
MARGARET ANN RHYMES—Associate Editor
LLOYD LITTLE—Executive News Editor
BILL HOBBS.....Managing Editor
JIM CLOTFELTER, BILL WUAMETT—News Editors
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor
CHUCK MOONEY.....Feature Editor
HARRY LLOYD.....Sports Editor
ED DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
GARRY BLANCHARD—Contributing Editor

BUSINESS STAFF

TIM BURNETT.....Business Manager
MIKE MATHERS—Advertising Manager
JIM EVANS.....Subscription Manager
JIM ESKRIDGE—Circulation Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 8, 1870. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

"And Now What's The State Of OUR Union?"

'Renegade'—Wishy-Washy

Review: RENEGADE, by Carl Hinrichs, directed by Tom Patterson; setting, Tommy Rezzuto; lighting, Johnny Meadows; costumes, Irene Smart Rains. At the Playmakers Theatre through Sunday night.

As a literary subject, the Civil War is much like a very old performing snake—it seems incapable of a new twist. The author of "Renegade" has attempted to solve this problem by entwining a number of proven old ones and has succeeded only in tying a perplexing knot.

In attempting to unravel it I discovered at least three dominant threads: (1) Morale, (2) Duty, (3) Innocence defiled.

It has many of our favorite characters: the tough captain of "What Price Glory," the duty-bound but conscience-stricken Major who first appeared in "Billy Budd," and a pair of Yankee soldiers who might have been answering a casting call for "Of Mice and Men," and even a southern species of Street Singer from Threepenny opera, and don't let me forget the assortment of "just plain soldiers" from Stalag 17, Battle Cry, or one of your choice from any number of others, all of whom are (a) stupid, (b) funny and (c) dirty. The difference in time is negligible, for though set in the 1800's this is essentially a modern war story.

I don't mean to be flippant and scornful, for underneath the heaps of timeworn devices a sensitive, provocative play is trying to emerge. Last night, however, it suffocated.

Briefly the plot concerns the passively pacifistic (as opposed to the actively pacifistic so common today) Lt. William Christian Dry who, unable to kill in order to save the life of the hated Captain Neville, becomes a hero to the men and a deserter to himself. In the Wilderness he saves an injured rabbit but these two symbols of innocence are reduced to one when Dry kills two Yankee deserters who had captured them, in order to prevent a rabbit stew. Leaving the rabbit "king of a burned-out world," he returns to camp and ironically discovers that his supposed death and later canonization by the troops has put new life into the death machine which his presence in the flesh threatens to destroy. The major decides that Dry must die; that it is his duty to die, to which Dry, listlessly played by Larry Randolph, responds with uncharacteristic conviction and emotion in a genuinely moving moment: "Duty major? In this dirty, rotten, stinking little world, duty to whom!" Evidently he decides "whom" for the next minute he sells us all out by succumbing to the major's bellowings about "cause and country." He is marched out and shot, leaving the Major asking God what he has done, and smelling the river which he must capture and mumbling about "pushing on" or "climbing the highest mountain" or other innuocuous platitudes of war.

In a bitter closing touch, however, a soldier comes in to inform the Major of a recently caught rabbit and the Major smacks his lips over the prospect of rabbit stew.

There is material for two or three good thirty-minute television shows in this play, and also material for one very good play. Unfortunately the cliches of the television material obscure the more subtle insights of the play material. The interesting part of the play is not the tough captain, nor the "heroic" major, nor even the desecration of innocence that war forces upon rabbits. It is the conflict of two modes of heroism, that of the major and that of William Christian Dry. It also involves the problem of Dry's identity. The important questions are not pointed enough by the dramaturgical devices that Mr. Hinrichs uses elsewhere in the play. He continually evades the tough problems to digress in pseudo-philosophical ramblings. Why does Dry consent to be killed when he could appeal his trial? Is it because of a romantic ideal of duty, which he obviously sees as hollow and false? Perhaps he feels that this is only just since he, in effect, sacrificed his identity when he tried to pass off Neville's grave for his own. This prompts us to ponder the significance of a man without a name, the dichotomy between our overt identity and what we seem and the covert identity of our private perception and what we are. These problems are in the play, but timidly presented and immediately drowned out in horse-opera operatics. This could be a fine play, but it lacks central focus. It also needs a gleaning to rid it of the hackneyed cliches which choke out the real life of the play.

Much of the fault of the play must lie with the director, for everywhere the guiding influence is lacking. The point of view is completely unclear—or at least hazy—as if it were decided as a last minute compromise. Wishy-washy is the best simple phrase to characterize the production. There is no direct line of action or intent; there are conflicting lines that are never resolved, or resolved incompletely. There is not enough decision evident so that it makes the audience choose its own line, which is usually just a facile evasion of the problems that are posed.

The staging problems are tremendous, for the action takes place outdoors, and any resemblance the stamp-sized stage of the Playmaker Theatre bears to the great out-of-doors is hallucinatory. However, the play calls for outdoor setting and, by way of comment, I can only offer sympathy to Mr. Rezzuto. The transitions were made enjoyable by interludes of folk-singing by one of soldiers, but by the middle of the show, it was too much of a good thing.

As the balladeer, Sandy Moffat was entertaining and convincing. He, for one, kept his southern accent which most of the cast tried unsuccessfully to lose. Although they bore less and less relation to the play as the night progressed the ballads had a genuine simplicity about them that was refreshing.

As William Dry, Larry Randolph had moments of brief excitement, notably when he recounted the experience of calling out to Captain Neville, but generally he seemed unsure, indecisive and inhibited, which may have been the characterization he chose, but certainly did not help the blurred focus of the production as a whole. However, he seems to have a talent that was just imperfectly expressed.

John Crockett as the major gave his usual well-inflected performance with a certain superficial grace that is comparatively more than adequate, but he didn't seem to plumb the depths of the major's conflict. He spoke them away rather than acted them out.

Bill File as Captain Neville seemed a little gruff, but was neither tough enough nor mean enough to inspire the hatred the men said they had for him.

Gordon Clark and Wesley van Tassel were amusing as the Yankee deserters and Frank Beaver was reminiscent of Harry Carey Jr. as the simple Corporal who took Dry to be shot.

George Gray added a certain measure of authenticity to his portrayal of Corporal Ennis especially in the "morale-building" scene. This scene deserves mention for it is the only scene in which the show began to come alive. It was of ethnic interest, showing the birth of a folk ballad on the death of Lieutenant Dry. "How did you die William Dry?" it asked; I would ask, "why?"

—NEILL CLARK

Robinson's Ramblings

If a labor union were simply a fraternal organization, it would be no concern to the public or the Government what membership requirements were laid down. But when men must belong to a union or lose the opportunity to earn a livelihood at their trade, union membership policy is properly a matter of public concern.

So it isn't surprising that the Civil Rights Commission asks that the Landrum-Griffin Act be amended to prohibit unions from refusing membership to anyone because of race, creed or color. The main problem, as the commission sees it, is a "vicious circle of discrimination" set up by some unions against Negro workers.

It is doubtless true that Negroes are, in fact, excluded from unions which enjoy a monopoly of the labor supply in certain crafts and trades; hence, when jobs become available, qualified Negroes are not available to fill them.

That is one form of union discrimination, but there are others that do injury to the rights of the individual.

Take, for example, the plight of three California aircraft workers who were expelled from the Machinists' Union not long aigo. Their "offense" consisted of publicly opposing the union hierarchy's position in favor of compulsory unionism. Thus, they were discriminated against for what are essentially political beliefs. Even more audacious, the Machinists' Union violated the sacred tenets of freedom of speech.

Or consider union efforts, to make working hard a "crime." Members of the United Auto Workers in Ohio and Wisconsin are being penalized because they sought production bonuses by turning out higher quotas than the union approved. Thus, they are being discriminated against because of their enterprise and for trying to improve their economic status.

Or don't these count as civil rights under compulsory unionism?

• • •

Hearty congratulations are in order to Carolina Quarterly staffers Jerry Stern, Dick Rickert, Bill Rains their charming wives, and Louie Borne for their energetic efforts to boost the campus literary revival. The Quarterly winter issue has been a great success and is almost sold out.

Reno Bailey and his tenacious crew at WUNC-FM are now broadcasting to more than one million Tar Heels with their greatly increased broadcasting range. At last the hopes and prayers of many years have borne fruit.

—Mike Robinson

For A Stronger Voice

Few Government agencies have a more difficult task than the United States Information Agency. It has no powerful lobby supporting its efforts—and by law, the USIA cannot show its programs to the American people. The result is that in the war of words the Voice of America is frequently reduced to a whisper because USIA lacks the resources to make itself effectively heard.

T. S. Repplier, president of the Advertising Council, recently provided some melancholy data on the feebleness of our Voice. "At a time when this country is spending $48 billion for military hardware which we pray may never be used," Mr. Repplier said in a speech in New York, "we are spending the price of just one Polaris submarine for the ideological war which may decide this country's fate."

• • •

CONGRESS GIVES the USIA a budget of about $140 million annually to conduct its campaigns in 90 countries. This is $20 million less. Mr. Repplier ruefully notes, than one company spends in the United States alone to sell its automobiles

One measure of the Voice's effectiveness is the amount of money which the Russians are spending to jam its broadcasts. According to USIA Director Edward R. Murrow, Moscow is currently paying $125 million a year to silence the Voice —a figure almost as high as the USIA budget. And yet the same members of Congress who are quick to cry that we are "losing" the cold war turn right around and apply a machete to USIA appropriations.

• • •

IN THE WAR of ideas, it is difficult to assess in precise fashion how well we are doing. Still, it is impressive that in a recent test the Voice offered a giveaway transistor receiving set to listeners in Yugoslavia. A total of 18,300 letters came to USIA. Somebody is obviously listening; surely a greater effort must be made to persuade Congress that the Voice of America should not be tongue-tied for want of adequate funds.

—Washington Post

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Fraud Or Fraudulent? Is Mental Illness

Of all the leeches in our society I believe by far the most intolerable are the so-called mental patients now filling our state mental institutions at an ever increasing rate. In my opinion these supposedly helpless creatures are a part of a large racket which depletes our state funds at a rate which would be astounding if the figures were to be made known.

What is this state becoming? To think that a mature public could be taken in by such a farce as mental illness. Is North Carolina going to continue to be a haven for these deceitful parasites, or will the state wake up and make them the responsibility of their families?

Of course their families will not like this. Mental illness has always been a perfect excuse for a family to get rid of an undesirable member.

In closing I would like to say that this is not a question of right or wrong but of money.

—Charles B. Alan

The Ghost Of Stalin

Late at night, Mikhail Suslov writes to his brother Gregori, who is visiting friends in Volgograd:

"I open with a sad report, Gregori, and one which you must bear with stolidity, as befits a member of the Young Pioneers. My cousin Dimitri is dead, slain by the guards at Stalin's second tomb. I heard the rattle of guns in the dawn, as I took a morning stroll to watch the sunrise—for what other sunrise have we now, save only the physical occurrences of nature?

"My dear fellow, you never knew Dimitri as I have known him—as I never can again. But now, what remains for me? What remains of life in this criminal state, which every day moves closer to capitalism, while the leader trumpets falsely that the Marxist state is dawning?? Only my trust in your friendship can prompt me to say these things, which surely would mean the end of me if ever they came to light.

"After Stalin died, I remember a sense of weariness and lassitude, unalloyed by the cries of Malenkov. Do you remember the time? I was twelve, and now I recall every detail of that terrible lost morning—the faint, eerie sunrise, and the grim light falling on the Kremlin facade when Stalin lay dying inside. You were eleven, and only a vague inkling of the catastrophe filtered through to you. I remember the body dying in state, the crowds filing past to bestow their final tribute; and tears filmed my eyes as I saw the leader fallen there, and over me came a desolate feeling, as if I had nothing left of value in the universe.

"EVEN NOW, the childhood scenes come back to me; the nights when, very late indeed, I walked past the Kremlin, wondering if it were possible that he was inside, that he, like you and me, would feel in need of rest. For a time, indeed, I joined in the cheers for Malenkov; Beria's downfall shocked me only slightly, and Malenkov's collapse made me laugh. Yes, though I made my recovery, and the anti-Stalin torrent of 1956 meant little, my comrade Dimitri was never again the same. He spoke to me pityingly: 'Meesha! Are you blind indeed? Was Beria a traitor—or Malenkov a bungler?? Stalin's heirs have changed our cause; the goal is a different one. No longer do we move toward a world revolution, but only toward one man's ambition—that of the leader Khrushchev.'

"When Stalin's remains were disturbed, my cousin felt no rest. Soon the guards at the tomb held no terror for him. So early this morning, in the midst of the recurrent snow, he ventured to the grave, there to honor it with a crude symbolic hammer. Far away I could see what would happen, but I dared not call or raise my voice, and the rifles rang out sharply in the savage morning cold. Today the body lies unburied; and such was the end. Gregori, of him whom I must ever regard as the finest and noblest comrade of my bleak and lonely days."

—Wade Wellman

Alabama Phi Gams Save Housemother

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — Quick-thinking Phi Gamma Delta brothers, risking their lives, saved their housemother in the freezing pre-dawn darkness Saturday when flames raced through their two-story brick and frame fraternity house.

"They are the best boys a mother could have," said Mrs. Elizabeth Karick, 49, whose alertness helped save herself in the $100,000 blaze.

The fire broke out shortly after 3 a.m. and in less than 30 minutes the roof and back part of the building were gone and only the front wall and the kitchen remained standing.

Two fire-fighting units from this small college town, plus an auxiliary, three fire trucks from neighboring Opelika and off-duty Auburn policemen fought the blaze for more than two hours.

The firefighters were hampered by the nine degree weather and darkness. The fire hydrant did not work and a pumper was pressed into use.

Mrs. Karick, a native of Summerton, S. C., who joined the fraternity from Defuniak Springs, Fla., last November, was trapped in her room on the first floor. She could not escape down the hall because of stifling smoke and acrid fumes. She could not jump out of the window because of burglar bars.

Junior Gary Guttry of Butler, who discovered the fire and roused some 30 brothers from beds, and Robert Melton of Birmingham, used Melton's car to yank a piece of chain from a fence post. Tying the chain to the bars on Mrs. Karick's window and to the rear bumper of the car, they tried to jerk the iron rails loose.

VARSITY LAST DAY TODAY
GLENN FORD BETTE DAVIS
HOPE LANGE ARTHUR O'CONNELL
FRANK CAPRA'S
Pocketful of Miracles
PANAVISION COLOR

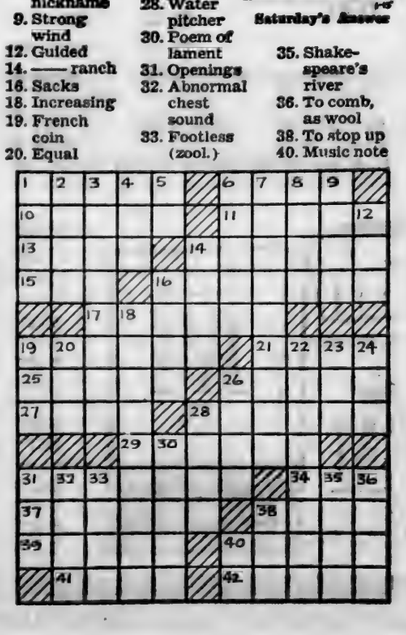
DOING IT THE HARD WAY by haff
(GETTING RID OF DANDRUFF, THAT IS!)
easier 3-minute way for men: FITCH
Men, get rid of embarrassing dandruff easy as 1-2-3 with FITCH! In just 3 minutes (one rubbing, one lathering, one rinsing), every trace of dandruff, grime, gummy old hair tonic goes right down the drain! Your hair looks handsomer, healthier. Your scalp tingles, feels so refreshed. Use FITCH Dandruff Remover SHAMPOO every week for positive dandruff control. Keep your hair and scalp really clean, dandruff-free!
FITCH
LEADING MAN'S SHAMPOO

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Quick
6. Red deer's daddy
10. Black macaw
11. Son of Japheth
12. Wee
14. To play in water
15. Unhappy
16. With eyes bulging (slang)
17. Group director
19. Parasite (colloq.)
21. Bright-colored fish
25. Solemn promises
26. Apart
27. Either Bear
28. Leveler
29. Most recent
31. Wise answers
34. American Indian
37. Two-edged sword
38. A prima donna
39. Together
40. Shaving tool
41. Snappish
42. To correct

DOWN
1. Head coverings
2. Tune
3. Amateur baseball diamonds
4. Attempt
5. Yes (dial.)
6. Platform
7. Amaryllis-like flowers
8. Girl's nickname
9. Strong wind
12. Guided
14. —— ranch
16. Sacks
18. Increasing
19. French coin
20. Equal
22. Tiny (slang)
23. Any fruit drink
24. Feminine pronoun
26. Birds as a class
28. Water pitcher
30. Poem of lament
31. Openings
32. Abnormal chest sound
33. Footless (zool.)
35. Shakespeare's river
36. To comb, as wool
38. To stop up
40. Music note

Saturday's Answer



Carolina
NOW PLAYING
Carroll Baker in Bridge to the Sun
co-starring JAMES SHIGETA

Negroes Wanted By Peace Corps In African Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Peace Corps said Saturday it would like to have more Negroes for service in Africa and elsewhere. But it emphasized the small proportion of Negroes among its initial volunteers did not constitute a problem.

The corps, which is trying to recruit more Negroes without making an issue of it, also emphasized that the rumor of Negro volunteers was increasing.

"We are making every effort to see that we have a representation that is reflective of the situation in the country," associate director William D. Moyers said. "We are not recruiting Negroes just for African projects, any more than we are recruiting Asian-Americans for Asian projects."

But, in response to questions, Corps officials said they were aware that polite disappointment was expressed in some African countries over the representation. John Alexander, director of African programs, said Africans have "let it be known that they expected its composition of the groups to be representative." Among the first 100 volunteers assigned to Africa were four Negroes. Now there are 15 among 229, Alexander said.

Alexander said the Corps had no fixed percentage in mind for Negro representation, although he noted Negroes represent about 10 per cent of the U.S. population. Special efforts are being made to bring the Corps to the attention of the Negro community through such means as speeches by recruiters at colleges, and informational material sent to the Negro press.

"There is a natural interest in Africa among American Negroes and a natural interest on the part of Africans in the progress of American Negroes," Alexander said.

Some of those close to African affairs argue that there is a feeling among African countries that the United States tends to patronize them by sending Negroes there.

"I have heard of this argument," G. Mennen Williams, assistant secretary of state for African affairs, said in a recent television interview. "I think the thing is that we just can't send them any Negroes; we have to send them a qualified Negro as we have to send them a qualified white, and I think that with men of equal qualification, the Negro can perhaps do a better job. I would say more than perhaps, probably can."

NC Conservative Attacks Spending Of Federal Funds

HIGH POINT, N. C. (UPI)—The chairman of a group seeking official recognition of a third political party in North Carolina renewed his criticism of local urban redevelopment Saturday and charged that a personal attack was being launched on him.

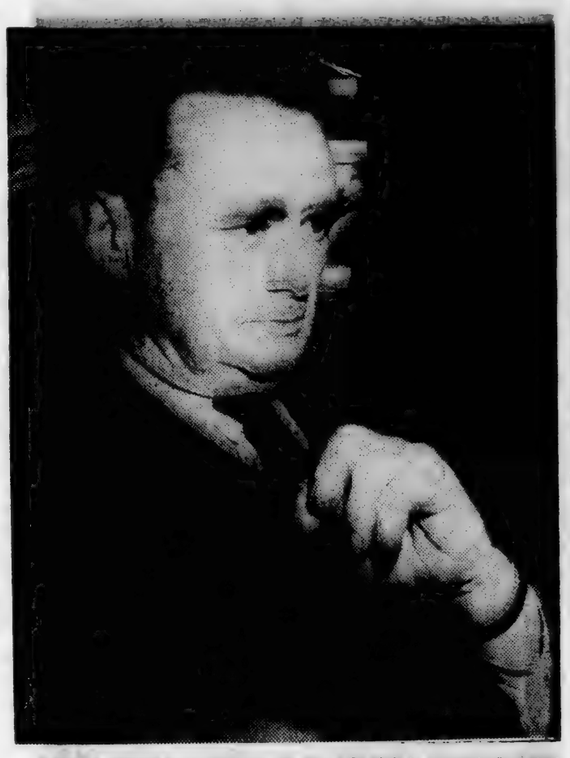
A. G. Whitener, president of a firm which sells wood materials to furniture manufacturers, distributed a red colored leaflet this week protesting against a proposed $8 million urban renewal development plan that has been approved by the federal government but is still under consideration by the city council. Whitener objects primarily to use of federal funds.

Red Ink

"I would like to remind Mayor Carson Stout, Gov. Terry Sanford and President John Kennedy that red ink was used on the folder because it seems appropriate to their philosophy of spend and spend, tax and tax, elect and elect," Whitener said in a statement Saturday afternoon.

Stout had called Whitener a "poor, misguided individual" Friday said the leaflet was an attempt to hoodwink the public into thinking the redevelopment program was designed to seize private property.

Publisher McGill To Speak At UNC's Commencement



RALPH McGILL—Publisher of the ATLANTA CONSTITUTION and a Pulitzer-prize winning journalist, will address UNC's commencement this June. McGill, raised from editor to publisher in 1960, has received an honorary degree from Harvard University, among many other honors. He will be the second southern journalist to address a UNC commencement in recent years. Lenoir Chambers, editor of the NORFOLK-VIRGINIAN PILOT, spoke here last year.

Ralph McGill, 63-year-old Pulitzer Prize winner and publisher of The Atlanta Constitution, will be the Commencement speaker at UNC graduation exercises to be held June 4.

The Daily Tar Heel in October was the first newspaper to print that McGill would be the speaker.

Last year's commencement address was made by Lenoir Chambers, editor of the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

A native of Soddy, Tenn., McGill has served with The Atlanta Constitution since 1929 when he was sports editor of the paper. In 1942 he became editor, and succeeded to publisher in June, 1960.

Served In Marines

McGill began his newspaper career while working his way through Vanderbilt University by writing police news and politics for the Nashville Banner. World War I interrupted his college work when he served in the Marines.

In 1923, McGill became sports editor of the Nashville Banner, and from there went to The Atlanta Constitution.

McGill has received numerous honors and acclaims for his newspaper performance. In 1937 he was awarded a Rosenwald Fellowship for his farm reportitng in Georgia to study farming and farm cooperatives in the Scandinavian countries, Germany, France, and England. During this period, McGill covered and reported on Hitler's invasion of Austria.

Post-War Germany

He covered the Nuremburg trials in 1946, and then observed the military government in post-war Germany in 1947. The American Society of Newspaper Editors chose McGill to be a member of a committee of three who visited the capitals of the world and their leaders in 1945 in the interest of developing a "free flow of information vital to post-war understanding."

Newspaper assignments and invitations from governmental and newspaper organizations in the United States and foreign countries have taken McGill to countries in Europe, Asia, Africa, and South and Central America. In 1960, McGill accompanied Admiral Arleigh Burke on a visit of the NATO countries, and in the summer of 1959, he accompanied former Vice President Nixon to Russia.

McGill was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for Outstanding Editorial Writing in 1958. Other awards he has received are: Missouri School of Journalism Award for Distinguished Service in 1956; the Lauterbach Award for Distinguished Service in the Field of Civil Liberties in 1960; the Georgia Press Association's Otis Brumby Award for the best daily column, 1959-60; the Lovejoy Award in 1960; and doctor of law degrees from the University of Miami, Colby College, Mercer University, and Harvard University.

The Atlanta Constitution has run McGill's column daily for the last 32 years. It also appears in The Dayton News, the Springfield Sun, and The Miami News.

He is syndicated in a number of other newspapers in America, and his articles have been published in The New York Times Magazine, The Atlantic Monthly, Harper's, and other magazines. Some have been selected for publication in textbooks. Four books of McGill's columns have been published.

McGill is keenly interested in young people and their education and future. The local station of the Atlanta schools, WABE, broadcasts to the schoolrooms an interpretation of current events by McGill once weekly, and he serves on various education commissions.

Political Conventions

Once every four years McGill attends the conventions of the two major United States political parties and then travels with their candidates during the campaigns.

McGill is a member of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the International Press Institute, the Committete for Economic Development, the Board of the Ford Foundation's Fund for the Advancement of Education, the Advisory Comtmittee on New Educational Media, the Commission on Goals for Higher Education in the South, and President Kennedy's Advisory Committee on Management and Labor Policy.

THIS SUNDAY AFTERNOON
THE TOP POP-JAZZ CONCERT OF '62
RALEIGH MEMORIAL AUD. SUNDAY AFTERNOON
Broadcasting Again ARENA time STAGE
2:15 PM SHARP 1 O'CLOCK JAN. 14
MAIL ORDERS & TICKETS
Kemp's Record Shop
And At the Door
ADM 2.00-2.50-3.00
THE MOST IN POP & JAZZ
COUNT BASIE
and his GREAT ★★★★ Recording ORCHESTRA
FEATURING
IRENE REID
OCIE SMITH
PLUS A GREAT ALL-STAR CAST OF 'POP' ARTISTS

—DTH College Roundup—

The Book-of-the-Month becomes the subject of special discussions and lectures during the month.

* * *

FREE PRESS

EUGENE, Ore. — University of Oregon President Arthur Flemming last week reaffirmed earlier statements supporting a free and autonomous student press. "A free student press plays a vital role in the University community," he said.

The statement was made as a result of questions concerning recent censorship of the student press at the University of Connecticut and possible censorship at the University of New Mexico.

ARTICLE PUBLISHED

A recent issue of Daedalus, the journal of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, included an article on "The Psychodynamic Aspects of Leadership" by Professors S. W. Abse and Lucie Jessner of the UNC Department of Psychiatry.

SPEAKS IN HILLSBORO

Wiley B. Sanders went to Hillsboro last Thursday to give a program on "Birds' Nests" at a meeting of the Hillsboro Garden Club at the home of Mrs. Harry C. Waldo.

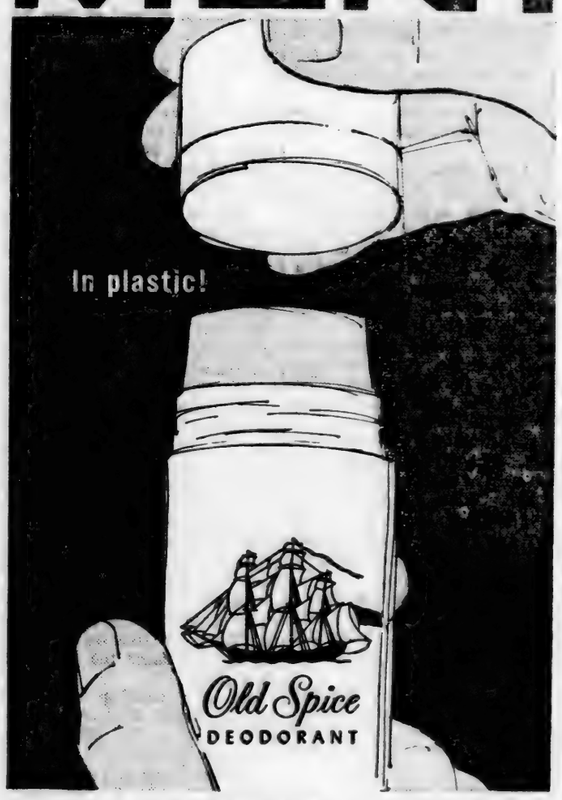
Get Better Grades With Study Aids
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

LOOK SHARP! BE SHARP!
See Our Contemporary Studio Cards
Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

℞ This is an Rx
When our pharmacist places the label on your prescription, those are your doctor's orders. Read that label and follow it. Never take an overdose without direct permission of your doctor. Never "try" someone else's prescription because you think you have "the same thing". Your doctor doesn't guess; your pharmacist doesn't guess — don't you!
DEPEND ON OUR PRESCRIPTION SERVICE
RX4
SUTTON'S
You're always welcome at your Walgreen Agency Drug Store

MEN!



Here's deodorant protection
YOU CAN TRUST
Old Spice Stick Deodorant... fastest, neatest way to all-day, every day protection! It's the active deodorant for active men... absolutely dependable. Glides on smoothly, speedily... dries in record time. Old Spice Stick Deodorant —most convenient, most economical deodorant money can buy. 1.00 plus tax.
Old Spice STICK DEODORANT
SHULTON

Freshman Cagers Get Raves As Unbeaten Streak Extends

Rosemond's Team Fast, Not Tall

By HARRY W. LLOYD

DTH Sports Editor

There have been some great freshman teams at Carolina. In 1955, Coach Frank McGuire put together a tremendous yearling group with such would-be greats as Pete Brennan, Tommy Kearns, Bob Cunningham, and Joe Quigg.

Two years later, four of these men were starters on a national championship club.

The 1957 club, just like their varsity counterpart, was a great club, featuring such names as York Larese, Lee Shaffer, and Dick Kepley.

Dean Smith's freshman team of 1959 included such fine players as Donnie Walsh, Jim Hudock, Ken McComb, and Yogi Poteet.

This year, another brilliant aggregation of basketball talent is drawing the fans' attentions, not only to the current freshman team, but to the years ahead.

Kenny Rosemond, a member of the national championship squad at UNC, but who didn't attend UNC as a freshman, is in his fourth year as the freshman coach. Without much doubt, the present team is the best he has produced.

This week, the Tar Babies won their eighth consecutive game of the season, defeating a tall, talent-laden Duke team by 74-62. The Duke freshmen, who hadn't lost a game in 22 games over two seasons of play, boasted a seven-foot center and two forwards who were six-five or better.

Carolina's tallest man was less than six-five. And he played less than half the game. For much of the contest, Rosemond had a six-three boy guarding the Duke giant.

That is one of the reasons fans are marvelling at the Tar Babies. As basketball teams go, they are relative midgets. But when it comes to scoring points, they have been bigger than anybody.

First of all, the team has excellent speed. They can all run, and often they do. Any of the starting five can lead the fast break. Because of this speed, their offensive and defensive play both are helped greatly.

The Carolina freshmen play the same basic offense as the varsity does. This is the "constant motion," or "shuffle" style of play. This pattern differs from a normal "give and go" system in that the players are ready to set up a play at all times. This offense was set up at Carolina for one main reason—the Tar Heels lacked height. With the shuffle, both Carolina teams have been able to overcome a height disadvantage in the shooting game.

But this offense has done more than make the players play taller. It has apparently turned them into a team of shooting demons. At this stage of the game, the team has compiled a fantastic shooting percentage of better than half of their shots from the floor (51.6).

Four of Rosemond's starters, and five of his top six men, are shooting better than 50 per cent. The other man is only a shade under 40 per cent.

The team's big guns, the man the fans like to see, is Billy Cunningham, the Brooklyn boy. Cunningham, at an inauspicious 6-4 height, is the center. But as many fans have already found out, Bill is the "tallest" 6-4 man ever to put on a Carolina uniform.

Cunningham is blessed with a catlike set of reflexes and a wonderful sense of timing. Along with these, he also has a tremendous jumping ability.

In the ceremonies before this week's Duke-UNC game, Cunningham met with Duke captain and center Hack Tison, the seven-footer, at midcourt, along with the game officials. Tison appeared almost a head taller than the Carolina boy.

When the official threw the ball into the air, there was a resounding whack as one boy's hand went up higher than the other's and tapped the ball to one of his teammates. The highest jumper was Cunningham.

"I thought that Bill would outjump him," said Rosemond later. "I got that feeling while seeing him in the dressing room just before the game. His attitude was different. When he stepped into the circle and crouched, I knew that he was ready. He didn't want to be outdone."

Needless to say, that first incident in the ball game had a tremendous psychological effect on both teams.

But despite the plaudits that are poured on Cunningham, the UNC team is anything but a one-man gang. Cunningham will be ineligible for freshman play after the end of the first semester, because at that time he will have finished two full semesters here. As much as Rosemond would like to have him around for the remainder of the campaign, he isn't crying at his departure. He has five or six good reasons.

One of them is Respess, who played high school ball at Pantego, N. C. Respess, considered by many to be the top high school player in the state last year, will probably move from his forward position into the center spot when Cunningham leaves. Respess is known as a tremendous shooter with a magical pair of hands. His favorite shot is the long jumper from outside the circle, which he executes much in the same manner as does York Larese. He has a smooth shooting motion, and could easily become the best free throw shooter ever to play here. In high school, he had a career free throw shooting average of 88 per cent. In eight games here, he has just about matched that figure with 20 of 23 from the line.

Respess is a terrific jumper for a man of his size, and along with Cunningham, has helped Carolina to backboard dominance in most of its games. The 6-4 boy has hit on 33 of 57 shots from the floor for better than a .54 percentage.

Carolina's brilliant pair of guards is one that Rosemond and head Coach Dean Smith wouldn't trade for any other. The higher scoring member of the combination is Jay Neary, a 6-2 seventeen - year - old from Cambria Heights, N. Y. Neary is the top outside shooter and the best driver on the team. He is a tenacious defensiveman, and has made numerous steals so far this year.

However, his top contribution could come from his passing ability. Time after time he has passed off to men under the basket for easy shots.

The other member of the pair has developed into an all-round player. He is Bill Brown, a 6-3 boy from Durham who would just as soon go inside and play with the big men as stay outside. Brown is the team's leading shooter, percentage wise, and has also become a valuable rebounder, passer, and playmaker.

The fifth starter, who stood out so well for his defensive work in the Duke game, is Beaufort's Pud Hassell. Hassell holds a distinction that few athletes ever even think about. He has never been on a losing basketball team. At Beaufort High, he played in 76 consecutive games without a loss, and now has kept up the string at UNC.

Pud's real name is Charles. His cousin, Butch, is a sophomore guard at Wake Forest. Pud is attending Carolina on a Morehead scholarship. Like Cunningham and Neary he is a lefthander. The poker-faced forward likes to shoot from the corner, and can also do a good job of rebounding.

Two more men have figured prominently into Carolina successes, and one of them will be moving into a starting position after two more games. Both of them are natives of Wake County.

First is guard Bill Taylor from Cary, who bears a striking resemblance to former Carolina All-American Pete Brennan. Taylor is a little man—5-11—but he is hitting better than 54 per cent from the floor and has made good on 80 per cent of his foul shots.

Taylor, whose top games have been against N. C. State and Duke, in which he got 11 and 8 points respectively, has impressed Rosemond with the way he came off the bench and played with such savvy.

The other contender is Richard Engle, a 6-4 forward from Fuquay. Richard, a blond, has been of the most aid in the rebounding department. His brother, Fred, is a former freshman player and varsity manager who is now a high school and freshman official.

For eight games, the scoring averages run this way: Cunningham 19.9; Neary 17.4; Respess 14.8; Brown 12.9; Hassell 7.1; Taylor 5; and Engle 1.0.

The fantastic shooting percentages are like this: Cunningham .504; Neary .566; Respess .544; Brown .579; Hassell .393; Taylor .542; and Engle .375.

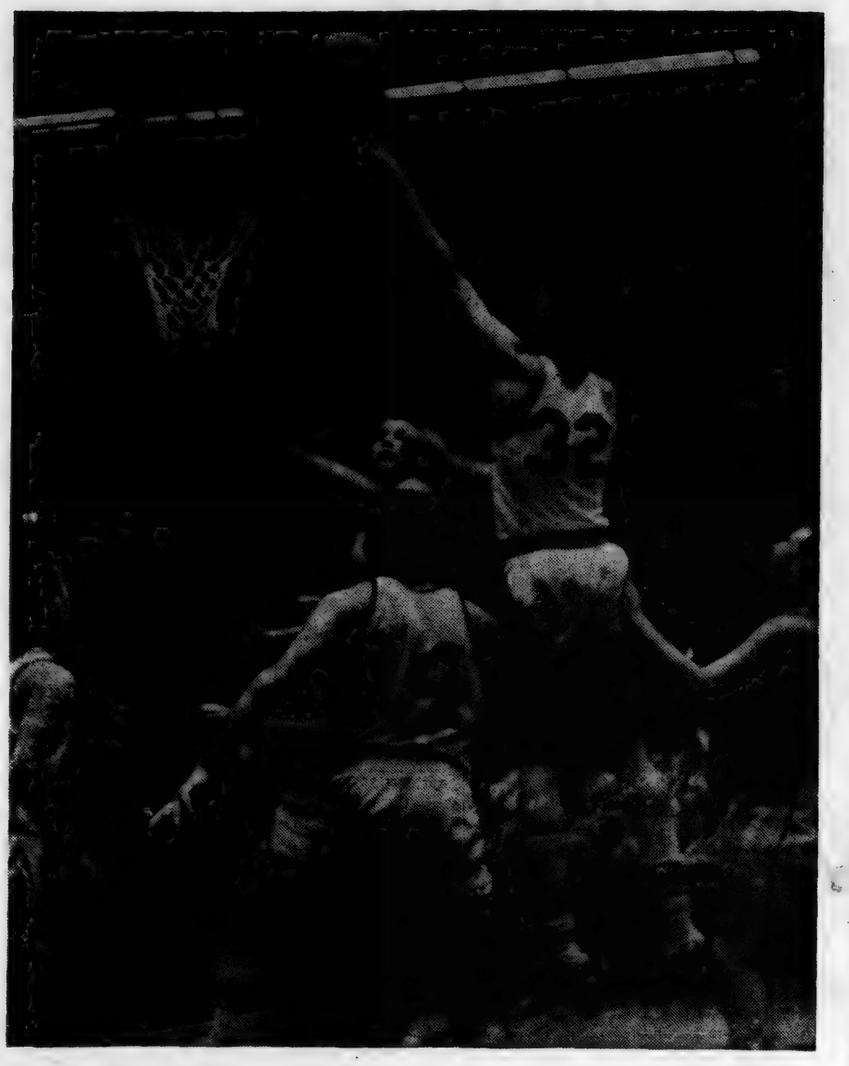
"Those shooting percentages look fine," Rosemond says, "but I am more proud of our defensive play than anything." Carolina has averaged scoring 77.4 points per game, while holding its opponents to a 62.8 mark.

Five wins came in an eight day period. Some of them were close. The consecutive games with Davidson, Wilmington, and N. C. State ended 4, 2, and 3 point wins.

The freshmen will be playing at home twice this week — against South Carolina tomorrow night and against State on Wednesday, for their last meets before exams. Carolina fans have been turning out in capacity crowds to watch this team at work.

"We really appreciate the support that the students have given us," said Rosemond. "I knew that we would have a good crowd against Duke, but I was still surprised to see every seat taken."

Freshman basketball is a major league sport at UNC.



BILLY SHOOTS—The all-round play of 6-4 center Billy Cunningham has been an important factor in the success of Carolina's freshman basketball team. Cunningham, who has a 19.9 scoring average, is shown here as he leaps high for a jumper in his team's 90-48 rout of the Elon Jayvees earlier this season.

Brown, Walsh Lead In Win

UNC Tops Cavs, 100-71

GREENSBORO—North Carolina aimed at the 100 figure at the second week in a row, and they finally hit it. The Tar Heels broke a Memorial Coliseum scoring record in downing the University of Virginia, 100-71.

Charlie Burns, the man who scored the 99th and finall point against Notre Dame last week, was the player who pushed Carolina into triple figures for the first time.

North Carolina had very little trouble in gaining their third ACC win of the season and their second over Virginia. The Cavaliers took a 4-2 lead at the outset, but then the UNC baskets started pouring in.

Jim Hudock hit to tie the score, and Don Walsh put Carolina ahead. Hudock hit again, and then Jim Donohue and Larry Brown scored two each to push the Tar Heels into a 12-4 lead. They never trailed again.

When Mike Cooke, who had been a starter but was replaced in the lineup tonight by the 6-8 Donohue, entered for the first time, the Tar Heels led by 27-19. Cooke poured in eight straight points to increase the lead to 35-19. The Tar Heels led at the half by 49-30.

In the first half of play, Carolina kept up their fine shooting that has earmarked their play all year long by hitting on 51.2 from the floor. Their scoring was led by guards Walsh and Brown with 13 each in the first 20 minutes. Most of these points came on fast breaks, as the Tar Heels controlled the defensive backboards. Hudock, Donohue, and Cooke paced the rebounders.

For the game, Brown was the high scorer with 24 points. Walsh followed with 20.

Walsh's biggest contribution, however, came on his defensive work, despite the fact that he broke his own personal scoring record. In the first half, he held the leading Virginia scorer, Tony Laquintano, to only 4 points. The little guard hit the first two Cavalier baskets, and didn't make another basket in the first half. He ended up with 12, but many of those came after Walsh had left the game.

Jim Hudock was the third high scorer for UNC with 14. Jim Donohue added 13 and Dieter Krause scored 11 in a relief role. Mike Cooke had eight.

Chip Connor, a sophomore, was the leading point maker for the Cavaliers, who were officially the home team in the game. Connor had 18. Other Virginia scoring included Miller with 10, Engel with 9, and Katstra with 8.

Carolina men below double figures included Bryan McSweeney with 3, Peppy Callahan with 3, Harry Jones 2, Charlie Burns 2, and Charlie Shaffer 2.

The Tar Heels go right back to work here tomorrow night when they take on the Gamecocks of South Carolina. The freshmen teams of both schools tangle in a preliminary at 6 p.m. The varsities will meet at 8. South Carolina pulled an upset victory over N. C. State yesterday.

UNC Matmen Pull Upset On Mounties

By ED DUPREE

Coach Sam Barnes' wrestlers took an early lead and coasted to an easy 21-11 victory over West Virginia Mountaineers for their second straight win of the season.

Pete Gilchrist, 130-pound division, and Tom Grant, 157, each pinned their WVU opponent and accounted for the ten-point victory margin.

Gilchrist brought the small Woollen Gym crowd to their feet in the night's second match by pinning Paul Cheek in one minute and 39 seconds of the opening period. His win gave the Tar Heels a lead they never relinquished.

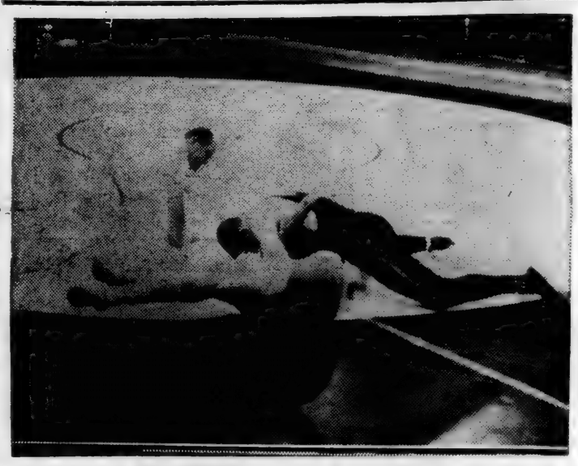
With the score already 13-3, Grant flattened Gary Wilson with 1:12 remaining in the third period to push the score to 18-3.

Glenn Glaser, 167-pounder, racked up Carolina's last individual win of the night by decisioning Mike Sullivan of the Mounties.

But, John Ulfelder's win in the 137-pound class over Larry Blackburn drew praise from Barnes. The UNC mentor said after the match, which was Carolina's first win in wrestling history over WVU, that "Ulfelder's win picked the whole team up." He also termed Tom Grant's win over Wilson a big surprise.

Jack Jones, 147, took a forfeit when Sam Church, WVU captain, pulled a cartilage in his shoulder.

Heavyweight Jerry Cabe made a brilliant last second escape in the final match, but lost to George Nedeff on riding time.



REFEREE WATCHES as Carolina 147-pounder Jack Jones is rolled by West Virginia opponent.

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY

BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M.

at the RANCH HOUSE

Recommended By Duncan Hines and Gourmet

NC 86 AIRPORT RD.
the Ranch House
OPEN CHARCOAL HICKORY PIT BROILING
PRIME WESTERN STEAKS
FLAMING SHISHKEBAB & BEEFKEBAB

Can Eat— It's A All You Treat Cowboy

Mid Winter Housecleaning Sale

Shopworn books and dropped

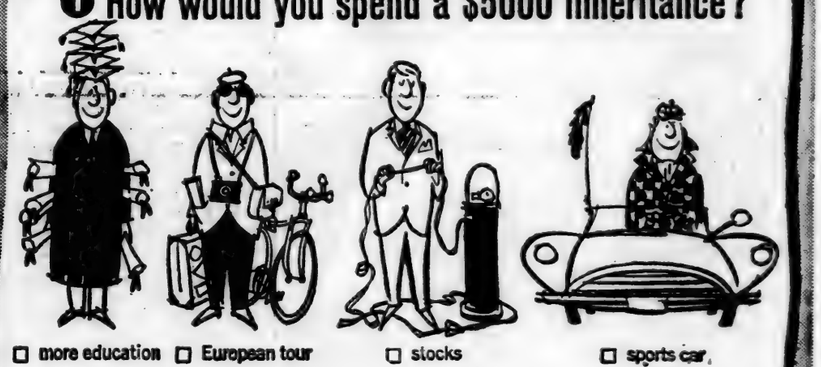
Titles at preposterous prices

Starts Monday, Jan. 15th

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 E. Franklin St.—Open Till 10 P.M.

Check your opinions against L'M's Campus Opinion Poll #16



Expect more, get more, from L&M

There's actually more rich-flavor leaf in L&M than even in some unfiltered cigarettes. You get more body in the blend, more flavor in the smoke, more taste through the filter. So get Lots More from filter smoking with L&M . . . the cigarette that smokes heartier as it draws freely through the pure-white, modern filter.

HERE'S HOW 1029 STUDENTS AT 100 COLLEGES VOTED!

1	more education	36%
	European tour	31%
	stocks	24%
	sports car	9%
2	Yes	12%
	No	88%
3	bull sessions	28%
	studying	27%
	date	10%
	stress & strain	35%

L&M's the filter cigarette for people who really like to smoke

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

79

Investigations
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Clear to partly cloudy; Colder with highs in the 40's

Offices in Graham Memorial | TUESDAY, JANUARY 16, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Poll Finds 86 Pct. Rap Goldwater's Fraternity View

An informal poll by the State and National Affairs committee of the Freshman Class revealed 86 per cent of 103 freshman disagreed with Senator Barry Goldwater's statement that universities without fraternities are "hotbeds of Communism."

One student said, "Not any more so than colleges with fraternities. All colleges breed Communism and fraternities don't have that much effect."

The freshmen polled were chosen from 10 dormitory floors randomly selected from all the freshman dorms.

Goldwater, in an address to the National Inter-fraternity Council meeting in Washington last year, said, in effect, that the fraternity plays a major role in the continuation of American ideals and democracy, and that universities without fraternities are breeding places of Communism.

Fourteen per cent of those polled agreed with the Senator's opinion.

One fraternity pledge said "Although the fraternity can be a good thing, just because it is not present doesn't mean that the university is more communist."

Another student said, "What's so democratic about the fraternity system? (Black-balls, race clauses, cooperative housing and eating (socialist) and other things . . ."

Religious Issue

All other questions on the poll dealt with religion.

(Continued on Page 3)

Plans Made For Washington Trip By 33 Students

This year's annual Washington seminar for students interested in observing congress in operation and gaining first-hand information on U. S. foreign policy will be held February 8-11, the YM-YWCA announced today.

Sponsored by the Y's International Relations Committee, the Seminar's theme will be "The New Frontier and the Challenge of Africa." A chartered bus, which holds 33 students, will take the group to Washington. Applications are available at the YWCA to anyone interested in attending the seminar. Deadline for applications is January 31.

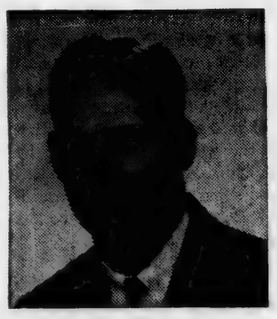
In Washington the group will have special interviews with a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and with representatives from the Ghanian and Nigerian embassies.

Luncheon Address

Lee St. Lawrence of the Peace Corps, formerly connected with "Crossroads Africa," will address the group at a luncheon meeting, and James Reston, Washington correspondent of the New York Times, will speak to the group in his office. All meetings will be informal with students participating in the discussions.

One of the highlights of the trip will be attending a session of Congress and another the opportunity for students to visit their senators and congressmen. Nights will be free for plays and other entertainment.

Thomas Named To 'Lost Colony' Post



F. Edgar Thomas

F. Edgar Thomas Jr., assistant secretary of the UNC General Alumni Association, was yesterday named general manager of "The Lost Colony."

The appointment of Thomas to the top staff position of Paul Green's outdoor symphonic drama, first presented at Manteo in the summer of 1937, was authorized by the Association's board of directors at a luncheon meeting held in Raleigh.

Prior to his appointment, Thomas had been with the Alumni Association for some 10 years.

In his new position to which he reports immediately on a full-time basis, Thomas succeeds J. Sib Dorton, escheats officer of the Consolidated University, who served as general manager of "The Lost Colony" for the past two seasons and currently is vice chairman of the sponsoring group's board of directors.

During the off-season months of "The Lost Colony" Mr. Thomas will live in Chapel Hill where he will be engaged in planning and promoting attendance for the drama. Until he moves to Manteo in May his office headquarters will be in the University News Bureau in Bynum Hall.

Chancellor William B. Aycock, a member of the board of directors of the Roanoke Island Historical Association, served as chairman of the committee to recommend a successor to Dorton.

Native of Wadesboro and 1937 Carolina graduate, Thomas returned to Chapel Hill in 1951 after five years in New York City during which time he was engaged in public relations and personnel management.

During World War II he served in the Army Air Forces as a public relations officer in England and the United States.

Following graduation from the University with an A.B. degree in Education he taught history and adult evening classes for five years at Greensboro Senior High School. Active in local and state professional affairs, he served as presi-

(Continued on Page 3)

Campus Briefs

The Freshman Class publicity committee will meet today at 4:30 p.m. in Roland Parker II, GM.

* * *

The National Student Association committee will meet Wednesday at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker II, GM.

* * *

FOUND — A ring from Baylor University, '61, in the washroom of the library, by William Cunningham, 208 Avery.

* * *

The UNC Student Wives will meet tonight at 8 on the second floor of GM for an end of the Fall Semester Party. Featured will be bridge, entertainment by members of the club and twist and limbo lessons.

GM SLATE

Times and Events	Locations
3:30-5 Budget Committee	WDHSE
5-6:30 Petite Dramatique	GRAIL
5:30-6:30 Tronto Exchange	RP 3
6:30-7:30 W. R. C.	GRAIL
7-8 Christian Science Org.	WDHSE
7-10:30 S. P.	RP 1, 2
8-11 Student Wives	RP 3
9-11 Beanbirds	WDHSE

FACULTY NEWS

Fred Is Promoted; Holman Publishes

Herbert W. Fred, instructor in the Music Department and director of the UNC Band, has been promoted to assistant professor, Chancellor William B. Aycock has announced.

From 1953-56, Fred served as a graduate assistant here and Director of Bands. He joined the staff in 1956. Fred attended Northwestern University where he received B.M.E. and M.M. degrees. He received a Ph.D. degree in musicology at the University here in the summer of 1961.

★ ★ ★

NOVEL PUBLISHED

Kenan Professor C. Hugh Holman names William Gilmore Simms "The outstanding novelist of the ante-bellum South in a recently published Holman-edited edition of Simms' novel "The Yemassee." Prof. Holman heads the English Department here.

The publishers say, "Professor Holman's introduction is a significant contribution to the overdue reassessment of Simms."

The book gets its historical background from the Yemassee Indians and the Yemassee War of 1715.

★ ★ ★

ON DESIGNING BOARD

George E. Nicholson Jr., professor and chairman of the Department of Statistics, is a member of a six-member advisory committee to study the design of buildings and facilities for mathematics, statistics and computing.

The Conference Board of the Mathematical Sciences is conducting a study of the design of buildings and facilities for mathematics with the aid of a grant from Educational Facilities Laboratories, a subsidiary of the Ford Foundation.

International Student Program Organized Here

A sub-committee of the International Students Board is now organizing a "College Ambassador" program here.

This program will provide for one or more UNC students to be chosen to join in a group of ten which will travel to one of thirty countries in Latin America, Eastern or Western Europe, the Middle East, Africa, or Asia during the summer of 1962.

Each "ambassador" will spend the first month as the "son" or "daughter" of a family in the country visited. During the second month, the U. S. Experiment group will play host to selected family members on an informal trip throughout the country. The concluding four days will be spent in a major city.

Scholarships Sought

The International Students Board is trying to interest fraternities, sororities, civic, church, service, and other campus organizations in providing a "scholarship" for a young man or woman to join an outbound group. The guidance of the program will be handled by an executive committee consisting of one member from each organization contributing $25 or more.

Nancy Butler, chairman of the sub-committee, said, "We want to stress that the success of the program depends on wide participation among campus groups. We've sent letters to many of the organizations and are now awaiting replies."

Tickets On Sale For Film Society Spring Members

Tickets for the UNC-Chapel Hill Film Society's spring series will go on sale in the YM-YWCA lobby this Tuesday.

The eight-program series of shorts and features, held in Carroll Hall on Monday nights from February 5 to May 14, includes such rarities as Luis Bunuel's and Salvador Dali's "Le Chien Andalou," which was a sensation in art circles in the twenties and banned in theatres; "Double Whoopee," a Laurel and Hardy farce which introduced Jean Harlow to the screen; the original version of "Beau Geste," with Ronald Colman, William Powell, Alice Joyce and Neil Hamilton, among others; Fritz Lang's famed "M," starring Peter Lorre, the first German sound film, and Dovzhenko's poetic "Earth," a widely-acclaimed film on the controversial Russian farm collectives.

Experimental

On its February 19th program the Society will present a special group of experimental films made in various countries. The English "Coming Shortly" is a satire on movie theatre trailers. The American "Sunlight" is by the first Negro experimental director, and the Argentinian "Symphony in No B Flat" disconcertingly explores some rather 'unexpected' effects of radio-active fallout. Other experimentals to be shown are "Go Slow on the Brighton," "Hallucinations," "Mothers Day," and "Private Life of a Cat."

New Biography

A new filmed biography of the great Russion director, Sergei Eisenstein, will be shown in April as will Eisenstein's epic sound classic on the invasion of the Baltic provinces by the Crusaders in 1242, "Alexander Nevsky." Prokofiev composed a special score for "Nevsky," which has battle scenes not equalled in any other film and which Time magazine described "perfection in visual splendor and excitement."

"Le Chien Andalou" and Yves Allegret's "The Proud and the Beautiful," starring Michele Morgan and Gerard Philipe, open the film series on February 5. Excerpts from Swedish cinema classics and Jean Benoit-Levy's "La Maternelle" will close it on May 14.

Complete programs will be available from those selling memberships in the Y lobby or from the society's sponsoring committee: Watler Spearman, Tom and Mary Patterson, Tom and Betsey Davis, Anne Queen, Robert Hilliard, Ross Scroggs, Elmer Oettinger, Phillips Russell, Robert Johnson, Polly Brady, Maggie Dent, John Allcott, John Schnorrenberg and Beth Okun, and from the following student committeemen: Diane Bedell, Nancy Barr, Bruce Cooper, Tam Lefler, Charles Weil, Neill Clark, Charles Heatherly and John Safco.

Membership tickets are $4.00 each or $7.00 per couple. High School students may join for $3.00.

Sukarno Fleet Repelled By Dutch New Guineans

MINNESOTA — Ackland Art Center Director Dr. Joseph C. Sloane holds one of the 46 works by 30 artists in the current exhibition "A University Collects: Minnesota." The exhibition presents a summary of the development of American art from the late 19th century to the abstract expressionism of the late 1940s and 1950s. —Photo by Wallace

2 Torpedo Boats Apparently Lost Troops Mobilized

HOLLANDIA, Dutch New Guinea (UPI) — The Dutch Navy said it intercepted an Indonesian invasion fleet off the coast of Dutch New Guinea Monday and sent it fleeing after a naval battle in which the Dutch destroyed two Indonesian motor torpedo boats.

Captain R. M. Elbers, official Dutch naval spokesman here, said a third motor torpedo boat was "seen fleeing with the rest of the invasion fleet after the brief engagement off the Southern coast of West New Guinea.

"It looks as if we frustrated an Indonesian invasion attempt," he said.

In the Hague, a defense ministry spokesman would not comment when asked if the clash meant a state of war existed between Holland and Indonesia. He did say that all information leaving his office was under full security cleck "as in wartime."

In Washington U. S. officials expressed concern that indonesian pressed concern that Indonesian war as a face-saving gesture.

Sukarno, who has mobilized his nation and amassed 48,000 troops in the South Celebes for an invasion attempt, met with his war captain in Jakarta.

Reports filtering through heavy Indonesian censorship indicated the Indonesians maybe had sent a flotilla of destroyers to the North Celebes.

There were unconfirmed reports that some fighting had already taken place on the New Guinea mainland between Dutch troops and Indonesian infiltrators, but Dutch sources denied them.

It was not immediately known how many vessels took part in the battle. Captain Elbers said some of the Indonesian vesseis were big enough to carry 60 men each—possibly part of the "thousand small boats" Sukarno said he would send against New Guinea.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy appealed to both the Netherlands and Indonesia Monday for peaceful settlement of their New Guinea dispute lest an outbreak of war bring harm to all the world

He said the United States was "extremely anxious that a peaceful accommodation be reached in this matter" and had used its influence toward that end.

Exam Schedule

By action of the faculty, the time of an examination may not be changed after it has been fixed in the schedule. Quizzes are not to be given in this semester on or after Monday, January 15, 1961

The Official Class Roll and Grade Report will be prepared by the Data Processing Section and forwarded to the departments prior to the examination period. As in the past, the original copy will be returned to the Office of Records and Registration, the second copy (canary) is to be retained by the department, and the third copy (goldenrod) is to be kept by the instructor.

Grade reports are to be handed in to the department office within 72 hours after the scheduled time of the final examination. The department chairman shall be responsible for recording receipt of each grade report (the Form DR-1 may be used for this) and for forwarding it promptly to the Office of Records and Registration. In unusual cases, if it is clearly needed, an extension of the time limit, preferably not to exceed 48 hours, may be approved by the department chairman or the dean of the school concerned. The Office of Records and Registration must be given notice of the delay. (Faculty Council, May 6, 1960.) Machine processing of grades makes it urgent that all grades be turned in on time.

All permits to take examinations to remove grades of "Exc. Abs." or "Cond." must be secured from the Office of Records and Registration prior to the exam. No students mav be excused from a scheduled examination except by the University Infirmary in case of illness or by his Dean in case of any other emergenoy compelling his absence.

All 12:00 noon classes on MWF, *Econ, 81	Mon. Jan. 22	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on MWF, *Econ. 31, 32 61 & 70	Mon. Jan. 22	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Tues. Jan. 23	8:30 a.m.
All 12:00 noon classes on TThs, all *Naval Science and *Air Science	Tues. Jan. 23	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on TThs	Wed. Jan. 24	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on TThs, *Poli 41, Busi. 150	Wed. Jan. 24	2:00 p.m.
All French, German & Spanish courses Numbered 1, 2, 3, 3x ? 4, *Phch. 61	Thurs. Jan. 25	8:30 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Thurs. Jan. 25	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Fri. Jan. 26	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Fri Jan. 26	2:00 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Sat. Jan. 27	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on MWF *Busi 160, *Phys. 24	Sat. Jan. 27	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Mon. Jan. 29	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on TThS, *Busi 130, *Chem. 43	Mon. Jan. 29	2:00 p.m.
All 3:00 p.m. classes, *Chem. 11, *Busi. 71 & 72, and all classes not otherwise provided for in this schedule	Tues. Jan. 30	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Tues. Jan. 30	2:00 p.m.

Instructors teaching classes scheduled for common examinations shall request the students in these classes to report to them any conflict with any other examination not later than December 15. In case of a conflict, the regularly scheduled exam will take precedence over the common exam. (Common exams are indicated by an asterisk.)

Exhibition From U. Of Minnesota Now At Ackland

The current exhibition at the Ackland Art Center is "A University Collects: Minnesota". There are 46 works by 30 artists selected from the extensive collection of the University Gallery, University of Minnesota.

Among the unusually attractive works presented are an ink and water color by Lyonel Feinninger, a Kathe Kollwitz drawing, a water color by the great American water colorist, John Marin, and five works by the American Expressionist, Marsden Hartley. George Grosz, known for his socially oriented satire, is represented with a water color and gouache. Among the other internationally known artists whose work can be seen in this exhibition at the Center are Lovis Cornith, Max Pechstein, and David Smith.

The exhibition presents a brief summary of the development of American art from the late 19th century to the abstract expressionism of the late 1940's and 1950's.

The peculiar interest of this exhibition for the University is the fact that it represents the taste and selection of a sister institution engaged in forming a teaching collection similar to that of the Ackland Art Center. Many American colleges and universities are today improving the quality of their instruction in the arts by acquiring original works of art of high quality.

The exhibition was selected from the more than 2,000 items in the permanent collection of the University of Minnesota Gallery which includes examples of painting, graphic art, drawing, sculpture and various crafts with American art predominating, but also including the work of European artists of the 19th and 20th centuries.

Infirmary

Students in the Infirmary yesterday were: Marshall Barrow, Lillian Ennis, Beverly Wentz, Ann McGalliard, Edward Silber, John Flournoy, John Hallman, Charles Parker, Arthur Smoot, Stephen Lindell, Richard Fuller, Robert Bolan.

Hugo Specher, Atahos Rostan, Michal Doctor, Hubert Hawkins, Don Whisenant, Paul Ertel, Frank Tew, Richard Fleming, Robert Deal, Larry Edwards, Lawrence Sizemore, Thomas Lofin, Neal Jackson and Edwin Aycock.

Film On Students To Be Shown On Local Television

The 14th Congress of the National student association widely covered in the press as a clash between liberals and conservatives, will be the focal point for a discusion on David Brinkley's Journal on increasing student activity and political awareness.

Film excerpts from the Congress, held at the University of Wisconsin, Aug 20-30, 1961, will be shown over WSJS-TV (channel 12, from Winston-Salem) and WECT-TV (channel 6, from Wilmington) on Wednesday at 10:30 p.m.

The NBC affiliate in Raleigh, WRAL, will not carry the show, and the programming department of WUNC-TV says there is little chance they will be able to acquire a tape of the show at a later date.

The film is to begin with excerpts from speeches by U. S. Senators Barry Goldwater and John Tower in which they claim that there is a trend toward conservatism among American college students. The show then moves to the National Student Association Congress itself to cover student leaders in action.

The show will concentrate on the development of one resolution over which there was a debate between librals and conservatives.

Placement Service Sees Rise In Demand For College Grads

Employers' demands for college graduates is continuing to increase —even in years where there is great unemployment nationally, according to figures of the UNC Placement Service.

Director Joe M. Galloway says that the demand for personnel for the 12 month period ending on September 30, 1961, is slightly improved over the demand for the previous year.

Figures from the office show that for this period, a total of 564 persons registered with the service were placed in jobs. A total of 972 graduates had registered for employment service. Of this total, 51 entered branches of the military service; 58 remained in school; 157 did not report their intentions; and 142 chose to remain on the office's active files for future consideration.

309 With BA's

Of those persons registered with the office, 309 were alumni who graduated with a bachelor's degree before 1961; 111 were 1961 seniors in business administration; 251 were seniors in arts and sciences; 182 were college teacher candidates; 106 were other graduate students seeking non-teaching positions; and 13 were seniors in the professional schools.

Salaries for beginning jobs in positions in business, industry, and government continue to rise for both in state and out of state jobs, according to Galloway.

In business, industry, and governmental positions, the largest percentage of students accepted employment in accounting. In decreasing order, the other fields entered by the largest percentages of students were banking and finance; textiles; insurance; U. S. government; business machines; chemical or pharmaceutical field; and retailing.

English Openings

In the area of college teacher placement, th largest openings were for teachers of English with teachers of education and mathematics next in demand. In all cases of college teacher placement, the number of job openings received in the office far exceeded the number of registrants for positions in that field.

The median salary received by 1961 graduates with the bachelor's degree who accepted positions in the state was $400 per month. Among those accepting positions out of state, the median was $425 per month.

The chemistry graduates with a Ph.D. degree received beginning salaries between $710 and $830 per month. Graduate students who completed the Master of Business Administration program and entered employment within the state received a median salary of $525 per month.

Among the college teachers, monthly salaries reported for professors were $645-$840; for associate professors—$665-$700; for assistant professors—$405-$810; for instructors — $350 - $720; for high school or prep school—$405-$535.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 16, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 79

They Should Be Conducted By Students

Investigations

Honor Council proceedings, no matter how well conducted, can never be perfect. Errors will occur; the innocent can be found guilty, the guilty go scot-free. Human judgment is far from infallible.

But, given a reasonably intelligent Council and a thorough and unbiased investigation of facts surrounding a case, errors will be few. At least, no students will be victims of unfair proceedings.

The present Honor Council, as nearly as we can judge, is as competent in weighing evidence presented as can be expected.

We are not convinced, however, that investigations are carried out impartially and efficiently. It is here that the Council is too often prone to error. If facts are not presented completely and without bias, the chances for a fair hearing are reduced to nothing.

In many cases, we are convinced, they are not. This does not mean that the Attorney General and his staff are not competent and fair in their investigations. In the majority of cases, they are.

However, when a case does not originate with the Council or the Attorney General's staff, the investigation must necessarily start with a handicap. When the case originates in the office of the Assistant Dean of Student Affairs William Long, the handicap is apt to be a major one. Too often, investigation is started and nearly completed before the case is turned over to the Council.

When it is, the charge levied is decided by Long, not by the Council, and it is on this charge that the student is tried. Evidence, often, is supplied from conversations between Long and the student being tried.

It seems to us that this is not the way the Honor System is supposed to work. When one member of the administration carries on his own investigation, writes the charge and supplies part of the evidence, the trial is apt to be unduly influenced by his judgment of the case. Whether or not this means the final decision will be biased is open to question.

To give an example of one of Dean Long's investigations, it might be well to cite an instance from a recent case.

A student was thought to have violated the Honor Code by bringing a sheet of information into an examination. The charge, as interpreted by Dean Long and submitted to the Honor Council, referred to the paper as a "cheat-sheet." Now, it appears to us that it is for the Council to decide if the paper was indeed a "cheat-sheet." It seems that Dean Long had already decided what the paper was, and its intended use. The Council, incidentally, quite correctly refrained from calling the paper a "cheat-sheet."

Beyond such instances as these, there are other good reasons for having investigations carried on, and charges written by the Attorney General and his staff. An Honor Council trial should be a student proceeding. It should not be a cat's paw for Dean Long. It is designed to be conducted by students, incorporating just evaluation of fact, not pre-judgment by a member of the administration.

If we are supposed to have student government and a real Honor System, let's have them. If not, call them by another name.

The watered-down, half-hearted and near-fraudulent substitutes are getting tiresome.

Interest Up

The Student Party will hold an open meeting in Graham Memorial tonight at 8. To be presented is the first in a series of programs to cover the honor system, executive committees, the Student Legislature, orientation needs, and a history of campus political parties.

Twice recently the opposition University Party has held open party meetings. At these meetings were discused some of the major problems UNC's student government faces, and action was taken on several proposals, including appropriations to the freshman and sophomore classes.

These developments encourage the hope that students are taking increased interest in campus government and plan to make it their government.

Hopefully the political parties and the interested students within them will soon turn to more important student issues: the National Student Association; the honor system and campus code, and the broader issue of degree of student government autinomy; and student economic problems, such as the high cost of textbooks and Chapel Hill town prices.

—Jim Clotfelter

No Strangers

Dr. Leo Koch, a former University of Illinois biology teacher who was bounced from his job recently for his liberal views on pre-marital sexual activity among college students, has his name in print again.

This time it's an article in the January issue of Campus Illustrated, a magazine aimed almost exclusively at college readers. In it Dr. Koch reiterates his plea for "a great deal more freedom for college students to decide for themselves, when and how, they are to indulge their sexual desires."

Dr. Koch, however, does recommend that college students refrain from relations "with strangers."

We just thought we'd pass on this piece of advice, just to remind everyone to introduce himself first.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIAL STAFF

WAYNE KING.....Editor
MARGARET ANN RHYMES—Associate Editor
LLOYD LITTLE—Executive News Editor
BILL HOBBS.....Managing Editor
JIM CLOTFELTER, BILL WUAMETT—News Editors
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor
CHUCK MOONEY.....Feature Editor
HARRY LLOYD.....Sports Editor
ED DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
GARRY BLANCHARD—Contributing Editor

BUSINESS STAFF

TIM BURNETT.....Business Manager
MIKE MATHERS—Advertising Manager
JIM EVANS.Subscription Manager
JIM ESKRIDGE—Circulation Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C. pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

A 'DECLARATION OF FAITH . . .'

'Let's Stand Up And Be Americans'

By BEN HIBBS
Editor, Saturday Evening Post

(Ben Hibbs, relinquished the editorship of The Post on Jan. 1. His valedictory is this moving editorial, which was published in the magazine's year-end issue. He calls it "a declaration of faith in a country that I love deeply.")

THIS IS OUR last issue before Christmas, and traditionally this should be a Christmas editorial. It will not be. It also happens that this is the last issue of The Saturday Evening Post in which my name will appear as editor, and there are some things I want to say. I came to the editorship of The Post in a time of national crisis — in the black early months of World War II—and now, twenty years later, I am leaving the editorship in another era of crisis and doubt. I suppose you might call this editorial, if indeed it is an editorial, a declaration of my faith in a country that I love deeply.

THERE WAS A time when our way of life in America was simpler and easier, when human values seemed to be more nearly black and white, when the currents of national pride ran more strongly than they do now. The younger generation cannot remember those times. I do, and while I am not ancient enough or foolish enough to wish vainly for the return of an era that is past, I think it is urgent that we recapture some of the national fortitude, the ebullience of spirit, that were so evident in the time of our fathers and our grandfathers.

As a kid growing up on the Kansas prairies of fifty years ago, I often listened to the yarns of the old sodbusters as they sat around the stove in my father's hardware store of a winter evening. These were the leathery old pioneers who had lived through drought and blizzard and the devastation of the grasshopper years, who had subsisted on very little and who in the end had taken this raw plains country by the scruff of its neck and turned it into a gracious and smiling land.

AMONG them were men of foreign extraction. Some were veterans of the Civil War, which was still recent enough to be green in the memories of our elders, and some had fought, even later, in the final Indian wars of the Western prairies.

Doubtless there was an element of fiction in the tales they told, but there was also a deep and justifiable pride in what they had accomplished. And above all, they possessed an abiding faith in the future of America and a profound gratitude to the country that had given them their chance.

In those days the Fourth of July orators called America "the land of opportunity" and "the greatest country on earth," and we believed them. In our schools and churches and our homes we were taught pride in country, and on holidays the bands played and the flags waved. It never occurred to anyone that all this was unsophisticated or corny. Although the prairie country of my youth was closer to the pioneer days than most of America, the same spirit of pride and belief in our destiny pervaded the nation as a whole during the early years of this century.

This was the atmosphere in which I and millions of other young Americans, who are now past middle age, grew up. It was an atmosphere, a state of mind, which gave meaning to life, put some purpose into toil and struggle, fired the soul of many a young man with a consuming desire to "be somebody."

We Had To Grow Up

NOW AMERICA is no longer an insular country. In a brief half century we have had to grow up and take our place among the nations of the world, and it has been a painful, and often confusing, experience. We have made some mistakes and have learned that we have some national faults. We have become indisputably the leaders of the Western World, and we have found that such leadership involves some awesome responsibilities.

We also have learned that a leader is always the target for criticism of all kinds, much of it captious and unreasonable.

The heads of neutralist nations come to this country and lecture us on our faults, at the same time asking for financial assistance. The press of many so-called friendly countries carries on a constant drumfire of criticism of America and its actions — and even sometimes of its motives. We are told by people who don't really know us, who don't know what America is like, that we are all materialists, with but little desire or capacity for the finer things of life; that we are brash and cocksure; that we are psychopathic about the threat of world Communism; and so on and on down the list of our sins — personal, national and international.

Growing Seeds Of Doubt

WE, OF COURSE, can live through this senseless sort of carping. It is also true that in some cases we deserve the censure that is leveled at us. The bungled Cuban invasion of last spring is a sad example. What worries me, however, is that this barrage of niggling criticism from abroad, this posture of superiority on the part of our friends, is having its effect on our own national attitude of mind. The seeds of doubt—doubt of ourselves—are becoming too strong within us.

It is right, of course, that we should examine our faults, and I honor our American writers who do this chore fairly and honestly. I have published much of their work in The Post. It was in The Post, for example, that the provocative book, "The Ugly American," was first given to the public. For it is only by a free discussion of our errors that we can correct those errors.

But throughout all this, in the name of heaven let us remember that we still have a great deal to be proud of. We Americans have become so sensitive about what the rest of the world thinks of us that we are now inclined to lie down and roll over whenever the finger of criticism is pointed our way. Yet there is no reason to be apologetic about America. Other nations have also made their mistakes, and it would be hard for any one of them to match the decent idealism which we have brought to our role in world affairs.

* * *

IN WORLD WAR II we did more than any other nation to destroy the evil forces which were determined to dominate the earth. After the war it was our Marshall Plan which helped restore Western Europe and kept Communism at bay in that vital part of the world. We have continued to pour out our wealth and our manpower in an attempt to shore up freedom and human decency in other parts of the earth — sometimes without success, but we keep trying. We are now attempting, insofar as our resources permit, to assist the undeveloped countries and the emerging nations, and we know that the end is not in sight.

We do these things because we believe they are right, not for territory or trade or the love of power. We have demonstrated that on the international scene we are an unselfish people, and we all know, even if it doesn't occur to our foreign critics, that the wherewithal for all this comes right out of our burdensome income-tax remittances, and that in many families there is hardship because of our national generosity. Foreign legend to the contrary, we are not a nation of millionaires.

A Few Kind Words

BACK IN 1948 that wise old statesman, Bernard Baruch, wrote an article for The Saturday Evening Post which he titled A FEW KIND WORDS FOR UNCLE SAM. It was a resounding pronouncement of his pride in his country. I think it is high time that we all start saying a few kind words for Uncle Sam whenever the occasion arises, and perhaps even when there is no obvious occasion. Somehow we must revive in the hearts of our young people the deep pride that all Americans must have in their heritage.

Elsewhere in this issue of The Post there is a fascinating survey of the attitudes of some 3000 typical young Americans, boys and girls of high school and college age, on a variety of matters. It is a survey that was made with scrupulous care by the Gallup organization, and it was done on such a broad and scientifically balanced base that its results can hardly be challenged.

The thing that emerges most clearly from this study is that far too many of our boys and girls these days have a curiously flabby and uninformed attitude of mind about our country, its history and its future, and about their own lives and their own futures. Too many are interested chiefly in security, an eight-hour day and a relatively easy way of life. If the spark of ambition is there, it is buried pretty deep in some of them.

Now, this may be nothing more serious than evidence that the first stirrings of maturity are slower in coming these days. But I am afraid it is a bit more than that. I am afraid that somehow we have lost the ability, or perhaps the will, to fire our boys and girls with the human spark of pride in self and country, with the urge to accomplish something and to be somebody in this land of opportunity. And if this is true, we must not make the mistake of laying the blame entirely on the schools. The place where these things are best taught is right in the home — by examples as well as by word.

Bewildering, Fearful Times

THESE ARE bewildering times, fearful times. The shadow of atomic destruction hangs constantly over us. I am not one of those who believe the shadow will become reality, but I cannot deny the possibility. In any event, our only safeguard is to remain strong, strong in heart and fiber as well as in arms. This I believe we shall find a way to do. This is the basic faith I have in America. Perhaps it is too simple, but there it is.

Last June my old friend, MacKinlay Kantor, famed novelist who writes of the Civil War era and pioneer days in the West, was given an honorary degree by Iowa Wesleyan College, and I have before me a copy of his address. He discussed, in far more eloquent language than I can command, some of the same things I have dealt with in this editorial. His tone was one of firmness and hope.

At the end of his speech he addressed his remarks to the spirit of old Abe Lincoln, and his final paragraph was this: "The dreams are ever around us, Mr. Lincoln. There is medicine in the breeze and an enzyme beneth the sod; and we still have a yearning and a gallantry, sir."

I like that high trumpet note from Mac Kantor. I echo it. I think we still have it in us to dream and to achieve, to be gallant and proud, to stand up on our hind legs and be Americans.

Interlocking Grip Needed

Negro college students got some good advice Tuesday from Dr. S. D. Proctor of North Carolina A. & T. College in Greensboro.

Dr. Proctor, taking a leave of absence as president of the college to become director of the Peace Corps in Nigeria, told the students to "look upon racial problems as a personal challenge."

"If," said Dr. Proctor, "we ever are able to get out of sharecropping and living in the unpainted shanties along the railroad track . . . we must dedicate ourselves to more earnest academic endeavor."

The educator viewed the world through the eyes of many of our Negro citizens when he added:

"Even the bright children are blinded from the world of fine arts by a wall of pool rooms, juke box joints and big signs advertising rock'n'roll artists coming to town on Saturday night."

This environment, this stultifying sense of values will not be surmounted without individual effort by the Negro, no matter the legislation or other help given him.

THERE IS, however, an implicit need of help from citizens who do not have the same obstacles to overcome and who are in position to help those willing to help themselves.

These are the white citizens of southern communities who can organize to improve schools, clear slums, open better job opportunities and accord Negroes just treatment in the use of public facilities.

We would be critical of only one quote from Dr. Proctor's remarks. He said, "No matter how valid the reasons are for our relative position educationally, the reasons are interesting to us alone. No one else is interested in them."

Dr. Proctor is wrong. There are many thousands of white southerners interested in these reasons, and they want to do something about them. There is much evidence of the awakening of the individual white citizen to his personal responsibility for helping to correct the conditions cited by Proctor.

They would welcome a call reminiscent of "come over into Macedonia and help us," with the emphasis being on the word "help."

—CHARLOTTE OBSERVER

"We Expect To Get Quite A Bit Through"

RAMBLINGS By Robinson

Make Resolutions When Up To Par

Most people make their New Year's resolutions on New Year's morning when they're willing to give up everything including breathing. A few days later when it begins to look as though they're going to live these hash resolves are forgotten. Make your resolutions when you are physically and mentally up to par and can look at life in your normal, every day manner. After a week of recuperation, I've made up mine.

I'm going to develop a keener sense of humor. I've noticed that the guys who laugh loudest at the prof's jokes seem to be first in line for A's.

I'm going to take an interest in good music. The first thing I'm going to do is to throw out the Everly Brothers and the Foggy Mountain Boys.

I'm going to quit arguing, especially with friends who say, "Waiter, bring me the check."

I'm going to cut down on rich foods, especially the kind they serve in those expensive restaurants my wife always wants me to take her to.

* * *

Recently, a friend of ours was surprised, when visiting a mutual friend on second floor Cobb, to see a guitar resting across a chair.

"Does that instrument belong to you?" he asked.

"No," was the reply, "I borrowed it from the guy who has the room right over this one. He's an aspiring Elvis."

"I didn't know you played the guitar."

"I don't, but neither does he while I've got it.'

* * *

There is always a good deal of scoffing at the psychology department's course in marriage counseling. The wise-cracks always center around the difficulty of learning about life from books; it's not practical say the critics.

But now a new book about to be released may open new vistas to the field. Entitled "Marriage Counseling Made Practical" by the noted Hungarian Dr. Karl Keehcnieugnot, the book is frank and to the point. Here is a small sampling:

There are times in a happy marriage when a husband must manfully assert himself — and say "No" to his wife. Epecially when the wife is:

At a cocktail party and she says, "Look at that tall blonde over by the window. Doesn't she look ravishing?"

Looking at a batch of new snapshots and she says, "Don't I take the most horrible picture?"

After a hard day of housework and the wife says, "I think you should have married somebody else."

At a fur salon, your wife tries on a $1,200 mink, swirls around and says, "Honestly, don't you think it makes me look slimmer?"

Sitting at home by the fire toasting marshmellows, and she says, "I have the feeling you'd rather be out playing poker with the boys."

She's overdrawn the checking account, ripped a fender off the new car, bought a new hat costing $60, and says between sniffles, "Sometimes I think you ought to divorce me!"

After it's banned in Boston, I predict Dr. Keehcnieugnot's newest book will become a best seller.

Twelve ROTC Members Initiated Into Honorary Scabbard & Blade

Twelve military science students were inducted into L Company, 8th Regiment of the National Society of Scabbard and Blade last week.

Students from the NROTC inducted were Midshipman Capt. Ronald E. McArthur, Midshipman Lt. Charles Lehmann, Midshipman CPO George R. Seastrom, Midshipman CPO Robert C. Crates, Midshipman 2-C PO Peter D. West, and Midshipman 2-C PO Robert Jones.

AFROTC cadets inducted were Cadet Capt. Howard A. Vann, Cadet Technical Sgt. James L. Young, Cadet Technical Sgt. Richard S. Lennon Jr., Cadet Staff Sgt. Charles R. Brown, Cadet Staff Sgt. Douglas E. Eury and Cadet Staff Sgt. Anthony Davenport.

Honorary Group

Scabbard and Blade is an honorary society which requires demonstration of outstanding ability in either the NROTC, AROTC, or AFROTC for membership.

The society sponsors such programs as the Military Ball each spring attended by both NROTC Midshipmen and AFROTC cadets. This year the Military Ball will be on February 24 at the Elk's Club in Durham.

Advisors for Scabbard and Blade at UNC are Major L. C. Shepard III, USMC, and Major W. D. Locke, USAF.

Officers of L Company, 8th Regiment for this year are Midshipman Lt .Pender R. McElroy, Capt.; Cadet Lt. Col. William J. Ritchie, 1st Lt.; Midshipman CPO Clifton E. Pleasants, 2nd Lt., and Cadet Capt. Michael J. Rooney, 1st Sgt.

Get Better Grades With Study Aids

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

It Pays to Advertise!

CLASSIFIED ADS

FOR RENT — LOG CABIN PRIvately located in country—Perfect for Picnic Parties. Phone 968-2945, nights.

FOR SALE: '57 T-BIRD, WHITE. Both convertible and hard top. Contact 404 McCauley St. after 6 p.m. Telephone 968-8973. Price $1,900.

WANTED: THREE MEN TO share house 1½ miles from campus. Call 968-0858 after 10 p.m.

YEARS DO NOT MAKE FORtunes; they just make old men and old women. Investigate the Northwestern Mutual Insured Savings Plan today. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. Telephone 942-6966.

Honigmann To Study Peasant On Travel Grant In Summer

Dr. John J. Honigmann of the Sociology Department and Anthropology, has received a travel grant from the American Philosophical Society which will be used in this summer to continue his study of the Austrian peasant.

Dr. Honigmann's study begun in the summer of 1960 concentrated mainly on the technical development in peasant culture in a small Austrian village. An earlier study of the peasant in Pakistan was reported by Dr. Honigmann in "Three Pakistan Villages" published by the Institute for Research in Social Science in 1958.

He felt it reasonable to assume that the level of technical development in Austrian peasant culture would be higher than in Pakistani peasant culture. By comparison of the two cases it was felt that something would be learned about conditions favorable to the enhancement of health, agricultural productivity and other generally accepted earmarks of progress.

Field work was centered in Altirdning which lies in the Enns River Valley between Salzburg and Graz. The village which practices a dairy economy is not isolated as are many mountain hamlets in Austria.

Tractors Used

Tractors are widely used in the dairy economy, and almost every house and barn are wired for electricity. Women milk with electrical machines, and pasture fences are electrified through small, portable chargers. Chemical fertilizers have been used since 1908, and silos are fairly common. Mechanical separators in butter-making have almost entirely replaced the skimming tanks previously used.

Dr Honigmann

A few women preserve fruits with the aid of pressure cookers, and some clean clothes in mechanical washing machines and spin them in electrical centrifuges. Every home has a radio and portable models are used by the dairymaids in the summer huts where they live while caring for the cattle on the mountain meadows.

The use of labor-saving devices indicates an interest in and readiness for change, according to Dr. Honigmann. However, change is not something recent in this area. The peasant has long supported a tradition of change and his culture possesses a momentum of change which in many underdeveloped areas still has to get started.

Rational Crops

Even as early as 1740-1780, during the reign of Empress Maria Theresa, the government was concerned with "rational" agriculture. After the emancipation of the peasants in 1848 the government began to take active interest in rural production. In 1867 the Kaiser appointed his first minister of agriculture. A number of high-level technical schools and research institutes for agriculture, animal husbandry, and forestry are now supported by the federal government. Furthermore the government of the province maintains direct contact with the individual peasant families through its agencies of agricultural extension.

Certain personality traits also help to support the trend toward technical development. A pride of ownership, an optimistic conception of future progress, curiosity, and a moral value placed on industriousness all contribute to the trend, writes Dr. Honigmann. Although peasants in other cultures exhibit marked signs of envy, such evidences were not observed in the Austrian peasant, and its absence may be significant in development.

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

F. Edgar Thomas

(Continued from Page 1)

dent for two terms of the Greensboro Classroom Teachers Association and was an officer in the state-wide organization of teachers of social studies.

Active Locally

Since returning to Chapel Hill Thomas' duties with the University's alumni office have put him in close touch with out-of-town alumni and students on campus. During a two-term tenure he served as secretary of the University's YM-YWCA board of directors and has been identified with other campus groups.

This summer will mark the 25th year since "The Lost Colony" was launched as America's first outdoor symphonic drama. Since its opening in 1937 the drama has been presented to an estimated one-and-three-quarter million people including visitors from every state in the Union and many foreign countries.

Another significant anniversary to occur this summer is the 375th birthday of Virginia Dare, first child born of English parents in the Western Hemisphere. Commemorative plans are being made for the occasion by University of North Carolina President William C. Friday and other members of a commission appointed by Governor Sanford for this purpose.

For Clifton Britton of Goldsboro this anniversary season will mark the ninth consecutive year in which he has served as director of the drama.

At today's meeting Robert Gibbs, Superintendent of the National Seashore Park, reported on current progress in the rebuilding of the Waterside Theatre in which the drama is presented.

—Freshmen Polled—

(Continued from Page 1)

In answer to a question, Do you think that college has had a major effect on your religious views?, 71 per cent replied, no.

Of those replying yes, 58 per cent said the effect was making him more skeptical. However, 68 per cent reported that they did not feel that this increased skepticism was bad.

One student said, "The freshman year is too early for college to have had much effect on his basic value system."

Fifty-nine per cent of those polled reported they felt this increased skepticism did not tend to lower the moral standards and behavior of college students.

Another fraternity pledge said, "Whereas college tends in general to lower, through increased skepticism, the moral standards of a student, the fraternity tends to counter-balance this effect by stressing high ideals."

We're serving leftovers again... but at these prices, who cares?
We hate to let go of winter clothes for so little, but we have to make room for the delectables of spring.

COME AND FEAST!

OF CHAPEL HILL

CLOSE-OUT LINES

Wondermere Sweaters
And Matching Skirts
½ PRICE

Kovet of California
All Skirts, Sweaters, Slacks—
½ PRICE

ALL RING BAGS . . . . . ⅓ OFF

The FIRESIDE

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

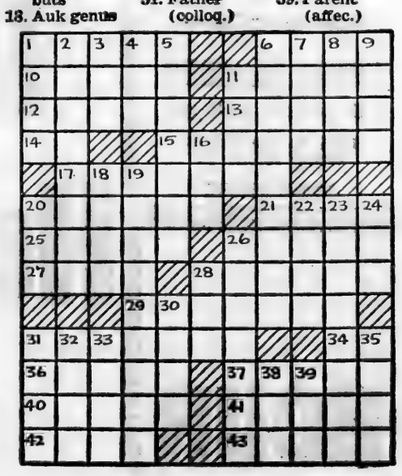
GOLF CITY'S 19th HOLE
MUSIC • DANCING
SANDWICHES • B--R
ACROSS FROM HOWARD JOHNSONS OPEN 12-12

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Explosive
6. Tab
10. Kind of beer
11. Black macaw
12. Turkish city
13. Appellations
14. Near
15. Piece of throwing wood (colloq.)
17. Satan
20. Iroquoians
21. Seine tributary (Fr.)
25. Frosting
26. Improper
27. Three-handed card game
28. Available, as a nurse
29. Container for writing fluid
31. Wicker basket
34. Thus
36. "Tempest" spirit
37. Helpers
40. Kind of velvet
41. Dried-up lake basin
42. Incite
43. Mirror marker, for silvering

DOWN
1. To tattle
2. In "Guys and Dolls," good fortune
3. Moslem title
4. Japanese coin
5. Bartering
6. Pleasant odor
7. Young sheep
8. Region
9. Ended
11. Girl's name
16. "No ——, ands or buts"
18. Auk genus
19. Africa, for one
20. Masculine pronoun
22. Hereditary right
23. Direct hit
24. Lama prey
26. Undoes, as a package
28. Turkish weight
30. African river
31. Father (colloq.)
32. Kind of horse
33. The Muses
35. Eskers
38. Chinese river
39. Parent (affec.)

Yesterday's Answer



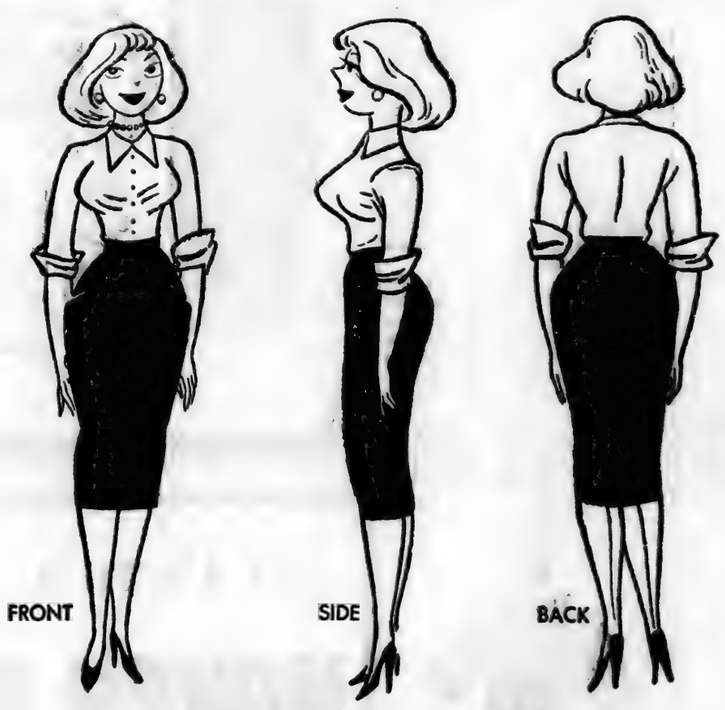
SUPER SMOOTH SHAVE

New "wetter-than-water" action melts beard's toughness—in seconds. Remarkable new "wetter-than-water" action gives Old Spice Super Smooth Shave its scientific approximation to the feather-touch feel and the efficiency of barber shop shaves. Melts your beard's toughness like hot towels and massage—in seconds.

Shaves that are so comfortable you barely feel the blade. A unique combination of anti-evaporation agents makes Super Smooth Shave stay moist and firm. No re-lathering, no dry spots. Richer and creamier... gives you the most satisfying shave... fastest, cleanest—and most comfortable. Regular or mentholated, 1.00.

Old Spice
SHULTON

Girl Watcher's Guide
Presented by Pall Mall Famous Cigarettes



Three views of an average, healthy girl

LESSON 1 - How to recognize a girl

It is not surprising, in these days of constantly changing fashion standards, that girls are often mistaken for men.

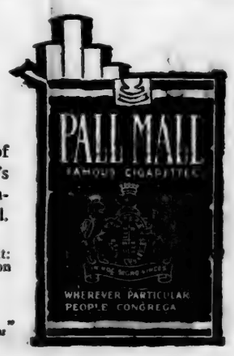
Certain popular items of apparel, such as slacks, baggy sweaters and boxy suits, contribute to this unfortunate situation. Therefore, we suggest that new students of girl watching start with the fundamentals (see above diagram). As you can see, girls are easiest to identify from the side. However, even the beginner will soon achieve proficiency from front and rear as well.

Advanced students can usually tell a girl from a man at five hundred paces, even when both are wearing asbestos firefighting suits. (You might try offering the subject a Pall Mall, but you won't prove anything. It's an extremely popular brand with both sexes.)

WHY BE AN AMATEUR?
JOIN THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF GIRL WATCHERS NOW!

FREE MEMBERSHIP CARD. Visit the editorial office of this publication for a free membership card in the world's only society devoted to discreet, but relentless, girl watching. Constitution of the society on reverse side of card.

This ad based on the book, "The Girl Watcher's Guide." Text: Copyright by Donald J. Sauers. Drawings: Copyright by Eldon Dedini. Reprinted by permission of Harper & Brothers.



Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

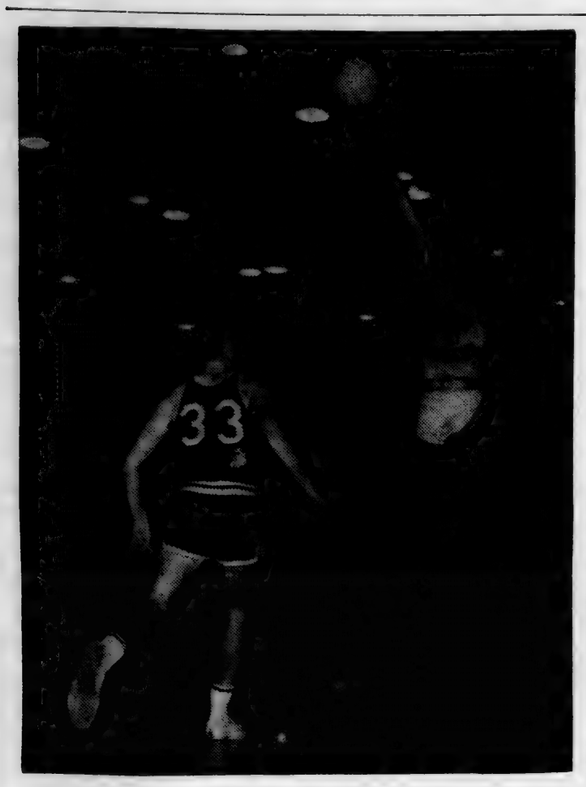
So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

© A T Co Product of The American Tobacco Company — "Tobacco is our middle name"

POGO

PEANUTS

Walsh, Hudock Lead In 83-71 Win Over USC



WALSH HITS AGAIN—Senior guard Don Walsh, left clear by the South Carolina defenders, follows through on another outside jump shot. Walsh dropped in nine of 11 field goal tries in the game, including five straight long, low arshed jumpers in the second half. Making a long, low arched jumpers in the second half. Making a Cronin.

—Photo by Wallace

Second Half Rally Nets 4th ACC Win

By HARRY LLOYD

The outside magic of Donnie Walsh and the inside strength of Jim Hudock helped the UNC Tar Heels to pull away from a first half deadlock and whip the University of South Carolina by 83-71 here last night.

The win over the pesky Gamecocks was the Tar Heel's fourth in the ACC this season against one loss.

After the game was tied at the half, 36-36, coach Dean Smith's fivesome came back to recover the lead with 15:03 remaining to be played. Dieter Krause scored the layup that put them ahead to stay, making the score 44-43.

UNC, who shot only 38.7 per cent in the first half as compared to 59 per cent by the visitors, went on a shooting spree in the final period by hitting on 18 of 34 shots from the floor for 52.9. Their final figure was 46.2 on 30 of 65. The Birds had a 43.3 mark on 26 of 60.

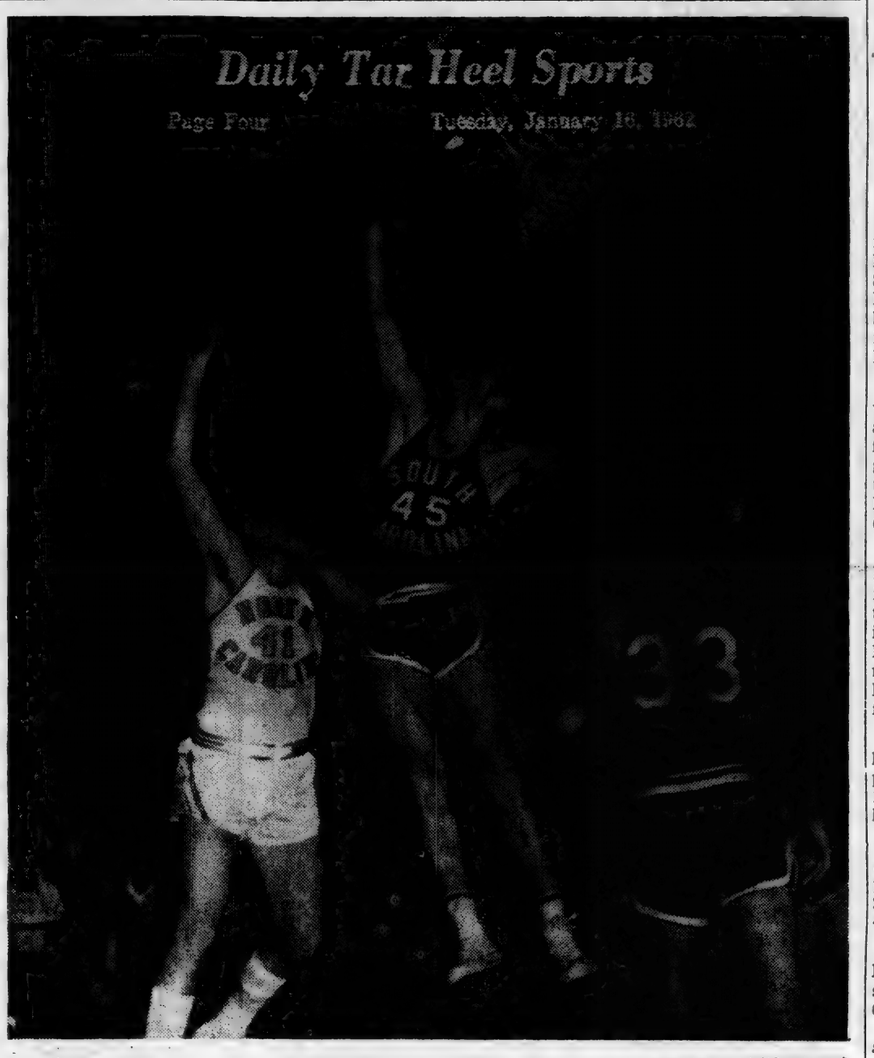
Walsh enjoyed the best shooting night and the best scoring game of his career. The senior guard meshed nine of 11 tries from the floor to finish with 22 points. Jim Hudock cashed in on seven of 21 from the floor and 12 of 13 from the foul line for 26. Larry Brown chipped in 16 for UNC.

South Carolina's leader Art Whisnant, the Hildebran, N. C. native, who had 29 points. Ronnie Collins scored 12 and Jim Podell had 10 for the visitors.

Hudock pulled down 20 rebounds, five under the all time UNC record for one game.

The first half was almost a standoff in a contest to see which team could make the most errors. It was a sloppily played 20 minutes, as most possibilities for good plays ended up as mistakes by one team or the other.

South Carolina took the lead early at 4-2 on a pair of baskets by Bud Cronin. With goals by Ron Collins and Bobby Robinson, they moved the lead to 9-5.



GAMECOCK GOES UP FOR BALL—Jim Podell (45) South Carolina's junior forward who scored 10 points in his team's 83-71 loss to UNC last night, is shown here as he goes up high for a rebound off the Carolina backboard. The Carolina man on the play is Jim Donohue. Number 33 for the Gamecocks is Bud Cronin. North Carolina led in rebounds for the game, 39-33.

Freshmen Win Ninth As Billy Scores 28

By ED DUPREE

UNC's Tar Babies found win number nine in a row an easy one last night as they rolled over South Carolina's Biddies, 88-69. Billy Cunningham was again the big gun for Carolina as he poured in 28 points, 14 in each half. Jay Neary was close behind with 22.

Rich Grich, a 6-2 Biddie forward from Milford, Conn., scored at will in the first half, accounting for 17, but was held to 19 for the game. Grich fouled out with 11:25 to go in the contest, but then Kenny Rosemond's cagers had a 67-45 lead.

The Biddies managed to take an early 9-4 lead behind the scoring of Grich and Jim Good, but the Tar Babies racked up six points in a row to regain the lead at 10-9. In the first three minutes the Carolina yearlings had taken a 4-2 lead, despite missing seven of nine foul shots.

The lead continued to change hands, but when Grich scored to push the Gamecocks frosh ahead 17-16 at the 10:25 mark, the visitors had seen their last lead.

The Tar Heel frosh slowly pulled away and with 3:56 to go in the period, stretched the lead to 35-25. The halftime score was UNC 47, USC 36.

In addition to Cunningham's 14, Neary tallied 13 in the opening stanza. Brown and Hassell added 6 each in the first twenty minutes.

The Tar Babies scored eight straight points at the start of the second half, pushing their advantage to 55-36. The shooting of Jim Good, who hit for 13 in the second half, kept the Columbia boys within 18 points for a few minutes, but they never came any closer.

The talented Tar Babies connected on 66.7 per cent of their shots in the first half and finished with a sizzling 56.1 from the floor. Pud Hassell followed Cunningham in the scoring with 10. Grich and Good led the South Carolinians, who hit 44.1 per cent of their shots, with 19 each.

West Favored Over East With Baylor In Lineup

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The Western Division, with youth, speed and Elgin Baylor, was favored over the East, which has experience and the rebounding strength of Wilt Chamberlain and Bill Russell, in Tuesday night's National Basketball Association All-Star game.

Baylor, who was called into the Army two weeks ago when he had a 38.3-point scoring average, has been given a 48-hour pass from Fort Lewis, Wash., to play in the NBA's 12th annual All-Star Classic.

And his presence in the West lineup led East Coach Arnold (Red) Auerbach of the Boston Celtics to concede: "The West has a better ball club."

"They have better balance and they're a good deal younger," Auerbach said. "But the East still can win the game. It will be a matter of desire—who wants to win the most."

A sellout crowd of nearly 15,000 was expected for the game at St. Louis Arena.

The six-foot-five Baylor will start in the forecourt with Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks; rookie Walt Bellamy of the Chicago Packers will be at center, and Oscar Robertson of the Cincinnati Royals and Jerry West, Baylor's teammate on the Los Angeles Lakers, will start in the backcourt. They will be coached by Fred Schaus of the Lakers.

For the East, Chamberlain will open the game at center, with Dolph Schayes of the Syracuse Nationals and Tom Heinsohn of the Boston Celtics at forwards, and Bob Cousy of the Celtics and Richie Guerin of the New York Knickerbockers in the backcourt.

Baylor, whose scoring average was second only to Chamberlain's in the NBA, was the lone unanimous choice for an All-Star berth in the voting by sports writers and broadcasters.

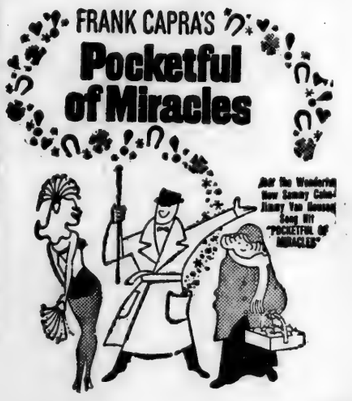
Cousy and Schayes are the "granddaddys" of this All-Star classic. Both have been chosen for every All-Star game since the start in 1951, although Schayes missed one because of an injury.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST.

GLENN FORD BETTE DAVIS
HOPE LANGE ARTHUR O'CONNELL

FRANK CAPRA'S
Pocketful of Miracles



PANAVISION COLOR

SPRING SEMESTER
Begins February 5, 1962
TOWN CLASSES
Secretarial College
Offers
Shorthand
Typing
Business Correspondence
Other Subjects
For full information —
Come by or Call —
TOWN CLASSES
Secretarial College
159½ E. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Phone: 942-4797

WATCH
and
JEWELRY
REPAIR
We use the latest electronic and ultrasonic equipment
Years of experience back our guaranteed work.
T. L. KEMP
Jewelry
Phone 942-1331
135 E. Franklin St.

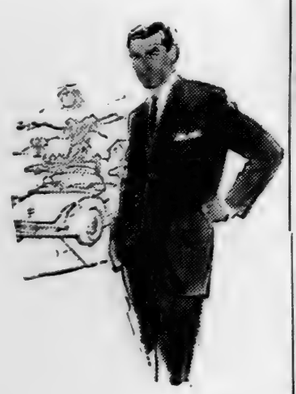
(freshen your shirt supply

This is the moment to freshen up your shirt drawer . . . . . while we feature a special price on our best sellers. Entire stock temporarily reduced from $5.95 to $4.95 ,others $3.95 or 3 for $10.

NOW 3 for $10

Town & Campus

Ladies to Match
In Ivory, Natural, and Olive.
$32.50
Golf Jackets
$15.95
Julian's Clothier Shop



This is the Chez Milton Deal of Deals. With spring breathing down our throats, we've re-reduced over 210 Sport Coats and 315 suits. Grab them now at these prices, or forever hold your gold.

Large group sport coats formerly to $48.75 further cut to crazy $19.99 and $24.99.

Sizeable group sport coats formerly to $75.00 at low, low $39.99.

Many other cool deals—need we say more?

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

SALE

classic shirtdress

Entire stock Wool, Corduroy & Fall Cotton Shirtdresses reduced from $14.95 to $9.95; $18.95 to $12.95; $22.95 to $14.95; 29.95 to 19.95.

Town & Campus

La Pizza's
HAPPY PIZZA HOUR
8:30-9:30 TONIGHT
For just $1.25, you can eat all the Small Plain Pizzas you want. These Pizzas must be eaten inside. This does not apply to delivers or carry outs. No substitutions allowed. Yes, it's HAPPY PIZZA Hours from Carolina's Most Colorful Pizzeria!
LA PIZZA
967-1451 967-1451
406 W. Main Street

Mid Winter Housecleaning Sale
Shopworn books and dropped
Titles at preposterous prices
ALL THIS WEEK
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 E. Franklin St.—Open Till 10 P.M.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Junius Scales

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Continued fair, warmer

80

Offices in Graham Memorial | WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 17, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Knight Retreats From California Race With Nixon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Goodwin J. Knight, confined to bed for two months with hepatitis, Tuesday withdrew "with great reluctance" as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of California on the advice of his doctor.

Knight was regarded as the No. 1 opponent in the primary against former Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Nixon still must face the challenge of former Lt. Gov. Harold J. Powers and assembly leader Joseph Shell.

Knight's decision not to seek the office he formerly held came within a half hour after Dr. Carl W. Lund examined him Tuesday afternoon. Acting campaign manager Robert Voigt said the doctor advised him if he suffered a relapse during the campaign, "it would be worse than the original attack and he might be out for six months."

"It is with the greatest reluctance that I now follow the advice of my doctor," Knight, 65, said in a prepared statement.

"I shall not file as a candidate for governor in March," he continued. "This reluctance is inspired by the sincere devotion and friendship of many Californians who have so unselfishly supported me for governor of California."

Davis Named NEA Policies Consultant

O. L. Davis Jr., associate director of the Fifth Year Program in Teacher Education of the UNC School of Education, has been chosen to serve as an adviser to the Educational Policies Commission of the National Education Association.

In addition to advice and consultant, Dr. Davis' duties will include the preparation of studies and policy statements. He will serve with the commission for three years.

The Educational Policies Commission, created in 1935, has been considered as the unofficial policy spokesman for American education although its statements are not sponsored or approved by any organization, according to Dr. Davis.

Former Members

Among those figures who have served on the commission are former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Paul Mort, George Strayer, Ralph Bunche, and Alexander Stoddard. Current members of the commission include educators James B. Conant and Benjamin C. Willis, superintendent of schools in Chicago.

Prior to his appointment at the University in 1960, Dr. Davis was an associate secretary of the NEA's Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, 1958-60. Dr. Davis attended North Texas State College where he received B.A. and M.Ed. degrees. He received a Ph.D. degree in 1958 from George Peabody College.

O. L. Davis

3 UNC Students Defy Old Legend; Don't Find Devil

"You guys can sleep if you want to," said UNC freshman Donald Day, "But if anything moves, I want to see it."

This is how Day and two other UNC students began an all night watch Monday night—a watch for the Devil.

Their watch was held at the "Devil's Tramping Ground" where, according to legend, the Devil comes each night to meditate. The legend also says that no one has ever spent a whole night there before.

Monday night, however, the Devil apparently didn't show up.

"It really disappointed us," said Jim Singletary, "because I don't think we scared him away. I think someone is pulling a big joke."

The ' Devil's Tramping Ground' is located about 30 miles from Chapel Hill near Bear Creek, N. C. It consists of a circle about 40 ft. in diameter, where nothing will grow.

The circle sits in a clearing in a thickly wooded area off a lonely country road. Grass grows in the clearing up to the edge of the circle and stops. A test run by state agriculture experts indicated that the soil within the circle is sterile.

Day, Singletary and Phil Hancock built a fire at the edge of the circle which lighted the entire clearing. They saw and heard nothing except for some dogs which howled all night.

The students have therefore concluded that the legend is a hoax. Except for one thing, that is.

"It was a good, clear night," Singletary said, "and the moon was out. About 10 o'clock, however, we heard something that sounded like thunder which lasted for about an hour."

So maybe the old boy showed up after all.

Dutch Claim 50 Indonesians Held Following Attack

HOLLONDIA, Dutch New Guinea(UPI)— The Dutch government said Tuesday that 50 Indonesians seized after a naval battle Monday night would be held as prisoners of war.

The Dutch, in quick reaction to what they termed an invasion attempt by the Indonesians, ordered a bolstering of this colony's defenses and extended the service periods of troops currently stationed on this disputed territory.

In Jakarta, U. S. Ambassador Howard P. Jones met with Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio in the wake of the naval clash off New Guinea in which Indonesian authorities said, one Indonesian navy vessel was sunk and another abandoned after it was set afire by Dutch warships.

Warns Against Conflict

Jones was believed to have cautioned Subandrie against armed conflict and urged the Indonesians instead to seek a peaceful settlement of Indonesia's claim to Dutch-held West New Guinea.

An official Indonesian navy announcement accused the Dutch of starting the clash without warning. Army spokesman Lt. Col. Sunjaro said the Dutch action in firing on the ships was a "challenge" and a "provication to war."

Observers in Jakarta feared the clash might incite President Sukarno to retaliate militarily, either by sea or air strikes, against Dutch positions in New Guinea, thus touching off fighting that could seriously endanger the stability of the southeast Asian area.

The government information office spokesman in Hollandia said the 50 captured Indonesians were

(Continued on Page 3)

Governor Speaks To Press At Institute Meet Tomorrow

EXAMS—John Long, a graduate student from Conway, S. C. is one of the thousands who took to the books yesterday as THE WEEK drew nearer. John is studying in the Library stacks; others used their rooms, open classrooms, or any other available space.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Lincoln White Of State Department Also Will Speak

Gov. Terry Sanford will address the 37th annual Newspaper Institute here tomorrow at Howell Hall. Sanford will also present the 1961 Press awards.

Newsmen from all over North Carolina will attend the three-day meeting Jan. 18-20 which is being held in cooperation with the North Carolina Press Association, Duke University and UNC.

Other features of the institute will be an address by Lincoln White, director of Office News Bureau, U.S. Department of State, on Friday morning, at 10 a.m. in Howell Hall, and an address by Thomas L. Robinson, general manager of the New York Herald Tribune, past president of the N.C. Press Association, Saturday morning at the 8:30 a.m. breakfast in the Carolina Inn honoring past presidents of the association.

TV Coverage

H. Clifton Blue of Aberdeen, President of the N.C. Press Association, will preside over the association's opening session Thursday evening. University Chancellor William B. Aycock will welcome the newsmen. Consolidated University President William C. Friday will introduce Governor Sanford for the presentation of awards. The presentation will be telecast on WUNC-TV, Channel 4, and prize-winning stories and newspapers will be on exhibit in Howell Hall following the awards presentaton.

The board of directors of the Press Institute will meet at a Friday morning breakfast at 8 a.m. in the Carolina Inn Cafeteria. At 12:30 p.m. Friday, the University will give a luncheon for the pressmen. Pete Ivey, director of the UNC News Bureau, is in charge of the luncheon program. Friday afternoon will be devoted to daily and weekly newspaper group meetings.

The directors of the Journalism Foundation will meet on Friday afternoon at 4 p.m. in 101 Howell Hall.

The scene will shift Friday evening to Duke University in Durham where a dinner will be given by Duke University in the ballroom of the Duke Union. An ensemble from the Duke Men's Glee Club will perform, and Edmund Hardling, humorist of Washington, N. C. will speak on "Who's Pressing Who?"

Following the Saturday morning breakfast H. Clifton Blue will preside over the institute's business session.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Antoine Gizenga

Dominicans Shoot At Opposition

SANTOS DOMINGO, Dominican Republic—Infantrymen on the lead tank of a five-tank column opened fire with sidearms Tuesday on opposition demontrations in independence park.

First indications were that they killed at least four persons and wounded many others. More than 10 opposition members were in the park listening to National Civic Union demands for the immediate ouster of President Joaquin Balaguer.

This correspondent stood less than a block away as the bullets mowed down civilians fleeing through the park. It was hard to determine casualties immediately but there were numerous persons lying on the ground.

At least four persons appeared dead. They were lying in pools of blood. Others, wounded, were helped from the scene and taken to various clinics and hospitals.

★ ★ ★

Tanks Withdrawn In Berlin

BERLIN—The U. S. Army Tuesday withdrew tanks and armored cars from the East-West Berlin border area to what it called better positions about a mile back. At the same time, the Russians stepped up patrols along the 25-mile anti-refugee wall.

The U. S. force of some ten tanks and five armored cars began withdrawing "to improve the dispositions of the U. S. forces in the American sector," an Army statement said.

The armored force had been half mile from "Checkpoint Charlie" at the Friedrichstrasse border crossing point. It took up new positions Tuesday at Tempelhof Air Base, about a mile and one half from the border.

★ ★ ★

Stennis Promises Full Inquiry

WASHINGTON—Chairman John C. Stennis declared on Tuesday that his special Senate subcommittee will spare no government department and no individual in its inquiry into alleged suppression of anti-communist views of military officers.

The Mississippi Democrat stressed, however, that military officers in alerting their men to the menace of communism, must avoid partisan politics. Stennis discussed the forthcoming study by a special armed services subcommittee in a letter to constituents.

He promised to "get all the real facts" in the hearings which start Jan. 23, "letting the chips fall where they might." He said he was told Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara that the hearing will be exhaustive "with nothing held back."

★ ★ ★

Adoula Makes Massacre Charge

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo—Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula said Tuesday he has received reports that troops loyal to Communist-leaning Antoine Gizenga have massacred 11 white missionaries and 7 African Roman Catholic nuns.

Adoula also announced that he has fired Gizenga, the dissident Stanleyville strongman, as vice premier of the Central Congolese government. His action followed parliment's censure of Gizenga for not answering charges of abuse of power.

★ ★ ★

"Gambling Pays For Other Crimes"

WASHINGTON—Prostitution, narcotics, corruption of public officials and other organized crime are financed in part by "immense profits, of gambling Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy told Congress Tuesday.

Testifying at a standing-room only hearing, Kennedy urged the House Commerce Committee to approve a bill that would make it illegal to ship across state lines roulette wheels, pinball machines used for cash payoffs and other gambling devices.

Two pinball machines, one for gambling and one for amusement were set up behind the witness chair to show committee members the difference.

Vast Army Change Asked By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Tuesday sent Congress a major streamlining of the Army that abolishes such historic offices as the quartermaster general and creates two new commands.

The controversial program virtually eliminates the Army's historic technical services as separate agencies.

Instead, almost all operations except training will be lumped under the new commands that may be headed by full generals. The technical services will be branches under these commands.

The shift will leave the present Army general staff largely in a planning and policy-making role.

Kennedy passed on the reorganization proposals to Congress early in the day. They will become effective unless vetoed by the Senate on House Armed Service Committees within 30 days.

Stahr Lists Objectives

Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr Jr. said the objectives of the reorganization include getting rid of "excessive fragmenting and duplicating of functions," and to "consolidate responsibilities."

He also said it is designed to take into account military advance since the last Army reorganization in 1953, to provide broader technical opportunities and to relieve his office of functions that can be handled by subordinate units.

Stahr estimated it will take 18 months to complete the transition.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said the major land forces have played a significant role in the past, and that he believed they will play "a much larger role in the strategy of the future."

"The whole purpose of the reorganization is to strengthen the Army so that it will be better prepared to assume this more significant role," he said.

Top-Level Reshuffle

Stahr emphasized at a news conference that the far-reaching reorganization is a top-level reshuffle which does not concern most field installations. "Below headquarters, installations and peronnel by and large are undisturbed," Stahr said.

Under the plan, tthe Army will have three major operating commands instead of one. A material development and legistive command, and a combat developments command will be added to the man. This is headed by four-star Gen. Herbert B. Powell at Ft. Monroe, Va.

The offices of the quartermaster general, the chief of ordinance and the chief of the chemical corps will be abolished. The chief signal officer, the adjutant general, the chief of finance and the chief of transportation will keep their titles but lose many functions and their present statutory status.

Least affected of the technical services will be the chief of en-

(Continued on Page 3)

Campus Briefs

The American Field Service will have a dinner meeting in Lenoir Hall at 6 p.m. on Thursday night.

The Carolina Women's Council will meet Wednesday night at 6:30 in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial.

Three Areas Find Students Studying

By BRIAN MARSHALL

Where can an exam-harried student study?

There are three alternatives: his room, a class building, or the library. Ask three people and they will give you three different choices.

We know, because we asked them.

Freshman Scott Rahn prefers the library because "it's quiet' 'and his room is "kind of hard to concentrate in."

But then a senior, Elizabeth Latta says "the library's too noisy," so she studies in her room.

Meanwhile another senior, Charles Brown, finds the Geology Building to his liking. He says, "It's my second home."

"Who's right? Probably everyone.

The library may seem noisy because of overcrowding. The head librarian, Dr. Jerrold Orne is concerned about it. "There should be enough seats for not less than 40 per cent of the student body," he says. "Today we have less than 20 per cent.

"The defeat of the bond issue set us back two years in our ability to seat students. The issue was primarily meant to supply us with additional seats. It was for people space, not book space. That means we'll be an awful lot more crowded before relief."

Overcrowded Dorms

The dormitories are overcrowded too. Construction crews will probably have that problem licked by next fall though. By then, Erringhaus and Craig dorms will be completed.

IDC representative Joe Isaacs makes another point—acoustics. He says, "They're so bad in Parker, Avery and Teague that you have to be unfair to the boys there. Almost any noise can be heard."

However, dorms are quieter now than they once were. That's the opinion of George V. Strong, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs. "They were like 'Blackboard Jungle' in my undergraduate days. I came here in 1951.

"The IDC has cracked down and they've done an outstanding job. Jim Gauldin (President of the IDC) has taken it very seriously.

"We have complaints. Sometimes people who complain don't help things any. They don't do much except complain."

Women and Greeks

Pam Parker, head of the Women's Residence Council, agrees with those remarks. "Generally it's been pretty quiet. There's always some noise every year. They don't mean to be noisy though. They just don't think about it."

Fraternities and sororities are left to themselves on study condi-

(Continued on Page 3)

Chaplin 'Festival' To Benefit School

A "Charlie Chaplin Festival," featuring "The Rink," "The Vagabond," "The Adventure" and "Easy Street," will be presented at 6 and 8 p.m., Jan. 19, at the Community Church on Purefoy Rd.

Admission of 75 cents for adults and 25 cents for children will be charged with the proceeds being used for the benefit of the Chapel Hill Cooperative Pre-school.

Applications for children who were four before Oct. 16, 1961, are now being accepted for the Spring Semester. Applications for four and five year olds are also being accepted for enrollment in the fall of 1962.

Interested persons should call 942-2050 for further information and application blanks.

Nurses To Hear Radiation Talks At UNC Institute

An institute, "Nursing in Radiation in the Atomic Age", will be given at the University School of Nursing on Tuesday, January 30.

The institute, one of a series in the Continuation Education program offered by the School of Nursing, is designed for professional nurses and allied health workers. Mrs. Eula Miller, instructor of medical-surgical nursing, is program chairman.

Following registration from 8 to 9:30 a.m., the program will open in the nursing school auditorium with a welcome by Dr. Elizabeth L. Kemble, dean of the nursing school.

The morning's program will include the following addresses: "History of X-Ray and Radioactive Isotopes", Mr. Francis DeFreiss, radiation physicist, department of radiology, UNC School of Medicine; "Pathophysiology in Irradiation", Dr. George Vennart, associate professor, department of pathology, UNC School of Medicine; "Diagnostic and Therapeutic Use of Radioisotopes", Dr. Ernest Spangler, resident in radiology, department of radiology, UNC School of Medicine; and "Therapeutic Use of X-Ray and Radium", Dr. Robert Murray, fellow of American Cancer Society, resident in radiology, department of radiology, UNC School of Medicine.

Byerly Assesses Virginia's Governor; Disclaims Existence Of Byrd Machine

By JOE DeBLASIO

Assistant Professors Ken Byerly of the School of Journalism stated that the "Byrd Machine" in Virginia does not really exist as it is conceived presently in the public's mind.

Mr. Byerly was discusing the recent campaign and inauguration of the new governor of Virginia, Albertis S. Harrison, Jr. The journalism professor was director of publicity for Governor Harrison during the primary this summer.

"The Byrd Machine is not really a machine—it is a fraternity." said Mr. Byerly. "Most of the public visualizes the machine as a group of old men who control all of Virginia politics. This is not so. This recent election was not controlled by Harry Byrd nor did he make any effort to put any force on the men involved.

Sound Government

"The men who are in Virginia government realize," Mr. Byerly added, "that Harry Byrd has given Virginia a sound government and has been a good example for all politicians in Virginia." This, Mr. Byerly feels, is the essence of the "Byrd Fraternity".

Concerning the "old men" that are supposedly controlled by Senator Byrd, Mr. Byerly states that he was a full ten years older than the four top men in Governor Harrison's campaign.

Professor Byerly was called in by Governor Harrison's campaign headquarters to aid him in his primary race. Before working for the Governor, My Byerly studied his speeches carefully and then gave his prediction on how the press would accept them.

Mr. Byerly advised the governor frequently as he traveled with him for the entire campaign. During this time he discussed the publicity and the news value angle of the campaign with Governer Harrison.

Governor Harrison is 55 years old, born in Lawrenceville and educated at the University of Virginia where he received a law degree. In 1948 he was elected to the Virginia State Senate and in 1957 he was elected Attorney General. He resigned this post in April of 1961 to enter the race for governor.

Harrison's Program

In his inauguration address this past weekend, Governor Harrison said that the three important thing that he wanted for Virginia were a better educational system both basic and secondary, a stepped up industrial program to improve Virginia's prospering manufacturing and a continued integrity in the government of Virginia.

Governor Harrison feels that the schools in Virginia are now good but that they must be continually improved upon. He thinks that this would involve all phases of education from equipment to teacher's pay. Mr. Byerly feels that he will give distinct recommendations to the legislature to achieve this goal.

Mr. Byerly thinks that Harrison will be a good governor and feels that he is a very capable man for the job.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 17, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 80

Junius Scales

Junius Scales has been variously referred to as a "brilliant, but naive man," " a misguided martyr" and "a vile, contemptible subversive."

* * *

Which of these comes closest to the truth is a question that has been debated across the length and breadth of the United States. But one thing is certain: the Junius Scales who entered Lewisburg penitentiary late last year to begin a six-year sentence could not be the same man who was sentenced in Greensboro in 1955 for being a member of the Communist Party.

* * *

In 1955, Scales still believed that Communism was the answer to what he considered failures in capitalism and democratic government in America. Two years later sickened and disillusioned by the Soviet treatment of Hungary and the hypocrisy of Khrushchev's denouncement of Stalin, Scales repudiated Communism and broke completely with the Communist Party. In 1958, Scales was again convicted on the same charge. (He had been granted a new trial on a legal technicality.)

* * *

In June of last year, the Supreme Court upheld the 1958 conviction by a 5-4 decision. The decision also upheld the Smith Act of 1950 which holds membership in the Communist Party to be participation in a group which advocates violent overthrow of the government.

* * *

Scales, was never shown in any of his trials to have personally committed any act of violence, or to have advocated overthrow of the government by force or violence. He, in short, was convicted on his beliefs, not his actions. For his beliefs, he is serving six years in prison. Worse, they are beliefs that he no longer holds, that he repudiated when it became clear to him that his years in the service of the Communist Party were wasted on an utterly false ideal.

* * *

Thus a man is being punished as vindication for a once-held belief although he has not committed any overt act of violence himself nor advocated such an act in the pursuit of that belief.

* * *

To continue to connect the Junius Scales of 1955 with the Junius Scales of today is an injustice in itself. His original conviction under the Smith Act, which makes belief a criminal offense, is an even greater one.

* * *

Judging from the government's handling of other Communists, some of whom still fervently believe in Communist totalitarianism, Scales might have won clemency had he conceded to enmesh others in the threads of the Smith Act. His refusal to do so, on the grounds that none of the persons he knew in his days as a Communist are now dangerous, virtually guarantees that he will not be released before his six years of penance is paid.

* * *

It is perhaps belaboring a point to say that the questions surrounding Scales conviction and sentencing have nothing to do with the validity or invalidity of Communist doctrine. Its fraudulence and vileness is readily apparent to Americans; even, since 1957, to Scales. And it is the duty of any American to oppose it with courage and strength.

But to translate this opposition into vengence upon the head of a man who has disavowed all affection for Communism is to trample on democracy.

Note To Dr. George

Note to Dr. W. C. George, professor emeritus and rascist extraordinaire:

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20—The American Anthropological Association has strongly disputed statements that Negroes are biologically and mentally inferior to the white race.

The association's council has adopted a resolution reaffirming its belief in the inherent equality of the Negro and white races.

The resolution stated:

"The American Anthropological Association repudiates statements now appearing in the United States that Negroes are biologically and in innate mental ability inferior to whites, and reaffirms the fact that there is no scientifically established evidence to justify the exclusion of any race from the rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States."

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 192 to 0.

* * *

In other words, Dr. George: As a scientist . . . well, you'd probably be a good truck-driver.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIAL STAFF

WAYNE KING.....Editor
MARGARET ANN RHYMES—Associate Editor
LLOYD LITTLE—Executive News Editor
BILL HOBBS.....Managing Editor
JIM CLOTFELTER, BILL WUAMETT—News Editors
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor
CHUCK MOONEY.....Feature Editor
HARRY LLOYD.....Sports Editor
ED DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
GARRY BLANCHARD—Contributing Editor

BUSINESS STAFF

TIM BURNETT...Business Manager
MIKE MATHERS—Advertising Manager
JIM EVANS..Subscription Manager
JIM ESKRIDGE—Circulation Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.00 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

"You Bungler! We Were Counting On You"

ATTITUDES by Clotfelter

'Reflections,' Forum For Dissenters And Defenders, Has Superior Art, Layout

The current issue of "Reflections from Chapel Hill" magazine is valuable for its excellent content and genuinely superior art work and layout. But it is more valuable because of its existence, regardless of the quality of its material.

"Reflections" is a student-edited "magazine of art and thought which welcomes a variety of opinions." It claims to be "a rallying point for Southern liberals" and "a forum for dissenters and defenders." The editors have said they will print any well-written article or story—no matter what opinion is expressed or what topic is covered.

This editorial attitude that ANY intelligently-presented idea is worth being said and being printed is the magazine's greatest contribution to the Southern (and National) literary and journalistic scene.

Too often a divergent thought has been suppressed because it is "pink" or "radical." "Reflections" hopefully has freed itself from this childish inhibition.

The articles and stories in the current issue carry out the above policy, with the unfortunate exception that no "rightist," "conservative," or even "middle-of-the-road" article appears. (Apparently none was contributed, but the editors are nonetheless responsible for encouraging the expression of ALL ideas and attitudes, not just those of a "leftist" slant.)

* * *

Lawrence Ferlinghetti, the famous San Francisco poet and author of "Her," leads off this issue with "One Thousand Fearful Words for Fidel Castro," a sad, mocking little poem which is very effective and timely. My favorite line refers to the "experts" who "know the difference between Soviet Communism . . . and socialism with a small c."

The next piece, "A Modest Proposal for the Final Settlement of the American Question—A Turgid Treatise on How to Fix America But Good (Through Trenchant Truncating tactics)," is a Swift dose of nonsense by James K. Layton. By the simplicity of his solution to the world's problems, he puts to shame all of the advocates of One Handy Solution to the Cold War and Other Diverse Problems.

Editor Bob Brown's 13-page editorial is an intelligent, very personal attack upon the nature of the House Un-American Activities Committee. The editorial opens with several pages of pondering as to how "Reflections" should fulfill its purpose to present controversial views and simultaneously escape unjust criticism because the views are printed. Brown refuses to follow many other "liberals" who go on the defensive by saying something like, "Yes, I love America and capitalism and democracy and motherhood, even though I am a liberal."

* * *

The photography of the late William Rezek takes up several pages. This unique person was apparently fascinated by sewerage at all levels, and his interesting photographs reflect this fascination.

Socialist editor and economist Paul M. Sweezy wrote the next article, "The Struggle for Latin America," a brief historical review of United States "economic colonization" of its southern neighbors. He is not an apologist for Fidel Castro, but a vigorous defender.

Sweezy discusses the economic aspects of Fidelismo, but not its often unfortunate political results. The economist's opinion of Castro is not mine, but it is one with which students of the Cuban situation should be acquainted and should understand.

Washington reporter Marvin Caplan's "The Last White Family on the Block" is a lucid description of a while integration's feelings as he and his family become the "last white family . . . "

The first Negroes who move into the neighborhood are nice, think their white neighbors (according to Caplan), "yet each small disturbance (which concerns the Negroes) is magnified in the wide eyes of fear . . . . Two gangs, one white and one Negro, get into a fight, and rumor runs through the neighborhood like fire. That's what we fear. Negro turbulence. Where is it? Next door? It is seldom next door. But it's down the street, next to old Mrs. Grandy, who lives there all alone, poor soul . . . . OUR Negroes are different. But who knows who will follow them?"

The dilemma of Caplan (who is president of Neighbors, Inc., a group seeking to retain the integrated nature of their neighborhood) cannot be solved by reference to dogma and his article is therefore free from any hint of what people "should" do.

* * *

Elizabeth Tornquist's "The Poverty of Liberalism" is a call to arms to all liberals and potential liberals, to stop "flittering" their time away with committees to reform specific evils (groups such as the NAACP and anti-HUAC committees), and unite into a strong "new Left." Mrs. Tornquist presents a fair case for her proposal, but seems to totally disregard the historical precedents for the liberal's present chaotic condition. The so-called Right has almost always been better organized and more pragmatic in its political efforts than has the "Left."

The magazine concludes with pictures of the sculpture of UNC associate professor Robert A. Howard, a short story, "No Chance" by Elizabeth Paris, who has published in KENYON REVIEW and the GEORGIA REVIEW; and five poems, several of which have been praised in previous newspaper reviews.

The almost-uniformly excellent quality of the material is equalled, if not surpassed, by the beautiful art work. This issue's cover by Katherine Strong is equal to anything of which any American political—literary magazine can boast. The advertisements are in perfect taste and a pleasure to look at, the lettering is also well-done.

* * *

The current issue of "Reflections" is the third since the magazine was begun last June. It has grown considerably since that time and the nature and quality of this issue testify to the importance of its continued success.

—JIM CLOTFELTER

A Place FOR Prejudice

From time to time, we continue to get irate notes from various readers who complain that our editorial page is "biased." They don't exactly phrase it that way. "You ought to reflect," says a recent missive, "the sentiments of your subscribers."

It's a thought. But the sentiments of our subscribers are happily varied. And if we tried to reflect their notions we'd need to write a dozen pieces on every subject, each upholding opposing points of view. The trouble is, our critics don't understand the function of an editorial page. The page is "biased" or the page is nothing.

This is the only place in the paper we feel obligated to say what "we" think, as opposed to what Congressman Bushwhack says or the surface facts imply. This is the place in the paper you get an opinion you can endorse or quarrel with, enjoy or reject. It is not aimed at pleasing readers; it is designed to give the editor a forum in which he can state his views, as honestly as he is able, without conscious inhibition.

Certainly it's "biased." If it isn't, it's worthless. We don't ask that you like it. We merely hope that you read.

—Asheville Citizen

Hoover Who?

Columns' Objectivity Vs. Readers' Accuracy

At the conclusion of the Sunday (Jan. 14) DTH editorial column, Jim Clotfelter made a remarkably interesting observation: "'No objective journalist can be sure who is 'anti-Communist,' who is 'Communist-leaning,' or who is 'Communist.'"

For the sake of logic and consistency, if for no other, Clotfelter should read his own column in order to prevent such obvious inconsistencies which result from an apparently insincere desire to advise others.

There is one uniting factor which repeatedly occurs in Clotfelter's exsputations and that is the expression of resentment for journalistic or political opposition to Communism. He never suggests overtly that pro-Communists should be granted respect and admiration but he does imply that they should be given the consent of silence.

He wrote a few days ago that J. Edgar Hoover, undoubtedly America's best qualified critic on Communism, only added to confusion to the Katanga-UN problem by opposing the province's falling into the control of the pro-Communists. The conflict here was resolved very simply by Clotfelter's own either-or alternative. Either Katanga must receive the stability and protection from a Communistic but united Congo or remain Independent and anti-Communistic and go to the devil. Deciding which observation is more valid is certainly a difficult task in this instance. Ignoring his far-ranging experience in dealing with communist controversy, his unchallenged access to more pertinent facts concerning the matter and his authority on the subject, we are expected to disregard Hoover's position because he is definitely known to be anti-Communistic, and therefore could not make an objective observation—valid perhaps, but never objective. Also, if we consider Clotfelter's position, it is absolutely essential that we ignore his experience, access to the facts, and authority but compensation is made for these relatively minor aspects by the outstanding objectivity with which he presents the case.

Speaking of objectivity, is it not true that you, Mr. Clotfelter, wrote the "news" report of the Harrington-Lewis debate on the film, "Operation Abolition" which appeared in the Oct. 25 issue of the DTH? If there were a Journalism Hall of Shame, this story would surely be a top contender in the Most Unobjective category. Not only is one party lauded in the news column and is given almost all attention, but the other party, the one against whom you have publically expressed antagonism, was ignored until he said something that would appear ridiculous out of context and with perhaps with slight paraphrasing. Does this measure up to your ideal standards of objectivity?

It is true that objectivity is an essential criterion in contemporary journalism. It is also true that there is a present trend toward interpretative writing. The journalist, today, is expected to do more than collect and report the simple facts: he is now responsible to the public to probe further and report the significance and the implications of these facts, the result of which is a meaningful analysis as opposed to the traditional enumeration of details. With this bit of progress in the journalistic profession must come also added responsibility for objectivity and fair play.

An examination of the purposes and responsibilities of the contempory journalistic profession contradicts the charge that "no objective journalist can be sure who is anti-Communist ,Communist-leaning, or pro-Communist. Furthermore it seems that the opposite natures of capitalism and communism would provide still another method of distinguishing between the two.

—CHARLES HEATHERLY

* * *

Mr. Heatherly:

I never mentioned J. Edgar Hoover in my column on Katanga. The individual's name was Herbert Hoover. He was once President of the United States.

—JIM CLOTFELTER

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

JFK College Bill Headed For Damaging Revisions?

President Kennedy's college education bill probably will be the first major legislation to be debated this year. It is expected to pass but there is some danger of damaging revisions being made by Sen. Cooper (R-Ky) and others.

The five-year program set up in the measure would include $1.5 billion in loans for classroom construction, $924 million for college student scholarships, and $250 million in matching grants to help build public junior colleges.

The bill authorizes 25,000 scholarships to be awarded the first year; 37,500 the next; and 50,000 each for the next three years. These could not exceed $1,000 annually. The states would administer the program and a recipient could attend any college of his choice.

Universities would receive $350 as a "cost of education allowance" for each scholarship holder in attendance.

Democratic leaders appear to think the Senate, which passed the President's public school grant bill last year by 49-34, will also pass this bill. The House killed the elementary and high school bill last year, but it is expected to pass the higher education bill since it does not involve the divisive issue of aid for church schools.

Last September the Senate Labor Committee approved the $2.67-billion college education bill by 12-2—with only Barry Goldwater and John Tower (D-Tex) in opposition.

Congressional floor disputes are expected to concern both the classroom loans and the scholarship provisions.

Sen. Cooper has said he likely would offer an amendment to change student scholarships to student loans. In 1958 Cooper led the successful revision effort to change "scholarships" to "loans" in the National Defense Education Act.

U. S. college and university enrollment is growing faster than schools can accomodate the students. It has become a near-cliche that universities need more classroom and dormitory space — but they do. It has been said often that many qualified students cannot attend college for financial reasons—and it is true.

UNC is presently constructing a new language building. It needs more library space. Many departments are crowded into small alleyways in the older class buildings.

In addition UNC receives many requests annually for scholarships and loans—requests which cannot be filled for lack of funds.

The Kennedy Administration bill, which is tentatively set for debate beginning next Monday, will help to alleviate these problems, both for universities and students.

—JIM CLOTFELTER

Exam Schedule

By action of the faculty, the time of an examination may not be changed after it has been fixed in the schedule. Quizzes are not to be given in this semester on or after Monday, January 15, 1961

The Official Class Roll and Grade Report will be prepared by the Data Processing Section and forwarded to the departments prior to the examination period. As in the past, the original copy will be returned to the Office of Records and Registration, the second copy (canary) is to be retained by the department, and the third copy (goldenrod) is to be kept by the instructor.

Grade reports are to be handed in to the department office within 72 hours after the scheduled time of the final examination. The department chairman shall be responsible for recording receipt of each grade report (the Form DR-1 may be used for this) and for forwarding it promptly to the Office of Records and Registration. In unusual cases, if it is clearly needed, an extension of the time limit, preferably not to exceed 48 hours, may be approved by the department chairman or the dean of the school concerned. The Office of Records and Registration must be given notice of the delay. (Faculty Council, May 6, 1960.) Machine processing of grades makes it urgent that all grades be turned in on time.

All permits to take examinations to remove grades of "Exc. Abs." or "Cond." must be secured from the Office of Records and Registration prior to the exam. No students may be excused from a scheduled examination except by the University Infirmary in case of illness or by his Dean in case of any other emergency compelling his absence.

All 12:00 noon classes on MWF, *Econ, 81	Mon. Jan. 22	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on MWF, *Econ. 31, 32 61 & 70	Mon. Jan. 22	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Tues. Jan. 23	8:30 a.m.
All 12:00 noon classes on TThs, all *Naval Science and *Air Science	Tues. Jan. 23	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on TThs	Wed. Jan. 24	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on TThs, *Poli 41, Busi. 150	Wed. Jan. 24	2:00 p.m.
All French, German & Spanish courses Numbered 1, 2, 3, 3x ? 4, *Phch. 61	Thurs. Jan. 25	8:30 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Thurs. Jan. 25	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Fri. Jan. 26	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Fri Jan. 26	2:00 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Sat. Jan. 27	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on MWF *Busi 160, *Phys. 24	Sat. Jan. 27	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Mon. Jan. 29	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on TThS, *Busi 130, *Chem. 43	Mon. Jan. 29	2:00 p.m.
All 3:00 p.m. classes, *Chem. 11, *Busi. 71 & 72, and all classes not otherwise provided for in this schedule	Tues. Jan. 30	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Tues. Jan. 30	2:00 p.m.

Instructors teaching classes scheduled for common examinations shall request the students in these classes to report to them any conflict with any other examination not later than December 15. In case of a conflict, the regularly scheduled exam will take precedence over the common exam. (Common exams are indicated by an asterisk.)

Carrier Current

Wednesday
6:00—Dinner Hour
6:55—Campus News
7:00—Songs of France
7:15—Impetus
7:30—Jazz from Canada
7:45—Lincoln Story
8:00—Masterwork
10:00—Ten O'clock Report
10:10—Consolidated Univ. News
10:15—French Press Review
10:30—Some Came to Sing
10:55—News
11:00—Campus News
11:05—Quiet Hours
11:55—Preview
12:00—Sign off

Thursday
6:00—Dinner Hour
6:55—Campus News
7:00—Carolina Roundtable
8:00—Masterwork
10:00—Ten O'clock Report
10:10—Consolidated Univ. News
10:15—Spectrum
10:55—News
11:00—Campus News
11:05—Quiet Hours
11:55—Preview
12:00—Sign off

Friday
6:00—The Dinner Hour
6:55—Campus News
7:00—Project 60
8:00—Let's Listen to Opera
10:00—Ten O'clock Report
10:15—Concerto for Human Voice and Radio Transmitter
10:45—Hillside Jazz
11:15—Campus News
11:20—The Quiet Hours
11:55—Preview
12:00—Sign off

Saturday
6:00—The Dinner Hour
6:55—Campus News
7:00—Canadian Drama
7:30—Paris Startime
8:00—Masterwork
10:00—Ten O'clock Report
10:15—Pete Ivey News
10:30—The Quiet Hours
10:55—News
11:00—Campus News
11:05—The Quiet Hours
11:55—Preview
12:00—Sign off

With the conclusion of Sat. evening programming, carrier current will leave the air to return Feb. 5.

—Film Society Features 'M'—

'M'—Peter Lorre stars in Fritz Lang's "M," the first German Sound film, in one of the eight-program spring series of the UNC-Chapel Hill Film Society. Tickets at $4 apiece, $7 per couple and $3 for high school students went on sale yesterday in the YM-YWCA office.

—JFK Asks Army Revamping—

(Continued from Page 1)

gineers, Lt. Gen. Walter K. Wilsen, who will retain his statutory position because of his civil works responsibilities; and the surgeon general, Lt. Gen. L. D. Heaton, whose office will be retained as a separate entity.

The program was developed during a 10-month study by a committee of 60 high ranking officers and civilians. It is similiar to other plans frequently recommended for the Army in recent years.

A new office of personnel operations, combining functions now performed by 20 units, is also to be created to guide the careers of all soldiers except those in the professional services—medical, legal and religious.

Stahr listed six actions to be taken. Those would establish the two commands; transfer weapons test to the new logistic command and war games to the new combat chief; relieve the general staff of operating functions; centralize control of career development, and expand the continental command's training responsibility.

Dutch Claim 50 Indonesians Held rescued from the water after their torpedo boat was sunk in Dutch territorial waters off the New Guinea coast.

(Continued from Page 1)

Some of the Indonesians picked up off the south coast were reported to have been seriously wounded.

Move Termed Aggression

Dutch officials denounced the move by Indonesian torpedo boats into New Guinea territorial waters as "'aggression : . not preceded by a declaration of war."

But the interior affairs director of the local Dutch administration, H. Voldkamp, said the Indonesian move "does not constitute a reason for proclaiming a state of siege or for taking special administrative measures."

Infirmary

Those in the infirmary yesterday included: Lillian Ennis, Ann McGalliard, Edward Silber, John Flournoy, James Meredith, Stephen Lindell, Richard Fuller, Robert Bolan, Athos Rostan, Hubert Hawkins, Don Whisenant, Paul Ertel, Frank Tew, Thomas Loflin, Neal Jackson, Richard Fleming, Robert Deal, Larry Edwards, Lawrence Sizemore, Edwin Aycock, Carroll Laxton, Winston Sanford, Barry Page, William Vaughn, Tommy Jarrett, Mark Gaber.

It Pays to Advertise!

CLASSIFIED ADS

FOR RENT — LOG CABIN PRIvately located in country—Perfect for Picnic Parties. Phone 968-2945, nights.

FOR SALE: '57 T-BIRD, WHITE. Both convertible and hard top. Contact 404 McCauley St. after 6 p.m. Telephone 968-8973. Price $1,900.

THE LIFE INSURANCE YOU didn't buy may one day cost your family far more. For sound advice on your life insurance program, call a Northwestern Mutual agent. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. Telephone 942-6966.

Carolina

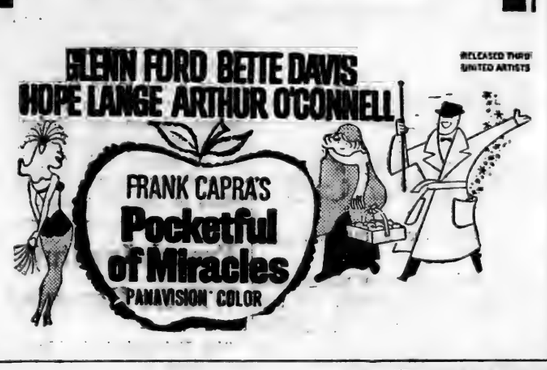
NOW PLAYING

A Musical Holiday of Fun for Everyone!

GOLF CITY'S 19th HOLE
MUSIC • DANCING
SANDWICHES • B--R
ACROSS FROM HOWARD JOHNSONS OPEN 12-12

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST

GLENN FORD BETTE DAVIS
HOPE LANGE ARTHUR O'CONNELL
RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS



ALL BIG TOYS
1/3 OFF
Many Reduced 1/2 Price
During Our
January Clearance Sale
SUTTON'S TOY CELLAR

—Students Study—

(Continued from Page 1)

tions. Generally, conditions are good.

As for aff-campus residents, it usually depends on the individual.

A number of classrooms on campus are open every night. These rooms will be open during the exam period: 01 Alumni, 207B and 208 Caldwell, 105 and 106 Hanes, 105 Peabody, 220 and 232 Phillips, 109 and 216 Saunders, and possibly 07 and 208 Gardner.

During exams, quiet hours will be in effect in campus residences almost all day and night. The library also has extended its hours for this period.

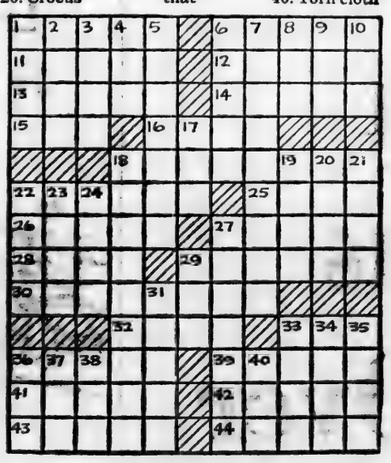
Are you all set?

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. To embrace
6. Intrigue
11. Wit
12. Martini relish
13. Sultan's decree
14. Excavated, as coal
15. Foot-like part
16. Identical
18. Huge
22. Military display
25. Circle of light
26. To accustom
27. Aweigh, as an anchor
28. Not short
29. Betters
30. Devours
32. A period of time
33. East Indian food
36. Ducks
39. Angry
41. Medieval helmet
42. Walking sticks
43. V.I.P. officer (slang)
44. Deputy

DOWN
1. Fragment
2. To tallow
3. Cantilever trees
4. Turf
5. Act as chairman
6. Punctuation mark
7. Estranges
8. Storage area
9. Rosary bead
10. Guided
17. To mature
18. Notre Dame water-spouts
19. Revolve
20. Crocus
21. Crowns
22. Heap
23. Soon
24. Wheel-spoke
26. Patriotic hymn
29. —— Khan
31. Sleeps
33. Native of Copenhagen
34. Solar disc
35. For fear that
36. Small flap
37. To blunder
38. Wine cup
40. Torn cloth

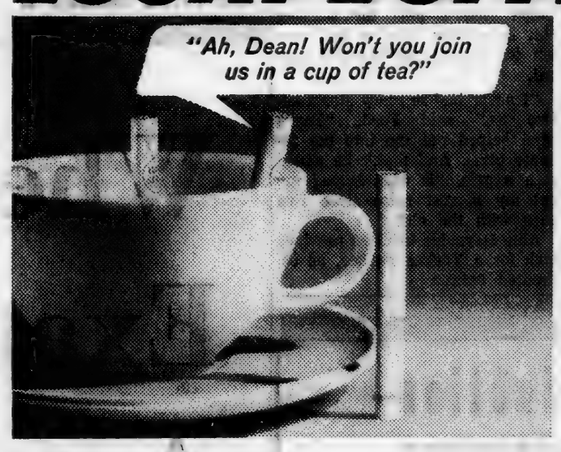
Yesterday's Answer

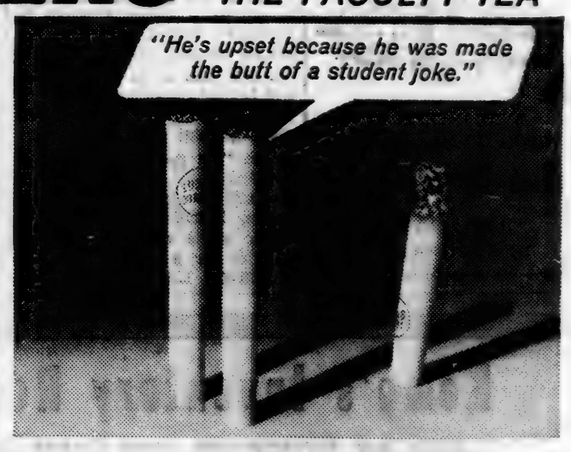


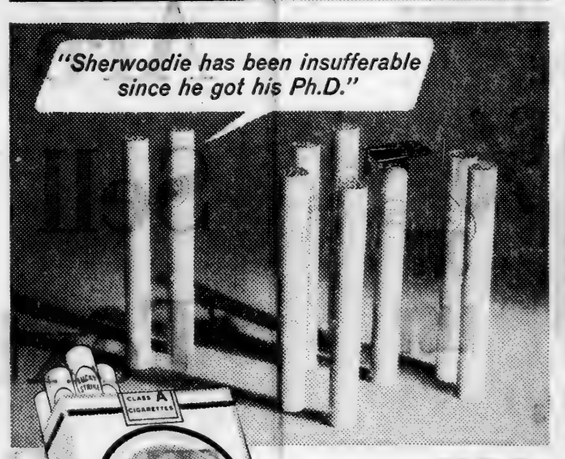
Pete
Needs Money
To Pay For
This Adv.
COME AND GET YOUR GARMENTS
Also Need Space For Other Clothing
Pete the Tailor

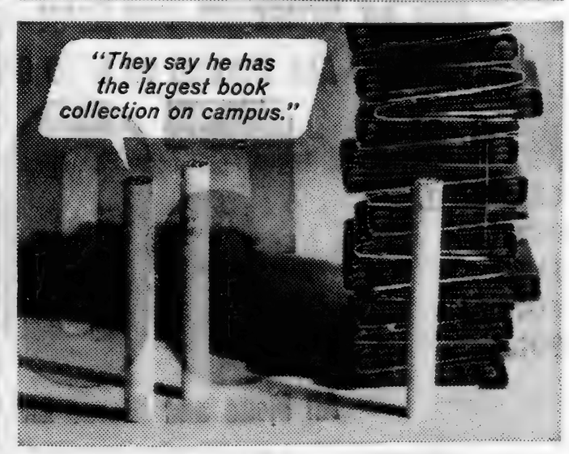
Get Better Grades With Study Aids
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

LUCKY STRIKE presents:
LUCKY PUFFERS "THE FACULTY TEA"









THE PROFESSORIAL IMAGE. It used to be that professors, as soon as they were 28, took on a father image—rumpled tweeds, tousled hair, pipe. But these days, the truly "in" professor has the "buddy" look—Ivy suit, crew cut, Lucky Strikes. It seems that students learn more eagerly from someone with whom they can identify. Alert teachers quickly pounce on the fact that college students smoke more Luckies than any other regular. Have you pounced on the fact yet?

CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change!

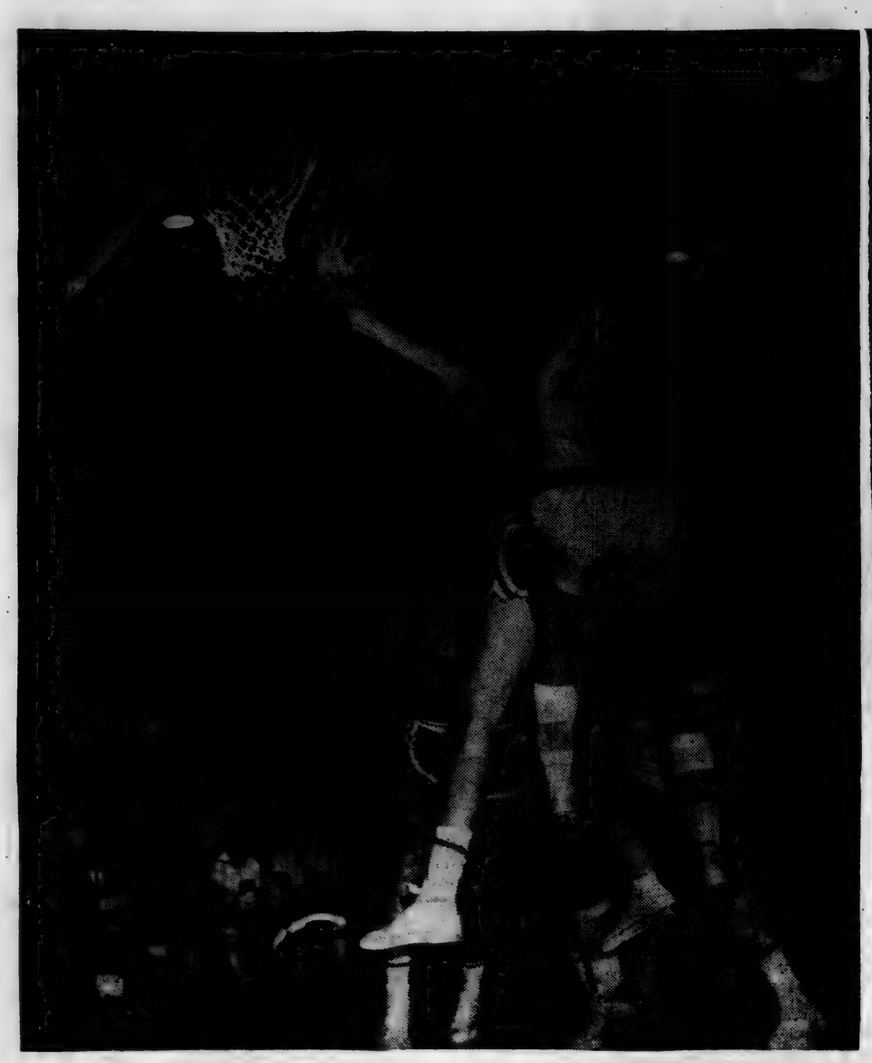
© A. T. Co.

Product of The American Tobacco Company — "Tobacco is our middle name"

POGO

PEANUTS

Tar Heels Play State In Pair Here Tonight



No Man's Land—The territory under a basketball backboard doesn't belong to anyone, for very long. That's what UNC's Mike Cooke, 22, could be telling Ronnie Collins, 22, of South Carolina, in the game here Monday night. North Carolina won the game by 73-61 after pulling away from a 36-36 halftime tie.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

UNC Has Won 9 Of Last 11 From Pack

By HARRY LLOYD

No player on the UNC basketball team has ever been in a losing varsity game with N. C. State. Tonight, the Tar Heel cagers will be trying to extend their streak and make it five straight over the Wolfpack.

The two brother institutions will collide for the first time since the de-emphasis ruling hit them last spring. Gametime is 8 p.m. in Woollen Gym.

N. C. State has won only one regular season game from the Tar Heels since the 1956 season. In 1958, UNC dropped an overtime game, 58-57. Carolina has won 11 of the last 13 contests between the two schools, and nine of the last 10.

The current State team, however, will present some tough problems. To date, they have played four ACC teams, losing to Wake Forest and South Carolina while defeating Maryland and Duke.

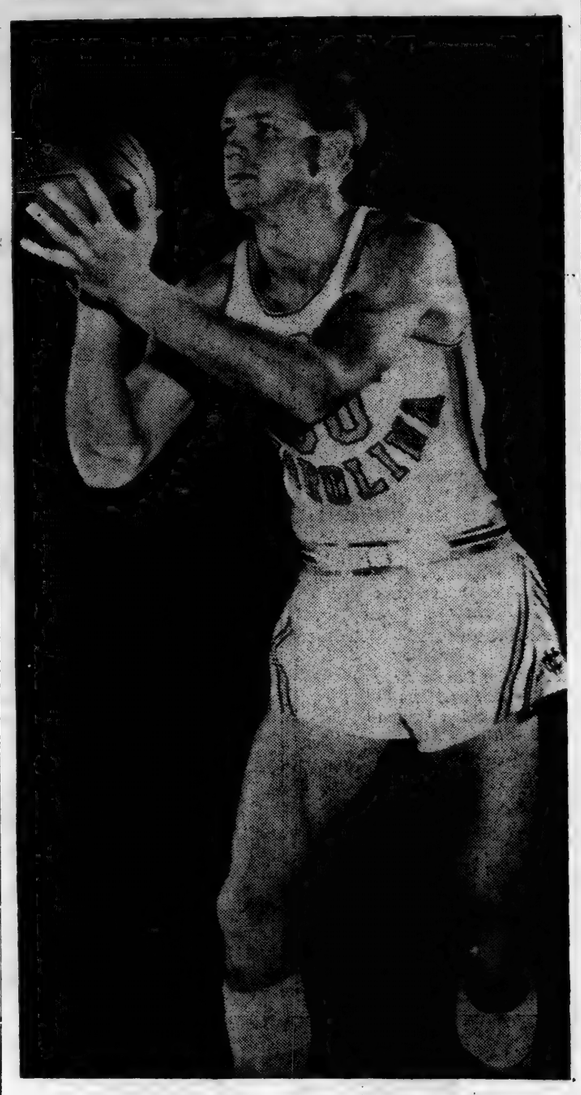
State's top all-round player is 6-5 forward John Punger, a junior who can play all aspects of the game. Their leading rebounders are center Russ Marvel, a senior, and Junior Jim Whitfield, a junior forward. Other State players who will see a lot of action are forwards Pete Auksel and Dan Wherry and guards Denny Lutz, Jon Speaks, Don Greiner, and Bobby Mayton.

North Carolina's lineup will again rotate around the trio of center Jim Hudock and guards Don Walsh and Larry Brown, who have been the top scorers in the last two games. The other two starters will come from the group of Jim Dohohue, Bryan McSweeney, Mike Cooke, and Dieter Krause.

Hudock remains the team's high scorer in seven games with 123 points and a 17.6 average. Brown sports a 16.0 mark and Walsh has a 14.9 average. In the last two games, Brown and Hudock have scored 40 each and Walsh has hit for 42 points. This trip has accounted for 71 per cent of the UNC points in the two games.

Daily Tar Heel

Page Four Wednesday, January 17, 1962



KRAUSE SHAPING UP—Junior Forward Dieter Krause, who was a starter in the early season but then slipped out of the first five, has come around well in recent games with some fine performances. He scored 11 in a relief role against Virginia, and hit the basket that put the Tar Heels ahead to stay in the South Carolina game.

French Institute Will Be Repeated

The University's highly successful French Institute, first held here during the summer of 1961, will be repeated again this summer for elementary and high school teachers of French.

Under the direction of George B. Daniel, assistant professor of French, the institute this year will accommodate 60 teachers—an increase of 15 over last year.

The eight-week institute, to run from June 25—August 17, is being made possible under an $84,000 grant of the National Defense Education Act, and is being sponsored jointly by the University in cooperation with the United States Office of Education Language Development Program.

Forty high school teachers and 20 elementary school teachers of French will have an opportunity to increase their knowledge of the contemporary civilization of France; to improve their present audio-lingual and written competencies in French; and to learn new methods of language teaching, including the use and operation of audio-lingual laboratories.

Spiders are near-sighted.

Frosh Go For Tenth Win Against Wolves

By ED DUPREE

Carolina's talented Tar Babies put their nine-game winning streak on the line tonight in Woollen Gym against the N. C. State Wolflets, coached by ex-Wolfpack star Lou Pucillo.

Kenny Rosemnd's cagers edged past the Raleigh boys, 73-70, in their first meeting in Raleigh last week, as Billy Cunningham hit for 31 points, his high for the season.

Six-eight Charles Grob and Larry Worsley, 6-5, 195, from Oak City, N. C., led the Wolflet scoring with 20 each. Grob, who will be the biggest man on the court tonight, hails from Roselle, N. J. Other State starters should be John Argan-bright, 6-2, 198, Columbus, Ohio; Tommy Mattocks, 6-1, 165, Kinston; and Gary Hale, 6-0, 165, Jefferson, Ind.

Cunningham's 28 points against South Carolina Monday upped his team leading average to 20.8. This will be Billy's last chance to display his talents in a Carolina freshman game, since next semester will be his third at UNC. He will be held out of varsity competition next semester, so that he can play three full seasons with the varsity.

Jay Neary, the second half of the Tar Babies' New York scoring punch, scored 22 against the Biddies Monday and now has a 17.9 mark. Cunningham, a Brooklyn boy, and Neary, a Cambria Heights basketballer, have scored 348 points between them for a combined average of 38.7 a game.

Other Carolina starters, with their scoring averages, are: Ray Respess, 13.8; Bill Brown, 12.3, and Pud Hassell, 7.4.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

GANT

STRIPED BUTTON-DOWN

Certainly you can't afford to be without this perfectionist. It provides a variation on the classic design—muted stripes giving an individual distinction to the most favored of designs. Add that to the fine oxford—appreciate the comfortably flared button-down collar... and you have the most authoritative look a man could wish for.

In Yellow, Blue, White, and Stone.

Julian's College Shop

Warmth without Bulky Weight

Navy's Wonder Fabric

THERMAL UNDERWEAR

For outdoor men who work or play in winter weather.

- Long Sleeve Shirt $3.95
- Ankle Length Drawers $3.95

— ALSO —

Thermal Socks 1.50

GUARANTEED BY GOOD HOUSEKEEPING.

The Sport Shop

"It Pays to Play"

151 E. Franklin St.

Whitey, Yogi Sign; Will Receive 102 Gs

NEW YORK (UPI) — The world champion New York Yankees shelled out more than one-eighth their record $800,000 payroll Tuesday just to sign two players — Whitey Ford and Yogi Berra. Between them, the two veteran Yankees will be paid an estimated $102,000 for 1962.

Ford, whose 25-4 record last year put him in the 20-victory class for the first time, became the highest paid pitcher in Yankee history with a $14,000 boost to $50,000. Berra drew a token raise of $3,000 to $55,000 for his 17th season with the Yankees but admitted "that's still not the biggest salary I ever got."

General Manager Roy Hamey predicted the Yankees would have to pay out "at least $800,000" for baseball's highest payroll to corral all the uniformed members of the club that swept to the American League pennant and to a five-game World Series triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

The "big one"—Mickey Mantle—already has signed for $85,000. But still to come are a flock of others, including home run king Roger Maris who is said to be shooting for a 100 per cent hike to $70,000. Maris hit 61 homers last season for a major league record.

"All but a couple of players will get raises," said Hamey. "I'd say there'll be small cuts for maybe Bob Turley and Bob Cerv but the others probably will do as well or a lot better than last year.

Among the others is veteran pitcher Robin Roberts, obtained from the Phillies. Roberts had a 1-10 record for the Phils last year but Hamey said he didn't expect to give the veteran right-hander a cut.

"They cut him plenty the last couple of years," said Hamey. Ford, who said he hadn't argued about salary for the last five years—but didn't get a raise in the last three—credited manager Ralph Houk's plan for starting him in regular rotation last season for his remarkable 25-4 record.

"I never had so many starts before 39," said Ford. "That's what helped put me into the 20-game class. And that," he added with a grin, "is what helped me get my biggest raise since I've been with the club."

Allie Reynolds held the previous high for a Yankee pitcher, an estimated $45,000.

ECONOMICS SEMINAR

Donald W. Taylor of Yale University spoke here yesterday at a UNC seminar in economics and business.

A fire breaks out in the U. S. every 34 seconds.

Kemp's Inventory Reduction—

END OF SEMESTER—PRE-EXAM—MID-WINTER

ALL ROLLED UP INTO ONE

A Giant 50% OFF LIST

CLASSICAL
OPERA
JAZZ
POPULAR
FOLK

All Mono and Stereo L.P.'s

WED.-THURS.-FRI.-SAT. ONLY

Both Shops

Kemp just completed counting stock and has too many records—They have got to go.

kemp

When Exams Are Over Sell Your Texts To The Intimate

Milton's Last Call To Winter

This is the Chez Milton Deal of Deals. With spring breathing down our throats, we've re-reduced over 210 Sport Coats and 315 suits. Grab them now at these prices, or forever hold your gold.

Large group sport coats formerly to $48.75 further cut to crazy $19.99 and $24.99.

Sizeable group sport coats formerly to $75.00 at low, low $39.99.

Many other cool deals—need we say more?

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Rally Round The Flag, Boys", "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis", etc.)

IS STUDYING NECESSARY?

Once there were three roommates and their names were Walter Pellucid, Casimir Fing, and LeRoy Holocaust and they were all taking English lit. and they were all happy, friendly, outgoing types and they all smoked Marlboro Cigarettes as you would expect from such a gregarious trio, for Marlboro is the very essence of sociability, the very spirit of amity, and very soul of concord, with its tobacco so mild and flavorful, its pack so king-size and flip-top, its filter so pure and white, and you will find when you smoke Marlboros that the world is filled with the song of birds and no man's hand is raised against you.

Each night after dinner Walter and Casimir and LeRoy went to their room and studied English lit. For three hours they sat in sombre silence and pored over their books and then, squinty and spent, they toppled onto their pallets and sobbed themselves to sleep.

This joyless situation obtained all through the first semester. Then one night they were all simultaneously struck by a marvelous idea. "We are all studying the same thing," they cried. "Why, then, should each of us study for three hours? Why not each study for one hour? It is true we will only learn one-third as much that way, but it does not matter because there are three of us and next June before the exams, we can get together and pool our knowledge!"

Oh, what rapture then fell on Walter and Casimir and LeRoy!

The wax in their Ears Got melted

They flung their beanies into the air and danced a gavotte and lit thirty or forty Marlboros and ran out to pursue the pleasure which had so long, so bitterly, been missing from their lives.

Alas, they found instead a series of grisly misfortunes. Walter, alas, went searching for love and was soon going steady with a coed named Invicta Breadstuff, a handsome lass, but, alas, hopelessly addicted to bowling. Each night she bowled five hundred lines, some nights a thousand. Poor Walter's thumb was a shambles and his purse was empty, but Invicta just kept on bowling and in the end, alas, she left Walter for a pin-setter, which was a terrible thing to do to Walter, especially in this case, because the pin-setter was automatic.

Walter, of course, was far too distraught to study his English lit, but he took some comfort from the fact that his roommates were studying and they would help him before the exams. But Walter, alas, was wrong. His roommates, Casimir and LeRoy, were nature lovers and they used their free time to go for long tramps in the woods and one night, alas, they were treed by two bears, Casimir by a brown bear and LeRoy by a kodiak, and they were kept in the trees until spring set in and the bears went to Yellowstone for the tourist season.

So when the three roommates met before exams to pool their knowledge, they found they had none to pool! Well sir, they had a good long laugh about that and then rushed to the kitchen and stuck their heads in the oven. It was, however, an electric oven and the effects were, on the whole, beneficial. The wax in their ears got melted and they acquired a healthy tan and today they are married to a lovely young heiress named Ganglia Bran and live in the Canal Zone, where there are many nice boats to wave at.

© 1962 Max Shulman

* * *

In case you worry about such things, their wife is a Marlboro smoker, too, which adds to the general merriment. Marlboro is ubiquitous, as well as flavorful, and you can buy them in all 50 states as well as the Canal Zone.

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

U. S. Alone

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Offices in Graham Memorial | THURSDAY, JANUARY 18, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Weather
Continued fair, warmer

81

More Dorm Rooms Next Fall, But No Relief This Spring

By JIM CLOTFELTER

More than a thousand new dormitory rooms will be available for men students next fall and almost 400 new rooms for women students. But there is little chance for relief of over-crowded dormitories this spring.

Director of Operations John S. Bennett said yesterday he expects all rooms to house only two persons next fall, unless there is an unusual increase in enrollment.

Presently 412 rooms which were designed for two people, hold three people.

Summer Opening

1,000 Dorm Rooms Complete For Men In Fall Semester

Craige dorm is scheduled to be open June 1, in time for summer school students if necessary. Erringhous dorm will be ready for occupancy next September, Bennett said. A dining room will be built in the basement of Ehringhous.

The two new dorms will house 1,446 men students.

Cobb dormitory will be renovated this summer to accommodate women students. Cobb has space for 442 persons.

Carr dorm is to be changed into a men's housing unit, to accommodate 60 law students.

Don't Meet Minimum

On the condition of the existing dormitories, Bennett said, "We always equal or exceed all health requirements — except when we have to put three men in a room."

Three in a room built for two results in too little floor, closet and dresser space, said Bennett. "But three in a room is not a normal condition."

Minimum health standards for student living conditions, according to the American College Health Association, usually require adequate electrical outlets, a bed with firm and even mattress, a dresser with four drawers per person:

At least ten square feet of closet space, adequate lighting facilities, fire resistant construction and emergency exits, and adequate bath and toilet facilities.

Mattress Renovation

The University renovates dormitory mattresses every 5-6 years, said Bennett. Approximately 600-700 mattresses are renovated yearly, he said.

In Avery-Parker-Teague interspring mattresses were used and the University is considering using rubberfoam mattress in Craige-Ehringhous, said the director of operations.

This year 300 beds, 200 dressers, and 200 tables have been bought for use in dormitories, he said.

Federal Funds

The Federal Government put up funds for Craige-Ehringhous and Avery - Parker - Teague. Federal matching funds were used in the construction of Kenan, McIver and Alderman, women's dormitories, and Stacy and Alexander, men's dormitories.

All other dormitories were built with state funds. The Cobb renovation will be done by the state.

Campus Briefs

Dr. Violet Wurfel of the department of political science and Dr. John B. Adams of the school of journalism will be among the panelists who will discuss "The Future of the United Nations" on tonight's "Carolina Roundtable" on WUNC radio. "Roundtable," in its second year on UNC, can be heard from 7-8 p.m. at 91.5 on the dial. With UNC radio's new extended power, the program is available within a 120-mile radius of Chapel Hill.

* * *

Students will be able to pick up their spring semester class tickets on Sunday, February 4, 1962, at the Naval Armory between the hours of 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. This is being done for the benefit of those pre-registered students who will not have the opportunity to pick up tickets on Friday, Feb. 2, or Sat., Feb. 3. Any student accounts not cleared with the Cashier for previous terms will not be able to pick up their class tickets and registration on Sunday evening.

* * *

The American Field Service will have a dinner meeting in Lenoir Hall at 6 p.m. Thursday.

* * *

The Carolina Women's Council will meet Wednesday night at 6:30 in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial.

Duke Professor Receives Grant

DURHAM (UPI) — A Duke University law professor has received a Ford Foundation grant for legal studies abroad in the next four summers.

Paul Hardin III was one of six persons named by the foundation.

Hardin's first summer will be in Scotland. In other years he plans to visit Nigeria, Lebanon and Venezuela.

Hoffman Opera On WUNC-TV Wednesday Night

Highlights of the last act of TALES OF HOFFMAN will be presented on WUNC-TV Wednesday night at 7:30 by members of the Opera Workshop. The entire last act of Hoffman, along with Pergelesi's THE MUSIC MASTER, will be presented by the Workshop in April.

TALES OF HOFFMAN, by Jacques Offenbach, is a three act opera in which each act relates the tale of a tragic love affair of Hoffman, a young poet.

The episode to be presented tonight deals with Hoffman's love for Antonia, a young damsel who suffers from a fever which will prove fatal if she over-exerts herself by singing. She is persuaded to do so however, by her physician, Dr. Miracle, who convinces her that her dead mother wishes her to sing.

As Antonia dies from excessive singing, Hoffman and her father enter to hear her dying words. The father then accuses Hoffman of Antonia's murder while Dr. Miracle gloats over the success of his scheme.

The presentation is being given in conjunction with Music Appreciation 41, a TV course offered by credit and taught by Dr. William S. Newman of the music department.

Exam Schedule

By action of the faculty, the time of an examination may not be changed after it has been fixed in the schedule. Quizzes are not to be given in this semester on or after Monday, January 15, 1961

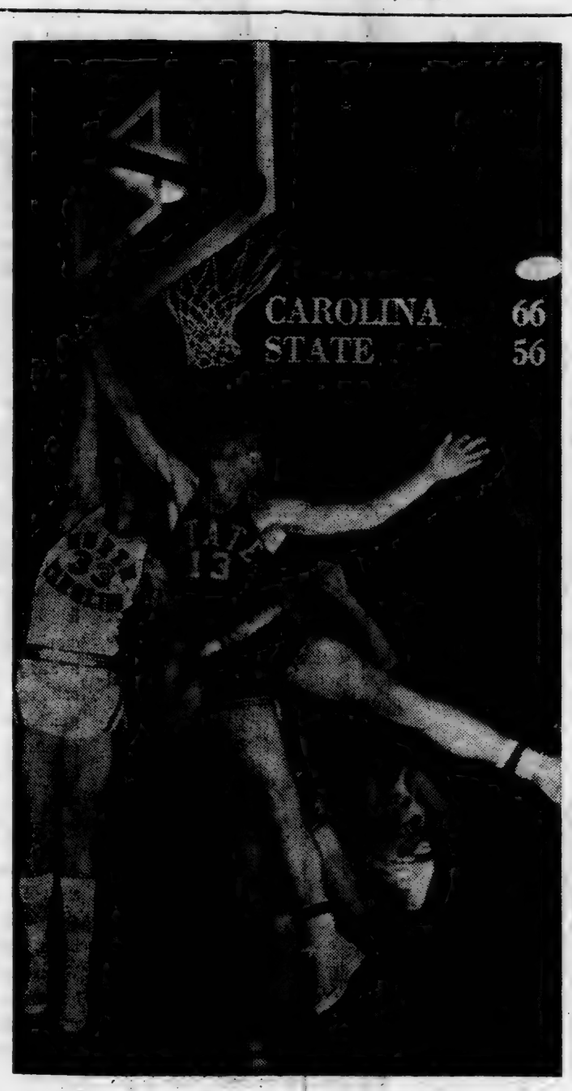
The Official Class Roll and Grade Report will be prepared by the Data Processing Section and forwarded to the departments prior to the examination period. As in the past, the original copy will be returned to the Office of Records and Registration, the second copy (canary) is to be retained by the department, and the third copy (goldenrod) is to be kept by the instructor.

Grade reports are to be handed in to the department office within 72 hours after the scheduled time of the final examination. The department chairman shall be responsible for recording receipt of each grade report (the Form DR-1 may be used for this) and for forwarding it promptly to the Office of Records and Registration. In unusual cases, if it is clearly needed, an extension of the time limit, preferably not to exceed 48 hours, may be approved by the department chairman or the dean of the school concerned. The Office of Records and Registration must be given notice of the delay. (Faculty Council, May 6, 1960.) Machine processing of grades makes it urgent that all grades be turned in on time.

All permits to take examinations to remove grades of "Exc. Abs." or "Cond." must be secured from the Office of Records and Registration prior to the exam. No students may be excused from a scheduled examination except by the University Infirmary in case of illness or by his Dean in case of any other emergency compelling his absence.

All 12:00 noon classes on MWF, *Econ, 81	Mon. Jan. 22	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on MWF, *Econ. 31, 32 61 & 70	Mon. Jan. 22	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Tues. Jan. 23	8:30 a.m.
All 12:00 noon classes on TThs, all *Naval Science and *Air Science	Tues. Jan. 23	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on TThs	Wed. Jan. 24	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on TThs, *Poli 41, Busi. 150	Wed. Jan. 24	2:00 p.m.
All French, German & Spanish courses Numbered 1, 2, 3, 3x ? 4, *Phch. 61	Thurs. Jan. 25	8:30 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Thurs. Jan. 25	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Fri. Jan. 26	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Fri Jan. 26	2:00 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Sat. Jan. 27	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on MWF *Busi 160, *Phys. 24	Sat. Jan. 27	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Mon. Jan. 29	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on TThS, *Busi 130, *Chem. 43	Mon. Jan. 29	2:00 p.m.
All 3:00 p.m. classes, *Chem. 11, *Busi. 71 & 72, and all classes not otherwise provided for in this schedule	Tues. Jan. 30	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Tues. Jan. 30	2:00 p.m.

Instructors teaching classes scheduled for common examinations shall request the students in these classes to report to them any conflict with any other examination not later than December 15. In case of a conflict, the regularly scheduled exam will take precedence over the common exam. (Common exams are indicated by an asterisk.)



Hudock battles State's Whitfield for rebound
—Photo by Jim Wallace

Carrier Current Undergoes Change

Carrier current programs will become more student-directed and be broadcast by a new system involving fewer transmitters at the beginning of next semester.

The original plan for the system, to use eleven small transmitters throughout the campus to carry student-oriented programs to the dorms and other living areas has run into both technical and programing difficulties.

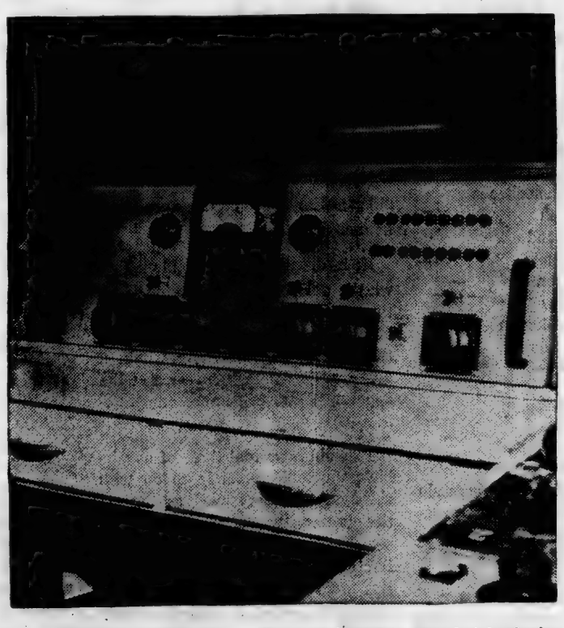
The three small 7-watt transmitters now functioning as the first stage of the original plan have failed or become broken repeatedly in the past months, according to Reno Bailey, station manager of WUNC and director of the carrier current program. Repairing these transmitters is time consuming and is using parts originally set aside for construction of the other eight transmitters of the original plan.

* * *

Bailey said that WUNC's problems in starting its new FM broadcasting system were consuming too much of the station's time to allow its staff to prepare programs specifically for UNC audiences. Since December, carrier current programs have been the same as those carried over the regular WUNC-FM station.

Dwight Wheless, assistant to student government officials and the radio station have now agreed to consolidate the more numerous small transmitters of the original program into larger, 20-watt transmitters which they believe would be more effective in covering the campus. They are as yet unsure how many of the larger transmitters would be needed.

The programing also will change next month. With the completion of WUNC's installation of a new FM tower with increased wattage and a wider range, the station's staff will be able to devote itself to preparing a completely campus interest program for carrier current.



CARRIER CURRENT — The seat is empty now but beginning spring semester carrier current radio will begin operating from this studio with equipment such as the above. The carrier current program is presently being overhauled to effect greater efficiency.
—Photo by Jim Wallace

CREW RESCUED

BORDEAUX, France (UPI) — Two French helicopters Wednesday lifted to safety most of the crew of the 4,000-ton Russian tanker Neftegorsk after it ran aground in heavy seas at the mouth of the Gironde River. Twelve men, including the captain, remained aboard to aid tugs in an attempt to refloat the tanker.

FLIES TO ESTATE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy flew to the family's country estate at Middleburg, Va., Wednesday for the second time in two days. The first lady and her four-year old daughter Caroline boarded a helicopter on the south lawn of the White House shortly before 10 a.m. EST.

Reds Denounce Deposed Molotov

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda Wednesday denounced Vyacheslav M. Molotov as a die-hard dogmatist for opposing premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's policy of peaceful coexistence between the Communist and Western worlds.

The renewed attack on Molotov raised doubts whether the ex-premier and foreign minister would return to his minor diplomatic post in Vienna.

Molotov returned to Moscow last November after he and other members of the "anti-party" group who tried to overthrow Khrushchev in 1957 came under heavy criticisms at the 22nd Soviet Communist party congress.

Scheduled To Return

It was announced earlier this month that the "old Bolshevik" would return to his post with the Soviet delegation to the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna. The announcement gave the impression that Molotov was on his way but he did not arrive.

Some officials said that although Khrushchev appears to have won his battle to have Molotov officially branded a party renegade, it would not be surprising if the former foreign minister still were permitted to return to his second-rate diplomatic post on the International Atomic Agency in Vienna.

They noted that Molotov in 1955 was permitted to attend the foreign ministers meeting in Geneva even though he had just been officially upbraided for having said the Soviet Union had not yet achieved complete socialism.

Diplomatic experts here said Khrushchev apparently is in trouble and this undoubtedly has had some effect on the current Soviet handling of the Berlin problem. The outcome of the Kremlin power struggle may help to determine whether Russia eventually adopts a tougher attitude on Berlin or permits the issue to die down for the time being.

Authorities here said Khrushchev undoubtedly is under strong pressure to solve the Albanian situation. The defection of Albania from the Soviet bloc and its alignment with Red China in demanding a more military Communist attitude on all international fronts and issues obviously has put Khrushchev on the spot.

The situation is complicated by efforts of Yugoslavia to secure an Albanian regime oriented toward Marshall Tito and his policies, which also are distasteful to the Kremlin..

Open During Exams

The following rooms will be open during exams: Alumni Building—101; Caldwell—207B, 208; Hanes—105, 106; Peabody—105; Phillips—220, 232; Saunders—109, 216.

The study halls on the ground floor of Stacy and Graham dorms will also be open.

Nikita Triumphs In Inner Kremlin Power Struggle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev apparently has won a skirmish in the internal struggle in the Kremlin but he undoubtedly is still in trouble in a power fight now going on among top Communist party members.

This was the view expressed Wednesday by a number of U. S. government experts on Russian affairs after Pravda bitterly attacked former foreign minister V. M. Molotov. Khrushchev had branded Molotov a member of the "anti-party" group guilty of distorting Lenin's view on peaceful coexistence.

These experts said Khrushchev's apparent victory in the Molotov case could not be conclusive because it was only one element in the far broader disagreement over relations with Red China, the break with Albania and the domestic economic situation.

At this time government sources said, it was impossible to say who would win the Kremlin contest or who would succeed Khrushchev if his opponents should succeed in ousting him.

Entertainment Group Under SP Discussion

Student Party members discussed whether to continue the Campus Entertainment Committee at Tuesday night's meeting in Graham Memorial.

Party chairman Jimmy Weeks said he thought the Graham Memorial Activities Board could handle any weekend entertainment programs of the sort which the Committee had hoped to do.

Other members discussed the entertainment funds situation and the difficulties in finding adequate space and acoustic conditions to hold major programs.

Carrier Current

Dwight Wheless, student government presidential assistant, opened a short discussion on the new carrier current setup. Carrier current programs soon will be broadcast from a central transmitter in place of the individual dormitory transmitters. (See story, page 1.)

The regularly-scheduled program on the Honor Council was cancelled, to be held later.

The party announced SP openings for six legislators. The seats will be filled at the next meeting.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Antoine Gizenga

Congo Troops Kill 19 Missionaries

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — A Catholic news agency said Wednesday Central Congolese troops killed 19 white Roman Catholic missionaries and "many civilians" in a New Year's Day massacre at Kongolo in North Katanga.

The agency DIA African Documentation and Information said the missionaries — 18 priests and one lay brother — were whipped, then shot and their bodies horribly mutilated before being tossed into a river.

★ ★ ★

Indonesia Likely Tried 'Flag-Planting'

HOLLANDIA, Dutch New Guinea — Dutch commander-in-chief Rear Adm. L. C. Reeser said Wednesday that Indonesia's attempted landing on New Guinea Monday probably was a flag-planting raid rather than a full-scale invasion.

About 50 Indonesian prisoners were taken when the Dutch navy attacked three Indonesian motor torpedo boats, sinking one and possibly two.

★ ★ ★

Finnish President Wins Reelection

HELSINKI, Finland — President Urho Kekkonen scored a solid victory in his bid for a second six-year term but the Communists registered vote gains that politicians Wednesday termed "disquieting."

Kekkonen, who has steered his neutral nation toward increased unity with Europe since 1956 despite Soviet threats, won nearly 200 out of a possible 300 electoral votes in Tuesday's presidential balloting.

In Moscow, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Izvestia said Kekkonen's victory was "unquestionably a considerable success for his "policy of friendship with the Soviet Union."

★ ★ ★

New 'Education Bond' Being Considered

WASHINGTON — The Treasury is considering offering the public a new "education savings bond" that would give parents and youngsters a special way to save for the rapidly mounting cost of going to college.

If issued, the new bond would yield somewhat more than the 3¾ per cent now returned by Series E and H bonds held to maturity. The bonds, which could be offered through the payroll savings plan, might be designated Series "EE."

★ ★ ★

Moslem, European Mobs Clash

ALGIERS — Moslem and European mobs clashed Wednesday in bitter street fighting in the port city of Bone that pushed the Algerian death toll since New Year's Day past the 300-mark.

Police said 14 persons were killed throughout Algeria, six of them in the Bone rioting. The new deaths raised the month's total to 301—almost 18 a day — and 585 wounded.

No Rise In Colds, Coughs

Coughs and colds among students showed no considerable increase during the past week despite the abnormally cold weather, infirmary officials said yesterday.

Infirmary rolls carry an average of 190 students daily, in bed and in the clinic, said infirmary receptionist Mrs. Mary Elam. From Monday through Friday, the infirmary carried a daily average of 174 students, 35 of whom were bed patients.

The total, however, includes students treated for bruises and minor ailments resulting from falls on the slippery pavement. The usual student complaints include coughs, sore throats, and minor infectious diseases.

Chapel Hill drugstores reported no rush for cold "remedies" so far. One druggist said that not enough time had lapsed since last week's snow for the real effects of the cold to be felt. He added that coughs and colds will probably increase during the week.

Infirmary

Those in the infirmary yesterday were Lillian Ennis, Ann McGaliard, Jan Bryant, James Meredith, Johnathan Fraley, Charles Garrison, Lawrence Buie, Richard Fuller, Robert Bolan, Athos Rostan, Hubert Hawkins, Don Whisonant, Frank Tew, Thomas Loflin, Neal Jackson, Edwin Aycock, Carroll Laxton, Richard Fleming, William Vaughan, Robert Deal, Larry Edwards, Lawrence Sizemore, Winston Sanford, Lavon Page, Sam Blumberg, William Hicks, Micnal Doctor, Thomas Henley, Robert Skees.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 18, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 81

U. S. Alone

The success of India's Prime Minister Nehru in squelching UN action against his forceful seizure of the Portuguese outpost of Goa in mid-December has virtually kicked the underpinnings from under the International Court of Justice and visibly weakened the UN.

The World Court in April of 1960 ruled against India on the issue of Goa. In defiance of that ruling India seized the tiny territory, defending the action by mouthing pious platitudes concerning the right of a nation to "liberate" a "colonial area."

Needless to say, Nehru's dedication to liberation does not include a similar dedication to a belief that the liberated should have any say-so about who will be the new master. Self-determination is a concept that was extremely useful to India in gaining its freedom from Britain. Apparently the concept has outlived its usefulness to India.

This obvious refutation of India's oft-reiterated stand as a peaceful neutral has had the effect of opening the way for other "liberations" by other powers around the world.

Indonesia's Sukarno has already made clear his intention to effect a change of control in Dutch New Guinea. The Congolese would like to seize Angola from the Portuguese, while other African nations look with similar design upon other areas.

India itself is apt to lose territory to Red China if that nation chooses to apply Nehru's logic.

While all this goes on, the UN stands by powerless to act. India, with Russian help, was able to stave off any action on the forceful take-over in Goa. And while a UN army opposes the Katanganese in an effort to get them to line up with the Congo government in Leopoldville, the UN, because of African, Asian and Russian opposition has been unable to intervene against Communist-supported forces. Already of little help to the U.S. in the Southeast Asia, the UN now seems even more powerless to act.

Most of the opposition to any sort of UN intervention anywhere except in those areas where it benefits a "neutral" or Communist nation stems from the fact that Asian and African neutral nations are lined up against the old colonials and the West in general.

The neutral and Communist nations consistently vote in accord with their own territorial ambitions; by the same token, they usually support other neutrals in their efforts along these lines.

This has led to a denial of the UN aims as set forth in its charter and a preoccupation with the problems of colonialism—meaning, of course, Western control or affiliation. This leaves the U. S., for all practical purposes, unable to act through the UN to stop forceful seizure. It was for this reason that Chester Bowles declared late last year that the U. S. would act alone in the Congo if such action became necessary to fend off the rise of Communist control.

As weeks and months go by, it becomes more and more obvious that the U. S. will be forced to follow such a course of action in other areas.

Algerian Crisis

The Algerian conflict is approaching one of those climactic points where the deciding force or forces, must say: "This cannot continue!" At least 150 Moslems and Europeans have been killed in Algeria since Jan. 1 and there have been violence and death in metropolitan France. The human cost mounts, and so do the tensions, the fears, the hatreds.

The optimism that was so prevalent even ten days ago has diminished. It seemed then that the Algerian rebel National Liberation Front (F. L. N.) was ready to accept the generous terms offered by President de Gaulle. Independence is theirs for the asking. General de Gaulle, on his part, wants guarantees of protection for the 1,200,000 Europeans in Algeria and a fair arrangement for the Sahara with its oil industry. For reasons that are not clear, the F. L. N. leaders (who perhaps are divided) have been talking interminably, first in Tunis, then in Cairo and now in Rabat, without accepting the French terms or offering their own.

Meanwhile the Europeans, with the military extremists of the French Secret Army Organization (O. A. S.) in the active role, are resorting more and more to terrorism. Moslem extremists reply with counter-terrorism. Clearly, one of two things must happen soon. Either the F. L. N. will come to terms with President de Gaulle, or General de Gaulle will, himself, have to make a daring and dramatic move to break the deadlock. He has the temperament and courage to do so.

A tragic feature of the Algerian struggle at this stage is that whether there is an agreed or an imposed settlement, certain elements are going to make serious trouble. President de Gaulle is banking on what he calls "the dynamic of peace," by which he means that with a cease fire and with terms both sides will recognize as fair, a great majority of Europeans and Moslems will accept the settlement. This, indeed, is the hope for the future.

—New York Times

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIAL STAFF

WAYNE KING.....Editor
MARGARET ANN RHYMES—Associate Editor
LLOYD LITTLE—Executive News Editor
BILL HOBBS.....Managing Editor
JIM CLOTFELTER, BILL WUAMETT—News Editors
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor
CHUCK MOONEY.....Feature Editor
HARRY LLOYD.....Sports Editor
ED DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
GARRY BLANCHARD—Contributing Editor

BUSINESS STAFF

TIM BURNETT....Business Manager
MIKE MATHERS—Advertising Manager
JIM EVANS..Subscription Manager
JIM ESKRIDGE—Circulation Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Jim Reston Views Oxford Educational System

Jan. 7—The initial taste of Oxford by the green and groping American student is savoured with disillusionment, and surprise. He finds completely shattered his preconceived notion of bespectacled students, wondering aimlessly with their gowns flowing through the gardens of Keats and Shelley, while contemplating the values of "sense data" in the philosophical question of perception.

This is not to say that medievalism or this kind of scholasticism has disappeared from Oxford. Far from it. The characteristic towers and spires, many dating back to the 1300's, the 31 castlelike colleges, which compose Oxford University, and the dimly-lite, wood-carved rooms, in which one is liable to have his weekly meeting with his private tutor, all lend a great dignity and sedateness to this great university.

* * *

BUT DESPITE the forboding seriousness of Oxford's physical appearance, the academic demands here seem at first to be far from taxing. The student will stay only three years, compared to the usual four in America, and in this time he will have only one examination of great importance and that when he has completed his curriculum. However, everything depends on how well he does in this final test, including the type of job that he will get when he "goes down" (leaves Oxford). Consequently, since the Oxfordian is not bothered by frequent examinations, it often happens that he will postpone his all-out effort until the final year.

No Free Reign

However, the student does not have a free reign to do what he pleases for three years. He has two main academic requirements: to appear twice a week for a private tutorial with his "don" (tutor), and to read a ten minute or approximately 1500 word essay prepared specifically for the session. (This is not to mention a third restriction, and widely felt to be a far more severe one: that every student must be back in his college by midnight every night or face the prospect of scaling one of the medieval walls which surround it.

After the student has read his essay, the don will then start a discussion, sometimes taking the essay point for point or if the student has missed the point of the subject matter (which is not an infrequent occurrence especially in philosophy), the don may prefer to disregard the essay entirely, in order to make clear to the student in the limited amount of time what the essence of the matter in question really is.

* * *

ABOVE ALL, originality is demanded in the essay. A thorough and ready knowledge of the subject matter is the starting point rather than the ending point for the Oxford student. A mere reiteration of the ideas of an author is not only tedious but at times even embarassing for the don, who probably knows the material forwards and backwards, and who is also desirous of reaping, if not satisfaction, at least pleasure from the hour.

At Oxford the don attempts to guide and stimulate the analytical and logical powers of the student. He does this by urging the student to create theories of his own which may involve a careful selectivity. In philosophy, for example, teaching is done by the topic approach, in which one might read three or four philosophers, all presenting different views on the same subject, and then be expected to write what he believes to be the truth of the matter.

In short, the emphasis here is on the development of an analytical and logical mind through the constant employment of originality and logical analysis, as opposed to the American system which stresses to a greater degree the accumulation of a mass of material, and hopes that a good mind will develop in the process.

Concise Expression

A natural outgrowth of the Oxford system is the necessity for a clear and concise expression of one's ideas, both in writing and in speech. When the student is forced to write long essays once or twice a week, he soon finds that writing is not such a great mental struggle.

His words begin to flow more easily and take on a more precise meaning. In speech too, the atmosphere encourages one to speak more exactly and more vividly. There are no set modes of speech, nor are there fashionable societies which encourage any characteristic elocution. I would say that this precision of articulation, inculcated in the higher-class Englishman since his earliest years, is the most outstanding characteristic of the Oxford student.

Although the idea of writing 1 or 2 essays a week seems pretty overpowering at first, one soon gets accustomed to it. The system does not force the student to grind away every day for 8 or 10 hours, but on the other hand, it does not permit him to let his work slide. he Oxford Englishman usually works on an average of 3-6 hours a day, and almost never in the evening. Anyone who buries himself in the library from opening till closing time is looked upon with disdain and even ridicule.

* * *

THERE ARE TWO reasons for this deprecating attitude towards the bookworm. The first and most important is simply that it is un-English to spend all of one's time studying. The image of a respectable English student is the man who puts his school work in its proper place (although there is some disagreement as to what the proper place of work actually is), and who is enthusiastically engaged in several of the myriad activities, with which Oxford abounds. Every student is expected to play some form of sports, regardless of his athletic ability. The awkward oaf, who makes his supreme effort, is far more respected than the talented athlete who exhibits only a second-best performance.

This fits in with the overall English attitude toward athletics which is that they exist solely for enjoyment and exercise. They are not to be taken too seriously, but at the same time, there is no point in appearing on the playing field at all unless one plans to "make a good go of it".

The second reason for the disdain towards the over-diligent student is that there is just too much going on at Oxford and not to take advantage of the opportunities is almost criminal. The evening is the most active time when the hundreds of societies hold their meetings. These societies cover practically every field of student interest possible.

There are clubs for apostles of Aristotle, for pacifists, communists, agnostics, humanists, for jazz lovers, and poetry enthusiasts, and so forth. Each club brings speakers to the university and many times quite prominent ones, especially in the case of the larger political clubs.

* * *

ASIDE FROM MEETINGS of the many societies, there is also an abundance of drama, both on the amateur collegiate level, which is both excellent and quite adventurous, and on the professional level. (There are two professional theaters in Oxford, which manage to get some of the better plays from London.)

Moreover, there is the Oxford Union, unquestionably the most famous debating society in the world, whose topics of debate range from the pros and cons of Britain's entry into the Common Market to the relative value of Saturday night vis-a-vis Sunday morning.

So, the opportunity to enjoy the benefits of a completely different educational system, to confront the sometimes exasperating English mentality, and generally to be caught up in the terrific pace of life here makes a year at Oxford a fascinating and exciting experience.

'Scrooge Alan,' Are You Maybe A Fraud?

Dear Editor,

In reference to the article of January 14 entitled "Fraud or Fraudulent? Is Mental Illness," we sincerely hope that this is an editorial "fraud" whereby the DTH is trying to arouse public attention. Surely Charles B. Alan is the figment of some staff writers' sadistic imagination for such a narrow-minded, misinformed individual could not exist, certainly not at UNC—an institute of higher learning.

Mr. Alan suggests that perhaps we should close our eyes to the leading health problem of our nation. Has Mr. Alan ever visited our state mental institutions? True, N. C. has a mental health program of which it can be proud but these institutions are by no means the luxurious "havens" which Mr. Alan so indicates. Has he also seen the farms and dairies run by these patients? Does he know that the families of these patients do help pay for their hospitalization? Is he aware of the laws concerning mental illness which prevent it from being "a perfect excuse for a family to get rid of an undesirable member?" Obviously his ignorance is boundless.

I believe that Mr. Alan would have an entirely different outlook if mental illness were ever to strike his family, for the realities of mental illness are far from "fraudulent". I hope that "Scrooge Alan" will review the current statistics on mental illness and may reevaluate his state and its activities with a moral, rather than a monetary outlook!

Written by Jane Huber (s)
Co-Signed by the class of Psychiatry 70(s).
Pat Crawford
Sistie Boatwright
Eugenia Allen
April Longanecker
Esther Teah
Bev Desmond
Undine Caudle
Judy Buxton
Sabra Brew
Frances Coleman
Ann Davisson
Bonnie Sikes
Pat Hunter
Virginia Hargett
Jain Bass

* * *

Eitor's Note: Staff members do NOT write anonymous letters to arouse public attention. The letter, we assume, was satirical.

Valid Proof

Charles Alan's recent letter in the DTH, attacking the state mental health program, displays the type of mental astigmatism that proves that our mental health program should be expanded.—Mike Robinson.

Negro News Value

Dear Mr. King:

Were you unable to obtain a picture of Mr. Kilpatrick to use with that of Mr. McKissick in your January 14 issue? The photo credit was given to Mr. McKissick; I suspect Mr. Kilpatrick would have been glad to have given The Daily Tar Heel a picture of himself.

Subtle front-page editorializing is certainly nothing new; the only thing the format of this article lacked was subtlety. Mr. King, if we know all the answers, do you see any purpose at all in having the Symposium? Surely there can be no point in inviting someone with the views of Mr. Kilpatrick.

I'm not writing this in defense of any segregationist view, for I'm fairly confident that the Richmond News Leader does not have all the answers; I'm also pretty sure that neither does the NAACP.

If, in discussing any problem that will be dealt with in the Symposium this year, a clearer statement of the problem can be made by presenting two widely opposite views within a given subject area, then each of the opposing views will have some merit.

I should hope that those of us who have anything remotely to do with the Symposium, as well as the entire university community, do not see the Symposium as something to liberalize the Carolina campus—unless we understand "liberalize" as having something to do with a truly liberal education.

BENNETT PARKS

Editor's Note: The picture of NAACP lawyer McKissick was selected over that of Kilpatrick of the Richmond newspaper on strictly a news value basis. McKissick was the lawyer in the case McKissick vs. State of North Carolina who opened this university to the first Negro students. In journalism, this seems of more current significance than Kilpatrick's position.

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material. Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

"You Jane, Me Neanderthal"

Ramblings By Robinson

The recent heavy rainstorm drenched Wilmington and the surrounding countryside with several inches of water. A pretty young girl walking along the waterfront, found herself trapped from getting across the street to shelter by a foot of water running down the gutter of the street. Suddenly a tall longshoreman saw her predicament, hurried out from one of the warehouses, swept her up in his arms and carried her across the street to the shelter of a building enrtance.

"Thank you very much," murmured the girl, blushing, "but don't you think I was too heavy?"

"Of course not, Miss," replied the dock worker. "I'm used to lifting barrels of sugar."

* * *

Fred Higgins of Raleigh, swears this one is true and attributes it to his grandson, Stevey Higgins, aged six:

"Daddy, did you go to Sunday school when you were little," Stevey asked innocently.

"I never missed a Sunday," his father replied.

"See, Mommy, it won't do me any good either."

* * *

Our British cousins, the newspaper says, have received powerful reinforcements in their battle against American-style English. One Lord Coneford, a former Tory M.P., has just issued a learned blast against "American pretentious literacy," and "the corruption, decay and dissolution" it brings to the English language.

Among these Yankee "atrocities" rampant in Britain, Lord Conesford says, is the use of "underpriviledged" for "poor" and visit with" for "visit."

What he asks would have been the result if Sir Winston Churchill, instead of saying "Give us the tools and we will finish the job" had said, "Give us the implements and we shall finalize the solution of the matter?"

Well, the result would have been the same. The U. S. would have given the British the weapons, the ships and the money. And in the end it would have provided, for the European invasion, the bulk of the necessary manpower. Manpower which during the pre-invasion wait finalized the Queen's English, and preserved her throne.

—MIKE ROBINSON

P O G O — P E A N U T S

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

A Musical Holiday of Fun for Everyone!

TV Schedule

WTVD Channel 11 Durham

6:00—Leave It To Beaver
6:30—Your Esso Reporter
6:40—Weather
6:45—Douglas Edwards & the News
7:00—Ozzie and Harriet
7:30—Young People's Concert
8:30—The American Civil War "Gettysburg"
9:00—Tell It To Groucho
9:30—Twilight Zone
10:00—Dick Van Dyke
10:30—Window on Main St.
11:00—Phillips 66 News
11:15—Star Theater "You Gotta Stay Happy"

WRAL-TV, Channel 5 Raleigh

6:00—Cap'n 5
6:05—Stateline News
6:20—Viewpoint
6:25—Weather
6:30—Reeve With Sports
6:45—Huntley-Brinkley Report
7:00—Shannon
7:30—Bachelor Father
8:00—Donna Reed
8:30—Jimmy Doolittle
9:30—Hazel
10:00—Sing Along With Mitch
11:00—Dateline News
11:10—Sportsline
11:15—Jack Paar

WUNC Channel 4

6:45—What's New
7:15—Calendar
7:30—Project Hope
8:00—Stones' Story
8:15—Darkroom
8:30—N. C. Press
9:30—Overkill
10:00—Sign Off

Special Rates For British Film Magazine

Special yearly rates to the British film magazine Sight & Sound, are being made available to members of the UNC-Chapel Hill Film Society and those interested in the motion picture field.

The magazine is offering subscriptions at $2.50 each if all orderer are sent in together.

Anyone wishing to subscribe to Sight & Sound should send their checks for $2.50, name and address to the Film Society, 401 North Street, Chapel Hill, before February 1.

G. M. SCHEDULE

3:00-4:00 Resident Advisors TV Room.
4:00-6:00 Symposium, Grail.
6:45-7:30 S. P., Grail.
7:00-10:00 Women's Honor Council WDHSE.

CLASSIFIED ADS

MALE HELP WANTED: NEAT appearing intelligent man with good personality for saleswork. Can supervise himself and work on his own time. For appointment, call 942-5148, Mr. Herring.

THE ONLY DIFFERENCE BEtween an old man and an elderly gentleman is income. Your Northwestern Mutual agent can show you an excellent retirement income plan costing only a few cents a day. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. Telephone 942-6966.

...ology, School of Medicine, has been appointed to the editorial board of the American Medical Association's "Archives of Pathology."

The seething Arab world

The Arab nations are hotbeds of hatred. They hate Israel. The U. S. And even each other. In this week's Post, you'll read a frightening report on the Middle East. You'll learn why America has become the Arab's scapegoat. And what we can do to keep this poison from spreading.

The Saturday Evening POST
JANUARY 20 ISSUE NOW ON SALE

Library Schedule

Saturday, Jan. 20 7:45 a.m. to 10:45 p.m.
Sunday, Jan. 21 2 p.m. to 10 p.m.
Monday thru Friday, Jan. 22-26 7:45 a.m. to 10:45 p.m.
Saturday, Jan. 27 7:45 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Sunday, Jan. 28, 2 p.m. to 10 p.m.
Monday, Jan. 29 7:45 a.m. to 10:45 p.m.
Tuesday, Jan. 30 7:45 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Wednesday thru Friday, Jan 31-Feb 2 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Saturday, Feb. 3 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.
Sunday, Feb. 4 CLOSED
Monday, Feb. 5 Resume regular schedule.

Reds Enforce Wall

BERLIN (UPI) — The Communists reinforced their Berlin anti-refugee wall at a favorite escape spot Wednesday. U. S. officials announced, meanwhile, they would send a new troop convoy from Berlin to West Germany in a fresh demonstration of Allied rights.

The reinforcement of the wall by the Communists coincided with reports by diplomatic sources in London that Russia may have returned to the tough Berlin peace terms set out in Premier Nikita Khrushchev's memorandum to President Kennedy in Vienna last June.

At the same time, American troops poured into West Germany by airlift in a major test of the U. S. Army's transatlantic mobility in case of war. Some 5,400 soldiers are due in by the week end in the airlift across the North Pole from Fort Lewis, Wash. Following their arrival, the troops were to stage maneuvers in the Bavarian hills.

Spiders are near-sighted.

Why some college basketball players cheat!

Basketball fixes, says Kentucky's Coach Rupp, are the fault of a few bad eggs. But, according to a former NCAA president, athletes "have learned to be dishonest . . . from the very men who recruited them." In this week's Post, you'll read a hot debate between these two experts.

The Saturday Evening POST
JANUARY 20 ISSUE NOW ON SALE

GOLF CITY'S 19th HOLE
MUSIC • DANCING
SANDWICHES • B--R
Special Door Prize Nightly — 1 case B--R
ACROSS FROM HOWARD JOHNSONS OPEN 12-12

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Drosps
5. Fourth planet
9. Spoken
10. Syrian city
13. Relax
15. Win
16. A rosebush (poet.)
17. Tavern
18. Cogwheels
20. Toward
22. Alcott heroine
25. Perched
26. Article
27. Egresses
29. Weak
31. Near
32. Simpleton
34. Confederate
35. Biblical city
36. Swift
38. Anglo-Saxon letter
40. A riddle
44. Boa'in
45. Shooting star
46. Bandleader Ben ——
48. Appellation
49. Smell
50. To mix

DOWN
1. Rancid
2. Italian river
3. Talks (colloq.)
4. Leger-demain
5. Indian city
6. Man's nickname
7. College enrollments
8. Reach across
11. The ruddy duck
12. Ahead
14. Born
19. Royal Air Force (abbr.)
21. Sole
22. Suitor
23. Utmost
24. Palm lily
28. Woman's nickname
30. Indian mulberry
33. Insect antenna
37. Chemical suffix
39. Novice
41. Stinging insect
42. "La Boheme" heroine
43. Biblical name
44. Jewish month
47. American moth

CLASP CABAL
HUMOR DUNE
UNIT MIL
STE GAME
ICE CANTO
SPRAL ALAS
INTRE AT LONG AME
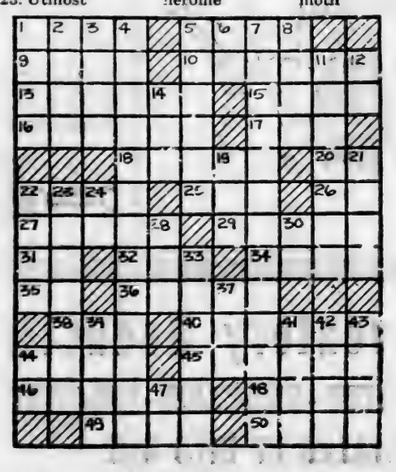
FIGURES
YEAR
TRIALS TRAP
ARMET CANG
BRASS AGENT

Yesterday's Answer



SALE

Entire stock of two piece corduroy and wool suits reduced from 19.95 to $14.95, $25.95 to $17.50, $29.95 to $19.95.

Town & Campus

WATCH
and
JEWELRY
REPAIR

We use the latest electronic and ultrasonic equipment
Years of experience back our guaranteed work.

T. L. KEMP
Jewelry
Phone 942-1331
135 E. Franklin St.

FREE AS A BREEZE...

That's how you'll feel when you've made a start on an adequate life insurance program. Many new plans, especially attractive to college students, merit your consideration now.

Life insurance is the only investment which gives you a combination of protection and savings—and it's excellent collateral for the future.

We'd welcome the opportunity to tell you more about some of the latest policies and innovations available to you. Just phone or stop by to see us.

RALPH S. BENDER
Campus Supervisor
157 E. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill
Phone 942-2860

PROVIDENT MUTUAL
Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia

From The RECORD BAR
Corner of Church & Parrish Sts. in Downtown Durham
LP ALBUMS 25% OFF
Latest Releases — Finest Variety — Complete Stocks
Complete Satisfaction Guaranteed

OUTSTANDING VALUE! ALLGOOD BRAND, SMOKED FLAVORED

BACON
SLICED
1-LB. PACKAGE
39c

A&P

"Super-Right" Smoked
PICNICS
4 to 6 Lb. Whole
LB. 33c

U. S. NO. 1—REGULAR WHITE
POTATOES
25 LB. BAG 59c

Jane Parker Large Ring
ANGEL FOOD CAKES . . . . each 39c

Lakeside Special Purchase Offer—White
SHOE PEG CORN . . . . 2 1-lb Cans 29c

"Super-Right" Brand Specially Priced
LUNCHEON MEAT 12-Oz. Can 35c

A&P Brand Concentrated, Frozen
ORANGE JUICE
2 6-Oz CANS 33c

LA PIZZA

During Exam Time, Don't Play Around—Get Down To Business And Study—Then Call LA PIZZA For Prompt Delivery!

Carry-Out 967-1451 Delivery

SPRING SEMESTER
Begins February 5, 1962
TOWN CLASSES
Secretarial College
Offers
Shorthand
Typing
Business Correspondence
Other Subjects
For full information — Come by or Call —
TOWN CLASSES
Secretarial College
159½ E. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Phone: 942-4797

JAMES (Jimmy) B. ADAMS '62
Provident Mutual
Campus Agent

We are glad to announce that James B. Adams is now associated with our Campus Unit at the University of North Carolina.

A member of Sigma Chi and the Golf team, Jimmy is an Industrial Relations major. He is presently serving as Secretary of the German Club.

Provident Mutual is pleased to have men like James Adams among its campus agents at more than 60 colleges and universities across the United States. For information on how you can get a headstart in a career offering both fine rewards and independence in your work, contact our local office now!

Ralph S. Bender
Campus Supervisor
157½ East Franklin Street
Ledbetter - Pickard Building
Chapel Hill 942-2860

PROVIDENT MUTUAL
Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia

POGO

PEANUTS

Tar Heels Repel State Rally For 66-56 Win

Brown Nets 21 Points In Victory

By HARRY LLOYD

North Carolina fought off a determined N .C. State comeback effort in the second half here last night to win a thriller from the invading Wolfpack, 66-56.

The Tar Heels, after leading through most of the first half and holding a 36-22 margin at the end of the period, saw their lead dwindle to a scant three points with only 4:40 left in the game. However, the Carolina men were able to solve the State press and win going away.

Larry Brown, who stole the ball from Jon Speaks and put it in for a layup with 4:03 left to break the back of the State rally, was the game's high scorer with 21 points. The 5-11 speedster hit on 7 of 13 field goals and seven of 10 free shots.

But there were more stars in the Carolina attack. Jim Donohue, who started at center, played his best game since rejoining the team earlier this month. Donohue pluncked in 6 of 8 tries and ended up with 14 points. Don Walsh continued his fabulous shooting streak with 6 of 7 and 12 points. Sophomore Bryan McSweeney made a big contribution with his work off the boards as he pulled down 14 rebounds.

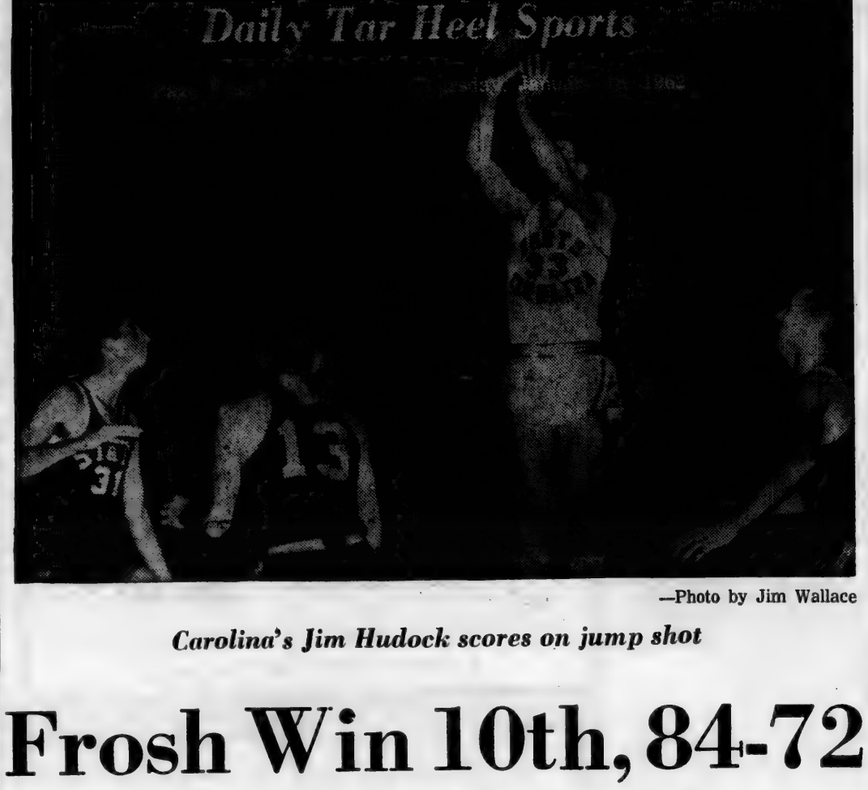
State's high man was Speaks with 20. John Punger added 14 and Russ Marvel scored 9.

Carolina was never behind by more than one point while chalking up their tenth win in the last 12 against the Pack.

With his team behind, Speaks made a three-pointer to put the Pack ahead by 9-8 with 14:32 left in the first half. But McSweeney then hit for Carolina, followed by Walsh, Donohue, McSweeney again, then Hudock, and Donohue on a foul shot—all in succession—to give the Blue and White a 19-9 lead that held up for the rest of the game.

Their biggest lead of the game was at the half, after Donohue, Hudock, and Brown hit in order to give them a 16-point margin.

In the second half, State gradually cut the lead, mainly due to the Work of Punger, Speaks, and Pete Auksel. Carolina went over six minutes at one stretch without a field goal, but Donohue broke the famine and the Tar Heels recovered in time to post their fifth



—Photo by Jim Wallace

Carolina's Jim Hudock scores on jump shot

Frosh Win 10th, 84-72

By ED DUPREE

UNC's "Ohio State," Kenny Rosemond's undefeated Tar Babies, polished off N. C. State, 84-72, Wednesday night, for their tenth win of the season and the second in a row over the Wolflets.

All five Carolina starters connected for double figures in the easy victory with Billy Cunningham and Jay Neary pitching in 20 markers each. Ray Respess connected for 19, Bill Brown for 13, all in the last half, and Pud Hassell scored 10.

But the high point man for the night was State's John Arganbright, a 6-2 forward who pumped in 21 points, 18 in the second half. It was Arganbright's shooting—he hit on 9 of 17 field goal attempts—that kept Lou Pucillo's red-clad basketballers within fighting distance in the last half.

The Tar Babies won the game on the foul line as the two teams had identical shooting averages from the floor—30 of 65 for 46.2 per cent. Rosemond's dandies ripped the net on 24 of 29 tries from the foul line for a dazzling 82.8 mark. The little Tar Heels were charged with only 12 fouls, compared to 17 against the visitors, who hit 12 of their 15 shots.

With Respess, Cunningham, and Brown each grabbing 9 rebounds, the Chapel Hillians outrebounded the Raleigh boys, 40-32.

Sparked by Cunningham's 16, the homestanders rolled up a 42-26 halftime lead. In the second stanza, State's frosh began hitting from the floor and were down only 10, 57-47, at the 10:50 mark. The Tar Babies picked up steam again and when Neary stole a State pass and hit a layup, they had a 72-54 lead, their biggest.

Arganbright's shooting narrowed it to 75-62, and by the 1:18 mark, the Wolflets were down only 78-70. In the final minute, Brown scored four and Respess added two, while Arganbright picked up his last field goal, making the final margin 12.

Cunningham, the frosh sparkler playing his last rookie game, drew a standing ovation from the Carolina fans when he left the ball game with 1:18 left. The Brooklyn sharp-shooter will be held out of varsity competition until next year by Coach Dean Smith.

ACC win of the year.

It was another hot shooting night for the Tar Heels, who finished by hitting on better than sixty per cent of their tries. In the first half, they connected on 16 of 23 for 69.6, and in the second on 10 of 20. Overall, they shot a blistering 60.5.

State, as might be expected, outhalf with 16 of 29 for a 55.2 mark. half with 16 of 29 fo ra 55.2 mark. But for the game, they were 24 of 48 for fifty per cent—which is enough to win most ball games.

Tankmen Meet ECC; Seek 5th Win

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

North Carolina's fine swimming team, undefeated in its first four meets, goes after win number five tonight when the tankmen of East Carolina College invade Bowman Gray Pool. The races will start at 8:00.

Coach Pat Earey's mermen, led by ace sophomore backstroker Thompson Mann and senior co-captains Bob Bilbro and Bob Briggs, have swept past VMI, Clemson, South Carolina, Duke, and this same East Carolina squad enroute to their unblemished mark.

The Tar Heels sunk East Carolina by a wide margin in a pre-Christmas encounter and Earey is expecting little trouble again this time.

The personable redhead, who serves as the public address announcer at all Carolina home basketball games, plans to start the same lineup that has met with so much success for him so far this season.

Mann, in addition to his specialty—the 200 yard backstroke, will race in the gruelling individual medley. Juniors Jim Huffman and Jim Bromwell will be the other Tar Heel starters in these events.

Briggs and sophomore Pete Swift will line up in the 200 yard breastroke while Bilbro and junior Billy Wells are set to go in the 100 freestyle sprint. Senior Bryan Williams and sophomore Don Murray will race in the 50 yard freestyle sprint.

The freestyle distances — 220 yard and 440 yards — are set with junior Frank Lea and Senior Art Merrill. Lea, a native of Norfolk, Va. has been a double winner in these events in the last two meets.

Juniors Barry King and Willie Bloom will start in the 200 yard butterfly event.

BUDDY NIGHT
AT THE ZOOM-ZOOM
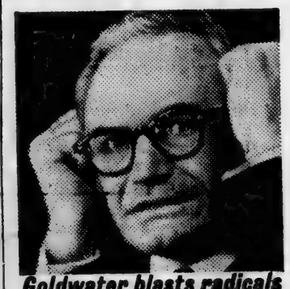
8-11

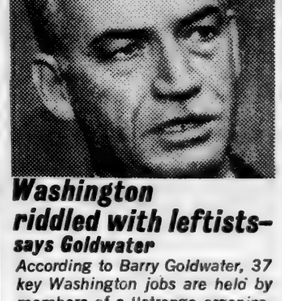
2 Large Plain Pizzas
Only $1.60
ZOOM-ZOOM 8-11

1 Large Plain Pizza
Only 10c With
Purchase of 1 large Pizza
ZOOM-ZOOM 8-11

CRAM TIME
Your best chance of finding the study aid you need
The Book Exchange
Five Points DURHAM
We Buy & Sell All Books



Goldwater blasts radicals in top U.S. jobs
"The real danger to our nation," says Barry Goldwater, "comes from the leftists in our midst." And he charges that radicals hold 37 key jobs in Washington. In this week's Saturday Evening Post, Sen. Goldwater rips into left-wing extremists. And tells why their ideas play "right into the hands of the Kremlin."
The Saturday Evening POST
JANUARY 20 ISSUE NOW ON SALE



Washington riddled with leftists—says Goldwater
According to Barry Goldwater, 37 key Washington jobs are held by members of a "strange organization"—a leftist group that wields great power. In this week's Post, Senator Goldwater lashes out at left-wing extremists. And tells how their ideas play "right into the hands of the Kremlin."
The Saturday Evening POST
JANUARY 20 ISSUE NOW ON SALE

BUDDY NIGHT
AT THE ZOOM-ZOOM
8-11

PATRONIZE YOUR
• ADVERTISERS •

SALE

Feature Player
Sport Shirts

Casually correct for campus or weekend wear. Fine quality, fashionable choice.

Fashionable choice. Now reduced from $5.95 to $3.95, $6.95 to $4.95, $8.95 to $6.50

Town & Campus

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST.

Have You Seen Our New Style Cordovan?

In New Cashmere Grain, Black and Antique Brown.
Tassels for Women.

Julian's College Shop

Kemp's Inventory Reduction—
END OF SEMESTER—PRE-EXAM—MID-WINTER
ALL ROLLED UP INTO ONE
A Giant 50% OFF LIST
CLASSICAL
OPERA
JAZZ
POPULAR
FOLK
All Mono and Stereo L.P.'s
THURS.-FRI.-SAT.
ONLY
Both Shops
Kemp just completed counting stock and has too many records—They have got to go.
Kemp's

Milton's
Last Call
To Winter

This is the Chez Milton Deal of Deals. With spring breathing down our threats, we've re-reduced over 210 Sport Coats and 315 suits. Grab them now at these prices, or forever hold your gold.

Large group sport coats formerly to $48.75 further cut to crazy $19.99 and $24.99.

Sizeable group suits formerly to $75.00 at low, low $39.99.

Many other cool deals—need we say more?

Milton's
Downtown Chapel Hill

Lady Milton
Last Call
To Winter

Final and further reductions on large group of shirtdresses including corduroy, heck-suede, cotton prints.
$14.95 shirtdresses further cut to $10.99.
$16.95 to $11.99
$18.95 to $12.99
$19.95 to $13.99
$22.95 to $16.99
$24.95 to $18.99
$26.95 to $19.99

LADY MILTON SHOP AT
Milton's
Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

When
Exams
Are Over Sell Your Texts
To The Intimate

Announcing . . .

For the first time—
LA PIZZA's Delivery
Wagon

Featuring . . .
1. Fast Delivery Service
2. Insulated food container
3. Pizza Delivered HOT

Allow 45 Min. for delivery

LA PIZZA
967-1451

Please have correct change

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

82

Humiliation

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather

Continued cold, posible rain

Offices in Graham Memorial | FRIDAY, JANUARY 19, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Short On Russians Ends Film Series

A two-reel short on the Russian people and a Danish feature film on seventeenth century witchcraft will end the fall-winter series of the UNC-Chapel Hill Film Society in Carroll Hall Monday night at 8.

The Society's spring series will open February 5.

"The Russian Nobody Knows" was filmed freely in Russia by director-camerman Peter Hopkinson of London and released in the U. S. in 1947 by the March of Time.

"Day of Wrath," directed by Carl Dreyer, is considered by some a screen masterpiece because of its fine direction, acting, its "Rembrandt-like lighting and photography," and its authenticity.

Witch Burning

"Man's inhumanity to man" is is the theme of this picture which recreates a Danish town of 1623 when priests, witches and townspeople were drawn into the tragedy which followed the denuciation and burning of an old woman.

As James Agee wrote in The Nation, "Dreyer's film is a study of the struggle between good and evil as waged among and within witches, those who burned them, and the members of an old man-young wife-stepson triangle.

"There is only one rule for movies that I finally care about: that the film interest the eyes."

"Never Failed"

Agee continued. "Few moviemakers do that, few even of those who are generally well esteemed. Dreyer has never failed to, and I cannot imagine that he ever will. For that reason alone, even if I did not also respect him as one of the few moralists, and classicists, and incorruptible artists, in movies, I would regard him as a master and this film as a quiet masterpiece."

The Society's Cine Club will meet at The Rathskeller following the showing of "Day of Wrath" to discuss Dreyer and the film.

Tickets for the Society's spring series, which includes new experimental films made in several countries as well as such films as Einstein's sound epic, "Alexander Nevsky," are now on sale in the Y lobby and from committee members.

Student Exchange With Poitiers Set For Applications

An exchange program for students has been established between UNC and the nUiversity of Poitiers Tours, France. The International Student's Board of student government said scholarships will be available for one Carolina student and one student from Poitiers.

The scholarship being offered for the UNC student by the College American at Poitiers will cover all tuition expenses, pay for room and board in a French family, and provide for several long trips to Paris, Flanders, and Monaco.

Transportation costs to and from France is also paid by the scholarship, leaving only personal spending money for the student to supply.

Full Credit

Full credit may be obtained for studies in France in the academic fields of International Affairs, the French language, literature, culture and fine arts.

Any Carolina undergraduate with sufficient training in French, minimum preparation in one of the study areas listed above, and who is planning to return to UNC for one year is eligible for the scholarship.

The student from Tours will be selected by a committee in France, and, after arriving at UNC, will participate fully in the social, cultural and academic life of the college.

Supplying Funds

Student government, Campus Chest and the Faculty Scholarship Committee are supplying the necessary funds for the French student.

The UNC exchange student will be selected in early March by a committee chosen from student government, the French department faculty and the administration. Competition will be through a written application and an interview.

Application notices will be published later. Until their publication, any inquiries about the program may be directed to Fred Anderson, chairman, International Student's Board, YMCA.

HARVARD FILM

There will be a special 15-minute film on the J. Spencer Love Fellowship on WFMY-TV, Greensboro at 1:30 p.m. Saturday. The fellowship is available to male students from the southeastern U.S. who wish to attend the Harvard University graduate schools of business administration. The film will also show scenes of Harvard life and describe the program of the graduate business school.

2 Groups Move For WC Dances

The Communications Committee and the Inter-Dormitory Council are currently negotiating with the student government at Woman's College concerning the possibility of dormitory parties between the two schools.

Communications Chairman Robin Britt presented the plan to the IDC in December and the committee went ahead with plans on the basis of interest shown at the meeting. The IDC will co-sponsor the program with the Communications Committee.

Tentative arrangements have been made for the first exchange party to be held on Friday, Feb-

(Continued on Page 3)

POLE-PAINTING—Harold Smith, 21 of Salisbury, paints the flag-pole in front of the post office. Students and townspeople gathered around to cheer on Smith and his employer J. D. Porter Construction Co. in their patriotic effort to beautify the town's flag-pole.
—Photo by Jolly Wallace

Campus Briefs

Free Flick — CALAMITY JANE with Doris Day and Howard Keel. Won Academy Award for best song, "Secret Love." Showings in Carroll Hall at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. I. D. cards required for admission.

Students will be able to pick up their spring semester class tickets on Sunday, Feb- 4, 1962 at the Naval Armory between the hours of 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. This is being done for the benefit of those preregistered students who will not have the opportunity to pick up tickets on Friday, Feb. 2, or Saturday, Feb. 3. Any student accounts not cleared with the Cashier for previous terms will not be able to pick up their class tickets and registration on Sunday evening.

Application blanks for the Feb. 8 to Feb. 11 Washington Seminar, "The New Frontier and the Challenge of Africa," may be picked up at the YMCA. They must be returned by Jan. 30. The charge of $17 for the Seminar covers registration fee, transportation, and room.

Gizenga Believed Fled To Kindu After Loss Of Contact

Racial Agitation Forces Close Of Louisiana School

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Southern University here was ordered closed at 5 p.m. CST on Thursday until further notice because of continuing racial agitation.

Dr. Felton G. Clark, president of Southern, announced the closing at a special convocation.

"There can be no communication in any kind of mob situations," Dr. Clark said. He was referring to continued disturbances by segments of the student body, "which seriously hampered activities and classes of the university."

Students threatened a new demonstration Thursday because seven students—ringleaders of a racial demonstration in downtown Baton Rouge last month—were ordered off the campus.

Dr. Clark said students and members of the faculty "were subjected to constant harrassment and intimidation which was seriously disrupting normal routine.

"This included, in some instances, vandalism and property distruction, the extent of which has yet to be determined.

Registrar A. J. Hedgemen said students would be informed when the university would re-open. But he emphasized that the students must reapply for admission, and none would be allowed to enroll until the university accepts them.

ANTOINE GIZENGA

Archbishop Wants Leaders To Punish

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — Imprisoned leftiest strongman Antoine Gizenga was feared Thursday to have eluded his guards at Stanleyville and escaped to the eastern Congo town of Kindu.

Speculation that Gizenga had escaped grew here as Elisabethville reports said central Congolese troops had mutinied in the Katanga town of Albertville.

It followed the disclosure that the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Elisabethville had sent cables to broke out Wednesday in that President Kennedy and other world leaders demanding immediate punishment for those responsible for massacring 19 Catholic missionaries at Kongola, in North Katanga.

United Nations officials in Leopoldville said that since Wednesday they have had no contact with Gizenga, the recently-ousted Congolese vice premier who had been under house arrest at Stanleyville.

His guard was reported to have disappeared with no explanation. A U. N. air reconnaissance of Kindu airport showed a mysterious twin-engine Beechcraft plane on the runway. There was speculation the plane might have flown Gizenga to Kindu from Stanleyville.

Reported At Kindu

Reported to be at Kindu was Gizenga's cousin and ally, Col. Pakassa, the man whose forces were alleged to be responsible for the slaughter last year of 13 Italian U. N. airmen as well as the New Year's Day massacre of the missionaries at Kongolo.

U. N. officials in Leopoldville said it also was possible that Gizenga might have been moved by his Congolese captors to some Congolese army camp near Stanleyville.

Gizenga was imprisoned after a those loyal to central Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula. He was charged with treason and relieved of his vice premiership.

Until his arrest Gizenga ha been considered by some to be the political heir of Patrice Lumumba, the former premier who was slain last year after "escaping" imprisonment.

In Elisabethville, a Swedish interpreter arriving from Albertville with Red Cross officials reported that an Army mutiny

(Continued on Page 3)

Graham Speaker For U.N. Meeting

Former UNC President Frank P. Graham and a Carolina student from Southwest Africa will figure prominently in the fifth Middle South United Nations Model General Assembly at State College in Raleigh, Thursday — Saturday, Feb. 15-17.

Dieter Mahncke, a senior from Southwest Africa, is this year's President of the Model General Assembly. He was elected to head the Model Assembly during last year's session at Duke.

Graham, present U. N. mediator on Kashmir, will deliver the Model Assembly's keynote address at the annual banquet to be held Feb. 15.

Miss Dora Ann Clark of State College is this year's Secretary-General.

Fifty Schools

Approximately fifty colleges and universities, including such girls' schools as Hollins and Sullins, in the mid-South region will send representatives to the Model Assembly. Also participating will be delegations from the Naval, Air Force, and West Point Military Academies.

The Carolina delegation will represent three U. N. member countries, The Netherlands, Mexico, and the U.S.S.R. It was Carolina's Russian delegation which was cited as the "Best Delegation" at Duke last year.

The opening session of the Model Assembly wil begin Feb. 15. Issues and procedures will be patterned closely on those of the United Nations. Plenary sessions and committee meetings will take up the issues of Control of Outer Space, Berlin, the Algerian Crisis, World Refugees, Carter Revisions, Development of the Congo, Race Relations in the Union of South Africa, World Court Jurisdiction, and other current problems before the U. N.

Katanga Lobby

The delegation hopes to set up lobbies at the Mock Assembly, possibly representing Katanganese independence, U. N. admission for Red China, and international women's organizations.

A concluding business session at 2 p.m. Saturday will include the election of next year's officers and presentation of awards for Best Page, Most Outstanding Speaker, and Best Delegation.

Applications for the fifteen delegate and six alternate posts on the UNC delegation are now available at the YWCA and should be turned in by those applying before leaving the campus during the interval break between winter and spring semesters. All students are eligible to apply.

$5.50 Cost

The cost to each representative selected by the YM-YWCA's Collegiate Council on the United Nations (CCUN) committee will be $5.50 which includes registration, room, and meals except breakfast. The CCUN committee absorbs half the total cost for each delegate and alternate.

Mrs. Violet Wurfel of the UNC political science department, and a member of the YM-YWCA's advisory board, will act as faculty adviser to the Carolina delegation. Dr. K. Frazer will be committee adviser.

During the Model General Assembly the regional CCUN will hold its annual meeting with regional director Eddie Elkins of State College presiding. Kellis Parker of UNC is state chairman and active in forming new CCUN chapters on North Carolina campuses.

FACULTY NEWS

Harper Wins Award For Work On NeoPlatonism Of Poet Blake

George Mills Harper, professor of English and chairman of the faculty, was awarded the Emily S. Hamblen Memorial Award for the best book of the year written on English poet William Blake at the Poetry Society of America's 52nd annual dinner held in New York last night.

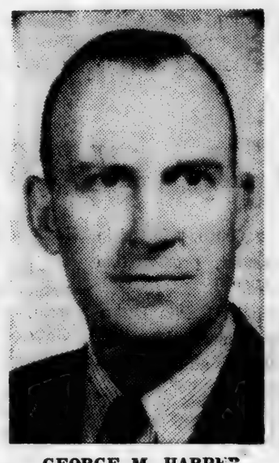
Professor Harper is the author of the book "The Neoplatonism of William Blake which was published in May, 1961, by The UNC Press.

The Poetry Society of America annually awards the Hamblen Memorial Award for an outstanding typographical, biographical, or critical work on William Blake. The award was established in 1953.

A member of the UNC staff since 1950, Professor Harper attended Culver-Stockton College where he received a B.A. degree in 1940. He received a M.A. degree in 1947 from the University of Florida and a Ph.D. degree in 1951 from UNC.

Dr. Robert Hilliard, assistant professor of radio, television and motion pictures, has been named to his third consecutive term as national chairman of the American Educational Theatre Association's Television Project.

Among Dr. Hilliard's duties are the development and supervision of research investigations conducted by individuals and educational groups throughout the country.



GEORGE M. HARPER

The Television Project also provides services relating to television consultants, teaching materials, and techniques for the presentation of plays on television. The American Educational Theatre Association is the nation's largest organization of people and institutions in theatre and the communication arts.

Dr. Jerrold Orne, head librarian, is one of a new team of six editorial consultants appointed to advise and assist the editor of the "Library Journal," a magazine distributed to libraries across the nation.

The new consultants, appointed to a two year period, are representatives of state, university, public and special libraries, library education and Canadian libraries.

Dr. Orne started his library career as a library page and assistant in the St. Paul (Minnesota) Public Library. He became University Librarian in 1957. Before that he was Director of Libraries at the Air University, Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery; Director of Libraries at Washington University, St. Louis; and Director of the Office Division, in Washington, D.C.

He has also worked at the Library of Congress and was Librarian and Professor of French at Knox College from 1941 to 1943.

Dr. Orne is active in the American Library Association, the Association of Research Libraries, the Association of Southeastern Research Libraries, Special Libraries Association, the Council of National Library Associations, the Southeastern Library Association and the American Association of University Professors.

Voice Of America To Beam In N.C.

Voice of America broadcasts will be beamed from North Carolina during fiscal 1963, President Kennedy said this week.

In his budget message to Congress, the President asked for funds to complete a giant transmitter at Greenville, N. C. Joining six other transmitters in the United States, the Greenville center should take broadcasts into global areas not presently covered by the Voice of America.

USIA Operated

The Greenville transmitter, like the others, will be operated by the United States Information Agency. A total of 16 transmitters will be operated, broadcasting in English and 40 other languages.

Other funds requested by the President to be used in North Carolina were: $2,209,000 for a post office and courthouse in Fayetteville; $394,000 for a radiobiological laboratory at Beaufort; $800,000 for completion of the Wilkesboro Reservoir; $186,900 for navigation projects, and other maintenance and public works projects totaling $3.9 million.

Sorority Council Starts Drive For Prisoners' Books

By EDITH AUSTIN

The Panhellenic Council annual charity project is sponsoring a book drive for the Central prison in Raleigh.

The need for books of all kinds was brought to the atention of the council by Dr. R. E. Timberlake, who is in charge of the Educational Rehabilitation Program begun four months ago.

Before the new program was introduced the only education offered to prisoners was found in the prison trade school.

At present an elementary education is being opened for illiterate inmates and will soon be extended to the fourth grade level. Eventually the plan is to have an accredited high school through which inmates can earn high school diplomas.

Reason for Jail

According to Dr. Timberlake, illiteracy is the reason that 40 per cent of the prisoners in Central Prison are in jail. He claims many of the prisoners acknowledge this to be true.

The educational program is entirely voluntary and only 45 of the 12000 inmates are taking part right now. Dr. Timberlake hopes to require that every illiterate with a minimum sentence of 18 months learn to read and write.

The prison library now has 1,000 volumes, all in poor condition, according to Dr. Timberlake. All inmates have access to the library and may check out books to read in their cells.

7,000 Volumes

The Panhellenic book drive hopes to collect 7,000 volumes. "If we can get half that many," says Timberlake, "our program will be speeded up 2 to 3 years."

Any books from first grade through college level are needed, said the Panhel. Works of fiction are wanted also and may be in hard back or paper back editions.

Collection boxes are being placed in dormitories and fraternity and sorority houses as well as in the Y Court and Graham Memorial. The books will be picked up at the end of the first week of second semester in order to give students an opportunity to bring books from home.

Exam Schedule

All permits to take examinations to remove grades of "Exc. Abs." or "Cond." must be secured from the Office of Records and Registration prior to the exam. No students mav be excused from a scheduled examination except by the University Infirmary in case of illness or by his Dean in case of any other emergency compelling his absence.

All 12:00 noon classes on MWF, *Econ, 81	Mon. Jan. 22	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on MWF, *Econ. 31, 32 61 & 70	Mon. Jan. 22	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Tues. Jan. 23	8:30 a.m.
All 12:00 noon classes on TThs, all *Naval Science and *Air Science	Tues. Jan. 23	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on TThs	Wed. Jan. 24	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on TThs, *Poli 41, Busi. 150	Wed. Jan. 24	2:00 p.m.
All French, German & Spanish courses Numbered 1, 2, 3, 3x ? 4, *Phch. 61	Thurs. Jan. 25	8:30 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Thurs. Jan. 25	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Fri. Jan. 26	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Fri Jan. 26	2:00 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Sat. Jan. 27	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on MWF *Busi 160, *Phys. 24	Sat. Jan. 27	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Mon. Jan. 29	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on TThS, *Busi 130, *Chem. 43	Mon. Jan. 29	2:00 p.m.
All 3:00 p.m. classes, *Chem. 11, *Busi. 71 & 72, and all classes not otherwise provided for in this schedule	Tues. Jan. 30	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Tues. Jan. 30	2:00 p.m.

'Kefe Aslita' Offered Moscow Youths; Entertainment Improved For Russians

MOSCOW (UPI) — It's getting a lot easier for young people to take their dates out on Saturday nights in Moscow now that a few pleasant and inexpensive night spots are opening up.

Until now, the problem was where to go. Teen-agers, college students and other young people have plenty of chances to go to the theater, movies or parks of culture and rest. Some sons and daughters of higher-income families even manage a gay night on the town in Moscow's hotels and restaurants, which can be pretty expensive.

But there have been very few pleasant night spots where one could go and sip a drink without spending a lot of money. Now a number of youth cafes are opening where just that can be done.

The latest cafe to open is "Kafe Aslita" — the product of some imaginative private enterprise by five students of the Scientific Research Institute of Experimental Designing. The students, Mariana Kutseveel, Natasha Arleva, Aleksandr Anisimov, Marat Baskaav and Alexei Konstantinov designed the cafe in their spare time and supervised each step in its construction — all for 2,000 rubles $2,222.

Doubles as Snack Bar

The cafe, which opens at 7 p.m. doubles as a snack bar during the day.

The brilliantly painted walls of Aelita are distinctly inspired by Western models. In a city where winter colors are a drab combination of white, green, gray and brown, Aelita's yellow, orange and black walls are shockingly gay.

"This cafe is a great innovation," said one Russian. "You know under Stalin is was very difficult to go out places. But this is a place where you can go and have fun."

Aelita, like the other youth cafes-Sputnik, Luna, Raketa and Cosmes—is so popular that couples have to line up outside on the snowy sidewalk on cold winter nights to get in. Once inside, they can buy a cup of coffee for four kopeks (five cents) or a privet (welcome) cocktail for just over a ruble $1.11. They also can buy hot meals throughout the evening.

Board Supervises Cafe

The cafe has a special board which supervises its operation, stressing cultivated entertainment rather than profit. The board is composed of the student designers, musicians, actors and members of the young communist league.

On most nights a plainly amateur jazz orchestra perform while on other nights young poets may recite their poetry. On Monday—a night without entertainment—anyone drunk or sober can bang on the piano or recite poetry at the risk of being thrown out. Groups at scattered tables may sing songs they please, and every one seems to have a lot of fun.

The Soviet government takes kindly to the new cafes, and promises to construct 50 more in all districts of this city of 7 million. In fact, on the opening night of Aelita, First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikeyan was a very special guest.

Infirmary

Those in the infirmary yesterday included: Lillian Ennis, Rodewck Bedoe, Ac Ann McGalliard, Jan Bryant, William Fulbright, Dorothy Isom, Jonathan Fraley, William Long, Charles Garrison, Wilbur Mills, Lawrence Bowie, Alexander May, Larry Brown, Roderick McMahon, Bull Connor, Nowell Dunn, Curtis Gans, Richard Fuller, Dale Alford, Herbert Hawkins Don Whisenant, John Patterson, Thomas Laughlin, Jim Donohue, Neal Jackson, Edwin Aycock, Jim Hudock Carroll Laxton, Winston Sanford, Lavon Page, Doug Moe, Richard Fleming, William Vaughn, Brooks Hays, Robert Deal, Sam Blumberg, Judee Metcalfe,, William Hicks, Photo by Jim Wallace, Thomas Henley, George Strong, Jeremy Schuller, Samuel Leidesdorf, William Swicegood, David Sapp, Nancy Prevest, Orval Faubus, Dewey Sheffield.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 19, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 82

Humiliation

The judge who handed down a suspended sentence to Charles Van Doren this week said he could "read the humiliation" in the 35-year-old former Columbia University instructor's face.

Had the judge been granted the ability to see the faces of perhaps ten thousand teachers and students across the country at that moment, he would have seen the same humiliation on them. Van Doren, regardless of his contribution and remorse, could not erase the feeling of guilt that were mirrored in his face. Nor could he displace that same feeling from others who, because of their association with education, were participants in his guilt.

Some of that guilt lies with the television industry which allowed the farce of rigged TV shows to be carried on. It is shared by the viewers who were interested in Van Doren, not because of intellectual prowess, but because he was amassing a large sum of money.

A portion of the guilt, too, must be laid to a society which holds money to be a higher goal than integrity, which has little interest in ability except as an asset that can be turned into dollars and cents. But, appropriately, the man who bore the brunt of these shortcomings in our nation temper was a teacher. And it is for this reason that most of Van Doren's colleagues in education are as shamefaced as he.

Why was Van Doren's offense so abominable? Why was it his case, and not that of the other defendents, which drew banner headlines? Why should his repentance be more obvious and his shame greater than that of others?

It was not because his pay-off was the largest; it was not. Another contestant "won" over $220,000. Nor was his crime any greater. But Charles Van Doren is, or was, a teacher. His association with education made his violation more flagrant and his humiliation more more deeply felt and widely shared.

When it is a teacher who has committed a crime, particularly when it is one that involves a bartering of ideals and the perpetration of a fraud, then the attention given that crime is, and should be, greater. When Van Doren sold out, he sold out not just as a man. He sold out as a part of a profession that should loathe compromise and honor intelligence for its own sake, not because it can be translated into dollars.

The Van Doren case and its simplications are saddening enough in themselves. But the other infamies involving education are called to mind by it. When Van Doren was sentenced this week, all the basketball scandals, the episodes of cheating, the lying and compromising—all of these were flung in the face of education.

The time has long since past when someone should have begun to wipe the humiliation off the collective face of education.

Sorry, A Letter Was Misleading So We Didn't Put It In Print

To The Editor:

/s/ Donald P. Will Jr.

Editor's Note: The above space contained a letter from Donald P. Will, Jr. of Durham. In his letter, Mr. Will suggested that we should not have printed Charles Alan's letter condemning mental health program's (Jan. 14 issue) because such a letter is "misleading."

Our policy is to print all letters, regardless of viewpoint. We have adhered to this policy until now. But, since Mr. Will has informed us that it is the "duty of an editor to refuse to print misleading material," we have complied.

We thought his letter was "misleading."

So we didn't prmt it.

Should we continue this policy?

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIAL STAFF

WAYNE KING.....Editor
MARGARET ANN RHYMES—Associate Editor
LLOYD LITTLE—Executive News Editor
BILL HOBBS.....Managing Editor
JIM CLOTFELTER, BILL WUAMETT—News Editors
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor
CHUCK MOONEY.....Feature Editor
HARRY LLOYD.....Sports Editor
ED DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
GARRY BLANCHARD—Contributing Editor

BUSINESS STAFF

TIM BURNETT....Business Manager
MIKE MATHERS—Advertising Manager
JIM EVANS..Subscription Manager
JIM ESKRIDGE—Circulation Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 8, 1870. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

"Gun Bearers!"

Robinson's Ramblings

According to the 1960 census Chapel Hill is the richest community in the state with 27 per cent of its families earning $10,000 a year or more. So it's not strange for charities on fund raising drives to think that they'd be well received here. But some townspeople have criticised their neighbors and students for not being generous enough. An appropriate reply has come from a Wake County woman, who prefers to remain anonymous.

Please, No More Pleas!

I give to charities galore;
All those that knock upon my door
Find me ready to disburse
The contents of my dwindling purse
My money's spread from Nice to Nome;
But charity begins at home
And home is where my money stays
Or else before too many days
I'll join the throng and make a plea
Door to door-in the name of me!

* * *

Conservatives and liberals will both be interested in these bizarre and informative happenings around the nation:

South Carolina—When asked how he felt about NAACP Special Counsel Thurgood Marshall's appointment as a federal judge recently, South Carolina's Governor Ernest Hollings replied: "I'm just as glad Martin Luther King doesn't have a law degree."

* * *

Massachusetts: Robert H. W. Welch, Jr. founder of the John Birch Society, told the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston last month that "not more than one-half of one per cent" of the Catholic priests in the U. S. are Communist sympathizers.

* * *

Minnesota: An English teacher in Wrenshall, Minn., was reinstated one week after he had been dismissed for having his students read "1984."

* * *

Michigan: State Attorney General Paul Adams recently ruled that Bible instruction in the public schools violates both the state and federal constitutions.

* * *

Texas: Under a new Abilene, Texas ordinance, both parents and theater operators are liable to fines up to $200 for allowing children to see movies rated "objectionable."

* * *

North Carolina: Chapel Hill's two movie theaters are fully integrated—the first in the state—but less than one quarter of the audiences are Negroes. — MIKE ROBINSON

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

The Return Of The Little Magazine

In the gargantuan belch of American publishing houses' output today, it has become a truism that it is impossible to read all that one wants to read. Our Senators are taking speed reading courses so that they can read what they are supposed to have read; students repeatedly complain that if the day only had five or six more hours they would be able to do their social science or parallel reading. This is rapidly becoming symptomatic of the age of the digest, the paperback library and the brief survey.

Even in specialized fields it is a rare scholar who can speak for the entire body of work he represents. One is constantly selecting and condensing his projected reading list, and usually finishes little more than the essentials.

* * *

Most publishing houses are no help in the matter of reliability of their product as a rule. he exceptions can be named on the fingers of one hand; these are generally the avant-garde paperbook publishers who reliably go out of business after a year or so and are never resurrected.

Currently I am keeping my fingers crossed for Angel Island Publications, a small California house which is not yet firmly established except for its quarterly Contact, currently in its ninth number.

However, it has several other notable distinctions. It has saved Nelson Algren's excellent "Chicago, City on the Make," a decadent paean to the human of Chicago, which the city fathers consigned to a critical limbo for liking all the wrong things about Chicago. It has also put into print "A Fly in the Pigment" a delightful semipicaresque novel about a fly who escaped from a Renaissance painting to view Paris in the raw. Its approach is a hilarious blend of stream of consciousness and social caricature.

Further into the select library of Angel Island is "A Country of the Mind", an anthology of the best publications of the highly-regarded "Western Review" by its editor, Anthony West. And Probably the most appealing of all the Angel Island books now on the market is the Photographic essay "I Am a Lover", a sort of "Family of Man" for San Francisco.

The excellence of Jerry Stoll's photography is constantly shocking, intimate, moving. A genuine love of his subjects and lucid, uncannily pertinant quotes edited and garnered by Evan S. Connell from very various sources make this book come alive for the reader.

The quotes range from Lewis Carroll, Thomas Wyatt, and Countess Tolstoy's diary to letters, upanishads, drinking songs and brotherhood oaths. "I am a Lover" is one of the finest photographic essays and human documents to be published in the United States.

* * *

Our campus should be especially cognizant of the success of its quarterly, having as amateur yardsticks the small successes and failures of almost a dozen such in memory. Issue number eight, for example, features the advanced makeup and design patterns produced by a small dedicated and talented staff.

It manages to print a short story on the racial issue, "Lunch", by Keith Lowe, on brown paper without editorializing or going overboard after its own cleverness. It has a photographic section featuring social charicatures by Seymour Locks; a long short story by R. V. Cassill about Paris, which in its course does not open the raw wounds of any cliches; an advertisement that is easily as entertaining as most small magazines' content for Angle Island's forthcoming "Artists' and Writers' Cookbook, featuring a beef burgundy by James A. Michener, a garlic soup by James Merrill ,and an Italian passion salad by Jerre Mangione.

This book, or rather quarterly, is becoming increasingly available and at the same time entertaining. It is a welcome sign to the weary, frustrated, or disllusied re sie5ao trated, or disillusioned reader that Angel Island Publications shows none of the omens of now non-existent art magazines. It may be with us (the intelligentsia) for a long, happy, time.

—JOE WILLIMAN

ATTITUDES By Clotfelter

Certain elements in the American political situation appear to believe that the fate of Christianity is to be decided in Katanga province.

The same persons who worship at the image of rebellious Katanganese President Moise Tshombe as a brave "anti-Communist", also are fond of applying the term "pro-Christian" to him.

Strom Thurmond, distinguished solon from South Carolina, in a Jan. 8 attack on the Kennedy Administration policy in the Congo, referred to the "anti-Communist, pro-Christian Katanga province."

Campus columnist Martin Luther Wilson took the Thurmond position a step further by attacking the United Nations as a "godless organization."

* * *

The absurdity of the Thurmond and Wilson statements should be easily seen. The fact that some persons swallow that bunkum, however, leads me to state the obvious.

—The controversy in Katanga does not in any way, in any shape or form, concern Christianity or any other religion.

—Even if the conflict did concern religion, there are just as many Christians in other provinces of the Congo as there are in Katanga.

—The United Nations, as a body, cannot be "godless" just as it cannot be "God-fearing" or "pro-God." Because so many divergent religions are represented in the U.N., it is incomprehensible that it should become either a religious or an anti-religious organization.

* * *

Possibly the Strom Thurmond revivalist element sees some major Christian precept at issue in the Congo. If the United Nations was aggressively attacking the Katanganese province (which it is not), then that could be what Thurmond and his boys are calling godless and anti-Christian. But this same revivalist element advocates war on Cuba, war on mainland China, and in some cases, aggressive war on Russia—so it's not U.N. aggression which Thurmond thinks is anti-Christian.

Hopefully, Thurmond is not referring to the hackneyed line about "atheistic communism." Even if the Central Congolese government of Cyrille Adoula and Joseph Kassavubu was Communist (which is completely false), religion would still be irrelevant to the Katanganese problem.

The solution to the Congo mess must be realistic, open and honest. No spiritual questions are involved.

It is a choice between chaos and stability. An independent Katanga represents chaos. A unified Congo is necessary for African stability.

—JIM CLOTFELTER

Those Loyalty Oaths & Subversive Groups

Mr. Nichols, of the "Michigan Daily, in his valiant attempt to place the blame for the loyalty oath on the John Birch Society and other "radical right" groups, makes one error of fact. He says that the Ku Klux Klan is "not listed as subversive." This is incorrect. The KKK is among the several hundred organizations listed by the Dept. of Justice as being subversive. Any communist, fascist, or totalitarian group that advocates overthrow of the US government or approves of "the commission of acts of violence to deny other persons their rights under the Constitution of the United States" is subversive.

Mr. Nichols makes a graver error by implying that anyone who supports the loyalty oath "avoids association with Catholics, Negroes and Jews," shuns the Nat'l Council of Churches, supports Trujillo, and criticizes Kennedy. He implies that "right to work" laws are evil, while Khrushchev it not. Nicholas uses the same techniques of slander and "guilt by association" that he condemns so vehemently as a device used by those who would get tough on Communists.

What is Nicholas so shook up about? The loyalty oath, which reads:

"I,———, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the United States of America and will support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States of America against all its enemies, foreign and domestic."

The members of Congress that voted for this oath (all of them, no doubt, members of the John Birch Society,) must be condemned for asking poor Nicholas to swear allegiance to his native land. For to ask someone to "pledge allegiance to the flag" is obviously a fascist plot to take away our freedoms.

—SAMUEL S. JONES, JR.

A Scientific Survey Of Likker Drinking

Chapel Hill is a quiet little town. For years it made me curious to hear people from Durham, Raleigh, and even as far away as Winston-Salem, refer to it as "Whiskey Hill."

It raised a question, one which every Tarheel must face head-on, glass in hand, sooner or later: Is there too much emphasis on drinking at the University? (Perhaps a more interesting question would be, "Is it POSSIBLE to place too much emphasis on drinking?" Since this question has no answer, however, I shall ignore it.)

I decided to turn to science for an answer. Psychologists say it is easy to determine what is important to a person by listening to him talk. By noting how often certain words or ideas turn up in his conversation, you can pretty well tell what he is thinking about.

With this theory in mind and a clipboard clutched in hand, I headed to Harry's for an evening of intensive research. It must be remembered that this was not what is called a "controlled situation," in fact, it must have been pretty uncontrolled. A few of my notes were very difficult to decipher—they seem to have gotten wet some time during the evening.

I have didived my results into three catagories:

I. Number of references to what was consumed:

Beer 18, bourbon 12, gin, booze 8, whiskey scotch 7, liquor, rum, Vodka 4, screwdriver, spirits, moonshine, P.J., one each. (Brand names are included under their general catagories.)

II. Number of references to the act of consumption:

Drink 37 (this includes such variations as " . . . like a fish") guzzle 4, on a binge, on a tear, getting high 2, on a bender, on a toot, soaking it up, swizzle, toss it off, wet your whistle, get loaded, one each.

III. Number of refenrences to results:

Drunk 22 (this includes dead drunk, drunk as a lord, stinkin' drunk, etc.), high 14 (as a kite, a flag, etc.), plastered, hungover 8, out 7 (passed out, out of it, out cold, etc.), out of his mind, polluted 4, boozed up 3, bomber, intoxicated, tipsy, stiff 2, inebriated, d. ts, soused, seeing pink elephants, fried, shellacked, tanked, and three sheets in the wind, one each.

This is 217 references to drinking in four hours— approximately fifty per hour, or less than one a minute.

One interesting sidelight I had not expected: the only subject that came close to whiskey in popularity was sex. While the vocabulary was not nearly as varied, the rate of occurrence was phenominal.

Conclusions:

1) Whiskey is not emphasized in Chapel Hill to the exclusion of everything else.

2) The name "Whiskey Hill" grew out of envy—just plain envy.

—BOBBI DAVENPORT

CRAM TIME

Your best chance of finding the study aid you need

The Book Exchange
Five Points DURHAM

We Buy & Sell All Books

–Dances With WC–

(Continued from page 1)

ruary 16. An open house will be held in one of the freshman dorms at WC followed by a combo party at Elliot Hall, the Student Union Building.

Campus At Large

Attendance for the first party will be drawn from the campus at large in order to assure participation by an adequate number of Carolina students, said Britt.

Later the parties will probably be arranged between a Carolina dormitory or several dormitories and a girls' dorm at WC.

"It is hoped that this initial affair will set a precedent leading to frequent parties between the dormitories of the two schools," said Britt. These parties could be arranged either by the dorm presidents or through the IDC.

Any student may attend the first social on February 16. Special bus arrangements are being made to provide transportation to and from Greensboro. Information about ticket sales will be made available at a later time, said Britt.

Rusk Claims U.S. Action In Congo Halted Red Exploitation Of Chaos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Thursday that if the Kennedy administration had failed to back U. N. action in the troubled Congo, the Soviet Union would have been in position to exploit "violence and chaos" there.

Rush told a closed meeting of a Senate foreign relations subcommittee that the United States would have been "compelled to counter" the Soviets in the Congo if the situation had deteriorated.

In defense of U. S. support of U. N. military operations in the Congo, the secretary said: "There was no alternative to, limited intervention on the part of the United Nations if a direct confrontation of the great powers in the heart of Africa was to be avoided."

He added: "Thus the United States strongly supported United Nations in the Congo. Looking back, it seems obvious now that this was the right choice."

Rusk's views were made public after he spent less than a half an hour at the subcommittee's opening hearing on Congo policy. The President's chief foreign policy adviser had to leave the session to attend a meeting of the National Security Council but two key aides were available for questioning.

–Gizenga Escape–

(Continued from Page 1)

Lake Tanganyika community when Congolese soldiers began shooting in the streets.

Another unconfirmed report reaching Elisabethville said that Congolese army officers shot seven soldiers who refused to obey orders.

Katanga President Moise Tshombe, meanwhile, left Elisabethville Thursday with his foreign minister, Evariste Kimba, on a sudden, secret trip to Brazzaville, according to a reliable Katangese source.

Reason Not Explained

The reason for Tshombe's trip to the capital of the former French Congo was not explained. But Elisabethville observers said it might be connected with central Premier Adoula's statement this week that he might appoint a Katanga official to succeed Gizenga as deputy premier. Brazzaville is just across the Congo River from Leopoldville and could be the site of a Tshombe-Adoula meeting.

At Kongolo, where the white Catholic missionaries were reported killed and mutilated in the Jan. 1 massacre, a U. N. air reconnaissance reported no sign of Col. Pakassa's troops.

Monsigner Cornelius, Roman Catholic archbishop of Elisabethville, cabled President Kennedy, Queen Elizabeth II of England, U. N. Acting Secretary General Thant and other world leaders protesting against the murders and demanding immediate punishment for the perpetrators.

CLASSIFIED ADS

MALE HELP WANTED: NEAT appearing intelligent man with good personality for saleswork. Can supervise himself and work on his own time. For appointment, call 942-5148, Mr. Herring.

$75.00 MONTHLY FOR STUDENT who qualifies as roommate and assistant to handicapped senior for spring semester, 1962. If interested, contact Miss Worth, Student Aid Office.

COLLECTOR'S ITEM: BIG NAZI Banner 18 by 3½ feet. Good condition, $30. Call Al Fairchild after 6 P.M. 968-9074.

FOR SALE — 1 WOOD CLARINET by Noblet'. Priced for immediate sale. For details — call 942-4559 and ask for Skip Eisenhour.

Final Reduction

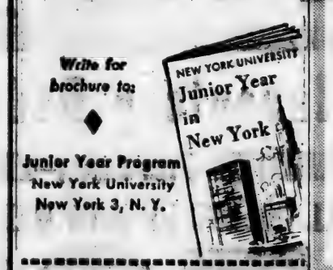
Matching Sweater & Skirts

1/2 PRICE

The FIRESIDE

Junior Year in New York

An unusual one-year college program.



HARRY'S

Where the UNC ERUDITE CONGREGATE,

Says

Escapade Magazine

GOLF CITY'S 19th HOLE

MUSIC • DANCING
SANDWICHES • B--R

Special Door Prize Nightly — 1 case B--R

ACROSS FROM HOWARD JOHNSONS OPEN 12-12

LA PIZZA

Studying for Exams?
Of Course! — But don't go to bed until you first call LA PIZZA for your hunger needs.

Carry-Out 967-1451 Delivery

Final Clearance

SALE!
Reducations Up To
50% OFF
On Nationally Advertised Brands of Suits – Sport Coats – Top Coats
Furnishings & Shoes
Shop Early For Best Selections

The Young Men's Shop
★DOWNTOWN ★NORTHGATE
Durham

The W.S.T. Club Of Greensboro Presents

The Isley Brothers And "Shout"

FRIDAY NIGHT
FEB. 2

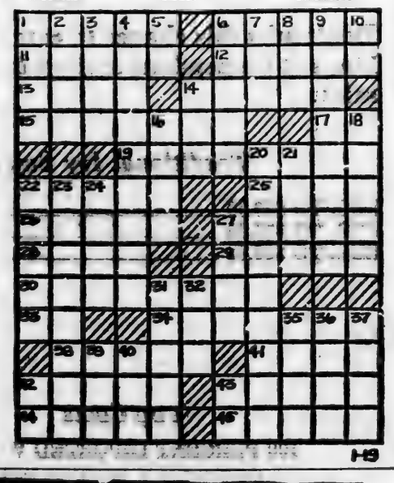
at the Desert Inn in Greensboro
8-12 P.M.
$3.00 Per Couple

When Exams Are Over Sell Your Texts To The Intimate

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Divest
6. Gorgon tool
11. Bonfire lighter, for one
12. Biblical name
13. Fuel
14. Italian coin
15. A disseminator
17. Music note
19. Tidiness
22. Some modern shoes
25. Branch of learning
26. Boundary
27. To consent
28. Ammunition, G. I. slang
29. Stinging insects
30. Sparkling bits
33. Exclamation
34. Soviet land forces
36. Fur
41. Parrots (W. I.)
42. Known quantity
43. Door joist
44. Oriental manor
45. Up (kill about $1,000)
1. Weakens
2. Waste allowance
3. Back
4. Ado
5. Rather (colloq.)
6. Baseball, for one
7. Gad fellow
8. To augment
9. Step leading from outer door
10. Half an em
14. —— of Galilee
16. Rebecca ——, author
18. S-shaped worms
20. Bombed Japanese seaport (poss.)
21. Manages
22. To flare
23. Clearly
24. Abess or spiritual mother
27. Filled with solemn wonder
31. Lawn
32. Guided
35. To lease
36. Three Wise Men
37. French river
39. Narrow inlet
40. Anglo-Saxon letter
42. Music note
43. Exclamation

Yesterday's Answer



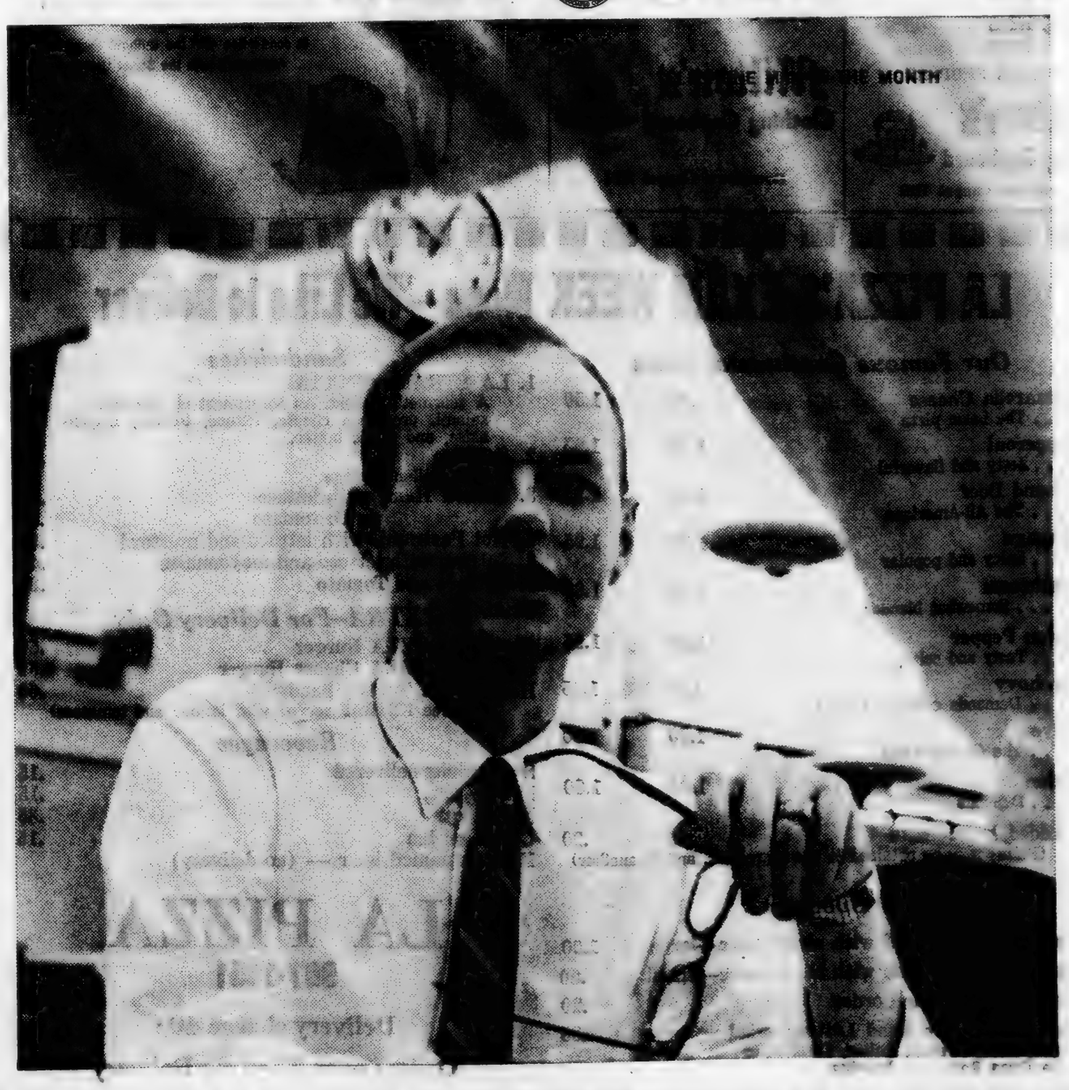
1-19

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE CARL HORN

How many more people will need telephone service in Illinois by 1970? How many more telephone buildings should be built, how much more equipment ordered? Helping to find the right answers (because the wrong ones could be very expensive) is the job of Carl Horn, a telephone company economist who graduated from college just last year. His studies and estimates help management make important forecasting decisions. Decisions that will bring advanced communications to the nation.

Carl Horn of Illinois Bell Telephone Company, and other young men like him in Bell Telephone Companies, help make your telephone and communications service the finest in the world.

BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES



POGO

PEANUTS

BUDDY NIGHT
AT THE ZOOM-ZOOM
8-11

Harrison Merrill Sets Freshman Swim Mark

For the second year in a row, a North Carolin freshman swimmer has broken a national swimming record. Harrisson Merrill, a first year man from Atlanta, this week clipped ½ second off the NCAA freshman 220-yard freestyle record.

Merrill's record time came in a meet with Appalachian, which coach Dick Jamerson's Tar Babies won easily by 62-28. Merrill, whose older brother Arthur is a member of the varsity squad, won the event in 2:04.5, to break the record set formerly by Murray Rose, who in 1956 was the Olympic freestyle champion.

The UNC 400-yard freestyle relay team, anchored by Merrill, cracked a school record. This team, which also includes Dick Woodrow, Dave Roberts, and Thad Adams, knocked 7½ seconds off the old mark by winning in a time of 3:30.5.

North Carolina's freshman have already indicated that the future of UNC swimming is a bright one. Among the more promising performers in the team are diver Ernie Oare, freestylers Sloan Cravely and Jack Anker and specialty men Tate Kemper, Rusty Redding and Scott Smiley.

Daily Tar Heel

Page Four Friday, January 19, 1962

Rule Change To Help Kick

The punt should become more effective in 1962 collegiate football, thanks to a rule change made this week by the NCAA Football Rules Committee. It will now be legal for a kicking team to down the ball inside the receiver's 10-yard line. Previously, downing the ball inside the ten resulted in an automatic touchback, which brought the ball out to the 20.

High school and professional teams have allowed the kicking team to down the ball anywhere on the field.

Another important change was the reduction of the penalty for the illegal shift from 15 to five yards. It is now the same as for illegal motion.

Spiders are near-sighted.

N-S Doubleheader Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the North-South Carolina doubleheaders in Charlotte on Feb. 16 and 17 are now on sale at the Woollen Gym ticket office. Tickets will cost $1 for each night and will be on sale until Feb. 3. After that date, students will have to purchase tickets at the gate in Charlotte.

Carolina plays Clemson on the 16th, while N. C. State takes on South Carolina. The next day, the Tar Heels tangle with the Gamecocks and State meets Clemson.

McSWEENY SCORES

Bryan McSweeney of UNC is shown in the photo to left as he follows through in a layup try against NC State here Wednesday night. Guarding on the play are Russ Marvel and John Punger of the Pack. The big round thing in the net is the basketball. Carolina won, 66-56.

—Photo by James Wallace

BUDDY NIGHT
AT THE ZOOM-ZOOM
8-11

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
A Musical Holiday of Fun for Everyone!
Walt Disney
BABES IN TOYLAND
TECHNICOLOR

Get Better
Grades
With Study Aids
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

2 Large Plain Pizzas
Only $1.60
ZOOM-ZOOM 8-11

1 Large Plain Pizza
Only 10c With
Purchase of 1 large Pizza
ZOOM-ZOOM 8-11

Have You
Seen
Our New Style Cordovan?

BOTH
HIS and HERS
In New Cashmere Grain, Black and Antique Brown.
Tassels for Women.
Julian's Village Shop

Lady Milton
Last Call
To Winter

Group shirtdresses including Cracly and Villager, formerly to $19.95 at give-a-way of $6.99 From $21.95 up to $32.95 at give-a-way of $10.99.
Final and further reductions on large group of shirtdresses including corduroy, heek-suede, cotton prints.

REDUCTIONS

$14.95 shirtdresses further cut to $10.99.
$16.95 to $11.99
$18.95 to $12.99
$19.95 to $13.99
$22.95 to $16.99
$24.95 to $18.99
$26.95 to $19.99

LADY MILTON SHOP AT
Milton's Cooking Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

Milton's
Last Call
To Winter

This is the Chez Milton Deal of Deals. With spring breathing down our throats, we've re-reduced over 210 Sport Coats and 315 suits. Grab them now at these prices, or forever hold your gold.

Large group sport coats formerly to $48.75 further cut to crazy $19.99 and $24.99.

Sizeable group suits formerly to $75.00 at low, low $39.99.

Many other cool deals—need we say more?

Milton's Cooking Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

Entire Stock Taylor-Made
SHOES
AT COST

ALSO—
Reductions on Ladies' Sportswear and Men's Clothing
Town & Campus

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST.

"Literary, Filmic Masterpiece!"
—Parents' Mag.
DON QUIXOTE
FROM THE CLASSIC NOVEL BY MIGUEL de CERVANTES
in COLOR!
Distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer at the request of the U. S. Department of State in connection with the Cultural Exchange Agreement with the Soviet Union.

Kemp's Inventory Reduction—
END OF SEMESTER—PRE-EXAM—MID-WINTER
ALL ROLLED UP INTO ONE
A Giant 50% OFF LIST
CLASSICAL
OPERA
JAZZ
POPULAR
FOLK
All Mono and Stereo L.P.'s
TODAY AND SATURDAY ONLY
$2 SEE $2
WHAT A $2 BILL WILL DO
$2 Save 25c tax $2
Both Shops
Kemp's

Don't Miss It!
The Hub of Chapel Hill's
FINAL WINTER SPECTACULAR
TWO BIG DAYS – FRI., SAT. (JAN 19-20)
Don't miss this chance to complete your winter wardrobe with the finest name brand fashions at tremendous savings to you. Prices slashed more than ever before for this special sale!

Traditional Ivy Suits
REG. TO $50.00 NOW $35.88
REG. TO $55.00 NOW $39.88
REG. TO $60.00 NOW $42.88

Natural Shoulder Sportscoats
100 PERCENT WORSTED WOOLS
REG. TO $30.00 NOW $19.88
REG. TO $35.00 NOW $23.88
REG. TO $40.00 NOW $26.88

Olive Collegiate Blazers
THREE DAYS ONLY — $17.88

Top Coats
100 PERCENT IMPORTED WOOLS
COMPLETELY WATER PROOF
REG. TO $49.50 NOW $39.99
REG. TO $42.75 NOW $34.99
REG. TO $39.95 NOW $29.99

Dress Shirts—B.D. or Tab
ONE GROUP — 3 FOR $8.97
REG. TO $4.00 NOW $2.99
REG. TO $5.00 NOW $3.99

One Group Dress and Sportshirts
$1.99

Sweaters – Sweaters – Sweaters
BUTTON CARDIGAN — V-NECK — CREWS
REG. TO $16.95 NOW $6.88 TO $12.88

Dress Slacks
FREE ALTERATIONS
100 PERCENT WORSTED WOOLS
REG. TO $15.95 NOW $7.99 TO $12.88

IT'S BIG – IT'S SPECTACULAR – IT'S "THE SALE"
DON'T MISS IT
The HUB of Chapel Hill
103 E. FRANKLIN STREET PHONE 942-1252

LA PIZZA'S EXAM WEEK Menu – We Like to Deliver

Our Famous Continental Pizza

Mozzarella Cheese ... The basic pizza	.95	1.50
Pepperoni ... Zesty and flavorful	1.30	1.95
Ground Beef ... The All-American	1.30	1.95
Sausage ... Spicy and popular	1.30	1.95
Mushroom .... Somewhat blander	1.30	1.95
Green Pepper ... Tasty and colorful	1.30	1.95
Anchovy ... Demands cultivated taste	1.30	1.95
Olive ... The Greeks knew	1.20	1.80
Onion ... Depends	1.20	1.80
Added Ingredients (Pizzas may be obtained ½ one ingredient, and ½ another)	.10	.20

Specials

Spaghetti or Ravioli with meat sauce—large	1.00
Spaghetti or Ravioli with meat sauce—small	.50
Garlic Bread—each order	.20
Tossed Salad or Head Lettuce salad with eitner French, Italian, Catalina or La Pizza Roquefort dressing	.35

Sandwiches

1. LA STRAMI SPECIAL — A gourmet's delight. An assortment of pastrami, salami, provolone cheese, lettuce, tomato, mayonnaise, and garlic butter.	.75
2. Sausage — Mild Italian sausage	.55
3. Cooked Ham, with lettuce	.45
with tomato	.50
4. Hot Pastrami, with lettuce and mustard	.50
5. Salami, with lettuce and mayonnaise	.40
6. Lettuce and Tomato	.30

EXTRA–For Delivery Only

Giant LA PIZZA Burger	.50
Giant LA PIZZA Cheese Burger	.55
Hot or Cold Turkey Sandwich (All three EXTRAS served with lettuce and tomatoes)	.60

Beverages

Soft Drinks delivered	.15
Milk ½ pt.	.15
Milk 1 qt.	.35
Coffee or tea	.15

Famous named b__r — (no delivery)

LA PIZZA
967-1451
Delivery charge 40c
Orders over $5–Free Delivery

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

83

Suppression
See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Continued cold, posible rain

Offices in Graham Memorial | SATURDAY, JANUARY 20, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Durham Theatre Battle Flares Up

Public Officials Rapped For Having 'Taken No Action' In Integration

The long battle for desegregation of Durham's Carolina and Center Theaters, reached another peak yesterday as public officials were charged with having "taken no action."

In a strongly worded letter aimed primarily at the Durham City Council, the Durham Youth and College Chapters of the N.A.A.C.P. stated that the "Council has not even discussed the matter."

"I have no comment," said Mr. Milo Crawford, manager of the Carolina Theater when questioned about the situation. "I haven't heard anyone talking about it. I read it in the paper the same as you do."

Council's Position

Explaining the Council's position, City Manager George Aull explained that it could take no action until the legal technicalities were untangled. "The problem still exists," he said, "as to whether this matter is under the jurisdiction of the Council. The Council is awaiting legal advice as to whether jurisdiction of this problem afils, and will act accordingly upon receiving it."

Part of the legal controversy rests upon the question of whether or not it is the city's responsibility to desegregate a building which is the property of the city, although managed by a private concern. The Carolina Theater falls into this category.

Unsuccessful Picketing

The letter of protestation by the N.A.A.C.P. youth groups is the second one which has been before the City Council. After a year of unsuccessful picketing of both theaters, in November, 1961, the Council received a N.A.A.C.P. petition calling for a number of racial reforms, including integration of the Carolina. The City Council referred the petition to the Mayor's Human Relations Committee, which recommended that the theater be integrated.

The letter to city officials apparently was motivated by the failure of the City Council to act on the recommendations of the Mayor's committee.

Instead of being signed by the officers of the N.A.A.C.P. youth groups as is their usual custom, the letter was signed by students from nine Durham colleges, high schools, and junior high schools.

GMAB Free Flick

PAUL NEWMAN
— Showing Tonight —
SOMEBODY UP THERE LIKES ME
Starring
Paul Newman, Pier Angeli, and Sal Mineo
* * *
Based on the Autobiography of Rocky Graziano
* * *
Showings At 7:30, 9:30
Carroll Hall

'Mr. Mother-In-Law'

ROCK AND ROLL FOR WINTER!

Rock and Roll for Winter!

Lee Dorsey, the Isley Brothers, Ernie K-Dee, and the Five Royales will be here for the German Club's winter concert on February 17.

By popular demand, there will be a complete rock-'n'-roll show, including such songs as "Ya Ya" and "Do Re Me" by Dorsey, "Mother-in-Law", "Certain Girl", and "Wanted $10,000 Reward" by K-Dee.

The Five Royales are noted for their original rhythm and blues. After they had sung "To Tell the Truth" and made it popular, Ray Charles picked it up.

Several of their hits are "Mohawk Squawk", "Dedicated to the One I Love," "Within My Heart"—all out on the King Label.

The Isley Brothers have come into their own with "Shout" on RCA. All four entertainers are bringing their own bands.

ATTY. GEN.'S OFFICE OPEN DAILY DURING EXAM PERIOD

* * * * * * * * * * * *

White Defends JFK Tariff Proposals

State Department Official Speaks To Newsmen

By JIM CLOTFELTER

Lincoln White, of the State Department, defended Kennedy Administration proposals for foreign aid appropriations and tariff reduction in a speech in Howell Hall yesterday morning.

The director of the department's Office News Bureau, who calls himself "the poor man's Dean Rusk," said government policy is "not worth the paper it is written on, unless it is understood by the American people generally and thereby merits their support."

He was speaking to a meeting of the 37th annual Newspaper Institute, which is being held here this weekend.

Wide Topic Range

The hour-long talk ranged in topics from the technical aspects of presidential press conferences to the opponents of Administration proposals.

White attacked "those who would have us sever our ties with nations which do not agree with our

(Continued on page 5)

Campus Briefs

Class tickets may be picked up at the Naval Armory from 5 to 9 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 4, as well as on Feb. 2 and 3 as previously announced. Any students with unsettled accounts from previous terms will not be able to pick up their tickets on Sunday evening.

Lost: A tan and white, part Collie puppy with a red collar. Puppy answers to the name of "Tau." Contact Mac Griffiss at 942-3574 or at the ATO House.

Lost: A Zoology 11 notebook in the Carolina Inn Cafeteria. Please return to the cashier.

Lost: A silver Rameses charm off a bracelet. Call Bobb Davenport at 104 Spencer. 968-9087.

Lost: A girl's brown clutch purse in Lenoir Hall on Jan. 18 at 6 p.m. Money within offered as reward—identification needed immediately. Return to Jackie Nolen, 313 Alderman.

Honor Infractions Reported Easier

The Attorney General's office will be open five hours a day during the exam period so that it will be easier to report infractions, Attorney General Al Cronenburg announced yesterday.

"If the plan is successful," he said, "it may be continued for the entire spring semester.

"The Honor Code is ideally a student administered system," he stated, "and the initiative for investigating possible infractions is now the responsibility of the Attorney General.

"This plan of regular office hours therefore seems to be the logical way to keep entire student control of the system."

Former System

In the past, the Honor Council was responsible for enforcing the Honor Code, and infractions could be reported to the Attorney General, the Council, or to the Dean of Student Affairs office.

A staff member will be in the Attorney General's office on the second floor of Graham Memorial from 10-12 a.m. and 2-5 p.m. during exams.

An operation of this type has been discussed in the past but until this year the Attorney General's staff had been too small to keep a member at the office on a regular schedule. The staff was expanded this year from 20 to 25 members.

"We feel that regular office hours will make it much easier for students to report violation," Kronenberg stated. "It will prevent their having to interrupt studying in order to hunt for someone to report the infraction to."

The action is not the result of an increase in Code violations. "Actually," Kronenberg said, "we have had fewer cases this semester than in recent years. "We have no way of knowing if this has been caused by better observance of the Code or by fewer people reporting violations they had observed. If this trend continues, we expect only a half dozen cases to be reported during the exam period."

Staff Plan

The plan was the result of a decision of the Attorney General's staff. Kronenberg credited staff member Mike Sprinkle with working out the details of the operation.

It was conceived specifically to cover the exam period and is therefore not simply a trial run for the year-round operation that has been discussed.

Two-Day Conference In March

Peace Corps Meet Set Here

A two-day state conference on the program and operation of the national Peace Corps will be held at the University of North Carolina Friday and Saturday, March 16 and 17, Dean of Student Affairs Charles Henderson, Jr. announced Friday.

Henderson, who was appointed by Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver as liaison representative between the organization's Washington office and the UNC campus, said that all colleges and universities in the state would be invited to send delegates to the Chapel Hill conference.

Several high-ranking officials of the Corps are expected to attend the conference, Dean Henderson stated. He said plans are still incomplete since Carolina only this week received the Corps' request to hold the conference here.

Washington Speakers

Washington speakers definitely participating will be Bill Moyer, Associate Director for Public Affairs and the Peace Corps' liaison official on Capitol Hill; Franklin Williams, Special Assistant to Director Sargent, and Warren W. Wiggins, Associate Director for Program Development and Operations.

The public will be invited to attend the opening address on Friday evening and the Saturday morning symposium on "The Peace Corps in Operation," to be conducted by Mr. Moyer, Mr. Williams, and Mr. Wiggins. The symposium will cover the areas of project development, volunteer recruitment, selection and training of volunteers, and project information.

All meetings of the conference will be held in Howell Hall. Student delegates, expected to number approximately 100, will be housed in Carolina Inn.

Special Appeal

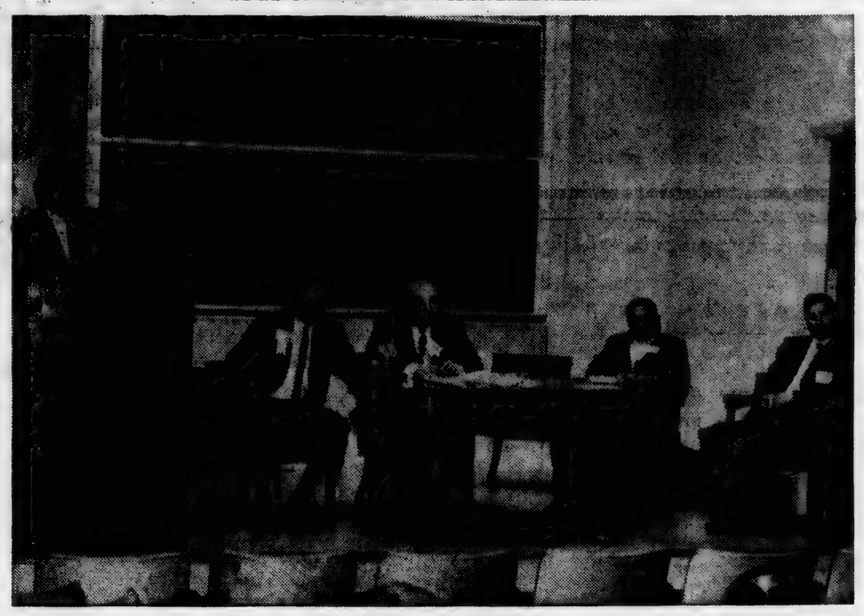
"The conference will have special appeal to those students interested in joining the Peace Corps now or in the near future," Dean Henderson declared. "We believe it also will attract student leaders on the campuses and editors of campus newspapers," he added.

The Peace Corps was started on March 1, 1961, when President John Kennedy issued an Executive Order establishing the Corps on a temporary basis. Now a permanent governmental agency established by an act passed in the last session of Congress, the Corps has volunteers working in Colombia, Nigeria, Tanganyika, The Philippines, Chile, St. Lucia, East Pakistan and Ghana.

Dean Henderson said that plans for projects in eight new countries were announced by Mr. Shriver this month.

The Corps is presently recruiting 300 secondary school teachers for Ethiopia; 10 physical education teachers for the Ivory Coast; 50 intermediate and secondary school teachers for Somali; 30 mechanics on earthmoving and roadbuilding equipment, 10 architects, 20 building construction foremen, 20 physical education instructors for Tunisia; 30 medical personnel (including nurses), laboratory technicians and doctors, and 20 English teachers for Togo; 21 experienced 4-H Club workers, 9 agricultural extension workers, 6 land surveyors, 16 road surveyors, and a statistician

(Continued on Page 3)



PRESS INSTITUTE—Prof. Ken Byerly, journalism school, (standing) moderates a panel discussion of "Selling More Advertising" in the second day of the N. C. Newspaper Institute being held through today at UNC and Duke. Others on the panel are (l-r) Paul Dickson, president of the associated weeklies; Harold Bradlow, of the in Austin, Tex.; Bob Sloan, publisher of the Franklin Press, Franklin, N. C. and J. W. Hager, Stamps-Conhaim Newspaper Advertising Service advertising manager of the Mooresville Tribune. —Photo Scoop Wallace.

* * * * * * * * *

Sanford Predicts Results Of School Tax '62 Story

Gov. Terry Sanford Thursday night predicted 1962's big story would be the results of the school tax levied by the General Assembly last year.

He addressed an overflow crowd of 300 North Carolina newspapermen at the opening session in Howell Hall here of a three-day meeting of the 37th annual N. C. Newspaper Institute.

The Institute is being jointly sponsored by the N. C. Press Association, UNC and Duke.

Following his speech the governor presented the 1961 press awards.

The Chapel Hill Weekly received two first-place awards in the semi-weeklies class—one for local news coverage and one for advertising.

In his speech the governor said a recent questionnaire answered by teachers throughout the state indicated reaction to the school tax was already forming within the school system.

Other top stories in the coming year, Sanford said, would be:

Top '62 Stories

(1) New industries — "North Carolina rose 10 per cent last year in investment in new plants while the national average went down three per cent," Sanford said.

(2) Road building—The governor said the state planned to pave "more secondary roads than in any time since Governor (Kerr) Scott."

(3) Tax—The state still ranks in the bottom three of the 50 states in tax paid per capita, the governor said.

Sanford praised the newspapers of the state for their "constructive influence" in shaping the future of North Carolina. "The criticism of the press is good for a man in public office."

Press Winners

The Charlotte Observer won the NCPA Community Service Plaque for community service which is given to a newspaper for outstanding service to its community during the year. The title of the Observer's entry is "Let's Look at the Record."

Daily newspapers with a circulation of over 20,000 winning top awards are the Greensboro Daily News, Charlotte Observer, Charlotte News, Winston-Salem Journal, and the High Point Enterprise.

Dailies with a circulation under 20,000 winning top prizes are the Salisbury Post, Washington Daily News, Greenville Daily Reflector, and the Shelby Daily Star.

In the editorial division, H. W. Kendall of the Greensboro Daily News won the $50 top award out of 721 entries for his editorials: "Nobody Claimed His Body"; Series on Jail Deaths; and "Quality Education." Homer F. Lucas of The Salisbury Post won the top prize out of 27 entries for his editorials: "First Day with Glasses"; "Justice by Drunkometer," and "Judge Triesto Jolt Parents."

Feature Prizes

Feature writing winners were Kays Gary of the Charlotte Observer winning top piace out of 201 entries for his story "Hero of Mayenne," and Dave Milligan of the Washington News, top winner out of 109 entries for "Laura Miller Is Somewhat Unusual, But Somehow You'd Never Guess It."

first prize for photography among the 42 entries from the large dailies went to George Honeycutt of the Charlotte News for "An Architect and His Dream." The top winner among the 32 entries from the small dailies was Stuart Savage of the Greenville Daily Reflector for "A Losing Battle."

Top sports writing winner among the 50 entries from the large dailies was Roy Thompson of the Winston-Salem Journal for "A Story About a Loser." Small dailies winner out of 32 entries was Jim Booker of the Shelby Daily Star for "The Story of Bennie Mack—Boxer."

Bonnie Moore and Frank War-

(Continued on page 5)

America's Defense Defended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara declared Friday that America's armed forces could destroy Russia's ability to wage war even after absorbing a surprise atomic attack by the Soviets.

He coupled the implied warning to the Soviets with a pledge to stand firm in Berlin. Although Moscow seems to be seeking the virtual surrender of West Berlin, he said, "the slippery road to appeasement can only lead to our isolation and ultimately to disaster."

Testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee on the new $48.3 military budget, McNamara also said the United States would use nuclear weapons in a limited war if necessary despite its buildup of conventional forces.

Here is the defense picture painted by McNamara for the present and future years:

Retaliatory Strength

The United States now has about 50 intercontinental ballistic missiles. By the end of 1964 it will have about 1,034—126 Atlas, tr Titan I, 54 Titan II and 800 Minutemen. By the end of the next fiscal year, it will have 14 wings of B52 bombers, or 600 planes. Each B52 can carry nuclear-tipped Skybolt missiles which can be launched 950 miles from the target.

The Air Force also will have two wings of supersonic B58 bombers and hundreds of medium-range B47's. Construction of missile-firing Polaris submarines will be stepped-up.

ROBBERS GET BUNS

EDGWARE, England (UPI) — Robbers spotted a messenger carrying a bag to a local factory Friday, grabbed the sack and fled. It contained sticky buns for the workers' teatime.

FOUND

Found' A pair of men's glasses one-half block from Scuttlebutt. Call Madej at 234 Phillips.

Sec'y. McNamara Suggests Cut In Reservists

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara recommended Friday that 30,000 paid civilian Army reservists and national guardsmen be cut from the current figure of 700,00.

He did not specify how much, if any, of the proposed cut would come from the National Guard.

He also asked for a $100 million increase in the total reserve forces budget. This would boost it to $1.9 billion.

National Symphony Here February 11

The National Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Howard Mitchell, will present a concert on Sunday, Feb. 11 at Memorial Hall.

The first performance will begin at 2:30 p.m. and will be reserved strictly for UNC students upon the presentation of their ID cards. Another concert will be given at 8 p.m. and the entire balcony will be reserved for UNC students. Spouses will be admitted for both performances for $1.00.

The National Symphony Orchestra is a Graham Memorial presentation.

The orchestra was founded in 1931 and has, under the leadership of Howard Mitchell, taken a place among the handful of great symphonic ensembles in the world.

The National Symphony Orchestra is one of the largest of its kind with an annual budget of close to one million dollars.

The musicians regularly number 94 although extra musicians are used from time to time.

TWENTY-ONE PROMOTED

Cadets Win Monthly Awards

Four cadets received Cadet of the Month awards during a Pass in Review ceremony of the AFROTC Thursday. Cadet Capt. Joseph E. Davies assumed command of the Corps from Cadet Lt. Col. William J. Ritchie during the same ceremony.

Cadets receiving the Cadet of the Month award were: Cadet S/Sgt. Dennis W. Dougherty, S/Sgt. Edward N. Beeker, A/3c Willard E. Moffitt, and A/3c Phillip J. Dupalevich.

The recipients of the awards were selected on the basis of high moral character, knowledge of drill and ceremony, and military bearing.

Twenty-one other cadets have been recently promoted, Cadet Capt. Howard A. Vann announced. The promotions were based upon outstanding work, good morale, a Air Force Manual 50-14 and excellent personal appearance throughout the semester.

Capt. Vann also announced that all freshmen interested in enrolling in AFROTC for the spring semthorough working knowledge of the ester should contact the AFROTC Detatchment at Caldwell Annex as soon as possible. This announcement applies to those freshmen who did not enroll at the beginning of the fall semester and transfer students who want to earn a commission in the Air Force.

Infirmary

Students in the Infirmary yesterday were: Dorthey Ison, Linda Albright, Linda Lawrence, Dewey Whicker, Lawrence Buie, Alexander May, Roderick McMahon, George Forlies, Hubert Hawkins, Neal Jackson and Samual Blumburg.

William Hicks, Jeremy Schuller, Richard Fleming, William Vaughan, Robert Deal, Samuel Leidesders, William Swicegood, David Sapp, Roger Rice, William Flint, Lewis Martinelli, William Stanley, Peter Jessner and Ralph Vivergette.

HARVARD FILM

There will be a special 15-minute film on the J. Spencer Love Fellowship on WFMY-TV, Greensboro at 1:30 p.m. Saturday. The fellowship is available to male students from the southeastern U. S. who wish to attend the Harvard University graduate schools of business administration. The film will also show scenes of Harvard life and decribe the program of the graduate business school.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

January 20, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 83

At Southern University

Suppression

The closing down of Southern University at Baton Rouge this week because of "continuing racial agitation' 'is a sorry comment on that university.

Hiding behind a statement that "there can be no communication in any kind of mob situation," Dr. Felton G. Clark, president of Southern, demonstrated that holding on to the traditions of racial separation was more important than student feeling, higher education, or free expression.

* * *

Students began demonstrating when seven leaders of a downtown protest against racial segregation were ordered off the campus.

Rather than protecting these seven students' right to rebel against injustice, the university cast its vote for suppression and expelled them. This set off angry demonstrations and again the university acted against the students by closing down.

The students, admittedly, were neither quiet nor orderly in their demonstrations. They were angered by the university's obvious display of unconcern for the right of the seven to believe what they chose.

But the question at Southern is not whether the students were orderly or not, but whether the reason for demonstrating was a valid one. In this case, it undeniably was. Whether the seven students were right or wrong in their protest is likewise not the primary question.

The basic point of issue is whether the seven students had the right to peacefully participate in a cause in which they believed. It was this right that should have been honored by Southern. When it was not, the student body rebelled.

* * *

Not only was the university closed, but every student must reapply before he can re-enter if and when the doors are opened again. We sincerely hope that not a single student will reapply until the seven students who were ordered to leave are allowed to return to classes.

When a university closes its doors against students when they act against an injustice, that university is not worthy of the name. A college campus is the last place that should deprive an individual the right to hold beliefs.

The Judiciary

The announcement that the Attorney General's staff will be available for longer hours during final exam period in order to take care of reported violations of the Honor and Campus Codes comes as good news.

* * *

With a staff member available for longer periods, a dual advantage will be gained:

—Investigations can be started sooner, minimizing the possibility of error as facts become confused.

—Reported violations can be handled from the beginning by the staff, making the proceedings a student operation from start to finish.

The added pressure of final exams always causes an upswing in the number of reported violations. The staff will now be able to take care of the added work more effectively.

But this is not the whole story behind the change.

The Attorney General's staff, although no member of it will admit it for publication, is not entirely happy about the fact that the unavailability of a student to receive reported violations has often made it necessary to have such reports turned in to the Office of the Assistant Dean of Student Affairs. This means that the student judiciary is not entirely a student operation—which is what it should be.

* * *

Although the longer office hours during the exam period were not instrumented merely as an experiment, we understand that if the new policy works well, it will be continued throughout next semester and thereafter if personnel is available.

This new procedure will probably open up some interesting questions in regard to the judiciary as a student system. Most violations reported come from faculty members. Only a few of these come directly to the Attorney General's staff. Will faculty members continue to follow this procedure when a staff member is available in the Attorney General's office? Or will the faculty have complete confidence in students' ability to handle the job completely on their own?

The answers will be important, indicating whether student government and student autonomy mean what we think they do, or whether they are merely words that look good i na catalogue and sound good in a speech.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIAL STAFF

WAYNE KING.....Editor
MARGARET ANN RHYMES—Associate Editor
LLOYD LITTLE—Executive News Editor
BILL HOBBS.....Managing Editor
JIM CLOTFELTER, BILL WUAMETT—News Editors
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor
CHUCK MOONEY.....Feature Editor
HARRY LLOYD.....Sports Editor
ED DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
GARRY BLANCHARD—Contributing Editor

BUSINESS STAFF

TIM BURNETT....Business Manager
MIKE MATHERS—Advertising Manager
JIM EVANS..Subscription Manager
JIM ESKRIDGE—Circulation Manager

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations. It is entered as second-class matter in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant with the act of March 8, 1870. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester, $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to the United Press International and utilizes the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

BOOK REVIEW:

JFK Has Responsibility Of Which He Wrote Twenty Years Ago

"Why England Slept:" John F. Kennedy, 1940, Wilfred Funk, Publisher.

A country's defense program has on more than one occasion determined that country's power at a conference table. In the case of England in 1940 it was rather her unpreparedness that led to a policy of appeasement which culminated in the now famous Munich conference in September, 1938.

This, at least, was the thesis of John F. Kennedy, who after just two years in England was able to write this scrupulously objective work; his conclusions were based on a thorough knowledge of British institutions although he had spent the greater part of his university days at Harvard. This work was Kennedy's graduate thesis which earned him honors in International Relations. The book, moreover, was acclaimed in 1940 as a best seller and has just been reprinted.

* * *

The relevance of the book today is obvious. Kennedy's object was to penetrate a little deeper into the emotionalism that accompanied the Chamberlain policy at Munich.

It was his belief, after carefully reviewing many facts and figures, that Britain's weak bargaining position in 1939 could be accounted for by her inability to go to war at that time. The logical reason for this could be found in the principles that make up capitalism and democracy.

The economic system, the position of labour, and traditional foreign policy were all more important than the decisions of leaders; although there was lack of foresight and misjudgment on the part of Britain's leaders, the political institution was such that at any time these leaders could have been replaced had the members of Parliament and the British people felt that this was necessary. In November 1935 there had been a General Election and the people had registered no dissatisfaction with the Government's policy. In 1939 Churchill replaced Chamberlain; by this time it was too late . . . England was at war.

The lessons that could be learnt from England's failure to rearm were directed by the author to American and Englishman alike. "We cannot escape the fact that democracy in America, like democracy in England, has been asleep at the switch".

There had been inherent weaknesses of England's institutions in the face of a belligerent totalitarian nation. The constitutional structures of England and America had much in common and it was Kennedy's wish to reveal these factors and present them in relation to England's plight in 1939.

"Democracy and capitalism are institutions which are geared to a world at peace. It is our problem to find a method of protecting them at war."

Little could he realize that just 20 years later this would be his responsibility.

—TIM TETLOW

Greece Tries To Remain Aloof From Red Neighbors

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When Nikita Khrushchev remarked that war would not spare the famed Acropolis of Greece, he did not endear himself to the Greeks nor did he frighten them.

Nor did the Greeks tremble in the first few days of this year when the Soviets demanded a blueprint of the Greek military structure on the grounds that it could pose a threat to Soviet borders.

* * *

The answer was a firm suggestion to the Russians that they mind their own business.

As a nation firmly aligned with the West through NATO, and more lately through association with the European Common market, Greece tries to remain as aloof as possible from its Communist neighbors.

Difficult Position

But, since nearly 25 per cent of Greek export goes to the Soviet Union and other members of the Communist bloc, and she has common borders with three Communist countries, such an attitude is not always easy.

Lately, this geographic proximity has been the cause of more than common interest.

The Soviet Union, occupied in Berlin, in Laos and with internal and party problems, still has found time to probe the western Mediterranean end of the NATO defense line.

As a Balkan nation, Greece also must watch for changes which may occur as a result of the break between the Soviet Union and Albania.

Greece still is in a state of war with Albania and still is pressing its claim to a strip of southern Albania which the Greeks call northern Epirus.

Since its break with the Soviets, Albania has been seeking improved relations with the West, including an offer to resume diplomatic relations with Greece.

YUGOSLAV SITUATION

Since its own civil war and Yugoslavia's break with Stalin, Greece has maintained consistently friendly relations with Yugoslavia. But now Greece suspects a change may be in the making in Soviet-Yugoslav relations, especially since the Soviet-Albanian break.

The alarm bell for Greece was an official Yugoslav suggestion that Greece recognize the existence of a Macedonian minority. Since Yugoslavia has set up Yugoslav Macedonia as a republic of the Yugoslav federation with a language of its own, the suggestion seemed more than a coincidence.

Contributing to any Greek consideration of the Balkan situation is the knowledge that Communist bloc nations still harbor some 70,000 Greek Communist guerillas who fled after the 1946-49 civil war and now are awaiting another chance.

Absence Of 'America Firstism' Book's Most Interesting Feature

Talks on American Law, edited by Harold J. Berman, Vintage paperback, $1.25.

Sixteen members of the Harvard Law School Faculty gave the series of broadcasts to foreign audiences which have been compiled into this book. The talks were sponsored by the United States Information Agency.

The Harvard professors agreed to do the broadcasts on the condition that no censorship should be imposed —"scholarship and propaganda don't mix," said editor Harold Berman. The absence of America Firstism accordingly is the book's most interesting feature.

* * *

The book opens with an historical review of the background of American law, showing its links to English and other European systems. Professor Berman thereby explains to foreign audiences a primary reason for the close U. S.—European relations which the underdeveloped nations often misunderstand.

Trial by jury and all it entails are covered in the next several sections of the book. "Rights of the Accused" is the continuous theme of these sections.

Prof. Roger Fisher had a tricky assignment: to explain to foreign audiences (to whom the East-West power struggle appears largely irrevelant) why the United States places restrictions on the free speech of American Communists and others.

In an excellent portrayal of the U. S. legal position on speech which incites to crime, Fisher said in part, "Even if a speaker intends to accomplish the overthrow of the government and even if his speaking has a tendency to generate action, the speech is permissible so long as it is in fact advocating doctrine rather than inciting to action."

Aimed at those foreign listeners who doubted the sincerity with which the U. S. championed freedom of speech was Fisher's conclusion:

"Let me illustrate that point by exercising some free speech here and now. The Government of the United States today imposes serious restrictions on the liberty of Americans to go to the mainland of China . . . This restriction limits my ability to talk directly with people in China to whom I might wish to talk. . . . I believe the restriction now being imposed by the United States Government is contrary to the principles of the First Amendment . . . I am firmly convinced it is unwise and a serious mistake."

Prof. Arthur E. Sutherland had an even more difficulty task: to explain to the world, which is made up primarily of colored men, why parts of the United States denies full constitutional rights to its colored citizens. Sutherland does an adequate, if not particularly dramatic job.

Sections are then devoted to administrative law, labor law, business enterprise, commercial transactions in American law, property law, the legal profession, and legal education. Too much space is devoted to these subjects which are probably of very little interest to foreign audiences.

The portion on international law is an intelligent appraisal of the U. S. attitude toward the United Nations and foreign countries: hopeful but wary. International law is shown to be more important, according to Prof. Milton Katz when one realizes "the immense importance of differences in degree; the realistic difference between a little better and a little worse, and between a little better still and a little worse still."

Prof. Berman concludes with a section on the philosophical aspects of American law. It is "rationalist, empiricist, idealist, realist, moralist, positivist, individualist, socialist—all at once."

—JIM CLOTFELTER

The All Night Stand

Almost every Carolina student has had the doubtful pleasure of staying up all night to study for a quiz or write a paper.

Professors cannot understand how students get themselves into such a position that they have to stay up all night, but we students know it is easy.

Here is how it happened to me. I knew I had a big night of theme writing ahead of me, and so I ate an early supper so I could get an early start, planning to be in bed by two. I got back from supper a little after six and decided that since I was going to be up so late, I naturally needed a little rest. So I decided to rest until seven.

After the clock shattered my dreams of an A on the already finished paper, I propped myself up and began to think, about my date the next Saturday of course. Then my conscience brought me back to the gruesome topic of my theme, the Carolina Co-ed. When my roommate came in with two other guys and wanted to play bridge, I decided I needed the relaxation to clear my mind, and the bridge game lasted until 10:30.

* * *

THE NEXT half hour was spent convincing my roommate that he should stay up and keep me company; after all his grades were not so good either. Back to the typewriter. At twelve I had the title of my theme, The Carolina Co-ed; I was pretty proud of it. Then my roommate asked me the time, and that naturally reminded me of the trip we were going to take the next summer. One o'clock.

Three sentences and a half hour later another guy came in and said he was studying for a quiz and saw our light. He wanted to know if I had any old Sociology quizzes. No, but I remembered some of the questions. 2:15.

My roommate suggested the three of us go to Durham to get some coffee and scrambled eggs. He was truly an inspired person; I wish he had not flunked out. Anyway the eggs were good, and the coffee counteracted the sleep inducing effects. On the way back to Chapel Hill good old roommate asked if either one of us had seen Hillsboro at night. Neither one of us had and who were we to spoil a spirit of adventure? Hillsboro is rather quiet at 3:30 a.m.

We had just taken in all the fun in Hillsboro, when we noticed a strange little road; and roommate, a descendant of Admiral Byrd, had to see where it went. Well, it led to a little farm town with no stores and worse, no service stations, and we were almost out of gas. So we continued up the road in search of gas.

Did you know that the bus station in Danville, Va. stays open all night? We bought post cards at the bus station and sent them to all our friends back at UNC, unsigned of course.

When we finally found gas, we headed back to UNC. I don't think my car saw less than 100 miles per hour that morning and it still groans when I mention Danville.

We got back at seven, and the theme was written by nine. Good old roommate cut a class to type it for me. I'm sure I never would have gotten a B on it if I had not stayed up all night.

See how it is done, professor?

—DON SHEPPARD

"The Face Is Familiar"

About Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites readers to use it for expressions of opinion on current topics regardless of viewpoint. Letters must be signed, contain a verifiable address, and be free of libelous material.

Brevity and legibility increase the chance of publication. Lengthy letters may be edited or omitted. Absolutely none will be returned.

Kappa Psi's Visit Palsy Hospital

To the Editor,

On Thursday evening, January 11, a small caravan of half a dozen or more cars proceeded down Highway 15-501 enroute to the Cerebral Palsy Hospital in Durham.

These cars contained brothers and pledges of the local chapter of Kappa Psi Pharmaceutical Fraternity, on their way to give a party for the children at the hospital. The youngsters seemed very happy to have these visitors, and they seemed to enjoy the party equally as well.

It was the first they had had since before Christmas. Gifts were presented, refreshments were served, there was lots of talk, and the Kappa Psi's departed with a feeling in their hearts warm enough to melt the snow that lay on the ground outside.

All agreed that it was well worth the trip just to see the radiant smiles on the faces of those children as they talked and played with them. It made them appreciate the many things they have to be thankful for.

Sincerely,

Hal Reaves,
Kappa Psi Pharmaceutical Fraternity

SAYS ILLINOIS PROFESSOR

N.C. Newspapers Are 'Tops'

By LINDA BISER

An Illinois journalism professor who is also a former newspaperman declares North Carolina newspapers are tops.

James N. McClure, associate professor of journalism at the University of Illinois, was a judge with his wife, also a former weekly journalist, in judging the best news stories, features, editorials, and other assets of Tar Heel community newspapers. Prizes were awarded at the N. C. Press Institute at Chapel Hill this weekend.

Prof. and Mrs. McClure congratulated North Carolina weekly editors for their apparent eagerness "to stimulate fellow citizens into needed thought and action."

The judges said "few editors staddled issues or were evasive."

Praise for features also was high. Stories "run the gamut from character analysis to social problems," said the judges.

Editors' Frankness

The judges were impressed by the frankness of North Carolina editors in discussing controversial subjects. "Occasional lapses in grammar, bits of profanity, and infrequent triteness were overshadowed by a zealous probing and analysis of social, economic, and political conditions at home," the judges said.

Editorials further reflected an intense interest in local, state, and national problems and editors were courageous in suggesting solutions to them; or when that seemed infeasible, ideas for improvements.

Judges found "local news was so well covered by the majority of entrants" that awards were made on the basis of "interviews and ferreting out of interesting news bits." "An occasional novel twist or a fresh viewpoint make run-of-th-mill stories interesting," judges said.

Wide Local

A wide diversity of local news coverage was acclaimed chief asset of the top award winner in that division. The prizewinners' survey of sanitary conditions, supporting of housing projects, reports of school and local farm problems, athletic events and sports reflected good reporting, it was said.

Interpretive reporting without apparent loss of objectivity was characterstic of another local news coverage winner.

"Almost perfect informal balance and lots of attractive white space" helped sell judges on the prize-winning advertisement. "Trick photography joined two snapshots of the same girl to attract the readers' attention." It also attracted the judges' attention and an award.

THIEVES STEAL POISON

PARIS (UPI) — Police reported Friday that thieves stole a truck Thursday which carried a package of 500 grams of curare, enough of the deadly poison to kill 25,000 persons. Police made frantic radio and television appeals for its recovery.

Spiders are near-sighted.

Oh No, Not Again!

—Photo by Wallace.

Dominicans Happy Over Counter Coup

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — Thousands of deliriously happy Dominicans surged through the streets of the republic's cities Friday in an uninhibited expression of joy over the counter coup which restored democracy Thursday night.

There were occasional cries of "to the wall" for ousted strongman Gen. Pedro Rodriguez Echavarria who became a public hero when he overthrew Rafael Trujillo Jr., but who fell into disgrace when he overthrew the civilian council of state Tuesday night.

The potential dictator was ousted by an air force coup and the civilian council reinstated under a new president, 57-year-old Rafael F. Bonnelly. President Jeaquin Balaguer resigned and was succeeded on the council by Donald Read Cabral, a young lawyer and member of the opposition Union Civica party.

Names New Chief

Bonnelly took over the presidential palace and named army Col. Victor Ervin Vinias Roman as armed forces secretary to replace Rodriguez Echavarria.

The ousted general was under arrest in the presidential palace but he appeared smiling and jovial. He told the UPI Thursday night the latest coup resulted from his own negotiations with Washington but Dominician sources denied this.

Enrollment Expected To Zoom

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of students clamoring for admission to U. S. colleges has increased steadily over the past five years. Education officials say that is only the beginning.

"From 1959 through 1970 fall enrollment is expected to increase by about 78 per cent," the U. S. Officer of Education said in a recent publication. It painted this picture:

Since 1955 there has been a 35 per cent enrollment increase.

One important aspect was the number of first-time students enrolling. And the number in the college age bracket —18-21—has been mounting even faster.

The so-called "war baby crop" is a big factor in the increase in first-time enrollees. These students were born during and right after World War II. They are now coming of college age.

Figures On Rise

Enrollment figures have been on the rise since 1953, when 2,250,701 students registered. Last year — 1961 — marked the tenth consecutive increase with enrollment totalling 3,891,000.

Regionally, the largest total enrollment has been in the Mideast-Delaware, the District of Columbia, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. The lowest totals were recorded in the Rocky Mountain area.

In 1959, the latest year for which there are accurate figures, the two states with the highest enrollment were California, 408,465, and New York, 338,716. California had a 6 per cent increase. The Far West had the highest relative gain in total enrollment from 1955 to 1959 — a 27 per cent increase. This includes California Oregon, Washington, Arizona, Nevada, Idaho, Utah and Montana.

Highest Gain

There has been a 44 per cent rise in women enrollees since 1955, the Office of Education said. In contrast, there was a 30 per cent rise in men enrollees.

Many institutions are enforcing stricter entrance requirements to screen out less able students. The University of Maryland inaugurated such a program last summer.

Under this plan students applying for admission who have less than a "C" average from high school must take special summer courses to prove their eligibility for college work. They are required to pass both courses, scoring at least a "C" in one. Of more than 350 students who participated in last summer's session, only 176 qualified for admission.

Maryland admitted no "on trial" tudents for the 1961-62 semester for the first time in its history.

Math Professor To Be Leader At Jan. Meet

B. J. Pettis, a UNC professor of mathematics, will moderate a discussion of "Real Analysis" at the Mathematical Association of America meeting in Cincinnati, Ohio, January 24-26.

Six other UNC mathematicians will go to Cincinnati during this time since the Mathematics Society of America also meets there January 22-25.

Prof F. Burton Jones will present to the Society a paper titled "Existence of Small Connected Open Sets with Connected Boundaries." J. S. MacNerney, an associate professor, will present a paper to the Society titled "Integral Equations and Semi-Groups."

Prof Edward A. Cameron, a member of the finance committee of the Mathematical Association of America will attend the joint meeting of the executive and finance committee.

Professor and Chairm a ta5s William M. Whyburn, Kenan Professor and Chairman of the Department of Mathematics will attend meetings of both groups along with Prof. W. Robert Mann.

C. Wayne Patty, an assistant professor will attend meetings of the American Mathematical Society.

Peace

(Continued from Page 1)

for North Borneo and Sarawak; and 40 vocational teachers, librarians and nurse-health educators for Jamaica.

The campus Peace Corps, headed by Jim Wagner, a junior from Knoxville, Tenn., with Anne Queen of the YWCA as staff adviser, will act as host to the conference. National officials of the Corps will provide speakers and program materials. Included in the program schedule will be a luncheon at the Caroilna Inn for those participating.

Exam Schedule

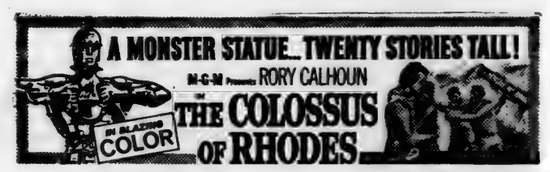
All permits to take examinations to remove grades of "Exc. Abs." or "Cond." must be secured from the Office of Records and Registration prior to the exam. No students may be excused from a scheduled examination except by the University Infirmary in case of illness or by his Dean in case of any other emergency compelling his absence.

All 12:00 noon classes on MWF, *Econ, 81	Mon. Jan. 22	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on MWF, *Econ. 31, 32 61 & 70	Mon. Jan. 22	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Tues. Jan. 23	8:30 a.m.
All 12:00 noon classes on TThs, all *Naval Science and *Air Science	Tues. Jan. 23	2:00 p.m.
All 9:00 a.m. classes on TThs	Wed. Jan. 24	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on TThs, *Poli 41, Busi. 150	Wed. Jan. 24	2:00 p.m.
All French, German & Spanish courses Numbered 1, 2, 3, 3x ? 4, *Phch. 61	Thurs. Jan. 25	8:30 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Thurs. Jan. 25	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Fri. Jan. 26	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Fri Jan. 26	2:00 p.m.
All 10:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Sat. Jan. 27	8:30 a.m.
All 1:00 p.m. classes on MWF *Busi 160, *Phys. 24	Sat. Jan. 27	2:00 p.m.
All 11:00 a.m. classes on MWF	Mon. Jan. 29	8:30 a.m.
All 2:00 p.m. classes on TThS, *Busi 130, *Chem. 43	Mon. Jan. 29	2:00 p.m.
All 3:00 p.m. classes, *Chem. 11, *Busi. 71 & 72, and all classes not otherwise provided for in this schedule	Tues. Jan. 30	8:30 a.m.
All 8:00 a.m. classes on TThS	Tues. Jan. 30	2:00 p.m.

Instructors teaching classes scheduled for common examinations shall request the students in these classes to report to them any conflict with any other examination not later than December 15. In case of a conflict, the regularly scheduled exam will take precedence over the common exam. (Common exams are indicated by an asterisk.)

VARSITY EAST FRANKLIN ST

SUN. - TUE.



Starts Thurs.

"Little girls' room" aboard

(complete, modern restroom on every Trailways bus)

"Little boys" use it too—there's even an outlet for an electric razor. You'll want to freshen up en route. When you arrive on Trailways, you're right in the heart of town. Travel Trailways soon—air-conditioning, reclining seats, picture windows.

easiest travel on earth

From Chapel Hill to:	.1-Way	From Chapel Hill to:	.1-Way
ASHEVILLE	$ 7.45	CHICAGO	$24.25
Thru Express service		Only 1 change enroute
ROCKINGHAM	3.20	WASHINGTON	8.15
Convenient daily service		Thru Express-reserved seats
(Plus tax)		(Plus tax)

Ship by Trailways Package Express. It's faster. Shipments leave on "the next bus"—every day.

UNION BUS TERMINAL
311 W. Franklin Phone 942-3356

TRAILWAYS

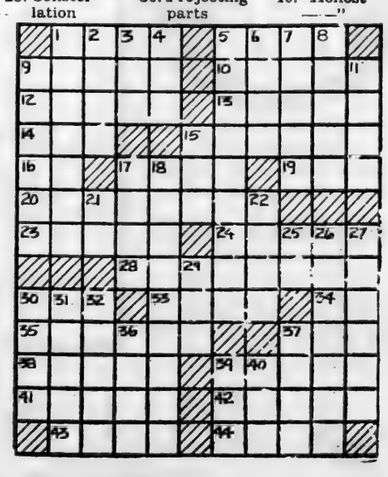
THE SUPER-LINE OF THE NEW SUPER-HIGHWAYS

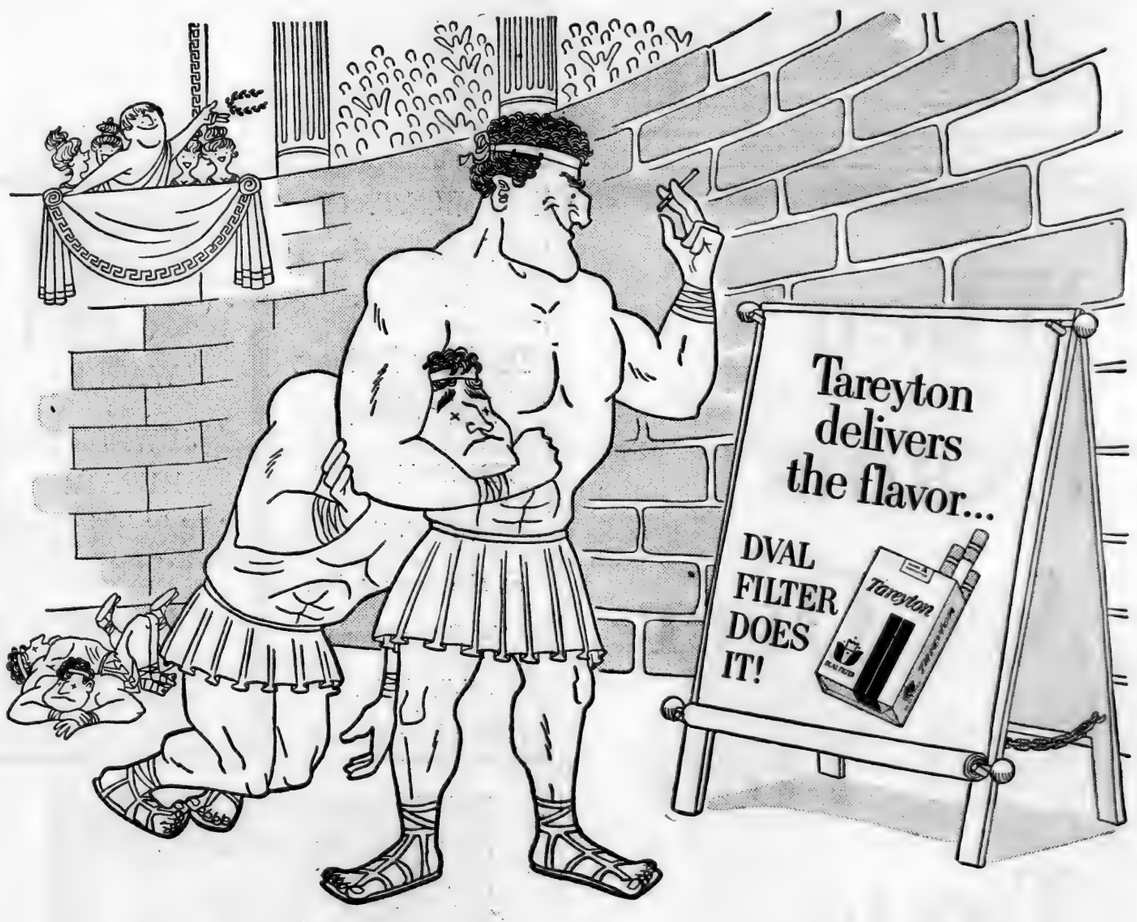
DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Calf's flesh
5. Keats, for one
9. Forest trees
10. Island (New York harbor)
12. Test, as ore
13. Silk-cotton tree
14. Recline
15. Gloss
16. Russian river
17. —— Door Policy
19. Epoch
20. Salad-dressing ingredient
23. Weight (Abyss.)
24. Heart artery
28. Four-fifths of atmosphere
30. Poke sharply
33. Baseball player, Willie ——
34. Perform
35. Confederated
37. Mutton-bird
38. "Jack in the Beanstalk" victim
39. Conductor's wand
41. Twilled fabric
42. Around
43. Never (poet.)
44. Golf-ball elevators

DOWN
1. Apparent
2. Otherwise
3. Miss Gardner
4. To place
5. Monetary
6. Bullfight cries
7. Choice group
8. Italian river
9. Ship's social cabin
11. Girl's name
15. Constellation
17. Dutch ——
18. Outer boundary of an area
21. Neuter pronoun
22. Deposits a new stake (Loo)
25. Right Guard (abbr.)
26. Boring
27. Consecrate with oil
29. Little child
30. Projecting parts
31. Foreign
32. Proclaim loudly
36. "Bus Stop" author
37. Sioux Indian
39. Baseball club
40. "Honest ——"

Yesterday's Answer





POGO

PEANUTS

"Tareyton's Dual Filter in duas partes divisa est!" says Titus (Pretzel Bender) Ursus, darling of the Coliseum crowd. Says Pretzel Bender, "After the amphitheater I relax and have a Tareyton. Amo, amas... everyone amat Tareyton. Et tu will, too. Tareyton's one filter cigarette that really delivers de gustibus."

DUAL FILTER Tareyton

Product of The American Tobacco Company — Tobacco is our middle name

College Attacked In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo (UPI) — Congolese troops and a band of young African fanatics who practice witchcraft attacked 15 Roman Catholic priests and nuns in the northern Katanga village of Sola Friday, the United Nations reported. Sola was in flames and there was no sign of life.

U. N. jet planes swooped low over the town 95 miles north of Kongolo — where 19 Catholic missionaries were massacred New Year's Day — and found army trucks parked in the compound of the mission and school in what a U. N. spokesman called a "disquieting" development.

The village was so far from U. N. forces it appeared impossible help could reach them in time if they had not already been slain. The priests under attack were members of the White Father order and the nuns were Franciscans.

Two Ethiopian U. N. jets made a sweep over the Sola area and reported seeing two Congolese army trucks in the mission yard. The U. N. spokesman said the report was disquieting since it lent credence to reports the mission had been attacked. The Jets were ordered back Saturday.

Village In Flames

The pilots said the village was in flames but that there were no signs of the inhabitants.

The U.N. command also instructed Gen. Victor Lundula in Stanlyville to send troops immediately to Sola to try to rescue the Missionaries.

U. N. military and civilian chiefs met late Friday to consider possible action in Sola. A possible plan to airlift soldiers by helicopter was dropped because it was felt too few could be sent the 200 miles to Sola and the helicopters themselves would be sitting ducks for groundfire.

BAPTIST SERVICES

Worship services are held at the University Baptist Church at 11 a.m. and 7:45 p.m. every Sunday.

It Pays to Advertise!

BASKETBALL COACH LIKES STARS—TWO KINDS! Bob Stevens, coach of the University of South Carolina basketball team, likes basketball stars and the celestial type too. His Gamecock team is shown above at the Morehead Planetarium in Chapel Hill where they were treated with a special presentation of "Scouting The Skies," the current Planetarium show. The last athletic team to see a planetarium show, according to Anthony F. Jenzano, the director, was from the University of Michigan. Stevens was the Michigan coach at that time.

Two Professors Get Extended $73,000 Grant

The Office of Naval Research has extended a $73,000 contract financing a research project headed by Drs. Walter Smith and William J. Hall of the UNC Statistics Department.

The grant is a renewal of a contract held by Drs. Hall and Smith during the previous year. The project concerns the theory of sequential analysis and stochastic or random processes.

These projects have a wide range of applications in scientific research and technology and are specifically related to random phenomena developing in time.

VACCINATES 1,500,000

KARACHI (UPI) — The Pakistani army medical corps said Friday it has vaccinated more than 1,500,000 persons in Karachi in a drive to end a smallpox epidemic which has killed 260 persons since November.

Scientist Says Text Book Full Of Errors

(Unitde Press International)

Science texts for elementary schools are full of technical errors which grade school teachers often don't know enough to catch.

And neither of those seemingly shocking deficiencies makes very much difference.

That's the word of a distinguished scientist who spent part of a summer with a science club of 9 to 12-year-olds and concluded that his own scientific know-how was superfluous in introducing the youngsters to scientific inquiry.

"Science is not a book of answers," writes A. R. Hibbs, California Institute of Technology space scientist, in the Teachers College Record. Nor is it "learning an assortment of technological facts or understanding understandable explanations for commonplace natural phenomena."

* * *

It is rather "a method of learning . . . the counterpart of experiment and theory, the basic concept "if you want to know how it works, try it and see." It is curiosity and "an attitude of doubt."

These qualities can be encouraged by any good teacher, regardless of how abysmal the teacher's ignorance about the subject matter of science, Hibbs said.

His summer scholars built telescopes and experimented with optics, did chemical experiments in combustion, visited a wind tunnel, learned a little about using a slide rule and watched a chicken dissected.

Asked Questions

When they asked a question they were likely to be told:

"That's an excellent question. I don't know the answer. Why don't you try to find out?"

"There was nothing in the conduct of these sessions which required a scientific background on the part of the adult participants," Hibbs said. "In fact, an elementary grade teacher with an easier and more relaxed approach toward children of this age group would very likely have done a better job at it . . .

"I suggest that the teacher permit the students to teach her science. Whether the student learns this science by reading reference material in the school or in the library or whether he reaches his conclusions on the basis of his own observations and thought is unimportant.

It is also unimportant whether or not the facts which he thinks he learns are correct or incorrect.

What does matter is the way in which he arrived at his conclusions. Were his observations reasonably thorough?? Were his thought processes logical? Did he understand what he read?

The errors of the texts or the teacher are immaterial if the student understands the possibility that they are errors, Hibbs said. The "facts" will surely have changed before the youngster becomes a scientist. And, Hibbs said, the student "should be encouraged to believe that regardless of how unmistakable a particular result appears, scientific problems are seldom conclusively answered. If he achieves this basic approach to knowledge then his scientific education is well begun."

JEWISH SERVICES

Sabbath Day services are held at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Hillel House.

SHE HAS A REASON

Teacher Glued To TV Set?

If a teacher in the WUNC-TV area sits in front of her television set more than usual this year it may be because she is improving her teaching abilities.

She may be enrolled in a new and well-researched in-training program that will be offered by the University during the spring semester begining on February 13. It is a television course in Audio-Visual Education that will carry three undergraduate credits.

Charles Milner, director of the University Extension Division, who is acting as course coordinator, emphasized that the course is for classroom teachers in elementary schools who are currently teaching.

Others may enroll, however, by special permission from the course coordinator.

Training Method

The unusual training method employs the best qualities of audio-visual techniques, educational television and written laboratory reports (for testing). It consists of forty-two filmed television lessons prepared by a team of eight experts in the field of audio-visual education.

The lessons will be broadcast on a schedule of three lessons per week for fourteen consecutive weeks. In addition to viewing these lessons, the student will be required to submit a series of nine written laboratory reports.

Passage of the National Defense Education Act of 1958 has stimulated interest in audio-visual education throughout the nation. Materials used in this course were developed and produced with the help of funds provided by the act.

The TV course lessons were produced by the University of Wisconsin with the help of funds provided by the act.

The TV course lessons were produced by the University of Wisconsin with the cooperation of several other universities and colleges.

1600 Teachers Needed Abroad In Army Schools

1600 teachers are now needed to teach abroad in the Army's dependent schools for a one-year tour of duty.

The Army's greatest need is for primary grade teachers. Also badly needed are high school teachers who qualify in two major fields, librarians, teachers of remedial reading in the elementary grades, physical science teachers and commercial teachers.

Teachers receive $4435 for the school year with additional increments for advanced academic preparation. Rent-free quarters and overseas transportation are provided by the government.

The School of Education is now accepting applications at Peabody Hall.

WORDS FOR WIVES

LEICESTER, England (UPI)— Public Health Inspector Frederick Bullock had a word today for suspicious wives who send him their husband's lipstick-smeared handkerchiefs for analysis.

"Your husband probably did something I've done myself," he said. "He's wiped lipstick from a cup in a cafe."

PRESBYTERIAN SERVICES

Presbyterian services are held at 9 and 11 a.m. every Sunday.

HERD TRAMPLES HOMES

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — A herd of 50 elephants on a foraging raid trampled 24 farm houses, tore up scores of rice paddies and destroyed 39 tons of rice in southern Laos, radio Vientiane reported Friday.

North Carolina is first in the nation in synthetic fibers.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

CRAM TIME
Your best chance of finding the study aid you need
The Book Exchange
Five Points DURHAM
We Buy & Sell All Books

Bonnelly Worked In Trujillo Era

Dr. Rafael Bonnelly has been preparing since the first of the year to take over the leadership of the Dominican Republic.

Bonnelly, 5-7 was the first vice president in the seven-man Council of State formed by deposed President Joaquin Balaguer last Jan. 1.

As such, the gray-haired, distinguished looking scholar and lawyer was being groomed to assume executive duties from Balaguer next month. Two violent coups within three days changed the schedule.

Bonnelly, a teacher and government minister, first entered government service in 1939 when he began a four-year term as a national deputy in the Dominican assembly.

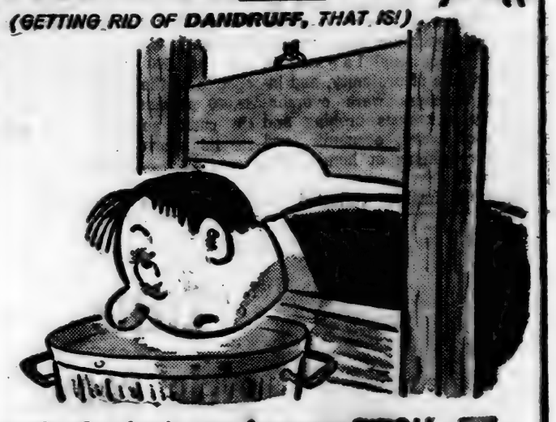
From there, he went on to serve at various times as a senator, minister of labor and the national economy and for a brief period returned to teaching. In 1945, he became a professor at the University of Santo Domingo.

During the 1940's, Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo reached out from his palace and tapped the bespectacled, apparently unassuming attorney to be his minister of interior and police.

Before the 30-year dictatorship collapsed and Trujillo's name was removed even from the name of the republic's capital, Bonnelly had served also as a financial expert and diplomatic adviser.

He headed the council of directors of the Dominican Reserve Banks, became president of the National Economic Council and was a member of the Dominican Foreign Ministry's Consulting Commission.

He was born Aug. 22, 1904 and went to school at the Escuelela Normal Superior de Santo Dominge in 1926. He is married and the father of four children.

DOING IT THE HARD WAY by hoff
(GETTING RID OF DANDRUFF, THAT IS!)


easier 3-minute way for men: FITCH
Men, get rid of embarrassing dandruff easy as 1-2-3 with FITCH! In just 3 minutes (one rubbing, one lathering, one rinsing), every trace of dandruff, grime, gummy old hair tonic goes right down the drain! Your hair looks handsomer, healthier. Your scalp tingles, feels so refreshed. Use FITCH Dandruff Remover SHAMPOO every week for positive dandruff control. Keep your hair and scalp really clean, dandruff-free!
FITCH LEADING MAN'S SHAMPOO

"Beefeaters' Haven"
ANGUS BARN

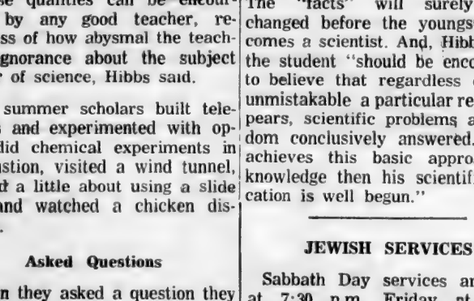
DINING TIME 5:00 PM - 11:00 PM / SUNDAY 5:00 PM - 10:00 PM
RALEIGH-DURHAM HWY. / TE 4-1670

When Exams Are Over Sell Your Texts To The Intimate

The W.S.T. Club Of Greensboro Presents
The Isley Brothers And "Shout"
FRIDAY NIGHT
FEB. 2
at the Desert Inn in Greensboro
8-12 P.M.
$3.00 Per Couple

WATCH and JEWELRY REPAIR
We use the latest electronic and ultrasonic equipment
Years of experience back our guaranteed work.
T. L. KEMP
Jewelry
Phone 942-1331
135 E. Franklin St.

Gibbs-trained college women are first in line in the job market and for future advancement. Special Course for College Women—8½ months. Write College Dean for GIBBS GIRLS AT WORK.
KATHARINE GIBBS
SECRETARIAL
BOSTON 16, MASS. . 21 Marlborough Street
NEW YORK 17, N. Y. . . 230 Park Avenue
MONTCLAIR, N. J. . . 33 Plymouth Street
PROVIDENCE 6, R. I. . . 155 Angell Street



THE SAFE WAY to stay alert without harmful stimulants
Never take chances with dangerous "pep pills." Instead, take proven safe NoDoz®. Keeps you mentally alert with the same safe refresher found in coffee. Yet NoDoz is faster, handier, more reliable. Absolutely not habit-forming. Next time monotony makes you feel drowsy while driving, working or studying, do as millions do . . . perk up with safe, effective NoDoz. Another fine product of Grove Laboratories.

LA PIZZA

Satisfy Yourself Like Mr. Kelly And Eat The Best From LA PIZZA
Carry-Out 967-1451 Delivery

SALE STARTS MONDAY

UNC SEMINAR FINDS

California Liberal In Medical Help For Aged Laws

By ROBERT H. BARTHOLOMEW

Compared to North Carolina, California seems to have some very liberal laws in regard to who should foot the bill for medical assistance to the aged.

Such assistance became available to resident of California this month and the assistance will be furnished by various government agencies. If an elder person receives such assistance, his or her unmarried son would be required to pay part of the bill only if the son had a salary in excess of $535.00 per month. If the son were married, but without children, he would be required to contribute to the medical care of his parents only if his salary were $800.00 a month or more.

These were some of the facts brought out at this week's Student-Faculty Seminar of the UNC School of Public Health by Dr. L.S. Goerke, dean of the School of Public Health of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Coordination Problem

Dr. Goerke said the principal problem in public medical care in California is the lack of coordination among state agencies and between state and county agencies.

The California public health educator, speaking on the subject of "Medical Care, Southern California Variety" brought out many interesting facts that the average Tar Heel citizen has difficulty grasping.

For instance he said, "There are 202 general and short-term mental hospitals in the Los Angeles Metropolitan Region, exclusive of the state and federal hospitals. There are more than 667 nursing homes with 16,819 beds licensed in California. About 200 nursing homes with a total of 6,000 beds are in Los Angeles County alone."

Testing Ground

Dr. Goerke pointed out that California has long had the dubious distinction of serving as a testing ground for innovations in health and welfare programs. The same has been true of group practices, prepayment medical care plans initiated and administered by medical societies, Blue Shield plans unrelated to and competing with Blue Cross plans, private group clinics and union-management plans.

The dean explained other health movements in his state, "A new development is the proliferation of small, commercially sponsored 'health plans' organized as business ventures by non-medical persons. It is essential that we follow closely all innovations in the funetioning of medical care entrepreneur because of the increasing risk of disparity between the consumer's expenditure on medical care and the amounts received by the physician. In other words, more will be spent on medical care with less medical care resulting.

Three Princes Of Laos Agree On Government

GENEVA (UPI) — The three feuding princes of Laos announced agreement Friday on a coalition government aimed at ending the civil war in Laos. The agreement came after U. S. - backed Prince Boun Oum retreated from his previous tough stand.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"SON, I WANT YOU TO KNOW I'VE ALWAYS HAD THE GREATEST RESPECT FOR TH' COLLEGE DEGREE - 'NTIL YOU GOT ONE."

Sanford Predicts Story

(Continued from Page 1)

ren of the High Point Enterprise won first prize for spot reporting among the 118 entries from the large dailies for their entry "Jet Bomber Crashes," and Henry B. Howard of the Greenville Daily Reflector won the prize among the 71 entries from the small dailies for the story "Gunman Robs Bank Branch Here Today."

Second and third place and honorable mention winners for dailies are as follows:

Circulation Over 20,000

Editorials—2, Charles Clay, Raleigh News and Observer; "Grilness and Charity," "Pertinent and Poignant," and series on Loan Sharks; 3, H. Clay Ferree, Winston-Salem Journal & Sentinel: "U.S. Should Act in Its Own Interest, Even at Rick of Offending Others," Series on Race Relations, and Series on Citizenship and Individual Responsibility."

Feature Writing—2, Jack Claiborne, Charlotte Observer; "The Gifted Child"; 3, James Ross, Greensboro Daily News, "Anti-Cussing Law Is Enforced in Randolph County"'

Photography—2, Jim Keith, Winston-Salem Journal, "Campus Concert"; 3, Dave Nicholson, Greensboro Daily News, "Play'n by Ear!!!"

Sports—2, Davis Merritt, Charlotte Observer, "White Became a 'Believer',"; 3, tie between Roy Thompson, Winston-Salem Journal for "The Etiquette of Fox Hunting," and Herman Helms, Charlotte Observer, "Things He Will Someday Admire: Mantle's Homers, Howser's Heart."

Spot Reporting—2, Doug Connah, Charlotte Observer, "The Cutter Trial"; 3, Harry Brandt Ayers, Raleigh Times, "Migrant Workers in North Carolina," a series of six entries.

Under 20,000

Editorials — 2, Eugene Price, Goldsboro News-Argus "J. P. Is No Hero," "Hodgepodge, Hysteria, Patchwork, and Politics," and "Sacrifice Newsman's Legacy"; 3, Howard Goshorn, Wilmington Morning Star: "Good Example Set in Wilmington," "Secrecy in the General Assembly," and "Bread Costs Drop at State Hospital."

Feature Writing — 2, Elwood Peale, Goldsboro News - Argus, "One More for the Road, and Then . . ."; Alvin B. Taylor, Greenville Daily Reflector, "Rare Example of Loyalty."

Photography—2, Paul Lemmons, Shelby Daily Star, "Before the Children Come"; 3, tie between Joe Nesbitt, Wilmington Morning Star, "The North Carolina and Tugs" and Bill Jackson, Salisbury Evening Post, "True Love and Before the Bath."

Sports—2, Norvin H. Collins, Wilmington Morning Star, "Basketball Scandals Have Locust Quality"; 3, James F. Hurley, Salisbury Post, "This Business of Baseball."

Sport Reporting — Stanley Moore, Morganton News-Herald, "Bill Cobb Libel Suit Trial," a series of five; 3, James F. Hurley III, "Farmer John's World of Flame and Thunder"; Honorable Mention, Shelby Daily Star, "It Was a 'Still' Night."

Weeklies

Advertising—1, (Southern Pines) The Pilot; 2, (Brevard) Transylvania Times; 3, Raeford News Journal.

Editorials—1, (Southern Pines) The Pilot; 2, (Troy) Montgomery Herald; 3, (Siler City) Chatham News.

Local News Coverage — 1, Mooreseville Tribune; 2, Leaksville News; 3, (Brevard) Transylvania Times.

News Photography — 1, (West Jefferson) Skyland Post; 2, Franklin Press; 3, Nashville Graphic.

Semi-Weeklies

Advertising — 1, Chapel Hill Weekly; 2, (Ahoskie) Hertford County Herald; 3, (Rockingham) Richmond County Journal.

Editorials—1, (Morehead City) Carteret County News-Times; 2, Smithfield Herald; (3) (Albemarle) Stanly News & Press.

Features — 1, (Morehead City) Carteret County News-Times;; 2, (Asheboro) Courier Tribune; 3, Forest City Courier.

Local News Coverage—1, Chapel Hill Weekly; 2, Elkin Tribune; 3, (Asheboro) Courier Tribune.

News Photography — 1 Elkin Tribune; 2, (Morehead City) Carteret County News Times; 3, (Albemarle) Stanly News & Press.

A total number of 13 entries were submitted for consideration for the Community Service Award. First runner-up was the Charlotte News Winston-Salem Journal and Twin City Sentinel for its entry "Coverage of Education News." Second runner-up wa sthe Charlotte News for "The Drop-Outs," and third runner-up was the Greenville Daily Reflector for "There Was a Need and a Solution; But It Required a Fight."

CLASSIFIED ADS

$75.00 MONTHLY FOR STUDENT who qualifies as roommate and assistant to handicapped senior for spring semester, 1962. If interested, contact Miss Worth, Student Aid Office.

RIDERS WANTED TO FLORIDA —Jacksonville, Gainesville. Leaving 26th or 27th. Call 942-6439.

MALE HELP WANTED: NEAT appearing intelligent man with good personality for saleswork. Can supervise himself and work on his own time. For appointment, call 942-5148, Mr. Herring.

White Defends

(Continued from page 1)

view of the world. When a vote in the United Nations goes against us, these persons call for us to leave the U.N.

"Those are the people who would have us raise tariffs, not lower them," White said.

Fortress America

"By some logic all their own, they call for a withdrawal from Europe and Aisa, a strengthening of the military and at the same time, a cut in the national budget," White continued.

"But we cannot withdraw into a Fortress America."

White, a Chatanooga, Tenn. native blamed "impatience, confusion and frustration and all their consequences" for the rise of anti-Administration feeling in the United States.

Nation's Record

White defended the nation's record in the last decade in its dealings with the Soviet Union.

"In its main expansionist efforts Russia has been halted . . . And the growing signs of Sino-Soviet competition are heartening.

Soviet failures, said White, are often overlooked by those who "cry for the heads of those responsible" for U. S. failures.

Four Problem Categories

The State Department pressman divided international problems into four categories:

"1) Those in which the vital interests of the U. S. are directly involved—as in Berlin or Cuba.

"2) Those where our immediate, vital interests are but one step removed and where a further deterioration would bring our interests to the front—as in the Congo.

"3) Those in which U. S. support is sought by two competing countries with whom we have good relations." In recent years India and Pakistan have competed for U. S. foreign aid, with neither getting all their requests.

"4) The day-in-and-day-out work . . . In trying to build a decent world community these problems, if not cumulatively handled well, could explode to make the Congo look like a tea party."

TV SCHEDULE

WTVD-TV, Channel 11
5:30—WTVD Dance Party
6:30—Roaring Twenties
7:30—Perry Mason
8:30—The Defenders
9:30—Have Gun, Will Travel
10:00—Gunsmoke
11:00—Three Star Final
11:15—Saturday Night Country Style — Jim Thornton

WRAL-TV, Channel 5
6:00—Championship Wrestling
6:30—Porter Wagoner
7:00—Hathaways
7:30—Wells Fargo
8:30—Tall Man
9:00—Untouchables
10:00—Fight of the Week
10:45—Make That Spare
11:00—Dateline
11:10—Movie of the Week "Forever Amber"

WUNC-TV, Channel 4
6:00—Big Picture
6:30—Aspect
7:00—Health
7:30—Dr. Posin
8:00—Overkill
8:30—Transantarctic
9:30—Sign Off

Two snuff boxes have been maintained in the U. S. Senate Chamber more than 100 years. On either side of the rostrum, they are refilled regularly.

La Pizza

Don't Go To Sleep Cramming For Exams, Stay Awake And Call LA PIZZA When You Are Hungry.

Carry-Out 967-1451 Delivery

SIC FLICS

"The Dean will see you now."

21 GREAT TOBACCOS MAKE 20 WONDERFUL SMOKES!
AGED MILD, BLENDED MILD - NOT FILTERED MILD - THEY SATISFY

Get Better Grades With Study Aids

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

FREE FRIED CHICKEN
FREE PIZZA
TUESDAY THRU SATURDAY
ALL NEXT WEEK DURING EXAMS THE
"ZOOM ZOOM"
WILL OFFER YOU AN EXAM SPECIAL EVERY NITE FROM 8-11:30 P.M. BUY ONE LARGE PLAIN PIZZA AND GET ABSOLUTELY FREE YOUR CHOICE OF
ONE LARGE PLAIN FREE PIZZA or
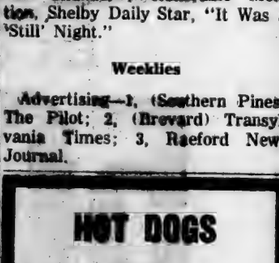
ONE ¼ FREE FRIED CHICKEN BOX
To Take With You To Your Roommate—
A REAL DEAL _ NO STRINGS
"Sorry No Delivery"

HOT DOGS
Only
15c
CAROLINA GRILL
W. Franklin St.

EXAMS
GIVING YOU THE DEVIL?



Send Your Joy to the other Unfortunates With Contemporary Studio Cards
Ledbetter Pickard

Carolina
LAST DAY
A Musical Holiday of Fun for Everyone!
Walt Disney presents VICTOR HERBERT'S BABES IN TOYLAND
SUN. - MON. - TUE
LOLA ALBRIGHT
A COLD WIND IN AUGUST
SCOTT MARLOWE
Adult Entertainment

Announcing . . .
For the first time—
LA PIZZA's Delivery Wagon
Featuring . . .
1. Fast Delivery Service
2. Insulated food container
3. Pizza Delivered HOT

Allow 45 Min. for delivery
LA PIZZA
967-1451
Please have correct change

Trackmen Take On Marines Today In Tin Can

Nine 20-Point Men Pace Murals Action

By JOHN MONTAGUE

A heavy dormitory basketball slate and several volleyball and handball matches wrapped up the fall semester's intramural activity Thursday evening. Action in all three of these sports will resume on Monday, February 5.

A total of nine players hit for 20 points or more in the 23 dorm and grad league cage contests played. Top mark for the day was turned in by Fred Hollinsworth, who bucketed 28 to pace the Parker Pack to a 70-28 rout of the Everett Schmucks. Also aiding the winning cause was J. Woolard with 16.

Jim Blake's 25-point effort boosted the Joyner Blue to a 66-51 triumph over the Library. Wayne Hardy was outstanding in defeat, scoring 24. Southard's 22 points and Tucker's 14 gave the Chem Grads a doublebarreled attack with which they shot down the Physics Fiends, 54-47. The losers, however, had their own big guns, as T. Lewis and L. Snead hit for 24 and 15, respectively.

Cobb rambled over the Rambling Wrecks, 77-39, with John Graham's 24 and Jerry Helms' 18 leading the way. Cronin Byrd netted 23 as Alexander mauled Mangum, 61-46, and Ben Hammett hit for the same total as the Med Maulers soundly thrashed the City Planners, 50-31.

Charles Elkins turned in a 22-point performance to pace the Joyner Tunas to a 50-38 win over the AFROTC Navigators. Ritchie scored 16 for the losers. Markham bagged 22 and Williams got 13 as the Dental Burrs took a 54-48 victory over the Pharmacy. Bottoms was tops for the Pharmacy crew with 18.

Alex Rhodes put 15 points through the meshes, but it was not enough as the Avery Addicts thumped the Joyner Toppers, 45-24. Jim Naughton's 16 points led the Parker Pros to a 40-36 win over the Joyner Fishes, and ex-Wake Forest standout Jerry Steele bucketed 16 to lead the Peacocks to a 39-33 triumph over the Dental Frosh. Don Lineberry had 15 points for the losers.

The Avery Aardvarks edged by the Navy Bowlines, 39-37, with Don Jeffries getting 14 for the winners and Jay Dinsmore bagging 16 for the losers. Jim Rhodes had 13 points in Manly's 36-19 triump over Lewis, and Woodall's 16 led the Winston Whompers to a 48-21 smashing of the Joyner Sardines. A 17-point effort by Buddy Croom sparked the AFROTC to a 41-18 rout of the Tube Steaks, and Bill Lambert's 16 lifted Graham past Old East, 35-29. McNairey had 13 points for the losing quint.

Bob Watkins hit for 16 points, and John Hickey and John Caldwell contributed 15 and 14 respectively, as the Town Touts crushed Everett, 66-39. DeWitt was high man for the losers with 14. Lanier's 13-point output was a big factor in Stacy's 32-31 squeaker over the Navy, and the Manly Alleycats were victorious over the Avery Atrocities, 40-30, with John Smith netting 13.

The Alexander Esquires won over the Ruffin Suiciders, 33-26, and two forfeits and a default completed the day's results. The Grimes Grapes forfeited to the Cobb Cubbies and the History Grads took a forfeit win over the Dental Molars. The Winston Weiners won by a default over the Mangum Mastodons.

In volleyball, Alexander edged by Ruffin in a replay of Tuesday's protested game, and the BSU won over the Ruffin Rutes. In two frat clashes, Pi Lamb downed the ATO Rinkydinks and DU topped Kappa Psi.

Alexander and the Med School advanced in their divisions of the point-system handball tournament Thursday, turning in wins over the Avery Ovaries and the Peacocks respectively.

N-S Doubleheader Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the North-South Carolina doubleheaders in Charlotte on Feb. 16 and 17 are now on sale at the Woollen Gym ticket office. Tickets will cost $1 for each night and will be on sale until Feb. 3. After that date, students will have to purchase tickets at the gate in Charlotte.

Carolina plays Clemson on the 16th, while N. C. State takes on South Carolina. The next day, the Tar Heels tangle with the Gamecocks and State meets Clemson.

The HUB's FINAL WINTER SPECTACULAR

Traditional Ivy Suits

REG. TO $50.00 ---------- NOW $35.88
REG. TO $55.00 ---------- NOW $39.88
REG. TO $60.00 ---------- NOW $42.88

Natural Shoulder Sportscoats

100 PERCENT WORSTED WOOLS

REG. TO $30.00 ---------- NOW $19.88
REG. TO $35.00 ---------- NOW $23.88
REG. TO $40.00 ---------- NOW $26.88

Olive Collegiate Blazers

Top Coats

100 PERCENT IMPORTED WOOLS
COMPLETELY WATER PROOF

REG. TO $49.50 ---------- NOW $39.99
REG. TO $42.75 ---------- NOW $34.99
REG. TO $39.95 ---------- NOW $29.99

Dress Shirts—B.D. or Tab

ONE GROUP — 3 FOR $8.97

REG. TO $4.00 ---------- NOW $2.99
REG. TO $5.00 ---------- NOW $3.99

One Group Dress and Sportshirts
$1.99

Sweaters — Sweaters — Sweaters
BUTTON CARDIGAN — V-NECK — CREWS
REG. TO $16.95 ---------- NOW $6.88 TO $12.88

Dress Slacks
FREE ALTERATIONS
100 PERCENT WORSTED WOOLS
REG. TO $15.95 ---------- NOW $7.99 TO $12.88

It's Big — It's Spectacular
It's the Sale

The HUB of Chapel Hill

103 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-1252

Daily Tar Heel

Page Six Saturday, January 20, 1962

Undefeated Frosh Play Again At Duke

By ED DUPREE

The scoring of Billy Cunningham and the shooting of Jay Neary were the highlights of the first semester for Coach Ken Rosemond's undefeated basketballers.

Cunningham, whose freshman eligibility has terminated, is the top scorer on the team for the first ten games with a 20.7 average. The 6-4 New York connected on exactly 50 per cent of his 162 field goal attempts, led the team in rebounding, and was a defensive menace when opposing big men attempted their shots.

Jay Neary, the quick-handed Cambria Heights, N. Y., guard, sports the team's loftiest shooting percentage and an 18.1 average. Neary has hit 75 of 132 shots from the floor for a .568 percentage. Neary is the number two man on the foul line with a .689 mark on 31 of 45 free tosses.

Pantego's Ray Respess has missed only four free throw attempts out of 29 for a .862 mark from the line. The high-jumping forward is third from the floor with a .551 standard. Respess has completed 59 of 107 field goal attempts for a 14.3 average.

Bill Brown is the fourth Tar Baby starter in double figures. The Durham boy is averaging 12.4 a game and is right behind Neary in percentage with a .556 mark. Brown has made good on 40 of 72 floor shots and has pulled down his share of rebounds from his guard position.

The fifth starter, Pud Hassell, still owns the distinction of never playing in a losing ball game. Hassell played the roundball game for three years at Beaufort and his high school team racked up 76 wins in a row. The ten straight wins at UNC have stretched the streak to 86 and Hassell has been a big man in every game. The 6-3 guard is averaging 7.7 a game for the Tar Heel frosh.

Guard Bill Taylor of Cary has been a valuable sizth man for Rosemond and should be a starter for the final six games. Taylor holds a 4.9 average for eight games and is hitting .548 from the floor where he has made 17 of 31 shots. On the foul line he has missed only one of six tries for a .833 mark.

The Tar Babies are shooting a sizzling .514 from the floor, but only .650 on the foul line. They hold a 79.1 scoring average and have held their opponents to 64.3 for an average win margin of almost 15 points a game.

Frosh action resumes at Durham on Feb. 3 when the Tar Babies compare talents for the second time with Duke's Blue Imps. The Imps, coached by Bucky Waters, fell to Rosemond's sparklers, 74-62, in their first meeting, for their only loss of the season.

Swimmers Whip ECC As Mann Sets Mark

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

UNC's ace backstroker Thompson Mann established a new ACC record in his 200 yard specialty Wednesday night as the Tar Heel mermen trounced East Carolina College 73-22.

Mann, a sophomore from Hickory, Va., who also holds a national freshman record in the 100 yard backstroke, was timed in 2:06.2, breaking by one-tenth of a second the old mark, set by Carolina's Charlie Krepp.

Coach Pat Earey's splashers, who romped to ten first places, while posting their fifth straight win, were deprived of a complete whitewash when the Tar Heel 400 medley relay team was disqualified in the first event.

Senior Bryan Williams shared the spotlight with Mann, who also won the 200 yard individual medley as a double winner. The Stanford, Conn. native took both the 50 and 100 yard freestyle sprints.

Freestyle distance man Frank Lea, who had been a double winner the last two times out, won the 440 free but droppd the 200 free to teammate Arthur Merrill. Merrill whose brother Harrison is following in Mann's footsteps as a record-smashing freshman freestyler, was timed in 2:17.5.

The Summary:

400 yard Medley Relay — ECC (Zschau, Bennett, Barefoot), 4:11.1

200 yard Freestyle — 1. Merrill (UNC), 2. Lea (UNC), 3. Barter (ECC). 2:17.5

50 yard Freestyle — 1. Williams (UNC), 2. Sober (ECC), 3. Cone (UNC). 23.8

200 yard individual Medley — 1. Mann (UNC), 2. Bromwell (UNC), 3. Zschau (ECC) 2:15.6

Diving — 1. Fambrough (UNC), 2. Kingrey (ECC) 3. Patterson (UNC) 192.40.

200 yard Butterfly — 1. King (UNC), 2. Bloom (UNC), 3. Bennett (ECC) 2:19.2

100 yard Freestyle — 1. Williams (UNC), 2. Cone (UNC), 3. Roberts (ECC) 53.9

200 yard Backstroke — 1. Mann (UNC), 2. Zschau (ECC), 3. Huffman (UNC). 2:06.2 (NEW ACC, UNC POOL RECORD)

440 yard Freestyle — 1. Lea (UNC), 2. Merrill (UNC), 3. Bennett (ECC) 5:03.1

200 yard Breastroke — 1. Briggs (UNC), 2. Fink (UNC), 3. Bear (ECC) 2:33.8

400 yard Freestyle Relay — UNC (Bloom, Murray, Wells, J. Mummaw)

Milton's
Last Call
To Winter

Will Be In Full Swing Through Exams

Relax while dropping gold on sharp rags.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY

BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M.

at the RANCH HOUSE

Recommended By Duncan Hines and Gourmet

NC 86 AIRPORT RD. the Ranch House OPEN CHARCOAL HICKORY PIT BROILING PRIME WESTERN STEAKS FLAMING SHISHKEBAB & BEEFKEBAB

Can Eat— It's A All You Treat Cowboy

Ranson Says Competition To Be Good

A star-studded track team of Quantico Marines invades Chapel Hill today to meet Coach Dale Ranson's runners in a pre-season indoor meet in the Tin Can.

Events will get underway at 1:30 p.m. with the pole vault, shot put, and broad jump. Hurdles, dashes and relays will follow and the distance runs will wind the meet up at 4 p.m.

Although quite optimistic about the Tar Heels' chances this year in ACC competition, Ranson feels that the extremely potent and tough competition" of the Marines will outclass his strong U.N.C. team.

Carolina's top pole-vaulters Barry Tiedeman and Heath Whittle, who have both cleared 14 feet, will face such formidable opponents as the Marines' Uelses, National AAU Outdoor Champion, and Dooley. Both of these men have vaulted over 15 feet six inches.

In the shot-put, Carolina's Harvey Henry, 205 pounds and capable of a 45-foot heave, will throw against former Maryland star Nick Kovalkides and his teammate Hart, both of which have putted the shot 54 feet.

Carolina's John O'Bannon, who is the conference champion in the oroad jump, will be a close favorite in that event if he can match his 22-foot performances of the past. He will be backed up by jumpers Bill Croom and Dick Lewisohn.

Ranson feels good about the chances of his sophomore high-jumpers Tom Clark and Rein Harkerma. Clark has cleared six feet six inches, while Harkema recently placed second in the high jump at the Richmond AAU track meet.

In the sprints and hurdles, Assistant Coach Joe Hilton feels the boys "look much stronger than in recent years." He and Coach Ranson will be depending on veterans Jim Brown, Bob Hart, John Lindley and Wilfred Turner, backed up by Bill Croom, Tom Brooks, and Joe McLamb.

Quantico's Cary Weisinger, former Duke ace who has run the mile in 4:03, will be favored to outlast Tar Heel Gerry Stuver, 4:12.7, and Little, who has been timed at 5:17.6. These two distance runners can be expected to turn in winning performances in ACC meets later in the season. In the mile and two mile relays, distance runners Scott Brent, Charles Brunson, Mike Folk, Bob Bennett, Carmine Lunetta and Rett Everett will run for Carolina against strong Marine competition.

Coach Ranson thinks Saturday's competition will provide an afternoon of excellent entertainment, especially with the presence of Quantico's "extremely talented, top-flight ex-college performers."

Concerning the season campaign, Ranson said, "We think our chances in conference meets in 1962 will be considerably better than they have been since 1955. We plan for our club to pose a real threat to Maryland this year."

TENNIS MEETING

Tennis Coach Don Skakle has announced that there will be a meeting of all varsity and freshman candidates on Feb. 6 in 304 Woollen Gym at 4 o'clock.

Hot Shooting UNC Resumes Play Against Duke On Feb. 3

League leading North Carolina could take a breather now—if it weren't for the examination period. The Tar Heels don't get back into ACC action before meeting Duke in Durham on Feb. 3.

Therefore, when Carolina and Duke collide in Duke Indoor Stadium, first place will again be at stake. Carolina owns a 5-1 win in the conference, and Duke is tied for second with Wake Forest. These teams both have 4-1 marks.

Statistics of the games to date show why the Tar Heels are on top. Mainly, they have been making their shots.

In eight games, Carolina has shot 450 times. They have been accurate on 225, or exactly half of them. Opponents have connected on only 206 of 486 shots for a 42.4 percentage.

UNC also leads in rebounding, 345 to 330, or also two a game better than their foes. Carolina men have committed fewer fouls (171-191) and have scored more free shots (174-131) for a better percentage (68.5-59.3).

Larry Brown is the scoring leader for the Tar Heels, but two of his teammates are close behind. Brown has scored 133 points for a 16.6 average, and leads the team in foul shooting acuracy with 49 of 59 from the line (83.1 pct.).

Jim Hudock leads the team in field goals with 46, but is second in scoring with a 16 point average. Don Walsh, who is now near the top of the nation's list in fieldgoal shooting with a 62.9 mark (44 of 70), is third in scoring with a 14.5 average.

Bryan McSweeney has an 11.1 mark, Jim Donohue 7.6, and Mike Cooke 7.5. Hudock leads in rebounds over McSweeney, 82-58.

Introducing

Horlacher Pilsner Beer

Now, Chapel Hill's residents can enjoy true Pilsner beer from the Pennsylvania Dutch Country. All across town, say "Make Mine Horlacher, Please"

PA Distributed by Distributors, Inc. Chapel Hill, N. C.

Tired of Studying?

JOIN Kemp's RECORD PARTY

ALL MONO AND STEREO LP's

50% OFF BOTH STORES

Special London Table—$1.49

OPEN TIL 9 P.M. TONIGHT

LA PIZZA'S EXAM WEEK Menu — We Like to Deliver

Our Famous Continental Pizza

Mozzarella Cheese ... The basic pizza	.95	1.50
Pepperoni ... Zesty and flavorful	1.30	1.95
Ground Beef ... The All-American	1.30	1.95
Sausage ... Spicy and popular	1.30	1.95
Mushroom ... Somewhat blander	1.30	1.95
Green Pepper ... Tasty and colorful	1.30	1.95
Anchovy ... Demands cultivated taste	1.30	1.95
Olive ... The Greeks knew	1.20	1.80
Onion ... Depends	1.20	1.80
Added Ingredients (Pizzas may be obtained ½ one ingredient, and ½ another)	.10	.20

Specials

Spaghetti or Ravioli with meat sauce—large	1.00
Spaghetti or Ravioli with meat sauce—small	.50
Garlic Bread—each order	.20
Tossed Salad or Head Lettuce salad with eitner French, Italian, Catalina or La Pizza Roquefort dressing	.35

Sandwiches

1. LA STRAMI SPECIAL .75 — A gourmet's delight. An assortment of pastrami, salami, provolone cheese, lettuce, tomato, mayonnaise, and garlic butter.
2. Sausage .55 — Mild Italian sausage
3. Cooked Ham, with lettuce .45, with tomato .50
4. Hot Pastrami, with lettuce and mustard .50
5. Salami, with lettuce and mayonnaise .40
6. Lettuce and Tomato .30

EXTRA—For Delivery Only

Giant LA PIZZA Burger	.50
Giant LA PIZZA Cheese Burger	.55
Hot or Cold Turkey Sandwich	.60

(All three EXTRAS served with lettuce and tomatoes)

Beverages

Soft Drinks delivered	.15
Milk ½ pt.	.15
Milk 1 qt.	.35
Coffee or tea	.15

Famous named b__r — (no delivery)

LA PIZZA
967-1451

Delivery charge 40c

Orders over $5—Free Delivery

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

84

Inconsistency

See Edits, Page Two

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
Continued cold, posible rain

Offices in Graham Memorial | TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1962 | Complete UPI Wire Service

Faculty:

MacIntosh Will Speak On Job Applications

Professor Fred H. MacIntosh will speak on "Effective Application Letters" in 105 Gardner at 7:30, Thursday. Dr. MacIntosh, now teaching business writing and other courses in the English Department, has had experience as a writing consultant in business, industry and government. Mrs. Justin Fuller, Assistant Director of the Placement Service, invites all interested seniors to attend.

Mr. Jack Cowan of the Research Laboratory of Electronics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will speak on "Information Theory and the Nervous System" in room 310 Phillips Thursday at 4 p.m. Mr. Cowan is presently working on the application of information theory and statistical mechanics to biology.

Dr. S. Shepard Jones, and Dr. Charles B. Robson of the Political Science Department will discuss the Berlin situation on WUNC radio's "Carolina Roundtable" Thursday from 7 to 8 p.m. with Dr. Leopold Koziebrodzki of the History and Economics Departments. Listeners are invited to phone questions in to the panelists during the program, which will be carried on carrier-current and at 91.5 on the FM dial. The station's phone number is 942-3172.

Professor Robert A. Fairthorne, Senior principal Scientific Officer in the English Ministry of Aviation, and presently a visiting research professor at Western Reserve University, will speak on "Some Formal Problems of Information Retrieval" in room 312 phillips, at 4 p.m. February 15.

Budget Revision Eases School Financial Crisis

By GARRY BLANCHARD

The Orange County Board of Commissioners today averted an imminent financial crisis in the Chapel Hill school system by unanimously approving a budget revision based mainly on teacher salary supplement cuts.

The action wiped out an anticipated school board operating deficit of nearly $27,000. Under state law, indvidual board members could have been held personally liable for the shortage.

School board chairman Dr. Kempton Jones told the commissioners the revision not only assures a balanced budget, it also will result—with one exception—in the board being able to meet all its financial obligations for the remainder of the fiscal year.

The exception, he said, is a flat $200 across-the-board cut in teacher's salary supplements, including that of school superintendent Dr. Joseph Johnston.

But, Jones added, every effort will be made to restore the cuts from the revised budget's expanded contingency fund and from any other funds which become available, including any in the next year's budget.

To further balance its budget, Jones said, the board decided to release five pregnant teachers for whom replacements will not be hired, and made minor reductions in other areas, which had already been trimmed.

Senate Vetoes College Aid Bill Religious Item

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate eliminated one item of religious controversy from President Kennedy's college aid bill Monday by voting to limit the assistance to purely educational, nonsectarian facilities.

Another such issue remained, however: A proposed amendment which would deny loans of any kind to private or church schools. Its sponsor, Sen. Sam Ervin, Jr., (D-N.C.) indicated he would press for a separate vote on this.

The earlier amendment, approved by voice vote, would allow private or church-supported schools to receive funds, but only if they were used for strictly nonreligious purposes.

Junior Class Party

Junior Class Officers Bob Reardon, Richard Vinroot and Beth Walker here sign a contract with Doug Clark, leader of the Hot Nuts combo, for the Junior Class comba party at the American Legion Hut Friday night. The party is open to the public, and there will be an admission charge of 50c for all persons.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Capital Seminar Forms Available

Applications are still open for the YM-YWCA's Washington seminar and may be filled out at the YMCA office today and Wednesday.

All seminar participants have been asked to attend a preparatory meeting Wednesday night at 7 in the YMCA cabinet room in the Y-building.

The topic of this year's seminar is, "The New Frontier and the Challenge of Africa." In Washington, the group will meet with officials of the Ghanian and Nigerian embassies, officers of the Peace Corps, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and James Reston, Washington Correspondent for the New York Times.

The group will also attend a session of Congress and delegates will have an opportunity to meet congressmen and senators from their home districts.

The seminar group will leave for Washington Thursday afternoon by chartered bus at 5 p.m.

Reds To Draft

BERLIN (UP) — Communist East Germany Monday ordered half a million young East Germans to register for 18 months compulsory military service to strengthen the Communist armed forces.

East German Defense Minister Karl Heinz Hoffman has stated that conscription would not push the Communist armed forces over a ceiling of 90,000 men, but West German Defense Ministry figures say the East Germans already have 200,000 men under arms.

IBM Automation Speeds Grades

By CHRIS FARRAN

Automation has come to Chapel Hill . . . but fear not, it has yet to put anyone out of a job.

The new data processing machines at Hanes Hall are faster, neater, more accurate, and more flexible than the human hand. Given a little experience and some good luck, the computors will also be brave, clean, loyal, cheerful and friendly.

Meanwhile, the IBM machines busy themselves from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. by tabulating fall semester grades setting up spring semester class rolls, sorting cards for drop-add, and doing all this with a speed that makes folks look human.

Fall Grades

The first grades for the fall semester began arriving from instructor's offices at around 1:00 p.m. Saturday. By mid-afternoon of Monday, Feb. 5 the tabulations were complete: a job done in 15 hours by IBM which once took two weeks by hand.

This is the first full semester's work for the machines, a semester that is costing UNC $2,000 a month for the rental of the data processors. The computors are rented from IBM and are serviced by IBM technicians. But the cost is well worth it, according to John Greene of the processing center.

Flexibility and Speed

Greene stressed the flexibility of the machines in addition to their speed and accuracy. The computers can tabulate Chapel Hill long-distance telephone calls, student aid, grade distribution, grade point lists, and address cards; can sort student's class cards according to courses, sex, year, or virtually any other grouping that can be "programmed" into them; can match one class card or grouping of data with another or merge all information onto a single card; can calculate and record grade point averages and print information from punched cards.

The machines are not grading quizzes nor are they being used for class registration. The human element still has its place.

It's just that we look so retarded next to those damn machines.

Tryouts For 'Deadly Game' Begin Today

Try-outs for The Petite Dramatique's presentation of The Deadly Game will be held today at 4 and 8 p.m. in Gerrard Hall. The Play will be given March 3 and 4.

The Deadly Game by James Yaffe, adapted from the novel Traps by Frederich Duerrenmatt, concerns "three retired men of law on a remote mountain in Switzerland who amuse themselves by going through the legal ceremony of prosecuting strangers who drop in." An American salesman becomes their guest for the evening and the foolish "deadly game" becomes a phantom of reality.

The cast calls for six men and one woman. Each is an excellent character role. No exact physical types are required and the older roles will be played by students.

Character make-up will be created for the production by Leilani Thornburg, a graduate student in the department of dramatic art.

The production will be directed by Wesley Van Tassel, a graduate student studying directing. The entire production will be student produced.

LEGISLATURE
The Student Legislature will meet tonight at 7:30 on the fourth floor of New East. Hank Patterson requests that all representatives be present.

Campus Briefs

Ford Loans

The Ford Foundation Friday announced a five-year, $8 million program of forgivable loans and other aid to doctoral engineering students preparing to be engineering teachers. For further information, contact Richard Magat or Willard Hertz, The Ford Foundation, 477 Madison Avenue, New York 22, N. Y.

Applications are still available for the Goettingen Scholarship program sponsored by the YMCA. Forms may be picked up at the main circulation desk in the library, at the Graham Memorial Information Desk and at the office of the Germanic Languages department, and the Y. The deadline for the return of applications is February 19.

Dance Lessons

Foster Fitz-Simmons of the Dramatic Arts department is offering dance lessons, beginning today at 2 p.m., in Memorial Hall. The class will meet every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoon from 2 to 3:30. The cost will be $10.00 for the semester. Interested persons may talk to Mr. Fitz-Simmons this afternoon in Memorial Hall at 2.

Sketch Class

George Kachergis, an associate professor in the Art department, will teach an evening sketch class this semester. Open to townspeople and students, novice and advanced, the first meeting will be at the Ackland Art Center, Wed., at 7 p.m. Tuition is $15. The class will meet for 18 weeks.

Campus Chest

There will be a meeting of the Solicitations Committee of the Campus Chest tonight at 8 in the Y.

SSL

There will be a meeting of the State Student Legislature delegation Thursday afternoon at 4 in Graham Memorial's Roland Parker I. According to a member of the SSL Council, all persons who plan to go must attend this meeting.

Orientation

Interviews will be held today and Wednesday, 3-5 p.m. for the selection of the 1962 Orientation Chairman. Interested students are asked to drop by Student Body President Bill Harriss' office on the Second floor of GM for an informal interview.

UN Delegates

United Nations Model General Assembly Delegates will meet on the second floor of the Y building at 7 tonight. Applications are still available upstairs in the Y.

Philological Club

The Philological Club will meet tonight at 7:45 in the Faculty Lounge of Morehead Planetarium. W. L. Wiley of the Department of Romance Languages will present a paper entitled "Rabalias, Philosopher and or Buffoon." Sturgis Leavitt, club president, invites all faculty members, graduate students, and members of their families.

Folk Festival

The Fourteenth Carolina Folk Festival will be held in Memorial Hall May 5 at 8 p.m., according to the Folklore Council, Dr. A. P. Hudson, Chairman. Dr. Norman Cordon will direct the 1962 festival.

WRC

Women's Residence Council will meet at 6:30 this evening in GM's Grail Room.

Infirmary

Students in the Infirmary yesterday were: Jean Parker, Drena Edwards, Lyna Rogers, Hilda Callaway, Arthur Saboski, James Blake, Leslie Bailey William Parker Marvin Wachs Morton Powell, Spencer Wommack, James Oldham, Douglas McArthur and Nicholas Holland.

Seven Cases Heard

Men's Council Sentences Four During Exam Period

Probation Given In Defraud Case

By LLOYD LITTLE

A UNC sophomore was sentenced by the Honor Council to indefinite probation after he pleaded guilty to attempting to defraud the Chapel Hill Telephone Co.

The trial for the honor code offense was held Tuesday, Jan. 30, during the semester break. The full council of 14 including Chairman George Campbell was present for the open trial.

Junior Mike Lawler, a member of the Honor Council, had disqualified himself from the council to act as the sophomore's defense attorney.

The sentence of probation forbids the student to represent the University in any capacity, belong to any activity or student organization, or to participate in intramural sports.

The sophomore pleaded guilty but asked the council for clemency.

A representative of the attorney general's staff read a statement by a telephone official which said that on January 20, the sophomore placed a long distance call to Cambridge, Mass.

Wrong Number

According to the statement, the operator checked the Washington, D. C. number to which the call was charged and told the student he had given her a wrong number. The student admitted that he then began an "extended bluff," giving fictitious names for his parents in Washington.

After some time, the operator, at the student's request, charged the call to the party in Cambridge. A few minutes later a representative of the telephone company drove a truck to the house from where the call was placed and called the residence by phone.

The sophomore testified he then admitted making the call and asked the official not to report the offense.

The student told the council that two days later Dean of Student Affairs William Long called him to his office and told him the telephone company had reported the incident. The student said he then turned himself in to the attorney general.

The statement of the telephone company reported the operator as saying the sophomore said something about "I've done it again." In answer to a question about this from the council, the sophomore said it referred to a joke about the number of long distance phone calls that he made.

As A 'Prank'

The student contended the call was placed on the "spur of the moment" and as a "prank!" In his statement, he said the call was not premeditated nor made with a malicious intent, and therefore, he "did not think of my action as an honor code violation."

In answer to a council question, he said he would not have voluntarily turned himself in.

Over a dozen written character statements and four character witnesses were presented by the defense.

In summation Lawler asked the council to consider four points:

(1) The student did give his name and accept responsibility for the call.

(2) The call was placed as a "lark", a "prank".

(3) There was no evidence of previous attempts to defraud the company.

(4) The entire past conduct of the student, according to the character witnesses had been "responsible". Lawler also brought out the small charge for the call. (The student testified the call cost "less than $2.")

After about 20 minutes of deliberation the council returned the verdict of guilty and the sentence of indefinite probation.

The council chairman reminded the student of the right to appeal and that he could apply at any time for removal from probation.

Two Are Found To Be Innocent

Four students were put on indefinite probation, two students were found innocent and one case was continued by the Men's Council during the recent exam period.

Attorney General Al Cronenberg said there had been twice as many Honor Council cases during last year's spring exam period than there were this year.

This exam period the attorney general's office was open for six hours each day so cases could be reported. Last spring the office was not open.

The council put a student on probation for "ungentlemanly conduct," in violation of the Campus Code, while on the campus of Woman's College in Greensboro. He had been turned in by the dean of students at WC.

Two students were put on indefinite probation for cheating on religion and mathematics exams, respectively. Each had pleaded guilty and had reported himself.

The council found two students accused of cheating on a Spanish final, not guilty. The department had turned them in.

A student pleaded guilty to charging a long-distance phone call to a fictitious number and was given indefinite probation. He had reported himself.

Another student accused of cheating on a religion exam pleaded innocent. His case has been continued.

Extentuating circumstances are responsible for different sentences awarded for similar actions, said an Honor Council spokesman.

According to council regulations the names of persons involved in Council trials may not be used without the person's permission.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

By United Press International

Charles DeGaulle

Cuban Missiles Foreseen

WASHINGTON—U. S. officials said Monday Fidel Castro may soon have ballistic missiles capable of hitting targets in the United States.

This first official confirmation of apparent Cuban preparations for a rocket capability was contained in a recently declassified Defense and State Department estimate of Cuba's Soviet-supplied arms build-up.

The report also said Castro has 50 to 100 jet fighters, and there are indications he is preparing to receive Soviet jet bombers as well as the rockets.

There have been unconfirmed reports from Cuba for some time that three mountains were secretly being excavated by Cuban troops. The mountains are near the Havana suburb of Marianao, in Pinar del Rio Province and in Matanzas Province.

The speculation was that they were being dug out to house missiles installations.

★ ★ ★

Security Tightened For Kennedy

TOKYO — Police tightened security measures Monday for U. S. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy's appearance at Waseda University after two student groups scuffled over a sign denouncing the visitor's brother — President Kennedy — as a "plotter of oppression."

The precautionary measures came after a day in which Kennedy met with Japanese officials and strolled in the streets of Tokyo virtually unguarded.

The security guard was strengthened for Kennedy's scheduled speech at the university, one of Japan's largest private schools, after a flare up between leftist and middle-of-the-road student groups on the campus. A large sign denouncing President Kennedy as the "plotter of oppression of the Cuban and Korean people" was put up by the leftists on the Waseda campus.

★ ★ ★

DeGaulle Lashes OAS

PARIS — President Charles de Gaulle threatened on Monday night to resume dictatorial powers to crush the outlawed Secret Army Organization OAS so he can restore peace "very soon" to an independent Algeria.

The OAS, denounced by De Gaulle as a "subversive and criminal enterprise," forced the staterun radio-television station in Oran off the air by a dramatic kidnaping Monday night and prevented broadcast of the speech. The OAS substituted an eight-minute pirate broadcast instead.

De Gaulle's tensely awaited radio-television address to the French nation did not announce a cease-fire agreement with the Moslem rebels but he expressed "the positive hope" an agreement will be reached very soon making Algeria an independent nation with close ties with France.

★ ★ ★

Indonesian Teens Protect Permits

JAKARTA, Indonesia — A mob of teen-aged Indonesians on Monday smashed windows in the U. S. Embassy, injuring an American woman employe, in protest against landing permits at American airfields granted by the U. S. government to Dutch troop-carrying planes.

The mob of about 100 included a number of students believed to be members of a Communist-dominated student organization. The howling youths smashed windows with stones and bamboo spears, ripped down the embassy plaque and hung a huge sign on the fence reading:

"America must be rubbed out."

UNC Debaters Place Eleventh

The UNC debate team placed eleventh in a field of thirty-eight teams in the Johns Hopkins Tournament at Baltimore during the weekend of Feb. 3rd.

Haywood Clayton and Mack Armstrong debated both sides of the topic that labor unions should be under the jurisdiction of anti-trust legislation. They defeated Fordham, Ohio, St. Johns, and Morgan State and lost to Pennsylvania and Scranton.

UNC's novice team will meet Duke's novice team on WUNC-TV Monday night, Coach Donald Soringen announced yesterday. Carolina will argue the negative side of the topic, "Should the U. S. join the Common Market."

CAROLINA GRAD APPOINTED

A. Larkin Kirkman, a 1969 graduate of UNC, has been appointed the UNC scholar to the U. of Chicago Law School, Dean Charles Henderson announced yesterday.

While at Carolina Kirkman was a member of the freshman honors program and a member of Phi Eta Sigma, the Grail and the Golden Fleece. He is now studying history at Goettingen University in Germany.

Student Housing Policy Statement Is Issued

By BILL WUAMETT

A statement of "policies and procedures" for the assignment of married student housing has been issued by the Housing Office in an attempt to insure that "married students are assigned to the housing for which they are eligible as equitably as possible."

"We are under pressure," Dean of Student Affairs Charles Henderson said, "not only to keep the occupants happy, but also to keep the housing filled at maximum capacity."

The statement lists in detail the system by which students are assigned to a priority list for University housing. There are now about 200 persons on the waiting list for occupancy in the 530 units being used. Housing Director James Wadsworth estimated the average waiting period to be between one and two semesters.

Priority List

On May 1 and Sept. 1 graduate and professional students are moved in order to the top of the list. Undergraduate applicants are then added to the bottom of this list.

An application is not added to the list until the student is actually married. "We've been left waiting at the altar several times ourselves," Dean Henderson commented. Applications are not accepted until they are certified by the applicant's academic dean and a $25 deposit is made.

There are nine different classes of apartments with rents ranging from $15 to $77. Students must specifically apply for one of these types. If a vacancy of the specified type is rejected by the applicant, he is dropped to the bottom of the priority list.

If a student cannot occupy the vacant housing immediately because of an existing lease in Chapel Hill or other reasonable cause, he is allowed to reserve the apartment for three months by paying half rent.

Cooperation With Realtors

"We try to cooperate with the Chapel Hill realtors," Dean Henderson said. "We don't want students to try to break their present leases by dishonest means in order to move into the cheaper University housing."

Dean Henderson stated that 88 to 92 new units are now in the planning stage. Bids are expected to be opened on April 1 and it is estimated that the new units will be completed by June of 1963. Six 2-story barracks which are now condemned will be torn down; four will be demolished this June and the other two will be torn down upon completion of the new units.

UNC Orchesta To Rehearse Tonight

The University Symphony Orchestra will resume rehearsals for its spring concert at 7:15 this evening in Hill Music Hall under the direction of Earl Slocum.

Mr. Slocum said yesterday there are a few vacancies in the various sections of the orchestra. Musicians wishing to join the group should attend this evening's rehearsal.

The concert will be held Tuesday evening, May 8, in Hill Music Hall.

The Daily Tar Heel

In its sixty-ninth year of editorial freedom, unhampered by restrictions from either the administration or the student body.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is the official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina.

All editorials appearing in THE DAILY TAR HEEL are the personal expressions of the editor, unless otherwise credited; they are not necessarily representative of feeling on the staff.

February 6, 1962 Tel. 942-2356 Vol. LXIX, No. 84

Inconsistent Decisions

Two recent Honor Council cases —both involving misrepresentation in charging long distance phone calls—provide good basis for questioning the quality of justice in Carolina's student judiciary.

Both cases were remarkably similar; in fact, were almost identical. The sentences handed out, however, were so dissimilar that we are led to question the judgment of the 16 men who make up the Honor Council.

In one case, a student was charged and found guilty of placing several long distance phone calls and charging them, with no authorization, to a campus social fraternity. He was not a member of the fraternity, and the calls were made over a long period of time. The student—a varsity athlete—when confronted with the matter, did pay for the calls. The Council, however, ruled—quite validly—that the intention to defraud was clearly present and found the student guilty of an Honor violation, handing down a reprimand as punishment. An official reprimand, although it has no immediate effect, goes on the front of student's permanent record and remains there for one year. It is then permanently transferred to the back of the record, where it can be disclosed only to government agencies such as the FBI.

The next stiffest penalty, probation, was not levied in this particular case because such a penalty would have disbarred the student from representing the University in any way—which would have meant that an athletic scholarship held by the student would have been cancelled, thereby making it virtually impossible for him to remain in school. The consideration, as we understand it, was purely a financial one and had nothing to do with the student's position as a varsity athlete.

In another case, a student who had made a single call and attempted to charge it to a fictitious number, was tried by the Council and placed on probation. In this case, the student had admitted, when the operator refused to believe him, that the number was false, concluding by telling the operator his name. The incident was reported to the Council. In this case, the student was barred from continuing in the paid position he previously held—a disbarment which will deprive him of about $400. Since the money was used to pay college expenses, the penalty did to this student exactly what the Council had refused to do in the almost identical case of the other offender.

At first glance, the Council appears to have been guilty of coddling an athlete. Whether this is the case or not, no one knows but the Council members themselves. Personally, we do not believe the decision was based in any way on the fact the student was an athlete. The refusal to punish him by cutting off money needed for college expenses, we think, was entirely just.

We are, however, concerned that the Council failed to give the same consideration to the other student who was guilty of a similar infraction.

With this kind of changing standard, it is small wonder that the Council has incurred the suspicion—not to say the anger—of a large number of students. When a judicial body displays such inconsistency; doing an about-face every time the wind changes, there is little reason to place confidence in it.

The Council could benefit from careful and thoughtful deliberation in all cases, not just part of them. Since there is no way to guarantee this—just as there is no way of guaranteeing that the students will not elect a group of addle-brained nincompoops—then it would seem that there should be some sort of codification concerning infractions and sentences.

Currently, "justice" is a nebulous term that the Council interprets however it chooses. And it is not always consistent in its choices.

The passage of some legislation concerning judicial procedures and codification of infractions and penalties could help to insure some degree of consistency. Carefully conceived legislation might even eliminate reoccurances of such mistakes as the one mentioned.

Well Done

Unfortunately, the Men's Honor Council has not been endowed with the authority to present awards of merit for deeds above and beyond the call of duty for Carolina Gentlemen.

In a case which came before the Council recently, a student was charged with ungentlemanly conduct for the following actions:

—drinking a half-dozen king-size Budweisers, a pint of rum and a fifth of rye.

—making a trip to Woman's college.

—prowling the halls, entering various rooms.

—hiding under the bed when confronted by a dorm official

—refusing to come out, resulting in his having to be extracted by the feet.

—eluding his captors and disappearing for 45 minutes.

—returning later to scratch on a dorm window.

—falling in a mud-puddle.

—collecting assorted scratches, cuts, bruises and nicks.

—finally being subdued by 4 Greensboro policemen.

The student was placed on probation. We have reliable information, however, that the Council did consider an award of some sort.

Since none was given, we would like to extend our heartiest personal congratulations and salutations to the student for a job undeniably well done.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIAL STAFF

WAYNE KING.....Editor
MARGARET ANN RHYMES—Associate Editor
LLOYD LITTLE—Executive News Editor
BILL HOBBS.....Managing Editor
JIM CLOTFELTER, BILL WUAMETT—News Editors
JIM WALLACE—Photography Editor
CHUCK MOONEY.....Feature Editor
HARRY LLOYD.....Sports Editor
BO DUPREE.....Asst. Sports Editor
GERRY BRANCHER—Contributing Editor

BUSINESS STAFF

TIM BURNETT.....Business Manager
MIKE MATHEWS—Advertising Manager
JIM EVANS.....Subscription Manager
JIM ETHERIDGE—Circulation Manager

The Daily Tar Heel is published daily except Monday, examination periods and vacations, at the request of appendix. Entered in the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., as second class matter in accordance with the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: $6.00 per school year, $3.50 per year.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press, the United Press International, and subscribes to the services of the News Bureau of the University of North Carolina.

Published by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

UNC-YAF Hits Editor, USNSA

To The Editor:

Your editorial in Friday's DTH entitled "Fussbudgets" which lambasts the Young Americans for Freedom, per se, is a gross misrepresentation of fact.

You accuse the YAF of Being an organization merely existing to oppose everything in general. Has it ever occurred to you that the UN might not be doing a very good job of "maintaining the peace"? Or do you consider the UN invasion of Katanga "a war to end all war"? Is it possible that welfare not only gives aid to those who are perfectly capable of aiding themselves; but in doing so takes from those who might really go to bed hungry through no fault of their own?

* * *

Although the UNC-YAF has taken no definite stand on the question of HUAC, you have stated that the YAF opposes "all opponents of HUAC". For the record, Mr. King, the National Office of the YAF has supported the Student Committee for Congressional Autonomy (to support HUAC). It has also supported such other organizations as the Student Committee FOR a Free Cuba, and the Committee FOR a Responsible National Student's Organization (to help REFORM the National Student Association — not abolish it).

* * *

As for a list of more worthy candidates for Man of the Year than John F. Kennedy, may I first propose Harold MacMillan, who led his country into the European Common Market in the interest of strengthening Western Europe against the threat of Communism; Or Dag Hammersjold, who, though he may have been misguided in his tactics, dedicated his life to a conscientious effort for world peace. (Might I also add that the UNC-YAF is not opposed to peace.)

* * *

In closing, let me congratulate you on the apparent respect you have for the conservative philosophy. The Young Americans for Freedom, Inc. was founded on the principles "That foremost among the transcendant values is the individual's use of his God-given free will, whence derives his right to be free from the restrictions of arbitrary force;" and "That liberty is indivisible, and that political freedom cannot long exist without economic freedom . . . ." The University of North Carolina Chapter of Young Americans for Freedom shall work toward these ends.

George T. Kilgore
Secretary, UNC-YAF

★ ★ ★

To The Editor:

The National Student Association does not represent the students across the nation. It only represents 25% of the colleges and universities in America and of that minority, it only speaks for the relatively few members of the campuses who have membership in the organization. The six delegates from UNC, who went to the National Student Congress, did not represent the normally conservative voice of the campus. No attempt has been made to represent the campus as a whole — or even to get the opinions of the students on campus who should have a voice. If the delegates are going to speak on national issues, and at the same time, claim to speak for their campus, then they should be elected by the students by popular vote. This way, the people on campus will have a chance to be heard and will be sure of having their views expressed by someone in whom they have confidence.

* * *

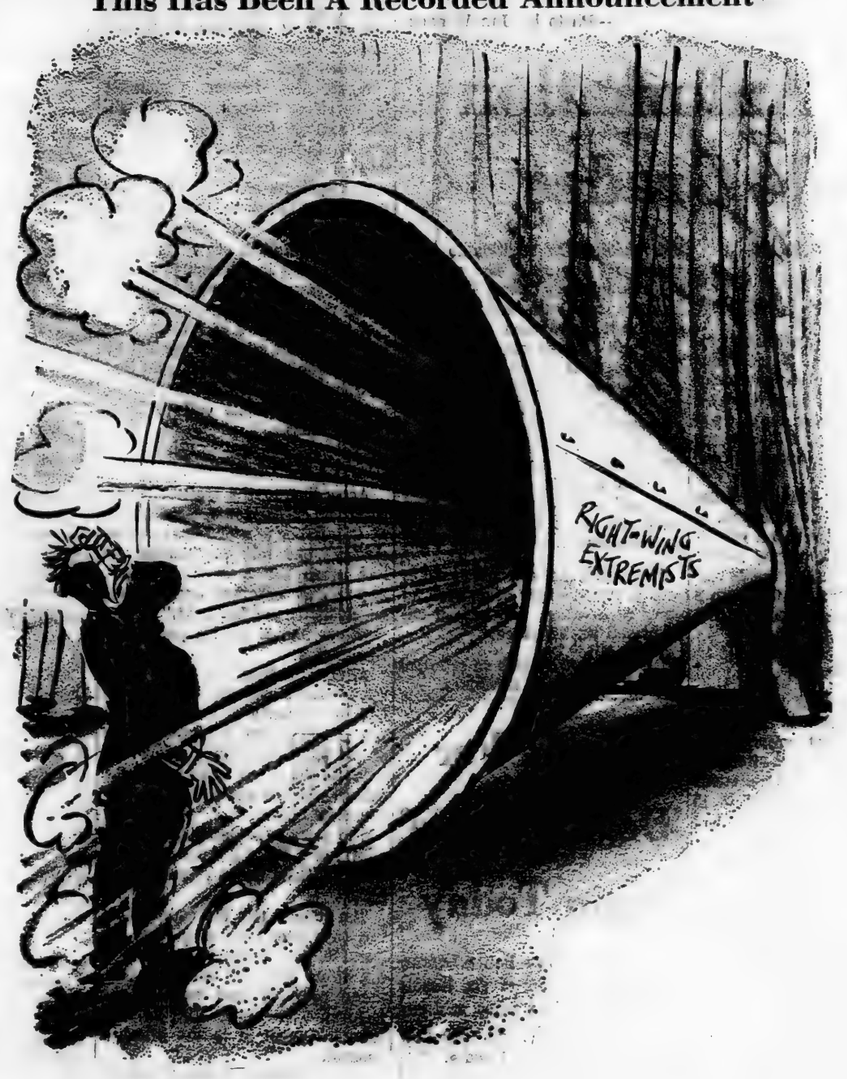
Electing the delegates — or at least the co-ordinator — will not only benefit the students and assure them of fair play; but it will also give the NSA a more representative viewpoint — one which they can be proud to bring back to their campus without fear of undue criticism. It would also tend to stop much of the widespread feeling that NSA has no interest in the students, but merely provides a selected few with the opportunity to get an interesting summer trip. Many people have little confidence in the National Student Association, because they have heard much criticism of the organization but do not actually know what the NSA stands for.

* * *

An attempt to bring the ideals of the organization to the campus as a whole through popular election of its officers would give the students an interest in a function which they financially support — and more important — would help generate an increased interest in national issues and problems of our nation today.

Michael J. Putzel
President, UNC-YAF

"You Have Just Heard The Voice Of The People — This Has Been A Recorded Announcement"



Lonely In America

Probably this campus has no lonelier building than Lenoir Hall. And yet, the main room in Lenoir is commonly the most crowded place in town. It's a sign of modern times, the sense of oppressive loneliness in a bustling, clamorous crowd. A room that might be a symbol of companionship is very nearly a symbol of isolation.

It's hard to express this feeling of bitter, almost uncanny solitude in the center of human activity. Probably the best expression of it that I've ever seen came to me by letter about two months ago, in a poem by a high school friend in Greensboro:

I am one soul, searching for understanding
In a world that does not care;
I am one man, looking for a love
That does not exist;
I must laugh and cry, live
And die;
And still, I am no more.

Underneath he had written, "Definitely too pessimistic." But it wasn't really a pessimistic outburst. Rather it was the summary of a feeling that grows on us with stark severity as we face the coming months. For at this time, when transportation is easier than ever before, when we can call our friends hundreds of miles away for a few dollars, when air mail delivery brings almost instant communication — at this time we are lonelier, individually and collectively, than ever before in our national history.

America is one country, searching for understanding in a world that is almost past caring. We feel unhappy, set apart. And we give it verbal expression, as in the poem just quoted.

But in western Europe, international fraternity is on the upswing. The people of those countries are drawn together by fear of Communism and by a greater sense of mutual affinity. The Common Market booms like a twenty-cannon salute. Scandinavia, resentful of Soviet pressure, veers toward the tightening western alliance. The West Germans, nervous and irresolute, are nevertheless prosperous, and their contribution to NATO far outranks that of any other European power.

Let's not miss the significance of what is happening. Khrushchev, in his sneaky approaches to West Germany, his suggestions that the two countries negotiate, is operating through fear. Under impulse of the Common Market, western Europe is solidifying into a loose confederation of states. In five or six years—maybe less than that—we will very probably see a power combine superior to either the United States or Russia.

Khrushchev figures on this, and he knows that any such confederation must have a leader; and no one doubts that West Germany will swing the fist in any European combine. The one that's looming up will probably be formidable enough to bring Russia to terms with it. Already the feelers have been extended to Bonn. As 1962 advances, and the vague form of the Combine emerges, one suspects that these feelers wil lbecome more enticing. Moscow wants to keep this rising power from coagulating within NATO, an organization intrinscally hostile to Russia.

Obviously the best way to preclude this is to persuade Germany, the near-certain leader, to abandon NATO; and Russo-German deals are historically a commonplace occurrence. My definite feeling is that in a few years, perhaps in 1963, West Germany will defect from NATO by signed agreement, while Russia, in return, pulls out of occupied East Germany. Then the greater Grmany will runite, the Berlin wall will be smashed, and NATO will disintegrate—not with a whimper, but a bang.

Is this a bleak speculation? Perhaps not. Germany could leave NATO and give up her formal alliance with the west and still support us by tacit agreement. And the European coalition, when and if it comes, will likely be so powerful that NATO will look like a Sunday-school picnic beside it.

This may be the thing to safeguard America's freedom. But the prospect by itself, is increasing American loneliness. The European peoples will draw together and shut us away — leaving us lonelier and more remote than even Nikita Khrushchev could hope for.

—WADE WELLMAN

Letter:

Irresponsible Liberal Press

To The Editor:

The editorial Saturday on the closing of Southern University points as clearly as any I have seen to a curious inconsistency, or "two-faceness," that has become the practice of not only the DAILY TAR HEEL, but of most of the American liberal press. Compare the paper's stand here with its stand on mob action during the desegregation riots in McComb, Mississippi.

The editorial points out that the student demonstrations, "admittedly not quiet or orderly," were caused by anger over "the university's obvious display of unconcern for the right of seven to believe what they choose." It goes on to say, "The basic point of the issue is whether the seven students had the right to peacefully participate in a cause in which they believed. It is this right that should have been honored by Southern. When it was not, the student body rebelled."

Were the TAR HEEL to any degree consistent, an editorial such as this could have been written after the McComb riots: "The demonstrations, admittedly not quiet or orderly, were caused by anger over the federal government's obvious display of unconcern for the right of ten thousand to believe what they choose. The basic point of the issue is whether the people of McComb had the right to peacefully participate in a way of life in which they believed (whether segregation is "good" or "bad" is not the issue here, and even the liberal press must know somewhere deep inside that those Nine Men aren't really omniscient). It is this right that should have been honored by Washington. When it was not, the people of McComb rebelled."

Needless to say, such an editorial never appeared.

The Mississippians, in fact, were stripped of something far more basic than the right to peacefully demonstrate — they lost the right to govern themselves. The majority of the people of McComb want segregation, yet they are denied this by the people of, for instance, Ohio (and I say Ohio here simply because it is a fat state with a fat vote), who are utterly ignorant of McComb and its racial "problems." Is this self-government? This is as absurd as would be the people of McComb telling Akron how to handle its traffic problems — outlawing, perhaps, one-way streets or speed laws there.

In reality, the riots in McComb were revolts against a government "of the people of Mississippi, for the people of Mississippi, and by the people of Ohio"—which, though blinded by hate, prejudice, racism, bigotry, and all the other cliches reserved for Southerners, the people in McComb managed to realize was quite a distance from democratic self-government.

And the liberal press, condoning liberty for the colored boys of Southern University, denying the same to whites in Mississippi, has displayed again a sadly inconsistent and irresponsible position.

— SANDY McEACHERN

* * *

Editor's Note:

The difference in McComb and at Southern University is this: the seven students at Southern were petitioning for racial equality. McComb residents were seeking to deny this same thing — through violence.

McComb residents do indeed have a right to harbor whatever feelings they desire—bigoted or otherwise. They do not have a right, however, to manifest these feelings by attempting to deny Negroes the right to vote, nor to violate the rights to equal protection of the law.

If McComb citizens organize pickets protesting integration or advocating white supremacy, then this is their right. They do not have the right to attack and maul Negroes and white integration leaders.

The point we tried to make concerning the Southern University episode was simply this: the whole thing would not have happened if Southern had honored seven students' right to peaceably demonstrate against segregation policies in Baton Rouge.

We assumed the difference between seven students' participation in a protest and a whole town drunk on violence was evident.

Toreadors Waltz Well In Raleigh—Reviewer

Jean Anouilh's ironic, bouncing "The Waltz of the Toreadors" is the Raleigh Little Theater's second comedy this season and its best. It will run each night at 8 till next Saturday.

A tale of an aging French General's escapades and fear of growing old, it is brought to life by individual outstanding performances.

Gen. St. Pe, hounded by his hypochondriac wife and two ugly adolescent daughters, is dictating his memoirs to his secretary, a young orphan from a monastery.

